WHAT A FUSS!

Over the Ameer's Son-He Gets a Golden Casket.

London, June 6 .- The Lord Mayor, Sir Joseph Renals, and Lady Renals, drove in state in an open carriage to the Guildhall at one o'clock today, where they gave a reception and luncheon in honor of the Afghan Prince, Nasrulla Khan. The recorder presented Narsulla with an address of welcome enclosed in a yellow casket. The prince made a speech in Persian in reply to the address. Traffic was wholly suspended in the city at noon. The weather was clear, bright, and cool, and the streets were crowded with sight-seers. A force of cavalry was disposed around St. Paul's and along Cheapside to guard the route to the Guild Hall. The luncheon chamber was profusely decorated with flowers, mirrors, flags, etc. Prince Narsulla was driven to the city at 1:30 o'clock accompanied by a retinue in native costume. He arrived at the Guild Hall at 12:25, when the formalities began.

They are the drops and irons for the instrument of death upon which Hendershott and Welter will suffer on Tuesday, June 18, for the crime of which they have been adjudged guilty, unless the Minister of Justice grants a re-These drops and irons arrived by C. The remainder of the scaffold will be built here. There are portions of the scaffold prepared for the execution of McWhirrell and Walker, but were not required. Sheriff Brown has engaged the services of Radcliffe, the well-known executioner, who will use the old drop system, the plan he usually adopts of dropping a weight and rais-ing the victims in the air being, he thinks, impracticable in a double execution. It is, of course, the intention that both executions shall take place simultaneously. Mr. Norman McDonald, solicitor for the prisoners, has been officially notified from the Attorney-General's Department that his application for a reserve case for a new trial had been re-

Miss Mary Lillie Hendershott, daughter of the elder prisoner, and a sister of the younger prisoner left today for Ottawa to intercede with the Minister of Justice to spare the lives of their father and brother.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Free Press says: "Mr. McDonald, counsel for Hendershott and Welter, was again in consultation with the Minister of Justice today. He was accompanied by Mr. Ingram. Every effort is being made to secure a respite or a commutation." Mr. McDonald has not been out of the city since Saturday. It was probably Rev. D. Spencer who accompanied Mr

RETURNED FROM OTTAWA. F.ev. D. Spencer arrived home from Ottawa at noon today, where he went in the interest of Welter and Hendershott. Yesterday he had an interview with Sir C. Tupper, Minister of Justice, and Deputy Minister Power. They rereceived him very kindly, listened patiently to his statement, and said that they would consider it in connection with the statements of others. The application for a commutation of the prisoners' sentence will be cohsidered at the

THE PARKHILL ROBBERY.

Ministerial John Grant on Trial for the Alleged Theft of $5,000

> From the Parkhill Express Office Verdict in the Delaware Bicycle Case.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON. When the court resumed this afternoon John Grant was arraigned on the charge of stealing a package containing $5,000 from the Canadian Express Company's office in Parkhill. He pleaded not guilty. On April 11 the Bank of Commerce in Toronto sent by express to the Parkhill branch a package of $5,000. The train arrived in Parkhill at 1:40 p.m. The parcel was handed to the assistant agent, and afterwards was placed in the safe. April 11 fell on a holiday, the money was not called for Mr. B. S. Murray, of this city, inspector The following men who have passed of the Canadian Express for the London district, was notified as soon as the robbery was discovered. He went to Parkhill that evening and learned that Grant (who was formerly in the employ of the Grand Trunk there, but had not worked for some months) was very flush with cash. Mr. Murray and a constable instituted inquiries, and learned that the accused had made purchases Vance, R. L. Wilson, Martin J. Wilson, and gave in payment Bank of Com-A. C. Tiffin. merce bills. Mrs. Schaefer, wife of the proprietor of the hotel where Grant boarded, handed Mr. Murray $3,811.50 in $5 and $10 Commerce bills, which Grant had given her to keep for him. In a small "cubby hole" across the hall from Grant's room a wad of $945 in Commerce paper was found in a lot of rubbish. In this parcel was a telegram addressed to the prisoner. On Sunday $10 more was received from Mr. Schaefer and $30 from Martin Breen. In all, $4,790 were recovered. Grant was arrested and subsequently committed for trial.

The evidence offered by Mr. James Magee, attorney for the crown, this afternoon, was given by Mr.W.Thompson, express agent at Parkhill; Wm. Ramsay, assistant agent; Wm. Johnston, the money on the train; Alex. Kinnear, night clerk in the Toronto express office; Chas. H. Mellish, day clerk in To-Bank of Commerce, Toronto; George S. Skinner and Ferdinand Gratton and Time, 1:50 1-2. pany's officials went principally to prove the transmission of the money and the placing of it in the safe at Parkhill.

Mr. Murray described his finding the Mr. Mur money as stated above, while Mr. Hetherington stated that the office was locked from 8:20 to 9, and 9:20 to 10 o'clock on the Thursday night. George S. Skinner swore that he met Grant at the orner of the station about 8:15 on that evening.

THURSDAY MORNING. The case of John Grant, charged with stealing the money package from the Parkhill express office, occupied the whole of this morning's session. Nothing unusual was adduced in the evidence

The jury in the case of Fred Grant. charged with stealing Johnson & Bodkin's bicycle at Delaware, found Grant guilty of receiving stolen goods.

Sentence has not been passed. The case of Edward Ellis and Malcolm Campbell, of Parkhill, charged with assaulting and wounding Samuel Peck in December, has been postponed until the next sessions. THE CONGREGATIONALISTS.

Meeting of the Canadian Union at Hamilton-Need for a New Departure.

Hamilton, June 6.-The 42nd annual meeting of the Congregational Union of Ontario and Quebec opened Wednesday morning at Hamilton The Canadian Congregational Missionary Society met today. Rev. Geo. Wood presented the 42nd annual report, which showed that 29 missionaries are at work throughout the Dominion. The receipts for last year were $2,635, and expenditure $3,559 34. On account of the growing balance against the treasury requests of twelve churches for grants aggregating $1,950 have been refused. The treasurer reported that a debt with the society had become chronic, and the expenditures during the year had been increased 17 1-2 per cent without reaping corresponding results. The church subscription shows a decrease for the past year, and Ontario was not doing its share. The report concluded with a severe reflection on Toronto churches, which had contributed only $454 to the society during the past year, though that city draws $300 from the grant fund.

GLADSTONE BETTER.

London, June 6.-There has been a marked improvement in Mr. Gladstone's health, and yesterday he went out driving. His physicians hope that he will be able to embark on June 12 for Kiel to attend the opening of the Baltic Canal. GOOD WORDS FOR MOWAT. London, June 6.-The Chronicle says: The visit to this country of the Hon. Sir Oliver Mowat, Prime Minister and Attorney-General of Ontario, ought not to pass without recognition of his long and distinguished services in the cause of progress in one of the most enlight-ened sections of the empire. DECLINED THE HONOR. London, June 6 .- Herbert Spencer, who was one of three men outside of Germany who were recently appointed by Emperor William Knights of the Order of Merit, has declined the proffered honor on the ground that his opinions repeatedly expressed in his writings debar him from accepting it.

JUNE HANDICAP-CHANGE OF COURSE. The June handicap prize is to be competed for any day up to and including Wednesday, Junt 12, and it is particularly desired that as many members as can possibly do so will arrange to play off their match on one of these days. As the grass between the seventh and eighth holes has grown long, and makes play somewhat difficult and unsatisfactory, besides causing the loss of innumerable balls, it has been decided to alter the course for the match as follows: Instead of playing to the seventh hole, play from the sixth to the hole in the ladies' course lying southwest of the sixth; from there to the fourth, and from the eighth to the ninth on the regular course. RELICS IN LONDON.

