CHAPTER XXI.
SHE LONGED FOR DEATH.

"So there is my story as brief as I could make it. Can you make anything out of it, my dear?"

She was pale as death, her great eyes black with emotion, her hand pressed convulsively upon her heart as she faltered, through trembling lips:

"I cannot."
"You have no suspicion as to the identity of the veiled woman?"

"No, I know nothing of his past. She may have been his mother, his sister," she breathed hopefully.

"Perhaps so," he replied; then patted and regarded her with tender, pitying eyes.

"Why do you look at me so strangely? I will not be pitted!" the girl cried, with sudden anger. "You have something more to tell me. Go on, then. Say your worst. I don't think I will kill me," proudly.

"That's right, my brave girl! No man is worth dying for, and there's as good fish in the sea as ever were caught," cried the old doctor joyfully, glad of her pride.

But in a minute he looked away from her to the window, and asked, in a lowered voice:

"Have you happened to hear that—Mrs. Fleming's maid, pretty little Letty Green, eloped last night?"

"No," she stared at him in wonder, then laughed unaccountably. "She went with Cullen, of course?"

"No, Cullen is here."

There was an awful silence for a few moments. She broke it with a scornful laugh, asking coldly:

"Do you wish me to believe that—that my noble, handsome lover, Dallas—went off with Mrs. Fleming's servant, that pert little Letty?"

"That is what the jealous Cullen is saying. I don't ask you to believe it, but he seems to be sure of his facts."

He saw the golden head droop, and the face fall into the hands, and he guessed the awful humiliation that made her hide it from his gaze.

"My poor child, you don't know how it pained me to come to you with this

Pains About the Heart

ANY derangement of the heart's action is alarming. Frequently pains about the heart are caused by the formation of gas arising from indigestion.

Relief from this condition is obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Chronic indigestion results from sluggish liver action, constipation of the bowels and inactive kidneys.

Because Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills arouse these organs to activity they thoroughly cure indigestion and overcome the many annoying symptoms.

horrible story to shake your faith in your lover; but it could not be withheld, you know," he said.

She lifted her face, and it was like a death mask, so cold, so stony, the light and beauty all stricken from it at a blow.

"I am not blaming you," she said, in a cold voice that matched her face. "But—will you bring that man here to me?"

He went out, and she was alone—alone with a sorrow more bitter than death.

"And I loved him so!" she murmured, with an ineffable pathos, throwing her arms to the empty air, as if throwing from her the broken love dream that had fooled her heart.

The door opened, and the servant, Cullen, stood before her—a stocky, red-headed man, with a merry, good-looking face—sullen and red with anger now.

He said, almost rudely:

"If you want me, miss, say your say quick, for I'm in a devil of a hurry to catch the next train for New York, and if I get on their track I'll kill 'em both, certain!"

Daisie shuddered with dread, for the deserted lover looked both ferocious and bloodthirsty, and was glowering upon her now as if he held her personally responsible for the miscarriage of his love affair.

"So, then—Letty Green has really gone?" she faltered.

"Yes, miss, and with that darn rascal—begging your pardon; the words slipped out—yes, she went with that fine gentleman, Mr. Bain, who wasn't too fine to be courting Mrs. Fleming's maid on the sly while he courted her mistress in the parlor. Oh, he was a flirt, was that fellow, and could fool any woman with his deceitful black eyes! Letty was fairly crazed with them till he up and went off without a good-bye to her; then her pride was up in arms, and she made believe she didn't care. I was fool enough to believe her, and made her promise to marry me. A good enough match I was for her, too, if her silly head hadn't been turned by soft sawder before. D—n him!"

"Cullen, you forget yourself," reminded Doctor Burns sternly.

"Lord, sir, I know it, and I humbly ask the lady's pardon for cursing. But I ain't myself at all, that I ain't, and all along of that humbug Letty that I was saving my wages to marry. And I give her my money to keep, too, and she's off with it along of that scamp, and sent me back from the station a sassy, impertinent note, the baggage, that—I'd like to cram down her throat!"

So saying, he thrust the note rudely into Daisie's hand.

Her first impulse was to cast it from her with loathing, but feminine curiosity prevailed, and she read these words:

"It's an ill wind blows nobody good. Miss Bell's marriage was good luck for me.

She had lured Dallas Bain from me, but as soon as he found out she was married and he couldn't get her, his thoughts turned back to me. After Mr. Sherwood was shot, and his bride came back to him, I found Dallas wandering half crazy about the grounds, and set myself to comfort him. It was easier than I thought for he owned to me that if he hadn't taken that sudden infatuation for Daisie Bell he'd have married me weeks before. So I told him it wasn't too late, and he jumped at the idea, and in short, he said if I'd come with him to New York on the first train, he'd marry me soon as we got there. You can guess how quick I consented, Cullen, for you know all along I loved him, though you was foolish enough to take me on any terms. But you'll never get me. I'm born for your betters, though Dallas did own that he wasn't no fit match for Miss Bell, as he lived by his wits, and had served a burglary term in the penitentiary. But I can overlook everything. I love him so, with his soft white hands, and sweet smiles, and solemn black eyes! So I'm writing this at the station while we wait for the train to come.

Good-bye, old friend. I'll keep your savings for a wedding present. You'll have to find another sweetheart, and that spiteful cat, Mrs. Fleming, another maid.

Letty Green—soon to be Letty Bain—Mrs. Dallas Bain! Don't that sound grand? Maybe I'll be back to Gull Beach some time flying in high society. Tra, la!—LETTY.

The letter slipped from Daisie's trembling hand to the floor, and the gilded lover caught it up, muttering: "I'll keep it till I find her, and cram it down her rascal's throat, the impertinent jade! Keep my savings for a wedding gift, indeed! We'll see about that! Most likely they'll buy her a coffin, if I swing for it—yes, and him, too, the sneaking dude! You are well rid of him, miss—or missus, I ought to say—for you've got a noble husband, by good luck, and—"

Here Daisie put out a protesting hand, and the old doctor exclaimed: "You'll miss your train, Cullen!"

