PRIZE FIGHTERS POSSESS COURAGE

In Excitement of Battle Blows Not Felt as Much as Onlookers Suppose.

A correspondent of an American paper wants to know who is the gamier man in the prize ring. This is rather a difficult question. Most prize fighters are gamier. There have been some exceptions—among the negroes, particularly. Fighting is a trade, gameness is part of its training, and—ergo, fighters are gamier.

In the excitement of battle blows are not felt so much as the spectators may suppose. The knockout is rarely felt at all. The most stinging punch is not a damaging one. This is a rap on the bridge of the nose.

Gameness is own brother to courage, but gameness in the ring is hardly a very high order of it. Mysterious Billy Smith was the roughest thing that ever drew on a pair of mitts, says Lynn Bagley, in the New York Mail. No one ever thought of calling him anything other than the gamier of the game. He was training for a fight in Camden, N. J. He did his indoor work in the local athletic club. Some of the boys kidded him about the house in which the club was situated, telling him that it was haunted.

"Just before the lamps are lit," said Leslie Pierce, "the ghost of a man who turned himself in the second story comes out and wanders through the rooms."

WHEN GAME ONES QUIT. That settled it for Billy. You could not drag him into that house with a rope made of hundred dollar bills. Everybody knows what a tough proposition George McFadden was in the ring. He never went through the ropes without having a prayer book in his corner. One night one of his seconds stole the book. When McFadden discovered his loss he quit like a yellow pup.

Tom Sharkey was so full of ring gameness that he became a proverb. Yet he quit to Bob Fitzsimmons. But here no one blamed him. It was Tom's second fight with Fitz at Coney Island. Sharkey knew deep down in his loathers that Fitz had it on him and that he was going to get hunk for the robbery in 'Frisco.

In the second round Fitz worked the shift on Tom and dropped him with that awful left to the stomach. Sharkey got up and tried to stall, but Fitz got the shift on him again and Tom was sent down.

He fell to his hands and knees. He wasn't out. He looked up at Fitz standing over him ready for another of those wallops. Sharkey came to the conclusion that he would be the dippest kind of a dope to get up and he caved in again. So he stayed down for the full count.

Had he been unconscious he would have rolled over. But he knew what he was doing.

KILLED A MAN, LOST HIS NERVE. Leslie Pierce was the coming light-weight champion when Jack McAuliffe held that title. Leslie was being framed for a battle with McAuliffe and had any met there would have been a change in the ring directory. Jack knew this himself.

But Pierce killed a man in a fight—Billy Vernon, at Athens, Pa. His next go was with Billy Ernst, at Maspeth, N. Y. He was a big, strong Dutchman, clumsy as a rhinoceros seeing a button on his pants. He was the easiest kind of a mark for Pierce. But as the rounds went on it was plainly seen that there was something wrong with Leslie.

"What's the matter with you?" asked Dan McConnell, who was in Leslie's corner. "Why don't you put that guy away?"

"I can't," replied Pierce, in a frightened whisper. "I'm afraid to hit him." "Afraid to hit him?" echoed Dan. "Are you crazy?"

"Maybe," said Pierce. "I see Vernon before me all the time. I can't let go. I might kill this fellow, too."

Ernst knocked Pierce out in the next round. And that was the last time Pierce ever went into the ring. He is tending bar now in Philadelphia.

BOWKER'S COMING IS AROUSING AN INTEREST

The Advent of the Little Englishman Will Be a Feature in the American Boxing Circles.

New York, Dec. 2.—The announcement that when Charles Mitchell, just departed for England, returns to America he will bring with him Jim Bowker, the little fighter who won from Frankie Neil in London last year, has aroused a lot of interest in the bantam champion. When England has a boxer of ability the Britons regard him with a fondness apt to arouse patrons of pugilism in this country. Mitchell, Jim Carney, Dick Burgh and Ted Palmer have all basked in the light of British favor and have been petted and fawned upon in true British fashion.

Now they have passed out of the limelight and the center of the stage is occupied by a new idol. Bowker, who as bantam champion of England did something that no other British champion has ever accomplished, and that is to beat the American champion for the world's title.

Englishmen had a good opinion of Bowker previous to that event, but when he beat Frankie Neil decisively for the championship of the world, everybody in the little island simply went mad over Bowker. He cemented the high opinion of his admirers when he easily disposed of Pinky Evans, a challenger for the title.

But Bowker was steadily getting heavier, and soon found it impossible to make the bantam limit of 116 pounds. Then he was compelled to relinquish the title and turn his attention to the next class. He frankly confessed that he had outgrown the bantam class and came out as the claimant of the feather-weight championship of England.