Souvenirs of Famous Men and Noted Events.

The Old Palace of Whitehall and Its Sur viving Fragment-Interesting Military and Naval Trophies-Models of the Battle of Trafalgar-Plan of the Field of

The palace of Whitehall and its grounds, so associated with the names of English monarchs and rulers from the days of Henry VIII. to Charles II., occupied the district between Charing Cross and Westminster, extending from the Thames up into St. James' Park. Part was burned to the ground in 1691 and the remainder in 1697. The space is now covered with streets, terraces Batteries-Hutchinson and Moran; Hoffer and Clarke. Umpire-Betts. Called at the end and public buildings. The boulevard of the embankment occupies the river front. The ground is intersected by one of the busiest thoroughfares of London-Whitehall. On the east side Whitehall, opposite the Horse Guards, still stands the banqueting hall of the palace. It was built in the Palladian style by Inigo Jones in the reign of James I. The ceiling is embellished with pictures by Rubens-the apotheo sts of James I. in the center, with allegorical representations of Peace and Plenty and scenes from the life of Charles I., the artist's patron. He was, on Jan. 30, 1649, led out through one of the windows of the great hall and executed upon a lofty scaffold in front of the building. Under the Georges the pile was converted into a royal chapel, play E. Leonard & Sons' team on the form-

The Royal United Service Institution, composed of members of the military. naval and auxiliary forces, was founded in 1830 for the advancement of literary and scientific knowledge connected with the "services." It has a membership of 5,000, holds meetings at which papers are read, and publishes a Journal. The society early formed a nucleus of a museum. The collection was until of late wretchedly housed, and admis-sion was to be had only by order from a member. Lately, by arrangement museum is now arranged in the hall and its basement. It is one of the most interesting collections in London. Admission is at a trifling fixed charge-"soldiers and sailors in uniform free." Old flags wave from the gallery. The walls are covered with the weapons of all times and of all countries. The progress of the musket can be studied from the "brown Bess" to the magazine rifles now adopted by different States. Cannon are there from the rudest of old times of half-civilized peoples to the most deadly quick-firing ordnance. The Fourth race-Vineyard handicap, 9 uninitiated may learn to realize the less," and "cordite" powders. The weapons and ammunition of the time of the Crimea war appear almost playthings before present appliances. Large scale models of war vessels are there, from the Malay pirate and the ships of the time of James I. and the Hansaetic League, to the great three-deckers of the Napoleonic wars and the destructive 27-knot torpedoes of the present. Everything connected with modern warfare is expensive-these models even must have cost large sums. Perhaps one-fourth of the 6,000 square feet of the great hall is occupied by "models" of the battle of Trafalgar, and a plan of the field of Waterloo. This latter is said to contain 190,000 little figures. A passing study of these will tend to a clearer conception of the crowning events in the careers of Nelson and Wellington than would a long course of reading. Much of the armor weapons and dresses have been taken in actual warfare. It is the relics that will perhaps arouse the greatest interest in most minds.

There is a heavy anchor taken up within late years from the wreck of a vessel of the Spanish Armada on the coase of Donegal. (How the past and the present are brought together!) The more precious objects are enclosed in glass cases; a portion of the standard presented by Queen Isabella to Pizarro Commodore Drake's snuff-box; the sword carried by Cromwell at the storm of Drogheda; arms from the field of Culloden; the sword worn by Wolfe when he fell on the Plains of Abraham; scalping knives and pistols of the Indian auxiliaries on both sides in the War of Independence and in 1812; papers relating to the private signals and the signal-book of the Chesapeake; a quadrant and other objects from the wreck of the Royal George; Capt. Cooke's punch-bowl; his chronometer taken out by Bligh in 1787, and carried by the mutineers in the Bounty to Pitcairn's Island; a telescope belonging to the Bounty; the prayer-book used by John Adams in his morning and evening services with the descendants of the mutineers. Here, again, are weapons used by the insurgents in Ireland in 1798; Tippoe Saib's pistols found on his body. Sir Ralph Abereromby's pistols. Numerous are the records of Trafalgar—a portion of the Victory's flag; Nelson's hat and lock of his hair; his desk and sword. (The clothes in which he fell are to be seen in the Painted Gallery at Greenwich. We see before us the officers' sashes used in carrying Sir John Moore from the field at Corunna and lowering him into his grave on the ramparts of the citadel. There is a memento of an Indian brave in the buffalo powder-horn taken from the body of the Shawnee chief Tecumseh at the battle of the Thames in 1813. Many are the reminders of Waterloo and Napoleonthe skeleton of the charger "Marengo," which the emperor rode; the pockettelescope, razors nad shaving appartus left in his carriage; the desk and chair he used at St. Helena; the saddle of Blucher's horse; a map carried by General Picton and saturated with his blood.

A number of pikes used by the "Welsh Chartists at the attack on Newport in 1840," remind us that the present sedate inhabitants of the principality have fiery Celtic blood in their veins, as well as their brethren on the other side of St. George's Channel, whose Fenian pikes are also in evidence. The relics of the Franklin expedition are peculiarly interesting; most of them were brought home by Dr. Rae; one is especially affecting—a silver medal gained by a lad at school in 1830; taken with him (then a lieutenant) to sea in 1845; buried in his grave in the far north three years afterwards, and brought home with his remains in 1880. Numberless are the memorials connected with the Crimean campaign and with the ever-recurring Indian wars of the

"It will be my first jaunt to the seashore," said the Country Mouse to the City Mouse. "Will you be kind enough to tell me what I ought to wear and how I ought to wear it? There's a certain something, indescribable I'm sure, but still evistant about the way you but still existent, about the way you City Mice wear your clothes. Come, now, Susie, you're a plain sort; you won't mind telling me the secret, will you? In short, you'll answer both my questions in one? You know better than I can tell you that we don't know much about the art of dress out at Lonelyville. We know all about work, something about flowers and horses, and a bit about outdoor games, not so much as we ought to, though; but although there are a number of pretty, intelligent girls in our village, whose parents have plenty of means, it always seems to me there's something essentially wrong with the general construction of

