Only a Beggar;

A Queen Among Women

CHAPTER XXVI.

There were some decent men in his set who watched his downward career with regret; and one or two of them had ventured on a remonstrance but had been met with so stern and fierce a rebuff that they had been effectually silenced.

"If Dalesford has made up his mind to go to the devil—and it looks as if he had—no man alive can stop him!" said Mortimer gravely. "Of course a woman's at the bottom of it. That engagement of his was broken off, you know; and he's taking it badly. Seems funny, seeing how many other fish there are in the sea; but—with a shrug of the shoulders—"Dalesford's just the man to want one particular fish, and run amuck if he doesn't get it. He seems to hate the sight of women, by the way—hush, here he comes!" he broke off, as Vane entered the card-room of the Apollo.

He was very white, there were black shadows under his eyes, and he looked thin and emaciated; but he was as erect as of old, and his eyes shone with an unnatural brightness—the baleful gleam of insomnia. He nodded to the men, and, going to a corner, lit a cigar and took up a newspaper. They let him alone for a time, then Mortimer crossed the room to him and asked him to play; and Vane, looking up at him as if awaking from a dream, rose and went to the table. Strangely enough, he usually won, and his luck was still with him this evening; but he seemed scarcely conscious of his good fortune, and played with phlegmatic, stolid calm and impassive countenance.

Now, while they were playing, a man entered the room from a door behind them, and, ordering a drink of the footman, glanced at the players. Two or three of Vane's party looked up at the man and then at Vane; for the newcomer was Desmond March. He appeared to be in excellent spirits; was carefully dressed, as usual, and sauntered across the room with his peculiar debonaire and graceful gait. As he reached the table at which Vane was playing, he paused, nodded to the other men, and, regarding Vane with a cordial smile, behind which, however, lurked the suggestion of a sneer, said:

"How d'ye do, Dalesford?" The men held their breath, and stared before them expectantly, but Vane raised his eyes for a moment; then, as if he had neither heard the greeting nor seen the man, he returned to his cards and went on playing. Desmond March drew a long breath, smiled so that his white, even teeth showed between his lips; then, with a contemptuous shrug of the shoulders, went on to another table.

Vane's face had not moved by a hair's breadth; but a dull kind of rage was burning in his heart. It was the first time for years that Desmond March had dared address him publicly; how low he, Vane, must have sunk for March to have ventured to intrude upon him!

After an hour or so, during which time he could hear March's voice and low laughter quite plainly—and both voice and laughter held a note of triumph in them—Vane rose.

"I'm going," he said rather curtly. "Oh, stay for another hand, Dalesford," urged one of the men; but Vane shook his head.

"The room is too hot and—crowded. There are too many men here to-night."

There was something in his voice and in his manner which checked any further insistence, and they watched him as he went, looking neither to the right nor the left, out of the room.

Desmond March also openly watched him.

"My amiable cousin been losing?" he said over his shoulder. "No? Doesn't like my company, is that it? Well, I'm not particularly keen about his; and, by— I don't think any of you will be afflicted by it long! Looks to me as if he were going either to the family vault or a private lunatic asylum. There's insanity on the maternal side of the family, you know."

The bitter remark was received in silence, for Vane was liked and trusted, and Desmond March was both disliked and distrusted; but presently Mortimer, as the party went into the smoking-room, said:

"March seems to have got on his feet again. I thought he was utterly stone-broke."

"Not a bit of it," retorted another man with a laugh. "He has got hold of that Bangs girl—a million of money, they say. Oh, no, no; Desmond March takes a lot of killing."

"Most curs can swim and are hard to drown," remarked Mortimer laconically.

Vane left the club and went along Pall Mall slowly, purposelessly. The night was early yet, and he dared not go home, for the solitude of his room was intolerable. How much longer would it be before Desmond March, the gentlemanly blackleg, stepped into his place? What did it matter? Life was over, ceased the day his eyes fell on Diana's letter of farewell. What did it matter who bore the old title and the historic name? Men were divided into two classes, the knaves and the fools, and there was little to choose between them.

There was a moon, but the sky was flecked by scurrying clouds, and he watched them, half conscious of the symbolism they conveyed: his life was hurrying on like these clouds to a last and greater darkness. Unwittingly his steps took the direction of the river, and, looking up, he found himself on the Embankment. The night was a bitterly cold one, and even the outcasts and homeless ones of the great city who generally find refuge on the hard seats had been driven to more sheltered spots; but Vane did not feel the cold; the fever born of fast-lived days and sleepless nights was in his blood; and presently he dropped on to one of the seats and gazed moodily at the lights on the river. He was looking at one of the most beautiful and marvelous sights in the world, but he was blind to its marvel and its beauty, for he was seeing, dimly, vaguely, the face of the woman he had loved and lost.

Windsor Table Salt should be in every Canadian home

A policeman passed and glanced at him doubtfully; then, thinking it might be one of the members of the House of Commons, which was still sitting, he paced slowly on.

After a time Vane felt drowsy. The cold air, the swish-swish of the river as it lapped against the great stone wall lulled the overstrained senses, and, folding his arms across his breast, he fell into the first sound sleep he had had for weeks, for months.

Only a little while before Diana had risen from her typewriter, with a sigh, and had gone to her attic window and looked at the clouds driven across the moon. She had been working for many hours, her head was hot and throbbing, her hands stiff and aching. She opened the window, and the cold air seemed to woo her while it revived her.

It would be well if she got a little exercise before trying to sleep. Mechanically she put on her outdoor things—all too worn and thin for such a night—and went softly down the narrow stairs. Drawing her shawl closely round her, she passed out, walking quickly out of the dreary street on to the Embankment; but she was arrested by the sight of a small boy crouching in a corner of one of the recesses. He was awake and shivering with the cold, his head sunk on his breast, his hands clasped together, as if for warmth. Diana, with an inarticulate sob of pity, bent over him, and at her touch he started and shrank, thinking it was his natural foe with the perpetual "Move on!"

"No home, nowhere to go?" said Diana. "Oh, poor boy, poor boy! It is too bitter a night for you to sleep here; and it's too cold to sleep, isn't it?" She took some coppers from her purse—there was little else there!—and put them into his grimy hand. "Run to the nearest lodgings, dear," she said.

The boy clutched the money and, staggering to his feet, drew his rags together, stared at her, as if he thought he was dreaming, and without a word of thanks, shuffled—he was too stiff to run—across the road.

Diana looked after him; then, with a sigh, walked on. The clouds had obscured the moon, and the darkness was relieved only by the mockery of a light which disgraces the greatest and richest city in the world; so that she was passing with but an inattentive glance the man who was asleep on the seat—indeed, she was quickening her pace, when suddenly the moon emerged, and its light fell full upon the face of the sleeper.