His first challenger was Spike Robinson, an English featherweight of some class, whom Bowker beat after a rather good battle. Bowker notes a resting on his laurels, and his next battle may be with Attel, who claims the featherweight title of America. If they do meet it will not be before next spring, as Bowker intends to take a rest. He was married recently, and according to the custom of the successful British pugilist, he has started a public house.

In style of fighting Bowker, who is generally and erroneously called Joe (his name being Joe), is much like the typical British boxer. He is shifter than the average Englishman, and uses his feet to better purpose, as most Britons stand on the flat of their feet. He is a good, stiff puncher, as was proven by the condition of Frankie Neil's face when he got back to New York two weeks after the bout. Although Neil is a heavy hitter and has put many clever fellows down for the count, he was utterly unable to land on Bowker with effect. In fact, at the close of the bout the Briton did not have a mark on him, while the American was badly out and bruised.

There is a general opinion in this country that Attel will prove too clever for Bowker and will easily defeat him. This is an age of surprises in things pugilistic, however, and Attel may not run away with the long end of the purse.

SIX MONTHS' IN PRISON FOR FOOTBALL FRAUD

Represented Himself as a Celebrated Player and Secured Money—Most Impudent, Said Court.

London, Dec. 4.—Thomas Arthur Gee, a Barnsley miner, has provided a story with a moral.

He went to the officials of the Darfield Football Club and told them that he was Thomas Lee Ostik, formerly a well-known member of the Bolton Wanderers Football Team. Upon the strength of this statement the officials at a fair wage, members of the club collected £2.50 for him, and he was picked to play in the Darfield team last Saturday.

On Saturday morning, in company with the secretary of the club, who believed him to be Ostik, he went to the house of Mr. Turtton, the treasurer, and told Mrs. Turtton that her husband had authorized him to draw a government from her. This was duly paid him.

Then he made his great mistake. He went into the field with the local team. Their hopes ran high, for they expected great things of such a well-known player.

But Gee could no longer keep up the deception. His football was more than below the reputation of that of the man he was impersonating. He could hardly play at all.

At half-back he stopped the ball with his hands. The referee ordered him off the field, and the sorely disappointed treasurer to the club at once gave him into custody.

The court found that the making of the club if we got a man like Ostik, said the deluded treasurer sadly when the case was tried before the West Riding Magistrates, "and this man was an absolute fraud."

The Bench said it was the most impudent fraud that had come to its notice, and sentenced Gee to six months' hard labor.

BASKETBALL.
WESTERN LEAGUE SCHEDULE.

Stratford, Dec. 3.—At the meeting held here a schedule was drawn up for the Western Ontario Y. M. C. A. Intermediate Basketball League. The schedule will be submitted to the London association before being finally adopted.

Mr. George McLaren, of London, was unable to be present at the meeting, but representatives were present from Berlin and Stratford. It is the intention to have the first game at Berlin about Dec. 13.

BASEBALL.
EASTERN LEAGUE MEN SIGNED.

Below will be found the first public bulletin sent out by Harry L. Taylor, president of the Eastern League. It contains the names of players that have signed contracts for the season of 1906 with the following clubs:

Baltimore—William O'Hara and F. Hunter.
Newark—H. C. Bronkle, W. F. Conners, Thomas Ford and J. C. Cockstahler.

Rochester—William Clancy, T. S. G. McLean, John Manning, Jos. W. Nelson, Leo Comerford and H. Ostick.

CANUCKS NEAR THE TOP.

Charles Hearnall, who once played with the old Canadian League, is the leader of the American Association, with a batting average of .394. He also led the number of hits, with 204 to his credit. Billy Congalton, an old Gaelic hero, is ninth, with an average of .314. Billy gets up in the big ring the coming season, and his many friends are pulling for him to get a good place. Eddie Siever, formerly of London, is also in the list of 200 batters, with an average of .302. Eddie expects to have a good season in the box with Detroit.

GETTING READY FOR 1906.
Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 2.—The Philadelphia National League club looks forward to the 1906 baseball season in a most hopeful manner. Beside the regulars who finished up the season last fall for the Phillies, they have also drafted McCloskey, of Omaha; Hoff and Kane, of Savannah, Moren, of Atlanta; Lush, of Williamsport, Sentell, of Macon, Brady and Ward, of Clayton, N. J.; Charles Johnson, of Atlantic City, and C. A. Christ, of Cincinnati.

