The Lords Defeat Lord Astor's Bill by Two Votes

Armistice Day to be Perpetuated as a Day of National Remembrance—Trotsky Overlooked in Forming Soviet Cabinet—Former Egyptian Minister Involved in Assassination of the Sirdar.

PEERESSES STILL KEPT OUT OF LORDS.

LONDON, March 21. The House of Lords to-day rejected by the close vote of 73 to 80 Lord Astor's Bill to enable Peeresses in their own right to sit and vote in the House of Lords.

LONDON, May 20.

That women will, before many years, be entitled to the vote in the House of Lords as well as in the House of Commons, is the conclusion drawn from the fact that Lord Astor's private bill to enable Peeresses in their own right to sit and vote with British Peers was rejected on a free vote of the House of Lords to-day, by a majority of only two votes—73 to 80.

TO PERPETUATE ARMISTICE DAY.

EDINBURGH, May 21. Field Marshal Earl Haig headed a delegation to the general assembly of the Church of Scotland here yesterday, asking the Church to assist in perpetuating Armistice Day as a day of national remembrance. The Moderator, the Earl of Elgin, signified the Church was ready to assist in the perpetuation.

CAPTAINS EXONERATED.

HALIFAX, May 21. Captain G. M. Wilkie, of the sloop, Cape D'Or, and Captain C. O. Maguire, of the steamer Clackamas, have been exonerated of all blame in connection with the sinking of the Cape D'Or, with a loss of five lives after collision with the Clackamas on Cape L'Anse-au-Loup, N.S., on April 30, according to

REPORT OF DOMINION WRECKING COMMISSIONER.

L. A. Demers, Ottawa, made public here to-day. The report censured the second officer, James Fraser, of the Clackamas and warned him to show better judgement in future. The certificates of the masters were not withheld. The report showed the crew of the Clackamas did all that could be expected in their endeavours to rescue the crew of the sloop Cape D'Or.

TROTSKY NOT INCLUDED.

MOSCOW, May 21. All members of the Council of People's Commissars, of which Alexis I. Rykoff is President, were re-elected to-day by the Central Executive Committee of the Union of Socialist Republics. Trotsky, former Minister of War, who recently returned from political seclusion, failed to secure a post in the Soviet Cabinet, although Communists believed generally that he would be made Commissar of Foreign Trade. It is understood that the argument made was that taking him back now would create an impression about a weakness in the Bolshevik Government, and that he will be forced to work his way back to power by slow progress and take whatever post the Government may offer him.

FORMER EGYPTIAN MINISTER ARRESTED.

CAIRO, May 21. Ahmed Pasha Maharr, former Minister of Education in the Zagloul Cabinet, was arrested to-day in connection with the investigation of the murder of Sir Lee Oliver Stack, British Commander of the Egyptian Army,

WHO WAS ASSASSINATED HERE LAST NOVEMBER.

CAPTAIN'S CERTIFICATE SUSPENDED. MONTREAL, May 21. Following the stranding and total loss of the S. S. Azovon near Cape Hogan, Cape Breton, on April 30 last, the Wreck Commissions Court sitting at Ottawa Monday, suspended the certificate of her master, L. A. McLean, for two months, taking full cognizance of the fact that he had no certificated officer with him and was therefore deprived of help, and bearing in mind his frank, straightforward evidence given with no attempt to evade or mislead the court.

RIFLEMAN MENACE GRAVER THAN ADMITTED.

FEZ, French Morocco, May 21. It was admitted in military circles here to-day that the menace of the Rifians under Abd-el-Krim, who recently invaded French Morocco from the Spanish zone, is more grave than previously stated. It was declared that every possible measure to deal with the situation with a minimum FREDERICTON, May 21. Twenty-five degrees were conferred this afternoon at the encaenia of the University of New Brunswick, including honorary degree of LL.D. upon Rev. E. H. Heine, Westmont, Quebec.

FOREST FIRES CHECKED.

PORT WILLIAM, Ont., May 21. Fires which have raged in Thunder Bay district for three days and burned thirty buildings were reported to-night to have been checked and unless unfavorable weather sets in there were strong hopes that the worst had passed. No lives were lost, but property damage is heavy.

MONCTON, N.B., May 21.

Rain started falling at eight p.m. over the district at West Galloway, Kent County, where forest fires were threatening Richibucto, Rexton, Buctouche and other villages, after destroying several dwellings and barns, and although it was but a slight drizzle it raised the hopes of firefighters who were unsuccessfully attempting to stop the onslaught of the flames. It was believed that there would be no further damage to buildings.

HAMILTON PRINTERS STRIKE.

HAMILTON, May 21. Printers in the office of the Herald and Spectator went on strike at 11.55, following a dispute over a wage scale.

JUDGMENT DEFERRED.

TORONTO, May 21. The hearing of the appeal by the five convicted Directors of the defunct Home Bank, was concluded to-day, when judgment was reserved in the case of S. Casey. It is now known when the judgments will be handed down. The five were convicted and sentenced to various terms of impris-

"THE ROSARY" A PLAY OF SPECTACULAR BEAUTY AND TENSE DRAMA.

Arle Marks and her players were last night greeted by a capacity audience to witness that ever popular play "The Rosary" from the pen of Bernard McConville. In the midst of this wholesale campaign for reform, censorship and what not comes "The Rosary." In the first place, "The Rosary" is a magnetic title which every man, woman and child is acquainted. One does not have to guess at what to expect. There is enough adventure to meet the prevalent public thirst for melodramatic entertainment. But these facts are but a few that go to make this play one of the best seen in St. John's in a decade.

Originals to Present
"Rapid Fire" Next Week

OPEN ENTIRELY NEW PROGRAMME WITH MONDAY MATINEE.

Owing to the tremendous success of the Originals at the Nickel Theatre all this week, and the sensation this marvellous organization has created in St. John's, the management is pleased to announce their second and positively last week commencing next Monday, (Empire Day) matinee at 2.30 with an entirely new show called "Rapid Fire," the famous production that broke every existing theatrical record throughout Canada last season.

The Originals will play "Stepping Out" all the rest of this week with a popular matinee on Saturday (to-morrow) afternoon when the children will have an opportunity to see this excellent show.

Such an organization of versatile entertainers has never before played here, and while this is the Originals' first appearance in St. John's, it will not be the last, judging by the great reception accorded them at every performance so far this week. Next season they are going to Great Britain for a long tour of the Music Halls, and will later make a tour of the Empire including South Africa, Australia, New Zealand and India.

A few of the outstanding numbers in next week's big musical revue will include "When Catherine Ruled," a musical hit of the days of Russia's great Queen; "The Floral Dance," with Bertram Langley in the role that made him famous years ago; "Give me a little cosy corner," with Gene Pearson and the incomparable quartette; "Watchman what of the night" by Bertram Langley and Jerry Bradford; a rollicking khaki number called "Billeted in a Barn" in which the inimitable Bob Anderson is at his very best; Gene Pearson's single numbers will include "The Waltz Song" from "Romeo and Juliet," Elaborate costumes and the usual correct staging will be in evidence.

Through Fire and Water

The Thomas Bentley production, "Through Fire and Water," which was shown at the Majestic Theatre last night lives thoroughly up to its reputation. It heaps thrill upon thrill, and excitement upon excitement, and excitement upon excitement. All through the tense drama runs a pretty love story, in which the chief parts are played by the pretty and graceful Flora le Breton, the clever swimmer and dancer, who recently won the amateur dancing championship of the world, and Clive Brook, who gave so admirable a performance in "Sonia" and other well-known films. The film is adapted from Victor Bridges' novel, "Greensea Island."

"Through Fire and Water" will be repeated to-night as will also the concert numbers of Adams and Cheney who again won the praise and compliments of the audience. The rendition of Ave Maria was indeed well worth the admission whilst the house thoroughly enjoyed the popular medleys and Harry Lauder's Scotch success. It was a real bill of good music, good photoplay and should not be missed. To-morrow afternoon a special program for children is advertised.

The Originals

Continue Their Success

The chorus of praise bestowed on the Originals since their first appearance at the Nickel Theatre on Monday last, increases with each performance and they truly deserve the plaudits of an ever-increasing host of admirers. Last night every seat

staidly inclined lose their restraint and become hilarious. There are im-provations that are astonishing in number and there are delightful fragments of sentimentality both in singing and acting. To miss the show is to miss a rare treat. There will be a matinee to-morrow afternoon and the evening performance the rest of the week, being the last chance that goers here will have to see "Stepping

Out." So follow the crowd and join the host of admirers of the best makers that ever visited this city.

WHY NOT REVIVE CRICKET?

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir—I fancy I will have your approval and your permission to use some of your valuable space to appeal to all lovers of the national game. Of course I mean Cricket, the King of Games. That it has been allowed to die out in the Oldest Colony is nothing short of shameful. Cricket teaches character building in a manner all its own and as such a tutor it should be fostered by all our schools and colleges.

Now my intention is to try and arouse interest once more in the game. This I know is "some" task, as very few of the rising generation know even the rules of the game, let alone how to play it. My idea is that a Commercial League be formed, and that matches be played two or three evenings a week. This can easily be done now with the present daylight saving law in operation. One innings could be played each evening, and the same could be extended for a week if necessary. I fancy that Jerry Savage would head a team for Messrs. Harvey & Co., Pat Berrigan would stand up for Baird & Co., N. Snow would see to it that Bowring Bros. would be in it; Ken Trenchard would see Knowling's honor upheld; H. Taylor would look after the interests of Ayre & Sons and E. Furlong would do the same for T. & M. Winter.

Cannot we get together gentlemen, and put the old game once again on the map? There are lots of good material in hand and all it wants is moulding. If you men will coach the youngsters, in a year or so the noble game will once again be a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

THE SITUATION.

The Boston News Bureau says:—The readjustment that has taken place in a number of important business lines gives some indications of having run its course. Steel and iron prices are much steadier and business brisker, wheat prices have enjoyed a very sharp rally from the low levels, sugar appears to have struck bottom, and even the world-wide wool crisis has perhaps passed if the tone of the latest London auctions is a fair criterion.

Of course, one swallow does not make a summer and a mere cessation of the downward trend of prices and orders in certain lines does not necessarily mean that boom times are at hand. But such developments do suggest that the worst has been seen and that after a recuperative period possibly a marked turn for the better will set in.

One reason for the withdrawal of industrial liquidating pressure is the continued ease of the money market, where accommodation below 4 per cent. is available in practically all departments. Under such conditions and with general conservative activities so high, stocks of goods of raw materials are not apt to be sacrificed.

The same money ease accounts in high degree for the high level of the security markets—both bonds and stocks. Similarly it explains the optimism in banking circles and the ease with which large deals can be effected.

