OFFICIAL.
LONDON, Oct. 30.

The Governor, Nfld.
On the Verdun front the French attacked on a five mile front and captured enemy positions to a maximum of two miles. They retook the village of Fort Donnament and Hautmont Quarries. Prisoners exceed 5,000.

On the Somme had weather has hindered operations, but we advanced between Guedecourt and Les Bouefs, capturing 1,000 prisoners, sustaining only 1,200 casualties. The French advanced at Sully Sailles.

In Dobruja the retreat of the Russo-Romanian forces continues.

In the Carpathians the Rumanians have counter-attacked, capturing numerous prisoners. Further Allied successes are reported in Macedonia.

An enemy raid on our cross-Channel transport service failed. Two enemy destroyers were sunk. One of ours is missing and another grounded. The empty transport Queen was also sunk.

ENEMY POSITION RAIDED.

SALONIKA, Oct. 30.

On the Doiran front, on the night of October 28-29, after artillery preparation, the enemy position of Crete-de-Teugs, northeast of Machelukova, was raided by our troops, who inflicted considerable loss to the German and Bulgarian trenches. North of Lake Doiran hostile aeroplanes were brought down. On the Struma front to the west of Demir Hissar an enemy transport park was bombarded by our aeroplanes with excellent results. North of Ormanly our patrols drove back hostile patrols.

GREEK STEAMER TORPEDOED.

ATHENS, Oct. 30.

The torpedoing of the Greek steamer Angheliki on Saturday near Piraeus, with many Greeks aboard, was carried out without warning, it is stated here. This action is believed to indicate that since the capture of Constantinople, German submarines have obtained a new supply of benzine, enabling them to resume operations in the Mediterranean. The Greek naval officers are

Two Cases of Eczema and How They Were Cured.

Further Proof That Dr. Chase's Ointment is a Positive Cure for Chronic Eczema.

If you read these letters you will find that Dr. Chase's Ointment is not to be classed among ordinary salves and ointments. By actually curing itching, stinging eczema in many thousands of cases it has stood the most severe test to which any ointment can be put. Mr. J. Brice, Temperance road, Parry Sound, Ont., writes: "Just a line to praise Dr. Chase's Ointment for what it has done for my wife. She has been suffering with eczema in her head for two years, and has spent no end of money with doctors and ointments, which did her no good. She had about given up hope of ever being cured, when someone told her to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. By the use of this Ointment the trouble has left her entirely, so we have unbounded faith in it. I have told several people about the Ointment." Mrs. W. G. Dowden, Greenspond, Bonaville Bay, Nfld., writes: "I suf-

BRITISH TRANSPORT TORPEDOED - EIGHTY-THREE MISSING.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.
The destruction of the British horse transport Marina by a German submarine without warning, with the possible loss of American lives, and the endangering of the lives of seven American citizens by the submarine attack on the British freighter Rowanmore as reported to-day from Queenstown by American Consul Frost, contain possibilities of reviving the submarine issue between the United States and Germany. Investigation, officials realize, may disclose there has been no violation of German pledges. Nevertheless the first reports, though incomplete, and transmitted by the American Consul as "provisional," caused some uneasiness. The report of the destruction of the Marina refers to the ship as "British horse transport." If it turns out that she was in fact in the transport service of the British government, it may be found that the mixed crew were British and American horse-tenders, and could not claim the same immunity against attack without warning that attaches to a merchant ship. Orders were despatched at once to gather all information and determine the status of the Marina and her crew.

Following is a summary of Consul Frost's despatch: The British horse transport Marina with a mixed crew of British and Americans, was reported sunk without warning by a German submarine by gun fire at 3 p.m. Oct. 28th, one hundred miles west of Cape Clear. Thirty-four of the crew of 104 have landed, while seventy others, presumably those in boats, and 13 others are missing. Consul Frost says information so far is purely "provisional."

London.—In reply to an enquiry from the American Embassy, the Admiralty said to-day there were forty-nine Americans among the crew of the Marina. The Admiralty informed the Embassy that the Marina was torpedoed, but that it had not been ascertained whether warning was given. No official information is available whether any Americans were drowned, although only thirty-four survivors landed at Crookhaven. The Marina was outward bound and was torpedoed twice before she broke in two. It is reported that some of the men were drowned while attempting to lower a boat. Consul Frost has been ordered to obtain all available information in regard to Americans on the vessel. The Admiralty says that the Marina was not under Government charter.

The United States Embassy to-day received a report from Wesley Frost, American Consul at Queenstown, stating that the British steamer Marina had been torpedoed without warning. It is believed a number of Americans were on board.

ENEMY TRENCHES RAIDED.

LONDON, Oct. 30.

British troops made two raids on the German trenches to the west of Wytchaste, Belgium, and east of Boesinghe, last night, says the official statement this afternoon.

MARINA'S CREW PICKED UP.

LONDON, Oct. 30.

Lloyd's report that a steamer anchored off Crookhaven, Ireland, signals she has picked up the shipwrecked crew of the steamship Marina of Glasgow. The Marina was engaged in the trans-Atlantic service, and was 5,204 tons. She was last reported as having arrived at Glasgow Oct. 10, after having sailed from Newport News, Sept. 21. Mr. Frost, American Consul at Queenstown, is now procuring affidavits from survivors. A report on the sinking of the British steamer Rowanmore was made to the American Embassy to-day by Frost, who states that the vessel was torpedoed. Seven Americans, including five Philippians, were on board the Rowanmore. Several of them have given Mr. Frost affidavits stating that a submarine shelled the lifeboats while they were being lowered and after they were in the water.

STEAMER STENSHEST TORPEDOED.

The Politiken says that the Norwegian steamer Jyllands arrived at Friedrichshafen with 16 members of the crew of the Norwegian steamer Stenshest, which was torpedoed, sinking in five minutes.

THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.

The first real sensation of the political campaign was sprung Saturday night by United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, when in a speech at Somerville, Mass., he asserted that President Wilson at the time the second Lusitania note was sent to Germany, wrote a postscript informing the German Government that the contents of his former "strict accountability" note were not to be too seriously interpreted. Lodge insisted that William Jennings Bryan had knowledge of and approved of the President's postscript, and that when Secretary of War Garrison and other members of the President's cabinet learned of it they threatened to resign unless it were withdrawn. Lodge quoted Dr. Charles H. Bailey, Professor of Tufts Medical School, as his authority for the truth of the charge, and Dr. Bailey named former assistant Secretary of the Navy, Breckenridge as his informant. Denials and counter denials were issued from various quarters to-day, but Dr. Bailey reaffirmed the truth of his story, and promises to produce indisputable proof of its accuracy.

