In presenting the third Number of the NOVA-SCOTIA ALMANACK to the public, the Proprietor has again to express his gratitude for the amount of patronage received. Beside the evidence afforded by an extensive sale, the Press of the Province took most favourable notice of the work in 1834, and again in 1835: Instead of copying such notices, as is usual, the Proprietor deems that a grateful reference to them may be sufficient. He feels some satisfaction in believing, that he has endeavoured to merit this patronage; and he hopes that the Almanack for 1836 will prove, that he is not unworthy of a continuance of the Public favour. A new Chronological series is given; some additional matter in the columns, and useful Tables have been introduced, to render the Almanack more servicable for Nautical purposes; Mathematical questions, to which satisfactory answers are requested, diversify the number, and the matter, generally, is closely compressed, so as to give as much information, in as small a compass, and at as low a price as is possible. With confidence, therefore, the Nova Scotia Almanack for 1836, is submitted to the public, and progressive improvement is promised for future numbers.

CELESTIAL PHENOMENA FOR 1836.

“THE Heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament sheweth his handy work.” Such was the exclamation of the pious Psalmist the “sweet singer of Israel,” when he was no doubt contemplating the gem-studded expanse. Since his day what mighty revolutions have happened, and generations of the human race have born and died: Still these lamps of heaven have continued to hold on their course with undeviating regularity. Every thing bears the impress of the wisdom and power of the Deity. It is seen in the creation of the glorious Sun; the Planets and the Stars,—seen in the majestic form of the Cedar of Lebanon, equally so in the tuft of grass we tread under our feet—seen in the strength of the lion of the woods, and in the smallest animalculæ requiring microscopic aid to manifest their existance to the senses. Man stands confessedly the noblest of all the Creator’s works here below, possessed of powers of mind, formed to contemplate his Maker’s works, by him alone of all God’s creatures can the book of nature be read. Having above, below and around him, such unbounded scope for the exercise of his contemplative faculties; how lamentable is it that the generality of his species prostitute to the vilest purposes those noble faculties of the soul, which he is endowed with, and which ought to be employed in his great Benefactor’s service and to His glory, and in the advancement of the happiness and knowledge of his fellow creatures.

Perhaps to a contemplative mind, there is not a more congenial study, or one more fitted to lead the mind “from nature up to nature’s God,” than the noble science of Astronomy. What an amazing grasp of intellect, to measure the magnitudes and orbits of those heavenly bodies, composing our system, to calculate with unerring precision their various phenomena, and to render such knowledge subservient to the purposes of commerce, and the intercourse of man with man, by guiding the mariner in the pathless ocean. To contemplate the Creator of these shining orbs, as our Maker and Benefactor is consolatory, but to be able to say upon a sure foundation, that he is our God, our Father, and our Friend, raises us as it were above this lower world, and the eye of faith pierces through the veil of mortality, and the glories of eternity appear to blaze upon our view, when we shall be perfectly blessed with Him in heaven.

Reader, that this be our happy privilege, may God of his mercy grant; then whether this year be our last we shall spend on earth, or our lives be prolonged, we may await the approach of the King of Terrors undismayed.

THE SOLAR SYSTEM.

WHAT is the Solar System? An answer to this question introduces us to a spectacle of the vastest dimensions, and of the most exquisite workmanship. Tho' great, awfully intricate, and beautiful, each inhabitant of our Globe is intimately interested in its mysterious machinery; and to procure some definite notions of it, becomes, in some degree, the duty of each individual.

