Not one paper has attached to his criticism of Gen, Buller, his predecessor in the command, one jota of unfairness or self-interest. # LOSS MAY REACH

Great Destruction Caused by Floods in Mississippi-Many Lives Lost.

New Orleans, La., April 21. - The floods which commenced the early part of the week have already caused, at a conservative estimate, $3,000,000 loss in Central and Southern Mississippi, to say nothing of the damage sustained by the railroads. The extent of the losses have not yet been fully learned, and it may be some days yet before an accurate total can be reached. Mail communication has been totally cut off between these localities which have suffered most. In Louisiana, too, the damage done by the unprecedented rains was great, but in this state they are more inferential than positive. Half a score of towns are completely cut off from the outside world, as they have been since the early part of the week. From the Chunky River swamps, near Enterprise, comes the news of a heavy loss of life.

Advices from Pearlington say Pearl River has reached its highest mark The timber booms have commenced breaking up, and thousands of dollars' worth of timber has floated out to set. All business in the river is at a standstill. The saw mills have had to discontinue op-erations. The water has reached the first floors of all stores along the river. Several boats are at their wharves in the neighborhood of Pearlwharves in the neighborhood of Pearlington with steam up, and will be used as a means of escape iff the waters continue rising. Many people living on the Louisiana side, between Pearlington and Logtown, have been forced to abandon their homes and fee to the to abandon their homes and flee to the Mississippi side for safety. If the Kidneys and Liver Are Kept in Perfect Order by Using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

They Are Marvellously Efficient in Preventing as Well as Curing Disease,

Spring is nature's cleaning time for the human system, and the kidneys and liver are worked overtime in the effort to remove the morbid waste matter from the blood.

So long as the kidneys and liver are active and vigorous theat need be no fear of spring humors, pimples, boils and eruptions, for the poisons which cause these will then be effectually removed from the body.

Besides purifying the blood, cleansing the system, and preventing the ills peculiar to spring, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will take the pains out of the back and sides, and thoroughly cure Lumbago, Bright's Disease, Biliousness, Constipation and the various complications and derangements of the Kidneys and

The blood can only be cleansed by the activities of the kidney and liver. That is the only means which nature has provided. To purify the blood you must work in harmony with nature and assist these organs in their gigantic task of continually filtering the blood. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills act directly on the kidneys and liver, and are the most effective blood purifiers ever discovered. #### LOYALTY OF THE FRENCH CANADIANS

Hon. Mr. Tarte's Able Speech Before Distinguished Gathering in London, England. [From the Canadian Gazette, London, England.] Lord Strathcona and Mount presided at a meeting of the foreign and colonial section of the Society of Arts, on Monday afternoon, when Sir Charles Dilke read a paper on, "The Century in Our Colonies." Among Among minion minister of public works, who had only just arrived from Paris; Sir Henry Norman, Sir Julian Salomans, Sir E. Sassoon, M.P., Lord Belhaven and Stanton, Sir W. Lee-Warner, Mr. J. Howard, agent-general for Nova Scotia, and the Hon. Alfred Deakin, one of the Australian delegates to this country in connection with the commonwealth bill.

Mr. Tarte, who was called upon, said he had no idea that he was to have the honor of addressing so distinguished a gathering, but he owed Sir Charles Dilke such a debt of grati-tude that he did not hesitate to speak unpreparedly. In his last book, "Greater Britain," Sir Charles had summed up in a few words the position of the French-Canadians. wished to thank Sir Charles for what he had written there about Canada, especially in reference to her Majesty's most loyal subjects, the French-Canadians. (Hear, hear.) No statesman had understood the French Canadians like Sir Charles Dilke. They were French, their mothers and fathers were French, but they were British to the core. (Loud cheers.) They were as much English as they were French; and it was to the glory of British institutions to have captured their loyalty as they had done. (Hear, hear.) He referred to the rebel Papineau. His own father, he did not mind telling them, was a rebel. (Laughter). element will do what the French-Canadians have done. When British rule is well established in the Transvaal the best thing you can do is to take advantage of it." (Loud cheers.) When peace was established in South Africa he was confident that the greatest freedom would be given to all, the same freedom and the same privileges as they enjoyed in Canada. French-Canadians had occasionally been accused of being disloyal. In fact, quite lately much had been heard of racial troubles, but he warned his hearers not to pay too much attenly the product of the newspapers. He had been a journalist himself and he knew all about it. (Laughter.) But he took that, the first oportunity he had ever had of speaking to an English audience, to assure the British public that they might rely on the French-Canadians just as they might rely on the rest of England. (Loud cheers.) They were good British subjects of the Queen, but they would like to be more than that, and to become full-fledged citizens of this great empire. If, however, Canadians were to share the burdens of the British empire they should have a voice in imperial councils. conclusion Mr. Tarte drew attention to the fact that he was the first French-Canadian who had been admitted to the Imperial Federation League, which he entered in 1888.

Reasoned Out a Plan to Keep From Being Caught Again.

A collie was in the habit of fetching his master's room slippers, cap, keys, or anything he was sent for. One day, sent on the usual errand, he did not reappear. His master followed, and found that the door of his bedroom had blown to, and that the dog was a prisoner. Some days later he was again told to fetch something, and as the wind was high, his master, after a few minutes' delay, followed him. found him in the act of fixing the door firmly back with the door mat, which he had rolled up for the purpose; and having taken this precaution, the prudent animal proceeded to look for

FLOODS IN QUEBEC.

Several Important Bridges Swept Away-Drummond Railway Bridge Shifted.

Quebec, April 21.-The recent rains and warm weather have caused floods on nearly all the rivers on both sides of the St. Lawrence. The water has risen on the Chaudiere River four feet higher than the highest mark recorded.

The iron bridge of the Drummond Railway at Chaudiere has moved eight inches on its piers. The old wooden bridge at St. Ronald has been carried away.

At Beauce Junction the extensive bridge of the Quebec Central Railway is threatened with destruction.

The water has risen especially high in the Etchemin River and has carried away the Quebec Central bridge at St. Anselme. A bridge was carried away in the same manner in 1896 at this point, and to withstand such strains the new bridge was made strong and built four feet above the previous high water mark. It was a very fine structure of steel, and as a result of its carrying away no trains have moved on the Quebec Central since.

Why Roberts Tarried at Bloem. fontein.

Those who have carefully read recent porrespondence from South Africa, and who are acquainted with the nature of the country through which the British army have to pass, in order to reach Pretoria, cannot be astonished that haste is being made slowly.

In the first place, the march to Bloemfontein, after the relief of Ladysmith, was made with considerable expedition, and with a much depleted commissariat. The troops suffered also from shortage of clothing. The outfit with which they entered the war was worn out, and partly through the congested character of the freight traffic on the one narrow-guage railway available for the service, and partly from the fact that the Boers, in the earlier stages of the war, had captured the new clothing being sent after the troops, they were in no condition to enter into short-range warfare, much less to go off on the 300 miles journey overland to the Transvaal capital. The Royal Canadians, for example, at last accounts, presented a far from attractive spectacle. Most of the men, the Montreal Herald correspondent informs us, were halfnaked and bootless. The supply of boots and clothing for them was captured by the Boers in a convoy, just before the expedition reached Jacobsdal. As they had been moving forward and had cut their base, it was impossible to obtain these articles from army stores. The Canadians were not alone in this condition, for all corps were very much alike. Canadians could be seen marching in their stocking feet, their boots having gone to pieces completely. To make matters worse, the men were compelled to go on half rations for a time, so difficult was it to get the food supply from the coast to provision an army of some 130,000. Two squares of biscuit with a small piece of meat, was short enough provender, in all conscience, and one does not wonder that some were tempted to augment their scanty fare by the capture of a Boer "broiler." The punishment of 60 days' hard labor meted out to one Canadian, for this offense, therefore, must be regarded as somewhat severe. No doubt hundreds of others followed suit, and in the circumstances they could scarcely be blamed. It was "looting" that could in some measure be justified. With this as their experience before they reached Bloemfontain, it is not purprising that Gen. Roberts and his associates are anxious to make the march forward as free as possible from these breaks-down. The nature of the country, to say nothing of the undivided hostility of the people, demands it or failure would be among the possibilities. Then there has undoubtedly been great mortality among the horses, hundreds having died with none to take their places till the arrivals from the seaboard. A British army officer who has a thorough knowledge of the territory describes the railway from Bloomfoentain to the Vaal River as running to the N. N. E., with scarcely a curve or a cutting, an embankment or a tunnel, through rolling plains. There are some low ranges of hills, but no such mountains as are to be found between Natal and the republics. The level areas are treeless, save for scrub; riverless, save for the temporary streams of the rainy season; untilled, save for mature's pasturage of square miles of luxuriant, waving grass; homeless, save for a few isolated homesteads or kraals; and foodless, save for the sparse cattle and the unattainable lith inst., I hasten to say that in my game. Lord Roberts, says this military authority, must, therefore, rely upon his own transport for supplies. The population, and hence, also, the traffic are merely nominal. While it is improbable the British will meet with many serious obstacles on their journey, towards the Vaal River, they may expect to be harassed by rear sward actions unless their lines of communication are extremely well guarded. There may be also a stand by the Boers in one or more of the numerous spruits or streams, which in no case are spanned by bridges, and in every case have their beds "bouldered" by formidable granite debris. During the rainy season, the spates occur so suddenly that in a few hours a trickling thread is converted into an unfordable torrent, which, however, subsides with equal rapidity. When the beds are dry the enemy's opportunity of punishing an over-hardy pursuer is much increased. The waters plow out long lines of deep chasms, with banks so overhanging that they constitute formidable parapets, from behind which an unsuspected enemy could devastate his foe, advancing over the open plain, as effectually as the valiant Highland Brigade was de-

