[Special to The Advertiser.]
Ottawa, Oct. 30.—Importers of cement will pay full duty after tomorrow. Owing to demand from the West the Government on June 1 reduced the duty on cement by half, or rather agreed to return half the duty collected. In effect this reduced the duty from 52 cents a barrel to 26 cents a barrel. There were large importations at the reduced rate, and protests were received from the Canadian cement nanufacturers. In answer to them, Finance Minister White said they had no cause to complain for, taking into consideration the freight rates, Canadian cement manufacturers with the tariff at 26 cents a barrel was 35 per cent., while with the tariff at 52 cents Tunt, of York street, one of the fore- a barrel the protection was 75 per cent. > London, Oct. 30 .- Perhaps the decisive battle of the war is proceeding somewhere east of the line from Constantinople to Adrianople between the Turkish and Bulgarian armies, and heavy fighting also is taking place around Adrianople itself.

Beyond the fact that a clash has come, however, the general staffs of the Turkish and Bulgarian armies are keeping the outside world ignorant of details, No news has come through from the scene of action except the dispatch from Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commanderin-chief, saying: "The position is favorable to the Turkish." A customer expressed some surprise a few days ago upon being informed that every item in our advertisements on this page was prepared fresh each day preceding the issue of the paper. The only item repeated

There's nothing truer in this paper than our carefully scrutinized announcements. No chances are taken in collecting the merchandise nor exaggerations permitted in what is printed about the goods. LONDON, WEDNESDAY, OCT. 30. THE CABINET SHUFFLE.

The Ottawa Government has followed the line of least resistance in the cabinet appointments and changes.

It was impossible for Mr. Borden to resist Mr. Rogers, when Mr. Rogers wanted the greatest spending department. Mr. Coderre owes his preferment to the fact that he sits for a riding-Hochelaga-which gave him 1,300 majority. The Government's first choice was Mr. Marechal, an eminent Quebec lawyer, but it feared to open a seat for him, though he could have run in Rodolphe Forget sits in defiance of law

Mr. Coderre has been in Parliament only a year. He will have to show remarkable aptitude if he is to justify his promotion. At present it can be justified only on the grounds of party exigency. The Government owes a score of Quebec seats to the anti-Im-Bleu and Nationalist candidates. These naval policy in their own ridings without answering for their deceit. Mr. Coderre is not so compromised; he discreetly kept the soft pedal on the naval question in his canvass, and was rewarded by a majority of 1,451 in the English suburb of Westmount, which is part of the constituency of Hochelaga.

In the circumstances the Government has rejected the man whom it wanted in favor of the man whom it can get. Its present plight in Quebec is serious, but probably it relies on Mr. Rogers' dexterous use of the public works department to win a following. The Rogers-Forget offer of a railway to the riding of Richelieu, on condition that it elected a Conservative, was a foretaste.

BRITISH INSURANCE ACT WORKS SMOOTHLY.

The machinery of the British insurtween the Government and the medical profession over the question of army. fees, which is becoming likely, would remove the last element of friction. Various attempts to organize resistance to the act among the employing classes have petered out, in some cases amusingly; for instance, the protests of feminine partisans against the licking of stamps to be affixed to servants' insurance cards. While the act is not so popular as to be an electioneering asset for the Government, it has passed the experimental stage, and the principle of insurance is bound to become, as in Germany, part of the accustomed life of the people. The legislation may be extended and improved; it will not be repealed. There was naturally a note of jubilation in the speech of the Chancellor of the Exchequer to the National Union of Journalists the other day. He said:

"We expected, our actuarial calcu-080,000 stamps on an average fixed between a kilowatt and a chunk every week. As a matter of fact, there have been 12,400,000 stamps fixed every week. Last week 15,250,-000 stamps were fixed. What a gummy feast that was for somebody! The great employers of labor throughout the country have worked it with a whole heart. We have had no complaints from them, and they all tell me that they have found no difficulty up to the present in working the act. Of course, good trade has a lot to do with it. Then the municipalities are working well. I cannot discover any distinction between a Conservative municipality and a Liberal municipality: without distinction, without political distinction, they are working it as part of the law of the land, doing their very best to extend the sanatorium benefit to those who have been stricken

"Between 13,000,000 and 14,000,000 Forward to the starry track people were getting insured against Glimmering up the heights beyond me sickness and 2,500,000 against unemployment, although now there would be hardly any demand on the unemployment part of the act because trade had been so properous the last few weeks. He doubted whether there had been within living memory a time when it was so difficult to gits credit fur bein' deep when it's find men. The prosperity was perfectly unexampled in the history of this country, and he hoped it would long continue.

In the first six months of the act between 13,000,000 and 14,000,000 people have been paying in and getting nothing out. A fund had to be accumulated before benefits could be paid The stream of payments to the sick will begin in January. After that the empire together in a loving the politicians who have been trading ily discounts; never mind Germany on the temporary unpopularity of the and the United States; look at Canact may decide that it is not good tac- ada." We look at Canada, or, rather, tics to continue their attacks.

TRUTHFUL JAMES.

Sir James Whitney, in commenting on the result in East Middlesex, speaks of "Mr. Rowell's apparent persistent determination to protect and keep open the liquor shops of the province."

The Prime Minister of a great province is expected to be ordinarily truthdi. Under his own legislation shop icenses may be abolished along with Canada." We seem to miss in this very by a threefifths majority in any municipality. Under Mr. Rowell's proposal, shop icenses may be abolished in any municipality by a simple majority vote.

The Whitney Government says that three votes for a shop license are as good as five against it. Mr. Rowell says one vote to get rid of a shop license is as good as a vote to keep it. How then can Sir James Whitney truthfully say that Mr. Rowell is deermined to protect the liquor shops? Sir James cannot truthfully say it. He merely says it.

The progress of the Bull Moose novement shows that it pays to advertise. The leader is the greatest publicity man on earth.

Sir Wilfrid says he will stick to his naval policy. He was sure it was the right one before he launched it. The other party is still floundering in deep water trying to find one.

Until this war began, Canadians had no idea there were so many Greeks and Bulgarians in the country. This would not be the case if Canadians one of the two ridings for which Sir had felt a keener sense of duty to the strangers within their gates.

> Sir Richard McBride, as the premier of British Columbia, again declares for Canadian navy. But as the future party, he will accept any policy the federal Government brings down.

The Guelph Herald says that the perial and anti-navy utterances of reduction of the Liberal majority in Richelieu was a glorious victory "in men cannot advocate the Government's the circumstances." The chief circumstances were two: 1, the Conservative candidate took sides with Mr. Monk in demanding a naval plebiscite; 2, Sir Rodolphe Forget and Mr. Rogers ofered the riding a railway if the Conservative candidate were elected. To sense a glorious victory "in such circumstances" the Herald must have a cheerful soul, and one not too par-

ROBERT BARR AND HIS WORK

IBy Special Arrangement With the Winnipeg Telegram.]

Robert Barr, the Canadian novelist, vho has just passed away, belonged to our band of expatriated geniuses. Like Grant Allen and Sir Gilbert Parker, Mr. Barr was raised in Ontario, but at an early stage in his literary career said farewell to the great Dominion. As he was head master of a public school in Windsor, Ontario, in 1876, it was very easy and the one secret of life is to pave for him to slip across the border. Joining the editorial staff of the Detroit Free Press, he pulled on the newspaper oar for five years. As he had established a fairly wide reputa- land. From the standpoint of winning an tion as a short-story writer, he decided to make a strike for honest fame in London, the greatest literary market in the word. He succeeded so well in England that he and Jerome K. Jerome laurched "The dler Magazine' in 1892. In the same year he published his first novel, "In a Steamer Chair." His first venture was a success, and he settled down an average one novel a year from that date until the present. * * *

Mr. Barr's novels have had a large sale in the old country and in the United States. His style was adapted to the popular taste; it was clear and lively and utterly lacking in distinction. His chief excellence lies in the rapidity of his narrative and the development of incident. He is not a psychologist; he paints a character not from the heart inwards, but from the skin outwards; in other words his heroes are brisk adventurers, fighting men of mediaeval times, of Stuart Scotland or Puritan England, or businessmen of America. He does not delight in probing the motives of his characters; he is satisfied to land them in difficult and exciting situations, and then to spend the rest of his pages in extricating them from the dilemma. In his novel, "Over the Border," for instance, he gives us a dashing tale of Cromwell's time. The story opens with a lively description of the last days of Strafford, his trial and execution. The heroine is ouring Tories from home to believe Strafford's eldest daughter, and the that there are no social ten command- hero a Scot, a very handy man with ments on this side of the Atlantic do his sword, does great things for Charles Stuart. Mr. Barr was not only an expert in contriving an historical novel (in which, by the way, he does not take the trouble to introduce a multitude of old-fashioned words and phrases in the Sir Walter Scott style), but he can write a very ~ LONDON TOWNSHIP modern story based upon the feverish speculation of the stock market. In his story, "The Speculations of John Steele," I remember a very vivid chapter which tells how the hero made three millions in Chicago wheat, Another book of his which I read with delight some years ago, and which is generally regarded as his best work, was a rattling story entitled "In the Midst of Alarms." On the whole, however, Barr's work is slight in quality.

and are acted upon, but they do not In 1900 Mr. Barr, writing from his lofty detachment as a self-exiled patriot, undertook to hand out some criticism of Canadians in a series of articles on "Literature in Canada." published in "The Canadian Magazine." These articles stirred up considerable resentment against Mr. Barr in the Canadian press. Many of his statements, however, were annoying because they were only too true, at least, twelve years ago. The London novelist's main contentions were as follows: (1) Educated Canadians lack independence of thought health officer and some minor sugges- and Canada underestimated the value of things Canadian, particularly Canadian specialized ability; (2) the Canadian people are not great lovers of good literature, if we judge by the uality and number of books they buy; (3) in view of the fact that eung Canadian authors who are craving distinction have been forced to leave their native land to secure support, Canada does not exert itself the city, is busily engaged collecting to encourage the development of the literature, and (4) the Canadian public school system is subject to radical improvement especially in the matter of training our boys and girls think and act with independence and to justly appreciate their ative land.

If there is one fan in the United States who is just a little more enthusiastic over baseball than the other 80,000,000 or so, that fan is Eddie Wilbern, of Cincinnati.

For the last few years Wilbern has been dividing his time between globe trotting in the winter and watching baseball in the summer.

English Soccer a Pink Tea, Is It? Well Not Exactly?

Shepherd Tells of Wonderful Playing by English Elevens With Trained Heads, Bodies and Feet.

TBv William G. Shepherd.] [Staff Special.]

London, Oct. 26.-Association of "soccer" football, as it is better known, is the national sport of England-not cricket as many of us have been led to suppose.

Cricket is the "highbrow's" sport, just as polo is in the United States; soccer takes the place of baseball with the English masses.

American football ends in November, but the English season extends from September to April, and no day is cold enough throughout the winter, or wet enough, either, to keep the crowds away. The players do such wonderful things with their heads, their stomachs, their chests, their backs and their heels that you could cut off their hands and make little difference in the game.

Here is a fellow running down the field toward his opponents' goal, with a half dozen men trying to get the ball which he is juggling between his legs as he runs. Suddenly, with a backward kick, he sends the ball behind him to a teammate; or he may kick it backward over his head.

One fellow kicks the ball as high as One fellow kicks the ball as high as the Singer building; by rights, when it strikes, it will rebound as high as a house. But it doesn't. Another player defty catches it under his foot as it alights ant it stops without a bounce. It's a common trick to kick the ball in such a way that it rolls along the ground.

Soccer is a harmless game, huh? Well, it isn't. I saw a fellow get his face over a kicked ball which would have gone over the fence if he hadn't stopped it. It sounded like kicking a horse in the stomach. He wasn't of much use the rest of the game, but he didn't leave the field. An English player never leaves the field unless he is carried off.

But they they think a player has used poor judg- groan in criticism and roar in approval just as a London crowd would do.

Two cups take the place of pennants, and are competed for by the 20 leading teams of England. They carry as much honor as the world's championship in the United States, and the cup games are invariably played upon fields that will accommodate 100,000 persons. Last year 130,000 saw the cup final.

WATERWORKS LOCATION

Many Favor Going to Point went an open her 45th year. Edward for the Lake Supply.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Sarnia, Oct. 30 .- It is drawing close to the day when the new waterworks bylaw will be presented to the people to be voted upon, and the campaign for and against the removal of the pumping station to the lake is beginning to wax hot. Many are the arguments being brought to bear as to why the town's water supply should taken from the lake, and many also are those of the opposition to show why it should not.

Mr. Dallyn, the Government expert has caused a pipe to be sunk at the location of the proposed site for the filtration plant at the lake shore. This pipe will penetrate through the sand to a depth of 25 feet and will be attached to a pump. From this pipe samples of filtered water will be taken Sickness in his family, compelling many times a day and analyzed by President Kavanaugh, of the Southern the expert to show that the water is league to remain at his home in Little pure. Anyone who cares to do so may be leveland club, acted as representative of take samples of the water and make the national commission in the Chicago their own analysis as the object of the experiment is to prove to the peo ple that the water is pure. Dr. D. B. Bently has analyzed sam oles of water taken from driven wells in the sand at Woorowe Beach, and he reports that the water is absolutely sterile and free from contamination Furthermore, that it is pure, which is a rare condition of excellency that ever the best water seldom attains. It is at the present time hard to predict just what the outcome of the fight for the removal of the waterworks to Point Edward will be, but a majority of the ousinessmen of the town are in favor of lake water and are agitating the question strongly. Considering the question in the light of the industrial progress that Sarnia is now undergoing, and the great possibilities of the progress to come, the removal of the waterworks to the lake shore would be both a beneficial and a paying proposition for the town.

Sarnia is one of the principal resorting centres in the lake region, and owing to the publicity given the town's water supply last spring because .of the typhoid epidemic which prevailed here then, much of the summer business was lost. If the drinking water be ness was lost. If the drinking water be taken from the lake there will be no the same argument among those who the same argument applies to the business were discussed.

Militarism in the Schools. To the Editor of The Advertiser:

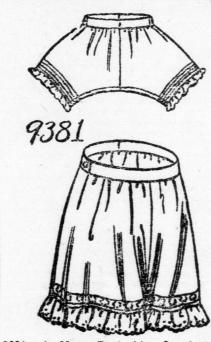

It was most gratifying to read in Friday's issue of The Advertiser a short article by "An Ordinary Citizen," commenting on Inspector Ed. wards' remarks regarding the introduction of physical training and military drill into the public schools of London, under the management and direction of military men. The inspector assured the people that comparatively little attention would be given to military drill.

Your correspondent is not in error when he says it will need more than the assertion of Inspector Edwards to assure the citizens that this is not a public scheme to infect our youth with the views of militarism and turn our scools into preparatory training camps. That military drill may more speedily be introduced into every school throughout the Province, a training school for teachers has been established by Col. Hughes, thereby adding to the burdens of the already overworked teachers and pupils. It must now be apparent to the mothers and fathers of the children of this Province that a deliberate attempt is being made by a small but influential class of military men to instill into the minds of our youth a love of militarism, and thereby infect the whole rising generation with the milltary microbe. The ordinary work of the schools will be interfered with, and children at the age when lasting impressions upon the mind are most easily made, will be turned from industrial pursuits to warlike adventures. Should not the boundless energies of our young nation be directed towards the peaceful development of our great heritage, rather than towards European ideals of militarism and strife?

FEROCIOUS FIGHTING

Leipzig, Oct. 29. - The Neuste Nachrichten prints a story from Kirk-Killsseh from a German who is serving with the Bulgarian Red Cross Society, who confirms previous reports of the ferocity of the fighting. He alleges that there have been hideous savageries by the Kurds, Tartars, and Bashi-Bazouks, whose treatment of the wounded included the lopping off of ears and neses, and the gouging out of eyes, in order to increase the dying agonies of the wounded. The ferocity of these tribesmen in attacking, says the writer, mainly accounts for the slaughter of Bulgarians, some of whom have been found with their throats bitten through and the jugular veins thus severed. The fury of these irregulars alone enabled the Turkish commanders to withdraw the disciplined soldiers to Bunarhissar.

BALKAN BATTLE RAGING THAT MAY BE DECISIVE

Struggle Has Been Going On Since Midday Tuesday, and Constantinople Dispatches Say Sultan's Troops Are Having the Best of It.

Constantinople, Oct. 29.—(Midnight).—A dispatch from the front says:

"A battle between the Ottomans and Bulgarians began at mid-day. The Ottoman troops showed great energy and vigorously resisted the Bulgarian attack. The battle continues with DICCESAN MEETING great violence. Its development favors our army; the position is very favorable, and we have hopes of victory. Arrangements had been made for the attaches to start at noon to join the headquarters staff, and some were already at the station, when they were requested to postpone their departure until tomorrow.

"There are reports of a severe Bulgarian reverse in the north. One account says Djafer Bey, a member of the general staff, made a forced march to Tironovo (apparently Tirnovojik), northeast of Kirk-Kilisseh, and after a battle in which there was great loss on both sides, recaptured that place. Djafer Bey pursued the enemy to the northward and fought another engagement. Both sides, in the meantime, had received reinforcements. Session of the gathering was a busi-The Turks were again victorious. The Bulgarian losses were considerable, especially the cavalry, 1,200 of whom were routed. The Turkish troops are now close to the Bulgarian frontier, to the north of Tironovo.'

There are other reports, which are as vague as the foregoing.

In "Passers-By" Charles Frohman presents an unusual play, far removed from the stereotyped plot, and with peculiar situations and unexpected climaxes arising constantly. The play is typically English both in its environment and sentiment, and deals rather deverly with some phases of "social claws," which are invariably to the front in England. Although touching on a somewhat delicate subject, the situations are handled so well, and so sanely, that even the most fastidious theatregoer could not but be satisfied. Interested in what his valet tells him bout the "Passers-By," which Pine sees from his master's window, Peter Waverton bids him bring up to his apariment a wretched derelict, one Samuel Burns, whom Peter insists upon treating as a man, rather than the animal which he resembles. The same night a young woman, Margaret Summers, is also rescued from the dense fog by Pine. She is, it appears, a bey-hood sweetheart of Peter, and the mether of their child, now 6 years old. Toronto, Oct. 30. - Hon. J. J. Foy, attorney-general, has decided to order an inquest, to be held in Toronto, in connection with the fatalities in the wreck at Streetsville on Thanksgiving Day, at which the fullest investigation possible will be made. The chief coroner, Dr. Arthur Jukes Johnson, will conduct the inquest, and it is probable that the Provincial Government will point special counsel to conduct the investigation. The decision of the Attorney-General was reached after representations made to him yesterday, and after a conference with the chief coroner. "I shall order an inquest in Toronto upon one of the bodies," said Hon. Mr. Foy, when interviewed. "At this inquest the chief coroner will preside. The Government is taking this course, as, upon representations made, it is deemed very desirable that every facility for investigation shall be afforded. and that the chief coroner should go into the case fully." upon the body of John Bannatyne, and will open at the morgue at four o'clock this afternoon. A sharp clash seems to have occurred at Streetsville in relation to the conduct there of the local coroner, Dr. S. H. Smith. According to statements by the military officers the relief train with its injured was held up while the coroner quibbled over the release of the bodies. It is alleged that he went so far as to decline to release the remains, on the ground that the men "might have met death by poisoning," and it was not until Coorner Dr. Winnett, surgeon and captain of the headquarters staff, gave evidence as to the cause of death, that the soldiers were enabled to bring their dead comrades home. It is understood that protests were entered concerning the conduct of the Streetsville coroner to the Attorney-General. It is considered likely that the Dominion railway commission will investigate the wreck.

I care not what your features are, How beautiful or stately; Though you're a young dramatic star With visage flattered greatly, The kodak fiend will make of you A thing uncouth, uncanny— In fact, the small snap-shotted view Is sure to get your Nanny.

It gives you splotches on your nose. And by some hocus-pocus. A broken jawbone you disclose; Your hands are out of focus; Your mouth is always open wide; Your garb is one vast wrinkle, And spite of all your care and pride You look like Rip Van Winkle.

SERVIANS SHOW FINE DEVOTION Lieutenant Kills Himself Rather Than Retreat-Crown Prince in Thick of Fight.

Vranya, Servia, Oct. 29.-At the battle of Kumanova the Servians lost 500 killed and 2,000 wounded. The Turks lost 10,000 killed or wounded. All the accounts of the fight pay tribute to the valor of the Servian officers and men. Lieut. Milch, commanding an infantry company, olew out his brains rather than obey a command to retire from an exposed position, whereupon his men charged the Turks, with the result that all of the Servians were killed. The cavalry, with the king's brother Prince Arsene, at the head, charged repeatedly. The commander-in-chief, Crown Prince Alexander, was frequently on the firing line and entered the town while the battle was in full swing. Whenever he passed the soldiers, even the wounded cheered.
