IVANHOE.

The sounds of the trumpets soon recalled those spectators who had already begun to leave the field; and proclamation was made that Prince John, suddenly called by high and peremptory public duties, held himself obliged to discontinue the entertainments of to-morrow's festival. Nevertheless, that unwilling so many good yeomen should depart without a trial of skill, he was pleased to appoint them, before leaving the ground, presently to execute the competition of archery intended for the morrow. To the best archer a prize was to be awarded, being a bugle-horn, mounted with silver, and a silken baldric richly ornamented with a medallion of Saint Hubert, the patron of silvan sport.

More than thirty yeomen at first presented themselves as competitors, several of whom were rangers and under-keepers in the royal forests of Needwood and Charwood. When, however, the archers understood with whom they were to be matched, upward of twenty withdrew themselves from the contest, unwilling to encounter the dishonour of almost certain defeat. For in those days the skill of each celebrated marksman was as well known for many miles around him, as the qualities of a horse trained at Newmarket are familiar to those that frequent that well-known meeting.

The diminished list of competitors for silvan fame still amounted to eight. Prince John stepped from his royal seat to view more nearly the person of those chosen yeomen, several of whom wore the royal livery. Having satisfied his curiosity by this investigation, he looked for the object of his resentment, whom he observed standing on the same spot, and with the same composed countenance which he had exhibited upon the preceding day.

"Fellow," said Prince John, "I guessed, by thy insolent babble that wert no true lover of the long-bow, and I see thou darrest not adventure thy skill among such merry-men as stand yonder."

"Under favor, sir," replied the yeoman, "I have another reason for refraining to shoot, besides the fearing discomfiture and disgrace."

"And what is thy other reason?" said Prince John, who, for some cause which perhaps he could not himself have explained, felt a painful curiosity respecting this individual.

"Because," replied the yeoman, "I know not of any women are used to shoot the same marks; and because, however, I know not how your grace might relish the winning of a third prize by one who has unwittingly fallen under your displeasure."

"Prince John colored as he put the question, 'What is thy name, ye man?'"

"Locksley," answered the yeoman.

"Then Locksley," said Prince John, "thou shalt shoot in thy turn, when these yeomen have displayed their skill. It thou carriest the prize, I will add to it twenty nobles; but if thou lovest it, thou shalt be stript of thy Lincoln green, and scourged out of the lists with bowstrings, for a wordy and insolent braggar."

"And how if I refuse to shoot on such a wager?" said the yeoman. "Your grace's power, supported, as it is, by so many men-at-arms, may indeed strip and scourge me, but cannot compel me to bend or to draw my bow."

"It thou refusest my fair proffer," said Prince John, "the Provost of the lists shall cut thy bow-string, break thy bow and arrows, and expel thee from the presence as a faint-hearted craven."

"This is no fair chance you put on me, proud Prince," said the yeoman, "to compel me to peril myself against the best archers of Leicester and Staffordshire, under the penalty of infamy if they should overshoot me. Nevertheless, I will obey your pleasure."

"Look to him close, men-at-arms," said Prince John, "his heart is sinking; I am jealous lest he attempt to escape the trial. And do you, good fellows, shoot boldly round; a buck and a butt of wine are ready for your refreshment in yonder tent, when the prize is won."

A target was placed at the upper end of the southern avenue which led to the lists. The contending archers took their turn, at the bottom of the southern access; the distance between that station and the mark allowed full distance for what was called a shot at rovers. The archers, having previously determined by lot their order of precedence, were to shoot each three shafts in succession. The sports were regulated by an offer of inferior rank, termed the Provost of the Games; for the high rank of the marshals of the lists would have been held degraded, had they condescended to superintend the sports of the yeomanry. One by one the archers delivered their shafts. Out of twenty-four arrows shot in succession, ten were fixed in the target, and the others ranged so near it, that it was accounted good archery.

ARE the best for the preservation of the sight, and took the medal at the Centennial Exhibition.