She knew him instantly. It was Vane. With a low cry she stopped, and, her hand pressed to her heaving bosom, gazed at him with unutterable love and pity.

This Vane, her Vane; this white, haggard-faced man! This emaciated figure the form she had loved! The tears welled to her eyes, every fiber of her being called to him; and, by an ungovernable impulse, she sprang to him. But before she had touched him with her pitying, longing hands, she remembered. She stifled his name upon her lips and drew back. For his own sake, she must not wake him, must not let him see her; for she knew that if his eyes met hers, if he touched her, though only with a finger-tip, she could not leave him again, let whatever of shame and remorse follow.

She stood and looked down at him as a mother looks at her fever-wasted child, as a wife looks at her husband doomed to death, as a lover looks at the wreath of her dearest and best beloved.

Oh, God, how hard life was! How cruel, fate! That she should be within touch of Vane, and yet not dare, for honor's sake, to wake him!

Stifling the cry of her heart, she crept nearer—even while she strove to fly—and, bending over him, touched his cheek with her lips; then, affrighted, she flew like a guilty creature dreading detection.

Vane stirred slightly, and his lips moved.

"Diana!" he cried hoarsely. "Di—!" Then he awoke with a start and looked before him with dazed eyes and a strange sense of reality in his dream.

For fully five minutes he stared vacantly at the lights and shadows of the river. At last he rose, and, thrusting his cold hands into his pockets, went to the edge of the Embankment wall and gazed below. The cold, the intensity of the dream, the seeming reality of the touch of her lips was making his heart throb painfully. Suddenly the full consciousness of the unmanly part he was playing attacked him. God forgive him! All these months he had been sullying the memory of her love, had been seeking to drown in drink and dissipation the remembrance of the woman whose purity and goodness should have been sacred enough to keep his life—wrecked as it was—sane and clean. Sane? Yes, that was it; he had been mad. But he was mad no longer. Something—what was it?—a prayer of hers uttered as he slept there?—had touched him, stirred his conscience to the depths, recalled the manliness to his heart; and he was alive to the shame the horror of his life since he had lost her.

With trembling hands he got out his case and lit a cigar; but he could not smoke. As he flung the cigar into the river the policeman returning on his beat spoke to him.

"Going home, sir? Bad night."

Vane looked at him strangely.

"Yes," he said; "I am going home."

Diana went swiftly, shaking and trembling with emotion, toward her lodgings; but suddenly she stopped. If her touch, her kiss had awakened him, and he should follow her! With a cry of fear and yet longing, she turned aside and went in the direction of the Strand. It was crowded by the people—the happy, laughing people—coming out of the theatres, some of them gaily on their way to supper; and, startling from the noise and the excitement, she passed from the big thoroughfare into one of the quiet streets. A drunken man, lurching toward her, addressed some hiccupped words to her, but Diana scarcely saw or heard him. All her heart and mind had room for was the white, weary face she had seen in the moonlight.

Still walking on, absorbed and lost to place and time, she found herself on Waterloo Bridge. The crowd had melted, the bridge was empty, and she stood alone at the Strand end of it, breathing quickly and painfully.

As she stood a woman passed her; a thin, writhlike figure with its head bent, its hands clutching its cape across its bosom. Diana glanced at her; there seemed something familiar in the thin face, the fragile form. In an instant, absorbed as she was, she remembered the girl she had spoken to in the crowd of applicants for the situation of drawing-mistress, the girl with the portfolio. With a shock of surprise and pity, Diana stood and looked at her, for the face that had passed by had been eloquent of want and despair.

Western Weather.

WALT MASON

The great mid-west gets into print, in letters of a crimson tint, whenever a cyclone journeys thence and tears the pickets from a fence. The ring-tailed twisters of the air cause nothing but amusement there; they chase a farmer now and then, or lift a porker from its pen, but seldom do they cause a wall, or leave much wreckage in their trail. And when a winter blizzard comes, and o'er the western prairie hums, and causes more or less distress, it gets ten columns in the press. But raging blizzards seldom blow—there was one thirty years ago, but babes have grown to man's estate nor yet beheld one—which is straight. And every little breeze that blows, into a cyclone promptly grows; a gust of snow, with icy breath becomes a blizzard, charged with death, to hungry writers on their beats, pursuing news for outside sheets. But who will your attention call to western weather. In the fall? Who can describe the golden days, the smiling skies, the purple haze, the gentle winds that softly fan the forehead of the dreaming man? If here's a hard, inspired enough, what editor would print the stuff?

All First Class Druggists Sell Salvia Hair Tonic

SALVIA destroys dandruff in ten days. The roots of the hair are so nourished and fed that a new crop of hair springs up, to the amazement and delight of the user. The hair is made soft and fluffy. Like all American preparations SALVIA is daintily perfumed. It is hard to find an actress who does not use SALVIA continually.

Nickel Leads

Another Grand Show—Two Big Feature Pictures.

The Nickel Theatre which is the home of quality entertainment has a programme arranged for this evening which is a top notch in every respect. The great film by the Gaumont artists: "The Bridge of Sorrow" is the special feature for to-day. It is in two reels and every part of it is highly interesting; you cannot afford to miss seeing this wonderful picture. Then there is a two reel drama by the Vitagraph Co. of America, entitled: "The Helpful (?) Sisterhood." This is a capital tale, as it deals with girls college life. The well-known actress Norma Talmadge plays the leading role. Be sure and take in this film. The big matinee for children takes place to-morrow afternoon, with a special programme for the little ones. The doors open at 2 o'clock and they should go early to get a seat. The Nickel is the best place for children on Saturday afternoons as they are well looked after. Send the children to-morrow and they will certainly enjoy themselves.

Boy Who Led a Charge

DEATH OF "THE BABY OF THE COMPANY"

A War Office notification recently reached Mrs. Clarke, Bolton-road, Leicester, that her son, Private Frank Preston, of D Company 2nd Manchester Regiment, was killed in action in France on October 26. As recorded in The Daily Mail on November 4, Private Preston, who was only eighteen years old and was known as "the baby of the company," was recommended for distinction for gallantry in leading a bayonet charge after all the officers of his company had been shot down. This was on October 20, and less than a week later he met his death.

Take Exception to Statements as to Facts.

Editor Evening Telegram: Dear Sir,—I was much struck by a letter in yesterday's morning paper. The Daily News, over the signature of Father O'Callaghan, headed "Are Temperance Lecturers Fanatics and Cranks."

I do not find fault just here with the argument of the letter, but I do find fault with the facts therein as placed before the public. The reverend writer says, "so Kitchener is a crank of enormous proportions in France and Russia and in England, too, are cranks, etc., etc." Inferring that Kitchener and the War Office authorities are prohibiting the use of alcoholic drinks in the army.