The caution recently displayed by Lord Roberts and his associates may be expected to be continued as these obstructions are neared. But the fact that they exist, and that supplies for the vast force now in the field have to be brought from the coast, hundreds of miles, and must be protected every mile through a hostile territory, shows the magnitude of the task. Imagine the labor necessitated in keeping in food an army larger in numbers than the population of a city twice the size of London, every pound of which has to be carried from the sea coast, and protected from hostile inhabitants. To have moved until fully equipped would have been foolhardy. Hence, no doubt, the delay at which the British public have been chafing.

Victoria Hospital.

With regard to open and covert attacks on the management of Victoria Hospital, we understand the attitude of the Trust to be that they will thoroughly investigate any complaints that are openly and straightforwardly laid before them by persons prepared to take responsibility for their state-

As to whether, as is generally believed, a considerable portion of such artificial agitation as is from time to time flogged up, arises from political bias, or from any desire on the part of one doctor to supplant another, we cannot say. But we believe we are correct in saying that the Trust, composed as it is of honorable men, have no other interest or desire than to do whatever is best for the hospital and the city; and that they stand ready at all times to hear and rectify every complaint honestly and straightforwardly preferred.

A Flood of Oratory.

Nicholas Flood Davin, the most persistent talker against time in the Dominion House of Commons, spoke for over four hours the other night. The speech was on the budget, and the matter dealt with had been threshed out again and again by the Opposition leaders. But Mr. Davin is irrepressible, and is determined to keep his record of speaking oftener and at greater length than any one on either side of the House, the Opposition leader alone excepted.

Does England Want to Fight France?

This seems to us to be a foolish question. For our part we do not think that England has a burning de- tions. Yet there continues to arise the sire to fight any nation, and we feel sure that her people wiff be heartly glad when the present bit of fighting, entail. As medical science progresses which has been forced upon her, is new discoveries of facts create new well over. But this question, that at first sight appears to be so preposterous, has been seriously asked and carefully answered. Cardinal Vaughan wrote a long letter on the subject, although he says that when he received demand specially equipped buildings the inquiry he rubbed his eyes to make sure that he was not dreaming, and if not dreaming, then he wishes to know if we have all gone mad.

The London correspondent of the Gaulois, a Paris journal, sent a long communication to that paper in answer to inquiries as to whether certain telegram appearing in French persons suffering from tuberculosis in papers were correct. The purport of these telegrams was that when the establishing a sanitarium may ap-South African war is once ended, England would make war on France? Regarding this as an important point, this as an important point, the correspondent addressed his questhe correspondent addressed hi "Does England wish to fight France?" to a number of representative English men. The result was that Catholics and Protestants, Conservatives and Liberals, politicians and financiers, all answered emphatically, "No." What is more, they gave good Britain must protect her own empire, she has no aggressive designs against any of the nations.

The bishop of London says :"I hope that the temporary misunderstandings which exist at present will only have the effect of placing in a clearer light the real community of interests between the two nations."

tor of imperialism," when M. Lockroy's opinion and similar rumors were brought to his notice, replied that the thing was too preposterous to be dis-

In the same sense replied Sir C. Dilke, F. Harrison, Sir John Colomb, Sir J. Lubbock and others.

Lord Russel's brief letter we give in full. In reply to your letter of the opinion the French nation has no reason to be alarmed, and the idea of English aggressiveness against France is unfounded. I am persuaded that the English people desire to live in peace and on good terms with their French neighbors. I will add that any public man who in either nation speaks in such a way as to create or excite sentiments of animosity between the two countries acts against the interests of both countries."

This is all very well, and the correspondent accepts it all as sincere, but-yes, he has his "but"-he shakes his head mournfully over the fact that Mr. Chamberlain, whom he regards as responsible for the present war, and who threatened France in his Leicester speech, is still in power, and he thinks that this fact constitutes a menace to the peace of Europe.

We can understand that feeling on the part of a Frenchman, and we are not prepared to make an elaborate apology for Mr. Chamberlain. But it is just as well to remember that there are other menaces, viz.: a man of Lockroy's position lending himself to foolish anti-English scare; the bitter anti-English feeling so freely manifested in Paris, and the frivolous debating in French journals of a question that is so serious. If the French were to do what the Boers did, march into British territory, there would, of course, be war. They are not likely to do that; but unless both journalists and statesmen exercise a wise self-restraint, they may force the two nations into a false position. We wish the French nation all prosperity, and trust that their Paris exhibition will be a great success; but when their reviews publish elaborate articles, showing how easily they could cross the channel and crush the monster city, they need not be surprised if their somewhat stolid neighbors fail to see the joke. When this great body of representative Englishmen state strongly their desire for peaceful relations with the French republic, they mean every word they say; but it will not help to make matters better if French generals and admirals talk as if Britain was on the eve of ruin and simply cringing with cowardly fear of France. The only real basis of peace is mutual respect.

"Another Country."

Says the Montreal Herald, aptly: 'Sir Charles calls Britain 'another country.' Mr. Fielding says 'mother This about expresses the difference between the two policies."

Hon. Mr. Stratton, provincial secretary, recently moved in the legislature the second reading of a bill to provide provincial aid for the establishment of rural sanitaria for consumptives. especially such of those who are unable to pay for treatment. In moving the second reading, he remarked that perhaps no province nor state had done as much or made as generous provision for alleviating the sufferings of humanity as the Province of Ontario.

Since confederation the government of the Province of Ontario has expended over twenty-five millions of dollars in the erection of buildings and lums, hospitals and kindred institunecessity of taking further steps to combat and cure certain forms of disease and alleviate the suffering they conditions, calling for action to meet them. It is now demonstrated that tuberculosis, generally meaning consumption of the lungs, is not only curable if given proper treatment in the earlier stages, but that it is also special treatment indicated and provide the isolation of patients that

To this end the bill has been framed. It provides that a municipality, either rural or urban, or a group of municipalities, may acquire real estate and erect thereon buildings to be used as a sanitarium for the treatment of simple. Any municipality desirous of nicipalities have passed a bylaw authorizing joint action, and the proper filing of this report with the provincial secretary, constitute all legal and necessary preliminary steps. both site and buildings; and with a similar end in view power is given to select a site outside the district which is taking action in the erection of a sanitarium. A petition signed by 150 qualified ratepayers calls for the sub-mission by the muncipal council of a bylaw to provide funds for the site and buildings of a sanitarium, this by-law to be voted on at the next municipal election.

The legislation represented by this bill is the first step in the direction of permitting of the co-operation of municipalities and the province in dealing with the treatment of the consumptive poor, and there can be no denying that it is a step in the right direction. To those of limited means ordinary illness is a formidable enough happening, but when the "white plague," as consumption has been termed, attacks a member of a family, the lingering nature of the disease making exhausted drafts on limited means and its ultimate certain fatality infinitely intensify the afflic-tion and call for the assistance of the state, the more so when it is demonstrated by medical research and experience that consumption in its early stages is curable, and that it is contagious. The first demands special treatment and special environment of the afflicted that cannot be secured under ordinary domestic conditions.

During the year 1898 consumption caused 3,291 deaths in Ontario, and it is said that it causes the death of 37 out of every 100 that die between the ages of 15 and 60. Under such conditions which may, with out exaggeration, be called appalling, it is the duty of the state to assist in protecting the health of the public in the way provided for under this act, by the pro-motion of the establishment of sanitaria, since the highest medical authorities consider that the best mode of treatment of consumptives, both from the curative and preventative standpoint, is by rural sanitaria, where pure air, the best hygienic conditions and complete isolation prevail.