The lenses are made of the best material, uniform in density, and of high refractive power, their perfect polish and spheroidal shape adapt them to ease and improve the sight of the wearer.

The eye being the most delicate organ great care should be exercised in selecting spectacles; it is not enough that the glass be of the right focus, but the lenses must be perfectly centered and in many cases perfect relief is only given by having each eye fitted separately. To effect this the lenses are made interchangeable, and having an Optometer to measure the sight, a perfect fit is guaranteed.

Supper to the County Councillors and Leading Citizens.

By Mr. Henry B. Rainsford and Warden Pinder.

SPEECHES BY HIS HONOR THE CHIEF JUSTICE, BY THE ATTORNEY GENERAL, BY HIS WORSHIP THE MAYOR, BY MR. PICKARD, M.P., BY MR. HENRY B. RAINSFORD, AND BY MEMBERS OF THE BAR AND THE PRESS.

An Excellent Time Generally.

Mr. H. B. Rainsford, Jr., in union with the Warden elect, has made it the custom for many years to give a supper at the close of the winter session to the Council. The supper was one of the good old-fashioned ones, at which doughnuts are sadly at a discount. At the head of the table sat the Warden, on whose right was the Attorney-General, on the left Chief Justice Allen; opposite sat Secretary-Treasurer Rainsford. On his right was His Worship the Mayor, on the left Dr. Truck. The table groaned, and the contents of the tureens were sent on their mission.

THE TOASTS.
The Queen by the Warden was drunk with deep enthusiasm; the Princess Louise and the Governor General were responded to with three hearty cheers and a "hurrah." In the absence of the Governor General Mr. Pickard the G. G. member for this County responded. He said among other things: "I am delighted at seeing so many intelligent members from the County before me, no matter what the stars say. I think the County of York can furnish hundreds of just such intelligent men as these I see before me. I feel much pleasure in drinking the toast."
The Lieutenant Governor was drunk, and after receiving three cheers and a "hurrah," "For he's a Jolly Good Fellow" was sung by twenty strong voices. Mr. Fraser responded. He said he was thankful for the toast and for the appropriate language with which it had been accompanied. He thought that it was just possible that some among those present might in their turn aspire to the position of Lieutenant Governor. It might not be out of the way on the present occasion to say that it was His Honor the Governor who, while in the Local Legislature, introduced what might be called a persuasive municipal act. In 1877 that act was fully carried out when a municipal corporation was granted to the whole Province. He might add that had the Legislature known the pleasant evenings that were the result of municipal corporation, they would have granted it long ago.