"There is," said the City Mouse, without even the faintest intonation of superiority in her voice, but in a tone that bore the evidence of conviction. "There is, because you haven't learned the first principle of dress. You don't know that one dress thoroughly well made is worth six awkwardly put together by somebody who only sews at a dress, trying to teach herself—most impossible proceeding—as she green lang Dresswell. ceeding—as she goes along. Dressmak-ing is an art. If women can't have their gowns made by professional dressmakers, they may as well go about clothed in gunny-bags for all the effect their gowns will ever have. Then again, you don't choose materials appropriate to the seasons. A young girl like you in her first season should have first a well-made tailor gown in some stylish lightweight wool, such as cheviot, and there should be generous glints of color in mice are so apt to affect. With this gown there should be a jacket either to match it or in some plain, harmoni-ously contrasting shade; the latter, by the way, could be worn with any and all gowns, and must be becoming to your figure. With this outfit, which will be your traveling costume, you should wear a small, close-fitting hat, so becomingly, although plainly trimmed that it will bring out all the good points in your face. You will also wear leese, undressed kid gloves with this gown, but they must not show signs of wear, and must be so perfectly kept that they always look trim and stylish without looking exactly new. Besides this you must have at least one simple evening gown of some light, inexpensive silk combined perhaps with chiffon, or some kindred dainty material. This gown must fit perfectly, but must be simple in outline and trimming, because these are the leading characteristics of all young girls' modish gowns nowadays, and because that feature is based on the genuine artistic principle that youth best adorns itself. You must not wear expensive laces, and your jewels, if any, must be very simple. Besides this you should have as many pretty muslin dinner gowns as you can afford; many a girl goes on such a jaunt with only one, having several fancy bodices with which to vary it. You should have, if you can, one medium dark silk, such as dark heliotrope, golden brown, of course, your outing-gown of serge, with several blouse bodices of varying thickness to suit the varying temperatures you are sure to encounter. If you will have these gowns made by a good tailor or a reliable dressmaker, you will find, unless you prove yourself a very gay bird indeed, that with but the small expense attendant upon necessary furbishing and perhaps a bit of remodeling, your plumage will be abudantly provided for two seasons, no matter where you go, or with what genteel class you are associated. A few wellselected gowns; boots and gloves that are beyond reproach; clean, carefully cressed hair; a glowing skin that comes of daily bathing and exercising freely in the open air, and presto! you may walk with kings and princes so far as your personal appearance is concerned —Jenness Miller's Monthly, of the annual report, made the follow-"Gentlemen, in moving the adoption of the report I trust you will kindly permit me to refer to some matters of interest to this company.

"Owing to our business connec-

tions both in Ontario and Manitoba, we have been able to invest our money at fair rates of interest, in no case loaning at less than 6 per cent. The rates at which money can be loaned in the future, especially in Manitoba, will depend largely on the action of the loan companies. It is true that private funds are being offered and placed on very easy terms, which is disturbing the money market, but only to a limited extent. On the other hand, loan com-panies, with their business connections, their wider field of operations, and their ability to employ salaried inspectors, have advantages not to be lost sight of in determining the question of reduction in rates. Lowering the rate of interest on the part of loan companies would, in all probability, be fol lowed by a still further reduction in the rate of private funds. While admitting the depression that has existed in the Province of Ontario for some time past, we cannot forego the opportunity of pointing out the success that has attended the efforts of our business men and farmers to withstand and overcome the financial difficulties they have encountered.

"A wave of depression comes periodically, and in its course rolls over this Province. The effects of the last have been severe, but, we are satisfied, the worst is past, that brighter days are ahead, and that Ontario will come out of the ordeal with credit fully sustained and capital unimpaired.

"Our policy has been and will continue to be, not to hesitate as we make or ascertain losses through shrinkages in value, or from any other cause to write them off and charge to contingent account. We have done this very thoroughly in the past two or three years, and may have to continue doing so for a few years longer. Our contingent fund was created for that purpose. In good times we are able to enlarge this fund, but in times of depression and consequent shrinkage in values we frequently draw upon it.

MANITOBA "The Province of Manitoba has been to some extent affected by the general depression; at the same time it has been steadily advancing. The production of the past year has been considerably in excess of any previous year, and, notwithstanding the low prices that pre-vailed, the value of the crop has exceeded that of any other year in the history of the Province. The yield of wheat estimated at between 17,000,000 and 18,000,000 bushels; the flax crop realized about $500,000, and there was a full average of coarse grain, "The export of cattle this year has been about 30,000 head; of hogs, 10,000, and of sheep, 4,000. The value of dairy exports was about $500,000. Notwithstanding this substantial development of the live stock industry, it is anticipated that the number of creameries and cheese factories will probably be doubled during the present year.

"The farmers are practicing the strictest economy, and contracting very few debts, and this particularly in respect of implements and machinery, and, generally speaking, they are in a better position this year than last. "The commercial condition of the Province has also improved, having alstate from extreme and long credits to reasonable cash and short-credit

"Winnipeg has continued to advance, substantial buildings have been erected, property has maintained its value, building has not been overdone, and the prospects are that this healthy prosperity will continue.

THE AGRICULTURE OF ONTARIO 'Two things are most noticeable in examining the returns made by the farmers of Ontario for the past few years to the Ontario Department of Agriculture; first, the steady increase year by year in the value of farm improvements and equipment; and, second, the gradual change that has been taking place at the same time from the production of grain for sale to the production of meat, eggs, fruit, butter and cheese.

"The returns show that throughout the Province as a whole there has been a marked improvement in the dwellings, barns and various buildings on the farms; that a very large increase has been made in the amount of underdrainage; that improved fences are rapidly replacing the old-style rail and stump fences, and that all kinds of machinery are being extensively used as far as possible in place of manual labor. The change in the products of the farm may be readily seen from the following table, which gives the acreage of seven crops for 1884, 1889 and

Acres. Acres. 1,220,725 1,009,008 875,286 486,861 Barley. 700,472 875,286 4:6,861 Oats. 1,481,828 1,923 444 2,330,766

Roots 133,525 143,575 186,513 Hay 2,193,399 2,286,223 2,576,943 "Wheat and barley have been grown for sale off the farm, whereas oats, peas, corn, roots and hay have been grown mainly for consumption, upon the farm. In five years the area of the two former crops has dropped by 600,-742 acres and the area of the other five crops has increased by 906,512 acres. "The increase in the acreage of corn do.

(maize), in the number of cheese factories, and in the number of swine, all point in the one direction. These three are inseparably connected with profitable dairying in Ontario. "The increase in the number of sheep since 1892 is 165,000, in the number of swine 150,000, and in poultry over 500,-

"The most important feature in the change of our agricultural industries is the development of the cheese factory system. In 1883 there were in Ontario 635 factories with a product of 53,513.000 pounds, while in 1894 the number had soon; equivalent of legislative public increased to 897, with a product of 100,-000,000 pounds. The importance of cheese making may be emphasized by giving the returns of three or four counties for the year 1892, which will be about the same as 1894.

"In the counties of Leeds, Grenville, Oxford, Dundas and Hastings there are 260 factories. The value of the cheese made was $3,207,166, or about $30 per head of the rural population of these The number of creameries is steadily increasing, having doubled in the last three years. "The adaptability of our Province to fruit growing is becoming more widely known, and year by year the acreage of fruits, large and small, is being increased. The municipal assessment returns show an increase from 1890 to 1894 of 16,173 acres of orchard and garden. "In this connection attention may be called to the increased interest taken in fruit growing in Ontario by the Pro-Department of Agriculture. through the establishment of several fruit experiment and testing stations in different parts of the Province, of the West Middlesex farmers from sending out experts to teach the farmers and fruit growers how properly to spray their trees. "All things considered, it may be concluded that the farmers of Ontario are rapidly adapting themselves to the and are trying to adopt those lines of proper committee.

work that are most profitable and promising, and that tend to improve the fertility and productiveness of their

"I desire to express my sincere thanks to my colleagues for their generous support and valuable assistance, and my appreciation of the ability, devotion and competency of the managing director, as well as of the other officers of the company."

T. S. Staynor, Esq., in seconding the adoption of the report, spoke as follows: "The information contained in the president's report respecting the change in agriculture from almost exclusive grain growing to mixed farming, which has been so rapid, is most satisfactory as appears from the report, not only in this Province, but also in Manitoba. This state of things, I must say, is very promising and hopeful for the future of the country. Not only does it make farming more productive, but it is the means of improving the soil. Of course we know nothing can be more hurtful to the land than the continual cropping of wheat, hay, etc., and then sending the products off the farm. The best soil suffers under such treatment, and to such methods may be attributed a great deal of the loss to the farming community. As the assets of the loan companies consist largely of mortgages on farm properties, it is a matter of interest to know that an improvement has taken place which will redound not merely to the advantage of the companies, but to the agricultural interests also. I have much pleasure in seconding the adoption of the report." The report was then unanimously adopted. After a resolution thanking the presi dent and directors for their attention to the interests of the company, and also a resolution thanking the manager and staff for their services during the year. It was adopted unanimously that Messrs. W. E. Watson and Joseph Blakeley be general auditors for the current year, and J. Patterson and W. Hutchinson auditors for the Winnipeg agency.