The almost universal and continuous prevalence of the "white plague," and the dreadful, dragging, hopeless bur-den it imposes upon its victims, and homes which are blighted by it, will doubtless create unanimous public sympathy with the legislation for the establishment of sanitaria, and elicit that practical action throughthe province for which it provides the legal machinery.

THE MARKETS

Local Market.

London, Saturday, April 21. The square was again thronged with country folk and purchasers today, al-though such large markets cannot be expected to continue now that the spring work has been commenced.Small stuff was offered in large quantities. In those staples that are most urgently required, such as butter, meat and eggs, the prices were low enough to satisfy the most exacting, and trans-actions were effected without difficulty. Suppliers of butter were not eager to suppliers of butter were not eager to sell at the prices now prevailing, but as there is little prospect of any im-mediate advance, they were of ne-cessity forced to accept the best prices obtainable. The demand for poultry was not very active, and, although supplies were not large, they satisfied all requirements. Eggs were fairly well supplied at the same prices as those that ruled last Thursday. Dressed meats were not offered very largely, and business was generally good.

Robert Bond Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills After Loing Given Up by the Insurance Company.

Mount Brydges, April 16 .- Robert Bond, of this place is famous as the man who was allowed Total Disability by the Provincial Provident, of St. Thomas, and who subsequently re-covered, owing to his use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. He suffered from Bright's Disease and was given up by the doctors. The Insurance Company paid him the full amount of his claim, $600. Mr. Bond then learned of the only and infallible cure for Bright's Disease, Dodd's Kidney Pills, used them to the extent of twenty boxes and is well today.

A recent letter to an inquirer reads: Dear Sir-In answer to yours, I would say my cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills was entirely satisfactory, and I recommend them most heartily. Yours ROBERT BOND. Mothers are assured that LAXA-

Actors in "the Battle of Colenso" Win Increased Wages as Well as Glory -Engine Works Tied Up.

New York, April 21.—In the midst of "The Battle of Colenso" yesterday, lances and bayonets were lowered, and while the smoke cleared away the fighters of both sides struck hands in a common demand for more wages. The commander of both armies, who was in the employ of a kinetoscope was in the employ of a kinetoscope company, was surrounded by a clam-oring mob of 150 foot soldiers and 30 cavalry, costumed as grenadiers, lanc-ers, Highlanders and yeomanry, recruited from the streets of Orange, N. J., to represent the British, and as many Boers and Free State burghers in weather-stained gray suits, and whiskers, every conceivable color and shape, and rather than see his picture spoiled he yielded. Harmony was thus restored and hostilities recommenced. For miles around the country the news of the coming battle had spread, and farmers and their families took a forced to do so it was found that they day off. There are three Mc-Taylor has been a resident of London Millans, and the department is now for more than ten years, coming here trying to find out which of the three from Toronto. In his departure London loses a citizen whose methods of conducting the business have made him well-liked both by the general public and by his employes. Mr. Taylor was very popular also in a social way, and the news of his leaving will be received with regret by a host of friends and acquaintances. This regret will be reciprocated by Mr. Taylor, who expresses himself as having found London a very congenial place of residence. Mr. Taylor is to be congratulated on the estimation in which he is held by his employers, as evidenced by the promotion that he has won. A NEW CONDIMENT.

At noon today one boarders at a certain hotel in this city went to dinner at the regular hour, and, as is usual on the big market day, the "help" had to hustle to keep up with all diners. This particular boarder gave his customary order for rare roast beef, with "all the trimmings," and he got it, but accompanied by some unusual trimming. Knife and fork were soon doing duty, but Mr. Boarder didn't exactly understand what the beef was flavored with, although he rather liked the flavor. He ate somewhat sparingly for a few minutes, until nis neighbor at table had the dessert list called off to him. Then the mystery was cleared up. "Plum pudding and brandy sauce," said the waitress, and Mr. Boarder knew the flavor of his beef then. The gravy and sauce being of a similar color, the cook had used brandy sauce in mistake for gravy on the meat. However, she offered to rectify the error by sending in a fresh platter of beef, but Mr. Boarder preferred the new condiment, and retained the original dish.

RED CROSS FUND. Thos. R. Parker, treasurer of Red Cross Society, begs to acknowledge the following further sums: Ladies' committee of the Red Cross Society, $15. The society is in much need of more funds to carry on their work with the sick and wounded in war, and make a strong appeal to the citizens of London and county of Middlesex to do all they can to help in the grand work of taking care of our sick and wounded soldier boys.

The following letter has been receive by Mr. Parker: My Dear Sir,-I have received, with Society join, your very generous additional contribution (on behalf of the London branch of our society) of five hundred dollars. Never was a contribution to the fund more opportune. At a meeting of the council, held last evening, we decided to send to Dr. Ryerson, our commissioner in South Africa, the sum of £1,000, and an additional 1,000 sweaters or jerseys, at an average cost of $1 50 each. So that in point of fact our remittance amounted, in round numbers (including cable message) to $6,500. Kindly convey our message of thanks to the contributors of the $500 sent by you. Yours truly, S. George Hodgins, Honorary Treasurer Red Cross Society,

With few exceptions, the hotels in East Midlesex are very well-kept. I believe you can get as good meals and beds as the ordinary city hotel. In some cases the landlords have their rents very high, and refuse to repair while the tenant cannot pay the rent and keep up required repairs. The worst feature I have to contend with is the law in reference to minors. I have endeavored to have this matter instilled into the hotelkeepers, as nothing is worse than having boys loaning around hotels; and the law forbids boys under 21 years loitering around hotels, whether they are getting drinks or not. I hope that more attention will be paid to this Every Sabbath we had our six miles' drive through this highway to church. Recently in that neighborhood I learned that the old river road had long been closed. The elms I knew were cut down, and I supposed the sycamores also. But swinging along in a trolley a mile distant from the old avenue, I started and laid my hand on my camera. There stood a line of sycamores, a mile long. The elms were all gone, why not the others. Because the great trunks lean out over the river, and it would cost more than they have yet been worth to get them. My wife asked me about a particular great tree which she regarded as one of the finest she ever saw. Why, of course it is gone. Beautiful things seem to have a tendency to exasperate savages.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

As a School Study for Girls-Practical Advantage of Such a Course of Training.

The following interesting article, dealing with domestic science as a school study for girls, was written for The Advertiser by Miss Helen N. Bell, of the Hallrax School of Cookery.

One of the best definitions of the term "education" is that given by Pesta-lozzi, "the generation of power," and by this is meant not merely the power to think abstractly, or to moralize, or philosophize, but the power also to act nteligently. No system of education hazard way, but only by studying the can be complete which does not involve science of cookery in the same thorough to a greater or less degree the exertion way that any of the other sciences are of all human powers, and the devel- studied. The substances which are reopment of them to the culminating quired to nourish the body produce point of action, which does not develop skill in the use of knowledge, and physiology as if these substances enthe application of the rules of science tered into combination in the laborain the corresponding arts. It is unnecessary, in an educational point of view, to divide the arts by the use of the term "fine" and "practical," for the fine arts can only exist where the practical arts have paved the way, and practical arts have paved the way, and ought to be demonstrated.

Scientes tory. Food is a subject which may be studied and mastered like any other subject, and the changes it undergoes in its care and preparation are governed by fixed laws which can and ought to be demonstrated. both alike may become valuable fac-tors in mental training. Froebel's idea suesswork. There are right and wrong of education was the thorough training of every faculty, of the mind and body, for the duties of actual and practical life, and surely this should be the aim of every true educator.

In all the more recent treatises on education, the difference on the mental and moral nature between a purely mental training and mental and manual training combined has been clearly demonstrated, and it has been shown that an exclusively mental training stops short of the objective point of true education. Ideas are mere vain speculations until they are embodied in action. It is not what is thought out, but what is wrought up, that is of lasting good. Ideas and things are indissolubly connected, and it follows that any system of education which separates them must be radically defective. The great aims of all true education are (1) the development of all the innate qualities or aptitudes, and (2) the formation of character. Exclusively mental training does not produce a symmetrical character, because at best merely teaches the student how to think, and ignores the complement of thinking—acting. If things that have to be done are learned by doing them, there will be in the course of the process a wholesome exercise of both mind and body, and this exercise will result in the generation of power—power to think well, and to do well, and the pro-cess being continued, the result cannot the harmonious growth of fail to be the harmonious growth of the whole being. To insure that the mental development shall be harmonious, and the resulting formation of character symmetrical, we must have an orderly logical system of trading not one that can develop only one-half of the nature. Within recent years some efforts have been made here and there to secure this fuller system of education for boys, by having manual training added to their curriculum of school studies, but lit Use void's Dyspepsia Tablets at the tle or no regard has been paid to supsame lack in the education of girls, and yet in many ways it is even more important in their case that this want should be supplied. Nature, having designed that the years of early childhood should be spent with the women should be the chief educators of children, and it follows of course that the education of women is even human ailments. more important than that of men, since it is from them that children receive the infant mind, and influence to a great extent the future development. In the home the development of the child's powers is principally in the direction of action, trying to do what it sees done, and under the best school systems a continuation of this goes on the kindergarten, and the manual training which begins there, before children can read a word, should never As we have seen in the case of boys, it is in some places carried on by special instruction in manual train-ing, but in the case of girls when they leave the kindergarten, their training in this direction too often comes to an end, and the divine creative instinct which is implanted in every child, is checked instead of being fostered and developed. The most natural form of manual training for all girls seems to be the domestic arts, and it is to be hoped that ere long the importance of special training in these will come to more generally recognized. Already in many parts of Great Britain and the States domestic economy has been elevated to the dignity of a department in some colleges, and a special faculty appointed to teach it. and its importance in the training of girls duly acknowledged. One of the leading educators in this subject in the United States, explaining the aims of the course of study, says: "It is based on the assumption that no industry is more important to human happiness than that which makes the home; that a pleasant home is an essential element of broad culture, and one of the surest safeguards of morality and virtue. It is arranged to meet the wants of pupils who desire a knowledge of the principles that under-of true womanhood.' That there exists a necessity for such a course of training from a practical point of view will be admitted by all. There is no doubt that the awakening interest in the subject of domestic science, and especially in the teaching of cookery to girls is neither an accident nor a fad, but the result of a necessity for better ways of living; and it has become evident to all who have be-stowed any thought on the subject that nothing of importance can be done to secure this end, and change for the better existing methods until the science of household affairs forms a part of every school girls' education.

If, as a Harvard professor is re-ported to have said, no man can be a gentleman who has not studied chemistry, it is certain that no girl is likely to grow up a thoroughly educated woman who has not been trained in the chemistry of the kitchen. This knowledge cannot be acquired in any haptory. Food is a subject which may be studied and mastered like any other subject, and the changes it undergoes course of careful training. So long as ignorance exists as to the nature and qualities of food materials, their proper combinations, and the most scientific methods of preparing them, so long will the inevitable results be a great deal of unwholesome cookery, and the consequent injury and waste which must follow. The study of the science of cookery includes a great deal more than merely the practical knowledge of how a cortain number. tical knowledge of how a certain num-ber of dishes should be made. It means that the minds of the pupils shall be trained intelligently to recognize the constituents and value of the different food materials, their functions in af-fording nourishment to the body, the chemical and other changes which they undergo by the action of heat, and in their course through the body itself, and the reasons for each step in their combination and preparation.

Scientific cooking cannot be done by

It will thus be seen that the domestic arts must be admitted to be a means of mental training, developing the faculties of the mind as truly as any of the other sciences or arts, incuicating habits of accuracy, neatnesss, order and economy, while the effects of a course of training in them on the comforts and happiness of the future life of the pupils can scarcely be over-estimated.

Mrs. Laink. Who Gave $300 for a Hus band, Has Lost Him to Another.

New York, April 21.-Mrs. Lucy eink, of 522 East Thirteenth street. summoned her husband, Louis Leink, a tailor, of 1,763 Third avenue, to the Yorkville police court yesterday, on a charge of non-support. She said she was married to the man last January and he had left her a month ago. "Leink is not obliged to support this woman, as he had a wife living at the time of the second marriage, and this woman knew it," said Lawyer Greenthal, the defendant's counsel. "What about a possible charge of bigamy in the case?" asked Magis-The lawyer replied that no such charge had been contemplated by either side up to the present time.

"Vy, I gif $300 for him," declared Mrs. Leink. "I vas ged blenty husbants py Avenue B for $100, but Louis vas such a fine-looking man, dot I gif vat he ask midout peating him down." She said she earned $12 a week av eigarmaker and continued worling after her marriage. Soon after the wedding her husband went out on strike with some other tailors, and kept house while she worked. A month ago she lost her work, and soon afterward her husband came in and told her that his first wife was after him to put him in prison, so he thought it best to disappear for a time. She had been since informed that he had gone back to his first wife.

The magistrate ordered Leink to pay the complainant $3 a week.

Toronto, April 20, 8 p.m.-A marked change has taken place in the distribution of pressure since last night. A depression of some importance is now centered over Tennessee and another one of equal intensity is situated over Dakota. The weather today through-out the greater portion of Canada has been fine and for the most part extremely mild, especially at inland stations in Ontario where over 70 degrees in the shade has been generally recorded. The outlook now is more un-settled. Minimum and maximum temperatures: Victoria, 42-54; Kamloops, 36-58; Calgary, 36-50; Qu'Appelle, 38-64; Winnipeg, 34-72; Sault Ste. Marie, 46-76; Parry Sound, 28-70; Toronto, 34-57; Ottawa, 36-64; Montreal, 44-60; Quebec, 38-56; Halifax, 44-62. Local temperatures—The highest and lowest readings of the thermometer at the observatory on Friday, April 20, were: Highest, 71; lowest, 34. Today the sun rose at 5:26 a.m., and which he mentioned that in 1897 and 1898 the order suffered from the loss of nearly 700 members, but during the past year the shrinkage was stopped and over 200 new members were added to the rolls. The report of Grand Secretary C. B. #### Service of Praise.

The service of praise in St. Andrew's Church, a musical event to which is attaching greater interest year by year, was conducted last night by the organist, Mr. Chas. E. Wheeler, with a success that must have been gratifying to the choir and their leader, even as it was most enjoyable to the audience. In a few introductory words, Rev. Dr. Johnston, who presided, complimented Mr. Wheeler upon his achievements in such services, and his words served, also, as the expression of the general opinion held by ali those for whom was provided an evening of music that was exceedingly en-joyable. Especially delightful were the solos of Mr. Charles Spaulding, of Hamilton, who possesses a well-trained baritone voice of a most pleasing quality, and Miss Emma Beyer, con-tralto soloist of the First Presbyterian Church, Detroit, and at the conclusion of their latter numbers the audience applauded generously, despite the understanding that appreciation was to be unexpressed and encores would not be permitted. The singing of Mrs. Arthur E. Brown, Mr. John McIntosh and Miss Edith Hartson, was well received, and deservedly so, although the latter, unfortunately, was unable to do herself justice because of a severe cold. At request Mr. Spaulding kindly supplied one of her numbers. The chorus work of the choir and Mr. Wheeler's organ solos were well rendered, the latter being among the most popular portions of the pro-gramme. It was as follows:

THE CLEVER "TELEPHONE GIRL" For cleverness of comedians and beauty of singers, "The Telephone Girl," which will be presented here with all its original sprightliness tonight, has no superior on the stage of the per-1od. Doubtless there are thousands of people who have seen it from two to four times, which is proof positive of its immense popularity. This season the cast is, if possible, improved. The best members of the old organization remain, and the new-comers are said to be superior to their predecessors. The success of the play in every large city last and the previous season was simply phenomenal. The press everyteemed with laudatory notices, and "The Telephone Girl' was universally hailed as the legitimate successor of her pretty sister, "The Belle of New York."

TO THE PRINCE

On His Safe Arrival in London, England.

Arrangement Made With Viscount Hin ton, the Organ-Grinder to Become Earl of Poulette.

London April 21.-The Prince of Wales arrived at Dover last evening on his return from his visit to Copenhagen, and the occasion was marked by scenes of remarkable enthusiasm. The return of the Prince of Wales to this city was made the occasion for a spontaneous demonstration of enthusiasm by thousands of persons, who thronged the Charing Cross railroad station and its approaches, waiting patiently to show their gladness at the heir apparent's escape from death. The whole route to Marlborough House, especially Pall Mall, was thick with people, and around the Charing Cross station the police had the utdifficulty in controling the crowds. The Duke of York awaited his father's arrival on the platform of the etation, and when the train bearing the prince drew in,

A MIGHTY SHOUT went up from the mass of spectators outside the barricades. By that time the King of Sweden, now on a visit to England, his white head inches above the waiting crowd, had joined the Duke of York. When the Prince of Wales stepped out of the train he was affectionately greeted and congratulated by his son and the visiting sovereign, and then, amid tremendous cheering, he entered a closed carriage and drove off with the Duke of York. His royal highness bowed repeatedly as he passed through the cheering ranks, and went by the omnibuses, which had been stalled for which been stalled for the cheering ranks, and went by the omnibuses, which had been stalled for the cheering ranks. several blocks, and which were then used for grand stand purposes. OVATION TO KING OSCAR.