SHELL UNION OIL.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—Annual report of Shell Union Oil Corp. discloses the reason for strength of the 6 per cent. preferred, which this year he moved within the narrow range of 99 1/2 to 101 1/2. Last sale was at 101 1/2, at which the yield is 5.91 per cent. comparable with many high-grade bond issues. For 1924 gross was $50,984,588, and after deduction of $28,060,515 for depletion, depreciation, drilling expenses, etc. and deduction of $6,000,000 special reserve for contingencies, balance available for dividends was $18,662,738, or more than the entire preferred outstanding at close of 1924, given as $17,880,400. That is to say, surplus for year was equivalent to $104 a share on preferred, par being $100, or more than 17 times the $6 dividend to which the stock is entitled. Before deducting the special reserve of $6,000,000 earnings were equivalent to $137 a share on the preferred, or 23 times the dividend.

The preferred issue originally was $20,000,000, redeemable through a sinking fund equal to ten per cent. but not in any year in excess of $800,000, of net income. Sinking fund became operative May 1, 1924, and in that year the company purchased and retired 8496 shares of preferred of total par value of $849,600, the stock selling for less than par at the time. The company made additional substantial purchase of preferred in 1924 for purpose of sinking fund, however, for in balance sheet dated December 31, 1924, it is stated: "Retired through sinking fund and purchased for retirement, 21,196 shares—$2,119,600." This month, through sinking fund, 8000 shares of preferred were purchased and retired, making 16,496 shares retired to date, and leaving 4,704 still carried by the company for retirement out of 1926 sinking fund appropriation.

Against $17,880,400 preferred in hands of the public the company had a surplus at close of 1924 of $19,420,355.

Masonic Installation at Carbonear

The installation of the R.W.M. and office bearers of Lodge Carbonear, No. 1043, S.C., took place at Carbonear on Wednesday evening, May 21st, the ceremony being performed by the D.G.M.D., R.W. Bro. H. E. Cowan, D.G.J.D., assisted by the following D.G. Lodge officers: Bros. R. Duff, D.G.M.D., F. Archibald, as D.G.J.W.; J. Snow, as D.G.J.W.; F. E. Rabbitts, D.G.S., as D.G.D. of C.; W. J. Wells, as D.G.B.B.; J. G. Jarvie, as D.G.S.D.; G. Smith, as D.G.J.D.; G. Langmead as D.G.S.S., and A. Stevenson, as D.G.I.G. The following officers were installed:

J. N. Penney, R.W.M.
L. Ash—L.P.M.
William Clarke—W.S.W.
W. J. M. Pike—W.J.W.
G. H. Cameron—Secretary.
W. L. LeGrow—Chaplain.
John Cornish—Organist.
F. P. Pike—S.D.
W. H. Hillyard—J.D.
Fred K. Pike—L.G.
Wm. Hayter—S.S.
P. James—J.S.
Wm. Taylor—Tyler.

Bro. Leonard Ash, who had served as R.W.M. for three years was presented with a P.M.'s Jewel as a token of the esteem of his brethren. Following the installation ceremony a banquet was held, and the usual toast list honored. The toasts were interspersed with songs and choruses, and the brethren, including a large number of visitors from St. John's, Mr. Grace, Bay Roberts and Heart's Content spent a most enjoyable time.

A Would-Be Pauper

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—I have been much interested in the debates in the House of Assembly re Old Age Pensions, and some frauds connected therewith. Here is the case of an application made to me for the Widow's Fee, which I passed on to the Relieving Officer here. His reply is as follows: "Dear Sir—Re your application for relief for the widow of the late— I beg to advise you that I have received by this mail a cheque for $1,000.00 favour of said Mrs. a/c late—'s Life Insurance Policy. Such being the case I do not consider you entitled to Pauper Relief."

Yours respectfully,
J.P.
R.O.G.
I have suppressed the names (though much tempted to include them). Is not this, as the Americans would say, the limit? I think the case comes for an Inspector to be appointed to travel the Island, and require into the administration of Old Age Pensions and Poor Relief. There would be some startling revelations and money saved for the relief of those really in need, who do not receive enough. I am, Sir,
Yours faithfully,
X.

Death of a Great Comedian

Alfred Luter, one of London's most popular comedians, died in Madrid on May 6th after an attack of influenza which neither he nor his friends considered serious. His real name was Alfred Leslie. Born in Nottingham 36 years ago his reputation was made at a bound in his scene shifter "act" at the Palace Theatre in 1905.

A FAREWELL PARTY.—At the residence of Mrs. Hennessey, Morlane St., a farewell party was given to the Misses Margaret and Sue Collins, who are leaving on S.S. Cadmus for Boston. A very enjoyable time was spent and the Misses Collins received many valuable gifts.

Nothing Like These Results A Year Ago or Now

It is no trick to build a car that will go 65 or 70 miles an hour if it has a power plant big enough to haul a freight train.

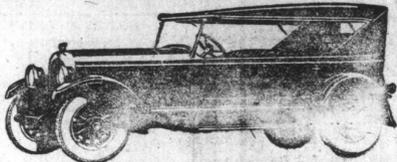

It's a great achievement to get over 70 miles an hour out of a motor of 3-inch bore and 4 1/4-inch stroke, with gasoline mileage safely above 20 miles per gallon.

And that's the wonder of the Chrysler Six—a wonder so different and so superior that Chrysler was forced to build over 22,000 cars to meet the first-year demand.

Of course you don't want to drive your Chrysler over 70 miles an hour. In fact you may never go that fast. But there is something you do want that only a speed-ability of 70 miles can give.

That something is sure, steady power for steepest hill or deepest sand, a pick-up to flash you out of a traffic tangle, sturdy, dogged pull so you can throttle to five, even two miles an hour, on high without "bucking."

That's Chrysler performance in a nutshell. You surely must drive the car. It's the only way you can fully appreciate that it is the best built car you ever rode in. We are always eager to demonstrate the Chrysler.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

LEARN TO PLEASE YOURSELF MORE.

I suppose every one in the world has his pleasure in the possession of something that other people envy of them. Too broad a statement? I wonder.

I don't mean that everyone is consciously wishful of exciting other people's envy. I simply mean that at the base of some of man's pleasure in possession, there is generally that subconscious sense of superiority to those who do not possess.

When the traveler sends back souvenir post cards picturing the beautiful scenes he is seeing, what gives him so much delight in that gesture? The feeling that his friends will envy him.

To Make Someone Envious.

When the small boy on the beach cries out to the other small boy: "Look! I've picked up more shiny stones than you have," does he delight in the shiny stones as something he can use or look at? No, but because he has more than the other day, and the other boy will be dissatisfied. I suppose it is a primal part of our nature—this desire to acquire more for ourselves than the other man has an offshoot of the instinct of self-preservation that nature has implanted in us to keep the race going.

But I do think that some people permit this instinct to become too large a part of their attitude. Some people get some of their pleasure that way some of the time. Other people get all their pleasure that way all the time.

Why They Want That Froek.

All women see the new frock they crave partly in terms of the attractiveness the frock is going to give them, and partly in terms of what other women are going to think of it, and the envy that other women (and perhaps some special woman) are going to feel.

But some women scarcely think of anything but that envy.

What do women want jewellery for? Because they love the beauty of it? What would a diamond mean to a woman if she were allowed to enjoy the beauty of it only when she was alone, and never to let anyone see it. What women would not prefer to have a single ring that she could flash in the eyes of her sister women rather than a diamond tiara under those conditions?

A woman who is very frank not only with others but with herself told me once how she caught herself in this tendency to get too much of her pleasure in life out of other people's reactions to what she had, instead of her own.

With The Bridge Club In Mind.

We were considering spending quite a lot of money on a handsome car instead of buying a new one like our old one which was really perfectly comfortable. And then it came over me that the reason I wanted that car was that I kept picturing myself going to the bridge club in it and all the girls crowding around and admiring it and envying me. It wasn't that I really cared about the extra power or the extra comfort, or old one was fast enough and comfortable enough. I was willing to spend all that money just to have people envying me. And since then I've watched myself when I wanted things, to see if I wanted them for myself, or for other people. I think the secret of really getting the most out of your money is to get things for yourself that you can really enjoy, and let the other things go.

Pretty good philosophy, don't you think?

Penned by a Soldier

When a man tells you that he was born number eleven in a family of fifteen admits that he was not a nice being credited with all the minor catastrophes that happened to his family and confesses almost blushing to being recommended twice in one day for the Victoria Cross at the age of twenty-one. It is obvious that his book of memoirs is going to be full of interest.

The hero in question, General Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien, has just published his reminiscences under the title of "Memories of Forty-Eight Years' Service," and he has many good stories to tell. One of them concerns the Suakin expedition in Egypt, in which the author managed to find himself appointed to a "front-line" job.

During part of the action he went to visit a fort which was very much overlooked by a rock held by the enemy, from which they used to snipe all day.

On the banks of the river outside the fort some enterprising Greek traders had established a store, out of direct view of the enemy, but covered from their fire. One day the author paid them a visit to obtain a few odds and ends, and amongst other things asked for a pot of jam.

Just as the man was in the act of taking the pot he had selected off the shelf, a bullet smashed it, and without turning a hair, the trader put it on one side, merely muttering "Damaged," and gave him another.

Sir Horace was in India when King George and Queen Mary, then the Prince and Princess of Wales, visited the country in 1906. Their Royal Highnesses went everywhere, and for one expedition it was necessary to choose a horse for the Prince to ride. The author pointed out his wife's favorite hunter, Muskerry, as being the most reliable horse for the purpose. But even as he did so it gave two or three light-hearted bucks, causing the officer in charge of the arrangements to place a veto on its being allotted for the use of the Prince.

The only alternative was a mule who had never been known to forget himself. The mule was chosen.

Then, to everybody's horror, directly the Prince mounted, this usually docile creature put its head between its forelegs and indulged in bucks and kicks to which Muskerry's had been child's play.

The Prince, however, was quite unconcerned by this show of good spirits, and the mule's activities made no impression on his seat. He simply waited until the animal had finished enjoying himself, and then rode quietly off.

Here is an amusing incident that occurred in the Zulu War. A certain battalion had looted a barrel of rum during their advance and buried it intending to have a "jolly" on their return. They made great friends with another regiment and told them where the rum could be found. Consequently, when the other regiment happened to be returning that way, several men were found to be absent at evening roll-call and the orderly corporal was sent to look for them. They had been drinking the rum.

One Dandy Deed Deserves A Duplicate.

By CY HUNGERFORD

As he did not return, another N.C.O. was sent. This man came racing back to say that just outside the camp he had found an empty rum barrel, with the orderly sergeant lying alongside it, surrounded by twenty-six other thirsty lads would die. Luckily, however, all lives were saved, the doctors were hurried out, and operations were expressed that some of them were not satisfied with the enquiry and that which resulted in the being assigned to work later.

Circumstances of Girl's Death a Mystery

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 13.—(By Canadian Press) Sensation has followed the announcement in what has gained prominence as the "Janet Smith case," and there is every indication that further startling developments will follow the laying of a charge of murder against Wong Foon Sing, Chinese servant in the household of F. L. Baker, Vancouver broker, more than nine months after the girl's dead body was found in the basement laundry of the Shaughnessy Heights home.