He goes further and says:—"Earl Kitchener knows something. He is wise, and has on his side a vast experience and a very successful past. He knows that liquor is ruinous. He knows that the soldier who drinks is incapable of the same amount of endurance and is, therefore, not an asset, but a hindrance, and generally a nuisance, and therefore fatal to success." It is an awfully serious matter to have a crank holding such an important position.

These statements are made in the face of the fact that the Imperial Authorities in England the other day stated that 150,000 gallons of rum had been sent to the English Army at the front.

A London correspondent of an American journal writing under date of the 17th November on the subject of agitation in England for the suppression of spirituous liquors, says:—

Some of the things that greatly irritate is the way in which the provisions of the recently adopted Temporary Restriction act are carried out by the local authorities in our big cities. It was passed as a war measure, legislators being induced to believe that a condition of war would result in general confusion and lawlessness and that, therefore, opportunities for obtaining intoxicants should be limited to the possibly minimal degree. And this theory, principally advanced by the teetotal faction, immediately dominated the minds of executive officials. They saw visions of an abandoned soldiery upsetting everything. The police in many cities seemed to be panic-stricken and they ordered the closing of public houses at actually unreasonable hours, only to find that their fears were unfounded. And then the licensing authorities stepped in to undo what unbalanced policemen had blunderingly done. In many cities the police, aside from prohibiting the sale of intoxicants before and after certain hours, also insisted upon closing altogether, a thing which they had no right to do and soon the mistake had to be acknowledged and corrected. However, here were also many cities where the police reported that conditions in regard to drunkenness were far better than in times of peace and the result was that licensing measures were refrained from drastic action, particularly when military commanders had stated that there was no necessity of resorting to extreme measures, commanders agreeing that their soldiers were on the best of their behavior and that less drunkenness prevailed among their men than ever before. They insisted that British soldiers knew how to behave like gentlemen. In the same way the proposition to prohibit the sale of intoxicants to women during the war met with its deserved rebuke, although the pretense had been that wives of soldiers would be apt to indulge in alcoholic stimulants to a greater extent in war than when their husbands were with them. An attempt to close the clubs has also been frustrated by the Home Secretary who, when importuned by the agitators, declared he was not prepared to sanction such an altogether unwarranted measure.

It was thus that the teetotal agitators, who imagined that this was their time to make hay while the sun shone, were to be disappointed. They thought they could impose upon conditions of war to have their prohibitory scheme go through successfully; but the sober sense of those directing public affairs became the rock upon which the craft of the unscrupulous schemers was wrecked. They also tried to make it appear that this war was a "teetotal war," citing the Czar of Russia, the Kaiser and the French government as champions of Prohibition, at least as far as the troops of their respective countries were concerned, not to forget Lord Kitchener, who had exhorted the soldiers of England to "abstain" while at the front. But it was of no use, because the necessity of stimulants became too apparent to be ignored and so, one day it had to be announced that 150,000 gallons of rum had been sent to the army. The man perished in the trenches. The surgeons had insisted upon having it.

Yours truly,
TEMPERANCE.

THURSDAY, Dec. 10th. CAPT. J. W. KEAN, (continues), produced a plan prepared by him, showing approximately the position of the Stephano, Florizel, Bellaventura and Bonaventura on the morning of March 31st last.

The Judge Johnson, witness said he did not see the crew of the Newfoundland leave the Stephano. The position of the Florizel did not change more than two miles during the morning. He did not notice the movements of the Stephano, particularly that morning, but she was in sight up to noon. Witness was not prepared to say that the wooden ships carried sufficient sails in event if machinery gave out. The position of pounds for stowing seals below deck was described to the Commission. The value

FRIDAY, Dec. 11th, 1914.

Significant News.

The news of the week is of a highly significant character in its relation to our own people. That news relates to five important matters: the advance of the British forces against the Germans; the destruction of Admiral von Spee's fleet; the defeat of the submarine raid in the Admiralty harbor at Dover; the rounding up of the rebels by Botha and the pacification of South Africa; the defeat of the Turks in the Persian Gulf and the surrender of the Turkish forces at Basra; and the decision in regard to the unification of Egypt. Lord Kitchener has just returned from France and his visit marks the turning point of the struggle in Flanders and neighbourhood. Just as it did on the Marne. For a long time the tactics of the Allies have allowed the Germans to break themselves up on the Allies lines, particularly in the case of the wild attempts made under the orders of the Kaiser to hack a way through to Calais. The hacking costs the German forces dearly, and now the tide has turned, and the British have made a notable advance on their way to Brussels. Yesterday we reviewed briefly the effect of the destruction of the German fleet in the South Atlantic. The story that the German battle cruiser, Von der Tann, is at large in the Atlantic and was on her way to join Von Spee's fleet should be received with reserve. It is highly improbable. If it is true, she has been marked, and means taken to destroy her. The Von der Tann is somewhat smaller than the Goeben and not so well armed, though she is a formidable fighting machine. The defeat of the submarine raid on Dover harbor shows that our watchmen on the lower are alert, and the raid has been a costly one to the Germans. It has done them no good and cost them three of their submarines. Botha's great rounding up of the rebels in South Africa is following his making efforts to induce South Africa is restored. The Kaiser has been making efforts to induce South Africa to declare neutrality in reference to German South West Africa, but his efforts are as futile as his attempt to read the South African Union from the Empire by starting a rebellion. Shortly he will find South African troops invading German territory from the South and East, and Portuguese forces invading it from Angola in the north. Another highly important item of news was the defeat of the Turks and the surrender of the Turkish forces at Basra. The command of this place bears the same relation to the Turkish territory in the Valley of the Euphrates and the Tigris as the command of Alexandria, Cairo and the delta of the Nile did to the Turkish territory in the valley of the Nile in 1880. Both valleys are the seats of ancient civilizations. It was in the valleys of the Euphrates and the Tigris that the great monarchies we read of in Biblical times were established. The economic transformation worked by the Cromers, Kitcheners and their engineers in Egypt can be worked by other Cromers, other Kitcheners, other engineers in these valleys. It is all a question of water supply, irrigation and good government, and the destruction of Turkish rule is the first step in the process of making these valleys the Eden of the world. Lastly steps are to be taken for the unification of Egypt, or in other words as we read it, the consolidation of British rule in the valley of the Nile.