The Bench and Bar was responded to by His Honor the Chief Justice. His Honor said that he was thankful for the toast, but was going to reply to only a part of it. Let the Bar speak for itself. He had belonged to York County; there he first saw the light, and there his early sympathies were. He had only lived here 3 or 4 months so to speak. But of late a change had come over those sitting around the board were strangers, yet he doubted not but the fathers of many were not unknown to him. At any rate being out of politics he would naturally not know so many as he used to. [Laughter and applause.] When he was in politics, and in making this statement he did not wish to be considered egotistical, he did not confine his peregrinations to the towns; he went to every place, and would have been for votes; but he wished to know how the people roads and settlements were, and how their votes were also. [Applause.] There were few about North Lake, El River, or Hainville, who he did not know. [His Honor then related some of his experiences while on "the stump."] But the ego he said would drop out, while he had almost forgotten the judiciary. As those present knew there were duties assigned for the Judges, and a certain number of Judges for that duty. Some people who saw the least, and based their calculations on these observations, thought the Judges were comparatively idle. This was he was sorry to say far from true. [Applause.] For his part he found but little time to spare; the greater part of the day was absorbed by his duties, and it was rarely he finished before midnight. There was another too popular delusion. Some thought the Judge cared little how the "cases" went. On the contrary he is sworn to administer the law impartially and judge fairly from the material before him. The case had to be reconciled with law or equity; conducted on certain fixed principles which cannot be this way to-day and that way to-morrow. He had much pleasure in looking back at the past history of the Bench. Up to the present his members had maintained a reputation for integrity, intelligence and honesty. [And never was it purer than now, Ed.]; and he referred in warm terms to the great abilities of his friend Judge Ritchie, who now held the second highest position in the Dominion. They were all familiar with the event that gave rise to the promotion of his friend; it was the carrying out of the confederation scheme. He had given all the opposition he could command to that measure when it was first proposed, believing it was not for the interests of Canada. The people, however, thought otherwise. After the confederation a friend of his said to him, "You and Judge Ritchie have made as much out of it as anyone." He did not ask for the position, but obtained it by a turn of the tide. The relation between the City and County should be amicable, as the interests of the one were identical with the interests of the other. There had been differences, but he was glad these had passed away. Dr. Truck has referred to his position as a choice of the people. He had enjoyed their confidence for many years, and he could assure them that as this was his last year at the present to occupy the City Chair, he felt pleasure in meeting the members of the County Council at the festive board; and perhaps all the more pleasure when he considered that the Warden had sat as Alderman of the City while he filled the chair; viewing all these facts he felt much pleasure in having the City and still greater honors in store for him at the hands of both the County and City.

Mr. Beckwith proposed the Press, to which J. F. Collins of the STAR responded. He said he wished all present to bear in mind that there was a wide difference between the press and the members of the press; if there wasn't, it would be said that the representatives present were all in appearance and intelligence very far ahead of the best around the board. Like the postoffice clerk, whom Mr. Twaite rebuked, the members of the press were not the gun, nor were they the ramrod; they were the mere appendage used for setting it off. He wished to avoid speech-making for all outside the press itself should be kept in darkness as to the powers of the newspaper man as a speaker or as a mortal. He claimed the right to criticize everything, and wished to be considered, and really was, matter before the Mayor and hoped he would be able to explain it; and he was glad of opportunity of bringing the matter before their attention. He thought better accommodation should be provided for the inmates; that there should at least be a room for the sick and another for the dead. His information might have been wrong; so His Worship would correct him. He hoped, in conclusion, that the County Council would lose sight of the matter; and that the City Council would give it their attention.

The City Clerk rose and said, in the absence of His Worship, who had just left the room, he would say that no one was more surprised and horrified at hearing the disclosures His Honor the Chief Justice had made than himself. He had never heard any complaint against Mr. Fleming, the keeper, who (living) nor of Mrs. Fleming, the present keeper.

CHIEF JUSTICE.—I do not wish to be understood as having censured the keeper.

Mr. Beckwith had been under the impression that there were dead bodies in the cells of the hospital. But he agreed cordially with His Honor that the time had now arrived when the County and City should put their heads together to consider the question.

His Worship the Mayor having now come to the aid of the Chief Justice, he turned to the Mayor and said he was speaking about the Alms House; but the City Clerk, who was always jealous of the reputation of the city, had made the necessary explanations. The accommodation might be insufficient but he would take the pains to ascertain, if the sick died among the living and not among the dead, that was shocking indeed. He hoped the gentlemen present representing the several parishes would give the matter their most earnest attention, and stand ready to do what might be deemed necessary. He was sorry to hear that His Honor the Chief Justice had not made this complaint nearly a year ago, when he was in the city, and he himself was Mayor; and the Alms House and its accommodations were the same then as now.

C. J.—My doing wrong then does not make it right now.

Mr. Black was called and rising said it was no part of his purpose to inflict a speech on his hearers; but that he felt much pleasure in being of that noble Fraternity the Bar. He was sorry to say though, that when he searched back in the pages of sacred writ he found no such mention of the lawyers as the Chief Justice had in re Nebuchadnezzar. [Mr. Black read in the self same Book "Woe unto you O Lawyers." [Applause.]
Dr. Truck followed in a very entertaining speech. He dwelt at much length on the integrity of the bench, and the ability of the Bar. He bore willing testimony to the zeal shown by his Honor the Chief Justice in the discharge of his duties, and the great industry, that from personal knowledge, he was able to say, characterized him. He paid a high tribute to the gallant Yeomanry of York and expressed his pleasure at being among them.