Janet Smith, a pretty little Scottish girl, was engaged by Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Baker in London, during a visit of the Vancouver couple to Europe in 1922, as a nursemaid. She was of a particularly happy disposition, so much so that she was called the "Scottish nightingale" by those who heard her constantly singing as she went about her work.

F. L. Baker lived in the West End of Vancouver, while a brother, R. P. Baker had a home on Shaughnessy Heights. Early in 1924 R. P. Baker and his wife went to Europe, and during their absence the residence at 3851 Oler avenue was occupied by F. L. Baker and family.

Wong Foon Sing, the Chinese cook and houseboy, was kept on by F. L. Baker.

Shortly after noon on Saturday, July 26, 1924, the police of Point Grey, the municipality in which Shaughnessy Heights is situated, received a call from the Oler avenue house.

James Green, acting desk sergeant, went to the place where he found Janet Smith stretched on the concrete floor of the basement laundry with a great gaping bullet wound in her head. Dr. Blackwood, the municipal police surgeon, attended a few moments later and declared life extinct. Green telephoned to Coroner W. D. Brydon-Jack, announcing the death, and returned to the police station when a constable arrived to relieve him.

Green informed Chief of Police Simpson of Point Grey, that, in his opinion, the cause was one of suicide, and the police acted upon this assumption.

Now happened a circumstance that has caused a great deal of wonderment. The body was removed from the house to an undertaking parlor, and before an inquest could be arranged, the body was embalmed, and the possibility of considerable valuable post-mortem data being secured.

The coroner's enquiry was held on the following Monday. Wong Foon Sing told the court that he came into the basement and found the girl in the position seen by the police. Later he admitted that he attempted to lift her head, and in so doing had stained his house apron with blood. Beside the girl's body was an army automatic pistol, torn from the socket, was beside the body, which showed ugly scars behind the right shoulder.

The inquest was of a more or less perfunctory character, and a verdict of accidental death was returned, it being suggested to the court that the girl was, in all probability, playing with the pistol and shot herself.

The Council of Scottish Societies, and the Vancouver Press and public were not satisfied with the result of the enquiry and started an agitation which resulted in the provincial police being assigned to the case three weeks later.

Investigation by Inspector Forbes (Crestbank) and his detectives resulted in the discovery of some startling facts that had not been brought out in evidence at the first enquiry. There was no bullet mark to show where the 45 calibre ball would have struck the wall, for examination of a spot indicated as having been caused by the bullet after passing through the girl's head was disproved. A mark to show on the cement floor, however, which detectives argued was there like a bullet abrasion.

One of the most peculiar pieces of evidence adduced, however, was that of a deep burning, scaldingly from the scorching iron which was found behind the door, had occurred on the back of her shoulder, the clothing was not even scorched, while her corsets partially covered the burned area.

Attorney-General A. M. Manson ordered the body exhumed and a second inquest to be held, when it was shown in evidence that it would have been impossible, owing to the length of the pistol, for the girl to have held it in her own hands and to have fired the shot without pressing the nose of the weapon against her forehead—and there was no evidence of burning about the wound. Firearm experts declared the pistol must have been held at a distance greater than eight inches from the head.

Wong Foon Sing was a witness again, and despite the closest possible cross-examination, did not waver in the slightest from the story he told at the first enquiry. He admitted that he knew the revolver, which was one Mr. Baker had used in the War. He had removed it, several weeks before, from a knapsack in the front hall, to the attic. He did not—and no other witness suggested that Janet Smith even knew where the firearm was kept.

Evidence of workmen on an adjacent building was to the effect that Janet Smith had appeared on the fatal day singing for a moment at one of the windows, and they paused in their work to listen to her song. This would be about an hour before she died. After thoroughly probing the whole case the jury returned a verdict of murder.

Attorney-General Manson appointed M. B. Jackson, a Victoria lawyer, special investigator, and he continued the probe since that time. The Scottish Societies also persisted in an independent enquiry, and offered a reward for the discovery of the perpetrators of the crime.

Ugly rumors followed one another, and wild stories were current on every hand. The public was about to forget the case, when, on March 20 last, Wong Foon Sing suddenly and mysteriously disappeared, evidence tending to show that he had been kidnapped from the Oler Avenue house.

Nothing of a definite character was heard until a month later a weekly publication announced that he was being held in captivity and an effort was being made to extract a different story from him. A public appeal was made for funds to maintain his guards.

Police became busy and search was renewed for the missing Chinaman. The Chinese Consulate posted a reward of $500 for his return, and private and city detectives were employed to search for him.

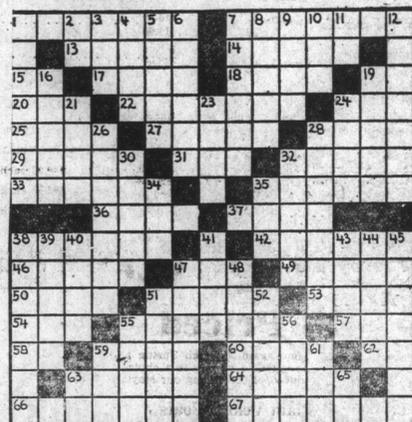

Early on the morning of May 1, the Point Grey police were informed by a passing motorist and also by telephone that a man was acting strangely on Marine Drive. On responding to the call they found Wong Foon Sing, blindfolded and groping his way along the road. He was immediately arrested on a warrant charging him with the murder of Janet Smith, the information being sworn to by Walter Owen, Assistant Superintendent of Provincial Police, ten days before.

The Chinaman told a story of having been held in captivity since the night he was spirited away from the Shaughnessy Heights home. Under constant guard, he claimed he was continuously abused and subjected to third degree methods. His sudden re-appearance and strange story aroused public indignation, and there are those who believe that his incarceration could hardly have been unknown to police officials.

Vital Facts for Women

Sooner or later almost every woman is brought face to face with the fact that she is a victim of some weakness or ailment peculiar to her sex. It may be the young woman suffering from pain or irregularities, a mother who has brought on some weakness or displacement from overwork, or the middle aged woman passing through the most critical period of her life. For each of these trying periods Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved the greatest boon ever given to women, and there are women living in every town and city in the country who testify to its value.

Sliced oranges and strawberries make a delightful salad. Season with lemon juice.

Very often the success of a salad depends upon the grade of oil and ginger used.

Fill sweet wafers with sliced crystallized fruit moistened with whipped cream.

The same sauce that you use for a Spanish omelet is good served with a broiled steak.

Sugar is Real Food

and is necessary alike for young and old.

Hence good Candy in reasonable quantities is beneficial for your children.

It is the sugar in candy which gives it food value, not the sometimes injurious dye used for colouring, nor the sometimes harmful synthetic flavouring.

Therefore you should take care to give only pure sugar candy to your children. It's important.

Lantic Lump Sugar

which your grocer sells in 2 pound, sealed dust proof, germ proof, packages, possesses ALL the good qualities of pure candy, because it is pure wholesome cane sugar.

Your children will like Lantic Lumps and it will satisfy their natural desire for sweets.

In addition to being all that good candy can be, LANTIC LUMP SUGAR is most inexpensive and comes direct from the Refinery to your home free from contamination with anything injurious to health.

From a Sailors Log Book

WAR-TIME TALES OF TOMMIES AND OTHERS.

There was once a Canadian contractor who at the beginning of the war undertook to build a big military camp.

The Canadian General, Sir Sam Hughes, who was a friend of the contractor's, thought that the latter ought to have military rank conferred on him so that he could carry out his duties properly. Consequently he made him a Captain.

Later, when Sir Sam was inspecting the camp during the process of building, he met his friend attired in a Colonel's uniform, and asked him how he had got his promotion.

"Well, Sam," he explained, "it was the only suit I could find that would fit me, so I bought it."

Sir Sam confirmed his promotion on the spot!

Sir Bertram Hayes, who tells this story in his book, "Hull Down," recently retired from the command of the Majestic after a splendid career in the service of the White Star Line.

He has commanded transports in two wars and says that in the Boer War the Australian troops, when returning to their homes, were certainly the least amenable to discipline of any of the troops he carried.

They exercised their wit on him and also threw pieces of bread at him, which naturally annoyed the officer very much.

When they were travelling by train to the coast to embark for Australia, they kept firing at anything they saw moving along the line of railway. This naturally alarmed the blockhouses, till "one little railway staff officer," as they described him, stopped the train to lecture them.

They exercised their wit on him and also threw pieces of bread at him, which naturally annoyed the officer very much.

So he turned out the troops under his command, and at the point of the bayonet drove the Australians out of the trucks.

He kept them in a wire entanglement for twenty-four hours, then telegraphed to Lord Kitchener to know what he should do with them.

He was told to keep them on the field till the ship was ready to sail, and then send them straight down to her. This was done.

"He was a man!" the Australian who was telling the story concluded.

Sir Bertram tells another story of a British Tommy in hospital who, when the amateur lady nurses began to call on him, was asked by one of them if he wouldn't allow her to do something for him.

"Is there nothing I can do for you, my poor man?" said the lady.

"No, mum, thank you," said Tommy.

"Wouldn't you like me to wash your face for you?" she suggested.

"Well, mum," he said in a resigned voice, "if it will give you any pleasure you may, but you will be the fiftieth that's done it to-day."

The soldiers used to find it dull on board ship, but there were often two or three of them who would organize games and contests to keep the rest amused.

On one voyage Sir Bertram had two Tommies, nicknamed Fido and Dido, who kept things going by arranging, amongst other things, singing contests.

A barrel was put end up, and as soon as the crowd had settled down, Fido would address them: "Now, man, it isn't the man as sings the best that gets the prize, so you all 'ave a chance—two of you gits up on the barrel together and stands back to back with your arms locked, and you both burst forth into melody together—any song you like—and whoever's chorus is taken up most by the crowd wins the 'eat. Now who'll set an example to the rest and be the first to enter!"

Sometimes one contest would last two or three evenings, as there were always a large number of entries.

One evening the entertainment was varied—the top of the barrel gave way. But another was soon procured, and the contest went on till "lights out."

Those Men of Mars

SOME POINTS ABOUT OUR NEAREST PLANET.

Because Mars is our nearest neighbour among the planets, more has been written about it than any other star. Novelists have based upon it as the scene of wonderful romances. H. G. Wells, for instance, wrote a thrilling story of an invasion of the earth by the Martians.

Most people have it in their minds that Mars is inhabited by a race of super-civilized human beings; and there is constant talk of the possibility of signals being interchanged between ourselves and these supposed dwellers on the planet.

Let us glance for a moment at the facts of the case. Mars spins on its axis in twenty-four hours, and its axis is inclined like ours, only more so. We can see the snow at its poles and we know that it has an atmosphere of sorts. It has been proved, too, that there is a certain amount of moisture in this atmosphere.