At that, the man rushed away, and they were left alone.

Doctor Burns patted her cold hand, and asked her if the story could be true.

His fatherly heart ached for her when she sighed and answered: "It is horrible. I would rather die than believe it—but there seems no room for doubt."

The anguish of a broken heart was hood rose in arms in her defense.

"Curse the villain! I'd like to horse-whip him for you, and I hope Cullen will find him and do it on his own account!" he exclaimed angrily, adding: "But, my dear, you've had a lucky escape from his toils, and I wouldn't wear the willow if I were you. You've made a grand match, if it was brought about by a joke, and Royall loves you madly. Take my advice, and stick to him. He may get well and catch your heart in the rebound yet, so you may save your pride from this downfall."

CHAPTER XXII.
"THE DIE WAS CAST."

Poor Daisie Bell! Everything and everybody seemed to be against her, and the old doctor's specious reasoning appealed to her pride, if not her heart.

What was any proud, sensitive girl likely to do, confronted with such conditions—to wear the willow, on the one hand, for a fickle, faithless lover, or to "take the goods the gods provided?"

Every one advised the latter, and Daisie's pride was a powerful ally.

In her secret despair, she longed for death; but it would not come at her call.

She was young, beautiful, and possessed of superb health, besides an overweening pride that would not permit her to pine away and die for a faithless lover who had fled with so contemptible a rival.

She looked pitiously at the old doctor, exclaiming:

"I would rather return to my teacher's desk in New York, and to a life of poverty and toil, than remain here in luxury as the wife of a man I do not love."

"I believe you, my dear young lady; but you are hedged in by circumstances you cannot break through. The condition of the man you have married appeals to your pity, if not your heart."

"Yes," she answered sadly; and he continued:

"If you turned against him now you would, by the shock of your desertion, destroy his slight chance of life. Can you bear to do it?"

"And if he lives," she said, "I am bound for life to a man I cannot love."

He shrank before the despair in her eyes, not knowing how to urge her further, and for a moment there was a blank silence.

The next moment something happened that turned the wavering scales in Royall Sherwood's favor. The sick nurse came to the door, saying: "Mrs. Fleming wants you to come at once. Doctor Burns; Mr. Sherwood has a sinking spell."

"Tell her I am coming," and he beckoned Daisie to follow.

She shrank back, and he said, almost sternly:

"It may mean death. Can you be so heartless?"

He could not bear to lose his patient. As for her—who pitied her? Who considered for a moment whether her life was to be wrecked or not, poor Daisie Bell?

He was rich, and she was poor—that made all the difference in the world. They all thought she should be proud of her good luck.

SAVE THE BABIES!

During these hot days when infants are suffering and dying from Summer Diarrhoea, it might be interesting to quote from a report read by Dr. Alan Brown, Child Specialist of Toronto, who says:—

"In severe cases of Diarrhoea which do not respond to the elimination of carbohydrate in the usual milk mixtures, PROTEIN MILK is indicated, as in practically all cases of intoxication and infectious diarrhoea, and many cases of dyspepsia in breast-fed infants."

The process of making LIQUID PROTEIN MILK is a long and difficult one. After four years of careful experimentation a PROTEIN MILK has been manufactured in powder form,—conforming exactly to the analysis of the Liquid preparation.

Upon presentation of a prescription from your doctor it can be obtained at any of the three Child Welfare Milk Stations where it is sold at cost of importation.

Beanbrough approached the young lady assistant and inquired:

"Keep music machine records?"

"All kinds."

"Got any loud ones?"

"Plenty of them."

"March, waltz, song or what?"

"Anything so long as it is loud."

"What's the idea?"

"My wife wants it to put on the machine when she has to leave the room so that the folks will have to stop talking until she returns; and she won't miss any of the gossip."

we found it necessary to make slight increases in price during the war period. THE POET POLITICIAN. Fiume, Sept. 9. Gabriele D'Annunzio, to-day, proclaimed Fiume an independent State. D'Annunzio declared he had received private news from Paris, which forced him to declare Fiume to be independent to-day and that he could not wait until September 12th, as he had intended.

SOVIETS AND ITALY. LONDON, Sept. 9. Friday will be a critical day in the history of the movement of the Italian workers, which has resulted in the occupation of many large industrial plants in that country, says the Milan correspondent of the Herald, the organ of Labor. On that day the general confederation of Labor meets in Milan, and if no decision is reached by then, the correspondent says immediate action may be taken by the workers. "The ultimate aim of the federation of metal workers, as well as the confederation of Labor" he declares, "is socialization of industry, and this aim is now almost within their grasp and may at any moment overshadow claims for wages. Friday may well see an extension of the Soviet principle to other industries of Italy."

THE DEWEY BEACHED.

BOSTON, Sept. 9. The new Shipping Board steamer Dewey, was beached on East Boston flats to-day in a sinking condition, after striking on the ledges off the Graves light, at the entrance of the harbor last night. The hull was said to be badly damaged. She came here light from Dublin, Ireland, and was to have loaded for San Francisco.

NEW JERSEY NOW.

TRENTON, N.J., Sept. 9. The assembly last night by a vote of twenty-five to twelve, adopted a resolution directed to Lloyd George saying that MacSweeney is slowly dying in a British prison, in payment of a penalty, not commensurate with the alleged offences, and asking for immediate release.

CANADIAN WASTE.

TORONTO, Sept. 9. Lady Burnham, wife of the President of the Imperial Press Party, expresses astonishment at the wastefulness of the Canadian people. She said, "you waste everything, food, lumber, water power," but waste of food was what appealed to the visitor from overseas most of all, adding, "After England, where one ounce of butter is all that is allowed, to see large pats of butter wasted, thrown in pig tubs, Oh! it is dreadful."