TERRY M'GOVERN CRIED LIKE BABY

He Meets Young Corbett on Broadway—Recalls Fatal
Thanksgiving Day.

New York, Dec. 2.—Terry McGovern and Young Corbett met in the rotunda of the Rosemont yesterday. The meeting recalled another meeting four years ago. It was on Thanksgiving Day at Hartford that the feather-weight championship changed from Terry to Corbett.

Everybody will remember what a surprise it was. No one thought Corbett had any more chance than a snow ball would have in a Russian bath. There was no betting. This morning a man named Reardon approached Honest John Kelly and offered to bet him $1,500 to $200 on Corbett.

Kelly hesitated a moment. "I'm making you a present of $300," he said. "But as a professional gambler, I can't overlook those odds. You're on."

That's how much of a betting proposition that fight was. After it had happened Corbett had so many prospective managers around him that he was nearly smothered.

"Get me out of this, will you?" he said to me, "I'm in the air. Want to see Terry?"

I managed to get him through the mob and up to Terry's room. The defeated champion was seated on the edge of the bed. He was alone. Sam Harris was attending to some money business. Terry had not really begun to realize what he had lost.

Corbett sat down beside him. He put his arm around his neck. "Don't feel blue, old man," he said. "It comes to all of us. I'll get it some day."

Terry burst out crying. The smash on the jaw couldn't even make him wince, but that touch of sympathy turned on the water.

I didn't think it any place for me, so I left those two kids together. Jimmy Gardner's stock has taken a slide down the mountain. Even so, wise a fight doper as Jim Coffroth said before Jimmy's go with Tim Sullivan that Gardner was the best of the lightweights and could put it on either Nelson or Britt.

It doesn't look so now. His defeat was a surprise, as those who know, or think they do, couldn't see where the boy had gone so cleverly through Buddy Ryan, Rafe Turner and others of class would lose to a man who had not shown much form.

But while it puts Gardner back in the running with such lads as Nelson and Britt, the same does not push Sullivan forward to any alarming extent. For such are the vagaries of the prize ring. Sullivan cannot be expected to make the 123-pound limit. He is rather a welter-weight.

Willie Lewis' win over Fred Douglas does not seem to be set with brilliant. To win on a foul when you are dropped is certainly a consolation. Tached thereto that do not put any halos around the brow. What's the matter with Lewis getting on with the matter of the mountain. Even so, Twin Sullivan is a welter-weight, giving us a line on his real self? That fight would come pretty near to determining the championship.

NATURE'S PANACEA

Seek Rest in the Green Dells, Says
Poet Laureate.

London, Dec. 4.—Nature's panacea for modern fatigue was the subject of an address delivered by Alfred Austin, poet laureate, before a meeting of the national trust for the preservation of historic interest and public beauty.

In support of the proposed purchase of Gowerbarrow Fell, Cumberland, he had said these words: "I would understand what the purchase would mean to the people in all ages. He said nature had been a source of rest and refreshment to men and women, fabled, depressed and nerve-wrecked by exhausting toil in cities, but never before was there such need as now for the healing change and restoring influence she provides in some of her green dells, the silent majesty of her mountains, and the melody of her brooks and waterfalls."

When those who have sought it return to the crowded urban existence, how many times they will feel and say like Wordsworth felt and wrote, "The music in my heart I bore long after it was heard no more."

HOCKEY.
SMITH'S FALLS IN FAST COMPANY.

Montreal, Dec. 3.—The Federal Hockey League held its annual meeting at the Savoy Hotel last night. The chief business transacted was the discussion as to whether the new teams applying for admission to the league be admitted or not.

As it turned out Smith's Falls gained admission to senior company, but Morrisburg was left out of the fold.

Brookville complained at having to pay $50 to Ottawa every time the latter team played a match with them at Brookville, but the league decided that this must be done.

It was decided to put the double referee system in force. The referee to have general charge of the game, while his assistant should have equal authority in the matter of rough play only.

A motion was made and carried also whereby all clubs in the Federal League who have not a properly lighted rink for the matches shall lose their franchise.

The following officers were elected: President, J. P. Dickson, of Ottawa; first vice-president, Mr. Geo. A. Stiles, of Cornwall; second vice-president, Mr. L. R. Cossey, of Brookville; secretary-treasurer, J. A. Strachan, of Windsor; executive, J. W. Washburn, of Smith's Falls; Mr. Bissonnette, of Montserrat. From this list it will be seen that each team has a representative in the management.