So Mars has, like the earth, seasons, air, apparently vegetation of a kind, and at first sight seems to be suitable for habitation by creatures similar to ourselves. But let us go a step further.

Since the markings on Mars, the so-called canals, are always visible, we know that there are practically no clouds. Therefore the sun must blaze fiercely all day and every day, while every night there must certainly be bitter frost.

Again, there are no seas or lakes or rivers on Mars. If there is water at all, it is in the canals only, and modern astronomers are now saying that these "canals" are only great cracks or fissures in the dried-up surface of the planet.

There is no rain and no snow, except at the poles, and the air is so thin that even if it moves it can hardly be felt as wind. From any standpoint of view, the moon would be a more desirable place of residence than Mars.

If the truth is ever known, it is likely that Mars will be found to be as dead as the moon itself, and all the fancy we have woven around it entirely baseless.

Our London Letter

ELIGIBLE BACHELORS.

By SYLVIA MAYFAIR.

LONDON, May 7.—(Canadian Press)—Two famous hostesses, a "fashionable" London barrister and a young earl, (who thinks he is going to surprise everybody in a few days with a 'surprise' marriage that they know about already) were lingering over their lunch the other day, when talk turned on the young eligible bachelors in London this season.

Naturally, the question is a pressing one for the bachelors indirectly are responsible for a lot. There are at least a dozen Earls who owe their daily round of ease and luxury to the Harry Browns, the Corrigans and the Vanderbilts of the world.

So the four scribbled out a list on the tablecloth—a kind of "Who's Who" in the bachelor world. These were some:—

Sir Philip Sassoon: Income practically unlimited. Handsome; wonderful Park Lane house. Country home Lympe, Kent. Rides well, and dances better. Music, literature, art. But he is very difficult. Has stood onslaughts of four London seasons and no sign of giving in yet.
 Marquis of Douglas and Clydesdale: The 21-year-old son of the Duke of Hamilton, the premier peer of Scotland. Wealthy, handsome, and the best amateur boxer in the kingdom. Not seen much in the smart social round in London, though he lunches in town once a week with his mother. Can be lured by tennis, hunting or polo parties.

Lord Cardigan: 21; noble family whose forefathers fought at Hastings in 1066.

Earl of Penrhyn: Another very eligible young man.

Captain Alan Lascelles: His name is, of course, enough to make hostesses pause over it. Princess Mary's husband is his cousin, and Captain Lascelles is one of Wales' closest friends. Of course there are others. But bachelors are scarcer than they used to be. They either die young or marry early, and it makes the others very independent.

BEAUTY TORTURE.

Women love nothing so much as to undergo pain in the cause of beauty. The more Inquisition-like it is the better they like it. At the moment there are unmistakable signs that in the next few months the care are going to be displayed ever so much more prominently than hitherto. A frightening idea, because for the last three years hardly a woman has given a thought to her ears safely hidden away under cloche hats.

Some of the London beauty specialists have brought a kind of torture instrument that women will pay anything up to $100 for the privilege of using. It is a kind of vice which not only induces the ears to lie snugly against the head but tends to draw them slightly backward, which is said to be the desired effect of the new fashion. They spend two to four hours a day locked up in the ear vice. Fernandez, chief of a prominent beauty salon, who has been waging a campaign against these freak beauty tortures—such as sewing on new eyelids, and the like—has exhibited one of these vices in his Salon as a kind of deterrent to reckless beauty seekers. There are quite a number of young London girls who do not like being seen about with their mothers. The latter make them look so old.

QUEEN REVIVES LORNETTES.

The lorgnette, symbol of a stately age, is coming back into great favor again, not only by dowager duchesses but by the younger set. The Duchess of York who was dining with Prince George and Lady Louis Mountbatten one night recently, had a lorgnette with a long slide handle and made frequent use of it—not in the old way but with an effective little mannerism. Queen Mary has also been using one, a good deal lately, though this is said to be due to the fact that the Queen has been suffering a little from eyestrain, especially under the glaring Italian skies.

But if the lorgnette becomes as horn-rimmed spectacles, woman's most effective weapon will lose its sting. Not one man in a thousand can stand being looked at through a lorgnette, without betraying some delightful sign of embarrassment, and well women know it!

COLORED FEATHERS NOW.

There was a parade at a big hotel recently of some of the gowns that are going to be worn at this season's courts—on May 21 and 22, and June 21 and 22. Court dresses his year are more extravagant and colorful than they have even been. Miss Matilda Houston, the new American Ambassador's daughter, has chosen a wonderful gown of white brocade, with a girle of rosy pearls and a long trail of wisteria colored ostrich feathers. The latter, as a matter of fact, figure largely on this season's trappings, and a remarkable innovation is that the ostrich feathers, which are worn in the hair by Court debutante, are of pastel shades in many cases, whereas they have hitherto invariably been white. The vogue of colorful court dresses

No Playing Fields

It must always have been a source of acute annoyance to hear it said, as it so often is said, that the young people of to-day are more fond of looking on at games than of playing them. . . . Let anyone who believes that the look-on habit is always voluntary try the experiment of visiting all the playing pitches in or near any great town on the day that a league match is being played there. He will find every one of them occupied by teams which have been fortunate enough to secure the right to play, and to whom their own sport is immeasurably more interesting than any spectacle. The love of game is in the blood of all young England to-day, as it always was. It is not the least of the tragedies of the urbanisation of English life that the opportunities of gratifying that healthiest of instincts are denied to hundreds of thousands.

BALLOON TIRES.

Improvements every day we see, to better things the race aspires; pedestrians now view with glee the big, inflated, mushy tires. High pressure tires have had their day, they've done their work, they've played their games; I knew they were not here to stay—they were too hard on human frames. Pedestrians have certain rights; they're often highly moral wights, in whom no blenheim we detect. It isn't fair to run them down with tires pumped up to 85, when we are scorching through the town, rejoicing that we are alive. The old style tires cave in their slats, and rip their clothes and muss their hair, and offend them their Sunday hats are flattened out beyond repair. I've had small fivers, large sedans, and other cars run over me, and crawling from beneath these vans, I surely was a sight to see. The tires, as hard as iron wheels, reduced me to a ghastly wreck; they tore away my rubber heels and wound my coat tails round my neck. But now that tires are soft and fat, contrary to the ancient styles, pedestrians will come to bat, and take their medicine with smiles. It is no hardship to be downed by tires so sumptuous and fair, that only carry twenty pounds of costly, non-explosive air. I seem to see the victims rise, astonished and delighted men, and cry, with laughter in their eyes, "What fun! Please run us down again!" Thus things grow better day, the new is born, the old expires, and I am putting on my dray a set of fat and squashy tires.

Killed by His Own Invention

DENTIST'S FATAL GAS EXPERIMENT.

A verdict of Death by Misadventure was returned at an inquest on Walter John Moylan-Jones, a dental anaesthetist, who was found dead in his consulting-room at Welbeck Street, Marylebone, W., after experimenting with a gas apparatus.

The widow stated that some years ago her husband invented the Moylan apparatus for administering nitrous oxide as an anaesthetic. He had given demonstrations all over the country and was always trying to improve it.

Dr. Spurgin said that Mr. Moylan-Jones was found dead in a reclining position on an ottoman. Part of the apparatus was on the floor between his legs and his foot was resting on the spanner controlling one of the gas cylinders. Death was due to coma following nitrous oxide gas poisoning.

Cylinders in the room were empty of nitrous oxide gas, the stop-cocks being open. Two cylinders had contained 200 gallons each, and two smaller ones 100 gallons.

The coroner said he was satisfied Mr. Moylan-Jones met his death while experimenting.

Woman Golfer Suspended

PENALTY FOR INCORRECT MARKING.

At a meeting of the Ladies' Golf Union following the draw for the championship, consideration was given to the case of a player who had been disqualified at an open meeting of the Dorset Golf Club, Bournemouth, last October, for returning a card alleged to have been incorrectly marked. After hearing legal arguments, the union decided that the competitor had been properly disqualified, and should be suspended for three years. This is the first time that suspension has been prescribed as a punishment for an offence in golf.

The Will

There comes a time in the life of every man when he must leave his worldly possessions to the care of another. In anticipation of this, therefore, the first obligation resting on an individual who is possessed of property is the making of a will, and this should be done before the capacities become impaired by time or the ravages of disease.

Tragedy in the Coalfields

(By ROBERT SMILLIE, M.P.)
(Answers.)

In an article which I wrote for Answers a week or two ago I tried to review, as dispassionately and accurately as possible, the present very serious position of the coal industry of the country. I admitted, I had to admit, that things had seldom been worse in the long history of the British coalfields, but I denied that the miners were always to blame for the excessively high prices of coal to-day. Let me repeat that many causes have operated to raise the price of coal, but I should say that the principal causes are high cost of transport and the handling of the material by too many middlemen.

To-day I want to turn to another aspect of the mining industry as it comes home with awful force, from time to time, to the men and women and children who are dependent upon the mines of the country for the wherewithal to exist. I mean the continual and unending fight with death and disaster which is the lot of the miner, no matter where he is employed. Some districts are more dangerous than others, but not even the greatest mining expert can say definitely that this particular mine or the other is absolutely safe. Accidents happen in the twinkling of an eye. An explosion is the work of seconds; the tap of a "pick" may release an underground reservoir of water and trap a dreadful death a hundred men. The country has not yet forgotten the recent awful happenings at Scotswood Pit, Newcastle. Here the mine was suddenly flooded by an inrush of water from disused workings, and before the poor fellows working in certain sections had time to get clear, the relentless water had claimed them as victims. Can you picture their end, and refrain from letting the tears well in your eyes? I cannot. And I believe that ordinary men and women everywhere feel the utmost compassion for all the victims of our colliers' disasters. The trouble is that they do not know, and can never realize, the conditions under which coal is won from the earth. I have said that there is blood upon every ton of coal brought up to the surface. Is this mere rhetoric, as they call it, or do facts justify the statement?

Would you, my dear reader, be astonished to learn that during the seventy to eighty years before the Great War the loss of life and limb in British mines was far greater than the numbers of men killed and wounded in all our battles on land and sea during the same period? The facts and figures have been worked out by experts, and are incontrovertible. Yet the slaughter goes on. Almost every day, somewhere in the mining districts of our land, the ambulance wagon goes swiftly past the wee hedges to the pit-head.

The wives and the children and the men off-duty see it pass. They watch it with solemn set faces. For they never know when it may bring a stricken figure to their own door, or to the infirmary, or the mortuary. These are the "little things," the individual accidents and fatalities that are occurring all the time. The outside world hears nothing of them. When the great disasters take place the whole world hears of them. Right from the Throne downwards every evidence of heartfelt sympathy is called forth. But I always think that one single chair rendered vacant by a mining accident brings just as much suffering and misery into that one home as is carried into each individual home by a big disaster.