By the Solar System, we understand, a central body, with several other bodies, influenced by it, revolving round it. A lighted candle, with a few flies performing circular flights about its flame, may, for a moment, represent such a System. The centre of the Solar System is a body, whose vastness defies the imagination; and the specks which spin around it are mighty spheres,—Worlds, and their attendant Moons. The great Globe which we inhabit—with all its mountains, continents, and oceans,—with the forests, hills, ships, and castles, which like small dust mark its surface,—large though it is, even to bewilderment—is but equal to one thousandth part of the bulk of the centre of the Solar System: Ten thousand masses, each equal to our earth, would scarcely make a body equal to the Sun! This stupendous body dispenses light and heat through a vast space; and philosophers suppose, that itself is an intensely bright, hot, mass. It is situated, in the boundless fields of space, so far from our Earth, that to us it appears not much larger than a cannon ball. Around this incomprehensibly vast and brilliant body, seven mighty spheres revolve, the paths which they travel in their revolutions being called their orbits. Some of those, mystically supported and impelled, spheres, have attendant orbs, which revolve around them as they do around the Sun; these are called Moons; the spheres which they attend are named Planets. All of them, Planets and Moons, are kept in their orbits, and their inconceivably rapid, compound, motions are supported, by some amazing powers; powers understood only by their Maker, and, perhaps, by the angels who witnessed their creation, and, we may hope, by the spirits of just men made perfect. Thus this stupendous machinery works, noiselessly, regularly, without signs of decay; a continued miracle on the grandest scale; a rapture-demanding production of him who clothes the lillies of the valley in beauty. Each of those vast planets is enlightened and warmed by the Sun, and reflects his rays. When seen thus illuminated, twinkling in the fields of ether, men call them stars, gems, lamps, forgetful of their vast sizes, and fearful motions; of the continued supervision which is necessary for their preservation; and of the ease by which he who made them could let them all run to destructive confusion, by merely withholding or withdrawing the secret influences which retain them in their places. The other small specks which mark, what we call, the heavens, are supposed to be other suns, and centres of other systems. The planets are distinguished by certain names. The planet nearest the sun (which proximity, however, consists in the inconceivably great distance of 37 millions of miles) is called Mercury; the next is named Venus; the next, Earth; the fourth in order, Mars; the fifth, Jupiter; the sixth, Saturn; and the seventh is called Goergium, having been so designated by its discoverer, in honour of a King of Great Britain. Beside these there are four small planets, or parts of some former planet, called asteroids, which appear between Mars and Jupiter. Five of the planets, we perceive, are distinguished by the names of fabled personages, which only had existence in the imagination of an idolatrous nation; one is simply named after one of the materials which compose it; and one has the name which, even in this generation, belonged to the venerated ruler of some Atlantic Islands. Thus men—creatures a few feet high, whose existence is a span, and who spring up and are cut down like flowers—attach names, familiar to their puny race, to the spheres, whose sizes, motions, and courses, remind of Infinitude and Eternity. Yet is man, in giving the stars names, and such names, too aspiring, too presuming? Vast as are the orbs of heaven, stupendous as are the phenomena which they include, the exquisite frame which his soul inhabits is not less a miracle, in its mystical beauty, than is Saturn with its moons and rings. And the soul of the pigmy! who will tell its worth? The memory, the imagination, the judgment, the ingenuity, which compose this spirit, in their god-like powers, laugh planets and suns to scorn. Everlasting in its nature,—when the orbs of heaven shall pass away with a great noise, the soul may be full of sublime peace and joy,—without fear of change or decay, exulting in the visible presence of the Deity, who will be the only Sun of that incorruptible World.

ECLIPSES.

In the Year 1836 there will be FOUR ECLIPSES—two of the Sun, and two of the Moon; but one only of each will be visible at Halifax.

FIRST.—On Sunday, May 1st, the Moon will be partially eclipsed, (as follows) and visible here.

First contact of Penumbra, - - -	1h. 35'	} Mean Time, Morning.
First contact of Dark Shadow, - - -	2 50

SECOND.—The Sun will be partially eclipsed and visible, on Sunday, May 15th—

NOVA SCOTIA (6) ALMANACK.

First contact, - - - - -	8h. 15'	} Mean Time, Morning.
Greatest Phase, - - - - -	9 32
Ecliptic $\ell$ - - - - -	10 7
Last contact, - - - - -	11 5

Duration 2h. 50'—Digits eclipsed  $8\frac{3}{4}$  on the Sun's south eastern limb.

The Moon will first touch the Sun's disc on his south western limb, and finally leave on his eastern limb, a little inclining to the northward.

In the North of England and Ireland this Eclipse will be central and annular. It will traverse the Atlantic Ocean, the Islands of Cuba and Jamaica, and Guatemala, just above the Isthmus of Darien.

THIRD.—On Monday, October 24th, the Moon will be partially eclipsed, but invisible here, as it will commence just as the Moon sets, and while the Sun is about rising in the opposite point of the heavens. The Eclipse, where visible, will be very small, not being one-tenth the part of her disc.