THE OUTLOOK AT BELLEVILLE.
Belleville, Dec. 3.—The junior team will commence practice on Monday, weather permits. There is plenty of material to choose a fast team from, and the prospects are very bright for the youngsters' district.

TOO LAZY TO DELIVER

A Postman Is Caught in the Act of Burning Circulars.

Toronto, Dec. 2.—Amos North, a letter carrier, was caught burning circulars in the furnace of the branch postoffice on Spadina avenue on Saturday afternoon. He was immediately taken to Inspector Henderson, who caused him to be arrested on a charge of destroying mail.

Suspicion has for some time rested on North. Circular letters sent out by the large advertisers to addresses on Major and Robert streets, and part of Frontview avenue, which is his "walk," failed to reach their destination. Inspector Henderson sent a number of decoy letters which did not arrive at the addresses. Early Saturday morning a man was secreted in the basement of the branch office to which North is attached, and in a short time he came downstairs and threw some letters into the furnace. The spy jumped up and succeeded in rescuing some of the letters.

One of them is marked "cannot be found." This should have been returned to the Central office. Another was a circular letter sent out by Mr. Henderson. It is thought that the postman, to save himself trouble of delivering or returning letters, burnt them.

He is 28 years of age, and was married only a short time ago. He lives at 139 Lippincott street.

ROYAL VISITORS ON INDIAN SOIL

Barbaric Splendor of the Reception to Wales.

PROMISES TO SEND HIS SON

Magnificent and Costly Presents For the Princess—Tour of Benefit to the Empire.

London, Dec. 3.—On Nov. 5th the Prince and Princess of Wales first set foot on Indian soil at Bombay, and were received with an outburst of enthusiasm that is an earnest of the success of their tour. Coming at a time when an unfortunate difference between Lord Curzon and Lord Kitchener has had a most undesirable influence upon the mind of the average Indian, the visit of the future King and Queen of England is designed to have a beneficial effect. It is, as the London Times says, a reminder that viceroys and generals may come and go, but that the British Government goes on forever. Moreover, as the average British subject in India is prone to regard persons rather than institutions, the presence of the Prince and Princess of Wales should be particularly stimulating to their feelings of loyalty and patriotism.

From the pen of an eye-witness of the reception of their Royal Highnesses the following description of Bombay on the 5th is borrowed:

"The whole city, native and European, has burst into a galaxy of bunting, nowhere, perhaps, more effective than where the broad avenues of state trees, thickly garlanded with blossoming, seem to form a rainbow. Triumphant arches with loyal inscriptions in many tongues; miles almost of stands, presently to be lined with thousands of spectators, each bringing some fresh color into the scene; troops, Indian and European, every arm, moving to their allotted stations, either to line the streets or to join themselves in the royal procession; brilliant corteges of Indian chiefs, escorted by their own picturesque retainers; vast crowds of humbler folk, making betimes for some column of vantage, some in bullock carts or other quaint conveyances, but the majority of these are only some of the most salient features of the spectacle illuminated by the bright sun of that night. When morning came the mother was dead.

Prince's Happy Speech.

In reply to the formal welcome extended by the city of Bombay, the Prince of Wales made an address that was unusually well received. Canadians know that the prince has opinions of his own, and that his utterances are, as a rule, much superior to the commonplace expectations of one in his position. The people of India will find this out as the tour proceeds. In Bombay he struck the right note and gave a hearty response from the thousands within reach of his voice. He recalled the fact that 29 years ago less a day his royal father had stood before the citizens of Bombay and was welcomed by them, and he declared that from his father and his grandfather he had inherited a love for India and Indians. He concluded by saying:

"We cannot, as we should like, see all your many institutions, but we hope to have opportunities of gaining some insight into the character of some of the institutions in India. We both hope to carry home with us not only a warm sympathy and affection for the people of India, but an increased and abiding interest in India's wants and problems, and an acquaintance with the various classes, officials, and non-official, British and Indian, who, under God's Providence, are laboring to one end—the well-being of India and the happiness of her people."

Magnificent Entertainment.

Correspondents with the royal party profess themselves unable to do justice to the magnificence of the entertainments already provided for the prince and princess. The reception of the princess by the native women of the Hindu, Parsee and Mohammedan communities was marvelous in its beauty and dignity. Thousands of women took part in the ceremonies, and the princess confessed that she had never been more impressed by any spectacle she had ever beheld. And, tomorrow, when the prince and princess are in the city, it is extremely likely that for barbaric splendor all the events of the Bombay reception will be eclipsed, when the party visits Northern, Central and Southern India, where rule the great feudatory princes. Another magnificent ceremony, the one of great industrial significance, was the laying of the foundation for the immense Alexandra docks, one of the greatest public works ever undertaken in India.