Knowing all this, having lived amongst it all for almost fifty years, having sons of my own who are going down the mine every day, can you wonder, if my blood boils when I am told in the House of Commons that we "are simply demonstrating to make a show before our supporters"? The Secretary for Mines used these words, or something like them, a few days ago, and he should be heartily ashamed of himself for the lack of knowledge—and the lack of human sympathy—which inspired them. The miners' members in the House of Commons have other things to think of than mere "demonstrations"; they have a real, vital concern in the happiness and welfare of their hard-worked, underpaid comrades in the coal-fields of the country.

The question of accidents in mines, and what ought to be done to avoid them, has not received the close attention it deserves. It is impossible, of course, to quote figures or give actual instances, but I make bold to state that many of the disasters have befallen our "black" communities could have been avoided. The men's representatives and the men themselves have repeatedly called attention to the unsafe condition of different mines throughout the country. It is public property in the colliery villages and towns when the conditions of a mine or a district become unsafe. But there is no law, so far, which can prevent the owners continuing to work those mines. This means that we have men in different parts of the country going down mines every day where they know that they are liable to accident and death at any moment from causes which are known to exist. Is this "right"? Should this be tolerated in a Christian civilisation?

After the Redding disaster the Mines Department tried to act in the direction in which some of us had been working, and endeavoured to prevail upon several owners jointly to take action with the object of improving a water-logged area, and so render the mines there more safe for the workers. But no agreement could be come to, and indeed some mines have been closed, and men thrown out of employment.

Much of the "water" trouble is caused by old disused mines in the neighbourhood. The "workings" of these mines, or the plans of them, ought to be known to the owners of all the surrounding mines, and not only to the owners but to the Mines Department. How many accidents would have been averted had some sort of record of old mines been kept? It is impossible to say, but I feel assured that the number is greater than even the old and experienced ones among our fraternity imagine.

In the Redding disaster we found that the water came from a water-logged district that had been worked out many years ago. In this case the colliery company who owned the mine had not the old plans in their possession and were not aware that these existed. It was afterwards discovered that there were plans of the old workings, but they were in the office of the Duke of Hamilton, the private owner, and they had been there for some sixty or eighty years. They had to be sent for there before the inspector could be made acquainted with any of the old workings! I repeat that the Mines Department ought to have all the plans that it is possible to get, because that is the place where the technical knowledge is required.

I am sorry to say that for the last hundred years every piece of mining legislation intended for the safety of life has been opposed by the colliery owners. In France the miners can appoint two inspectors from their own ranks, and they devote their whole time to the work in addition to the Government mine inspectors. They are workmen's inspectors and men with an actual knowledge of mining. The workmen appoint these inspectors, and they are responsible to the State and paid by the State, but the colliery owners are called upon to contribute to their wages. I have been told by the French miners' leaders that this system has had an amazing effect in reducing the accident rate in French mines.

Surely we should not be behind any other country in Europe in this matter. We have probably the most skilled mining engineers to be found anywhere. Unfortunately, again, one is sorry to say that it is not always the most highly skilled and earnest mining engineer manager who has sole charge of the mine. Too often he is only the scapegoat to bear the responsibility when anything goes wrong. Frequently there is an agent placed above him, and the manager is not always free to carry out the many improvements he would like to see effected.

I do not know whether the Secretary for Mines has ever thought this question out. May I earnestly point out to him that we are not "demonstrating," but pleading for the lives and limbs of our people. We believe that without any very large increase or addition to the cost of coal, the lives of a large number of our miners could be saved.

As Australia Sees Singapore

Millions of tons of British shipping are adrift any given moment within striking radius from Singapore, and this is one reason why some Australian editors argue that the project for a naval base there is not merely one for the benefit of the Dominions. Quite apart from the Dominions, it is pointed out, Britain has other extensive colonial interests in the Pacific and the East. The Sydney Morning Herald contends that the Singapore base is part and parcel of a general scheme for the defence of the Empire in which the various Dominions will join according to their needs and means. The first fruits of Australia's co-operation it appears, will be the addition to her "obsolescent fleet" of two 10,000 ton cruisers, two new submarines and a modern sea-plane carrier. The decision to have the cruisers built in Britain, it is conceded, will provoke criticism, yet "a little reflection will show it to be the most judicious one in the circumstances." This daily is irritated at the effort, as it describes it, of some people in England to "entangle the White Australia policy with the Singapore base." Especially is it annoyed by the references of former Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald to the White Australia policy in the House debate on Singapore.

"He said in so many words that if we persisted in our refusal to allow that this is a subject of which an external authority can take cognizance was inevitable. It might have been more discreet to keep this possibility in the background, and, in any case, the solution propounded by Mr. MacDonald was not very promising." We should submit the question to the League of Nations: The International Court of Justice would assuredly declare that the control of migration is a matter of domestic jurisdiction, and 'the first ground of battle would be settled legally not militarily.' But would not the mere fact of submission create an atmosphere of controversy and discussion which would hardly be calculated to promote international good feeling? Moreover, what guaranty have we that the Court would deliver the verdict which Mr. MacDonald seems to take for granted? Has it announced beforehand what its decision would be? That is not the custom of responsible tribunals. And if, as Mr. MacDonald seems to assume, the principle that a nation has the right to control the elements of its own population is to be regarded as already established, why invite a Court to pass judgment?"

Westclox

Help the cook

IN many homes, you'll find a Westclox in the kitchen. There it stands guard, telling the cook the correct time and helping her live up to her schedule. It's often set to time the cooking and baking or start the meals. A Westclox is always faithful to its trust.—It runs on time, rings on time and lasts a long time. Good cooks depend on Westclox.

BEAUTY

I have found beauty in a lake of pearl,
 A winter scene, with spruce trees
 edged with snow,
 A ridge of mountains where the laurels grow,
 A block of lilies where the waters
 swirl,
 A sunset, and a sunrise, and a curl
 Upon the brow of one with youth aglow,
 But nothing lovelier upon this earth
 I know
 Than is the glad smile of a little girl,
 A little girl whose years are scarcely three,
 Laughing and tripping lightly into day,
 Untouched as yet by fears of what may be Believing life all good and meant for play,
 In such a face, and in such radiant eyes,
 God's loveliest gift of earthly beauty lies.

That Great Bear

ABOUT THE GROUP OF STARS WE KNOW SO WELL.

Why is the group of seven stars in the sky known as The Great Bear?
 Perhaps one of the least known and most interesting legends is that this constellation represented a princess who had been transformed into a bear on account of her pride in rejecting all suitors. For this, her skin was nailed to the sky as a warning to all proud maidens.

A modern Grecian legend relates that originally the sky was made of this glass, which touched the earth.
 Upon this was nailed the skin of a bear.
 Miss Mary Proctor, F.R.A.S., F.R.
 Met.S., in her book, "Evenings With The Stars," tells some amusing facts about the Great Bear.

Each of the seven stars in the group is a mighty sun. The air is a mixture of iron-steam, zinc-steam, and many other such fiery vapours. The clouds which form are metallic drops and the rains which fall, molten metal.

Moreover, these stars are urging their way through space at the rate of seventeen miles a second. But while five of them are drifting in one direction, two are drifting in the opposite, with the result that many years hence the outline of the group will no longer be recognizable as the Great Bear so familiar to us all now.

Welsh Cheese Cakes

These are useful either as a sweet for dinner or as afternoon tea cakes.

Ingredients—1 egg, the weight of the egg in sugar and butter, 15 drops of vanilla essence, about a tablespoonful of jam; the weight of the egg in flour, ½ of a teaspoonful of baking powder, ½ lb. of short crust pastry.

Method—Beat the butter and sugar to a cream, add the egg and beat it in well, add the vanilla essence, sieve the flour, baking powder, and a pinch of salt, and stir them lightly into the butter mixture. Roll out the pastry thinly, cut it into rounds slightly larger than the patty pans, and line the patty pans with it. Put a little jam at the bottom of each, and three parts all them with the butter mixture. Bake at once in a moderate oven for about 20 minutes. Remove them from the patty pans, sift caster sugar over, and dish on a rice paper on an suitable dish. Eat hot or cold.

Cleaning glassware, silverware and everything around the house is a pleasure when you use Pearline.

Anglo-French Amity

MR. A. CHAMBERLAIN ON A WORLD-PEACE BASIS.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain, the Foreign Secretary, and the French Ambassador were the chief guests at a banquet given at the Princes Galleries, Piccadilly, W., by the United Association of Great Britain and France.
 Reply to a toast, Mr. A. Chamberlain said, referring to Anglo-French friendship:

If it be firm, if our understanding be complete, what have we to fear from anyone else?

If we are strong in our mutual understanding and in a common agreement, we can afford to dismiss the suspicions of the past, to look not to the tragic events of years that have just passed over our heads, not to recall all the bitterness and the troubles of those times, but to try to found upon our friendship security for Europe and peace for the world which may in time make us forget the wounds of yesterday and co-operate to repair the ravages that war has made.

It is in that spirit, I think his Excellency will allow me to say, that he and I conduct our conversations, and that his Government and mine direct their policy.

I am hopeful that, not without many difficulties which we have lived to overcome, not without something happening, probably, which all of us would have wished to avoid, we shall found upon the Anglo-French Entente Cordiale the basis of a real world peace that enables us to forget our fears of to-day and to turn our thoughts to the future of our countries and our races.

Municipal Council WEEKLY MEETING.

The weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presided and Councillors Martin, Outerbridge, Collier, Ryan and Dowden were present. After the usual preliminaries, the following matters received attention: The Deputy Minister of Public Works asked for the use of the steam roller for a short time in leveling the road to the Normal School. Request will be acceded to.

Mr. J. G. Muir, Secretary of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, asked information as to the drinking fountain formerly on Custom House Hill, and whether or not it was now available and could be erected in another section of this neighbourhood. In reply he is informed the fountain in question is at the present time in use in the East End of the city, opposite the premises of H. J. Stabb & Company.

Mr. W. J. Woodford complained of the condition of Convent Square, brought about by persons washing their wagons at the tank, corner of Hamilton Street, with the result that the street is continually flooded. The Engineer was asked to visit the place and take measures to prevent a repetition of this annoyance.

A lengthy communication was tabled from J. W. Morris, Supt. of the Nfld. Light & Power Co. in reply to the Council's enquiry re the recent fire at the City Club building, the cause of which was attributed to defective wiring.

DEFECTIVE WIRING.

Mr. Morris pointed out that in such cases where fires cannot be directly traced to a definite cause, there is always the old come-back "Defective Wiring," and that this seems to be a satisfactory explanation. He considered that under the circumstances when matters of this kind are given such publicity, it is only fair they should be properly investigated before any pronouncement is made which otherwise may be to a great extent incorrect. He suggested that persons engaged in work of wiring buildings should register at the Office of the City Clerk, and forward a copy of the code of rules which would necessitate such persons passing an examination before being given permits to carry on same. Mr. Morris' communication was most interesting, containing many useful suggestions which, as he is perhaps the best authority on electricity in the country, are thought well worthy of consideration by the Council, and are to be forwarded to the Board of Fire Underwriters and Inspector General, who are to be asked for opinions on the subject of appointment of an Inspector of Electrical Wiring.