The election of directors was then held, and the scrutineers reported the following parties elected: C. H. Gooderham, T. S. Staynor, Hon. J. C. Aikins, H. S. Howland, Hugh Ryan, W. F. McMaster and the Hon. S. C. Wood. At a subsequent meeting of the directors, C. H. Gooderham, Esq., was elected president, and T. S. Staynor, Esq., vicepresident, for the coming year.

INFLUENTIAL DEPUTATIONS

Urge the Crossing of Dundas and Oxford Street Bridges by Trolley Cars.

Estimated Receipts and Expenses of Middlesex for the Current Year.

The Middlesex County Council resumed business at 2 p.m., and were waited upon by an influential deputation from city and London West councils in respect to granting the street railway company privileges to cross the Dundas and Oxford street bridges. The city was represented by Mayor Little, Ald. J. W. Jones, R. Carrothers, O. E. most passed through the transition Brener and H. Dreaney. London West had Reeve Macdonald and Deputy Reeve Murdoch on the county benches, and Councilors Hamilton and Andrews as representatives. The street railway company's members were Manager Carr, Supt. Deharte and Messrs, Hellmuth and Ivey.

Mayor Little was the first speaker. and explained the provisions under which the company were allowed to cross Victoria and Clark's bridges. He also showed that the city had, as far as in their power, consented to allow cars to cross Kensington bridge if the compay would place cylinders next the abutments and erect a separate structure thereon, using the abutments of the present bridge for girders. "So you see, gentlemen," said Mayor Little, "every point has been carefully covered. We recognize the fact, more so than any other city in Canada, that. our trade depends very largely upon the farmers, so that what is not of advantage to you would be detrimental to us. We have guarded your interests in every respect."

Councilor Hamilton, of London West, pleaded hard, out of respect to the women folks, for the granting of the company's desires.

Reeve Owens, of Strathroy, spoke briefly, and thought that as the crossing of the bridge would be advantageous to them, the street railway company should take the structure entirely off the hads of the munipality.

Reeve McLeod-What is the nature of Warden Leitch-Discussion on the subject will be out of order just now. It will first be the place of the council's special committee to meet the special committee from the city and present a report. Then discussion will be al-

M. McEvoy, mitted an estimate of the general revenue and expenditure of the county for the year ending June 30, 1896. Provincial Government for criminal justice, $6,500. The total estimated expenditure was $63,240, leaving a balance to be provided by general rate for current expenses of $43,498. The outlay for administration of justice was set at $16.500; pay of jurprs in superior courts, $4,000; balloting and summoning jurors. $1,200; expenses of municipal government, $7.000; house, of refuge, $7,500; joint hospital. $2,000; public school inspectors, $1.500; grants to high schools and institutes, $6,050; to public schools, $5,500; new bridges, $2,500; repairs to other bridges, $3,000.

The estimated revenue and expendi-ture of Middlesex proper, which does not include Biddulph and McGillivray, Lucan, and a portion of Ailsa Craig. were also submitted, showing that $45,-000 of debentures would fall due this year, and a total of $70.636 to be provided There remains $28.360 to be provided for by issue of debentures. GOLD AND SILVER MONEY. The "Advertiser" has been able to obtain an interview with Mr. B. E. Walker, the well-known general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, upon a subject which is causing much talk throughout the world at the present time. Mr. Walker, who, by the was for some time in charge of the Bank of Commerce in this city, stands high as a financial authority, and on various important occasions he has been called upon to act as spokesman for the banks of Canada. To a wide circle he is also known as a man of high literary culture. The "Advertiser" representative asked Mr. Walker to supply some clear, non-technical, yet brief, idea of the phrases "monometallism" and "bi-metallism," as well as to state the real heart of the discussion going on, and wherein the gravity of the question lies. Mr. Walker replied in the following terms:

"The question you ask is extremely complicated and difficult to answer in any time at my disposal. The terms 'mono-metallism' and 'bi-metallism' express respectively the theories of a 'single standard' and a 'double standard' of values. A community at first exchanges its products by direct barter, but soon selects one or more commodities, as universally acceptable as possible, and regards these as standards by which to measure the value of and exchange the remaining commodities, In early French Canada, wheat, moose and beaver skins and other things were ed as standards of value, that is, as money. If a community selected a bushel of wheat and a bar of iron (of settled | bit in the June Cosmopolitan: weight or size) as their standards, and there came a year in which the wheat crop failed, the powerful traders would doubtless succeed in keeping all the wheat they received in exchange for general commodities, and as they would also receive or possess bars of iron, they would pay their own debts in iron instead of wheat, Then there would inevitably come a collapse in the 'double standard,' as the bushel of wheat and the bar of iron would clearly no longer be of the same value. The trader in selling a web of cloth would make two prices-one in wheat and the other in iron.

"If we regard the wheat as gold and the iron as silver we have the problem of bi-metallism before us.

"The adherent of mono-metallism says: 'I wish to trade all over the world. The most universally acceptable and most readily transportable commedity is gold. But if silver were quite as universally acceptable and as readily transportable I would still prefer one standard, because the annual product and consumption of gold and silver being always variable, an arbitrary parity of values is not possible of being maintained for any length of time, no matter what proportion between gold and silver legislation may name; and as concurrent legislation by all leading nations would be necessary but probably impossible to procure, I regard international bi-metallism as impracticable, as it would be unwise.' "The bi-metallist argues that there is not enough precious metal in the shape of coin and bullion to sustain the enormous fabric of credit substitutes for meney (legal-tender and bank notes, checks, bills of exchange, etc.), which we have in modern times created, unless silver be used as well as gold. He points out that while England and Germany may desire only gold as a standard, the Asiatic countries and some European and American countries cannot obtain gold, and therefore accept silver for their products, and if silver were demonetized there would not be gold enough to carry on the trade of the world, especially as in many of these countries credit substitutes cannot be used to any extent. He also argues that the enormous fall in the price of silver has not been accompanied by a proportionate advance in the prices of other commodities in these silverusing countries, as theoretically it should have been, and that therefore the Indian manufacturers of cotton goods, for example, can undersell in the East the Manchester manufacturer; and he centends that the enormous industrial development in the East of late years, and the great decline in exports from Great Britain, and particularly the depression in the cotton goods trade in England, are all due to the decline in the price of silver. Such bi-metallists are apparently in a minority in England, being as a rule bankers or merchants interested in the Indian and Eastern trade, manufacturers of cotton and other goods destined for Eastern trade, and some agriculturists, and they seek to make the average Briton feel that he is being ruined by this diver- investigations in view-gence between gold and silver and the 'incidental protection' it is giving to Eastern maufacturers. But the average Briton retorts that this is an age of wonderful industrial development, anyway, and it is not strange that in India and Japan they are getting ahead with things, and his losses in exports do not seem to be more to silver-using countries than to gold using countries, and are probably due to the Baring panic and the world-wide liquidation of the last four years. "As to the so-called bi-metallists in such countries as the United States and Mexico, they are as a rule simply desirous that the silver mined in their countries may find a market, and the more reckless of them will advocate bimetallism for the world no more readily than mono-metallism for the United States, if the one metal be silver instead of gold, and if they thought that that great nation would be capable of the felly of falling to the silver level. Those who have not studied the subject should bear in mind that the United States is still a gold-standard country. It imperiled its finances by issuing hundreds of millions of silver dollars and silver certificates, but it, either directly or indirectly, covenanted to redeem and did redeem these in gold. If it attempted to regard the silver dollars and silver certificates as the equal of, instead of the substitute for, gold, the collapse would come immediately upon the assumption of such bi-metallic system"