The Prince of Wales has practically promised that his son shall visit India when he grows up, and the statement in Bombay was greeted with applause rather out of proportion to the importance of the pledge. Why should he not? Why, indeed, should not the King himself, the Queen, and the Prince and Princess of Wales make frequent visits to the dominions beyond the seas? They would do incalculable good by keeping personally in touch with the great movements in Asia, Africa, Australia and Canada. One visit in a lifetime is hardly adequate for practical purposes, and it would be easy and pleasant to make a dozen. We do not suppose there is anywhere in the empire any sense of neglect occasioned by the angel visits of royalty, but the people like to see the King and Queen. They are proud to welcome them, and it seems rather unfortunate that so few opportunities are presented.

TINY VICTIM OF COSSACKS

Was Struck by Bullet and Saw Her Mother Shot in Odessa.

New York, Dec. 4.—Bearing upon her the mark of a Cossack bullet, Samia, a little girl, ten years old, a refugee from a far-off Russia, is in Odessa, Russia, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Jennie Mannum, No. 35 Liberty Avenue, East New York. The child arrived a few days ago. She made the long journey from the city on the Black Sea unharmed. Her mother was killed by Cossacks in the course of the rioting.

Little Samia, through her sister's aid, yesterday told a reporter a remarkable story of her adventures during the late riots.

Rioting which followed soon after the mutiny on the Kiziaz Potemkin found little Samia visiting another little girl, the child of a neighbor, living at a distance from the Cossack home. Curious to learn the cause of the outbreak, Samia says, she went to a window and looked out. A Cossack in the street spied her, and, raising his rifle, took deliberate aim and fired. The bullet grazed the child's throat, and she fell back screaming, and fainted.

When the rioters entered the house, bent upon plunder and massacre, Samia, with her mother, and every arm, moving to their allotted stations, either to line the streets or to join themselves in the royal procession; brilliant corteges of Indian chiefs, escorted by their own picturesque retainers; vast crowds of humbler folk, making betimes for some column of vantage, some in bullock carts or other quaint conveyances, but the majority of these are only some of the most salient features of the spectacle illuminated by the bright sun of that night. When morning came the mother was dead.

Influential friends of the family undertook to save the child, and, with funds provided by her sister Ida and her mother's sister, Mrs. Mannum, Samia came to the United States. Her journey took her from Odessa to Hamburg, where she boarded the Amerika, which reached port here last Monday.

GOLD IN ABYSSINIA

An English Explorer Says Menelik's Land is Also Fertile.

London, Dec. 4.—Mr. Weld-Blundell, who has returned from an expedition in Abyssinia, has given some picturesque details of his trip.

During the entire period he was alone except for his escort of sixteen men. Abyssinians and Gallas, and for four months he lived in a country hitherto unknown to white men. Thirty mules carried the supplies.

The greater part of the time was spent in the neighborhood of Zway, and in the western side of the Abai, (the Blue Nile in Abyssinia), where it enters the Sudan.

Mr. Blundell states that he found a magnificent country, with very fine tribes and magnificent cultivation, mostly in the hands of the Gallas. Along the tributaries of the Blue Nile, right down as far as the Bari, all the rich, fertile soil was being cultivated by a population engaged in sowing gold.

There is an enormous quantity of gold in this region in which thousands of people are mining. The method employed by them being the same as that in use in the west coast of Africa.

An Italian company is working gold, and there are English concessions in connection with which English engineers are being sent out to Abyssinia.

Blundell spent nearly five months in the Abyssinian capital, the guest of Sir John Harrington, the British Minister, and was received on several occasions by the Emperor, who greatly assisted him in investigating the chronicles and manuscripts of the palace.

An important feature of life in the Abyssinian capital are the enormous banquets which are held twice a week in the banquet hall of the palace. At these occasions of 5,000 soldiers are fed on raw meat, bread and tea, and Abyssinian drink, made from honey.

Mr. Blundell says that Menelik, whom he found most cordial and polite, has undoubtedly more confidence in British policy than in that of any other country.

ALL CZAR'S MOVES ARE FAILURES

Seems Utterly Unable To Do The Right Thing.

THERE IS NO MIDDLE COURSE

Attempt To Reconcile Reactionaries and Proletariat Must Now Be Abandoned.