OPENING OF STREETS.

Following the decision of the Council issuing permits for opening streets for repairing of gas mains, Mr. Renne, Director of the St. John's Gas-light Company, stated that perhaps the report of the City Engineer as to the work done by their Company was a little more severe than actual circumstances warranted. The Company have always done their best to carry out the directions of the Council or its Engineer, and while there may be one or two places needing attention on Water Street arrangements were being made to have repairs effected. He, as Director, would be only too glad if the Council or Engineer would acquaint him of any openings which they considered improperly replaced, and will see that they are remedied at the earliest opportunity. This explanation was most satisfactory, and the City Engineer was instructed to forward the necessary facts to the Secretary, who will communicate them to Mr. Renne.

The applications of T. E. Hollett, 124 New Gower Street, and T. G. Cooper, 122 Military Road, to install electric motors for purposes of manufacturing ice-cream were granted subject to the approval of the City Engineer.

George Knowling, Ltd., asked that the retaining wall, rear of Duckworth Street premises, be repaired. This was referred to the Engineer, as also the complaint of H. Morgan re grating near his dwelling, Cabot Street.

BREAKING STREET LIGHTS.

The Superintendent of the Newfoundland Light & Power Company called attention to the light at Shean Shute, which has been broken on several occasions during the past month. It is a well known fact that when lights are out, whatever the circumstances may be, citizens are usually loud in their complaints as to the negligence of the Council or the Lighting Company, but in the above case it is quite evident that the lamps were deliberately destroyed by some persons unknown, and the Council is determined to locate the guilty parties. With this end in view, the Inspector General is to be communicated with. With regard to the recent correspondence and many complaints made by residents of Maxse Street of the unsanitary condition of a stable in the locality, the Medical Officer of Health informed the Board that the owners of this stable had undertaken to lay concrete floors and make necessary connections with City water and sewer mains as soon as possible. This will relieve the cause of the trouble.

MONGRELS AT LARGE.

Mr. Leonard Earle presented a claim for $80.00, stating that during the past week he had suffered the loss of some very valuable poultry (turkeys) which were killed by mongrels. The Council has of late engaged the services of the S.P.C.A. Inspector to destroy unlicensed dogs found at large throughout the city. In this case, the impounder will, if possible, locate the owner of the dogs and will have the animals killed, as it must be considered that licensed or unlicensed they are certainly unfit to be at large. Mr. Earle's claim was referred to the City Solicitor for his opinion as to the position of the Council.

PLANS.

The following plans were followed, on the recommendation of the City Engineer:—
Dwellings—A. J. Donnelly, McKay Street; Mrs. Kelly, Carter's Hill.
Garage—H. J. Pope, Mundy Pond Road, provided ventilator is installed.
Extensions—M. O'Reilly, Barnes Road; F. M. Ewing, Parade Street.
Coach-House—P. H. Tucker, subject to the approval of the Engineer and conditional upon the building being used only for the purpose mentioned.
Permits to erect dwellings were refused Captain George Anstey, Cockpit Road; and Henry Moss, Merry-meeting Road, there being no water or sewerage available in the localities.

NUMBERING OF HOUSES.

The City Engineer submitted his usual weekly report. He stated that George's Pond had been scoured out and new screens erected. He also recommended the re-numbering of the western section of the city. It was agreed to have new streets in this section only re-numbered, or such streets where new houses have been erected. It was also decided that Theatre Hill, which has been known for the past twenty or twenty-five years as "Gower Street," be named "Queen's Road," and that the numbering, which was partly done, be completed.

Owing to the many complaints received of late re the necessity of improving sidewalks on LeMarchant Pk., a Committee of Council will visit the place to-morrow afternoon and see what can be done.

IMPROVING THE PARK.

The Bannerman Park Committee reported that as ordered by the Council they had visited the Park during the week, and now recommended that the Band Stand, Lavatories, etc., be repaired and painted, so as to put them in a presentable condition. They also pointed out the advisability of erecting a fence between the Colonial Building grounds and the Park. On this matter the City Clerk informed the Council that acting upon instructions he had on several occasions written the Department of Public Works, in fact every official whom he thought would be responsible. At the present time the gates leading to the Parliament Building are open, with the result that stray cattle find their way into the Park grounds, doing considerable damage to the flower beds, etc. Last week he had taken up the matter with the Minister of Public Works, and nothing can be done until his reply is forthcoming.

BLAMES THE PUBLIC.

The Sanitary Supervisor, in submitting his weekly report, mentioned the untidy condition of City Streets and stated that this was brought about by householders and shopkeepers, especially, who, after the carts had made their daily rounds, deliberately swept old papers, etc., into the streets. This was noticeable on many prominent thoroughfares, and in order to satisfy the many complaints it would be necessary to keep a man constantly employed for the express purpose of collecting papers. Citizens are reminded that refuse of this kind should be burned, and it is not part of the duty of the Sanitary Department employees to fill their carts with same, when it can be otherwise disposed of.

MATTER OF SPRINKLING.

He also reported that the two motor sprinklers had on Wednesday last covered thirty miles of streets and disposed on some 80,000 gallons water. In addition to the motor sprinklers, some 12,000 gallons were used by the horse drawn carts. Despite this fact, many complaints were received at the Council office. In all cases it must be taken into consideration that there are some 55 miles of streets to be covered in the city of St. John's and that all these streets cannot receive the attention which the Council would like to give. Criticism had been heaped upon the service from all quarters, but the complainants who give expression to same and who rush their complaints into print can hardly be aware of the limited means at the disposal of the Department.

THE QUESTION OF FINANCE.

Certain amounts are allocated annually for various Departments, and the present Board has used its best endeavours to keep within their estimates for the past three years in office, and liquidated the deficit of $50,000 of its predecessors. Last year, however, through unforeseen contingencies, a deficit of some $8,000 had to be met. Every effort is being made to make both ends meet before the term of office expires.
A discussion arose re the recent conference between the Prime Minister with other members of the Executive, and the Council, and the City Clerk was asked if as yet any reply from the Prime Minister as to what action was taken by the Government or whether or not the demands made by the Council were acceded to, namely: Increased Road Grants for the City with its population of 40,000; contribution towards upkeep of Bowring Park—the best known beauty spot in the Island and a great attraction to visitors to our shores which is at present greatly used as an advertisement for tourist traffic. This Park must not be considered as only for the citizens of St. John's. It is a national asset, and being a national asset it is the duty of the Government to at least assist in its maintenance. The Council is awaiting with interest the Prime Minister's report to the communication sent him by the City Clerk, during the past week.
The Medical Officer of Health reported two cases of Scarlet Fever in the city during the week.
Reports of various departmental heads were tabled and requisitions granted.
With the passing of weekly accounts the meeting adjourned.

BOWRING BROTHERS, LTD.

Iodine and Health

The last achievement of physiology in the nineteenth century was the capillary discovery of the part played by the ductless or "endocrine" glands in our bodily and mental life. Of these the thyroid gland, often too obvious in the neck to the most important—"the leader of the endocrine orchestra"—is the most important. Gradually we learn about the functions of the others, remote from the pituitary, at the base of the brain, and the supra-renals, but for thousands of years mankind has been deplorably ignorant with those enlargements of the thyroid which we call goitre. The gland to apply, and it may interfere with breathing; but nowadays we have our knowledge to warn us that the consequences are not merely local, when the gland is enlarged, and it is an important fact in such and such a place, evidence is soon forthcoming to show that goitre is abundantly there also. Modern feminine fashion, whilst health and the sanity of future generations. The thyroid is a chemical factory, of limitless power, whose cells construct a product essential for the life and health of the individual and the race. The growth of the body and the powers of the mind depend upon it. When it fails, in a future mother, her child may be a cretin, painful to look at, dwarfed, unteachable. And these brief sentences merely indicate the beginnings of our ever growing knowledge of the functions of this gland, amongst which an antitoxic action against infectious disease must now be also included. Failure on the part of this gland must evidently be a formidable fact—and now we learn that it is extremely frequent, in greater or less degree, throughout the world, and notably in, for instance, Switzerland and Derbyshire, and the Himalayas and the Middle West of the United States. But the more one travels and observes, the more goitre one finds and if the suggestion be made that it is an unimportant fact in such and such a place, evidence is soon forthcoming to show that goitre is abundantly there also. Modern feminine fashion, whilst doubtless good for the thyroid, in permitting sunlight to reach the neck, also reveals the frequency of thyroid disorder. The history of mankind's attempts to deal with goitre is easily narrated, and most eloquent. Before our era, the Greek physicians treated it by burning sea-sponges and administering the ashes to the patient—with frequent success. It sounds like empiricism; but it worked, and now we know why. A century ago, the scientific Western medicine of the time no longer employed the ashes of a marine vegetable, but held in the highest respect the chemical element called iodine—which we can readily show to have been the most characteristic and significant constituent of those potent ashes. Before me, thanks to an observant reader of a paper written on this subject last year, is a copy, formerly belonging to the library of the London Institution, of a slender treatise upon the use of iodine in goitre, showing how absolutely the empirical facts were known a century ago. Would that I had room here to quote from this most interesting document. Yet, until the other day, we of the present century had forgotten iodine in its most valuable uses, and thought of it as merely an excellent local antiseptic or agent for local "painting" over some local inflammation. So far as my reading goes, I can only surmise that the change in medical fashion, leading to the loss of a priceless therapeutic, must have been partly to its abuse, including the employment of unsuitable and impure preparations; vastly different from the many elegant and innocent preparations available to-day; and partly to the new powers conferred upon surgery by anaesthesia and antiseptics. The folly and the malign power of fashion, nowhere more evident than in the history of medicine, are signal here when we recall that thirty years have elapsed since the chemists proved that iodine is the most abundant and characteristic constituent of the "internal secretion" by which the thyroid does its creative and protective work for our lives. Yet not until 1917 was so obvious and hopeful a clue followed, and not even to-day have we acted upon it in this country in any adequate fashion, though the American and Swiss pioneers are already being seconded vigorously in certain of our Dominions, such as Canada and New Zealand.

What is the clue? Surely that the failure, the exhaustion, the futile and degenerative enlargement of the thyroid may be dependent upon lack of iodine and may be prevented by its supply. Such is the case, now demonstrated in Switzerland, where I studied it last August, on a nation-wide scale. Chemical inquiry proves that, under the ordinary conditions of our modern lives, we are iodine-starved, largely owing to our misplaced and stupid cleverness, just as we are starved by the same cause. We might obtain traces of iodine in fresh, uncooked green leaves, and in the entire grain of wheat, and from one or two other sources, but we go to vast pains to insure that we shall not do so. And, even without such special devices to ensure the development of a "deficiency disease," we must go short for the reason that nowadays we live upon the dry land, often far from the sea, which is the world-reservoir of iodine, and into which the rain and the streams are ever washing iodine salts out of the soil where once they were left, by the seas of remote ages. This glorious adventure of living upon the land is the condition of our greatness; but the chemical requirements established long ago, when our ancestors lived in the sea, remain; and the need for iodine is amongst the foremost of them.