FOURTH.—A total Eclipse of the Sun will take place on Tuesday, November 8th, but invisible at Halifax or in the northern hemisphere. It commences at 6h. 40' in the evening

This Eclipse will traverse round the South Pole, and the only land that the line of central contact crosses, is a small part of the south west of the large Island of New Holland. A partial eclipse will be visible to part of the Chinese Empire, the Islands in the Chinese Sea, and the Islands composing New Zealand.

OCULTATIONS.—There will be no occultations of the Moon and any of the Planets visible in this Latitude; several happen with Saturn and the Moon, but only visible in the Southern Hemisphere.

correction is to be obtained as above, and then subtracted from 32' and that result is to be subtracted from the observed altitude.

To correct Altitudes observed on Land with an Artificial Horizon, the numbers under 16 feet must be increased by 4', and then applying the sum or the remainder, according to the title, to the Altitude observed, the result will be the true Altitude.

EXAMPLE.

On July 24th, 1835, the sun's meridian altitude was observed to be 79° 44' 15", the zenith being north of the sun, altitude of the observer's eye 24 feet, in longitude by account 54° west required the latitude,

** See page 36 of Nova Scotia Almanack for 1835, for rule for correcting the Sun's Declination to any time of the day or longitude.

The sun's declination is given to the nearest second for noon at Greenwich. The above table will be found useful to navigators in taking the sun's meridian altitude, in order to determine the latitude. In this table the effects of parallax, refraction dip, the sun's semi-diameter are all combined in one correction. Proportional parts may be taken for any intermediate heights of the eye or observed altitude.

EXPLANATION OF THE CALENDAR PAGES.

On the LEFT HAND PAGE will be found—1st, the Day of the Month; 2d, the Day of the Week; 3d, Remarkable Events; 4th, the Sun's Rising; 5th, the Sun's Setting; 6th, the Days' Length; 7th, the Sun's Declination, at Greenwich noon, to the nearest second.

On the RIGHT HAND PAGE—1st, the Days of the Month; 2d, the Days of the Week; 3d, the Situation of the Planets, Holidays, Sundays and Weather; 4th, the Moon's Rising; 5th, the Moon's Southing; 6th, the Moon's Setting; 7th, the Moon's Place; 8th, High Water at Halifax.

N. B. All Calculations are in Mean Time, except the Sun's rising and setting, which are given in apparent time.

The effect of refraction will cause both the Sun and the Moon to appear three or four minutes earlier at rising, and later at setting, than what is given in the pages.

The barken tent, the light canoe, appear ;
 And by the snare, and gun, and fishing spear,
 Snow-shoe, and dogs, he wins a scanty store,—
 Wandering from wood to wood, from shore to shore;
 As if no plough-share yet a furrow made,
 And man but knew the hunter's idle trade.
 " His occupation gone" of wile and strife,
 He spends his picturesque, romantic, life,

NOVA SCOTIA (17) ALMANACK.

An ornament,—beside the white-sand cove.
 When summer suns with verdure fill the grove.
 A native "gentleman",—in toil and sport,
 In grave demeanour, and in haughty port:
 And pleasant 'tis to view his state, what time
 The July moon is in its luscious prime.
 Glide, sail-urged, to the margin of his strand;
 A scene of simple nature, wildly bland,

NOVA SCOTIA (19) ALMANACK.

Around delights : a pine maze clothes the hill,
 And from its shade a brawling chrystal rill
 Runs to the tide ; a snowy carving line,
 Of sand and pebbles, bounds the azure brine,
 And the green slope, where berries blue and red
 Amid the flowery herbs profusely spread.
 Canoes are moor'd in that clear shoal, and some,
 Dancing across the harbour homeward come ;

Like mummies, ask the breast with gentle wine
 Or gaze expressive. Other squaws recline,
 In cheerful groupes beneath the shading pine,
 Or around the wigwam opening,—busy they,
 With fire stained quills to form the trinket gay;
 The basket trim, the miniature canoe,
 And work-box richly quaint in form and hue.
 These become presents, which in England's dells,
 Remind of friends beyond Atlantic swells;

NOVA SCOTIA (25) ALMANACK.

Links 'tween divided relatives, which say,
 We love 'tho parted, and will love for aye.
 But there, on branches green, in easy state,
 The listless red-men sit, and lordly wait
 The supper hour;—with smoke of fragrant weed
 Giving the lagging moments graceful speed,
 Beside them terriers on the white chips rest,
 By chubby boys unwillingly carest,

NOVA SCOTIA (27) ALMANACK.