London, Dec. 4.—The point has practically been reached in Russia where an attempt to steer a middle course between the demands of the reactionaries and the proletariat must be abandoned. The time seems close at hand, indeed, when the dethronement of Nicholas by one side or the other will bring a final crisis in Russia's fate.

Information received today from St. Petersburg in regard to the latest situation is that the Czar's last concession is a flagrant example of his hopeless wrong-headedness. The devotion of the peasants' bank administration and with it the entire land-purchase system, to the zone of each province, is a more generous concession to the actual farmers than all the Irish legislation in the British statute books.

It is as good as any method that statesmanship could have devised, but the gift has fallen dead and uncared for. It is not a question of something that a far-seeing ruler should have done years ago. Had it appeared only three weeks of peasant rioting, the manifesto abandoning redemption payments by the peasantry on crown lands which are hopelessly in arrears, it might, indeed, it would have given an all important note of sincerity to the Czar's act, but now after the intervening three weeks of peasant rioting and land seizures it is only another surrender wrung by merciless pressure.

And how does the Czar stand in all this wreckage? The few who are left, with the assent, if not the approval of the court and aristocracy. Now the peasantry turn to and try what wholesale destruction may bring them and the courts cannot protect them. The old hereditary landowners, the boys of history, Russia, have no allegiance for an autocrat who can neither by his sovereign prestige nor by his government or army, do anything to protect them in their chance mania. He can only chance offered him with the sure instinct of a man who was born to failure. It is quite likely that the desperate coteries at Tsarskoe Selo, as an alternative to a coup d'etat, may induce the Emperor to threaten Count Witte, the opportunist, overboard, because opportunism, is proving disastrous. Here again he will blunder, perhaps, will throw away his last chance of holding his throne.

It is quite true that some of the insubordination of the troops was due to the contrary of revolutionary tendencies. The army, as a matter of fact, is divided. A large section, especially in the outside provinces, heartily sympathizes with a popular insurrection. The other and smaller group of regiments is disaffected because it is not allowed to crush the revolutionary spirit by force of arms.

A danger of this nature may at any moment induce the distracted Emperor to suddenly veer to the opposite of the present policy and attempt to re-establish his autocracy by a wholesale massacre. On the other hand Count Witte's position among the Liberals has been strengthened in the last few days, and it is not impossible that he will soon reach a point where he will be able to defy his reactionary enemies.

Any attempt to forecast the outcome of the grave situation would be absurd, for the never the outlook more obscure. The insurrectionary movement has become universal, but the struggle must be considerably prolonged before a decisive issue is reached. The very unlikelihood of Russia's 100,000,000 of people make this inevitable.

IS RICHEST HEIR

But Lady Mary Hamilton Prefers To Lead The Simple Life.

London, Dec. 4.—Very plain folk, indeed, are Lady Mary Hamilton, the richest heiress in Great Britain, and her mother, Mary Duchess of Hamilton. I don't use the word "plain" here in the sense of unprepossessing, but in the sense of lack of display of their wealth.

Both the heiress and her mother usually go about their Scotch estates in plain clothes of Scotch weave. They seldom wear jewels, though of dress and precious stones they have plenty. They prefer the society of their tenants to that of the swains and belles of the drawing-room, and they are seldom seen in London.

The only society affair of importance in the family occurred last month, when "Little Mary," as the Scots like to call the heiress, met her millionaire father, at a party given by the Duchess of Devonshire. The heiress of the greatest fortune belonging to any woman in the United Kingdom. The list of picturesque Aarons were ablaze with bonfires, and flags were flying and rejoicings were general in every town and village.

There was a large house party staying at Brodick Castle. Much of the time was spent in shooting, and on the eve of Lady Mary's birthday a great ball was given at the castle, for which special buildings had been erected.

At this ball over a thousand guests were present; neighbors arrived in coaches from all distances. Country folk, tenants, farmers, the house party and friends of almost all classes, danced together and at intervals toasted Lady Mary and her mother with loyal Scottish cheers and acclamations. Next day Lady Mary received addresses and gifts from various bodies and a very large circle of friends.

When Lady Mary's father died in 1885 it was found that she inherited not only a very large sum of money but his extensive estates in the island of Arran and near Wickham Market in Suffolk as well. On the former of these Lady Mary spent most of her time, living a simple country life. Her mother was Lady Mary Montagu, the eldest daughter of the Seventh Duke of Manchester. The young owner of Brodick Castle is exceedingly popular, and is an expert with a gun on the moors and in the hunting field.

AN OLD LOVE LETTER

Written by Knight in Thirteenth Century and Recently Found.