The heir-apparent appeared to be in excellent health, and was dressed in a light tweed suit. Behind his closed webicle was an open carriage containing King Oscar, who received an ovation which almost equaled in thusiasm that of the Prince of Wales, and to which his majesty replied by vigorously waving his hat, which urged the crowd to still further enthusi-asm. All along the route similar scenes occurred, the crowds around Marlborough House being particularly Good Reports of the Business Situation

The spectators of the prince's home-coming consisted chiefly of the well-dressed and eminently respectable elements. From their comments it was evident how genuine and heartfelt was the gladness over the prince's escape from Sipido's bullet. The most common remark was "How well he looks!" from the women, and "What a blessing he has come back safe and

A TOUR DE FORCE. Berlin, April 21.-Emperor William's sudden visit to Alton to salute the Prince of Wales was a regular tour de force. It was evidently undertaken on a momentary prompting, as scarcely anyone, even in the immediate entourage of his majesty, was told be-forehand of the trip. The kaiser left forehand of the trip. The kaiser left Altona fifteen minutes after the departure of the Prince of Wales, traveling through the night, and arrived in Berlin at 7:45 in the morning. Soon after he took his customery morning walk with the empress in the Thier-

Toronto, April 21.-A bullet in at man's heart causes death. So does a grain of sand or anything else that should not be there. So with the other organs of the human body. I endured tortures such as I cannot describe, or you cannot understand. My trouble was Stone in the I used one kind of medicine after another, but without getting the slightest relief. I thought I could never be cured, and death would have been preferable to my agony. I was per-suaded, however, to try Dr. Arnold's English Toxin Pills. Dublin, April 21. — Queen Victoria, after visiting the Zoological Gardens, yesterday, where she seemed much interested, paid a visit in the afternoon with the princess to the Convent of St. Mary of Loretto, where she was presented with a bouquet in the shape of an Irish harp. The return to the vice-regal lodge was made amid many scenes of enthusiasm.

PROTEST TO PORTUGAL.

A Paris dispatch says: The Transvaal, in a protest to Portugal against the landing of the British at Beira, re-grets that after the friendly relations hitherto existing between the Transvaal and Portugal, the latter should have suddenly decided to facilitate the arrival of the British troops, transforming herself from a neutral to an ally of the British. The protest will remain platonic, because it is not to the interest of the Boers to give the protest its only practical indorsement, the invasion of Portugal's African possessions.

in the Dominion.

New York, April 21 .- Dun's weekly review of trade says: News from Canada continues to grow more cheering, weather conditions favor business, and after a satisfactory Easter season the regular spring trade is resumed, with encouraging prospects. At Halifax wholesale houses report a heavier volume of business than for the same time last year, with collections satisfactory and prospects bright. River navigation has opened at St. John, and the lumber mills have commenced work. Both events have a splendid influence on general trade. Travelers have started from Montreal and weather conditions are more favorable to drygoods dealings, while business on the whole shows improvement and collections are fair to good. Money is steady at 51/2 per cent, but bankers are not disposed to lend freely. Wholesale business continues to improve at Toronto, with the volume in excess of previous years and payments satisfactory. Season-able goods are moving freely at Queand collections are very fair. British Columbia reports are less encouraging, Vancouver stating that both wholesale and retail trade is dull in all lines except lumber, and collections are reported slow, with much paper renewed, while Victoria states that trade is only fair and collections quiet. Bradstreet's says: Warm spring weather has helped Canadian trade distribution, particularly in Quebec and Ontario. General business is Ontario. General healthy at Montreal, failures are few and small, and the approaching open-ing of navigation is expected to further stimulate business. Toronto reports collections greatly improved. Fleece wool is lower, in sympathy with British markets Some slight improvement in trade is noted in the Maritime Provinces, but collections are slow. The settlement of mining troubles in British Columbia is expected to help trade. Merchants there are reported carrying large stocks. OVER THE LINE. Of trade in the United States Brad-street's review says: It has been a weather market for the cereals and most agricultural produces, these advancing early in the week, but weakening towards the close. The strength of pork products and the small movement has stimulated corn, and there is less weakness in this than in the other cereals. Wheat crop prospects continue good in the sections formerly reporting favorable conditions, and spring wheat seeding is going forward satisfactorily in the Northwest, with considerable of the new grain above improved and Alaskan and Asiatic SPRANG FROM business is increasing.

Wheat, including flour shipments for Wheat, including flour shipments for the week aggregate 3.598.451 bushels, against 2.896.653 bushels last week, 2.-932.959 bushels in the corresponding week of 1893, 3.232,106 bushels in 1898 and 1,654,663 bushels in 1897. Since July 1, this season, the reports of wheat aggregate 157,804,547 bushels, against 193.262.118 bushels last year.

Dun & Co. says: There is a slightly better demand for hides at Chicago, attributed to their improving condition, but the distribution of boots and shoes does not keep all the factories at work. Wheat has declined a frac-tion in price, and corn advanced a fraction, both markets being rendered comparatively inactive by certainty that the remaining foreign requirements would be easily met. A Number of Measures Disposed of by Ontario Legislature.

Bill Looking to Abolition of Wards caped. Failed to Pass the Committee.

Toronto, April 20.-In the legislature today a number of bills introduced by private members were slaughtered. Mr. German and Mr. Conmee withdrew their anti-departmental store bills, in view of the decision of the government to appoint a royal com-tion of assessment. Several other assessment measures also went out, and a number of minor measures went to the slaughter. Mr. Smith (Peel) said it was with much reluctance that he withdrew his bill for the abolition of the dual vote mission to investigate the whole quesfor county councilors.

Mr. German pressed his measure for creating a close corporation among the veterinary surgeons, who, he claimed, had as much right to a charter as the other professions.

Mr. Dryden opposed the bill and the measure was lost on a division. The attorney-general introduced his bill respecting lawyers and clients. It provides that solicitors may enter into contracts with their clients as to the amount which they shall charge for conducting litigation, and authorizing the payment to be based to a certain extent upon the success of the litigation. The contract system is now in vogue in the State of New York, where its operation is said to have been successful. One result will be to cheapen the cost of litigation in the case of small recoveries. In the event of a dispute between lawyer and client as to terms the matter will be adjudicated upon by a high court judge if the amount is over $100, and by a county court judge if under that sum.

Mr. Stratton's bill relating to foreign extra provincial corporations and passed its second reading. Tonight the attorney-general introduced a bill which he said arose out of the difficulties in the city of To-ronto in connection with the Consumers' Gas Company litigation.

The house went into committee on Mr. Gibson's bill to amend the game The killing of deer in the water was some dispute over the clause com the members of his cabinet, in the recent interviews with the members of the United States canal commission, did not express any disposition to cede or sell sovereignty over any portion of Nicaragua territory for a canal route.

Whitney, Pattullo and Charlton opposed the clause. Mr. Whitney part of the last twelve months. She is about again. Leys, M.P.P., in the Ontario Legislature affecting municipal government was struck out by the municipal committee, except as to one clause, which requires candidates to file statutory declarations for their property qualifi-cation. The effect of the chief clause of the bill was to give to all cities of 15,000 inhabitants or over the right to be governed by a mayor and twelve aldermen, to be elected by general vote, and additional aldermen, not exceeding two for every 5,000 population over 15,000. This was struck out, as was also a clause asking biennial terms, with elections yearly to elect half the council. Mr. F. F. Pardee's bonus bill was adopted without comment. Mr. E. A. Carpenter withdrew his bill for the protection of sheep, which also impised an additional tax on dogs.

Col. Mutrie's bill to give the police power to prevent the production of immoral or indecent plays was de-

Dr. Bridgeland's bill to allow municipalities to dispose of surplus electricity, where they have plants of their own, was adopted with the proviso that such corporation shall not come into competition with any proivate concern.

The bills relating to "scrap iron" assessments were laid over by the committee. The bill of the York County Council, providing that no town of less than 5,000 population can separate from the county was passed. The pulp wood agreements referred to in the house last week by the premier will be before the house on Mon-

THE BIG BRIDGE

Young Woman Leaps Into East River at Brooklyn-Fatal Fires.

New York, April 21.—A well-dressed young woman sprang from the Brook-lyn bridge into East River about two o'clock yesterday afternoon. She left a cab near the center of the bridge and in some way got over the railing and made the leap.

The woman, who was about 35 years of age, was picked up by a boat and taken to Hudson street hospital. From a paper found upon her it is believed her name is Marie Dinse. In her possession were some letters in German. At the hospital it was said the woman was unconscious and that her condition was serious.