POLICE COURT.—Two drunks were discharged; a number of civil cases were disposed of, including a case in which a city wheelwright claimed $60 from a farmer. Judgment was reserved.
ADDITIONAL DONATIONS.—The Christian Brothers beg to acknowledge with thanks the following additional donations to their collection:—His Excellency the Governor, $50.00; Magistrate McDonnell, St. George, $5; Pt. John J. Ryan, Salisbury Plains, $1. Names omitted from general list—Miss Halleran, $2; Master Gus Barron, $1.
STOLE TWO CENTS.—Head Constable Sparrow and Constable Power found a man helplessly drunk on the King's Bridge Road last night and while arresting him learned that another inebriate, who was nearby at the time, had gone through the pockets of the prisoner and took two cents on him. Both were then taken to the police station.
DIPHTHERIA CASES.—A case of diphtheria was reported from Battery Road last evening. The patient, a boy of 12 years, was removed to the fever hospital. The outbreak at Broad Cove is being stamped out effectively. Two houses there were released from quarantine yesterday. There are now only two houses under quarantine in the settlement for diphtheria.

JOHN B. AYRE.

S. U. F. Patriotic Meeting Crowded.

The British Hall was filled to its utmost capacity last night, it being the occasion of the second patriotic meeting of the series, promoted by St. John's Lodge of the S.U.F. His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson were present. Mr. J. A. Clift, K.C., presided and introduced as the first speaker the Rt. Hon. Sir E. P. Morris, who gave a most comprehensive exposition on the war situation. In his prefatory remarks he made some happy allusions to the S.U.F. It was not only yesterday that the German Emperor wanted war with England but, pointed out the lecturer, as far back as the Boer war Germany's plans and designs were known. The Germans had a hand in sending Indians to British Columbia and labor disturbers to South Africa. It was our own fault if we did not know the causes of the war because we are advised daily through the press and every now and again by public meetings. The Kaiser thought to take advantage of dissensions in Canada about a naval contribution and about the grave dispute in Ireland over Home Rule. The Kaiser, however, got a rude awakening. Canada is united and so is Ireland in fighting Germany. In Newfoundland we should throw all petty differences aside when the question of defending the Empire is at stake. Continuing, the speaker dwelt on the causes that led up to the great struggle and which summed up meant that the Kaiser sought trouble and now he is getting it to his heart's content. It was true that some of our people were apathetic, due to the want of the enthusiasm and patriotism in them not being aroused and which could best be done by the holding of patriotic meetings all over the island. Though the Imperial authorities have commended our contribution for the defence of the Empire, yet all young men who can should go forward and aid in the struggle.
Mr. Coaker followed in a lengthy and stirring address. In the present struggle we had the money and ships and surely it was an easy matter to get the men to stand behind the guns. Our outpost young men should join the navy. Reference was made by him to the fact that some of the northern outposts had contributed a fair quota and he hoped that other outposts would follow their example, but a special appeal was necessary through patriotic meetings. Regarding the German tactics he spoke along similar lines as the Prime Minister and in closing expressed the hope that the Government would get the necessary number of volunteers promised the Motherland.
To the speakers a vote of thanks was tendered by His Excellency the Governor and carried by acclamation. Musical numbers were rendered during the evening by Rev. W. H. and Mrs. Thomas, Miss Edwards, Miss Goodland and Mr. Lloyd. Worthy of particular mention were the solos given by Rev. Mr. Thomas, who brought down the house, particularly with his own composition of "A Long Way to Tipperary." The rendition of the National Anthem brought the evening to a close.

Kaiser's Condition Grave.

Special to Evening Telegram.
COPENHAGEN, To-day. The Kaiser's condition is most alarming, it is believed. His official circles, from diplomatic source, it is learned that his condition is serious, though not dangerous. Much depends on whether he will obey his physicians. He cannot keep quiet and take a full rest. The Emperor had great difficulty in prevailing on him to stay in bed. He has a very bad attack of influenza this morning. His temperature was about 103, higher than yesterday. If he is unwilling to take absolute rest there may be real danger, as he is weak and his spirits depressed.

ELECTION TIE IN NEW ZEALAND.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., To-day. The election returns, though incomplete, indicate that licensing position is unchanged, and that National prohibition has not been carried. The prohibitionists received a set back in several places. The returns give Government 33 (thirty-eight) members for Parliament; Opposition, 30; Labor and Social Democrats 8. As the latter support the Opposition party the strength in parliament is equal, though the votes of the soldiers abroad are yet to be counted and may affect the result.

Have You an Itchy Spot?

Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In Eczema—and itchy spots, whether dry and scurfy, or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin. Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylex, which will give almost instant relief, and if used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. Ask your druggist about it. Price 50c. a box. Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.

Does Not Affect American Judgment.

New York Evening Sun.—In the case of the Crown Prince's interview the Evening Sun ventures to guess that it will not in the smallest degree affect the calm judgment of the American public upon the causes of the war itself, or the belief that the best interests of the world will be served by the ultimate success of the Allies, not in destroying Germany but in preserving the balance of power which means that France and Belgium, the Southern Slavs and all other peoples and races will combine to contribute to the sum total of human wealth in their individual and characteristic fashion.

FRIDAY, Dec. 11th, 1914.
This is a season when the value of Cream of Lilies can easily be tested. We believe that a fair trial will convince anybody using it that it is unequalled as an emollient, and that it will heal chapped hands or sprayed face more quickly and thoroughly than anything before used. Cream of Lilies Soap too is a soap which contains no free alkali. Both are very nicely perfumed, and one helps the other to keep the skin and complexion in first class order. Begin now to use this combination, and you will have no difficulty in keeping everything right for the entire winter. Price (Cream of Lilies) 25c. a pot; (Cream of Lilies Soap) 20c. a cake, 50c. for box of three cakes.
Klip-Klips for the nails are extremely handy enabling you to keep the nails right with far less trouble than by use of knife or scissors. We have them. Price 20c., 35c. and 40c. each.

Learning to Speak Well.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"Will you kindly advise through your column one whose early education was neglected, but who is anxious to now learn to speak correctly, the best course to pursue without a teacher?" writes a letter friend? "Is there any hope for such a one to overcome the un- cultivated speech of childhood?"

In the first place let me record my heartfelt admiration for this woman. Is there any hope? All the hope in the world. Of course childhood's habits of speech are very firmly fixed, but half the big battle is already won because you want to improve. In the first place, you had better get a simple grammar or rhetoric and read it through, reading not merely with the eye but with the mind, taking care to understand every page before you turn it. I know of several such books and will be happy to name them to anyone who cares to write me personally.

In the second place, fairly steep yourself in the writings of men who write good English. Read Stevenson, read Arnold Bennett, read Hawthorne or Emerson, read Thomas Hardy, read Thackeray, or Mrs. Gaskell or Charlotte Bronte.

Of course the best way to learn to speak good English is to be much with well educated people. We take about us just as surely as the chameleon takes its color from its surroundings. Put a well educated man into the company of ignorant and uncouth people and in a year he will be speaking their language. It is never

OFFICIAL CONFIRMATIONS.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—(Official.) The Governor, Newfoundland:

French Government reports progress along the heights of the Meuse and in the Argonne region.