Or fly, in sportive chace, along the strand,—
Where bright eye'd youths, with steady eye and hand,
Practice their Archery : a graceful band.
Apart from all, beneath a rustic screen—
Made of white poles, and bark, and branches green,
The Chief reclines ; his folded arms display
The shining bracelets which denote his sway ;

NOVA SCOTIA (29) ALMANACK.

A beauteous squirrel skin his girdle holds,
 A gay device his dark blue robe unfolds,
 An Indian sash suspends his hunters horn,
 And parrot tints his mocassins adorn.
 Closed his thin lip; his small and piercing eye
 Is fixed on vacancy:—does he descry
 Time past,—when all things bow'd to Indian race?
 Or, time to come,—without a single trace

That e'er the Indian liv'd?—The scene is good
 For such reflection;—o'er the glassy flood,
 'Neath the rich tints of eve, the hazy town
 Rears its high piles along the hill side brown:
 That chief remembers when the Fox and bear,
 Woodchuck and wolf, had banquet place and lair,
 Where now that town appears;—with western gale
 Murmurs of trade come to this sylvan vale;—

NOVA SCOTIA (33) ALMANACK.

But different sounds, by hunter lov'd, tho' wild,
 That hill sent forth when he was but a child.
 Now plainer glows—aga'nt the grove—the fire;
 The squaws late busy, cheerfully retire,
 Each to her wigwam;—for, above the trees,
 The moon—mid clouds just stirred by fragrant breeze—
 Outpeers the sunset, and weak shadows throws,
 Of flapping sails, upon the floods repose.

NOVA SCOTIA (35) ALMANACK.

Where shadows deepen, 'neath the o'rhanging brake,
A sudden flame, 'n' a beauteous quivering streak,
Flashes along the glass; the Indian there
With res'nous pine branch makes this golden glare,
While from his light canoe, with spear in hand,
He strikes the crawling lobster on the sand.

CONFESSIONS OF A DRUNKARD.

DEHORTATIONS from the use of strong liquors have been the favourite topic of sober declaimers in all ages, and have been received with abundance of applause by water-drinking critics. But with the patient himself, the man that is to be cured, unfortunately their sound has too seldom prevailed. Yet the evil is acknowledged, the remedy simple. Abstain. No force can oblige a man to raise the glass to his head against his will. 'Tis as easy as not to steal, not to tell lies.

* * *

It were impertinent to carry the reader through all the processes by which, from smoking at first with malt liquor, I took my degress through thin wines, through stronger wine and water, through small punch, to those juggling compositions, which, under the name of mixed liquors, slur a great deal of brandy or other poison under less and less water continually, until they come next to none, and so to none at all. But it is hateful to disclose the secrets of my Tartarus.

* * *

Persons not accustomed to examine the motives of their actions, to reckon up the countless nails that rivet the chains of habit, or perhaps being bound by none so obdurate as those I have confessed to, may recoil from this as from an overcharged picture. But what short of such a bondage is it, which in spite of protesting friends, a weeping wife, and a reprobating world, chains down many a poor fellow, of no original indisposition to goodness, to his pipe and his pot?

I have seen a print after Corregio, in which three female figures are ministering to a man who sits fast bound at the root of a tree. Sensuality is soothing him, Evil Habit is nailing him to a branch, and Repugnance at the same instant of time is applying a snake to his side. In his face is feeble delight, the recollection of past rather than perception of present pleasures, languid enjoyment of evil with utter imbecility to good, a Sybaritic* effeminacy, a submission to bondage, the springs of the will gone down like a broken clock, the sin and the suffering co-instantaneous, or the latter forerunning the former, remorse preceding action—all this represented in one point of time.—When I saw this, I admired the wonderful skill of the painter. But when I went away, I wept, because I thought of my own condition.