Paris, Dec. 4.—While carrying out restoration work at the ancient parish church of St. Pierre at Montmartre, the architect has discovered a love letter 700 years old in a niche of one of the bottom stones of the first pillar on the north side of the church.

The letter is written on parchment in Gothic characters. With it were a withered branch of bay, and a piece of enameled glass. It has been deciphered with some difficulty, and the following is the modern translation.

"Jean, of Glorn, pays respectful greeting to Mistress Alice de Lisle, as she is his own sister, and you can confide in him as to your own brother, concerning the love you bear to Philip, whom I love as I bear you, and know that this letter will be a rampart in the breach, and that he writes it. Though he worships you, I favor from you received the slightest favor from you, I swear it before God. May God guard you."

It is to be placed in the Paris Museum. The letter was probably written in the thirteenth century by a knight who was defending the ramparts, and who, when his life was in danger, was distressed at giving written attestation to a woman about whom there had evidently been some defamation in connection with himself.

MAY LOSE DYNASTY

Luxemburg in Danger of Absorption by Germany.

Berlin, Dec. 4.—As the present Grand Duke of Luxemburg, who succeeded to the throne a few days ago, has no heir, only five years of age, and is barred by the Salic law—the dynasty looks like dying out. In that case, Germany, which has long looked with covetous eyes on the little principality, will probably have some plan of annexation.

Few people who pass through Luxemburg are aware of the fact that the capital of the little principality is a comfortable little place, with a comfortable little people, kingdom, with custom-houses, coinage, postage stamps, and a small army. It is a charming example of a little State just large enough to be serious, not like Monaco or Andorra, a mere joke.

Luxemburg, the "capital" would be in England a small country town, but it has its little court, its host of functionaries, its modest little palace, and its legations and consulates. There is an army of 250 or 300 men, who are drilled just as seriously as if they were French or German troops. The commander-in-chief has few enough subordinates to command-in-chief, but he does it with an air that Lord Kitchener might envy.

There are no proper fortifications, for the State has been neutralized, but the State has no more or less falling into ruin. The Garrison often consists of one old soldier. About 200,000 people live under the shadow of the great brand. Duke, who speak French and German indifferently, and are insulted if you call them either Frenchmen or Germans.

FIGHTS RACE SUICIDE

Mayor Gives Bonus to Each Child Born in His City.

London, Dec. 4.—Ald. Broadbent, who has been elected mayor of Huddersfield for the second time, is highly pleased with the scheme of giving a bonus for saving child life when he first took office. He offered a bonus of $5 to the mother of each child born during his mayoralty in the Township of Longwood, the sum to be payable to the child's parents at the end of twelve months.

Ald. Broadbent has now stated that his promise has been given to 110 children. Out of this number, only three have died. From Jan. 30 to Oct. 31, 1904, there were 124 children born in his list. During this time 83 children were born.

Nothing, Ald. Broadbent says, has been done in the way of supplying the children with the children. Their care has been left entirely to their parents.

The death rate of children is as low as in the best of times. It will mean, says Ald. Broadbent, an infant mortality rate of 54 per 1,000, against 122, which has been the average in Longwood for the last twelve months.

Ald. Broadbent thinks his scheme is responsible for the fact that here were 124 children born during his mayoralty in the Township of Longwood during the last twelve months. He issued a letter to mothers, giving them simple precautions for the prevention of infantile disease.

THE SCOURGE OF CONSUMPTION

Thousands Are Dying—If Tired, Lung and Run-Down Get Protection Before Too Late.

No child, man or woman is safe from consumption unless their blood is pure, rich and nourishing. Allow the blood to become thin, and immediately the whole system grows weak. The lungs are deprived of resisting power, and the ever-present scourge of bacilli develops.

The most positive protection against consumption is Ferrozene, which restores the blood to full strength. Weak organs are instantly strengthened. Worn-out tissues are rebuilt. New life is given to the lungs and all danger of consumption is destroyed.

From the Strathroy Age we gather the following particulars of the North Riding Temperance Convention at Melrose. The chair was occupied by J.
Ervin, Esq., and Mr. J. Waugh was elected secretary. Some important business was transacted, a part of which was a resolution to ask the various ministers in Lobo to preach temperance sermons some time before Christmas. The next meeting will be held in Strathroy in January or February next. In the evening a very successful temperance meeting was held.
The hall was crowded. The chair was ably occupied by Mr. J. Waugh, and able addresses were given by Revs.