Should we then admit the error of those pioneers, in our less remote history, who left the sea and took to the land, substituting lungs for gills; and should we abandon the too difficult task of making good in the new environment? Or have we, thanks largely to this new environment, developed intelligence, whereby we can make a new world about us, fitted to our most ancient and our newest needs alike? Indeed we have, and it tells us to go to the sources of iodine, obtain it in suitable form, and restore to our depleted blood, whether by adding it to our drinking water, or our table salt, or our children's sweetmeats, or in volatile form to the air we breathe. Which is the best method we must ascertain, but the worst is infinitely better than none. The American and Swiss records show that very large numbers of existing goitres disappear, and that practically no new goitres appear, when iodine is restored to the bodily intake and the thyroid can work under fair conditions again. In parts of Switzerland, where the method has had time to act, no more cretins are now being born, thanks to the proper supply of iodine to expectant mothers. Children, perhaps, especially from six to sixteen, and girls even more than boys, expectant and nursing mothers, the already goitrous—these are the persons most urgently concerned; but new evidence is forthcoming from the Galton Laboratory in University College, thanks to Dr. Percy Stocks, which indicates a positive correlation between thyroid failure and the incidence of cancer, suggesting that the middle-aged may have their own personal reasons for concern. And there is cause to assert that, in many cases, we suffer from thyroid deficiency even when no goitre exists. Evidently the time is at hand when this new and simple discovery will rightly supersede that treatment of cretinism and other consequences of thyroid failure by administration of thyroid gland substance from sheep or ox, which was the last therapeutic triumph of the last century. The iodine chocolate preparation now officially used in Switzerland is very good. So are the best of the iodinated salts, of which so many have been put upon the market since I began to urge the importance of the foreign discoveries about a year ago, but I protest against the grossly excessive price of some, at least, of these. In America two cities now put the necessary iodine into the public water supply. The foregoing is evidently but an introduction of a fascinating theme, on which volumes might and certainly will be written, and of which none of us will ever hear the last. I used the word "simple" advisedly, for it is simple to add a trace of iodine, at infinitesimal cost, to our dietary, and thus abolish widespread disease wholesale, as is now being done; but, of course, there is no end to the complexity of the problems which arise, including, be it noted, one no less majestic than that involved in the seeming creation of intelligence by chemical means. It would be wrong to leave the impression that we are doing nothing in this country, though to a student who believes in the principle of solvitur ambulando the temptation is to throw up his hands and ask when we propose even to start in but a disease, the matter is being considered in official quarters, and I hope that an authoritative Committee may be formed to define the types of goitre, to prescribe the conditions for a proper survey, to discuss the modes of restoring iodine to our lives, to define the possible risks—always a darling theme for those who worry no whit about the evident present price of inaction against any evil—and, I hope, to indicate official action which shall lift our present fragmentary and incoherent practice of iodine hygiene out of the hands of pioneers and profiteers alike.—The Spectator.

The Super On An Antenna

EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

Sometimes it is desirable to operate a superheterodyne with an indoor or outdoor antenna. This should be necessary only when extreme distance is wanted. The super does not have the same selectivity when operated on an antenna as it does when a loop is used. If an antenna is used it is perfectly possible to use a picture-molding type which could consist of a single insulated wire strung on or behind the picture-molding around the room. Its length in no case should exceed 40 feet. A small coupler will be required to properly transfer the energy from the antenna to the super. Above we show a sketch of an antenna coupler for a super. The winding form can be cardboard or hard rubber and should be 3 inches in diameter. The primary, or antenna-ground, coil should consist of 15 turns of No. 22 D. C. magnet wire.

The Will to Win

METHOD IN BUSINESS THAT MEANS SUCCESS.

The keen competition for success these days makes it imperative for everyone to become a specialist in some kind of business, and wherever possible be able to do a certain thing a bit better than the other fellow.

You are, of course, out to win success, but don't feel discouraged because the speed at which you are travelling forward does not seem noticeable when compared with the rapid rate at which some of your friends are travelling. Being envious, too, will pull you back.

Worrying over the difficulties that come your way will never do. Study your difficulties, think round them and then climb over them. By building up your self-confidence, you will have no need for worrying. You may speak of your bad luck in the world, but most bad luck is only temporary. If you lose some money, don't bemoan your fate. Strive to make some more. If you lose a friend, show him what a mistake he is making. If you lose an opportunity, make sure of seizing the next.

How many men spend their time wishing they had this, that, and the other? They spend so much time in "wishing" that they never do any "willing."

Not "I wish," but "I will," and in that you have the difference between the man who stands still and the man who goes forward.

Keep on wishing and you will develop nothing more than a wishbone. Keep on trying and you will develop a backbone!

Ballasting Trepassey Branch Railway

During the past few days a gang of men have been engaged ballasting the Trepassey Branch Railway in the vicinity of Bay Bulls. An enormous quantity of sand will be brought to the city from Trepassey during the next few months, and it has been found necessary to prepare for the heavy traffic and make the road as solid as possible. At Trepassey the siding is being extended to the beach; a distance of a quarter of a mile, in order to facilitate the procuring of sand for the W. I. Bishop Co., for construction of the Dry Dock. Three steam shovels will be used in the work. It will be loaded in regular sand cars, taking from 15 to 20 tons each, and landed at the dock premises.

Beat Your Fears

LACK OF CONFIDENCE CAN EASILY BE OVERCOME.

Most of us are subject to some kind of fear. We fear fate, poverty, illness, accident, animals. We are afraid of responsibility, of censure, and of losing our job. We haven't confidence in our ability.

And now the cause of these fears—probably the lack of bodily and mental balance.

You wake in the morning feeling heavy and depressed, and the worries of life crowd upon you. Starting the day in this manner, you lack that mental and physical balance which drives fear away.

Try to start the day in the right way. On waking, realize that this day is full of opportunities. Jump out of bed and do five or ten minutes' physical perks.

At the breakfast-table smile, and forget to grumble. Just start the day happily, and you will forget your fears.

Thousands of men are prevented from making progress simply because they fear failure. I know a man in business earning four pounds ten shillings a week. He was offered a position with a salary of seven pounds and splendid prospects of advancement.

He thought about it, but his fears mastered him, and he remained at his old job. In the same old rut, because he was afraid of the responsibility of the new job.

No matter what your fear is, whether it deals with cats or your job, it should be stood up to, reasoned with, until you have mastered it. By reasoning and mastering your mind, you master your fears also.

50 Necks on the Line

AGGRIEVED RAILWAYMEN FROM KOREA.

Fifty Koreans who were found lying with their necks on the railway track waiting for an express to pass over them were arrested in the Hachioji district (25 miles west of Tokio.)

The men comprised a contractor's gang employed on the permanent way. They believed themselves to have been swindled, and apparently sought revenge by planning wholesale suicide. They were on the verge of starvation.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR ACHEs AND PAINs.

I imagine every one of my Little Readers wishes he had been with dear Uncle Lucky and Little Jack Rabbit when they met the fairy bunny in the last story. One doesn't meet a fairy a jugal, as old Sam Hill used to say when I was a boy down on the farm. "Let me show you my little house," said the Fairy Bunny in answer to an enquiring smile from the dear old gentleman rabbit, I suppose Uncle Lucky was wondering why this little fellow had asked them to stop.

Hopping out of the Lucky-mobile, the old bunny Uncle and Little Jack Rabbit followed the Fairy Bunny to a big, tall tree, in the side of which was a small door. Turning the acorn knob, the little fellow pointed inside. Dear me, what a pretty place; a neat little room, moss carpeted and well furnished with small chairs and a round table.

"Well, this is a surprise," exclaimed the old gentleman rabbit, sitting down in a chair and crossing his right leg over his left. "I've never been in a Tree House before. I wouldn't have noticed the cute little door if you hadn't opened it quickerty quick. Here is a candy stuck on a stick."

"A lollypop," cried the Fairy Bunny. "That's mighty nice of you to give me one. I know where they grow. On the Lollypop Tree by the Big Brown Bear's Cozy Cave."

"Right you are," laughed nice Uncle Lucky, with a wink at his bunny nephew. "I guess everybody knows where the nicest lollypop grows." Gracious me, if the dear old gentleman bunny isn't talking in rhyme. Proper mode of speech in Bunny Fairyland. Yes, sire, Uncle Lucky knows his p's and q's and all the latest rabbit news.

All of a sudden the dear old gentleman rabbit gave a sigh, and lifting up his left hind leg, began to rub his pinky toe.

"What's the trouble?" asked the Fairy Bunny, anxiously.

"Rheumatism, my little man," answered dear Uncle Lucky, wrinking his forehead. "Wish I could find a cure for it."

"Ho, ho!" laughed the Fairy Bunny. "I can help you."

"Do it quick," shouted dear Uncle Lucky. "And the quicker the better. If it weren't for this pesky rheumatism I'd feel as young as you could be. I might hop over a tall pine tree," and Uncle Lucky smiled and sighed at the same time, which is not easy unless you have a brave heart and a good disposition.

"Put on your hat and follow me," said the Fairy Bunny. "You gave me a lollypop, the first I ever had, and in return for your kindness, I'll find something to cure you rheumatism, and with these cheerful words, the little fellow opened the door in his big tree house and ran up a winding path under the leafy branches.

"Come on," called the old gentleman rabbit to his bunny nephew, and away they hopped after the Fairy Bunny. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that if every day you're kind and good and help your father saw the wood, it's all good boys who live in the country where the grass is sweet and green with dandelions in between.

Valuable Property Destroyed at Glenwood

Further particulars in connection with the fire which occurred at Glenwood yesterday, was received by the Minister of Posts last night from Operator Stok. The fire started at the residence of Odan Lane. It was caused by an overheated pipe igniting the woodwork, and before the occupants or neighbours had time to extinguish it, the flames gained rapid headway, and destroyed considerable property. Lane's house was razed to the ground and he lost everything, while Mr. James Shea, who lived alongside his store house and barn totally destroyed, besides losing a valuable horse in the flames. The railroad bridge caught fire several times, only to be put out by the section men. There was only a small blaze on the saw dust plant, although several old shacks, unused, went up in smoke. The neighbours worked heroically throughout and succeeded in putting out the fire before darkness set in, thus avoiding any further danger. The loss to Messrs. Lane and Shea is considered to be a very heavy one.

Lord Londonderry Sails

S.S. Lord Londonderry finished discharging her cargo of rails for the Newfoundland Government Railway yesterday afternoon, and sailed for Montreal in ballast at 7 p.m. The second shipment of rails will be leaving Barrow-in-Furness by S.S. Fagan Head early next week for Heart's Content.