Carroll, chief clerk of the Ontario treasury department, who has been in ill-health and absent from duty on sick leave for some time, committed suicide by hanging at the residence of his son, 229 Davenport road, yesterday. Mr. Carroll was a very popular official and his untimely death as a result of despondency is generally regretted.

FELL FROM A SLEEPING CAR. Pittsburg, April 21. - R. H. C. Hill, of Baltimore, representing the R. G. Dun mercantile agency, was killed yes-terday 12 miles east of Huntington, Pa., by falling from a sleeping car Pennsylvania railroad train. After falling from the train his body was terribly mutilated by a freight train.

A FATAL CHURCH FIRE. Muskegon, Mich., April 21.—The Immanuel Reformed Church was burned yesterday morning. Nicholas Carey, driver of the hook and ladder truck, was killed by the falling of the rear wall, and Ben Peterson, who was on the ladder with Carey, was badly, and probably permanently, injured.
peated attempts had been made burn the church because of church trouble, and an incendiary was no doubt the cause of the fire. This was the church of which Rev. M. H. A. Vander Valk, who is a friend of President Kruger, was pastor.

Mrs. R. Fitzsimmons About Again-Thanks Dodd's Kidney Pills for It-Used About Two Boxes and Health Now Perfect.

Nelson, Ont., April 20 .- Friends of Mrs. R. Fitzsimmons, of this place, will be pleased to learn that she is about Mrs. Fitzsimmons, her friends will remember, was not at first aware of the cause of her ailment .. Kidney Disease attacks its victims in so many forms and so gradually that its presence goes generally undetected, until its ravages have affected some other Heart Disease, Rheumatism, Bladder Complaint, Dropsy, Woman's Weakness, Paralysis, or some other one of those many forms of diseased kidneys. Such, no doubt, was the danger into which Mrs. Fitzsimmons was running when arrested by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

She complained of a pain in the side. She grew so weak that she was, as she herself states, almost unable to walk. She took various medicines, never dreaming, of course, that Kidney Disease was the cause of her trouble When the truth did occur to her, she at once had recourse to Dodd's Kid-ney Pills. The result is she is now in perfect health.

ATTACKED BY CROWS

Lemuel Hindes, a Farmer Near Kalamazoo, Severely Injured.

Kalamazoo, Mich., April 21.-Lemuel Hindes, a farmer living four miles west of here in Oshtemo township, was attacked by a large flock of crows while at work in the field near his house yesterday, and painfully injured. Hindes was distributing fertilizer, when a great swarm of crows settled around him. He says there must have been at least a thousand in the flock, and they came from the direction of Kalamazoo. He attempted to drive them away, but instead of being frightened, they viciously attacked him. He beat them off as best he could with a pitchfork, killing quite a number, but they continued to peck his face and neck and pulled his hair. His cries for help brought his wife and two boys with a shotgun. Several shots were fired into the flock and they flew away with loud cries. Twenty-eight dead crows and a dozen malmed birds were picked up on the ground after the battle. Mr. Hindes' injuries are quite severe, though not serious. The crows are thought to be part of the immense flock now camping in the western outskirts of this city.

the city, it was fortunate in having as citizens, men of foresight and wisdom, who understood that the city was bound to become an important center; who realized its possibilities, and formulated plans accordingly. Their broad-minded policy effected most particularly the department of education. The vast importance of facilitating everything that would tend to educational advancement, and the resultant benefits to the city, were recognized, and at that time the foundations for the present unexcelled system were laid. In the years that followed the board of wisely continued the work of their pres, being ever mindful of the fact that the completest success could be obtained only by progressive manegement. This relates especially to the public and high schools. In all other epartments of education the city's dvantageous situation has been cognized, and provision has been made instruction in arts, divinity and medicine, in the finer branches, as well as those that fit the pupil for the more practical work of dife.

The Kindergarten.

London enjoys exceptional facilities happiness. In this department London education, In the younger days of the first kindergarten was establish-The first kindergarten was established in London South, as it was then, away back in the eighties. At that time it was only an experiment, but was so successful that the city board of education decided to adopt the system. This was done about 1890. In the years that have followed it has grown in favor. Its advantages have been more generally recognized and, according to the demands of public opinion, the civic board that manages educational matters has been continually enlarging the accommoda-tion in this department. The last report of the supervision rightly says: Now no school is considered thoroughly equipped without a kindergarten de partment, and the training received trustees has been composed of men who by the little ones prepares them so well for the work in the primary grades that the crowding in these rooms is in a great measure done away with. There are at the present fourteen kindergartens time some the city, having nearly 1,200 pupils enrolled, with a teaching staff of about 36. A large percentage of these are graduates of the Toronto Normal School. No body of teachers have higher ideals or strive more earnestly to attain them than the ones in this department, and it is owing in a large measure to their efforts that the system has been so successful.

The Public Schools.

With a knowledge of the fact that no system can attain its highest efficiency, or give its most perfect results, unless the teaching staff is composed of thoroughly capable instructors, the school boards, as they succeeded each other year after year, have sought to maintain a high standard among the teachers employed. In this way have been distinctly successful. Without doubt, there are no teachers employed in public school work in Canada more thoroughly competent than those who are working today in London's schools. The city has been exceedingly fortunate in this respect. At the present time there are 14 grade schools in the city, each one having an average of eight rooms. The staff comprises 109 teachers. There are about 6,500 pupils enrolled. The regular course of study as prescribed by the educational de-partment, is taught. A number of public-spirited citizens who have re-cognized the value of competition, have placed at the disposal of the board certain sums, which are used to procure medals and other rewards for perseverance and industry, and in this way have increased materially the in-terest of the pupils in their work.

Collegiate Institute. Of all their educational institutions the people of London have most pride in the Collegiate Institute, and it is only just that this should be so, for its reputation as a school whose teachers and equipment are unexcelled has attracted to the city very many outside pupils, and also has added greatly to its prestige as an educa-tional center. The building itself is one of the finest structures in the city. In style it is Victorian Gothic. It is centrally located in one of the most beautiful residential portions of the city. Within easy walking distance the best of lodging can be procured on very reasonable terms. This is an important consideration to all students who find it necessary to leave home in order to continue their education. The work is divided into three departments, the lower, upper and com-mercial schools. In the first the course of study is practically a continuation of public school work, and the pupil is prepared for the more advanced studies of the upper school. For a number of years an opinion prevailed that too much time was being spent in teaching these advanced studies, and that the pupils were being educated to unfit them for future work. The claim was that they were not learning that which would make them good business men. In order to meet the growing demand for a more practical education, the board erected a separate building, and secured special teachers, and established a department where a pupil, should he desire, may obtain as thorough a commercial education as would be possible to obtain in any business college.

Today the Collegiate Institute is second to none in the province. The credit condition, with poor prospects, apparently, of getting out of it. It had no great reputation to maintain, and seemingly was not striving to establish one. When Mr. Merchant arrived, however, this was changed. He had won a reputation, if the school had not, and it was his intention to live up to it. A teacher of wide experience himself, a man of scholarly attainments and of boundless energy, he gathered about him a coterie of men of similar character, earnest in their work, and ambitious for the name and welfare of the school. The result was that before long London's institute rivaled the schools that had been foremost in Ontario, and following after the rivalry it surpassed them. Then the aim of the teachers was to Then the aim of the teachers was to maintain their position. Recently the school lost their principal by his transference to the principalship of the new Normal School, but it was fortunate in having on its staff a man whose qualifications eminently fitted him to be Mr. Merchant's successor. Mr. S. J. Radcliffe, B.A., is also a man of broad education and valuable experience. Imbued by the same spirit of progress; having the valuable experience. Valuable prizes are awarded each year for proficiency, constant attendance, and good conduct.

The schools and their locations are as follows: St. Peter's, corner Park and Princess avenues; St. Mary's, Hill street; Holy Angels, Lyle street; St. Joseph's, corner Richmond and Grosvenor streets; St. Nicholas, Cheapside street, and Sacred Heart, Queen's avenue. The first five are taught by the Sisters of St. Joseph, eighteen sisters being employed teachers, and the latter is taught by the madames of the Sacred Heart. The board intends building a school in South London soon.

This academy, which is conducted by the religiouse of the Sacred Heart, has had a very successful career since its establishment over 40 years ago. The Convent of the Sacred Heart, in which the academy is located, is bounded by Dundas and Colborne streets, on the south and west, and by Queen's avenue on the north. Centrally situated and surrounded by tensive grounds, the position of the academy combines the advantage of the city with the quiet of the country. #### The Normal School.