Mr. Truck replied in a very loyal vein, and thought there should be a monument erected to the Loyals of 1788.

Major Rogers of Montreal was then asked for a song, and gave "McSorley's Twins." The Major in a very comical way kept all hands in an uproar. Mr. Gordon Kelly also sang a Scotch song, of course, as Mr. Kelly can sing a Scotch song.

"The Municipality of York" was proposed, to which the first response was Warden Pinder's, a neat and appropriate speech. Secretary-Treasurer Rainsford was the next called upon. He was happy to say that he had been connected with York, the first County in the Province, in official capacity, in the last twenty years. He was glad to see that municipal matters were taking the place that it was meant they should. Councillors now were awakening to the importance of the positions they held and therefore bring each year greater intelligence and greater interest into their positions. He was happy to say that times through the County were looking up. In fact they were changing so that in a short time there would be little left for the lawyers to do. In bygone days amounts were collected only for the full text of legal process; now a letter, for which there is but a small fee, did all the work. [Laughter and applause.] He was glad to see that many who turned all their attention to lumbering in days gone by, and now given their attention to farming. This was an employment indispensable to existence, and perhaps the most remunerative of all in the end. This is noticeable by taking a drive through the country. The buildings are being improved, barns enlarged and better filled; several farms are beginning to export, and are seeing the beginning of an immense trade with England; he was happy to know that such a general interest was being awakened in the raising of wheat for sale and sale; that attention had been turned more than ever before to the raising of crops in general. He was across the river a few days ago, and was happy to see a gentleman there, Mr. Bally, packing a crate for export for England. He was glad to see further the export trade in general, he was glad to see the County Council had resolved to unite with St. John in asking that the Dominion Government subsidize a line of steamers to carry cattle and farm produce from here to Liverpool. New Brunswick had, all things considered, passed in depression; and it was not too sanguine to hope a more prosperous day was near at hand; at least, if the silver lining to the cloud was an omen, we might be hopeful. [Applause.]

Dr. Truck proposed the health of the "Militia," to which his Honor Judge Allen responded. [We shall give an outline of His Honor's speech in our next.—Ed.]

His Honor the Chief Justice was proposed by Mr. John Black, "The Ladies" by Quin of the Globe to which Mr. Hazen replied in an excellent speech.

"Our Host," by Mr. Henry was responded to by Mr. John B. Gries, and "Our Industries," by Messrs. Nason and Pinder.

The whole affair was a grand success. It is to be hoped that there is to be found anywhere at better catered than Mr. Gries, or a Jolliter lot than met that night.

A Good Plan.
The Reporter in its last issue says: "The young men of Fredericton would do well to inaugurate a debating society, where many of the important questions of the day might be discussed to their mutual benefit and advantage to the public hereafter. We are well aware that the advancement of such a society is discouraged by some existing societies already, but the formation of an institute with this as its main feature would be a most worthy and noble of other organizations."

We are glad to see the Reporter taking a stand in this question.