Municipal reform has been much discussed in Toronto, and perhaps no city in Canada has greater need of it. Whether Toronto is too large to be gov- the amounts paid in by them and the erned according to a uniform plan, or whether it should have a special charter, may be left open questions; yet we think she might get along under the existing law quite as well as other cities and towns if only she had the right kind of men at the council board. It has long been believed, however, that there is too little of public opinion in Toronto, and too much of the secret opinion of the lodges. Gladstone, in discussing a subject of political reform with Lowe, spoke of the Parliamentary Constitution of Great Britain before 1832 as full of flaws in theory and blots in practice that would not bear the light; yet that constitution was one of the wonders of the world. "Whatever its defects," he wrote, "it had imbibed enough of the free air of heaven to keep the lungs of liberty in play." It is indeed not a charter or a system of municipal law suited to its special needs that Toronto so much wants as more free air of heaven and less of the close air of the lodge room. The city voted upon four bylaws the other day, three for waterworks extensions, which were thought to be real necessities, and one to provide the city with an electric light action in this regard from 21 to 18. plant, and all four were voted down by large majorities. Evidently the taxpayers regard the debt as already large enough-it is something over $20,000,-000; but perhaps, also, they were afraid to trust their aldermen with the construction and management of an electric plant, having the results of recent

A JUDGESHIP OFFERED.

M. C. Cameron, Q.C., Goderich, has been offered a judgeship by the Dominion Government, according to Conservative circles in Toronto. Mr. Cameron made a good M. P., and he would make a good judge, but there are no evidences that he desires to abandon public life. West Huron would have been heard from on the floor of Parliament this session if Mr. Cameron were her representative. Instead of that, the riding is practically disfranchised.

A WELL MANAGED CONCERN.

The report of the annual meeting of the Freehold Loan Company, of Torento, given in today's "Advertiser," contains much that will interest our readers. The comments on the depression, on the condition of agriculture in the country, and upon the prospects for the future are most timely. Some good advice to farmers and others is sandwiched into the financial discussion. This company did a large and lucrative business last year, and President Gooderham and his associates look forward to similar good results during the year now entered upon.

PRETTY STATESMANSHIP. Sometimes it is called diplomacy and sometimes it is called by a harsher name. Of course if Sir Adolphe Caron had known that Mr. Brodeur, M.P., had seen the papers in the Loiselle case in a Montreal courtroom the Postmaster-General would not have informed the House that the documents were lost. In this particular case the statement could hardly be called diplomatic. And again, if John Haggart had known that Mr. Foster would have refused to back him up the Minister of Railways would not have said that the documents were confidential and the Government would not produce them even if the House had ordered them. In that particular case the utterance was not at all diplematic, because Mr. Haggart's bluff was called, and the leader of the House promised to produce the papers. It was a pretty exhibition of statesmanship. Mentreal Herald.

The Mystery Surrounding General Herbert's Resignation Unsolved.

Mr. McMullen Shows How Conservative Superannuation Works-The Government Opposed to Any Reform-Mr. Charlton's Abduction Bill Killed.

(Specially Telegraphed by Our Own Representative.)

Ottawa, June 5.-Mr. Flint introduced a bill amending the Scott Act, defining more fully the powers of search for liquor. It was read the first time. Mr. Bechard introduced a bill providing that any public employe may assign his salary to another, and that a fourth and fifth and a third of this salary may be attached under judgment of the court according to the size of the salary,

In reply to Mr. Gibson, the Minister of Militia said there was no record in the department of the resignation of General Herbert last year, but he was not expected to resume his duties. His present leave of absence began on Feb. 20 last. The Government, he added, did not contemplate any change in the law so as to permit of the appointment of a Canadian officer as his successor.

Mr. McMullen, in moving the second reading of his bill to amend the Superannuation Act, read a list of superannuations, and denounced the administion of the act. Following is a list of tration of the act. Following is a list of Conservative Governments, with amounts drawn out by them:

At present if a civil servant dies in harness he loses all he has paid in, and his family derives no benefit. Mr. Speaker ruled the bill out of order, because it provided for payments out of public funds, whereas it required a responsible Minister of the crown to introduce such a bill. The Government supported the Speak. er, but the Opposition asked him to take time to consider the matter, because the bill really aimed at reducing the public burdens. The debate was

INFLUENCE OF ART IN THE HOME.

Mothers Should Awaken to a Sense of Their Responsibility and Duty.

How very few people in Canada ever think or even know what a grand influence good pictures have in a home.

Who of us do not feel, recognize and love good music? But far greater and more refining is the influence which proceeds from works of art. If mothers only knew, or would stop to consider, what the hanging of pictures in our homes meant to our children, we would not be so often pained by going into luxuriously are pictures, perhaps a dozen or more, but among them not one awakens a feeling of glad emotion; but rather we turn our eyes away, disappointed and sorrowful, to think that amidst all this luxury the true artistic feelings lie dead. And this feeling should awaken mothers to a sense of their responsibility and duty.

Art is not (as many people think) merely an imitation of nature, it is a truth, an emotion as each individual producer feels nature; it is purely feeling, and in order to be true art must create one emotion and one only; and in so far as a picture creates that one emotion in the on-looker, and gives to that mind spiritual food, then, and then only is it art. Then happy the child whose fortune it is to be brought in contact with good pictures, arousing within him grand thoughts, feelings and aspirations, acting like a refining fire, purifying and elevating the higher, better part of his nature. As our children learn to understand these pictures, they will ed to nature herself and they will see beauty around them they never saw before; and as they learn to love nature, their thoughts and feelings will become more thoughtfully kind and considerate towards their fellowmen. Then mothers let us see to it, our influence is far greater than many suppose, and though we may not be able to do so very much to reform

this generation, let us look to the children, working faithfully, earnestly and persistently to awaken and arouse the finer feelings and sensibilities. And one of the most effectual ways of doing this will be to go to our music-racks, library and bookeases, purge them of all that is light and frivolous and sensational; take from our walls all pictures of no true merit, substituting books that will strengthen the intellect, music and pictures that will awaken grand and beautiful emotions, and we will be awarded by seeing our children grow to be true gentlemen and gentlewomen, cultured and refined, shedding around them a powerful influence for good, felt by all with whom they come in contact.-Mrs.

Apparently there is a great tendency work lame and diseased horses, or these with sores or some deformity, and yet there is more or less difficulty in obtaining sufficient evidence of a reriable character to enable the inspector to prosecute, as all the statements for and against appear to be of the most conflicting nature, yet undoubtedly a great amount of needless suffering and neglect of horses is perpetrated in the

If the society could obtain a few convictions and have the culprits fined they think it would have a beneficial effect, for when men are cruel to their animals they become indifferent to the sufferings of human beings, and are ed to nature herself and they will see sure to be bad citizens. If a man beats and ill-treats his horse one cannot help wondering how it fares with his wife and children.