Russian Government reports heavy fighting on the left bank of the Vistula, the Iwawa-Glow-Lowicz front, in the region of Piotrkow and south of Cracow, the enemy achieving no success. The Russians evacuated Lodz for strategic reasons.

After successful operations, resulting in the capture of about 200 prisoners and five guns, the India expeditionary force has captured Kurna, where the late Governor of Bihar surrendered unconditionally with his troops. We now control country from the junction of the Tigris and Euphrates to the sea.

The Serbians have routed the Austrian army and recaptured Valjevo, taking twenty thousand prisoners and fifty guns.

In South Africa, General Beyers is believed to be drowned in the Vaal. Rebel commandoes, numbering over 2,000 in all, have been recently captured or surrendered unconditionally.

DRIVEN FROM ARMENTIERES.

BOULOGNE, Dec. 10.

A correspondent who has just returned to Boulogne, from Armentieres says the Germans on Tuesday were driven out of Armentieres by the British, and hurled back beyond the artillery range. Armentieres is nine miles northwest of Lille.

GERMAN SUBMARINES UNSUCCESSFUL.

LONDON, Dec. 10.

A half dozen German submarines made an attempt at 6.30 this morning to enter the Admiralty Harbor, according to a Dover despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, and for half an hour the batteries kept up a furious fusillade, firing at least two hundred shots. It is reported that two or three of the submarines were sunk, but this is not confirmed.

FROM PETROGRAD.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 10.—(Official.)

There was no important change yesterday. Isolated attempts on the part of the enemy to take the offensive, have given rise to engagements in the districts of Clechanow and Przasnysz, as well as Piotrkow, and in several other districts on our front. The result of the engagements has been unfavorable to the Germans. In the region of the passes of Vyzkow and Beskid (in the Carpathians) on Dec. 8th, during attacks on fortified positions held by Austrians, we captured four guns, several hundred prisoners, and many wagons.

THE NURNBERG SUNK.

LONDON, Dec. 10.

The Official Bureau announces that the German cruiser Nurnberg has been sunk. Later it says that a further telegram was received from Vice-Admiral Sturdee, reporting that the Nurnberg was also sunk on Dec.

Please remember, when you want anything in the line of office equipment, that we will give you all the information that is in our power. You will find

PERCIE JOHNSON,
Globe-Wernicke Agent.

8th, and that search for the Dresden is still proceeding. The action lasted five hours with intervals. The Scharnhorst sank after three hours, and the Gneisenau, two hours later. The enemy's light cruisers scattered and were chased by one of our cruisers and light cruisers. No loss of any British vessel is reported.

DRESDEN REPORTED CORNERED.

BUENOS AYRES, Dec. 10.

The cruiser Dresden has been cornered in the Straits of Magellan, according to advices from well-informed naval circles to-day. The naval division of Admiral Sturdee is understood to include nine warships.

KAISER IMPROVING.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 10.

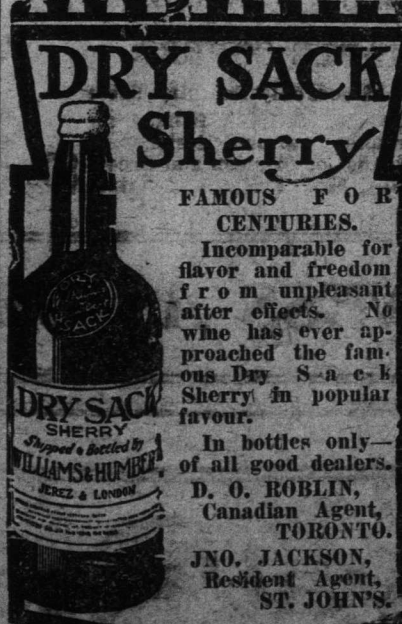

The Kaiser's health has considerably improved, according to advices from Berlin.

OUR FURNITURE STANDS the TEST

Some people think that because our prices are so low that something must be wrong with our goods. We are prepared to stand the test, as every piece of Furniture before leaving our building is carefully tested, as we stand on Quality. The secret of our Low Prices and High Quality is that on every dollar's worth imported, seventy to eighty cents has to be paid in duty and freight. We have ours made right in our own building, thus saving this big expense, which we give to the customers.

We are determined to lead. Our newly made SIDEBOARD is having a wonderful sale. No wonder when we save five to seven dollars on every one.

Our Home made PARLOR SUITES have gone to all parts of the island, and still in great demand. Secret—ten dollars saved.

Just have a look at our CRESCENT FELT MATTRESS: as good or even better than the Ostermoor, but five to ten dollars cheaper.

Our PRINCESS ROLL EDGE is a dandy, so is our NEW HEALTH MATTRESS; and our improved OXFORD SPRING is carrying everything before it. No wonder we find Business as Usual—actually crowded with orders, factory working overtime to fill orders now in. So all we ask is a square deal.

ALWAYS A SQUARE DEAL

Lord Rosebery's Warning.

The Earl of Rosebery took the chair at a lecture on Belgium given in the Parish church of Temple, a village near Edinburgh, and close to the Rosebery estate. Proposing a vote of thanks to the lecturer, he said in those days it did not do to reckon whether the news was good or bad. One had to set one's teeth and go through the day's work, whatever news the morning might bring. That was the spirit we had to face. Never in the whole history of the world was there a more dastardly or infamous action than that of Prussia in regard to Belgium. There was something else that we might learn from this chapter of history besides the fact that it was our duty to take up arms to vindicate our honor and our signature to the treaty which Prussia had torn up. "If the Prussians were ever to land on these shores—I draw a distinction between Prussia and Germany—the scenes which have been enacted there would also take place here. I will go further. They would be a hundred times worse, for although the Prussians had no such grudge against Belgium when they devastated that country, they are devoured by a furious and insensate hatred of this country. Let us take this to our hearts, and souls, and consciences. It would involve the destruction of our empire and of all we hold dear at home. They have drunk to the day of our humiliation for years past, and now that we have acted as the obstruction of their plan of getting to Paris, ravaging France, and then having time to destroy Russia, their hatred to us is one-hundred fold what it was. They no longer carry on war as they did in 1870 against France; they have gone down in the name of the culture they pretend to extol. In 1870 I remember well, they made civilized war; now they make bestial and barbarous war. Well, if that be the character of the war, you must remember that it might come here. There might be a raid (I do not think there could be much more). If there was a raid it would be accompanied by all the savagery and all the barbarism that the Prussians have displayed in Belgium. The responsibility lies on all of us to prevent that. We cannot all be heroes, like the King of the Belgians, but we can, at any rate, do our duty to avert from this country the horrors that have taken place in his kingdom. There is not an able-bodied man in this country who would not go to his grave with shame if he had not lifted a hand to prevent such a thing!"