The files of literature have sprung into existence from time to time in Fredericton have flashed and crackled and flickered for a season and have finally smouldered quietly away among the ashes of apathetic, non-progressive sectarianism, leaving behind them nought but unpleasant impressions of the difficulty attending all endeavors which have been made to raise permanent interest in this branch of culture in our city. There exist in our midst many worthy and enlightened souls who are accustomed to bewail the lack of appreciation which has greeted every approach they have made or have been disposed to make on the subject of the elevation of literature, from those who might reasonably have been expected to take an interest in such social advancement. Societies have sometimes been created by members of individual churches, but with the Reporter we have yet to chronicle the bonafide formation of an independent, non-sectarian literary institute, remote from auspices or other appendage, intended for the elevation of the public literary taste, and having for its object the formation of a channel through which to direct the latent energy and ability of those "who will by-and-by aspire to a seat at the Council board, or perchance in Parliament,"—or even fill the humble and more precarious position of a journalist. That there is in Fredericton suitable material for such, none will question who have seen young men who have left our shores in pursuit of the nineteenth century and have risen to the highest position of trust and intellectual requirements in other countries. We seek the Reporter's suggestion and hope that a debating society will be formed ere long on the broad principles of pure mental progress upon for the season, in the various branches of Drawing and Painting (Landscapes and Figures, &c.) Arrangements may be made by calling at M. S. Hall's Book Store, Queen Street. S. H. GARDNER, Artist.

As I propose to remain in Fredericton this winter, I intend, if classes can be formed there, to take a course of instruction in a limited number of pupils of both sexes (collectively or separately, as may previously be agreed upon) for the season, in the various branches of Drawing and Painting (Landscapes and Figures, &c.) Arrangements may be made by calling at M. S. Hall's Book Store, Queen Street. S. H. GARDNER, Artist.

—Terms belonging to Mr. T. Murphy and Mr. S. Whitaker indulged in a stampede on Thursday afternoon. The sleigh owned by the latter gentleman was disintegrated.

STAR BRIEFS.

Lumbering Operations.
Messrs. Hayford & Stetson will this winter cut eight or ten millions of spruce on St. John and Aroostook waters. They will also cut about three millions of cedar. The logs will be sawed at their mill in St. John, where Mr. Stetson of the firm now resides.—Bangor Whig.

Literary.
The exhibition and description of New Brunswick scenery by Mr. G. T. Taylor and Mr. Edward Jack, at Douglas, Thursday evening, was very fairly attended. Mr. Jack had added very copious notes to his original lecture, and the audience expressed themselves as well pleased with the entertainment.

The second lecture of the St. Peter's Church course, Spring Hill, was given on Thursday evening, by Rev. Canon Partridge, B. D., of Rothesay, on "An Hour with the Microscope," and was replete with information which, from the lecturer's unaffected conversational way of presenting it, was especially interesting to the boys, and all present. We are obliged for want of space to hold over an excellent report of this lecture.

Communications.

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION.
To the Editor of the STAR.
Sir,—Can you inform me whose duty it is to warn the jury to attend the different Courts? Is it the sheriff's or his deputy's? Why is it that the same juror may be present at the County and Supreme Courts? Is it because the Deputy Sheriff holds a note or has a claim against the said juror? If that is the proper way I would like to know it.

Yours,
J. COLLINS, Proprietor.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observation of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics, in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach, and we make the unusual statement that Scott's Emulsion is being used with better results and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for consumption and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrophula, Anemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of Children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet is truly marvellous.

See What Physicians and the People Say About It.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September 2, 1876.

Gentlemen,—I have frequently prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen,—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practice prescribed very extensively Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen,—Within the last two months I have fairly tried Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice. In addition to the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly agreeable and elegant form.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen,—In September, 1877, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my knees, and I was obliged to remain in bed for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats and short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your Emulsion and before it was all taken I was better. I afterwards bought a dozen bottles, with the following result: Cough subsided, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pain in spine disappeared, strength returning, and my weight increases from 110 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your Emulsion and shall continue its use until I can perfectly walk. I frequently meet some friends on the street who ask, "What cured you?" and I answer, "Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites." I have a friend who has not spoken about for 15 months, and he is getting better. I get a line a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen, and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Very truly yours,
H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen,—I got a bottle of your Emulsion and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live longer than a few weeks at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the Emulsion in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk, and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover.

For sale by all Druggists @ $1.00 per bottle.
I am gratefully yours,