The inspector visited the home of Mr. John O'Brien, who lives about three miles from London. The rescue of his two boys from drowning seems to have been one of the most heroic acts that have occurred on the Thames for many years, the particulars of which were given in the city papers some days since. Notwithstanding the fact that it was Mr. O'Brien's own boys he risked his life for, yet the impulse proved him to be a brave and noble man, and undoubtedly an effort will be made by the London society to have Mr. O'Brien's heroism rewarded by the decoration of the Royal Canadian Humane Associ-

THE NEWEST CRAZE.

A REVIVAL OF THE OLD-FASHIONED SPANGLE WORK.

Modern Art Has Evolved From it Some Exquisite and Costly Designs - Some of the Uses to Which Spangle Work Can

If we would not be behind the times in the pursuit of art needlework we must, perforce, turn our attention to the newest craze, which is nothing but a revival of the old-fashioned spangle work, executed heretofore either in gold or steel with a few limited forms, while now the forms are many. Our grandmothers evidently never dreamed of the possibilities that lay with-in the scope of this work, but modern art costly designs fitted for the divers colors and multifarious shapes now at command. The spangles are made of various materials of tinsel, metal or gelatine. The colors are artistic, covering a wide range, from palest rainbow tints to glowing reds, olive greens and richest gold, deepening to work, large or small, and are cut into every conceivable form : leaf or pear shape, diamond, star, crescent, oval, square, oblong, with serrated edges, in the similitude of simple flowers like the forget-menots; more than that, if a sufficient quantity be ordered of the manufacturer he is open to supply any shape to order in any given colors. The cost of this work is considerable. Our illustrations being necessarily limited in number give but a faint idea of the uses to which spangle work can be put. Among knicknacks it is suitable for jewel-boxes, photograph frames, lamp shades, candle shades, mats, fans, hand screens, card-trays, workbaskets, and the like.

The material used as a foundation is generally of silk or satin, sometimes of gauze. It must be stretched on an embroidery frame as tight as a drum. Several shades of sewing silk to match the spangles will be needed, also a piece of beeswax. This will aid materially in making the work easy, especially as for the miniature spangles the sewing silk must be split. Holes are pierced in the spangles for sewing them down, and the sharp, sometimes rough edges are hard on Illustration No. 1 is a design for a lewel-box. The dimensions correspond to those of an ordinary cigar-box when enlarged to the original size, but the pattern can be adapted to larger or smaller measurements, according to the relative sizes of the spangles. The space occuiped by the monogram can be filled with a dainty little painting if preferred.

Coloring can be left to individual taste; It may be rich or delicate to suit its immediate surroundings. The specimen before me is on blue satin of the palest tint, and partaking of the slight greenish tint seen in a clear sunset sky.

The spangles employed to represent foliage should be in two shades of light olive green, the lighter shade for the small ones. The embroidered stems match the leaves in tone. The monogram is worked in gold thread; the jewels that embellish it, and also those that hold together the loops of spangles, represent opals. The box is padded inside throughout, including the lid, and is lined with very pale old gold satin, pink to match the flowers may be substituted if preferred.

Illustration No. 2 gives us a beautiful and novel photograph frame. This can be made up as it is, but is often protected by being, in its turn, regularly framed under glass with a gilt moulding. This design is worked on a dull buff color almost a fawn shade. The crescent spangles, the corners and the central oval are of gold, also those within the scrolls beneath the oval; the bow-knot is of Jap-anese gold thread, laid in solidly; the stem of the trailing spray is also in gold thread; the leaf spangles are brick red. the berries small pearl beads. The dragon flies' wings are spangles of peacock green. The beads within the crescent forms represent turquoise, also those between the jewels on the outer oval. These jewels are milky like an opal, but of a richer amber in color. The jewels surmounting the feathery sprays outside the heart are also partially opaque, but of a turquoise blue. The sprays are worked in green, shading in parts to brown and red. No. 3 represents a candle shade on silk thin enough to be transparent against the light. A little painted Watteau group or landscape fills the centre. The setting to the picture is worked in spangles, with small gold beads between them. The silk is of cream white, with forget-me-not blue spangles. The design, though simple, is very effective. These spangles should be affixed with a small gold bead in the centre. The edge of the shade is gilt, laced over with arresene or medieval silk to match, or else blue to match the spangles. In order to avoid showing any CANDLE SHADE threads when against the light a bead is filled in at the back between the two beads on the outer circle in front, making an unbroken circle of beads when illuminated.

Minard's Linimentis the best hair

Curious Property of a Bean Which Grows in Java.

The "jumping bean" is still fresh in the memory of the curiosity hunter. It seems that a worthy successor to it has been found in a little dry fruit growing in Java, and described recently in La Nature. The fruit is about an inch and a half long and cigar-shaped, and ex plodes with a loud report if placed into water after floating for two or three minutes. It can be shown in an ordinary water tumbler. The force developed is Opinions Expressed in Quebec With Regard to the New Specific.

Quebec, June 3.-There has been considerable discussion in this city, both among the members of the medical fraternity and private citizens, with regard to the numerous undisputed cures from various diseases of the kidneys through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. The matter has been not only discussed privately among the friends and acquaintances of those who have received benefits from the use of the remedy named, but has been chronicled in the public press. The general con-sensus of opinion is that the medicine has undergone a thorough test, and has proved itself fully deserving of the great praise which has been bestowed upon it.

ACTOR HOUGHTON'S TROUBLES.

The Houghton Dramatic Company is get floated on account of the position into which the manager, Edwin Houghton, has got himself. Houghton was in the Police Court today for trial on the charge of obtaining board for his company under false pretenses. John Fraser, of King street, was the complainant. The board was placed at $65, and all the members of the troupe, including Mrs. Houghton, were interested spectators. The evidence at the court this morning was given by C. E. Cairns, a member of the company; Donald and John Fraser, of the Thompson House, and Detective Rider. The first-named produced a letter which was handed him by Mrs. Houghton on Sunday evening about 8 o'clock, and which he supposed was left for him by the accused.

It read: "By the time you receive this I will be in Buffalo trying to raise money to pull us through, but if I do not get it what good will it do me to come back? If I get the money I will let you know by 11 o'clock tonight; if you do not hear take the inclosed money and get out on the 4 o'clock train in the morning. Say nothing to anyone." Mr. John Fraser had his first serious interview with Houghton on Saturday night last. He had known that the company was dropping money and began to realize it was time to look after his own interests. Houghton produced a telegram purporting to be from a friend in Buffalo, stating that money would be sent to London on Monday

On the production of the telegram Fraser agreed to let the company remain until Monday. Otherwise he was going to have a writ of attachment issued against the company's goods. The police magistrate considered that a prima facie case of obtaining the company's board from Saturday had been made out, and the accused was sent for trial.

> Address by Mayor Little—The City Hall a Scene of Gaiety-The Ladies in Charge.

Teday at noon the bazar in connection with the Church of St. John the Evangelist, which is being held in the City Hall, was formally opened by Mayor Little. The habitue of the hall would hardly recognize the place in its new garb. Beauty and brightness are everywhere, bowers formed by fragrant cedars, alcoves shaped with multicolthrough, 6 on sale; market lower and ored and tasteful drapery, flags, coatsdull for all but good mixed and export of-arms, plants, flowers and a multitude of decorations, the effect of which is heightened by the beautiful curtains, which shut out in part the harsh light from the Richmond street side of the hall. A galaxy of happy, smiling and good looking ladies are in charge. In A later dispatch says: Cattle closed the council chamber the metamorphosis about steady. Sales of light steers at $3 80 to $4 50; fat bulls, $3 to $3 50. Hogs is even more complete. Its usually somber interior now presents the apclosed dull at 5c to 10c decline, with 6 pearance of a daintily kept dining loads, mosty Yorkers, unsold. Sheep room, with all the homelike decorations and lambs closed strong for good fat and aids to comfort that use and arheavy spring lambs, at $5.75 to $6; fat sheep slow and unchanged for comtistic taste could devise.