The Normal School is the latest acquisition to London's educational institutions, and, needless to say, it is one of the most important. It is a mere matter of speculation as to the benefits that such a school entails upon a community. It cannot be judged alone from the the financial standpoint, for this is only one of the many advantages to be derived from That part of the country surrounding the city in which there is a Normal School should, and doubtless does. recognize, its value is assured. Mr. Merchant, who has placed the Collegiate in the preeminent position in which it stands today, will be the guiding spirit of the Normal, and London is glad of it, for with him in control the citizens expect, and that confidently, to see it take the foremost place in Ontario. The selection of the vice-principal was a most happy one. Mr. John Dearness' whole life's work has been spent in the interests of education, and the experience that he has gained, especially during the many years in which he was public school inspector of East Middlesex, will prove invaluable in his present work. The building is one of the most imposing of the city structures. In the beauty of its architecture and its evidences of thorough and artistic workmanship, it is unsurpassed in the city. It is surrounded by large grounds, which will be beautified in the coming summer.

Western University.

ARTS DEPARTMENT. Among the educational institutions of which London is so justly proud, the Western University occupies a prominent position. This institution, which was established in 1878, by an act of the legislature, and empowered to confer degrees in divinity, arts, law, medicine, etc., aims at providing the student with a first-class education in arts, science, literature, law, medicine and engineering. The Right Rev. Bishop Hellmuth, D.D., and the alumni of Huron College were chiefly instrumental in the establishment of the university, the fundamental object which was to promote the highest scholastic training and instruction of students of Huron College, and also to provide further facilities for higher instruction generally. The university is open to all who desire to avail themselves of its advantages, without any denominational test whatsoever, except in the case of students in Divinity who may propose to enter the min-istry of the Church of England. The Western University and College commenced its actual work of instruction in October, 1881, with Huron College in affiliation as the divinity faculty thereof. The arts department was left in abeyance for a few years, but through the cordial co-operation of the Bishop of Huron and the council of Huron College, the senate was in 1895 enabled to reopen the arts department with encouraging prospects of success. The results for the four years have been very gratifying.

The university is advantageously

Its situation is an ideal one for an educational institution. culum is the same as that adopted for the University of Toronto, and by the provisions of the statute under which the university is incorporated, the same standard has to be tained in examination and tuition as that governing Toronto University. At the present time there are in attendance at the university about 50 students, of whom 24 are taking the full arts course the remainder taking the partial course. About half of the full course students are ladies, and nearly all of the partial course students also belong to the gentler sex. The affiliation with the university of the divinity and medical departments enables students to combine advantageously either the medical and arts courses or the divinity and arts courses.

The university has been much handicapped in the past by the lack of funds. The institution has to depend largely for sustenance on the voluntary subscriptions of friends. An effort is now being made to raise an endowment fund, which would materially benefit the university by placing it on a sounder basis and enable it to carry on its work unhampered

by financial embarrassments. DIVINITY DEPARTMENT.

Huron College is affiliated with the Western University and constitutes the divinity faculty thereof. Huron Cotlege was founded as a divinity school 1863, by the Right Rev. Bishop Cronyn, D.D. The necessary funds, endowments, scholarships, etc., obtained principally by the Right Rev. Bishop Helimuth, D.D.; the Rev. Dr. Peache, of England, giving £5,000 to endow the divinity chair. The principles of the college are distinctly Protestant and Evangelical, as expressed in the thirty-nine articles of the church of England. Students entering Huron College may either take the divinity course only, which is com-pleted in three years, the first year being probational; or take the arts course also, with divinity options after the first year, thus graduating in arts and divinity in four years. At the present time there are about fifteen students taking the divinity course at the college. Under the canon of the provincial synod, adopted in 1891, and by legislation since obtained, the various universities and colleges of the Church of England in Canada have formed a joint board of examiners for divinity degrees, and the Metropolitan of Canada has been appointed a comporation sole with power to grant such degrees. In accordance with this the necessary examinations for degrees in divinity are held at Huron College in October each year, and candidates, after the passing of these examinations in their have such degrees conferred upon them at Huron College, by representative of the college acting for the Metropolitan.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT. Affiliated with the Western University is the medical school, which has won for itself a deservedly high place in the list of Canadian medical colleges. Incorporated in 1878, the college has since made steady and satisfactory progress. There are now about 75 students in attendance, the rolls showing a gradual increase each year. The col ege now has to its credit a record of 159 graduates, many of whom are now leading physicians of London, while others occupy equally prominent posi-tions in their profession elsewhere. One of the college graduates, who is now a member of the faculty, has

The college building is commodious and well arranged, centrally located on the corner of Waterloo and York streets, convenient to the hospital and dispensary, is heated, lighted and ventilated in the most approved manner, and supplied with all the latest improvements. The main building contains two spacious lecture halls, c ical and histological laboratories, together with museum, waiting room for students etc. The dissecting room is in a separate building, a sanitary arrangement much appreciated by stu-

Business Training.

Among the educational institutions of the city, those devoted to the preparation of young people for positions of usefulness in the commercial field have for years attracted wide atttention, by reason of their excellence.

THE F. C. B. C. One entire flat of the masmificent home of the Young Men's Christian Associetion, on Wellington street, is occubied by the Forest City Business and rthand College. These quarters were specially arranged to suit the requirethe college when the Y. building was erected, and are not only the largest, but the most convenient and complete for business college purposes to be found in Canada. The location is an important feature. Out of it has risen a close connection between the college and the Y. M. C. A. The students are brought within the immediate influence of the association. They have the privileges of a splendid gymnasium, and the social advantages to be found in the institution, the aims of which are to aid young men physically as well as morally and spiritually. There is, of course, no obligation resting upon any students to become connected with the Y. M.

Conservatory of Music

That the London Conservatory of Music, Limited, is a deservedly successful institution is best evidenced by the fact that it started in 1892 without a single pupil, while today it has on it rolls 360 students.

The conservatory was founded by Mr. W. Caven Barron, immediately after his return from Leipzig, Germany, where he studied under some of Germany's foremost musicians. Since its inception, the conservatory has con-stantly increased its attendance, at the rate of about 50 every year, and has been compelled to remove no less than three times to more commodious quarters. The present premises, at 374 Dundas street, contain a large concert hall for recitals, twelve rooms for teaching, with piano in each, and oth-

The Infantry School.

As the seat of the Royal School of Infantry and the depot of No. 1 Company Royal Canadian Regiment of Infantry, London is one of the most important military centers in Ontario, and the military school is not to be rated last among any educational institutions. For many years, apparently, its value was not fully appreciated; but once there was a possibility of its removal, and the citizens of this and surrounding municipalities awak-ened to its importance, and clamored vigorously against its removal. It may be said that its direct result has been to maintain the esprit de corp-of the military organizations of Western Ontario. If it were not in Lon-don there would be a decided laxity of energy and progressiveness among the officers of battalions, and where the officer is apathetic there is no strong possibility of enthusiasm among the men. On account of its situation here many young officers take short courses of instruction, which they would not be able to have otherwise. Perhaps it would cost too much, or they could not spare the time, or the Toronto school would be filled, and when convenient for them to spare the time the accommodation at Toronto would not permit of its utilization for this purpose. Thus would their ardor be damped. As it is, there is generally room for the provisional officer at the Wolseley Barracks; he can come to London, secure his in-struction, and obtain his certificate. Lieut.-Col. Holmes, D. O. C., who is in command of the barracks, is a man of wide experience, the third senior of-ficer in the Canadian militia, and is known from end to end of Canada as an efficient officer, Such men generhave competent coadjutors, and Col. Holmes is no exception to the rule. At the present time, three of his most capable officers are in South Africa-Col. Buchan, commanding a battallon; Major Denison, who is on Lord Roberts' staff; and Capt. Carpenter, who commands a company. Drill In-structor Price, upon whom devolved the duty of training the provisional officers, is a soldier of rare ability, and is recognized as one of the most successful instructors in the service. He has recently been appointed sergeant-major of the company of reinforcement to the first Canadian contingent. During his absence his work will be done by Sergt-Major Gregory, of the Seventh Fusiliers, a man well qualified for the position. The sergeants to instruct at the barracks are men of much higher military education than a British sergeant, and are called upon to teach departments to their senior officers that a British sergeant would never be allowed to do. Their training includes all that it is necessary to know in order to obtain a field officer's certificate, that is an officer higher in rank than a captain,

BIG REVENUE GAIN FOR MARCH

While the Expenditure Shows a Large Decrease in the Same Period.

Mr. Fielding's Estimated Record Sur plus Not Exaggerated-The Imperial Trade Returns Evidence Canada's Increasing Trade With the Mother Country.