NO FLU THIS YEAR.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9. There have been no indications of a return of last year's influenza epidemic this winter, the Public Health Service announced to-day. Each year, it was stated, between November and May a number of cases were reported, but experts of the service do not expect the disease to be as widespread or as virulent this year as last.

LABOR AND UNEMPLOYMENT.

PORTSMOUTH, Sept. 9. The Trades Union Congress, in session here adopted a resolution to-day, declaring that responsibility for unemployment shall be borne by industry, and that in no case should the level of income fall below eighty-five per cent. of wages earned when in full employment. Power should be obtained to force a levy on industry to raise the necessary fund, the resolution added, and the parliamentary committee of Congress was instructed to take necessary action to this end.

STREET FIGHTING IN TRIESTE.

TRIESTE, Sept. 9. Outbreaks here leading to street fighting between Nationalists and Socialists, have been resumed. Two deaths have occurred and a score of persons have been wounded.

SO NEAR AND YET SO FAR.

RAMSGATE, Sept. 9. On Thursday, Henry Sullivan of Lowell Mass., who last night started from Dover in an attempt to swim the English Channel, and was six miles off Cape Crisnes, France, at seven o'clock this morning, abandoned his attempt at one this afternoon. He was then within two miles of the French Coast.

FADES AND FASHIONS.

A child's frock of greenish blue jersey is effectively embroidered in red wool. Braided bands, beaded trimmings and spangles have lost none of their popularity. The long waist which is straight from shoulder to hip is featured a great deal. Net may be embroidered with silk and beads, or appliqued with fur or duvetyne. Sleeves in parti-color, heavily embroidered and flaring at the wrist, are featured.

Something About Salt.

Table salt, like everything else in the edible line, has forgotten its original price, and wise housewives will do well to try the following hint: Get a brick of common cooking salt, dry in the oven, and then crush it fine with the rolling-pin. When rolled to a fine powder add two table-spoonfuls of cornflour and mix well. The cornflour keeps the salt beautifully dry so that it will not cake, and adds greatly to the whiteness of the salt. This mixture helps to thicken gravies, while the cornflour is not enough in evidence to spoil any other dish that it may be used for.

Origin of Names.

The well-known Tooley-street, in London, was originally St. Olave's Street, and it is not difficult to imagine the stages through which it must have passed in the slurring speech of the metropolis before it crystallized into its present form. Matrimony is a good intention badly carried out.
 Two people who agree to marry generally disagree about everything else.
 A hero is the man who tells the truth to his wife—a clever man is the one who doesn't.
 Pity may be akin to love, but few women have any pity for the men they marry.
 Only a bachelor knows that it's the easiest thing in the world to manage a wife.
 Many a girl, when she marries, loses a good friend and gets a boarder who grumbles.
 A man may class his wife as a bird of paradise during the honeymoon and as a parrot later on in the game.

Either way ends every corn

Use Blue-jay as you like best. Apply liquid Blue-jay from a bottle, or use the Blue-jay plaster.
The effects on the corn are identical.
The pain stops. And the entire corn quickly loosens and comes out.
Blue-jay now is ending some two million corns a month.
It has so reduced corn troubles that most folks never have them.
It will end them all when all folks know about it.

The Blue-jay method is easy, gentle, sure.
It is scientific—the creation of a world-famed laboratory.
For your own sake, stop paring corns. Cease the old, harsh, inefficient methods.
Learn what millions know—that corns are folly, the pain is needless. Anybody can be kept forever free from corns with Blue-jay.
Prove this tonight. Buy Blue-jay from your druggist.

To-Day's Messages.

RESEMBLES MESSINA CALAMITY.
ROME, Sept. 9.
The "Epoch" estimates that the dead in the earthquake exceed five hundred and homeless more than twenty thousand.

PIVAZZONO, Italy, Sept. 9.
This city presents a strange appearance, with ripped houses, pavements piled on each other and a mixture of broken furniture, smashed glass and household treasure, as the result of Tuesday's earthquake. Amidst this scene of ruins, by strange chance, almost the only building standing is a church with bell-tower, while the house attached to the church was buried. The entire family of the Postmaster, comprising eight persons, was buried in ruins of the Post Office with exception of one youth. Scenes in this earth shaken town recalled those of the Messina calamity more strongly than any other earthquake disaster since.

MACSWEENEY STILL CONSCIOUS.
LONDON, Sept. 9.
Late to-night Lord Mayor MacSweeney of Cork was reported to be slightly feverish. Numbness in limbs and dizziness from which he suffered during the day were increasing, but the patient was still conscious.

WILL BE STOPPED FOR 2 HOURS.
DUBLIN, Sept. 9.
Entire tramway service in Dublin will be suspended for two hours to-morrow to enable employees to march to mass for Lord Mayor MacSweeney.

MESOPOTAMIA STILL DISTURBED.
LONDON, Sept. 9.
A war Office communication shows that disturbed conditions continue in Mesopotamia. Insurgents are attacking at various points but order has been restored in Kifri area by the energetic action of a small column. An airplane reconnaissance over the garrison besieged at St. Marys was heavily fired on but succeeded in dropping medicine supplies and rations for two other isolated places. Concentration of five thousand of the enemy is reported in this neighbourhood. Aviators report all quiet at Kut, El Amara.

RESCURERS GIVE THEIR LIVES.
FLORENCE, Sept. 7.
Already some of those working bravely to rescue and help sufferers from the earthquake have been killed. At Pivazzono three men, including one carabinieri, were trying to move masonry from behind which they heard groans of some one imprisoned when new earth shock occurred, the wall falling on all three, and crushing them in sight of onlookers.

THE PRICE OF COAL IN ENGLAND.
LONDON, Sept. 9.
In outlining Government's case before delegation representing Miners' Organization to-day Sir Robert Horne, President of Board of Trade said, the question of price of coal was one of policy and concerned Parliament. Regarding wages he suggested that miners federation go to industrial court. He also suggested that miners committee meet committee of coal owners and discuss existing wage anomalies and consolidated rate that might bear relation to output.

Forty-One Years in the Public Service—The Evening Telegram

Supply and Demand and Sugar.

The law of supply and demand is striving to solve the sugar situation. At the same time three desperate measures are being resorted to, to prevent the price to the consumers in the homes from breaking to its proper level after an orgy of speculation which has cost such consumers between $1,000,000,000 and $2,000,000,000.
The first measure is to head off large shipments en route from Java and send them to Europe; thus preventing further additions to the heavily over-stocked United States market. The second is to sell abroad, at prices far below those at which refiners are willing to sell in the United States, as large quantities of accumulated refined sugar as possible. This has been done already to a considerable extent, with the result that brokers in New York are quoted as saying that the "sugar situation is improving," which means that prices are going up. The third measure is to hold large hoards in storage, refusing to sell, as certain refiners are doing, unless at prices more than seven cents a pound above genuine wholesale figures of to-day. These refiners have the advantage of having the harassed retail dealers, who have borne all the discomforts and shared none of the profits of the manufactured shortage, tied to ruinous contracts for sugar at the high figures. So the refiners are awaiting results, confident, because entrenched behind big profit accumulations, in their ability to hold their millions of pounds of sugar and enforce the contracts.

It is well to remember that, not so long ago, the average price of granulated sugar, as put out by the New York refiners, was 4.68 cents a pound and that sugar used to be retailed at 21 pounds for one dollar. But that was before the Wilson Administration produced the recent speculative orgy.
It remains to be seen which will triumph—whether the law of supply and demand will operate, or whether the inflationists will continue to keep sugar prices up regardless of the great supply.—Am. paper.

Then He Quit Questioning.

An amusing story is going the rounds concerning the Dean Westminster, who is out to raise $250,000 to restore the famous Abbey.

The Right Rev. gentleman, who was joint-editor—with Dr. M. R. James—of the Psalms of Solomon, was once telling a Sunday-school class about that monarch, how glorious and great he was, and so on. Afterwards, wishing to ascertain if his words had gone home, he started to question the children.
"Tell me, boys," he said, "what was the difference between Solomon and other men?"
There was no answer.
"Come, come," he continued, "was there any difference, for instance, between King Solomon and myself?"
A small hand went up, and a shrill voice piped, "Please, sir, Solomon had four hundred wives."
"Tut, tut!" ejaculated the reverend catechiser, somewhat taken aback. "Quite so. But I was not thinking of that. Any other difference?"
Another grubby hand shot up, and another shrill voice replied, "Please, sir, Solomon was wise!"

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE PATIENT VERSUS THE NURSE AGAIN.

RUTH CAMERON

A letter friend who liked my little talk on the trial of the amateur nurse versus the trials of the amateur patient wants to utter a few words of suggestion to the patient.

"I have been both patient and nurse," she writes, "just as you say: you are, and so I am not looking at the things from just one side of the fence. I also have sympathy with both, but there is one way in which I think patients often put an unfair strain on their amateur nurses and that is this:

"They exact an unfair and exhausting amount of sympathy and reassurance. The hardest patient I ever took care of was very thoughtful about not making me extra steps and very anxious not to be a burden but, Oh, how she did wear me out fretting because she couldn't get well faster and moaning because she was such a burden.

The Hardest Thing to Bear. "I could bear up under the extra burden of the actual work very comfortably by trying to systematize everything and taking care of myself, but sometimes when she got into one of those moods it seemed as if my back would break, metaphorically under that last straw.

"Sometimes I'd find her in one of those moods in the morning and before I had gotten her out of it I would be mentally exhausted and you know that's no way to begin the day. And other times she would begin to fret about what a burden she was and how it would be better if she could just die and all that kind of thing when I was getting her to bed at last. I would reassure her of course. I loved her dearly and would have felt dreadfully to have anything happen to her. I felt that she would pull out of this sick spell in time as she had before, and I would tell her so over and over again and finally make some impression on her although it almost seemed as if she had set her mind against it. Then I'd go to bed and not be able to get to sleep for hours because that effort on top of the work of the day had made me so nervous.

How They Drain the Nurse's Vitality.

"Don't you think patients ought to realize how they drain other people's vitality by taking such gloomy views of things, and by wanting to be reassured all the time that they are not a burden?"

Of course I do.

Of course anyone does who stops to think anything at all about it. But on the other hand I want to remind the amateur nurse who reads this and feels that she has a grievance against her patient that it is ever so much harder to be optimistic when you are ill than when you are well. Often the bacteria which causes the illness poisons one's point of view and makes things look darker than they would to a normal person. Also it is harder to exercise one's will and fight against the desire to be reassured and babied when one feels weak and miserable.

Infinite Patience on the Part of Each.

One comes back once more to the need of infinite patience, sympathy and the will to help the other on the part of each. The patient should make a real effort not to drain the vitality of his or her nurse by being pessimistic and querulous and wanting to be reassured, and the nurse should try to have tolerance when the patient's weakness expresses itself in this way. She should remind herself that it is only the bacteria talking and not the person, and try to take it calmly and keep it off her nerves.

Fashions and Fads.

Embroidered net of large square mesh is much used with broadcloth. A blouse of American beauty georgette is piped in black charmeuse. Skirt foundations are rather narrow, but tunics hang in full folds. Trimmings will be very lavish, owing to the prevailing slim silhouette. Applique work and embroideries are used on plaid woollens for suits. Pajamas are beasting quilted silk trimmings and heavy silk cord for belts.

Fortunes Run to Waste.

A new field of natural gas has been found at Snake Hollow, in Pennsylvania, and two young men, with a capital of fifty pounds, recently started to bore there for gas. They struck a gusher which blew with such frightful force that it was ten days before it could be capped.

During those ten days five hundred and fifty million cubic feet of gas, valued at sixpence a foot, gushed away into the air and was utterly lost. In round figures the loss was nearly fourteen million pounds.

There is nothing new about waste of this description. About ten years ago boring began for oil at Lakeview, California. At midnight, on March 15th, oil-sand began to gush in Well No. 1, but choked.

At seven next morning a "baler"—a long tube—was put down to clear it. There was a roar, and the baler shot upwards with frightful force. During the next hundred days the well gushed like a geyser, flinging oil and boulders two hundred feet high. The spout could be seen twenty miles away, and during a gale clothes hung out to dry two miles away to windward were ruined.

At last the flow was controlled, but the country around was a lake of wasted oil.

In 1883 a gusher was struck at Baku, in the Caspian Oil-field, which beat the world's record. It began by spouting sand four hundred feet into the air. The roar was deafening, and the force so terrific that it shattered the solid beams of the derrick as though they had been matchwood. After that came the oil, rising in a black spout to a height of three hundred feet. For days the oil ran at a rate of over a million gallons a day, and, as at Lakeview, formed a lake of lost oil.

The Spirit.

It may be undignified to call newspaper work a game, but it is a game, as evidenced by the spirit of the men who play it.

The good newspaper man loves his work. The bigger the news the better he likes the game. Big stories mean harder work and longer hours. Does the reporter or the editor complain of the extra time or the short rations of sleep? No. He glories in the work; he gives his best thought and his last effort of physical energy to the story. A scoop, better handling of the story by his newspaper bring a sense of satisfaction—of victory.

Big news is a thing for which all newspaper men live; it provides the thrill that helps make the game worth while. When real stories are breaking the morale is high; the men are willing, earnest, eager, enthusiastic and cheerful. They work with a vigor, a determination and an unselfishness that makes one proud of them, and of the profession.

Where else does one find such spirit, such love for a profession in which extra hours and special efforts do not mean overtime or extra pay?

The newspaper men are the noblemen of the professions. They play, but their game is mighty serious business. They do it in a spirit that is found nowhere else except in the minds and hearts of the men on a winning team. And there is about their work a spirit of chivalry and sportsmanship that make them truly democracy's noblemen.—City Editor and Reporter.

THE ONLY LOSS.

It is better as it is, I have failed but I can sleep. Though the pit in which I am now is very dark and deep I can walk to-morrow's streets and can meet to-morrow's men unashamed to face their gaze as I go to work again.

I have lost the hope I had, in the dust are all my dreams. But my loss is not so great or so dreadful as it seems. For I made my fight and failed, but I need not sink away. For I do not have to fear what another man may say.

They may call me over bold, they may say that I was frail. They may tell I dared too much and was doomed at last to fail. They may talk my battle o'er and discuss it as they choose. But I did no brother wrong. I'm the only one to lose.

It is better as it is, I have kept my self-respect. I can walk to-morrow's streets meeting all men head erect. And no man can swear at me for the pledge I did not keep. I have no shame to regret, I have failed, but I can sleep.

HENRY BLAIR

Father on the Job.

It had been a hard task, and had taken the whole of his Saturday afternoon, but now it was accomplished, and Mr. Urbub viewed it with delight.

Little cared he for the fact that he had crushed his thumbnail with the hammer, that he had split a pot of paint over his best trousers, and that the job had cost twice what a carpenter would have charged. The clothes-post was now erected, and he retired to the house a proud and happy man.

Ten minutes later he returned to feast his eyes once more upon his triumph, but, to his horror, the post now lay prone upon the lawn.

"You pushed it, did you?" he yelled, seizing his youthful heir.

"No, father," said the boy. "A sparrow perched on it, and over it went. I saw him do it."

Religion to me is merely opium for the intellect.—M. Trotsky.

Friday, September 10, 1920.

A State Bank-- What It Means.

The Advocate is the organ of the Hon. Mr. Coaker, and he is not only the present Acting Premier of this Colony, but in a very real sense the "boss" of the Government.

On the 7th inst., the Advocate stated, "without fear of contradiction," "that the action of the banks (now doing business here) is the sole cause of the uncertainty and unrest" in the local fish market.

There is a sense in which the two direct charges may be true; and yet in their obvious and intended sense, both charges are utterly false.

The banks are bound to consider in the first place the security of the money entrusted to them by depositors and shareholders, and the protection of their noteholders, and it is their fame for careful management which justifies the trust placed in them by all except clamorous applicants for money to speculate with.

It may be approximately true, also, that the power of the banks if unitedly exercised for the purpose would be sufficient to strangle the commercial life of the Colony.

As to the political independence of the Colony, the banks cannot destroy that; but Mr. Coaker can, and very probably will if he remains to rule and ruin.

The establishment of a State Bank here would be the surest and quickest way to both commercial and political bankruptcy for the Colony.

How could money for such a purpose be borrowed abroad in face of the opposition of existing banks? What could be expected to be the career of a bank whose directors and managers were not shareholders with their own money at stake, but politicians handling public money for political purposes?

The banks now doing business in this Colony have been a boon and a blessing to it. They first came here in a time of great need. They have been liberal and progressive. They are today acting with commendable prudence in the face of world conditions.

Washing From the Knife

Fishermen who had sufficient faith in Mr. Coaker's advice in the Regulations to be sure and wash their shore fish from the knife, are uttering "curses, not loud but deep" as Shakespeare says, on the head of the man who knows it all or professes to know it all--the omniscient William F. Coaker, M. N. Order of the White Nap.

The S.S. Portia, Capt. T. Connors, soon after leaving the S.S. Bassan, came up with the S.S. Bassan whose captain reported the steamer in a sinking condition and asked for assistance.

Through the kindness of Lieut. Commander Penn, the children of the C. of E. Orphanage spent a most enjoyable evening on board the H.M.S. Briton yesterday.

The Regulations and the Price of Fish.

The Advocate states that nobody will say that fish would be higher but for Mr. Coaker's Regulations, and adds that their repeal now would be followed by a slump.

Potato Prices.

According to advices received by local dealers the P. E. I. potato crop is exceptionally large this year, and the price of new shipments, which should be $5.00 per barrel, retail, the local crop, though exceptionally good, is still selling at $7.00 per barrel.

Lossing Our Markets.

Opportunities can be safely assumed, know what is going on in Newfoundland in regard to the fish export situation. At the present time there are 60,000 quintals of their fish in Oporto.

Practical Jokers' Playful Pranks.

HOAXES WHICH HAVE ANGERED THOUSANDS.

How easy it is to gull the public, the Tit-Bits, was demonstrated recently by the brother of a well-known playwright, who attended a West-end theatre in the guise of a Prince of Abyssinia.

Abyssinian princes have figured so frequently in hoaxes of this kind that the wary regard them with suspicion. There was the famous hoax of 1910, when a young woman, disguised as an Abyssinian princess, was received with all honours on H.M.S. Dreadnought—at that time the flagship of the Home Fleet.

The plot opened when the Com-

Meanest Man.

“The meanest man on earth,” has been discovered.

Even insurance men, possessing most human traits, have revealed occasional phases of meanness, but it remained for a clergyman, an ordained preacher of the gospel, to outclass superlatively all other contestants for the croix de gal.

This pastor, who resides within eye range of the Woolworth tower, makes a practice of charging claimants under life insurance policies a fee of 1 per cent of the face of the policy for filling out the clergyman's certificate on death claims.

The medal for concentrated and undiluted meanness is hereby awarded. The contest is ended—insurance Fress.

Fashions And Fads.

Suits and dresses are trimmed with appliques of fur on fabric, or of fabric on fur.

Fur-trimmed velour and duvetyne suits will attract a great deal of attention this winter.

A three-piece black satin suit is trimmed with quilling and incrustated panels of baby lamb.

The next season's coiffure will reveal the ear, so long dangling earrings will be fashionable.

AN AUDACIOUS TRICK.

This was followed by the exploit of August Walter, who, by sending a bogus telegram to the military governor of Strassburg, announcing that the ex-Kaiser was arriving to review the troops, caused 20,000 troops to parade and 30,000 spectators to assemble.

Nothing But the Truth—Without Fear or Favour.

TO-NIGHT'S THE NIGHT!

Aye, lock the welcome mat up, John
And feed the rubber plants.
And put the go-cart on the ice
Then get your Sunday pants.
And tell the parrot that his French
Instructor never came.
Then we'll be off to see the All-
Stars cop another game.

Should John B's pets give the invaders the knockout punch to-night, they will be the Newfoundland champions for 1920, and will force the Grand Falls gang to relinquish all right title and interest in the R. G. Reid inter-town trophy, which they now hold. Contrariwise, it will mean 3 games each to their credit, thus necessitating a play-off. Claude Hall, Walter Callahan, and Stan O'Leary will deliver the blows to-night for St. John's, while the as yet invincible Sebait Foran will be on the mound for the invaders. The fans are right behind the home team, and their interest and enthusiasm has buoyed the All Stars to the highest pitch. It would appear now that whenever the grandstand raises a howl for a batting rally, they get it in good measure. So, we'll all be there with bells on to-night.

The Grand Falls pitcher in glee. Exclaimed: "No one steals bases on me." But when Munn stole two bases, His glove and shoe laces. He said "The kid's clever, by gee."

ST. JOHN'S WINS FIFTH GAME OF SERIES.

Another record bunch of loyal rotters were present last night to see Kid Donnelly successfully twirl the All Stars to an 8 to 3 victory over the cup holding Grand Falls team. The home team was at no time in danger, getting a three run lead in the three initial stanzas, showed across another in the fourth frame, and then piled on the agony in the final to the tune of 4 tallies. In the third, sixth, and ninth the invaders got one each. Sharpe was in the box for the first but was a bit wild, issuing 4 Annie Oakleys, and administering only 5 strikeouts to Donnelly's 11. Cocky Munn had a wonderful evening, even though he pulled a bonehead steal in the sixth, when with the sacks and no one down, he endeavoured to beat the pitcher's windup and perished miserably at the plate. He has however 3 runs to his credit, and threw in for fun a beautiful three bagger which he was willing to stretch in to a homer had not the coach held him to the bag. The Grand Falls team was minus long Joe Murphy, and they certainly missed his wicked ash in the pinches. It 'pears to us that if a branch cannot do without his services for a brief 48 hours then 'tis time to organize that State bank about which there is so much controversy, acting of course on the promise that if business interferes with baseball then give up business. The climax of the evening was the third inning. Just as things were going beautiful for pop Orr's outfit, Balleen picked one right off his toes and worked a double on Donnelly and Britt. The All Stars had their revenge however in their half when Canning and Phean worked a double steal, and Cocky stole home on G. Cohen. Darby Pitcher was off his cats last night and the records find him charged with 2 errors, and even our own brilliant William McCordle is up for the same offence. Kid Donnelly is certainly starting, and being a port-sider—is something unusual for the paperman to swing at. Only 6 hits were made on him against 8 off Sharpe. This latter gentleman had rotten support all through, but he was game to the end and his winning smile captivated the fans. Empirical disputes were so frequent that the game was held up at several periods, though both Ches and Mac escaped without serious bodily injury.

BE KIND.

Be kind to the Ump when you're getting the bumps. And he'll bow "Strike three" in your ear. Ches is part of the show, and you ought to enjoy it. Instead of emitting a sneer. Remember that he would much rather be Your little old pal than your foe. And suffers, no doubt, when he's calling you out. Much more than you probably know. Be kind to the Umps. Only ill natured chumps Talk back and make long-winded kicks.

Remember that you were mistaken once, too. And again may go back "to the sticks." Please keep in your mind, a resolve to be kind. And act like a man among men— And if you see selves, then Bully Mac will not have. To explain how it happened again.

The Grand Falls lads will be full of pep to-night however, and they had a skull practice after the game last evening at which Manager Bill Morse and Trainer Mike Shallow officiated. To date no deaths are reported. Fans are reminded that the game starts this evening sharp at 5.30, and we are asked to state by Manager Orr that whenever the grandstand wants a rally all they have to do is to make the big noise and his lads will respond.

AFTER THE GAME.

When the last weary inning is over And the home team is glad or depressed. When over the clay and the cover The players move off to their rest: They may not be constantly winning. But whether they failed in the test Or whether with joy they are grinning. They know they were trying their best!

They know that they fought to a finish. And that's all a winner can say. Though their hopes of a pennant diminish. They played the old game all the way. When night o'er Life's ball game is stealing. And Memory brings us the past. Will all of us carry that feeling When we go to the Clubhouse at last?

VISITOR TELLS HOW TANLAC RESTORED HER.

After Suffering From Stomach Trouble For Over Twenty Years, Mrs. Fred Marsh Is Again Well And Happy.

"When I think of all the suffering I went through with for nearly a quarter of a century, it just seems almost too good to be true that I am once more enjoying such splendid health."

This remarkable statement was made a few days ago by Mrs. Fred H. Marsh, of Yakikima, Washington, while visiting her sister-in-law in Rotheray, N.B., a thriving little town just out from St. John. Mrs. Marsh lives at 307 South Seventh Avenue in Yakima, and is the wife of a well known business man of that city.

"Ever since I was a girl," continued Mrs. Marsh, "I had suffered from stomach trouble, and at times had such acute attacks of indigestion that I would almost have welcomed death rather than go through the agony. When these spells came on me I had pains and cramps that were almost unbearable and the gas on my stomach was awful. There was a tight feeling across my chest and I was so choked up I just had to gasp for breath. The pains were worse at night than during the day, and often I had to get out of bed and walk the floor before I could get any relief. I lost my appetite and to tell the truth I was almost afraid to eat.

frequently I had sudden attacks of dizziness and became almost deathly sick at my stomach. I was often in such misery that I could not get to sleep until the early hours of the morning, and of course when I got up I was worn completely out to start the day off with. This is how I suffered for nearly twenty-five long years, and I had been disappointed so many times that I just seemed there was no use ever trying any more to get any better.

"But one day in Yakima, an old friend of mine advised me to try Tanlac and I am so glad I took it. I improved in every way and in a short time was eating things I had not been able to touch in years. I felt so much better and stronger that I decided to visit my sister-in-law in New Brunswick and when I got over here, I found they were selling Tanlac here too, and I was so glad for I wanted to keep on taking it. In all I have taken four bottles, and now I am feeling perfectly well in every respect.

"The gas and pains have all disappeared and my stomach never gives me any trouble at all. The headaches and dizzy spells have left me and I sleep soundly every night. I feel just fine and wish I could tell everybody personally what Tanlac has meant to me."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Royce; J. W. Smith, Baine Harbor; W. A. Burdock, Belleisle; John Morey, Fermeuse; Mrs. Jos. Quinn, Renewa.—adv.

The Exporters' Conference.

Minutes of meeting of Exporters of Newfoundland held in Greenfield Hall Friday, September 3rd, at 3 p.m. Minister of Marine and Fisheries in the chair. The Chairman—The first matter for discussion is Italy, and Mr. W. A. Munn will open the debate. Mr. Munn then read the following paper:

ITALY.

W. A. MUNN.—In giving a report on Newfoundland trade with Italy, we have to go back to the discovery of this market. It was discovered by the late Mr. John Cabot, a fisherman and experienced and successful fisherman. It was he who first introduced the Italian knowledge of the fishery to the world. He was the first to take the fish to the markets of the world. He was the first to take the fish to the markets of the world. He was the first to take the fish to the markets of the world.

240; 1916, 173,605; 1917, 251,890; 1918, 189,925; 1919, 212,755. This is very meagre indeed, but it is the best I can do at short notice. We should know exactly what quantity of our exports are Shore fish and what are Labrador, but what is still greater value is the information of what fish Italy imports from other countries, and full statistics of what Newfoundland and Labrador fish is really consumed in that market as many cargoes are often diverted the way after leaving Newfoundland.

It is reported that Col. Bernard has been appointed Newfoundland Trade Commissioner for Italy, and I would suggest that he take up this matter at the very earliest moment on arrival in that country. Not alone should we have the total figures, but we should know the imports at each port and from what source they came. Since the Mont Canis tunnel was cut through the Alps about forty years ago, a very large trade has been worked up by that railway route to the inland cities of northern Italy, principally from Norway and Denmark.

Chamber of Commerce.

There is a British Chamber of Commerce in Genoa. I visited it several times last winter and got much valuable information. They have branches in Milan, Leghorn, Rome, Naples and Trieste. The Secretary, Mr. E. M. Lusi, at Genoa, and the President, Mr. Henderson, at Leghorn, were kindly welcome and told me how anxious they were to assist all British trade in Italy.

Consorzio.

I have already explained in our local Press, also in letters to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the actual facts regarding the Consorzio, but Mr. Coaker in his opening address to the conference told us that he had again wired to the Premier, Hon. R. A. Squires, now in England, to make another effort to get the Italian Government to abandon the Consorzio. Now Mr. Chairman we are here to talk plain, and I have no hesitation in saying that it is very bad form indeed to try to interfere with the domestic affairs of another country and such proceedings will prove a boomerang on ourselves. How quickly we went when Canada sometimes tries to interfere in our affairs and therefore how much worse must it be with foreign countries.