The mayor took his place on the platform with Rev. W. T. Hill (the rector), Messrs. Stephen Grant, C. F. Complin and City Treasurer Pope. The rector introduced his worship in a happy little speech. The mayor said:

"The committee of management has been kind enough to ask me as mayor of the city to come here and open this hazar, and I do so with the greatest pleasure. I am sure that the object which the committee has in view is one in which all good citizens are more or less interested, and the work in which they are engaged deserves to be heartily encouraged. The more of the children of the city that receive careful training in the Sunday school, the lighter will be the duties of those who are responsible for the order and good government of the city. I understand that you have found it necessary to double the accommodation you now have at your disposal, or to provide for about 120 additional children. The rapid growth of your school is most creditable to those engaged in the good work at the north end of the city, and I have no doubt all your departments are looked after with the same zealous care. From personal knowledge acquired through connection with the city relief office, I can testify as to your care of the poor and distressed, and the many hours which must have been spent in preparing so many beautiful articles for this bazar are an evidence of the untiring diligence of the ladies interested. And now, as so much trouble has been taken to provide all these handsome decerations and attractive articles for sale, I trust you will receive the patronage you deserve, and I must take the liberty of calling on all the outsiders present (if I may use this expression) to do your duty. It was formerly said that a bazar was a place where you could purchase nice things at about four or five times their value, and the only redeeming features about the transaction were the pleasure of making purchases from agreeable and attractive ladies, and the thought that your money would probably be put to a good use. But in this case, I understand that the prices are most reasonable. The use to which your money will be put is certainly beyond question, and I need not say to those present that they will find it more than pleasant to do business with the ladies in charge of the stall, possessing, as they do in abundance, all the qualities of South London, is spending a month among friends and relatives in Flint and Lapeer, which I have spoken. Ladies and gentlemen, I wish you all a most pleasant time and a handsome return for your labors, and I take great pleasure in de-

If you have a grievance to ventilate, information to give, a subject of public interest to discuss, or a service to acknow edge, we will print it in this column, provided the name of the writer is attached to his or her communication for publication. Make it as brief as possible.

To the Editor: Resolved, that we, the quarterly official board of Dundas Street Center Methodist Church regard with disappointment and dismay the action of the license commissioners of this city in extending the hours for the sale of intoxicating liquors from 10 to 11 o'clock. This they have done with a full knowledge that the sentiment of the city is for reduction of time rather than for extension, and as servants of the Government, by this act they have violated the promise given by the Cabinet that it would give prohibition to the extent of its power. We indignantly protest, and call upon the Christian community to request the Ontario Government to enact as speedily as possible such remedy as will show that the conduct of the commissioners is not in accord with its promises and policy. And the secretary of this board is here by authorized to forward a copy of this resolution to the press, to T. S. Hobbs, M.P.P., to Sir Oliver Mowat and to the board of license commissioners. REV. E. Catholic Members of a Separate School Commission Resign-A Church Lock-Out Threatened.

Ottawa, Ont., June 6.-The resentment of members of the Dominion Methodist Church against the Montreal Conference for refusing to appoint Rev. Mr. Sparling to the charge here continues, and there is talk among some of locking the church. The conference assigned Rev. Dr. Saunders, of the Ottawa West End Church, to the Dominion Church, whose congregation asked for Mr. Sparling.

Rev. Father Foley, of Farrelton, resigned from the Separate School Commission yesterday, and as a result the proceedings of the commission were stayed. He gave his reason that he had received a direct command from Archbishop Duhamel to do so. Rev. Father Foley left for his home yesterday. Archbishop Duhamel could not be seen, having left the city.

Mr. Cheney, of Plantagenet, also resigned when Rev. Mr. Foley told of the order he had received from his grace. It was stated that the archbishop's reasons for requesting Rev. Father Foley to resign was that he considered it state interference, and therefore a menace to the prerogatives of the church-in educational matters. Mr. William Scott, of Toronto, the remining member of the commission, wired the Educational Department as to the state of affairs. The commission consisted of three recently appointed to investigate the condition of the separate schools of Ottawa. The affair will create a sensation. Warden Leitch, of Middlesex, Hon. Thos. Ballantyne, of Stratford, and J. C. Chapais, assistant dairy commissioner for Quebec, are to appear before the agricultural committee at the next meeting on the subject of the date branding of cheese. Both Leitch and Ballantyne are opposed to it. Mr. Craig, horticulturist, was exemined at length. Messrs. Carpenter and Roome urged that the Government be asked to take steps to place small fruits on the English market by means of cold storage. The idea was indorsed by resolution. Mr. Craig produced samples of cigars. cigarettes and plug tobacco made from leaf grown on the Ottawa Experimental Farm.

Then, as she was still silent, he added,

"Tell me, Stella, shall I go or stay?" "Stay," she said, almost inaudibly.
"You say that out of kindness. No, that will not do. My life here is intolerable-if you do not want me."

"I do want you, Alan."
"But, my dear, you don't understand. I am such a blunderer. What I mean ts that, in finding out that you were right, I found out also how much I loved you. Yes, with my whole heart and soul, Stella. I cannot bear to live in the same house with you, my darling. unless you can love me a little and forgive me a great deal."

She forgot that they were in the open roadway, where travelers might come and go at any moment. With a move ment so quick that it took him by surprise, she threw her arms around his neck and looked into his face.

"Oh, Alan, Alan!" she said, "I have been as blind as you, and far, far more unjust than you. Did you believe me when I said that my love was dead? Darling, I have loved you all the time. Oh, it is good to have you here, to know that you are home again, and that you love me too!"

"My star! my blessed guiding star!" he murmured, as, for the first time, their lips met in the loving kiss so long desired-so long delayed-so perfect when at last it was given and received. "I have strayed from you too long: God helping me I will never leave you again, never close my eyes again to your brightness, you sweet star of my life."

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

It was a new experience to Molly to have her father's arms about her, and to recognize with surprise and delight the love that shone from his eyes, the tenderness breathing in every accent of his voice. It was a revelation to her. She had never known, as she said naively to Stella afterwards, that her father "cared so much." She was too weak and languid to talk a great deal; but there was great comfort for her in the assurance of his forgiveness, and the kisses that he pressed on the face of her baby girl as well as upon her own. One anxiety alone possessed her. She found it difficult to speak of her husband without tears and agitation, and the subject of her marriage was therefore generally avoided. But she insisted on begging her father not to see Hannington-not to take any notice of the past, but to let her stay quietly at Torresmuir, and leave him to go his own way. Mr. Moncrieff was obliged to promise that he would do nothing-at any rate until she was stronger-and that he would tell her if John Hannington wrote or came to Torresmuir. 'He had better not come." said Alan to his wife, with an ominous darkening

But it is easy to say what shall or shall not happen; not so easy always to control Fate of his brows. "He shall never enter my

To Lady Val's observant eye, the change in the relations between Stella and Alan Moncrieff was very plain. She saw at once that her own presence was something of a superfluity. Molly was slowly recovering; Bertie and Kingscott were outwardly civil companions to one another, although no longer friends; Lady Val thought herself one too many, and thought it better to announce her immediate return to London. She started two days after Alan's arrival, and reached town on the 17th of December, when Christmas decorations were in full swing, and the Christmas rush was just beginning. Owing to her sudden departure from London, which had upset all her previous arrangements, she found herself alone in her pretty little house near the park, without occupation or engagement. She had a good deal to think about, and was not sorry to find her-self thus unencumbered. The matter of the jewelry and the papers which Molly was said to have abstracted weighed upon her mind. She knew that a question had been asked of the poor young mother; her father's forgiveness had been accorded freely and fully, and he had resolved to bury the whole matter in oblivion. But it was not altogether easy for Lady Valencia to do this. For she had loved John Hannington, and it was the bitterest sorrow of her life to think him base. On the second day of her arrival in town she had received a call from Captain Rutherford. She had written to tell him that she was returning, and was not at all surprised to see him when he appeared. She noticed that he looked harassed and anxious, and she hastened to give him, in her usual light and cheerful way, some reassuring news of Molly, of whom she felt sure he

"I am glad she is safe at home," he said at length, with a heavy sigh.
"So am I," said Lady Val, briskly. "But you look dreadfully worried, Char-Anything wrong?"