Of that there seems no hope that it should ever change. The waters have gone over me. But out of the black depths, could I beheard, I would cry out to all those who have but set a foot in the perilous flood. Could the youth, to whom the flavour of his first wine is delicious as the opening scenes of life or the entering upon some newly discovered paradise, look into my desolation, and be made to understand what a dreary thing it is when a man shall feel himself going down a precipice with open eyes and a passive will,—to see his destruction, and have no power to stop it, and yet to feel it all the way emanating from himself; to perceive all goodness emptied out of him, and yet not to be able to forget a time when it was otherwise; to bear about the piteous spectacle of his own self-ruins:—could he see my fevered eye, feverish with last night's drinking, and feverishly looking for this night's repetition of the folly; could he feel the body of the death out of which I cry hourly with feebleness and feebleness outcry to be delivered,—it were enough to make him dash the sparkling beverage to the earth in all the pride of its mantling temptation; to make him clasp his teeth, and not undo 'em

To suffer WET DAMNATION TO RUN thro' 'em,

Behold me then, in the robust period of life, reduced to imbecility and decay. Hear me count my gains, and the profits which I have derived from the midnight cup.

Twelve years ago I was possessed of a healthy frame of mind and body. I was never strong, but I think my constitution (for a weak one) was as happily exempt from the tendency to any malady as it was possible to be. I scarce knew what it was to ail anything. Now, except when I am losing myself in a sea of drink, I am never free from those uneasy sensations in head and stomach, which are so much worse to bear than any definite pains or aches.

At that time I was seldom in bed after six in the morning, summer and winter. I awoke refreshed, and seldom without some merry thoughts in my head, or some piece of a song to welcome the new-born day. Now, the first feeling which besets me, after stretching out the hours of recumbence to their last possible extent, is a forecast of the wearisome day that lies before me, with a secret wish that I could have lain on still, or never awaked.

Life itself, my waking life, has much of the confusion, the trouble, and obscure perplexity, of an ill dream. In the day time I stumble upon dark mountains.

Business which, though never particularly adopted to my nature, yet as something of necessity to be gone through, and therefore best undertaken with cheerfulness, I used to enter upon with some degree of alacrity, now wearies, affrights, perplexes me. I fancy all sorts of discouragements, and am ready to give up an occupation which gives me bread, from a harassing conceit of incapacity. The slightest commission given me by a friend, or any small duty which I have to perform for myself, as giving orders to a tradesman, &c. haunts me as a labour impossible to be got through. So much the springs of action are broken.

The same cowardice attends me in all my intercourse with mankind. I dare not promise that a friend's honor, or his cause, would be safe in my keeping, if I were put to the expense of any manly resolution in defending it. So much the springs of moral action are deadened within me.

My favourite occupations in times past, now cease to entertain. I can do nothing readily. Application for ever so short a time kills me. This poor abstract of my condition was penned at long intervals, with scarcely any attempt at connection of thought, which is now difficult to me.

The noble passages which formerly delighted me in history or poetic fiction, now only draw a few weak tears, allied to dotage. My broken and dispirited nature seems to sink before anything great and admirable.

Shall I lift up the veil of my weakness any further? or is this disclosure sufficient?

I am a poor nameless egotist, who have no vanity to consult by these Confessions. I know not whether I shall be laughed at, or heard seriously. Such as they are, I commend them to the reader's attention, if he find his own case any way touched. I have told him what I am come to. Let him stop in time.

THE GREAT CALAMITY.

The common calamities of life may be endured—poverty, sickness and even death may be met; but there is that which, while it brings all these with it, is worse than all these together. When the husband or the father forgets the duties he once delighted to fulfil, and by slow degrees becomes the creature of intemperance, there enters into his home the sorrow that rends the spirit, that will not be comforted.—It is here above all, where she who has ventured every thing is lost. Woman, suffering woman! here bends to her direst affliction. The measure of her wo, in truth, is full, whose husband is a drunkard. Who shall protect her when he is her insulter, her oppressor? What shall delight her when she shrinks from the sight of his face and trembles at the sound of his voice? The heart is indeed dark that he has made desolate. In the dull hour of midnight, she weeps; her griefs are known only to herself, her bruised heart bleeds in secret—while the cruel author of her distress is drowned in distant revelry, she holds her solitary vigil, waiting, yet dreading his return, that will only wring from her by his unkindness, tears even more scalding than those shed over his transgressions. They fling a deeper gloom across the present; memory turns back and broods upon the past. Like the recollections of the sun-stricken pilgrim, other days come over her as if only to mock her parched and weary spirit—She recollects the ardent lover whose graces won her from the home of her infancy, the enraptured father who bent with such delight over her new born children; asks if this can really be him; this sunken being who has nothing for her but a sot's disgusting brutality; nothing for these abashed and trembling children, but the sot's disgusting example? Can we wonder that amidst these agonizing moments the tender cords of violated affection should burst asunder? That the scorned and deserted wife should confess, "there is no killing like that which kills the heart?" That though it would have been hard for her to kiss for the last time the cold lips of her dear husband, and lay his body for ever in the dust, it is harder to behold him so debased in life, that even his death would seem a mercy? Had he died in the light of his goodness, bequeathing to his family the inheritance of an untarnished name, the example of virtues that should blossom for his sons and daughters from the tomb; though she would have wept bitterly indeed she would have some consolation,—but degraded from eminence to ignominy; at home turning his dwelling to darkness, and its holy endearments to mockery; abroad, thrust from the companionship of the worthy; a self-branded out-law: this is the wo the wife feels; and is more painful than death; this she mourns as worse than widowhood.