Try "Cascarets" for Liver and Bowels If Sick or Bilious

Tonight! Clean your bowels and stop headache, colds, sour stomach.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and bad colds—turn them out to-night and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels, or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken.

THE MOVING FINGER.

The moving finger writes; and we may read the fateful lesson of its changeless screed, of which no man may cancel half a line, by all his prayers, by all his flow of brine. All useless things must perish from the earth, which has but room for things of proven worth. In every age some foolishness is stopped; in every age some worthless things are dropped. The worthless things may grow and flourish long, and long the "world" endure; some grievous wrong, but when the bumps no power can save them from the divers dumps. And so Old Boozie is slipping day by day; nothing can stop him on his downward way; the world has had enough of gin and rye, nations and states and villages go dry. Friends of Old Boozie are fighting for him, hand weapons in hand they stand upon their guard, but ah in vain their brave defence of rum—Old Boozie must go because his time has come.

THE CALL FOR MEN

The isolation of Newfoundland has long been its chief handicap, and even in these universal times we catch rather the eddies than the full current of the great events of every day. But the time is past when this could be pleaded as an excuse or admitted as an explanation of ignorance of the gigantic conflict that still rages. There is no village so remote that it does not know at least the bare fact that on the issue depend the destinies of nations, our own included, whether or not the knowledge has brought with it the sense of duty and even of self-interest that it should. And of late there have sounded certain clarion calls which should be echoed and kept ringing through the length and breadth of our island.

Sir William Robertson has called for another million men: they are absolutely necessary both to achieve victory and to drive it home. In Australia, in Canada and in Ireland the question of conscription looms large, and while it is being debated men are flocking to the standard. Recently our premier returned and told us of his visit to the regiment, and a recruiting appeal went out as a result of the comparative contributions in men of the different districts of the country, a comparison which he who runs may read. Our men are now at home. The Recruiting Committee are redoubling their efforts. The services of many of our returned soldiers and sailors, brave men bearing the scars of battle on their bodies, have been freely given on many platforms. What able-bodied youth can be content to sit among their audience? On every side there are signs as plain as day that great things are imminent—not great things either, but great victories, to be brought to us, and grasped the sooner as the effort to achieve them is the more spontaneous, the more earnest, the more immediate.

Comparisons are odious, but they are often necessary and often intrude themselves upon us by sheer force of facts. Let then the striking discrepancies we have noticed between the districts in this respect be removed or so far effaced as to leave nothing but a splendid evidence of united effort. We shall note carefully, from the beginning of November, the recruiting returns and shall not stint our praise of those districts which head the list, absolutely and proportionately. Let us see a friendly and healthy rivalry for pride of place. We note with what just demonstrations of pride the smallest settlement welcomes back its heroes on furlough or honourably discharged from honourable service. This is the debt the community owes its sons. That which each son that can owes his community is to go now, that may receive the like welcome when all is over and the fight is won.

Death of Rev. Dr. Howard Sprague.

The most eloquent tongue in Eastern Canada, perhaps the most eloquent tongue in the whole Dominion, has been hushed in death. One of the most comprehensively scholarly minds in all Canada, richly stored and ripe in experience and influence, has passed beyond the veil. A man whose name has been a household word for many years is missed and mourned throughout the Maritime Provinces to-day.

Dr. Sprague was a Newfoundlander, and a native of Lower Island Cove, C.B., where he was born in 1843, his father being the Rev. S. W. Sprague, at that time stationed as the Methodist minister of the place. He was educated in the two most famous schools in Newfoundland in those years, Scott's school in St. John's, and Roddick's school in Harbor Grace. Thence he proceeded to the newly established Mount Allison College at Sackville, N.B., where he became one of the first two graduates in Arts, the other being Lieut.-Governor Wood of New Brunswick. His scholarship and eloquence brought him into rapid recognition and influence, and he early became one of the leading Methodist Ministers of Eastern Canada, occupying the foremost pulpits, and being chosen constantly for positions of responsibility and honor. One of the most modest and retiring of men, he never sought place for himself, and an almost constant fight with ill-health often restricted his labors. But his talents could not be hidden, and he came to his own throughout the years. So long ago as 1875, he was offered the Presidency of his Alma Mater, but declined it. In 1908, however, he accepted the position of Dean of the Theological Faculty of Mount Allison University and continued to hold that important post till his death, announced to-day in the public despatches. Dr. Sprague leaves a family, all grown to maturity. One of his daughters is Vice-Principal of Mount Allison Ladies' College. His father was an Englishman, his mother a Miss Currie of St. John's. One of his sisters still resides in this city, the wife of W. H. Crowdy, Esq.

Opening of Consumption Camp.

Yesterday afternoon the new Consumption Camp initiated principally by Private Phil Jensen for the succor and relief of our soldiers and sailors, who are in the incipient stage of tuberculosis, was formally opened in the presence of His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson, the Premier and Lady Morris, the Ladies' Reception Committee as well as Messrs. C. F. Ayre and P. T. McGrath, representing a sub-committee of the Patriotic Association. Four patients were admitted after the opening and everything possible for their comfort was done by the Ladies' Reception Committee. The Camp, which is situated on the Blackmarsh Road and in close proximity to the Girls' Tuberculosis Camp, is 60 ft. long, 12 wide, contains a ward and dressing room and has ten beds. On the south side is a sun room, 18 feet x 12, with a front of glass and well furnished and fitted up for the convenience of patients. On the whole this miniature sanitarium is nicely finished and will be found useful for the treatment of those who have been stricken by the dread disease while endeavouring to do their "bit" for us.

Our Missing Men.

October 30th, 1916.

Dear Sir,—I have to-day received from His Excellency the Governor the enclosed Memorandum, on the subject of enquiries which have been instituted in the effort to trace men of the First Newfoundland Regiment who have been reported "Missing," and I am glad to say you will give the same much publicity as you may deem desirable.

Yours faithfully,
J. R. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary,
The Editor of the Evening Telegram.

MEMORANDUM.

I have read, with anxiety, some correspondence which has appeared in the Press on the subject of enquiries which were set on foot by Mr. G. Snow in the earnest hope that he might be able to trace some of the "Missing" in the action of the 1st of July Prisoners of War in Germany. I have not had the advantage of a personal conference with Mr. Snow on the results of his endeavours. Mr. Snow was unable to accede to my request that he should come and talk to me on the subject.

I would first repeat the action taken by the Government on the subject of the possibility of any Newfoundlanders being held as Prisoners of War in Germany or elsewhere. (1) When the Regiment was at Gallipoli, I asked that the War Office should give prisoners taken by the Turks from the Newfoundland Regiment the same care and privileges accorded to any other British troops and that the provision of any comforts for them would be defrayed by this Government. Fortunately, none of our people were taken prisoners by the Turks.

(2) When two of the Newfoundland Royal Naval Reservists were reported as being taken prisoners when the Mine Sweeper "King Stephen" was destroyed by a German ship of war, I made the same request; I found out that the prisoners were interned at Halle and are being as well cared for as other British Prisoners in Germany.

(3) As soon as I had grasped that the attack at Beaumont Hamel on July 1st had failed and before we received any Casualty Lists, I felt it likely that many of our men must necessarily have been abandoned in No Man's Land; so I wrote confidentially to the Secretary of State stating my fears and anxiety that some of our men who had advanced further might have fallen into enemy hands. When the Casualty Lists began to arrive, I repeated my request to the Secretary of State and to the Pay and Record Office. And what we have done has also been done by the Newfoundland War Contingent Association in London.

I read this action on our part merely in the attempt to disabuse people's minds of the idea that nothing had been done, and that we had followed the best course very promptly. We know that when the patrol returned from the brilliant raid of June 27-28, four men failed to return and were posted as missing. The patrol commander (I have spoken to one who believed them to have been killed. One undoubtedly was killed, a second (Cahill) was taken prisoner and died of wounds received in action and the other two (Coombs and Barron) are Prisoners of War at Glessen in Germany. I hope that both have long since been amply supplied with food and comforts. Every effort has been made by us and I have no doubt they have now enough to spare for those of the Russian prisoners who have no friends to watch over them in captivity.

But as regards the long list of missing in the unsuccessful attack on July 1st, we have no tidings that any one of them is alive. Those who took part in the charge are under no disillusion on the subject. They maintain that the fury of the machine gun and shell fire left no chance of escape for those who fell in the open. Still we all hope against hope, despite the fact that we are obtaining at the War Office that those reported missing and not heard of within ten weeks must be believed to have been killed in action.

Now, the message received by Mr. G. Snow on Oct. 23rd—written I gather on Oct. 20th from Switzerland—names "No. 1788 Pte. Martin Farrell; 476 Pte. J. P. Haney; 1202 Richard Short; missing 1st July—wired Germany." I wish that I knew what Agency was employed, because there is a number of unscrupulous blackguards who fatten on the sorrows of the bereaved and obtain money by vague promises.

Why should the Agency have named these three men who were actually among the Missing of the Newfoundland Regiment on July 1st? I suggest the following reason as a clue. The War Office issues at once to accredited centres a daily list of all reported casualties from which the Pay and Record Office compile their telegrams; but it also issues for publication in the press a further list of casualties comprised according to Regiments and issued when a substantial number has been collected. On October 2nd, one such list was issued in the press and it appears in the Times on October 3rd. This list contained the following entries:

Previously reported Missing now reported Killed: 1302 Sergt. B. Brown, 1788 M. Farrell. Previously reported Wounded, now reported Wounded and Missing: 476 J. P. Haney; 1202 R. M. Short.

Lain brought in his remains or at least his Identification Disc. Despite therefore Mr. Snow's hopes which I should like to share, I fear that there is no hope that Farrell survives. We can only await patiently the results of the independent investigation which Mr. Snow has set on foot.

And I should like to add that all my time and all my energies and knowledge are at the disposal of any of those bereaved relatives who may desire counsel from me. Fully one hundred have consulted me in their anxiety for the welfare of those at the front and they can all testify that none have been turned away from Government House without such help and advice as we can give.

Don't Neglect Your Cough.

A little cold may not seem a dangerous thing—you may feel inclined to let it go on hoping that to-morrow it will be better—but can you afford to take chances? Just as the little insignificant sprout grows if left alone, to the mighty giant oak, that cough if not stopped may grow to a very serious illness. When a Cough starts there's no telling where it will end. You know no doubt, of cases right among people you have known, where serious complications grow if left alone, to the mighty giant oak, that cough if not stopped may grow to a very serious illness. Stafford's Phorotone Cough and Cold Cure is what you should take. For sale at Stafford's Drug Store, Theatre Hill, and Stafford's Pharmacy, Duckworth Street. Price 25c. postage 5c. extra.

FOR HE'S A JOLLY GOOD FELLOW.

London Chronicle.—The French bandmen were quite at home when they greeted the Lord Mayor with "For he's a jolly good fellow." Not even we British can sing that tune with more vim and enthusiasm than the Russian composer, heard the tune for the first time in England, when it was sung in his honor. It pleased him so immensely that he promised to utilize it for a set of orchestral variations, which have probably been hung up owing to the war, as Rachmaninoff is "doing his bit" on the Eastern front. However, when he has time, he might forgive what ought to be a pleasing musical link in the strong chain of the Triple Entente.

FRENCH REPORT.

PARIS, To-day. South of the Somme artillery fighting has continued in the region of La Maisonnette, says a bulletin issued by the War Office to-night. There was no infantry action. On the Verdun front there were only bombardments which were specially violent in sectors of Haudremont, Douaumont, Fumin Wood and Le Chenois. Bad weather still hampers the whole front.

WAR SUMMARY.

LONDON, To-day. In a vigorous counter attack launched with huge effectiveness the Germans facing the French south of the Somme River in France have been able to recapture portions of their former trenches north of La Maisonnette and in the region of Biaches. In addition 412 Frenchmen were made prisoners by the Germans. To the north of the river, however, both the French and British have succeeded in advancing their lines, the British between Les Bouffes and Merval and the French northwest of Sully Saillisset. In the latter engagement 60 Germans were captured. While in the Dobruja region of Roumania the Teutonic Allies are keeping up their advance, on the Transylvania front the Roumanians are still fighting hard in the Prahova Valley and Jiu Valley, where fresh gains have been made by them. In the Rothernstrum Pass region Berlin records a new success for the Austro-Germans but admits that southwest of the Szurdok Pass the Roumanians have forced the Austro-German columns to fall back. In massed formation the Russians in Volhynia to the west of Pustovoye again endeavored to break the Teutonic line, only again to be defeated with huge casualties, according to Berlin. A Russian attack east of Szelow also was repulsed by the Germans. Heavy fighting is still going on at the bend of the Vorna River in Serbia, the French-Serbians being engaged there with Germans and Bulgarians. Berlin reports that all attacks by the Entente Forces in this district thus far have failed. On the Dolran front the British have raided a German-Bulgar position, inflicting considerable casualties on the occupants of the trenches.

SAYS BREMEN & DEUTSCHLAND LOST.

GENEVA, Switzerland, To-day. The National Zeitung of Basel prints the following concerning the German submarines Bremen and Deutschland:—Both the Bremen and Deutschland have been either captured or sunk. The Bremen never reached the States nor returned. The Deutschland during the second trip across the Atlantic in September under the name of "Weser" also disappeared. The submarine U 53 was sent to search for the vessels but found no traces of them. The loss of the two commercial subs has not yet been officially admitted.

SITUATION AT LEAST 'SERIOUS.'

WASHINGTON, To-day. The preliminary reports of the sinking by German submarines of the British steamers Marina and Rewanmere, partly manned by Americans, were too incomplete to-night to enable the officials of the State Department to form an opinion whether there had been a violation of the neutral rights pledges given to the United States by Germany. Secretary Lansing declined to comment further than to admit that the reports appeared more serious than the usual routine despatch announcing the destruction of belligerent merchantmen and that full information would be awaited with interest.

GETTING THE NOTE-PAPER READY.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., To-day. President Wilson, when informed to-day of the sinking of the British steamer Marina by a submarine with the probable loss of American lives, immediately directed that he be supplied with all details as they come to the State Department at Washington. The President would make no statement pending the receipt of full details.

ABYSSINIA'S TROUBLES.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch received in London from the British Minister in Abyssinia announces that a big battle has been fought 25 miles outside the capital which resulted in a complete victory for the new Government. Ras Mikhael, father of the late Emperor, was taken prisoner. The deposed ruler, according to the despatch, is believed now to be among the tribes on the border of Abyssinia and Somaliland. The despatch adds that if the victory proves sufficiently decisive the question will be reconsidered of recognizing the new Government. Recent despatches announced the outbreak of a revolution in Abyssinia. A London despatch said that the Emperor Lidi Jessau, the 22 year son of the late Emperor Menelik, had been deposed and that Ouliz Zoedita, daughter of Menelik, had been proclaimed Empress of Othiopia (?)

PETROGRAD, To-day. The Russian-Serbian-Roumanian forces in Dobruja have assumed the offensive, according to the semi-official News Agency's Odessa correspondent.

LONDON, To-day. Artillery engagements along the British front in the vicinity of Beaumont Hamel and in the neighborhood of Hebuterne and Auchy are reported in an official announcement of War Office. Every Soldier to Carry Two Disks.

London, Oct. 21.—In future each officer and soldier will be supplied with two identity disks, to be suspended from the neck. Though no explanation of the order for the innovation is given, it is thought that the idea is to use the identity disk for the preservation of the identity of a body, after the first is removed for the purpose of the casualty list. The second disk will be suspended by six inches of cord from the upper, the former being red and the latter green.

Junket is a predigested custard, frequently prescribed for teething babies from fourteen months on, also for delicate children. It is prepared with essence of peppin or a junket tablet which can be bought at any good grocery.

Pour one cup of sweet milk into a clean enameled steppan. Dissolve a junket tablet in one tablespoon of cold water. Turn this lightly into the warm milk, stir till enough to mix it, add a very little sugar and flavoring turn into cups or small bowls to cool. When cool it looks like a milk jelly.

When the baby is exhausted by heat and teething, add a thoroughly beaten egg along with the sugar and flavoring. This dish is said to be even more easily digested than plain or modified milk.

DETAILS OF THE ANGHELIK.

PARIS, To-day. A Havas despatch from Athens quotes the captain of the Angheлик as saying that she was torpedoed without notice by a German sub, at nine o'clock at night. This despatch describes the vessel as a passenger steamer. It states that she began to sink immediately, but was kept afloat some time with the aid of the passengers who manned the pumps. There was a frightful panic and many threw themselves overboard and were drowned, the despatch continues. The steamer Karistoe took off the surviving passengers and part of the crew, and a French torpedo boat took the remainder. Fifty persons and probably more lost their lives.

A LITTLE FANTASTIC.

NEW YORK, To-day. The Sun this morning published another installment of a series of articles written for the London Times by D. Thomas Curtin of Boston, dealing with internal conditions in Germany, in which the astounding assertion is made that the Deutsche bank is entrenched behind powerful British financial interests and that German officials have frequently declared that the British Government dare not close this mixture of spying propaganda, banking and export. According to Mr. Curtin, Montreal is named as one of the cities in which it is claimed Germany has powerful friends. In the course of this article describing the bank, he says it is a vast definite scheme with such able leaders as Herr Basseman, the real leader of the National Liberal party, Herr Stiesman and others. I have been told we have powerful friends in London, Milan, Rome, Madrid, New York and Montreal and all over South America, everywhere in fact except Australia, where that Verdammter Hooges (Hughes) is in charge.

THIRTEEN MISSING FROM MARINA.

LONDON, To-day. The number of missing from the British steamship Marina has now been reduced to thirteen, according to a telegram received at the Embassy to-day from Wesley Frost, American Consul, at Queenstown. Fifty-two more survivors have been landed. Frost reports that among the thirteen there probably will be American fatalities.

A 30 year old laborer, who was arrested under warrant last night by Const. Hibbard, was charged with (1) assaulting Kong Wah and (2) for the larceny of $16.60 from the said Chinaman. The accused was represented by Mr. Higgins, who pleaded guilty to the charge of assault, but in the larceny charge pleaded not guilty, and asked for a postponement until Thursday morning for the purpose of getting two material witnesses. This was agreed to and the accused was admitted to bail in the sum of $800, furnishing $400 bonds himself and two others each in the sum of $200.

An old offender, who gave himself up to the police last evening as he had no home, was discharged.

A 42-year-old surveyor applied at the police station last night, said he was drunk and sick and asked to be taken into custody. A doctor was called but the strange visitor got contrary and refused to have anything to do with the medicines of the professional man. However, to-day in court he had to pay for the medical man's trouble before getting his liberty.

A 42-year-old truckman found drunk while driving a motor truck was fined $5 or 14 days. His Honor commented strongly on the seriousness of this offence.

MORE DIPHTHERIA.—A new case of diphtheria was reported to-day from the South Battery, near Fort Amherst. The patient is being removed to hospital.

INTERESTING FUNCTION.—Tomorrow, the Feast of All Saints, will be a gala day at Torbay. The T.A. & B. Society will parade and the Archbishop and all the clergy will be present at the baptism of the new bell. This solemn and interesting function will be the leading feature of the day's celebration. All are invited. His Grace will deliver the sermon.

At least 95 out of every 100 city women who buy fish BUY only WHELAN'S, not from any idle whim but from a SETTLED CONVICTION that WHELAN'S is the BEST.—oct31.11

DUCKS TRESPASSED.—A rather unusual and interesting case occupied the attention of the Central District Court to-day for a while between two farmers of Torbay. The defendant was summoned because two of his ducks trespassed on the land of the complainant. In addition the latter claims that the ducks polluted water which he had for the use of live stock. After the hearing of one witness the case was postponed till Friday next.

Report Cards for Life.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Do you remember the report cards you used to get when you were in school? Of course you do. That is the sort of thing one doesn't forget in a lifetime. I can shut my eyes now and see those little black G's and P's, with an E for English and a P for drawing (we were marked by the system of Excellent, Good, Fair, Poor, and Capital B, alleged by teachers to stand for Very Poor, when one could plainly see that it was the initial of a shorter and more emphatic word).

To return to the main road. Wouldn't it rather a good idea if there were someone to give us report cards later in life? Not on our studies, but on such things as social tact, manners, self-expression, etc.

How Would the Average Girl Stand in Expression?

It would be interesting to see how one stood, wouldn't it? And don't you think many girls who stood well in other departments would be surprised to find what a bad mark they would get in expression? I do. And I have a letter friend who feels the same. It was her experience that prompted me to write this reminder. Here it is.

They Expressed "Yes" Or "No" By Grants.

"Two girls sat behind me at the theatre the other night. Their conversation was sprinkled with 'perfectly grand,' 'fine and dandy,' 'just swell' and 'I never was thrilled in all my life.' When the heroine died, one girl said, tearfully, 'That just gets my goat!' They expressed 'yes' and 'no' by grants. "When I left the theatre I looked at those two slangy young people. They were pretty, refined-looking young girls. Then I thought of what they had said. Their sentiments had been refined enough, but it was difficult to believe that ladies could express themselves in such a common way, and I was puzzled as to how to place them.

It is Natural to Eat With Your Fingers.

"So often girls say, 'It is natural for me to speak with a twang, or to use slang. It would be affected if I did not.' It is natural, also to speak incorrectly, to eat with your fingers, to tell people you do not like to go home, and to do various other rude and uncivilized things. But you do not want to behave like a young savage, or to act and talk like an uncultivated and common person. You may say that all education is in a sense unnatural, but that does not keep it from being an improvement."

What the woman behind would think of one's conversation is an interesting question to ask one's self, isn't it?

What Are You Doing for that Eczema?

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."

"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex at your druggists."

Zylex, 50c. a box; Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.

Rosary Recited Before Battle.

An Officer Describes How The Irish Troops Prepared for Battle — Before Their Brilliant Capture of Guillemont.

Describing how the Irish troops prepared for battle on the night before their brilliant capture of Guillemont, an officer writes to Lloyd's Weekly:

The men encamped, or rather, bivouacked, on the bare side of a hill. They had no cover, no tents, and simply lay upon the ground with such small shelter as their waterproof sheets afforded them. It was a bleak and desolate scene, relieved only here and there by the bright sparkle of little fires around which the men clustered. Bleak and desolate as the prospect was, the spirits of the men were high and buoyant. Some of them sang, others were busy in cleaning their rifles and equipment. Bursts of laughter rang out in the darkness.

It was really wonderful passing through the groups of soldiers to notice the entire absence of anything like depression. Yet these men who lay about upon the bare earth had but newly arrived after a long and weary march over a bad road, and during a perfectly terrible down-pour of rain. Everybody knew that the next day was to be the day of battle—the day for which, for nearly two years, the new battalions had trained, ever since they first came together on the banks of the Blackwater, away in Ireland.

It really and truly seemed as if it were the very prospect of the struggle on the morrow which kept these damp and travel-stained men in good heart! Yet each man knew, deep in his heart, that by the next night many of them would have gone for ever. At one side of the hill where the men lay a file and drum band was playing well-known Irish airs, and they were listened to with keen appreciation and followed by cheers.

There was no uncertainty in the mind of the men as to the results of the attack which they were about to make. "It's all right—we shall have Guillemont to-morrow." That is what they said, and they said it with a conviction which was impressive, and still without boasting or arrogance. At the same time, these men, so gay and light-hearted, were filled with the deepest and purest feelings of religion. The majority of these Irish soldiers are Roman Catholics, and even those who cannot agree with the doctrines of that creed never fail to admire the devotion and steadfastness with which the Irishmen adhere to their faith under all circumstances. On the particular night the writer refers to, just as the camp fires were dying down and the men were preparing for the rest, which they might be able to snatch, an officer came over the side of the hill and down to the centre of the camp.

It was the Catholic chaplain—a devoted priest who had been with the Irish troops in Ireland, in England and in France, and whose never-ceasing work is keenly appreciated by all ranks. In a moment he was surrounded by the men. They came to him without orders—they came gladly and willingly, and they hailed his visit with plain delight. He spoke to them in the simple, homely language which they liked. He spoke of the sacrifice which they had made in freely and promptly leaving their homes to fight for a cause which was the cause of religion, freedom and civilization. He reminded them that in this struggle they were most certainly defending the homes and the relations and friends they had left behind them in Ireland. It was a simple, yet most moving address, and deeply affected the soldiers.

When the chaplain had finished his address he signed to the men to kneel and administered to them the General Absolution given in times of emergency. The vast majority of the men present knelt, and those of other faith stood by in attitudes of reverent respect. The chaplain then asked the men to recite with him the Rosary.

It was most wonderful, the effect produced, as hundreds and hundreds of voices repeated the prayers and recited the words, "Pray for us now, and at the hour of our death—Amen."

Escapes in Battle.

"One bullet went clean through my pocket, struck my notebook, and stayed there. I have it still. It is a souvenir." Thus wrote an officer in Flanders some time ago, and the incident is typical of many occasions when men have been saved from death or disablement by some object they were carrying about their person.

Not very long ago a private in one of the Yorkshire Regiments was saved from death by a cigarette-case which he was carrying in a pocket over his heart. The missile lodged in the inner cover of the case, and the cigarettes were badly damaged, but no other harm was done. A Lancashire soldier was also saved by a cigarette tin and a penny in his breast pocket.

Bishop Taylor Smith, speaking at Harrow School, told how a captain in the Coldstreams was wounded by a shell. When he was examined the doctors found a Bible in his hip pocket. The piece of shell had struck the Bible and gone through the pages. Had it not been for the Bible the officer's spine would have been shattered. Luckily enough, the missile had stopped at the Ninety-first Psalm, and the officer's father, who had given him the Bible, had written a verse from that Psalm on the flyleaf.

The Allies will admit no external interference in the development and conduct of the war. It will have caused them enough suffering for them to reserve to themselves the exclusive right to conditions of peace. They appealed for no intervention, when they were decimated, bombarded, asphyxiated, and when the menace of German victory hung over them and over the human civilization. They will not stop halfway when they are sure of being the victors. None of them will lay down arms before a repetition of the horrors of which they have been victims has become entirely impossible. The authors of this outrage upon humanity will receive such punishment as will deprive them of the means of ever beginning again. That is the war-cry against Germany. It is not the cry of hate, but the cry of justice. The Kaiser, his Government, his vassals, and his subjects are warned.—Le Petit Journal (Paris).

"Your Father Who Had Counted on You."

The Tragic Night When Mr. Britling Loses His Firstborn.

The angel of Death has been abroad throughout the land; you may almost hear the beating of his wings. There is no one, as when the first-born were slain of old to sprinkle with blood the lintel and the two side-posts of our doors, that he may spare and pass on; he takes his victims from the castle of the noble, the mansion of the wealthy, and the cottage of the poor and lowly. —John Bright, in the Commons on the Crimean War in 1855.

The most tremendous scene in Mr. H. G. Wells' new story, "Mr. Britling Sees It Through," is that which occurs when the news comes that the first-born, Hugh, is dead on the battlefield.

"This scene is the most terrible thing in the novel. It hurts more intolerably than anything else. I think it marks the highest point in the achievement of Mr. Wells. There is nothing greater in Tolstoy or Dostoevsky," says Mr. James Douglas, in the Star.

"The telegram was brought up by a girl in a pinafore instead of the boy of the old dispensation. . . .

Why Did I Let Him Go?

"He had been thinking of this possibility for the last few weeks almost continuously, and yet now that it had come to him he felt that he had never thought about it before, that he must go off alone by himself to envisage this monstrous and terrible fact without distraction or interruption. . . .

"He drew the telegram from his pocket again furtively, almost guiltily, and re-read it. He turned it over and read it again. . . .

"Killed!"

"Then his own voice, hoarse and strange in his ears, spoke his thought, 'My God! how unutterably silly. . . . Why did I let him go? Why did I let him go?'"

What Is It!

"Mrs. Britling (his second wife, and not Hugh's mother) did not learn of the blow that had struck them until after dinner that night. She was so accustomed to ignore his incomprehensible moods that she did not perceive that there was anything tragic about him until they sat at table together. He seemed heavy and sulky and disposed to avoid her. But that sort of moodiness was nothing very strange to her. She knew that things that seemed to her utterly trivial, the reading of political speeches in the Times, little comments on life made in the most casual way, mere movements, could so avert him. She had cultivated a certain disregard of such trifling darkness. But at the dinner-table she looked up, and was stabbed to the heart to see a haggard white face and eyes of deep despair regarding her ambiguously.

"Hugh!" she said, and then with a chill intimation, "What is it?"

"They looked at each other. His face softened and winced.

"My Hugh," he whispered, and neither spoke for some seconds.

"Killed," he said, and suddenly stood up whimpering, and fumbled with his pocket.

"It seemed he would never find what he sought. It came at last, a crumpled telegram. He threw it down before her, and then thrust his chair back clumsily and went hastily out of the room. She heard him sob. She had not dared to look at his face again.

"But what can I say to him?" she said, with the telegram in her hand.

What Can I Do for Him?

"That night Mrs. Britling made the supreme effort of her life to burst the prison of self-consciousness and inhibition in which she was confined. Never before in all her life had she so desired to be spontaneous and unrestrained; never before had she so felt herself hampered by her timidity, her self-criticism, her deeply ingrained habit of never letting herself go. She was rent by reflected distress. It seemed to her that she would be ready to give her life and the whole world to be able to comfort her husband now. And she could conceive no gesture of comfort. She went out of the dining-room into the hall and listened. She went very softly upstairs until she came to the door of her husband's room. There she stood still. She could hear no sound from within. She put out her hand and turned the handle of the door a little way, and then she was startled by the loudness of the sound it made and at her own boldness. She withdrew her hand, and then with a gesture of despair she fitted along the corridor to her own room.

"Her mind was beaten to the ground by this catastrophe, of which to this moment she had never allowed herself to think. She had never allowed herself to think of it. The figure of her husband, like some pitiful beast, wounded and bleeding, filled her mind. She gave scarcely a thought to Hugh. 'Oh, what can I do for him?' she asked herself, sitting down before her unlit bedroom fire. . . . 'What can I say or do?'

"It was late that night and after an eternity of resolutions and doubts and indecisions that Mrs. Britling went to her husband. He was sitting close up to the fire with his chin to his hands, waiting for her; he felt that she would come to him, and he was thinking meanwhile of Hugh with a slow unprogressive movement of the mind. He showed by a movement that he heard her enter the room, but he did not turn to look at her. He struck a little from her approach.

"She came and stood beside him. She ventured to touch him very softly and to stroke his head. 'My dear,' she said, 'my poor dear!'

"My poor dear!" she said, still stroking his hair, 'my poor dear!'

"She desired supremely to be his comfort, and in a little while she was acting comfort so poorly that she perceived her own failure. And that increased her failure, and that increased her paralysing sense of failure. . . .

I Can't Reach You.

"Suddenly the real woman cried out from her.

"I can't reach you!" she cried aloud. "I can't reach you. I would do anything. . . . You? You with your heart half broken. . . ."

"She turned towards the door. She moved clumsily, she was blinded by her tears.

"Mr. Britling uncovered his face. He stood up astonished, and then pity and pitiful understanding came storming across his grief. He made a step and took her in his arms. 'My dear,' he said, 'don't go from me. . . .'

"She turned to him weeping, and put her arms about his neck, and he too was weeping.

"My poor wife!" he said, 'my dear wife. If it were not for you I think I could kill myself to-night. Don't cry, my dear. Don't, don't cry. You do not know how you comfort me. You do not know how you help me.'

"He drew her to him; he put her cheek against his own. . . .

"His heart was so sore and wounded that he could not endure that another human being should go wretched. He sat down in his chair and drew her upon his knees, and said everything he could think of to console her and reassure her and make her feel that she was of value to him. He spoke of every pleasant aspect of their lives, of every aspect, except that he never named that dear pale youth who walked now. . . . He could wait a little longer. . . .

"At last she went from him.

"Good-night," said Mr. Britling, and took her to the door. "It was very dear of you to come and comfort me," he said. . . .

Can You Hear Me?

"This room was unendurable. He must go out. . . . Across the park he went, and suddenly his boy was all about him, playing, climbing the cedars, twisting miraculously about the lawn on a bicycle, discouraging bravely upon his ticycle, lying on the grass, breathing very hard, and drawing preposterous caricatures. Once again they walked side by side up and down—it was at that this very spot—talking gravely but rather shyly. . . .

"And here they had stood a little awkwardly, before the boy went in to say good-bye to his stepmother and go off with his father to the station.

"I will work to-morrow again," whispered Mr. Britling, 'but to-night—to-night. . . . To-night is yours. . . . Can you hear me, can you hear? Your father. . . . who had counted on you. . . .'

Whitbourne Welcomes a Veteran of Two Campaigns.

Saturday evening as the outgoing express pulled into Whitbourne, hundreds of people from there and the nearby settlements assembled at the railway station to welcome home Pte. S. Clark, a wounded veteran of two campaigns, an account of whom appeared in this paper a few days ago. The station was gaily decorated with bunting, while flags flew from every dwelling house and public building in the town. As soon as Pte. Clark appeared on the platform of the first class car in company with his mother, he was lifted from the train by the old men of the village, seated in a carriage and was driven to the Orange Hall, where he was officially welcomed by the citizens of the inland town. The excellent brass band of the L. O. A. was in attendance and played patriotic airs, and amid vociferous cheering and volley after volley of musketry, the young hero was conveyed to his home. Not in the history of the oldest resident of Whitbourne was such a demonstration seen there.

Girls! Draw A Moist Cloth Through Hair Double Its Beauty

Try this! Hair gets thick, glossy, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as clean, soft, lustrous and beautiful as a cleane. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying and invigorates the scalp, for every particle of dandruff, cleanliness, purifies and softens the hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

A Soldier's Dream.

The moon was shining brightly And quietness reigned supreme, Behind the firing line one night A soldier had a dream. He dreamt the war was over And to home he had returned; And as he stopped outside the door His heart within him yearned. Then gently opening the door He wended his way clear And stopped for by the fire knelt His parents deep in prayer. And as he knelt beside the door His heart throbbed with delight, For he heard his parents gently say "God bless our boy to-night." He rushed to his dear parents' side, And in words of joy and love Told now in battles he escaped, Guided by One above. And then his vision quickly flew And a voice said: "It is time To get your rifle and prepare To face the German line." Alas! he woke it was a dream That filled his heart with joy, A dream that would make a mother proud Of her own dear soldier boy. TESSIE M. A. GREENSLADE. Long Pond, C. B.

This Orderly Was a Woman.

Here is a charming story from the Verdun front. A Red Cross ambulance driver was waiting while wounded men were being placed in his car. An orderly with little comforts for the wounded was helping to put the stretchers into the ambulance, when a slightly wounded soldier came up shivering from the cold, but without a coat. The orderly turned aside for a moment and pulled off his coat. The driver went round to the rear side of the automobile to find out the cause of the delay and flashed his torch on the figure of the orderly, who was industriously removing the cardigan worn underneath the tunic. To his surprise a pair of indignant eyes met his as the light showed the orderly to be a woman. Neither spoke as the latter quietly got into her tunic again and hurried to place the cardigan round the wounded soldier. Afterwards the driver ascertained that the orderly was a rich Parisian lady, who for weeks had been helping at the clearing station which was well within the fire zone.

Six Thousand Men Employed.

TO KEEP MOTOR CARS IN ORDER. Six thousand men are now constantly employed keeping the French army motor cars in order. The work is done on strictly business-like principles, with an account kept of every spare part and extra tire. The heads of the system are men accustomed to managing important firms in peace time. To simplify matters as far as possible, each army specializes in some particular make of car, and most of its autos are of this make. A reserve of cars of all kinds, from swift runabouts to rumbling trucks, is kept ready day and night for emergencies. One lot of sheds at the repair station is reserved for the spare parts required by the special make of car which forms the greater part of that particular fleet, while a second lot has parts for all other makes.

Citizen's Committee

Favor Public Libraries—Income Tax Discussed, but not yet decided.

The Citizens' Committee met in the Board of Trade Rooms at 8.15 last night, Vice-Chairman Kelly presiding. There being no communications to read, business arising out of the reading of the minutes came up for discussion, and after much consideration it was decided to pass Section 194, which gives power to the Council to install and operate a city-owned electric lighting and power plant. Section 195 relative to public libraries, which was deferred from the past two meetings, was passed, with an addition of a clause by Mr. Lindsay which takes away from the Council the right to borrow money for the construction and upkeep of such an institution until such time as the more urgent needs of the city are attended to, such as the installing of sewerage and water in hundreds of homes within the city limits. The most important division of the entire Bill dealing with Taxes and sources of income, was next considered. Mr. Lindsay submitted a very elaborate statement showing suggested percentages on the various incomes from $400 to $10,000 and upwards. By this system of income tax, he stated that the city would have a revenue of $387,000 against $241,000 which is the amount collected at present. The taxes would be more fairly distributed and the total amount collected would be about $85,000 quarter. The proposition showed that any person not receiving $400 per year was exempted from taxation and those receiving that amount would be called upon to pay one half per cent amounting to $2 annual tax. The rate would gradually increase in accordance with the incomes. The committee thought the matter might be further considered and adjourned the debate till Thursday evening next.

Last Night's Concert.

A large number of volunteers and naval reservists were entertained by the Ladies' Committee of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club at the Grenfell Hall last night. A very enjoyable concert was run off, those taking part being Misses M. Ryan and Shea; Messrs. Hutton, Christian, Jago and Connelly. The C.C.C. band, under Capt. A. Bulley were present and rendered several patriotic airs. Following the concert the volunteers and reservists were given refreshments and were also treated to cigarettes. Mrs. C. P. Ayre and other ladies of the committee who are in hopes of making the concert a fortnightly affair, are deserving of every encouragement.

German Authorities Know Defeat Await Them.

The Allies May be Held Back for a Time by the Enemy, but the Break is Coming with Certainty.

London, Oct. 26.—The correspondent of the Daily Chronicle at Stockholm sends the following under yesterday's date: The facts with regard to the official German attitude on the present position of the war, together with an outline of the course to be pursued, have been told to me by a distinguished neutral who is a resident in Berlin and who for a few days has been visiting in Sweden. My informant speaks with the knowledge that he is now a casual foreigner in Berlin, but one whose business brings him in touch with public life and public men there and who has special facilities for knowing the minds of political leaders. I present him narratively clearly as I can in his own words: "I left Berlin about a week ago. It may be taken as quite definite that the authorities realize the war is lost. Two facts stand out quite clearly to Germany's powers. The first is that while Germany still retains the power to manufacture munitions at a large and formidable rate, the output of the allies is now in advance of the German output and the significance of this is realized. "The second point is even more important. It is recognized that the reserves of man power are not sufficient to allow Germany to conduct the war to a victorious issue. The offensive on the Somme is a crucial thing. They have no illusions about this. They can impede the allies, hold them back for a long time, but they realize they cannot do it indefinitely. It is privately acknowledged that sooner or later the allies must break through. More than this, the Germans have calculated the limit of time they can effectively withstand attacks on the western front at twelve months. They know, however, the allies may get through before. "With these facts in mind they have framed their future course of action. They are seeking for a peace which shall not brand them as defeated and to get it they will make considerable sacrifices. The whole of their plans will be co-ordinated toward that end. Whatever may be their fears of the future, they have still at their command vast fighting forces of various kinds. They are going to make them to bring about this peace which they want so badly. "First of all they have made up their minds to smash Roumania completely, not only for the sake of material advantage; but also for the moral effect on them. Then, they are going to throw discretion to the wind with reference to submarines. They are going to use undersea vessels as annoy and hurt Great Britain as much as possible. They will be quite careless of the feelings of neutrals. The visit of Ambassador Gerard to America is undoubtedly connected with the coming submarine campaign. "The general idea is not to conduct but try annoyances, losses and pain to increase the desire for peace which they are sure, exists among some sections of the population already. "The more harmful the war is made in Great Britain the more easily will it come into line with regard to peace proposals and Germany must have peace by a year from now. The last is not stated in so many words, but that is what the position comes to."

Stop It.

Some "practical jokers" are shining all and sundry by continuing to shine flash lights in the faces of pedestrians and last night the annoying habit was very much indulged in. The police are on the scene in an endeavour to put a stop to the game and the first "fun mug" caught will spend a night under the town ticker embraced by the stone.

Charged by Moose.

While cruising the recently acquired timber limits of his company, Mr. Whalley had quite an experience recently, on the Upper Humber. From Deer Lake he started to cruise the limits through to Bonne Bay. On the way he shot a splendid black bear. He was also charged by a bull moose, and in order to escape the furious animal, Mr. Whalley had to take refuge in a tree. Mr. Mitchell was guide with him.—Western Star.

Local Fishery.

Several boats were on the local fishing grounds yesterday. Cod were found fairly plentiful, but operations could only be carried on for a short while, as the wind and sea was fearfully cold. "Precautionary Right-0."

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—If I understand rightly the stores in the city are scheduled to open next Monday night for the usual Fall business.

On last Saturday night, sir, I (with a view to satisfying certain curious ideas as to how our new lighting system, or rather NOT lighting system, was working) visited Water St. and I can only best report by stating emphatically that a kind of pandemonium existed there. It was a place, Mr. Editor, of noise and tumultuousness, and rather than our former busy but orderly Water Street and it is utterly impossible for our police if they were three-fold stronger to do anything more than their usual vigilance and poorly paid duty are doing.

I am one of the many who favour our present precautionary measures, and it is the duty of every citizen to aid along those measures, for why should we take any risks? When you can say what MIGHT happen? But, sir, whilst the present precautionary exordium is carried out—and faithfully carried out—any measure that might render it more easy of accomplishment should be thankfully accepted by the authorities, and I claim that the closing of our stores at 6 p.m. till at least the middle of December, is not only a correct policy but AN ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY ONE. ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY ONE.

is neither payable nor necessary, and what must be said of it now when our streets are in total darkness and citizens move about in an utter mist of insecurity.

Whilst the theatres are now so dark one cannot avoid the "fellows of that men who are always with us." You cannot cut this kind of thing out but you CAN lessen their unworthy performances by giving them Water Street TO THEMSELVES at night whilst decent folk transact their business during the day.

Let the Importers' Association think over this problem for a few minutes and then their action I feel will be towards helping along our ALL precautionary measures by doing their "bit" in closing the stores till December.

Yours very truly, P. J. K.

Higgitt was a very able one.

A Widow's Brave Son.

Mrs. Mary Galgay, widow of the late Francis Galgay, 224 Water Street West, received a letter from her son, Sergt. Gus Galgay, a veteran of Gallipoli and Somme campaigns. The letter was written at Edinburgh, Scotland, where he is now attending a school of instruction for N. C. O.'s at Castle Hill, and tells of their sad parting on July 1st with his brother, Pte. Frank, who was afterwards reported missing. "I am going to get a whack at the Germans as a revenge for the hardships I suffered at Gallipoli. Don't be down-hearted; I will probably meet you in hospital some day." These were the last words that Sergt. Galgay heard from his brother and a few minutes after both brothers were dashed towards the German front line of trenches. In that immortal charge Sergt. Galgay fell wounded, being hit three times, in the arm, body and head. Pte. Frank was last seen making for the enemy's trenches and as no trace of his body has since been discovered it is not impossible that he may be a prisoner in Germany. Frank left here with the second contingent and on reaching the other side was made Orderly to Capt. Donnelly and was with him at Caribou Hill. When the Regiment was removed to France he was still Orderly to the gallant Captain and on July 1st was to be held in reserve but begged to be allowed to take part in the advance, and after much consideration he was granted the privilege, and now like many of our brave boys is numbered with the missing.