A gentleman connected with the treasury department at Washington is desirous of obtaining facts connected with the remarkable phenomenon of the Aurora Borealis, observable on the nights of the 24th and 25th of October.
On Wednesday evening, 19th ult., a numerous party of the members of the St. Andrew's Church, Westminster, assembled by pre-arrangement at the residence of their respected pastor, the Rev. J. McEwen, A. M., and presented him with a complimentary address, accompanied by a very handsome purse money. Mr. McEwen has now been in the pastoral charge of this congregation fully sixteen years; so that such an expression of appreciation and regard speaks well, both for minister and people. Long may such cordial feeling exist between the good people of St. Andrew's Church, Westminster, and their pastor.

Tomorrow evening the band of the 7th Battalion will give their promised concert in the city hall, assisted by several amateur vocalists. The proceeds will go for the benefit of the bandmen, and we hope the citizens will extend a liberal patronage on the occasion.

The idea hinted at in the Globe that pressed by the sights of the Eternal City.

A CHRISTMAS PRESENT FOR THE KING.
"King Edward, London, England," is the address that Chief John Ninham, of the Ontario Indians, put on a parcel the other day. The package contained two quilts, one silk and the other velvet. One of them is said to have taken years to make. They are sent to the king as a Christmas present from the tribe.

THE AUDITORIUM POP.
The La Dell Concert Company gave a very pleasing entertainment at the Auditorium Pop on Saturday night. A good crowd was present and thoroughly enjoyed the several numbers. Miss Marietta La Dell proved as entertaining as ever, and her selections were highly enjoyed. Her child impersonations were splendid. Miss Emily Scott, the soprano, sang well. She has a soprano voice of good quality, and she sings with much expression. She sang three numbers, "A Bird's Nesting" (Denza), "Mighty Lak a Rose" (Neville), and "To My First Love" (Lohn).
Miss Evans, cellist, played well, and her numbers were well received. The Miles Orchestra were also present and rendered several numbers.

PRINCE FOR LONDON AGENCY.
Printers' Ink, the well-known advertising journal, has the following in its latest issue: "A series of large, large newspaper ads for Red Ross Tea, now running in Canadian dailies and weeklies, shows that McConnell & Perguson, a London (Ontario), advertising agents, who designed them, believe in 'reason why' methods, even to the underscored words. A consistent line of argument has been developed for Ceylon Tea, and much is said about growth, blending, flavor, strength, uniformity, cleanliness, etc. Red Ross Tea is produced by T. H. Estabrooks, Esq., John, N. B."

was not discovered until this morning.
For some time Mrs. Orendorf's mind

Saturday she complained of feeling ill, but towards evening remarked that she felt better. About 9 o'clock Sunday morning her absence was noticed, when one of the family went upstairs to call her. She had apparently got up in the night, dressed herself and left.
The family has been almost distracted with grief at their mother's disappearance. The police were notified and the sad case was announced from almost every pulp in the city yesterday evening.

This morning Mrs. Orendorf wandered back to her home on William she had spent the night and appeared very tired. She is a delicate lady of

TALKED OF SABLE ISLAND

Mr. W. E. Saunders Gave Interesting Address Before Entomologists.

An interesting talk on Sable Island was given on Saturday evening by Mr. W. E.
Saunders at the regular meeting of the Entomological Society. Sable Island lies to the south of Nova Scotia, and is of particular interest from the dangers it causes to shipping. Some years ago Mr.
Saunders was a member of a party selected by the Dominion Government to plant trees on the island, with the object of preventing the dangerous shifting of sand which periodically takes place, and also of making the island more conspicuous to passing ships. There is no vegetation on account of the shifting sand, and the Government is compelled to maintain a force of 50 men there to protect shipping.
Mr. Saunders' remarks were illustrated by photos taken by himself, and he also showed specimens of rare native birds.

Mr. J. C. Hazard, one of the oldest members of the Western Ontario Commercial Travelers' Association, was on Saturday elected second-vice president of that organization to succeed Mr. J. T.
Green, who stepped up a notch owing to the election of Mr. W. R. Grant as president. Mr. Hazard was the unanimous choice for the position. He had served the association in a minor capacity some years ago, and as he has always taken an active interest in the work of the travelers, the members considered none more deserving to succeed Mr. Green.

There were two changes in the directorate for London, caused by Messrs.
E. R. C. Struthers and Walter Hungerford resigning—the former because of his removal from the city and the latter because of his inability to devote the necessary time to the position. Mr.
John Herald and Mr. Percy Millman were chosen for the vacancies. The following are the officers for 1906:
