A Presentation

A very pleasing event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Prudham on Friday afternoon, March 14th, when the district representatives of the Massey-Harris Co., Ltd., completely surprised them by calling at their home and presenting them with a very handsome cabinet of silver and the following address, which was read by Mr. Geo. H. Horning of Ancaster:

"After serving the Massey-Harris Company for 45 years and have now decided to retire, owing to the state of your health, the undersigned can assure you that your standing with the Company, the Agents and your Customers has been always high, and we know that your name will live and your footprints remain in the Sands of Time in the vicinity of Waterdown during the present and the next unborn generations. It will be a consolation for you to be able to look back at the end of the race and know you have a clear conscience, that you have dealt fairly between the Company and your Customers, and that no customer can truthfully say you have not given him the full measure. We can also assure you, Mrs. Prudham, that we know you have always done your part in helping the business along; you were at all times ready to extend a helping hand to assist your worthy partner in life. The Customers all say you both are a great combination. Now, at the sunset of your business hours, we thought that we would call at your home to show we realize it means a great change for you to sever your connection with us and the Company, and now at your retiring we will ask you both to accept this cabinet of silver, and when you use them you will remember the many happy hours we have spent together. We humbly pray that you both may enjoy the best of health and happiness for many years to come, and when life's battles are over you both may be prepared to enter into that Home on High prepared without hands, eternal in the heavens."

Signed—R. Armitage, C. W. DeWitt, Geo. H. Horning, Benj. Hunt, W. M. Mark, C. E. Sparks, S. J. Brown, F. Hamilton, W. H. Brown, W. S. Wisocki, James Henning.

Given at Waterdown this 14th day of March, 1919.

Mr. C. W. DeWitt then presented Mr. and Mrs. Prudham with the cabinet of silver. Mr. Prudham made a very suitable reply. The chairman of the occasion, Mr. Armitage, called on several for speeches and toasts, the time being interspersed with selections on the Victrola, after which Mrs. Prudham, in her usual cheery and hospitable manner, served refreshments.

Canadians must save, if they are to pass safely through the financial and industrial conditions following the war. They must save just as carefully as they did when the Germans were hammering at the gates of Amlenz. The government has made his profitable through its War Savings Plan, which gives good returns.

The Great War has changed very much our conceptions of national finance. Before its outbreak the impression that prevailed was that through borrowing abroad capital could be raised for development purposes. Consequently the need of saving was ignored.

But even borrowing implies that someone saves, so that in the pre-war days Canadians, instead of supplying their own needed capital, were really drawing on the savings of people abroad. This they can do no longer.

The War Savings Plan is a convenient and easy method for gathering up the surplus money of Canadians and placing it at the disposal of the government for five years. A person pays $4.00 for a War Savings Stamp—he can buy as many as he likes—and for this the government pays $5.00 in January, 1924.

Can Supply Fish

Newfoundland Desires Markets In Old Country.

Dr. Lloyd, Prime Minister of Newfoundland, presided at a luncheon which was given at the Russell Hotel, London, England, by the North Atlantic Fisheries Co., to inaugurate the first shipment of chilled fish from Newfoundland. The menu included salmon, caplin, turbot, haddock and cod, which had recently been brought over from Newfoundland.

The chairman said that, owing to the war, Newfoundland had been badly handicapped in regard to her fish and oil products. The Harnsworths had had two steamers carrying paper and pulp products to Great Britain, but these had been taken away for other purposes, which meant that their company had been running at a loss, which was not particularly good for the company or for Newfoundland. For four years, therefore, Newfoundland had practically been excluded from the British markets, while Norway and Iceland had received preferential treatment. They asked, for instance, that Britain would regard their products—their fishstuffs—as worthy of acceptance. At present there was a period of transition and difficulty all over the world with regard to foodstuffs and shipping, and if aid could be given by the Government to Newfoundland it was only what was due to them for the little bit they had done in the war.

Lord Morris, former Prime Minister of Newfoundland, said that the fisheries of the island were more valuable than the gold mines of Peru. It was the first time in the history of the colony that they had sent any chilled fish out of the country. If they did away with the old method of cold storage, the fisherman would be able to deal with three times the quantity without the cost of curing and salting. For years he had been advocating this method, but he had found it very difficult to get people to take up these new ideas. The fish that had been brought over for that luncheon had been brought largely owing to the efforts of Major Green, who during the war had been in charge of the department for bringing over Canadian fish for the Canadian army. Mr. Harnsworth and others present had been most sympathetic and interested in the matter.

Sir Edgar Bowring congratulated Lord Morris on what he had done to expand the fishery trade of Newfoundland. There was, he said, a very large outlook for that trade, especially now that it had been proved that fresh fish could be brought over. Newfoundland had attained a wonderful state of prosperity, and that position was likely to be maintained, judging from the tremendous quantity of fish of all sorts that abounded in her waters.

Mr. Moreton Frewen said he believed that the food problem of Great Britain could be solved by the ocean. Unless they ate much more fish and much less meat they would arrive at a parlous predicament. The Resources Commission were negotiating for the development of their fisheries, but they had come across a very strong prejudice in the case of Ireland and Scotland, who did not wish to centralize their fisheries. Never was there a greater mistake. If they only cultivated the waters and spent money with intelligence, the food supply would no longer present any problem. He believed that the consumption of fish could be increased from 1½ ounces per head per day to seven ounces, whereas the present average consumption of meat was 7½ ounces per day. If they thus brought down the quantity of meat consumed to four ounces daily, and gave the state a penny a pound for cold storage, they would get sufficient money to pay the navy estimates.

Sir William Goode promised to bring to the notice of the authorities the question of supplying chilled fish.

Largest Aircraft Owner

The entire aircraft equipment provided by Great Britain at a cost of more than $10,000,000 for training Canadian aviators in the Dominion during the war, has been bought from the British Government by Roy U. Conger, a New York business man. One use to which the equipment would be put, it was said, was immediate development of commercial airplane routes in Canada.

The deal was closed in Toronto when Mr. Conger, a nephew of E. H. Conger, U. S. Minister to China at the time of the Boxer rebellion, handed a certified cheque to Sir Joseph Flavelle, representing the British Ministry of Munitions, and Director Morrow, of the Imperial Aircraft Board. Through the transaction, Mr. Conger becomes the greatest individual owner of airplanes and airplane equipment in the world, while it is said that only Great Britain, France, Italy and the United States own more machines.

ADVICE FOR RHINE GUARDS

British War Minister's Sensible Talk

To Young Troops Off for Germany.

London, England, (Special Cable to Christian Science Monitor.)—Mr. Winston Churchill, Secretary for War, has sent the following message to the young soldiers in the battalions proceeding to the Rhine.

"You are about to proceed to Germany to form a part of the British Army keeping its watch by the Rhine, until the Germans have agreed to and carry out our just terms of peace. Our period of training has been completed and you are in every respect fit to undertake the serious duties of active service.

"The bridgeheads you will be guarding will enable the Allies at any moment to move swiftly into Germany in case of the failure of the enemy to comply with our rightful conditions.

"I am confident that you will bear yourself with modesty and with discipline, observing at all times a correct demeanor toward the inhabitants

Extraordinary Photography.

The skill and energy of photographers has been expended in all manner of novel ways. They have, among other things, attained difficult pictures of running horses, jumping athletes, flying cannonballs, flashes of lightning and of the shifting spectral lines of revolving double stars. But there is one thing, it appears, that but one photographer has been able to picture, namely, the airy soap bubble.

One scientist, a skilled photographer tells of his ambition to picture a soap bubble in the act of breaking. He has experienced the greatest difficulty, however, in all attempts of this kind. Anyone who has ever watched a brilliant bubble in the act of bursting knows how quickly it vanishes. The authority mentioned thought that it might take one-twentieth of a second, but, by repeated experiments, he has found that the time occupied in the disappearance of the iridescent film is not more than one-three-hundredths of a second. To catch and photograph one of these vanishing films between the instant of its breaking and that of its complete extinction proves a most difficult undertaking, but it has been accomplished.

It might be thought that it would be equally difficult to catch a lightning flash, but it must be remembered that lightning makes an intensely vivid illumination makes the soft reflection of a soap bubble is evanescent even in the bright glare of an electric spark.

From picturing the image of the flying edge of a broken bubble in the ance would be remarkable even in a very much younger man."

Several incidents exemplifying his valor and devotion are quoted. An infantry patrol had gone out to attack an enemy post in the ruins of a village. The Rev. Hardy followed the patrol, and about four hundred yards beyond our front line of posts found an officer of the patrol dangerously wounded. He remained with the officer until he was able to get assistance to bring him in. There was a great deal of firing, and an enemy patrol actually penetrated between the spot at which the officer was lying and our front line and captured three of our men.

On another occasion he worked under shell and trench mortar fire, digging out men buried by a shell. Once when our infantry had withdrawn from a wood, and it was believed there was no one left, Chaplain

Hardy came out of it, and on reaching ad advanced post, asked for help to get in a wounded man.

Accompanied by a sergeant, he made his way to the spot where the man lay, within ten yards of a pill-box which had been captured in the morning but was subsequently recaptured and occupied by the enemy. The wounded man was too weak to stand, but the chaplain and the sergeant eventually succeeded in getting him to our lines.

Throughout the day the enemy's artillery, machine-gun, and trench mortar fire was continuous, and caused many casualties.

Notwithstanding, this very gallant chaplain was seen moving quietly among the men and tending the wounded, absolutely regardless of his personal safety.

Rev. T. B. Hardy is vicar of Hutton Roof, Kirby Lonsdale, Westmoreland. He was for sixteen years master at Nottingham High School, where he is remembered as a quiet, unassuming man. He took a keen interest in gymnastics and all forms of sport. While in Nottingham he held curacies in the city and district, and before accepting the living of Kirby Lonsdale he was headmaster at Bentham Grammar School in the West Riding of Yorkshire. Born in London, he was educated at City of London University. About eighteen months ago he was awarded the D.S.O. for bringing in the wounded under fire. Mr. Hardy's only son is a captain in the R.A.M.C. while his daughter is serving with the Red Cross.

The only other army chaplain to win the V.C. in the present war is the Rev. E. Noel Mellish, who brought in a number of wounded under heavy fire. This award was gazetted in 1916. One other instance of a clergyman winning the honor is recorded—that of the Rev. J. W. Adams, who saved some men of the 9th Lancers under fire in Afghanistan in 1879.

TEETHING TROUBLES

Baby's teething time is a time of worry for most mothers. Baby's little gums become swollen and tender; his bowels get out of order and constipation, colic or even diarrhoea sets in. To make the teething period easy Baby's Own Tablets should be given the little one. They sweeten the stomach; regulate the bowels and keep baby good natured. Concerning them Mrs. Marcel D. LeBlanc, Newramcook, West. N. B., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past six years and have found them indispensable. To my mind nothing can equal them in allaying the fever accompanying teething. I would not be without them and can strongly recommend them to other mothers." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SETTLE FOR CASH

(Philadelphia Record). The proposal is now made to assess Germany about 30 billion dollars and take part in cash and part in bonds. If Germany defaults on bonds, how is the money to be collected? Perhaps the League of Nations could boycott German commerce, and while it would be difficult, it might not be impossible for Germany to get along with no foreign trade. There might be difficulty in getting action by the League.

It would be better to settle for cash even if the amount should be reduced. It is desirable to complete the transaction and not have it dragging along for the next half century. Germany could raise a good deal of money if it had to, and it would make a stalwart effort to raise the money if the Allied and American troops were not withdrawn until it were paid.

In 1871, Germany fined France a billion dollars, and the money had to be paid over before the German army was withdrawn. It did not believe France could raise this amount, but it did; it was the biggest financial oper-

Germany expected to keep its troops in France for many years, and when it got the money it was sorry it did not demand a larger sum; it intended to keep its grip on a prostrate enemy for a long time.

After the war of 1875, Russia accepted Turkey's promises to pay an indemnity. The promises were not kept, and Turkey is still owing a great part of the money. After the enemy's troops have been withdrawn there is no way of forcing payment except to make another war. We want to get through with the war and its settlements and get the world's armies reduced.

But if it is impracticable to get cash for the full amount, there are properties that may be taken. For example, there is a very considerable merchant marine in German ports. Every vessel in German ports and America can use should be exacted. Besides the shipping, there are the German railroads, most of which belong to the Government. The privately owned roads can be taken, too, and the owners can look to the Government of their country for compensation. The railroads could be operated by a commission named by the Allies and America, and the profits used as a part of the indemnity. Possibly the same method could be applied to some of the great industrial establishments, but this would involve a good many complications.

The wiser plan would be to settle for cash, a part of Germany being occupied—perhaps its seaports—until the last of the cash is turned over. If Germany defaults on its war debt it can raise a large sum for indemnity, and to secure the removal of the victorious nations.

The Matter of Jobs.

It isn't the job that you want to take. So much as the job you can get. And the meanest job in the world you can make. The biggest the world's held yet. For it isn't the job but the man that counts.

And the man makes the job he fills. A poor little job or a job that mounts 'till it outtops them all on the hills.

Any old job is a fine old job. As long as the man who takes it. Is made of the stuff that can transmute jobs.

Into the wonderful thing he makes it. And it isn't to wait and to sneer and sulk.

But to grasp what comes, and then sail in to it, turning it into luck—'No, it isn't the job it's the men.

The tiniest job in the world grows fine when the spirit is fine that hold it. And day by day it puts on a shine. And a glory of growth enfolds it; If it's only a bootblack, still there's a chance.

Which Kind of Parlor?

The building craze to-day is largely using methods in use in the days of the Pharaohs, said the principal architect of the office of works, at the Royal Sanitary Institute in England recently. "The parlor question, as went on, 'is a difficult one. Some people prefer one large, pleasant room to a poky living room and small parlor. Others urge that the parlor is necessary for children to do their lessons in, to accommodate the piano and household goods, and also the coffin in the event of a death in the family."

At every stage of life a man finds himself but a novice.—De Chamfort.

JUSTIFIES CANADIANS' FEELING AT TREATMENT BY BRITAIN

London Express Criticises Government Over Kinmel Troubles.

London, Cable.—(By C. A. P.)—The Daily Express, in its main editorial to-day, says that a most unfortunate state of feeling has arisen among the Canadians, owing to the view they take of their recent treatment by the British Government and the British press. They say that while British military troubles here and in France were minimized, the Canadian camp disturbance was given full publicity. "We would point out," says the Express, "that this is only true of what happened in France. There the censor simply stopped the news crossing the Channel, but what happened at Folkestone or Victoria Station and at Bow Street on Sunday was fully reported. None the less, it is true that the blame attaching perhaps to six hundred Canadians was placed on 19,000 completely innocent men, and that one or two comments were foolish and unsympathetic. The Canadians are human. What they resent is that censure attached to them ought really to fall on our own shipping controller. He upset the arrangements and promises of the Canadian military authorities." The feeling is that the British Government is giving to Americans facilities which it is withholding from Dominion troops. "We need hardly point out," the Express concludes, "that this is a most serious state of affairs. It is up to the Government to put it right instantly."

HUMAN FLESH ON SALE IN MOSCOW

Washington, Special Report.—Human flesh is reported to have been sold by Chinese soldiers in Moscow for food. The Chinese, imported by Bolshevik leaders, are reported under arrest on this charge.

This startling information reached the State Department to-day through channels not disclosed by officials.

These advices picture the food and economic situation as frightful.

Sugar is quoted in Moscow at 20 rubles a pound, dog meat at 7 rubles, and horse flesh at 21 rubles a pound. In Petrograd the streets are practically deserted, a large number of the schools closed, and the only persons seen on the streets are soldiers and people begging bread. With the death rate, chiefly from typhoid and smallpox, approximately 4,000 daily, facilities are lacking for the burial of the dead.

Hard and soft corns both yield to Holloway's Corn Cure, which is entirely safe to use, and certain and satisfactory in its action.

GERMAN AIDED REVOLT PLOT

Uncovered by the Authorities in Prague

Where Famine Threatens Bolshevism.

Prague, Cable.—The food situation is very terrible indeed, and the non-arrival of food from Trieste is precipitating a most dangerous crisis. Great masses of people are facing absolute starvation, although the rich by the liberal use of money can obtain plenty.

The kroner (the unit of currency, worth normally approximately 20 cents) has depreciated to one-quarter its pre-war value. The population shows now the easily recognized Central European pallor, due to the lack of fat in its diet. The universal opinion here is that if relief does not arrive soon, Bolshevism will break loose. The day before yesterday a plot was uncovered, showing that the German-Austrian and Hungarians have earned nothing by the war. The German Consul here was caught trying to send documents by courier, which contained the full-fledged plans for engineering a Bolshevik uprising with the help of German-Austrian and Czech troops. A number of prominent Germans have been arrested as a consequence, and the one or two remaining German language newspapers in Bohemia have been suppressed.

He's One of Many Satisfied Customers

WHO HAVE FOUND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Muskoka Man Tells How After Four Months' Illness He Found the Remedy for All His Ailments.

Larchwood, Algoma, Ont., March 17th.—(Special).—Dodd's Kidney Pills did me good and I want everybody to know it. So says Mr. Cyrus Correll, a well-known farmer living near here.

"I was sick for four months," Mr. Correll continued, "My trouble started from a combined cold and strain. I suffered from neuralgia, and had pains in my back. I was often dizzy. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing. I was tired and nervous and I had a nasty taste in my mouth in the morning. I was depressed and low spirited, I felt heavy and sleepy after meals, and there was a heavy dragging sensation across the loins.

"I didn't bother with the doctor. I had Dodd's Almanac by me, and I sent right off for two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Before I had taken a half a box I began to feel better. Now I want everybody to know how good I feel, and that Dodd's Kidney Pills did it."

Mr. Correll's symptoms are all symptoms of kidney trouble. He struck right at the root of the trouble by treating the kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills. That's why he got such good results, and got them so quick.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have a national reputation as a kidney remedy. Ask your neighbors about them.

Most Everyone Uses Them For the Stomach

They Act Quickly, and Make
You Feel Lively as a Kid.

A crowning curative triumph in medicine is now given to the world, and all who have been sufferers from stomach ailments, indigestion and headaches can be cured by a purely vegetable remedy.

Calomel, salts and such like are no longer necessary. They are harsh and disagreeable. Science has devised something far superior, and you can go to-day with 25c to any druggist and buy a box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are considered the very quickest and safest cure for the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys.

Half sick men and women who scarcely know what ails them, will be given a new lease of life, with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Depressed spirits disappear, headaches are forgotten, appetite increases, blood is purified and enriched, the nerves are toned up, and ambition to work is increased, and day by day the old-time health and vigor return.

A trial only is necessary to prove how beneficial Dr. Hamilton's Pills are to all who are weak, nervous, thin, depressed or in failing health.

CAUSE OF "FLU."

Pfeiffer Bacillus is Blamed for Epidemic.

London cable.—A statement made yesterday by one of the leading London bacteriologists, says the medical correspondent of the Daily Mail, indicates that the cause of the present influenza epidemic has been discovered. Investigators have had exceptional opportunities of studying the disease in the large general hospital of London, which has set aside a whole ward for influenza cases. "I have no doubt whatever," said the bacteriologist, "that influenza is due to the Pfeiffer bacillus. With improvement of technique, I found this organism in two per cent. of cases. My experience is confirmed by others."

Pfeiffer bacillus was discovered by a German of the name of Pfeiffer as far back as 1892.

Cause of Asthma. No one can say with certainty exactly what causes the establishing of asthmatic conditions. Dust from the streets, from flowers, from grain and various other irritants may set up a trouble impossible to irradiate except through a sure preparation such as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Uncertainty may exist as to cause, but there can be no uncertainty regarding a remedy which has freed a generation of asthmatic victims from this scourge of the bronchial tube. It is sold everywhere.

First-Known Envelope.

The first envelope of which there is any knowledge enclosed a letter sent in 1696, by Sir William Turnbull to Sir James Ogilvie. The epistle, with its coverings, is still preserved in the British museum.

On all sides the complaint is heard that German propaganda goes on continually. The anti-German feeling therefore grows, and serious trouble may result. The speaking of German on the streets is apt to lead to mob violence.

The weapon most ready to the Government's hand against the Germanized revolution, is anti-German action. However, food is the key to the entire situation here. The people complain that Vienna is being fed, and that they receive nothing; that the enemy gets food, and that Czech-Slovak, a friend of the Entente, goes hungry. This situation, according to all discerning persons, contains the germ of serious trouble.

Food, food, and more food is the only possible solution.

A Power of Its Own.—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil has a subtle power of its own other oils cannot pretend to, though there are many pretenders. All who have used it know this and keep it by them as the most valuable liniment available. Its uses are innumerable and for many years it has been prized as the leading liniment for man and beast.

NO CURE NO PAY

Can I do more than this to prove to you, at last after years of study I have a preparation that will cure Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Bronchial Asthma. It is a wonderful remedy and I can prove it, by the best people of Canada. Mr. Clarke, 776 Indian Road, Toronto, suffered thirty years with Bronchitis. It cured him. Mrs. Holmes, No. 1 Yorkville Ave., Toronto, coughed for thirteen years, one bottle cured her, and thousands of others too numerous to mention, have benefited by this marvelous remedy. If you doubt me, write any of the above parties, they are right at your own door, and will be pleased to answer any inquiries. Ten times more powerful than any known mixture, one dose gives instant relief. Sold under an iron-bound money back guarantee to cure any of the above ailments.

These Pills Cure Rheumatism.—To the many who suffer from rheumatism a trial of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills is recommended. They have pronounced action upon the liver and kidneys and by regulating the action of these organs act as an alternative in preventing the admixture of uric acid and blood that causes this painful disorder. They must be taken according to directions and used steadily and they will speedily give evidence of their beneficial effects.

Early Italian Surgery.

Berventou Celleni (1509-1571) tells of early Italian surgery. He had got a bit of chipped steel in his eye, "so far into the pupil that it was impossible to get it out, so that I was in very great danger of losing that eye. But the surgeon came to the rescue with the vigeons. The surgeon, making me lie upon my back, and with a little knife opened a vein in each of their wings, so that the blood ran into my eye, and I was therefore greatly relieved. In the space of two days the bit of steel issued from my eye, and found that I had received considerable ease and in a great measure recovered my sight."

Every Woman's Ambition For Rosy Cheeks Now Easily Satisfied

Hollow cheeks with dark lines under the eyes, how a woman hates them! But rosy cheeks, clear skin and bright eyes, give them to a woman and she is happy.

The woman who attracts, whose fresh, dainty complexion compels admiration, is always careful of her health, particularly of her blood condition. Bad complexion always means bad blood.

Girls, don't let your blood grow thin or watery. To do so brings on haggard looks and declining strength.

Many a woman who was allowed herself to run down, to develop that tired, worried look, has built up again in the simple way. Why don't you try it?

At the close of every meal just take two small chocolate-coated Ferrozone Tablets—any person can do this in a minute. The action of Ferrozone is apparent at once. It sets you up, makes you feel good, starts up your appetite, aids digestion, brings that old-time feeling of youth into the system again.

Ferrozone puts you on the right road—the one leading to health.

Not a man, woman or child needing blood, vigor, endurance—not a person who is weak, nervous or sickly, not a person in ill-health who won't receive immediate help from Ferrozone.

As a tonic and restorative, as a health-bringer and body-builder, Ferrozone is unrivalled. It cures because it feeds and nourishes, because it contains the elements that build up and strengthen. For better looks and better health try Ferrozone yourself, sold everywhere, 50c. per box, 6 boxes for $2.50, or by mail from The Catarrhzone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Don't Hawk, Blow Sneeze, or Cough Use "Catarrhzone"

When germs attack the lining of the nose, make you sneeze and gag—when later on they infest the bronchial tubes—how can you follow them with a cough syrup?

You can't do it—that's all. Cough syrups go to the stomach—that's why they fail.

But Catarrhzone goes everywhere—gets right after the germs—kills them—heals the soreness—cures the inflammation—makes Catarrh disappear. Not difficult for Catarrhzone to cure, because it contains the essence of pine balsams and other antiseptics that imply mean death to catarrh. Large size costs $1.00 and contains two months' treatment; smaller sizes 25c and 50c, all druggists and storekeepers.

Of Course.

A young author said to William Dean Howells at a reception in the latter's honor in Miami:

"That was Astorbilt who just asked you for your autograph, sir. You don't seem much impressed."

"I can never understand," said Mr. Howells, "why people should be impressed by millionaires. My own experience has been that whenever you lunch with them they always let you pay."

The young author laughed gaily. "That, of course, is how they become millionaires, isn't it?" he said.

Miller's Worm Powders act so thoroughly that stomachic and intestinal worms are literally ground up and pass from the child without being noticed and without inconvenience to the sufferer. They are painless and perfect in action, and at all times will be found a healthy medicine, strengthening the infantile stomach and maintaining it in vigorous operation, so that, besides being an effective vermifuge, they are a tonic and health-giving in their effects.

Insanity.

There has never been a satisfactory definition of insanity, the best, that of Sir William Hamilton, that it is "the paralysis of the regulating or legislative faculties of the mind," leaving us far from being satisfied. Like sleep, like dreams, like life no man understands. Its causes lie in the "De profundis" that no science has as yet explored.—New York American.

Worms sap the strength and undermine the vitality of children. Strengthen them by using Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator to drive out the parasites.

Young European Capital.

Helsingfors, the capital of Finland, is among the youngest of the European capitals, for it is but little over a hundred years since Czar Alexander I, shortly after the annexation of the grand duchy by Russia, transferred the capital thither from Abo, which was, in his opinion, too near Sweden.

WEAK, WORRIED WOMEN

Can Find New Health and Strength
Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

It is useless to tell a hard working woman to take life easily and not to worry. To do so is to ask the almost impossible. But, at the same time, it is the duty of every woman to save her strength as much as possible; to take her cares as lightly as may be, and to build up her strength to meet any unusual demands. It is a duty she owes herself and family for her future health may depend upon it.

To guard against a complete breakdown in health the blood must be kept rich, red and pure. No other medicine does this so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This medicine actually makes new, red blood, strengthens the nerves, restores the appetite and keeps every organ healthily toned up. Women cannot always rest when they should, but they can keep their strength and keep disease away by the occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which have done more to lighten the cares of weak women than any other medicine. Among the many women who have reason to be thankful for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mrs. Milan Bailey, Utterson, Ont., who says:

"Two years ago I got weak and badly run down, and could scarcely do my housework. I grew so thin that my friends used to comment upon it. At that time my baby was six months old and the care of it and my housework was almost too much for me. It was at this stage that my husband got me a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before I had been taking them long we could see an improvement in my condition. For months I had not been sleeping well and my natural sleep returned and I wasn't so nervous. Then my friends began to comment upon my improved condition and tell me how much better I was looking. By the time I had taken six boxes I felt completely cured, and have since enjoyed the best of health. Now I never fail to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when any of my friends are ailing."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

When the patient feels the premonitory symptoms of attack of the disease let him or her, as the case may be, take two desert spoonfuls at once, and if not relieved in a short time repeat and increase the dose. Sometimes the disease assumes a chronic form, in which case the patient must persevere in taking the medicine until they are permanently cured.—Ex.

HAS ROMANTIC CAREER

MORRISON OF CHINA PAYS VISIT TO CANADA.

Drilliant Man Was Born In Australia and After Many Adventures He Is Now an Adviser of the Government of China—He Tells Some Facts About Conditions In the Oriental Republic.

"MORRISON of China," one of the advisers to the Chinese Government since the establishment of the republic, eight years ago, is one of the most romantic figures who have visited Canada for some time. His full name is George Ernest Morrison, and he used to be Chinese correspondent of the London Times.

Long before that, however, his adventures began. He was born in Australia, and as a young man, walked three thousand miles across that continent. At a later date, he walked almost a similar distance across China. He has commanded an exploring expedition to New Guinea, where two native spears pierced his body. He took a medical degree at Edinburgh, where, among other incidents, these spear-heads were removed. He took a post-graduate course in Paris under Charcot; acted as court physician to the Sheriff of Wazan in Morocco; served as assistant purser on a ship in the West Indian fruit trade, and sailed as a seaman before the mast in the South Seas to study the Kanaha question. He represented the London Times at the Portsmouth Peace Conference between Russia and Japan in 1905.

He recently passed through Canada on his way to the Peace Conference at Versailles, where he will act as adviser or counsel to the Chinese representatives, who crossed this continent on their way to Europe a few weeks ago. The delegation is headed by Lu Tseng-Tsing.

One of the questions which is sure to be discussed at the conference is the status of Kiao-Chau, which, taken from Germany in 1914, has been held by the Japanese. It was definitely agreed at the time that Kiao-Chau was eventually to be restored to China, but no time limit was fixed. Dr. Morrison anticipates no trouble on this point. He feels that Japan will carry out her pledge.

Dr. Morrison was asked while in the Dominion about the "advice" or "complaints" which the Allied Governments presented to China last autumn, enumerating details in which China was alleged not to be co-operating fully with the Allies. Among the principal grounds of complaint was the failure to intern Germans. China's reply to this, as well as to most of the other points, was that, if she were remiss, it was not a voluntary failure, but one caused by the internal unsettlement in the country. Real efforts to carry out arrangements were being made.

"What about the complaint that China refused to retire the Governor-General of Heino for supporting the enemy and the Bolsheviks in spite of the protests of the Allies?" was also asked.

Dr. Morrison said that certain Chinese troops, in the north, had co-operated in some way with the Bolsheviks, but they had done so in ignorance of the situation. When the facts became known, the support ceased.

Dr. Morrison, however, is not pessimistic about the future. He thinks that the Japanese Government now is genuinely anxious to recover and maintain the friendship of the Chinese people, and that some readjustment will be effected.

Dr. Morrison described the President of China, Hsu-Shih-Chang, as quite an elderly man who has had much political experience. Not only had he held numerous administrative posts, but he had been viceroy of Manchuria.

Dr. Morrison was in Peking in July, 1917, when the two weeks' restoration of the Manchou emperor occurred. It was brought about, according to Dr. Morrison, without the Emperor's knowledge, and was the idea of a single general, Chang Hsin. Peking, for a few days, was a lively place.

A "characteristic" Chinese battle took place, in which a great deal of street fighting took place and a vast quantity of ammunition was fired. The results, however, were not sanguinary. Only a few score of people were shot, and most of these were civilians who met their death accidentally. The reason for the small number of casualties is that although there was a prodigious amount of firing, the soldiers did not understand the trajectory of a bullet, and their aim was hopelessly wild. By the middle of July the whole affair was over, and the republic was running again.

Political conditions in China, however, are by no means normal. At the present moment, there are two rival Parliaments, one, officially recognized, at Peking, in the North, and the other at Canton in the South. Both Parliaments are bi-cameral. Although the Southern organization is not recognized, delegates from it are being attached to the official Chinese Peace Mission, so that all shades of opinion may be represented.

Asked as to the franchise in the Chinese Republic, Dr. Morrison said it was generally regarded as being fairly liberal, considering the political development of the country. Manual laborers, however, didn't get a vote. Dr. Morrison thought this disability was on account of their illiteracy, rather than their occupation.

A Minimum Wage.

The Manitoba Minimum Wage Board has set its first wage for working women in the province in the case of laundry workers. The board has figured that $9.48 a week is necessary for a girl to live decently, and for good measure an additional two cents a week is added.

"Toronto Street" In Vimy.

The Secours National of Toronto some time ago decided to adopt the town of Vimy and to work for its re-establishment. That the efforts of the members are appreciated is shown by the following letter from Mons. A. Ansart:

Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, President Secours National,
Toronto.

Dear Sir,—I have been informed by Mr. Tanotaux in the name of the Committee "France-Canada" that the Secours National of Toronto was disposed to act in the capacity of Godmother to the Canton of Vimy.

As Mayor of the town of Vimy, I am very desirous that your committee should undertake the work they have offered to do for Vimy. The status of Godmother to my commune has not been accorded to any charitable organization, or to any person, and your committee will be recognized as our official Godmother. This decision has been taken by the Municipal Council of Vimy, whose members are at present scattered to the four corners of France.

I regret that I cannot thank you on the official paper of our commune, but the Germans have taken every piece of official letter-head or paper that they could lay their hands on, and up to date we have been unable to obtain enough paper even to write you this letter. Alone there still remains in my possession the seal of the town of Vimy, with which I have stamped this letter.

It is particularly agreeable to us, the inhabitants of the Canton of Vimy, on the ground over which your Canadian soldiers so courageously fought, to see that your compatriots are to-day coming to the aid of our unfortunate population.

In order to give expression of our gratitude, I am charging myself with the duty of asking our Municipal Council on their first reunion to inscribe on a marble plaque the name of your committee and of its officials and to place this marble plaque in the Hall of Honor at the City Hall. We desire also to name one of our streets or squares in the town of Vimy in your honor.

(Signed,) Monsieur A. Ansart.

That Was It.

One of the favorite stories told in army camps in the earlier days of the war was that of the recruit who developed a queer mania very shortly after he had been assigned to a depot regiment. Time and again in barracks and out he was seen picking up pieces of paper from the floor or ground, looking at them, muttering "that's not it," and passing on. He refused to explain his actions. The matter finally came to the attention of his officers and they had him reported to the attention of a medical board for examination. When he came before the board the recruit grabbed up the papers on the table and looked them all over before he could be prevented. "That's not it," he repeated as he examined each one feverishly. Finally, after lengthy observation, the medical officers recommended his discharge, via the "s. c. o." route. When the soldier detailed to accompany the apparent lunatic to his home was handed the discharge certificate the cause of it all seized it and perused it hastily. "That is it!" he yelled. And it was, for the release from the service was permitted to stand.

National Flower Wanted.

Selection of a national flower for Canada will be urged upon Government and people during the coming year with great insistence, if plans approved at the convention of the Ontario Horticultural Association are carried out with anything like the enthusiasm which greeted the motions looking to plans for action in this regard.

Horticulturists do not consider that the animal emblem, the beaver, and the more recent tree emblem, the maple leaf, provide sufficient or the right sort of emblem for a country which boasts such an array of beautiful flowers. A floral emblem for Ontario is also to be sought, having regard to the pre-eminence of this province in wild flowers.

The basic requirement of each emblem to be chosen is that it must be a native wild flower. This leaves a wide field, and a lively controversy is expected.

Why Not?

"Twas in her darkest hours,
When the maid was in despair,
Her lover sent her flowers,
And the flowers sent the air.

In a Liberal Mood.

"The judge was very nice."
"Yes?"

"Gave me a divorce, permission to marry again, and intimated that if I didn't do better than I did the first time he'd grant me another divorce."

AUTHORS HANDICAPPED.

Writers In This Country Have Cause for Complaint.

At the present time Canadian authors are under a distinct handicap as compared with the authors of other nations. It is a well-known fact that to-day moving pictures and phonographs bring the writer's thought to millions who formerly depended on the printed page, yet the Copyright Act of Canada gives no protection against the reproduction of an author's work by means of moving pictures, phonograph records, or music rolls. No matter how popular a song by a Canadian may be, it can be reproduced on phonograph records, without the payment of any royalty to the author, and no Canadian author can prevent the moving picture companies from reproducing his ideas on film without any payment of royalty.

To remedy this state of affairs, the Authors' and Composers' Association of Canada, whose headquarters are in Toronto, have submitted a memorandum to the Canadian Government asking them to adopt the British Copyright Act of 1911, the provisions of which include, among other things, the payment to the owner of the copyright of 5 per cent. of the retail price of each record or roll sold. The memorandum says:

"The United States publishers are now refusing to consider a song by a Canadian writer on account of the fact that they cannot collect any mechanical royalties under their copyright act, because Canada has no such provision in her act.

"Lieut. Gitz Rice (now said to be the most popular song writer on the continent) is a Canadian and a member of the Authors' and Composers' Association. Mr. Robert Service is also a Canadian whose lyrics are being set to music, and he, too, is being very greatly handicapped by our present Copyright Act.

Mr. A. E. McNutt, of St. John, N.B., who wrote 'We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall,' is a Canadian. Mr. Morris Manley, of Toronto, wrote 'Good Luck to the Boys of the Allies,' etc. Mr. Gordon V. Thompson, of Toronto, wrote 'When Your Boy Comes Back to You,' 'When You Wind Up the Watch on the Rhine,' and over a dozen other patriotic songs. Miss Irene Humble wrote 'We're From Canada,' Miss Muriel Bruce wrote 'Knitting,' Mr. Will J. White wrote 'Home Again.'

All these songs have been reproduced by phonographs and player-roll companies in Canada and the United States without the payment of royalties."

Surely the authors only have to state their case to get this injustice removed. Canadian authors have enough to contend with without being subjected to such a heavy handicap as is now imposed through the fact that our present Copyright Act is out of date.

Blocked by Horses.

The Porcupine Advance records a twenty-minute delay for a train on the T. & N. O. a few days ago, caused by five horses getting on the track and running ahead of the locomotive. The engineer declares that he almost caught up with the runaways several times.

New Factors In Labor Unionism.

Clerks, ledger-keepers and other kindred employes of the banks of Winnipeg have formed a bank clerks union and affiliated with the Trades and Labor Council of the Manitoba capital. The school teachers of the 'Peg contemplate similar action.

BY-PRODUCTS.

Farmers Are Learning Lesson In Saving Waste.

The packers claim to make all their profits out of the by-products, sources of income which were utterly ignored not many years ago. A good many farmers, says the Scientific American, may be skeptical of this claim in its entirety, but no one doubts that the packers turn by-products to good account. It is interesting to note the great progress farmers have made in a similar direction.

Not many years ago straw stacks were counted valueless, and everywhere burned. Now progressive farmers spread the straw and find it a valuable fertilizer, and while burning is still much too often practiced, it is a dying custom. In some sections of Western Canada the Government has forbidden the burning of straw stacks.

Corn stover has a fluctuating value from year to year, varying with the supply of our roughages and live stock conditions, but its feeding value is definitely known, and for some years past the tendency has been toward wider use of the stalks.

Cottonseed, valuable both as a feed and a fertilizer, was formerly thrown away. It is now a by-product of tremendous importance, not alone to the cotton industry, but to innumerable cattle feeders.

Far West cattle feeders would find it difficult to dispense with ensiled beet tops, nutritious by-product of beet growing for the sugar factories.

Hardly a year passes that some waste product is not utilized in a large way for the first time. One of the newest high-protein chicken feeds is the rinds and waste cuttings of cheese pressed into large bricks. It is now being marketed on a commercial scale. Cattle and sheep feeders in the pinto bean territory, which now takes in practically all of New Mexico and Colorado, and growing areas in Wyoming, Nebraska and Kansas, are fast making bean straw a standard article. Bean growing in this section is undergoing great development, and bean straw will become an important feed. It is used as the sole roughage with satisfactory results, but a better plan, so they who have used it say, is to feed it with ensilage, when its value is close to that of alfalfa.

And no one has forgotten yet that sweet clover, now a valuable legume, was formerly a weed—and still is one, to many farmers.

When one considers the many by-product feeds used by dairymen—low-grade molasses, beet pulp, brewers' grains and a dozen others—it is hard to see how the agricultural industry could get along without them.

Lesson XII, March 23, 1919.
Israel Warned Against Compromise.
Temperance Lesson—Joshua 23, 1-24; 28. Print 23: 1-13.
Commentary.—1. God's benefits to Israel (23: 1-5). 1. A long time—It is thought that the farewell assembly took place about seven years after the allotment of Canaan to the several tribes of Israel. Had given rest, from all their enemies—The enemies of Israel had either been subjugated or were not warring against them. Joshua waxed old and stricken in age—Joshua was old and well stricken in years.—R. V. He must have been nearly or quite one hundred and ten years old at this time, as that was the age at which he died. 2. Call for all Israel—Joshua sent forth a call for Israel to come to him, probably at his home, Timnath-erah or at Shechem, for we are not told where. And for their elders, etc.—The word "and" is not in the Hebrew, hence what follows it explains who were called. The assembly was made up of the leaders of the several tribes, the heads of families, the interpreters of the law and the officials of the nation. 3. All that the Lord your God hath done—In the beginning of his address he called Israel's attention to what Jehovah had done for them in giving them possession of Canaan, which was previously occupied by their enemies and the enemies of Jehovah. For the Lord, fought for you—Joshua was the leader of Israel in the occupation of the land, but he ascribes the success of the undertaking to Jehovah, who had given them the victory over their enemies. 4. I have divided unto you by lot—The entire territory of the land of Canaan had been apportioned to the tribes of Israel, although parts of it had not yet been conquered. The armies of the Canaanites had been broken into pieces, yet the Israelites had not fully followed up their advantages. The Lord had given full directions regarding the division of the land. From Jordan... unto the great sea—The eastern and western limits of Israel's possessions are given. The "great sea" is the Mediterranean. 5. The Lord your God, He shall expel them—Joshua retained the faith in Jehovah that he had when he returned to Kadesh-barnea after spying out the land of Canaan more than sixty years before this and made his report in connection with Caleb. He assured the Israelites that God would be their sufficient help in fully ridding the land of his enemies and theirs.

II. Exhortation to Faithfulness (23: 6-16). 6. He ye therefore very courageous—In view of what Jehovah had already done for Israel and had promised to do, Joshua urged them to be strong of heart and faithful in doing his will, all that is written in the book of the law of Moses—This book contained the moral law and the ceremonials, in addition to many directions governing the ordinary affairs of life, and these were all to be carefully observed. 7. come not among you—The Israelites would become familiar with them and the gods of the heathen would become less odious to them. nor bow yourselves unto them—The sin to which the children of Israel were most liable was idolatry, hence Joshua warned them plainly against anything to do with the gods of the heathen. 8. cleave unto the Lord—Cling to the Lord and be not driven out... great nations—Joshua urges this as a reason why Israel should "cleave unto the Lord" and not turn aside the idols. The gods of these "great nations" were helpless before Jehovah and his people. 10. one man of you shall chase a thousand—This is a strong expression showing how greatly superior Israel, with the help of God, would be to other peoples.

II. take good heed... that ye love the Lord—if the Israelites should fully obey this exhortation, they would be entirely safe; for if they loved Jehovah in truth, they would not give any countenance to idolatry. 12. if ye... cleave unto the remnant of these nations—Joshua saw the tendency of Israel to idolatry and the temptations that would beset them. There would be danger of entering into marriage relations with the heathen nations, and that would result in a departure from Jehovah. 13. know for a certainty—Joshua would make a deep impression upon the minds and hearts of his people. will no more drive out... these nations—By becoming closely associated with the heathen peoples they would forfeit the protection of Jehovah, and he would not give them deliverance from their enemies.

snare—Devices for catching birds, traps—Devices for catching beasts or men by the feet, scourges... thorns—These figures indicate that if the Israelites should tolerate heathen nations and join with them, they would suffer most keenly for their folly and sin. perish from off this good land—God's promise of the land of Canaan to Israel was upon the condition of their obeying and trusting him, and if they should disobey, they would be driven out of their country. 14-16 Joshua would soon be gone and he would leave as his parting words to Israel, that God had been faithful in fulfilling his promises, and they should be faithful to him.

III. Israel's promise to be faithful (24: 128). Joshua called an assembly of all the tribes of Israel, gathering the chief men of the nation for a second farewell meeting with them. He rehearsed at some length the great things God had done for them from the call of Abraham to the settlement of the nation of Israel in Canaan, and exhorted the people to choose the Lord and serve him faithfully. They promised him not simply once, but four times over, that they would serve the Lord, and then Joshua wrote the covenant and set up a stone as a witness that Israel had made this promise.

Questions.—Under what circumstances did Joshua summon the people to him? What had Joshua urge the Israelites to do? Under what circumstances could one chase a thousand? What should be Israel's attitude toward the heathen nations? What danger did Joshua see? What covenant did Israel make? What did Joshua do that this covenant might be remembered?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.
Topic.—Compromising with evil-doers.
1. Joshua's farewell.
II. Warning and promise.
III. The evils of compromise.

1. Joshua's farewell. This pious solicitude of Joshua is worthy of imitation by all in authority. He set himself diligently to complete and perpetuate the work of his life in the farewell appeal to the great people for whom he had so unselfishly labored. The desires of the godly do not decline with physical strength. The purposes of human lives like those of Job are often "broken off." The greatest lives are but arcs longer or shorter, in the circle of divine purposes. Only the life of Jesus was complete. The great apostle declared, "I have finished my course." Looking into the face of the Father, Jesus said, "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do." In the farewell address of the great leader there is no idea of self-concern nor effort to perpetuate his own fame.

II. Warning and promise. Both are inseparably associated in Joshua's address and in God's messages to all mankind. Men can not choose promises and reject precepts. God's faithfulness in fulfilling his promises is a guarantee concerning his threatenings. Divine holiness is equally concerned in both. The departing leader would assure the future by pledging the nation anew to loyalty, and demand a personal and universal testimony to God's faithfulness. "Ye know in all your hearts and in all your souls, that not one thing hath failed." Obedience had made them invulnerable. The assembled people were reminded that their tenure of possession was still contingent thereon. "He ye therefore very courageous to keep and to do." Their separation must be maintained.

III. The evils of compromise. The term implies conflicting claims or interests, and means a settlement by mutual concessions. In the nature of things righteousness must be intolerant. It cannot make concessions nor accept compromises without self-destruction. To surrender its claims in the smallest particular destroys its character. It can not consent to illusory terms, for there are none; and even to consider it, is both dangerous and degrading. To preserve a nation that should perpetuate a pure religious faith and worship, provide a medium and custody for the oracles of God, and bring to the world its divinely-human Redeemer, God enviroined His people with absolute prohibitions, which were disregarded at their peril. Civil or social contracts would tend to spiritual affinities, and hence were forbidden. So deadly were the lurking germs of moral contamination, that the utter extirpation of the degraded and idolatrous inhabitants was commanded. The underlying principle is perennial and of peculiar force at the present. In various and subtle forms the appeal is made. Spacious reasonings founded on false premises mislead many. The first effect of compromise is a bewilderment of moral judgment. A "single eye" is essential to clear vision. A second evil is the weakening of moral resistance together with a strengthening of the power of appeal. From the "counsel of the ungodly" to "the way of sinners" and "the seat of the scornful" is a direct path. The man who compromises, mortgages his temporal and eternal estate, and foreclosure is sure.—W. H. C.

THAT YE MAY BE PERFECT.
Now for a season, if need be, ye are in heaviness through manifold temptations; that the trial of your faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ.—We glory in tribulations... knowing that tribulation worketh patience, and patience, experience, and experience, hope.
It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord.—Ye have in heaven a better and an enduring substance. Cast not away therefore your confidence, which hath great recompense of reward. For ye have need of patience, that, after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the pro-

In eastern Alabama alone it is estimated that the available water-power still unharnessed represents the annual equivalent of 3,000,000 tons of coal—worth to-day nearly $10,000,000.

The Pittsburgh laboratory of the Bureau of Mines is frequently in receipt of samples of coal from the bore holes of blow-out shots, with requests that analysis be made to determine whether black powder of a permissible explosive was fired. Such information was desired as an aid in investigating the causes of mine explosions. In order to be able to deal satisfactorily with such inquiries, the laboratory has investigated a series of samples of coal residues from blown-out shots obtained under known conditions, and finds that it is comparatively easy to determine (1) whether black powder, a high explosive or no explosive at all was fired in a bore-hole; (2) whether a high explosive detonated completely or simply burned; and (3) if a high explosive simply burned, the character of the explosive.

PARTED BY GOLD

The pirate, who had been a quiet and calm spectator of the skirmish, knowing which way it must terminate, provided an extra sausage, brought that and the other triumph of his industry to the table and poured out the tea.

"What made you so late, Mr. Tubbs?" asked Mr. Montague.

"Rehearsal late," said Mr. Tubbs, with his mouth full of sausage. "Thompson was huffish as he could be and as contrary as a cat with its tail in its teeth. I don't know what comes to that man at times, whether it's the scenery, the properties, or what else I don't know. Some of these days there'll be a catastrophe, mark my words; he'll blow up or break into pieces, break a blood vessel or split his head with opening his mouth so wide."

And as if to show that such a tragical result to the manager was among the possibilities, Mr. Tubbs opened his so wide that Pattie laughed and told him to shut it if he didn't want to frighten her.

"So," continued Mr. Tubbs, "what with Thompson's bad humor, Parks, the shifter, pushing on a dungeon scene for the fairies' gien, and old Bloward puffing away three notes below the rest, the affair did not go off so well as might be expected. Not," he added, quickly, seeing Montague look around at Mary, who was listening with downcast face, and one small, well-shaped hand toying with the teaspoon—"not as Miss Mary didn't do her part. Oh, never fear, it won't be her fault if the new part's a failure. She's a success, that's what she is. Miss Mary, my dear, I drink your health; long life, prosperity. May 'Even be less yet," and with a burlesque of solemnity he lifted the teacup to his mobile lips.

Mary laughed. "You are all too good to me," she said, in her gentle, self-deprecating way. "You are not strict enough; I made two mistakes this afternoon, and Mr. Thompson only said that I was wrong."

"Hem!" hummed the comedian, significantly closing one eye and looking around the room with the other. "We all know what that means. No fear of his bullying you, Miss Mary."

"Why not?" asked Mary, looking up with genuine curiosity. The comedian was about to speak, but, seeing Gentleman Montagueidgetting in his chair, coughed instead, and, putting on an irresistible, love-torn look, said:

"Who could be cross with so divine, so—er—angelic a creature? Had I a heart—"

"There," laughed the beautiful girl, "I won't stay to listen any longer; I always run away, you know, when you grow complimentary. It is six o'clock, and quite time I was dressing."

She arose, lit a candle, and held the door open while her father lifted Pattie in his arms and carried her into the next room.

He came back with a troubled look on his face and resumed his seat, looking first at the fire, then at the door through which his two daughters had gone.

Mr. Tubbs was the first one to break the silence which both felt was growing embarrassing.

"Miss Pattie seems a little better, sir, I'm glad to see."

"Yes—yes," said Gentleman Montague, "bless her heart, Tubbs, she is better, she—she has more strengthening things now—now Mary has gone on the stage."

The troubled look grew more marked as he said this in a hesitating, reluctant sort of way, and Mr. Tubbs, with keener sensitiveness than might have been expected from him, hastened to change the subject.

"Very fond of her sister, sir, she seems. It's a beautiful sight to see so much love between them. Now she's gone, bless her heart, to trim Mary's dress, maybe."

"That's it, that's it, Tubbs," said the father, still looking at the fire. "They are very fond of one another, never apart if they can help it. Never apart, Tubbs."

"Yes," said the low comedian, half startled by the sudden look from the still piercing eyes.

"What did you mean to-night, just now, by hinting that Miss Mary received special favor, and—kindness from Mr. Thompson, the stage manager?"

Tubbs hesitated. In common with the rest of the Signet company, he knew Gentleman Montague's falling, as it was called.

Mr. Montague was always spoken of by those who disliked him as Proud Montague; those who liked him, and they were many, always retained the complimentary prefix, and spoke of him as Gentleman Montague, or the Prince, or the Duke.

He had always been a reserved man, never talked of his affairs or of his family; but one night at a theatrical dinner, when the champagne was in and the wits out, he had let fall some half-dozen sentences, proud and haughty, spoken of himself as a ruined gentleman, the last stone of a fallen house, and winding up with what threatened to be a burst of tears, requested those nearest him to mark what punishment fell on those who disgraced their birth and lineage by descending to the level of stage players.

Much of this had been taken as the maudlin nonsense of a man in his cups, but there were some who nodded their heads eagerly and believed that there was some truth in the passionate outburst.

Montague's conduct had helped to strengthen these hints. He was reserved, as we have said, but more than that, he was very particular in his bearing toward those about him, infused a dash of pride's humility when speaking with the manager, and treated his fellow actors and the men about the stage with a condescending stand-off, yet not offensive air.

This pride of his had received a fatal blow lately. Of these two children, the younger, Pattie, had been a cripple from the first moment of the life which her mother had killed herself in giving her. Upon the elder, he had managed, by dint of the strictest economy, to bestow a decent education. Mary was the pride of his life, the apple of his eye.

While telling her nothing of her antecedents, he kept from her all knowledge of his way of life. She knew that her father was an actor, in her simple, loving heart believed him to be the greatest tragedian the world had ever seen, but she had never entered a theatre, never knew how hard the struggle he made for his daily bread and her education.

Meanwhile this sharp tussle with poverty drew their hearts together. In no corner of our great city could be found more love than in the three little rooms at the back of the great thoroughfare.

Mary grew up, a lady in education, manner, and—her father more than hinted—birth, also, when suddenly the blow came to his hope and pride.

Little Pattie grew weaker—more loving, gentle and sweet-hearted, but weaker.

These two loving hearts were wrung each day at sight of the falling strength in the body that encased their poor darling's soul.

The "saw it, and worried over it. Mary did more. She saw the doctor, pushed him with inquiries, and learned that the lamp might be kept burning in the frail body if it received more nourishment.

"Madrera, my dear Miss Montague, chickens, delicacies of that sort—above all, fine old Madrera—are the only things that will pull her around."

Had he prescribed fourteen ounces of melted diamonds each day, Montague could not have been more horrified and overwhelmed.

"Where," he asked himself, "and how am I to get Madrera at a guinea a bottle?"

Where, indeed? Mary soon tried to answer this.

"Father," said she, one day, "when are you going to send me to get my living and help poor Pattie?"

He fell to tears at this, and declared that they should both and all starve before she would use her hands or compromise her pride by working for them; then went into a fit of despair and begged a rise of salary from the manager of the Signet, where he was engaged.

The manager, a kind-hearted, but money-making, and, therefore, money-valuing man, gave him a rise, slight and quite insufficient to purchase guinea bottles of wine.

The manager did more; he called in one night at Montague's rooms and the thing was done.

He saw a beautiful girl, with deep, clear eyes that beamed intelligence and talent at every glance, lips made—as he afterwards averred—to as-found and delicate a full house. He saw with a connoisseur's eye the flexible grace of her every movement, the regal turn of her head, and heard the clear, well-bred inflexion of her voice.

He stayed all the evening, and, when departing, drew Gentleman Montague outside, buttoned him there and whispered:

"Montague, you've got a treasure!" "A—what?" asked Montague, who always hesitated in his speech off the stage.

"A treasure," repeated the manager; "that girl of yours is the most beautiful woman I ever saw, and has got the mellowest voice. Why, man, are you blind that you don't see it?"

"Well," said Montague, a darkening flush arising to his brow, and his hand, unseen by the manager, clinching at his side.

"Well!" echoed the manager, sarcastically, but feeling fully that he was on dangerous ground and speaking to Gentleman Montague. "Don't you see? She was made for the stage—born for the boards!"

Montague's hand rose in the air and seemed about to fall on the manager's forehead, but he let it fall to his side again and groaned instead of striking, which was on the whole a much wiser course.

"Come," said the manager, "don't let your pride—"

"Pride! how dare you? My daughter an actress, sir! I would rather die than see her sunk to her father's level! My poor, my poor, my poor, beautiful, clever girl treading the boards of a common theatre, a nightly witness of her father's degradation! Sir, you know not what you propose. If you value my poor services in the slightest let me beg of you not to repeat this—this insult."

The manager shrugged his shoulders.

"All right, Gentleman Montague," he said, turning away and twisting his hat. "No offense meant; none whatever. I may think you foolish or I may not. But look here, if you should think of it, I'll make you an offer. Let me have the young lady at the Signet, and I'll have her trained and give her a salary of six guineas a week to start with."

Montague's face blackened, and this time his fist would undoubtedly have fallen, but a hand, small and white, caught it.

Both men started and looked awkward when they saw that the interruption to this emphatic refusal was Miss Montague, and more awkward still when a second glance showed them that she had heard the whole of the dialogue.

Talk of an angel and you hear the rustle of its wings.

"Father," she said, still holding his arm and drawing it within her own, "why do you refuse this gentleman's offer? Six guineas a week may save poor Pattie's life; if they would, and get them, how should we look upon the flowers over her grave? Not with clear consciences, father dear. Now, sir, I have heard your offer," she continued, turning to the manager and giving Montague no time to speak; "do you still tender it?"

"I do, Miss Montague," said the manager, taking off his hat and forced into more than his usual respect by the quiet dignity of her manner. "I do, miss, and I think you would be wrong to refuse under the circumstances."

"So do I," said the girl, proudly, "and we accept, sir."

This was the story of Mary Montague's engagement, and Mr. Tubbs, in revolving the answer to Gentleman Montague's question, went over it and decided that it would not be well to give the truthful reason for his remark.

"Well, sir," said he, "of course Thompson knows what's due to Miss Montague; she isn't one of the ladies in the ballet, or Polly Snooks, the singing chambermaid. Oh, no, he knows who's who, and the proper thing to do. Take my word for it, sir, Miss Montague is much looked up to at the theatre, and I'm proud to say it."

The rough, honest, though somewhat politic words cheered the moody fallen gentleman's heart. He arose, stretched himself with a sad sort of staleness, finished his cup of tea, and, clearing his throat, said:

"I'm glad to hear it, Mr. Tubbs; I'm glad to hear it. It has been a bitter blow to me, but that's neither here nor there. Will you hand me my coat?" he added, as Mary entered the room, warmly wrapped up and blushing beautiful. "We will start now, I think, after I have brought Pattie in again."

Pattie was enveloped in the shawl, enthroned in the great armchair, and with a kiss from Mary and her father and a most respectful reverential adieu from Mr. Tubbs, left a little elfin queen of the tiny room to await until the two came home tired and ready for rest.

Meanwhile the three actors trudged on to the Signet. All the conversation fell to Mr. Tubbs and Mary. The spirit of the pirate had already fallen upon Montague, and as he walked along the cold only made him more silent and moody.

Perhaps he was already changing his domestic skin and voice for his theatrical one, perhaps he was really listening all the while to the chattering at his side.

"This pantomime'll be a success," Mr. Tubbs was saying, as they drew near the great entrance with its hundred and fifty lamps. "How soon Christmas comes around! It don't seem two months, let alone twelve, since old Baker was jumping about in spotted dicks."

Spotted dicks was the name Mr. Tubbs had for the clown's costume. "And to think you'll be the leading character in the opening piece! It ought to be a great draw—three song—"

"No, two," corrected Mary, with a laugh. "Only two; there were three, but Mr. Thompson was obliged to cut the third out because Miss Minx only had two."

"Ah, sweet little thing, Miss Minx! So disinterested; not a particle of jealousy about her—oh, dear no!" remarked Mr. Tubbs, with long-drawn sarcasm. "Ah, we shall have you a great lady soon, Miss Mary, playing the higher parts, cast for Lady Macbeth, Julia, in 'The Hunchback,' Juliet, and—Hello! who's that against the stage door? None of our people."

Mary looked curiously, and Mr. Tubbs saw her face—they were within the glare of the lights now—go a bright and delicious crimson.

"Oh, it's quite a swell, quite a swell. Hello, he knows you, it seems," he added, as the gentleman, with a quick, pleased smile, raised his hat respectfully.

Mary's arm tightened on her father's and caused him to look up.

An anxious, displeased look crossed his face as he saw a tall, splendidly-made gentleman in evening dress—in fact, none other than Jack Hamilton—coming toward them.

"This way; we will go this way," he said, and before the gentleman could reach them, had dragged Mary into the front entrance and hurried her up the stairs, leaving Mr. Tubbs staring at something white which the gentleman held in his hand, and trying to catch the indistinct murmur of explanation he seemed to want to offer.

CHAPTER IV.

Between two beautiful women, what a contrast!

Mary Montague, actor's daughter, soft-eyed, quick-hearted and gentle.

Lady Maud Facewell, niece of Lady Facewell, fashionable lady, born to be witted, to charm and command, with dark, imperial brows, large, hazel, majestic eyes and lips that when in repose were yielding and tempting enough, but had a wonderful faculty for straightening into a cold, businessness and a killing frigidity.

A figure for a throne, an imperial saloon, a woman's bouillabaisse horn to be clothed in purple and fine linen, to be watched on by obsequious lackeys, to be flattered by little less obsequious gentlemen, and to receive homage from all with a queenly serenity that took all, gave in return—just nothing.

Lady Facewell's little box, as Jack Hamilton called it, lay just at the corner of Hyde Park, where it merges on Mount Street.

A snug little box it was, rented at a cost of nine hundred a year, and kept up at a cost of—what Lady Facewell would be afraid to mention.

The drawing-rooms were filled with those useless but priceless articles so dear to the rich lady's heart; four first-class cattle kicked the horse stalls and ate their heads off in the stable; a host of servants—kept presumably to wait upon one another—yawned, lounged and flirted about the kitchen offices, and a butler, the glory of Lady Facewell and the envy of her friends, regaled himself on old port and condescended to superintend the ceremony of Lady Facewell and her niece's meals.

My friends, never envy the rich their store of this world's goods—they hold them only for others; Lady Facewell's grooms rode her horses, her visitors got the most pleasure out of the ormolu, buhl and bronzes in the drawing-room, the servants ate the best part of the delicacies daily prepared for the table, and Mr. Straightly, the butler, drank the best port.

In this little nest of luxury—and extravagance—Lady Maud had been reared.

As a matter of fact, her education, although it had cost twice as much, was not one whit superior to poor Mary Montague's; as a matter of fact likewise, Lady Maud did not put it to half so much use.

Origin of Bread Unknown.

The origin of wheat is lost in hoary antiquity. Even the original home of the cereal plants of which bread is being made is not known, all the researchers and hypotheses notwithstanding. Where wheat, spelt, rye, barley, oats, buckwheat, etc. first offered man their grainy ears for food is an unsolved problem.

But that originally bread was not roasted or baked as moderns prepare it, but eaten as dough or paste, may be inferred from its relation with the word "broth," both of these words being derived from the root "browan," "brn," to brew. In all probability it was originally the boiled coarse meal with nothing added to it but salt. The leavening and baking of the bread was a later development. The origin of these processes is a matter of speculation; but so much is certain; that baking preceded the leavening of the bread that causes it to rise; also that the original form of the bread was not the loaf, but a kind of thin, flat cake like the matzoths, or unleavened bread of the Jews or the tortillas of the Mexicans. Like these, it was probably roasted upon intensely heated flat stones.

With the discovery of the leaven the flat cake increased in height until it assumed the form of our loaf.

A Peculiar Plant.

"Plants and animals," says Science, "both have developed spines as a means of protection against their enemies, but it is rare indeed to find a plant with spines below ground. The all too common sawbrier of the Southern States and Mexico is one of the few plants thus provided. The stems above ground are spiny to keep off grazing animals, but the underground starchy tubers are armored densely with spines apparently developed as a protection against peculiar—the wild pigs still found in the southwest. The sawbrier is now beyond the original range of the wild pigs, but its underground armor comes into use as a protection against the domesticated hog of the old world."

Goah! How my back aches!

After influenza or colds the kidneys and bladder are often affected—called "nephritis," or inflammation of the kidneys. This is the red-flag of danger—better be wise and check the further inroads of kidney disease by obtaining that wonderful new discovery of Dr. Pierce's known as "Anurie" (anti-uric), because "Anurie" expels the uric acid poison from the body and cures those pains, such as backache, rheumatism in muscles and joints.

Naturally when the kidneys are deranged the blood is filled with poisonous waste matter, which settles in the feet, ankles and wrists; or under the eyes in bag-like formations.

Dr. Pierce's Anurie is many times more potent than lithia and often eliminates uric acid as hot tea melts sugar.

POST OFFICE: Dr. Pierce's Anurie is the best kidney remedy I have ever taken. For many years I suffered with my kidneys, and I would have a backache, my eyes would puff, and I would have a heavy spasm. I also suffered with my bladder, would have swelling, and secretion would be thick and full of sediment. I have taken nearly every well-known kidney remedy on the market, but I have received more relief than taking Anurie than any before. My back does not bother me and the secretion has almost disappeared. I am better in every way than I have been for years.—CHAS. SCOTT, BOSTON.

A Patriotic Indian.

Chief Joseph Davies of the Brunswick House Band of Ojibway Indians, and several of his tribe, who enlisted in 1916 with the 227th (Men of the North) Battalion, were among the returned soldiers who arrived home from France by the Olympic.

Chief Davies was granted by the military authorities the unique privilege of wearing upon his uniform throughout active service his official Indian chief's insignia.

On his arrival at Chapleau a welcome was extended by Indian Agent T. J. Godfrey and a large deputation of members of the tribe. A pathetic feature of the chief's homecoming is that two of his children have recently died of the "flu."

The chief's wife, traveling more than thirty miles by canoe, having to break the ice in many places to get through, bringing with her one dead child and one seriously ill with the epidemic, arrived in Chapleau too late to save the life of the second child, who died shortly after admission to the hospital.

Favorite Hymns.

A pastor in a large western city church took a vote upon the ten favorite hymns of his young people. Beginning with the one receiving the highest number of votes, the list was as follows: "Abide With Me," "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "Rock of Ages," "Lead, Kindly Light," "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "How Firm a Foundation," "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go," "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," "My Faith Looks Up to Thee."

Canadian Red Cross in London.

Canadian women, whether in the Dominion or overseas, must feel honored by the appointment of Lady Drummond as Assistant Commissioner in England of the Canadian Red Cross Society. The post is one big with importance for Canadian soldiers and their friends and anyone who knows anything of Lady Drummond's splendid work, knows also that a woman big of heart and ability now fills the post.

Join the Ordnance Corps.

Glendora—Did you know I was an ammunition girl?
Alphone—Do you mean you make a lot of noise?
Glendora—No, I like to have arms around me.

Bird Life.

To conserve bird life for economic as well as sentimental reasons, the Canadian Government is offering prizes to school children for bird-houses and photographs of birds in their habitat.

Teachers' Salaries.

If "painfully low salaries" are paid teachers now, as Hon. Dr. Cody says, what must they have been a few years ago? There is not really so much advance, however, as there seems to be, and it is well that the Minister of Education has a proper appreciation of the subject. If a teacher just fresh from the Normal School gets a salary of $550 per annum she can't get her board for probably twice what it would have cost her a few years ago, and everything she has to buy costs her much more than it would some time ago. Then as to male teachers, though there has been an advance in salaries it is probably not equal to the increase in the cost of living. There will be people both in cities and towns, however, who will complain of the high cost of education. Education of the right kind implies a teacher of the right kind. A good teacher is worth a good price.

Most of 'Em Do.

Widow—What do you think of Ethel's dress?
Frosh—It does make you think, doesn't it?

Automobiles.

In 1914 the number of automobiles in Canada was 67,415, increasing to 189,320 in 1917. It is estimated that the number of cars in use at the close of the present year will be approximately 250,000. With an estimated population of 8,000,000 this gives a proportion of one car for every thirty-two inhabitants, as against one for every 118 inhabitants four years ago. Statistics have been compiled showing the occupations of car owners throughout the country, and from this it is apparent that about 90 per cent. of all the cars in use are owned by persons whose occupations are such that the automobile in their hands is a utility enabling them to do more and better work.

Bees Chase Police Officers.

When Provincial Officers Smith and Hannah went to search the house of John Petrysazian, an Austrian Hynd in Sandwich East, near Windsor, Petrysazian liberated a swarm of bees, which charged the bluecoats and soon had them in retreat.

A Giant Power Light.

The giant 50,000,000-candle power light installed at Niagara Falls is one of the largest in the world and makes of its vicinity an exceedingly brilliant spot, but it has been demonstrated that it would take 32,500,000,000,000 of them to do the illuminating work of the sun. The figures are not guesses, but scientific calculations based on long and elaborate experiments.