Several of the applicants who had enlisted during last week underwent the necessary medical examination and a large per centage of passes was secured. Drill was conducted at the Armouries and the progress made by the recruits is quite satisfactory.

Doctors and Gas Fires

In an article which recently appeared in the London "Evening News," Mr. W. G. Faulkner stated: "In making my inquiries I discovered one significant fact. This was that one company—the Gas Light and Coke Company—had among their consumers 2,500 doctors who had gas fires installed in their houses, some as many as ten or a dozen; that 1,500 of these doctors had become users of gas during the past three years and that not one had ever given them up."
 Professor C. V. Boys, F.R.S., says, in the "Standard," "Sentiment and inertia are the only obstacles against the general adoption of gas fires and cooking appliances. Wonderful strides have been made, in spite of deep-rooted prejudice. A gas fire, burning with a blue, is an admirable agent for heating a room; and, as a scientist, I fail to understand how such a gas fire dries the air in a room more than any other fire."—Nov 17, 11

Who Killed Olga Carew

To-day the Crescent Picture Palace has an all feature picture programme, the headliner "Who Killed Olga Carew?" is a baffling mystery drama in two reels, written and produced by Walter MacNamara and made by the L.M.P. Photo Play Co. who are famous for the excellence of all their pictures. "The Trail of the Silver Fox" is an Eclair drama enacted in the wilds of Western Canada; the photograph of this feature like all Eclair work is perfect. "Mike and Jake Among the Cannibals" is a lively jester comedy. Mike and Jake are cast ashore on an island and are captured by the Cannibals. How they manage to escape is shown in this very funny reel. Max Asher and Harry McKay feature in this comical picture. Mr. J. O'Neill, Parroll, the popular baritone, made a big hit in his introduction of Cabaret Picture Singing. Mr. Parroll sings the same song to-night. Go to the Crescent and hear him.

Decorations on the Battlefield.

London, Dec. 5.—King George decorated many soldiers yesterday while visiting along the battlefield in France, with the Prince of Wales and General French, Commander-in-Chief of the British forces. The decorations given were the medal for valor, and the D.S.O. medal. The King pinned the medals on the coats of the recipients and made a brief speech in each case.

Cream of Tartar

Many people use cream of tartar for quick baking. They value its superior qualities and will not knowingly accept substitutes made of alum or lime phosphates, such as are sometimes offered.

But even the most careful cannot always know. The high price of cream of tartar has led to efforts to substitute alum and phosphate of lime compounds which are vastly inferior and not as healthful to use.

The easiest way in which the housekeeper can be sure of quality and economy is by using Royal Baking Powder, which is made from pure cream of tartar.

Royal Baking Powder gives perfect results, is less trouble to use, and has not been advanced in price.

Anyone who has once become accustomed to using Royal Baking Powder never reverts to homemade mixtures or any other product for raising biscuit, griddle-cakes, doughnuts, or cake.

Grand Entertainment at Petty Harbor.

Under the auspices of Rev. J. and Mrs. Hewitt a concert in aid of the Patriotic Fund was held in the Parish Hall, at Petty Harbor, on November 25th, which, to voice the public opinion, was the most successful ever held here.

The performance opened with a Patriotic Address by Mr. Henry Bishop who expounded very forcibly the duties incumbent upon and the righteousness of our Motherland in entering this war, and those present were given a synopsis of the progress and an assurance of the ultimate success that must eventually attend the wagers of such a just cause.

The opening chorus: "Red, White and Blue" was magnificently rendered and brought forth a burst of merited applause. Next was a solo entitled: "Dear Homeland," by Miss E. Legge whose vocal ability was the subject of many flattering comments. The following recitation: "A Soldier's Grave" was rendered, with much feeling, by Miss A. Payne as to bring a glistering tear into the eyes of many—tears of pride for those noble heroes who are maintaining the cause of righteousness in the present campaign. Mr. Bishop now sang, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" and the fact of its being used as a National march song by our Allied armies, is evidence enough of its popularity; full justice was done by Mr. Bishop and he was encored amidst thunderous applause. Following this was a Dialogue in which the Misses May, Dorothy and Alice Bishop acquitted themselves very creditably, and all were eloquent in their praise of the abilities of "the sisters." This was followed by the chorus: "Newfoundland" by the troupe, after which Mr. Herbert Westcott, our local comedian gained much applause by his splendid rendition of "Fou the Noo." The next was a solo: "The Soldiers of the King" by Mr. W. A. French, our talented and energetic teacher of the R.C. School, who, by the way, has only been a short time amongst us, and who we all feel assured will always fill a foremost place at all subsequent concerts here, and will always be the right man in the right place. After which Miss D. Bishop, whose capabilities as an elocutionist are well known, recited the pathetic lines of "Somebody's Darling." Next was the French National Anthem, as a chorus, and was rendered in good style. During the interval which followed, candies were disposed of which considerably augmented the proceeds.

After the interval the Misses Stack and Legge and Messrs French and Westcott were seen in a comic sketch entitled: "The Masterpiece," and Miss Legge's personation of the "Negress" was all that could be desired. Miss Lucy Chafe now admirably displayed her vocal ability in the rendition of "Sing Again That Sweet Refrain," followed by another of our local talent, Miss H. Stack who rendered the solo: "The Songs My Mother Used to Sing" very creditably. Mr. Westcott again treated the audience with another comic selection entitled: "The Wedding of Sandy MacNab" which to put it figuratively brought down the house. The next item, and one that reflected great credit on the performer was a solo: "In the Harbor of Home Sweet Home" by Miss C. Ewing, a lady from the city, who so kindly rendered her valuable assistance. The following recitation: "The Cry of the Belgian Children," by Miss Legge, was very impressive and graphically described the desecration of the Belgian innocents by the perpetrators of Prussian Militarism. The next was a solo entitled: "Where Are the Boys of the Old Brigade," at which Mr. Bishop scored again and added fresh laurels to his many vocalistic successes, and many were the eulogies accorded him upon whose shoulders devolved the material success of the entertainment. Following this was a dialogue entitled: "Bosting Cure," in which Miss Payne and Messrs. Hughie, Chafe and Westcott played their parts admirably and loud and long was the applause accorded them. "Killarney" was now sung by Miss Stack, the success of which could be judged by the practical demonstration that followed. After which Mr. French gave us a comic song entitled: "His Day's Work Was Done," the rendition of which in his happy and perfect style so charmed the audience that he had to appear again and again. Then followed as a chorus: "Tenting To-night," succeeded by "God Save The King" which was rendered with much patriotic feeling by "tout ensemble."

