Because there is strength in an army of volunteers and no Anglo-Saxon race presses soldiers. The people in Iarael thus should give more money to the missionaries for if they lived in any other country they would have to support ten soldiers where now they have only to sustain one. Another lesson to be learned is that God wants experts. A barber once after sharpening his razor, rushed up to the man whom he was shaving and asked him if he was prepared to meet his God. God wants soldiers of tact. There ought to be more dog lappers, men who have no time to spare but are hurrying on to do the Lord's work. Why, if this sort of thing is to be, we may as well frame a Canadian poor law at once, and get ready to tax ourselves with a poor-rate for the maintenance of old country paupers. We shall not readily believe, nor have we ever said, that any Canadian, or any one properly belonging to Canada, either in or cut of office, would countenance such unpatriotic folly and wickedness together as this would be. But let the Canadian people be well warned that there are in the mother country any number of shrewd, stirring customers. with a keen eye for the main chance, who will see their golden opportunity in the almost desperate anxiety of landowners and of the churches of christendom collectively parish authorities to get rid of their poor. If anybody thinks we are putting this case too strongly, we reply-just wait a little longer; and you will see reason for saying that we did not put it half strongly enough.