[From Our Ottawa Correspondent.] of the Canadian Gazette contains an interesting supplement to the budget speech of the minister of finance, in the shape of a statement of the revenues and expenditures of the Dominion for the past nine months; that is, for as much of the current fiscal year as is completed. These figures indicate that Mr. Fielding was not exaggerating when he estimated his record surplus at $7,500,000. For the month of March alone there is a gain in revenue of $797,865, and a decrease in expenditure of $490,517. For the nine months' period the revenue totaled $36,850,072, a gain of $3,791,231 over the same period of 1899. For the same period the expenditure was $26,051,350, an increase of $930,639 over 1899, leaving a net improvement over last year on the nine months' transactions of $2,860,591. In capital account of the expenditure shows a large decrease, amounting for the month of March alone to $817,024. The revenue increases occur in every department with but one exception. The revenue from the customs has increased near-$3,000,000; the excise, $360,000; pub-works, $440,000; miscellaneous, $240,-000: the only decrease being in postoffice, where the great reduction in postage rates has caused a slight falling off of $125,000 in the revenues.

IMPERIAL TRADE RETURNS. The imperial trade returns for the Month of March will scarcely prove encouraging to Sir Charles Tupper and those of his supporters who are following him in his remerkable anti-preferential somersault; inasmuch as they show splendid increases in the value of the imports from Canada to the old country. The figures show that the import of wheat has increas-$190,000; of bacon, $100,000; of oats, $90,000; and of lumber, eggs and hams to a less degree. The gross increases for the month are $750,000, while the decreases are in each case so small as to have little appreciable effect on the sum total. The exports to Canada show very large increases in woolens, carpets, galvanized iron and tin sheets, seed oil and wearing apparel. There are good increases in the other principal lines. THE GRAIN COMMISSION. The report of the grain commission, which was appointed last fall by the government to inquire into the griev-ances which were said to exist among the farmers of the west, has been brought down, and its perusal discloses the thoroughness with which the commission has carried out its work. As is generally the case, and it certainly has been the often repeated experience of the western farmer, there has been great friction between the small buyer and producer on the one hand, and the big dealers and the railways (who are to a great extent the elevator owners also), on the other. Efforts had been made in many places by the construction of what was known as flat warehouses, or in other words, big grain bins, erected on posts by railway sidings to escape the necessity of dealing with the elevator owners; but the rallways had been able to make effective a regulation compelling the use of the elevators where such existed to the exclusion of all other means of warehousing. There were MINOR GRIEVANCES also, such as the compulsory charge for clearing the grain, the dockage of a pound a bushel for alleged waste, and the facilities which the existing regulations gave for the forming of "corners" and combines. The report is distinctly favorable to the contention of the farmer; and while showing every desire to be thoroughly fair to the elevator owners and middlemen, it indicates that hitherto the farmers have undoubtedly been getting the worst of it through no fault of their own. The commissioners make a number of suggestions based upon experience and opinion of the best qualified to know, namely, farmers who have experienced the grievances and who gave those exper-lences under oath before the commission. These recommendations, re-ceiving as they will the fullest attention from the government, will out doubt be given effect in practical legislation, and once more the devel-opment of the great west will receive an impetus from the intelligent policy of the present administration.

A NEW BALLOT PAPER. The government has implemented its promise to amend and simplify the form of the election ballot, and the solicitor-general has brought down a bill dealing with the matter. This bill provides a new form of ballot, which is regarded as an improvement upon the one now in use. Instead of limiting the voter to a small disk within which to vote, the new ballot permits of the cross being placed anywhere on the white space upon which the names of the candidate for whom he votes is placed. The space in which the names of the candidates are print ed are separated by a broad, black band, upon which the pencil mark will not easily show, so that there will be small marked that the deputy returning officer cannot tell which candidate it is intended for. The ballot is not num-bered, and will be absolutely secret The bill also provides for the acceptance of the qualifications of electors fixed by the territorial ordinances with respect to elections for Dominion pur-The change will result in a large saving of public money heretospent in the preparation of spe-lists for Dominion elections. cta1

UNNECESSARY ANXIETY. While the Conservatives are lying awake nights fretting over an imaginary exodus in the Maritime Provinces, the tide of immigration in the west continues unabated, and already this season is growing to splendid proportions. During the first three weeks of March, for example, there arrived in the city of Calgary alone, 230 immigrants who brought in 30 cars of live stock and settlers' effects, valued by the customs office at $18,448. The newcomers are as a rule fairly well sup-plied with means. With very few exceptions they have sufficient to tide them over a year, or until they can realize on the products of their farms in the fall. For those who have cows the government creameries furnish a ready and convenient means of disposing of their milk for cash, while the steadily increasing markets of British Columbia, and the local towns insure a profitable sale for eggs, hay, vegetables, poultry, pork, beef and mutton. One of the indications of increase in population is found in the value of settlers' effects and household goods coming into and leaving Canada. In 1896 the value of settlers' effects coming into the country was $2,188,975, of which $1,714,168 was from the United States. In 1899 the figure had increased to $2,805,956. At the same time household goods leaving Canada had declined from $1,237,293 to *nea eta There seems to be a very considerable current of population northwards, and whether the settlers are Americans or repatriated Canadians they are likely to become good citizens.

The heir of Selwyn rode back through the shady arch of green boughs. His thoughts were all with the gentle, patient woman he had just left. "She is a lady, I am sure," said the by. "How nicely she speaks, how

For the young heir, despite his father's devoted affection, had not the most pleasant life in the world. It is only in a woman's power to make home happy, and Lady Beatrice never sought to do that for him. Before her husband she was kind to him, solicitous for his welfare, anxious to please him; but when, as often happened, Lord Selwyn was away, it was quite a different story. She dare not be unkind to him—she dare not say anything that he could repeat but with admit that he could repeat; but with adroit skill and rare cunning she contrived in a thousand different ways to thwart him, to vex him, to oppose him, yet in such a mannner that when he repeated to his father what she had said or done, it seemed rather against him then against her. She had never ventured to utter one word against his dead mother, the object of the boy's proudest idolatry. It was not possible that with her haughty, jealous, envious nature, she could love Violante's son, but she might have been a more generous foe.

The name of Lady Violante was seldom mentioned before her successful rival—Lady Beatrice showed so plain-ly that she did not like it; but when father and son were alone together they spent long hours in talking about her; Lord Selwyn describing to his son her fair face, its child-like, innocent, dimpled beauty, her golden hair, her pretty, shy, timid manner; of her soorrows, of what drove her from husband and child, Rupert knew not one word. He had an instinctive dislike to Lady Beatrice, which would have been deeper and far more intense had he known that she had been her mother's bitter enemy. Mrs. Rivers thought she had gone through the greatest pain she could ever know. The agony of death was not so great, she thought, as the anguish of seeing and speaking to her son, while he knew her not. But there was while he knew her hot. But there was even greater pain in store.

She came out of the school-room, one afternoon, tired with the heat and the noise of the children; her head ached, her eyes were half-binded with the glare of the sun; she longed for rest and sleep. The little cottage stood all alone; no one ever came near it. She dreaded no intrusion, either what was her dream. Perhaps the odor of the lily and the rose took her back to the Arno or to Woodelves; a smile of deep, unutterable peace came over her face, bringing back, as though by magic, her lost youth, and fair, tranquil beauty—a smile her lips were never more to know. As she lay there, so unconscious, so happy in her dream, so peaceful in her sleep, the sunshine playing over her, a step sounded on the path that led to the door. Lord Selwyn was passing the cottage, and he wyn was passing the cottage, and he thought to please his wife by an act of attention to her governess. Exhales from children as fragrance from flowers. The little lips are always puckered to give or take a kiss. In homes where there are children, love reaches its fairest and sweetest proportions. In childless homes the kiss of wife and husband grows formal, and presently is neglected; the springs of love in the heart become choked for want of use and exercise. Childlessness is a great sorrow to many women. It is like a curse from Nature, who bids all creatures to be fruitful. It is not a curse but a misfortune. Often the conditions which cause childlessness are removable. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has brought joy to many a woman by giving her the happiness of motherhood. #### The Horse and the Dog and the Man

Please mention this paper.

The horse and the dog had tamed a man and fastened him to a fence: the horse to the dog: "For the life of me I don't see a bit of In letting him have the thumbs that grow at the sides of his hands, do you?" dog looked solemn, and shook his head and said: "I'm a goat if I do."

The poor man groaned and tried to get loose, and sadly he begged them: "Stay!

You will rob me of things for which I have use by cutting my thumbs You will spoil my looks, you will cause me pain! Ah! why would you treat me so? As I am, God made me, and he knows best! Oh, masters, pray let me

The dog laughed out, and the horse replied: "Oh, the cutting won't hurt you, you see We'll have a hot iron to clap right on, as you did in your docking of me! God gave you your thumbs and all, but still the Creater, you know, may