HORTICULTURAL INFORMATION.

A horticulturist remarks, that applying fresh ashes about the roots of PEAR trees, [about a bushel and half each, yearly] in the fall and winter, has caused the fruit to assume a new colour, and to become much larger.

VINES have been found unproductive from the following reasons: having flowers of only one sex, or the flower forming a basin which retains water and destroys the proper functions. The remedy is, grafting from a free-bearing vine, or the entire removal of the plant.

SUMMER MANAGEMENT OF VINES.—Keep the ground free from weeds, secure the Vines and spread them so as to admit sun and air, cut away the shoots which are unpromising.

QUINCE TREES.—Put coal dust, renewed once in about two years, about the stems. Manure, around them, occasions injury by worms and grubs.

Wood ashes is an excellent medium for preserving fruits and seeds. Lay the fruit in layers, on layers of ashes.

RHUBARB PLANT.—Do not allow the Plant to seed. Seeding has an exhausting effect on Plant and soil. The same of other Plants.

TO PROCURE GOOD SEED FOR RADISHES.—Sow radish seed late in July, pack them in dry sand and place them in a cellar, next spring set them out, and gather the seed when ripe. Seed obtained the same season it is sown, will produce bad radishes, and worse seed.

TAPPING MAPLE.—Bore the root with  $\frac{1}{2}$  inch auger, and insert a crooked tube. This mode yields more than the common mode and is not so injurious to the tree.

MANURE FOR GRAPES AND ASPARAGUS.—For Grapes, coal dust cinders, and iron scales from blacksmith's forge, mixed with fine garden mould. For asparagus, finely pulverized oyster shells, mixed with the earth, or dug in about the roots of old beds, has an excellent effect.

AGRICULTURAL.

INDIAN CORN ought always to be planted as soon as the ground is warm enough to produce fermentation.

(Say May,) Corn early planted is better, and more of it, than late.

WHEAT.—To prevent smut, select clean plump seed, pass it through water in a tub, washing and skimming off the floating matter, empty it into a basket to drain, lay it on a clean floor and rake in 2 quarts of slacked lime and one quart of plaster to the bushel of grain, stir it till all is covered with lime and plaster, let it remain in heap for one day, spread it and dry it daily, when quite dry it is fit for sowing.—You may sow tho' the land be wet.

Be careful in choosing good seed if you wish good crops.

RURAL ECONOMY.

POULTRY.—Let the poultry yard be large, and in a dry situation, well and high fenced, and of a southern aspect. Appropriate a part of the yard to gravel, lime from old bricks, clean shells &c. Keep the poultry house clean; this will tend to keep the hens from wandering, make them thrive and lay better, and will supply excellent garden manure.

TO RESTORE THE GERMINATING POWER OF SEED.—Steep it in a solution of oxygenated muratic acid, at a temperature of 46 or 48 Fahrenheit. If any principle of vitality remain, the seed will germinate in a few hours, and will grow if planted in its proper situation as if it had evinced no torpidity.

TO PREVENT HORSES BEING TEASED BY FLIES.

Take two or three handfuls of walnut leaves, upon which, pour two or three quarts of cold water, let it infuse one night, and pour the whole next morning into a kettle, and let it boil for a quarter of an hour:—when cold it will be fit for use. No more is required than to moisten a sponge, and before the horse goes out of the stable, let those parts which are most irritable be smeared over with the liquor, viz. between and upon the ears, the neck, the flank, &c.

Miscellaneous.