"It's—John Hannington," muttered He did not see the change that passed over Lady Valencia's face. She sat erect, and pressed her hands tightly together, but her voice did not alter as "Well, what of him? Is he not in Paris?"

"No, worse luck. He's at home as esual—and from what I hear he is drinking himself to death." 'Drinking? Are you sure?"

"His servant went to Donald Vereker a day or two ago and asked him to get his master to see a doctor. Donald, having heard of the way in which he had treated his wife refused to go near him.

He told me so, and took great credit to himself for being so virtuous. I don't see it in the same light—although I leathe John Hannington with all my heart. It was almost impossible for me to interfere. But I did what I could."

'What did you do, Charlie?" "I hunted up the doctor whom I know they used to see sometimes. He would not go for a long time; he said it would be an intrusion. However, I persuaded him; and he went this afternoon, as if to pay a friendly call. He was admitted, and he saw John Hannington."

"Well?"

"He was in a very queer state," said Capt. Rutherford, slowly. "He was half-stupefied. He must have been using some drug as well as drinking brandy. He did not seem to resent the doctor's visit, but he would not promise to follow the advice that was given. It seems doubtful whether he quite understood

"What was the advice?" said Lady "First and foremost, to give up brandy and opiates, of course. Then, to change his habits of life completely—go into the country, live a great deal in the fresh air, travel and amuse himself. If not--

"He will either have an attack of delirium tremens before long, or he will continue to stupefy himself until his brain softens, and he lapses into imbe-"Oh, that is dreadful!" said Lady Val, with a sudden shiver. Can nothing be done? Can you do nothing, Charlie?" "How can I?" said the young man, gloomily. I am not his friend. Forfor Mrs. Hannington's sake I am sorry for his condition; but it-it is his own fault, Lady Valencia. It is no misfortune: it is a sin-a crime-to drink and drug one's self until one's control is lost. If he has a friend in the world, let his friend be told, and let his friend help him; but I can't."

"I am his friend," said Lady Val, rising hastily from her chair. "I am the only friend he has left. I'll go to him and tell him what he must do." "You, Lady Valencia! But that is impossible," said the young man, rising also, and looking at her in alarm. "You

"Yes, I could, Charlie. And you are going to help me," said his hostess, turning very pale, and clenching her hands at her sides. Her eyes glowed like coals of fire beneath her black brows. If you think I am going to stand by and see him drift down to madness or death without holding out a helping hand to him you are mis-taken. I am going to him this moment, under your escort, Charlie, and between us we will bring John Hannington to a better mind.

"But, Lady Valencia," stammered Charlie, "you cannot go. Let me go; I will do my best-

"You don't know John Hannington as I do," said Lady Val, resolutely; "and, as you said just now, you are not his friend. What are you afraid of? Mrs. Grundy? You ought to know by this time that she has no terrors for me; I can afford to despise her when I am doing only what is right. What does conventionality matter when a man's life and reason are at stake? Let us throw all foolish, selfish notions to the wind, and do our best to make this poor wretch a better man and a better husband than he has ever been before. "You would never send him back to

I should feel so, at least. But it is no use talking it over, Charlie; will you go with me, or will you not?"
"Really, Lady Val---"

"Because, if you won't, I shall go

Charlie yielded the point. He had unlimited faith in Lady Valencia, and thought that she was behaving with heroic courage, but he was not well convinced of her wisdom on this occasion. And, indeed, her action had a Quixotio look, and contained within it certain elements of danger; but then Charlie Rutherford did not understand the whole of the story, and Lady Val was not a person easy to restrain when she wanted her own way.

programme of work outlined for him at the beginning of the session on June 13. Last week he visited the Lucan, Ripley and Harriston factories, and will this week give instruction to visiting cheesemakers at the Burgoyne, Shelburne and Stayner factories.

The visits of Mr. Millar during this series have been well patronized by the makers in the various localities, with the exception of the last two weeks, when the attendance has not been so large, owing to the fact that many cheese-makers have been too busy in their own factories to leave. There are already a number of applications in for Mr. Millar's services as inspector and instructor. Owing to this increasing demand it will not be well another year to prolong the dairy school branch of the work so long as it has been done this season. The secretary visited the Uttoxeter factory last week and gave instruction in operating the Babcock milk tester. This factory will pay its patrons this season for milk received according to the percentage of butter fat. The patrons at the last annual meeting decided to adopt this method of apportioning the dividends as more in accordance with justice than the old "pooling" sys-

It is gratifying to know that, in spite of the seeming difference of opinion re-garding the reliability of the butterfat system for paying for milk at cheese factories between some of the authorities on dairying, there are factories here and there which have adopted the test for the first time this season. It should be remembered by factory men and others that this difference of opinion is more in regard to the basis of apportioning the dividends after the test is made, and does not in any way discredit the system of paying for milk according to its quality as being more strictly in accordance with justice than any yet known. We have not received any definite information yet, but we may be safe in stating that there are 25 new cheese factories in operation in Western On-tario this season. The high price of cheese during the past few years has turned the attention of farmers in many localities where dairying has not been carried on as a business to the dairy branch of agriculture as a means of making their farming operations more profitable. In all probability many who have put their money into these new ventures will feel that it is a losing ness will be loth to supply milk when the price of cheese is so low as scarcely to allow a profit to the producer when carried on in the most economical man-

Prices last week, however, had a strong tendency upward. Many lots were sold towards the end of the week at from 7 to 7 1-4 cents. This upward tendency, though it has not yet reached a point much above the line of profit for the average dairyman, is encouraging, and indicates that as old stocks work off, and as the cheese with better keeping qualities are put on the market. better and more profitable prices will

Is so cheap as a newspaper, whether it be measured by the cost of its production or by its value to the consumer. We are talking about an American Metropolitan Daily Paper of the first class, like THE CHICAGO RECORD. It's so cheap and so good you can't afford in this day of progress so be without it. There are other papers possibly as good, but none better, and none just like it. It prints all the real news of the world—the news you care for—every day, and prints it in the shortest possible space. You can read THE CHICAGO RECORD and do a day's work too. It is an independent paper and gives all political news free from the taint of party bias. In a word—it's a complete, condensed, clean, honest, family newspaper, and it has the largest morning circulation in Chicago or the West—125,000 to 140,000 a day.

Prof. J. T. Hatfield, of the Northwestern University says: "The CHICAGO RECORD comes as near being the ideal daily journal as we are for some time likely to find on these mortal shores."