The programme was repeated the following night and again the spacious hall was crowded to overflowing. The music furnished by Miss Hewitt was of an unusually high standard and reflected great credit on our skilful pianist. Many thanks are also due to Mrs. and Mr. Pynn who so generously placed the use of their piano at the disposal of the performers, and also those gentlemen whose capacities as ushers were indispensable to success, and finally to the contributors of candy, etc., and also to Mr. Hally and his obliging staff for the skilful suggestions and arrangements in lighting, and, in fact, all who materially assisted in making the performance the success it was. The substantial sum of $114.76 was realized evidencing the patronage and practical patriotism of the residents of Petty Harbor. The promoters, Miss May Bishop and Miss Ethel Legge are to be congratulated on the phenomenal success of their enterprise, financially and otherwise and may the time not be very far distant when we will again be able to enjoy such a musical treat.

One hundred dollars ($100.00) of the above proceeds have been forwarded, by the kindness of Rev. Mr. Hewitt to Lady Davidson for The Patriotic Fund and the balance to the Treasurer of The Belgian Fund.

Fireman Foley Meets With Accident.

Last evening, Fireman Pierce Foley, of the East End Fire Department, had a narrow escape from being killed. He was seriously injured and is not yet out of danger. Shortly after 6 o'clock while going through the Western gate leading to Government House, he was accidentally thrown from his seat. The horses, which he was driving, were not going fast at the time. His head struck the ground first. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken to his home in Hoylestown where he was attended by Doctors Roberts, Rendell, Mitchell and Macpherson, the former dressing a bad scalp wound. He was also badly shaken up. At midnight he regained consciousness and for the remainder of the night rested quietly. This morning he was suffering intense pain from the head wound.

The Xmas Pantomime.

Every one is looking forward to Mrs. Rossley's Christmas Pantomime. This is the third year of the beautiful productions in which our own talent play a prominent part; many a fine voice has been found among these girls. Good looking and with talent that would never come to the surface were it not for the training these girls have; they are taught to be smart and graceful with dainty movements and they give a very fine performance. Mrs. Rossley says this pantomime is something entirely different to any of her previous efforts. The name of the production will be announced later with the famous tenor who is booked specially for Christmas, we can rely on having a delightful programme, as Mr. Vincent Vernon is a character change artist, his songs are class, popular and ballad.

FIRE ALARM.—About 6.15 last evening the Central and East End Fire Companies were called to Government House but there was no fire there. Owing to a lot of smoke coming from the kitchen some person sent in an alarm.

NO CELEBRATIONS OF NAVAL VICTORY.

LONDON, To-day.

While the defeat of the German cruisers in the South Atlantic evokes the liveliest satisfaction throughout Britain, there have been no celebrations to mark the victories. British people have been too much wrapped up in the operations of the Allied armies on the Continent. Lack of news in Poland causes some uneasiness regarding the results of the prolonged battle between Russians and Germans, but the reports from France are considered here to be most favorable to the Allies. The French have been making slow progress on the western front for the past fortnight. A review sent by a French witness for the period from Nov. 27 to Dec. 5 claims that the ascendancy of the French infantry and artillery over the German has been established, that while the infantry advanced, the artillery smashed the German batteries. The report from French headquarters to-night adds little general knowledge, as it says the situation is unchanged, which indicates, however, that the positions taken have been maintained. Berlin, on the other hand, states that French attacks on their army have been repulsed. It is apparent, however, that by the withdrawal of German troops to strengthen the armies in the East, the Allies have been able to put their lines forward in many places. The Germans meanwhile continue their efforts to smash the Russian army. While a large part of their force are endeavoring to hold the Russian centre, another army is advancing from East Prussia, east of Mlava, attacking the Russian right, with a view to cutting communications and entering Warsaw through the back door. Heavy fighting is also going on from south-east of Cracow to the southwest of Lodz, where the Austrians and Germans are endeavoring to get around the Russian left wing. General Botha announces that the rebellion is practically at an end. Since the capture on Dec. 4 of seven hundred rebels and the surrender of two hundred Boers, five additional rebel leaders and their Commandoes have unconditionally laid down their arms. Only one rebel leader is at large. Colonel Maritz. The Indian Office reports that 1,100 Turkish prisoners, exclusive of wounded, and nine guns were captured at Kurna on the Persian Gulf which was occupied on December 8th.

ROULERS OCCURRED. AMSTERDAM, To-day. The Allies have entered Roulers in West Flanders, 12 miles northeast of Ypres, according to the Rhine correspondent. On Wednesday the German Divisional Headquarters was removed from Roulers when shells began to fall in the town, after the British had captured Paschendaele, a short distance to the west of Roulers.

UNIFICATION OF EGYPT.

PARIS, To-day. It is learned on very high authority that the British Government is about to declare for the unification of Egypt.

THREE GERMAN SUBMARINES SUNK.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch from Dover states that three German submarines who took part in the attempted submarine raid upon the Admiralty Harbor have been sunk, after a heavy fusillade by the land batteries. The attempted raid on the harbor was made under cover of darkness and in a rain storm at 6.30 yesterday morning. Six submarines took part in it. The first alarm on shore was given by the firing of big naval guns. Soon after the land batteries were engaged in action. The fusillade lasted for some time. At least two hundred shots were fired. The message states that the submarines did not succeed in doing any damage.

THANKS.—The Hon. Secretary-Treasurer of the Methodist Orphanage begs to acknowledge the receipt of the sum of Thirty-two dollars and twenty cents, being one-third of net proceeds of Smoking Concert held on Wednesday evening last, per Messrs. Somerville and Dewling.

PORTIA DETAINED BY STORM.—The s.s. Portia, Capt. J. Keam, was ready to sail for the westward this morning, but was held in port by the snow storm. She will get away as soon as the storm abates. The following passengers are booked to go in season: J. Bennett, J. English, P. English, P. Downey, P. Power, A. Ryan, S. Solo, J. Power, Miss Pike, Miss Hoberg, Mrs. W. Pike, Mrs. Duddy and 25 steerage.

L.O.A. Patriotic Meeting

A patriotic meeting of Leeming Lodge, No. 54, L. O. A., was held at Victoria Hall last night and was largely attended. The speakers were Rev. H. Royle, the newly elected Chaplain, and Mr. H. E. Cowan, D.M., of Royal Oak Lodge.

Mr. H. E. Cowan then reviewed the events that led up to the war, and in an interesting manner explained the seriousness of the great struggle. Britain had not desired war, and had tried in every way known to diplomacy to avert it, but when the question of the honor of the Empire was involved there was only one course to pursue. Britain is fighting with a united Empire behind her, in a just cause, and with the approbation of the whole neutral world.

It was announced that the speakers at next week's meeting will be Mr. Lloyd and Mr. the Telegram, and Mr. G. W. Gushie.

Weary Tiredness Changed to Vigor.

That Played-Out Feeling Was Quickly Remedied and Health Restored.

Story of a Merchant Who Almost Lost His Business and His Health Through Neglecting Early Symptoms of Disease.

"My life for years has been of sedentary character," writes T. B. Titchfield, head of a well-known firm in Buckingham. "Nine hours every day I spent at office work and took exercise only on Sunday. I disregarded the symptoms of ill-health, which were all too apparent to my family. I grew thin, then pale, and before long I was jaundiced—eyes and skin were yellow, my strength and nerve energy were lowered, and I was quite unfit for business. In the morning a lightness in the head, particularly when I bent over, made me very worried about my health. Most of the laxative medicines I found weakening, and knowing that I had to be at business every day I neglected myself rather than risk further weakness. Of course I grew worse, but by a happy chance I began to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I was forcibly struck by the fact that they neither caused griping nor nausea, and it seemed incredible that pills could tone, cleanse and regulate the system without causing any unpleasant after effects. Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted with me just as gentle as nature—they gave new life to my liver, strengthened my stomach, and won me back to perfect good health. My skin is clear, dizziness has disappeared, and my appetite, strength, spirits are perfect."

Refuse anything offered you instead of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are sure cure. Sold in 25c. boxes, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid from the Catarhospice Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Herrings at Anderson's Cove.

A message was received from Anderson's Cove, Fortune Bay, by the Fisheries Department yesterday afternoon stating that herrings were more plentiful there than for the last ten years. Bonne Bay reported the fish scarce but the weather was favourable.

"Take a good look at the above cut." If you are suffering from a Cough or Cold, don't make any difference. Buy a bottle of Dr. F. Stafford's Phorastone Cough Cure, take it according to the directions on the bottle and you will find it a good preparation. If you keep neglecting a slight cough or cold it will gradually develop into the "Cough" that you will not very easily get rid of. Thousands of people are dying every year from neglecting what they called a slight cough or cold.

Llewelyn was the last native "Prince of Wales." Up to the time of Edward I. the Welsh had maintained a kind of independence, and had defended themselves in their native fastnesses and defied the power of England. Edward I. however, marched an English army into Wales and finally defeated them and in the battle their Prince Llewelyn was slain. Edward's son, afterwards Edward II., was created the first English Prince of Wales.

A WAR SONG.

(Moose Jaw "Evening Times.") Come sing the old, old story, The Empire's pride and boast; That ne'er the feet of foemen, Shall desecrate our coast. We'll welcome gallant Belgians, Unto our sea air shore. But the Kaiser's brutal legions, shall— Be met with cannon's roar.

CHORUS:

Your King and Country need you The flag is wide unfurl'd; The Empire, and its allies 'Gainst German millions hurl'd. Our King and Country ever 'Well about it to the skies— There's Glory, Freedom, Honor, The flag of Britain flies.

See, Canada's sons are sailing, Thousands strong across the seas; And our "meteor" flag is streaming On the patriotic breeze. From New Zealand and Australia, From the Cape and Newfoundland, All the lion's whelps now gather, to— Protect the Motherland.

Rod and Gun.

Frank Houghton contributes a vivid account of a polar bear hunt in the Arctic regions to the December issue of Rod and Gun in Canada, published at Woodstock, Ont., by W. J. Taylor, Limited. "The Hermit of White Otter Lake" tells the story of a canoe trip that led to a wonderful house in the woods built by old Jimmy McQuat, sportsman recluse. "Tolk's Southey" is a fascinating tale of a brindle bull terrier who saved his master from financial ruin by his ability to fight, and who later strengthened out the crooked owner of the love. "The Bird Dog" will appeal to all those interested in this "embodiment of canine intelligence." Other articles there are of outdoor life from Atlantic to Pacific and departments full of interest to the sportsman, hunter and fisherman.

German Republic Idea Ridiculed.

Paris, Dec. 4.—Henry Davray, French writer and student of German affairs, is not among the prophets who predict the formation of a republic in Germany following the close of the war, provided the Allies are successful. In an article in the Temps, M. Davray says he knows of no class in Germany which would start a rebellion against the existing regime. He regards all the people as loyal to the Kaiser and the spirit of militarism.

"Long before the beginning of the war," says M. Davray, "the Socialists by their votes in the Reichstag, gave proof of their belief in the necessity of imposing upon the world the so-called benefits of 'kultur' and German civilization. For them, as for the whole German people, the Kaiser even though defeated in this war, will remain supreme. They will continue to respect his authority and take their orders from him.

"The formidable military organization which the whole of Europe admires without envying, and which it no longer fears, has inculcated in the mind of every German, peasant or aristocrat, laborer or professor, the same absolute faith in the invincibility of the army, in the future supremacy of the fleet, in the superiority of everything German, and a belief in the necessity of imposing this superiority on the entire world.

"It is a mistake," M. Davray continues, "to attempt to distinguish between the Kaiser and the military caste on the one hand and the German people on the other. Both classes are blinded by the same audacious dream. Throughout the empire there is the same insolent infatuation, the same medley of arrogant ambitions, the same crafty servility.

"To blame the Kaiser, the Crown Prince and the odious cast of country squires while imploring pity for the German people as innocent victims is to establish a dangerous and illusory distinction, flatly contradicted by the cruelties practiced by soldiers as well as officers, who are persuaded that their mission is to exterminate a hated race.

"I insist on the contrary, that the people and its chiefs are bound together in a strict solidarity. A people has the ruler whom it deserves. The whole history of the German people and German institutions demonstrates that it is in the German character to submit always to brutal authority. The school master beats his pupils in inculcating the rudiments of German culture; the soldier of whatever class submits to insults from his superior.

"Those who predict a revolution in Germany should indicate how it is to be brought about. In the setting up of a new government a political coalition such as does not exist in the confederation of German States is necessary. The peoples of the several States are much less homogeneous than many suppose, and the mobilization disorganized the social democracy, whose adherents submitted with the same docility as the most rabid pan-Germanists."

HENRY BLAIR

The German Emperor!

On his ordinary attire the Kaiser rarely spends more than $3500 per year. Military uniforms, though, add greatly to the Imperial dress bill. His German Majesty is very particular over his sporting suits, and on his visits to England it has been noted that he has never been seen in the same suit twice.

But there is a suit that the Kaiser will appear in more than once, and conspicuously so, and that is the suit for peace which will eventually follow. Meanwhile the Emperor should lose no time in having some of those old tons Dry Cleaned, as he may need them in the inevitable days of stress.