Africans Discover America Long Before Columbus

"In studying the Chinook trading dialect, with its sprinkling of words from English and other languages, I came across the account of a Spaniard who in the 18th century visited Nootka sound on the northwest coast of America. He records the visits or reports of visits of no fewer than 22 trading vessels. This was the sort of thing that was going on all the time—and history had been for the most part silent about it. Yet it was the sort of thing that established the Mandingo culture, and I believe, that of Mexico, which spread south along the peninsula."

"Then you do not believe that the Mayan and Aztec cultures were so ancient as has been contended?" Prof. Wiener was asked.
"I do not," he answered. "And their so-called civilization I must believe was very superficial, and short lived, for it was soon deprived of its stimulus from across the Atlantic. I picture it as a sort of overlordship, with the black traders the real rulers in what were little more than trading posts for the African. It was entirely 'upper crust.' The culture was not one inherent in the people themselves. It was an Arabic culture, paginated."

"A high civilization is the result of borrowing. We have it in the United States through that same means. How was it ever different? The people of ancient civilizations were not such tools as some have supposed. In enterprise and mental ability they were, in my belief, fully our equals. Perhaps they surpassed us even in the ability to do much with the comparatively little they possessed. But dominant races have borrowed and gone ahead on the knowledge, practical and theoretical gathered from contact with other races and cultures. We are proud of what we have accomplished in the United States in a few short years, yet it was not so great a step from the discovery of electricity to the making of a flivver, as from the day of nothing to the day of the iron implement."

ONCE UNIVERSAL TONGUE.

Pursuing this philosophy, Prof. Wiener declared his belief in the biblical story of the Tower of Babel, not in its literal but in its figurative sense—that there was once an universal tongue, but variations crept in until tribes no longer found themselves able to understand each other. Through the Babylonian and Sumerian cultures, he states, he believes it will be possible to trace down to the original tongue and original cultural influence—the place where the modern Anglo-Saxon, the ancient Atec, and all other peoples, may find the meeting of the ways.

But he is passing on the way to do a bit of idol-smashing in American history, from 1492 rearward. The "Mayan 'balam,' meaning 'wise man' or 'judge,' is found with the same meaning in the Mandingo, and thence goes back to the Arabic. Further, in America, the leopard was worshipped by the more ancient Indians; the leopard skin had its paginated use in Africa, with a similar significance, and, among the Arabs, was often used by the Judge when sitting in a criminal case. Another similarity is the occurrence of the word "mani" or "small," even in Indian tongues without an "m" normally, used in America in the sense of "big animal," and similarly in Africa, but also as a generic term for "man"—of which the "Man"-dingoes were a superior race. Even the art, he holds, though not Arabic, shows the influence.

Such bits of evidence he has piled up almost endlessly, word by word, symbol by symbol, with the painstaking detective work that pries into the dim past, as well as into the present. His next book, "Mayan and Mexican Origins," will be liberally illustrated with appropriate pictures. In this phase alone he promises many conclusions—one that the Mayans came after and not before the Mexicans—diametrically opposed to many archaeological findings. He promises, too, to take away from the Indians the credit for what has long been regarded as the exclusive "right" to the white man—tobacco, maize, manioc, peanuts, etc.—which he declares appear from his study to have originated, or to have been previously grown, in Africa.

STARTLING TO IMPORT.

Popular realization of what Prof. Wiener's book, "Africa and the Discoveries of America," means once its scientific garb be penetrated, has only begun to come. It comes, though, at a time when announcement that the northwestern Atlantic has probably settled from the Fribrius Islands, thousands of miles away, and Patagonia from Australia, is still new enough to be startling. At a time, in other words, when the public is ready to inquire whether history has really told a tenth of the story of the discovery of America—before Columbus.

Treating of Prof. Wiener's facts and the theories built from them, the current "World's Work," in an article by Burton Kline, gives a summary of discoveries believed to have been made before Columbus brought Spain to the New World. On the evidence of old maps alone it is held that Irish navigators probably reached Newfoundland before 1000 A.D., that the Norsemen of Iceland reached the same shores about 1000 A.D., that adventurous Bretons reached a point on or just off our coast before 1367, that a Spaniard of Portuguese coasted about the shores of the West Indies about 1485, and that some navigator may have crossed from Cape Verde to South America as early as 1443. There is evidence that Jean Cousin, a Frenchman, became tangled with the Gulf Stream and discovered Brazil in 1489, thence crossed the Atlantic to the Cape of Good Hope, and coasted northward and home. With him was a Spaniard named Pinzon; and Columbus, when he first set sail had with him three brothers, Pinzon, one of whom was captain of one of the trio of vessels who made a nuisance of himself by insisting that Columbus steer a more southerly course!

NEW CORROBORATION.

Prof. Wiener has but added new corroborative evidence. The trade route, if his contentions be accepted generally by men of learning, though long kept secret by the trading nation of Arabo-Mandingoes, is betrayed after centuries by such slim little clues as spoken words, learned by Indians and recorded by the conquering Spaniards and their priests.

These same clues add to the dimming of Columbia's lustre as "first discoverer" of America (though not to his fame as the man who "made it stick," and the man who started the exploitation of America), but that is as nothing to what they do to a whole school of thought regarding the ancient Indian culture of Central America.

Done in a Day

THINGS THAT HAPPEN EVERY 24 HOURS OF THE YEAR.

The daily activities of a nation of nearly fifty million people are on a tremendous scale, and the figures are staggering.

To-day—that is, during the next twenty-four hours—millions of money will change hands, and unfortunately some people will be the losers in the endless business of buying and selling. No fewer than 150 people go bankrupt on every working day during the year.

Merchandise is constantly pouring in from every part of the world. To-day nearly three million tons will be landed, while in the same space of time we shall be sending away about two and a quarter million tons of British goods for sale in other countries.

The mining of coal is still our greatest industry, and during the next twenty-four hours more than 700,000 tons will be raised from the depths of the earth.

Speaking of coal calls to mind fire. During the next twenty-four hours fire will have destroyed more than 290,000 worth of property in these islands.

The Post Office will be busy as usual, and by this time to-morrow will have handled some eighteen millions of postal packets of various descriptions. During the same space of time some seven million papers and periodicals will have been published, and nearly three hundred books and pamphlets.

To feed such a nation as ours is a colossal matter, and to-day, like other days, we see a consumption of about 200 million pounds of foodstuffs of different kinds.

America's Medical Methods

Training That is Helping to Build up an AI Nation.

Hospital training in America has been brought down to a fine art. The nurses start their careers rather earlier than ours do, for they are generally through their three years' training at the age of twenty-one. But into those three years they cram the widest possible experience and at the end of that period are thoroughly efficient. Nearly all the schools have the same system of training, and many of the hospitals are affiliated, so that a nurse who wants to specialise in any one subject can very easily leave her own hospital for another, if it happens to offer a better training in that one course.

Every nurse must have a thorough knowledge of dietary in all its branches, for the matter of the patients' food is of the greatest importance in an American hospital.

According to British standards, the cost of living is high in the States, so that although a trained American nurse can command double the salary paid to our nurses, she is in reality no better off.

While training, she earns very little indeed, and often the expenses of her lecture courses are very heavy.

The hospital Henry Ford is building in Detroit will be nothing short of marvellous, for here method and efficiency will be paramount.

As in all American hospitals, everything possible will be done for the bodily health of the patient.

You may go there with a sore finger, but whatever your own personal inclinations you are not allowed out again before you have been examined from top to toe by the hospital doctors.

At any health centre in America you may, for the sum of five dollars—about £1—be completely overhauled by the best doctors in the district.

News on West Coast Road Building

CURLING, May 15.
 Evening Telegram.
 Mr. St. John's... I have read with considerable interest your editorial of the 15th, regarding the proposed road from here to Port aux Basques. This discussion has lately been cause of many and varied opinions...
 I consider myself, justifiably I hope, a fervent believer in the future development and prosperity of the West Coast. I cannot bring myself to believe that the present circumstances present such a proposition being carried out.
 The money was less to be considered as most decidedly go ahead but in view of the fact that money is the vital factor I consider that we cannot afford such a road while conditions in various settlements are so deplorable. Only the occasional visitor and the few residents can possibly appreciate the state of the local streets in this area. I have travelled a little but only in the hilly areas of the West Coast. I have seen France in winter have 7 feet of snow which is now, I believe, seen only to St. John's in the matter of snow. The Government can possibly afford to carry this out in a profitable manner.
 The matter of American and Canadian motorists is nothing more or less in my opinion, than a joke. It is not to be expected. Mr. Editor, that tourists would go to great trouble and expense of bringing their cars to the Gulf for the sake of putting them on a road that will be closed in a few days. Considering the thousands of miles of good road in Canada and the States and the huge sums at the disposal of holiday-makers we possibly expect to get back our money in the form of a few Ford automobiles who might in a moment of weakness board the Caribou for a trip on the other side.
 The only tourist we can attempt to accommodate at present is our old friend the salmon fisherman who comes after year to his favourite pond stream and knowing several of the genuine sportsmen I can safely say that not one of them would even consider bringing an automobile to the country.
 The agricultural interests in Bay St. George would not suffer from lack of a road. Reduced rail rates and better transport goes but by concentrating on local roads in their immediate vicinity as I suggested earlier the Government would be doing some much more worth while work. With each settlement provided with a road and serviceable roads it would be better for future consideration, whether it would then be an advantage to have the settlements linked up by a material road.
 Yours, etc.,
 O. H.

"Lebruggs" Coming to Newfoundland

BRITISH NAVAL EPIC SHOWN IN FILM TO THE MINUTEST DETAIL

"Lebruggs," the film reconstruction of the naval epic of St. George's Day, is going to make cinema audiences thrill to great enthusiasm.
 The producers, who had the assistance of the British Admiralty and the highest authorities, tell the full story of the attack on the island, vividly and gloriously.
 The preparations for the attack and the landing of the young men volunteers during the waiting period are depicted in detail, and then comes intense drama—the landing on the Mole from the "Fidèle," the blowing up of the Mole under the watchful eyes of the blockships, and the brave play by the Mersey ferry boats, and Daffodil.
 The film emphasizes the magnitude of the navy's feat as a whole, and by its faithful reproduction of the actual heroism that won V.C.'s sets the wonder and the gallantry of the men of war.
 This film will be shown at the Nickel Theatre very shortly.

Why, of Course

If you want GOOD Clothes go to a GOOD Tailor. There is where you get good material, good fit and Clothes that look as if they were made for YOU, and not for the other fellow.

The Ready-to-Wear! Yes, of course. They were made for the one who buys them, very seldom for the one who fits them.

But be careful and go to a good tailor. It's cheaper and better.

SPURRELL'S are good, reliable tailors, and you make no mistake in going there.