When I was in Genoa about the first of March, there were several meetings of the Consorzio, and I had the privilege of meeting all the members as they had gathered together to try their utmost to have the Consorzio dissolved, and if not to insist on getting notice from the Government in Rome three months in advance of what their policy would be for this year's business.

I took copious notes of conversations that I had from time to time at different places and the following is what Mr. Ragnoli told me: "Mr. Munn, if you do not like the Consorzio, you are a great help to my friends; it is a great mistake to blame the fish merchants of Italy as we are all opposed to it. The Government have decided the question and we must work for the best interests of the country."

The following information is from a reliable source of why and how the Consorzio was started. In the year 1917 two steamers, "Fort Gains" and "Fort Morgan", were loaded here with early cargoes of fish. A merchant of Naples tried to buy these two cargoes through a tripartite broker and practically cornered the market for early fish. Italy at the time was destitute of food and these buyers took advantage of this to demand exorbitant prices, making a profit of over half a million dollars at least on these two lots. It created such a scandal in Italy that the Government at once placed fish under a strict control, and at the present time the president of the Consorzio distributes fish through all the Provinces in a similar way to Newfoundland. There is still a serious shortage of food supply in Italy and the reply that the Consorzio got to their urgent message in March last was that the time had not yet arrived to disband the Consorzio and the general opinion was that it might continue for two or three years more.

The fish merchants were wrath at the Newfoundland Government, and also our fish merchants, appointing a Spanish Agent, George Hawes, to sell our fish in Italy. In a recent letter that I have from Genoa, July 26th, a reliable correspondent writes me: "The Newfoundland Government and Hawes have nothing to boast about in regard to the way they handled the shipments here and afterwards with the stand they had to refund the Consorzio $227,500. Hawes has closed his office and we all hope the rumor is correct that he will have nothing to do with Italy this season." Just let us look at this for one minute. Mr. Brookes said yesterday that the results from Italy and Brazil were very satisfactory. This $227,500 is about $22,000, or equal to $1.00 per quintal on all the fish George Hawes sold in Italy. If we can stand such a loss, this fish trade must be a wonderful business. If Mr. Brookes got satisfactory account sales, some of the rest of us are paying his losses, judging from the account sales that I got from shipment to Italy. Mr. Brookes explained to you yesterday in a straightforward manner that the Board of Trade must have confidence with the Government or disasters must follow. It is the very same thing with George Hawes being forced on us; we cannot carry on business with a man in whom we have no confidence.

Inspection.

Here is what an important fish merchant in Naples told me last winter: "I am glad to hear that your Government are trying to improve the quality, but I want to see this done before I will believe it. I purchased from G. C. Fearn two lots of fish under the 'Board of Trade Inspection' and they turned out bad. Mr. Fearn happened to be here when the second lot arrived and had to admit the inferior quality. He made me an allowance at once." The Consorzio is really a Food Control of the Italian market and, as I have already explained to Mr. Coaker, is more reliable than individual firms. He has offered to buy under the most favourable form of contract ever made with Newfoundland and grants us everything we asked for. The weight on Labrador fish is generally two per cent, and Mr. Ragnoli agrees to stand the first one per cent, and if the vessel is made liable for any loss exceeding two per cent, the shippers' loss can now be calculated exactly. The Consorzio made one purchase of 200,000 quintals last winter, which was considerably more than was shipped to Italy in 1914, 1915, 1916 and 1917, and, as Mr. Coaker explained in his address, it was more than the Government could get shippers to send last winter, therefore why should we complain. Let us get right down to facts; what was the reason that shippers would not send their fish to Italy when they could get cash documents? To many of us it was simply because we had no confidence in George Hawes. Mr. Coaker told me yesterday to give all the facts about Italy right up to date, and I take him at his word. When I was in Italy, Mr. Ragnoli told me he was ready to give me an order for more fish. I told him I thought that he had all he wanted from George Hawes, and his reply to me was: "Even if I had a full dinner, a nice bit of Labrador codfish from you would go all right." I am sure I could have sold Italy some cargoes of our fish that was held over all the winter in Notre Dame Bay and on the French Shore but for these obnoxious Government Regulations forcing us to sell through Geo. Hawes.

Bank Exchange.

Italy is suffering more from depreciated currency than any of our customers in the Mediterranean. Mr. Ragnoli explained the reason of this to me very clearly. Italy entered the war without sufficient preparation and borrowed money wherever she could get it, so that they could take the place of a great nation and therefore benefit materially if they were successful at the end of the war.

Their domestic and export trade was neglected for war proceedings and today they find it almost impossible to pay the interest on their war loans, and as there is no export trade they were forced to pay over three times the value of their money for sterling exchange payable in London. For private firms it would make business practically impossible, which is another argument that we should be pleased to work with the Consorzio, who can raise the money. All that the Consorzio asks for is to give them the kind of fish they require, which is good Labrador fish and principally Small Shore fish. Large Shore fish is wanted in other markets and commands higher prices, therefore there is no reason why it should be sent to Italy.

Quality of Fish.

The reason that the Italians like the Labrador fish so much is because it is a small plump thick fish, and if it was as carefully cured as the Icelandic or Norway fish, free from blood stains and the slub washed off thoroughly, it would easily command better prices, but until this better cure is established we must reckon it a secondary article. There is an Italian proverb which explains this thoroughly: "We eat with our eyes." Their buyers are dainty and must see a nice appearance or they will not be tempted to purchase. Iceland and Norway have driven our Newfoundland fish from many markets in the Mediterranean, just because of its appearance but this fish that you can see through like a sheet of paper very often.

I trust that I have expressed myself clearly. Italy wants a small sized fish carefully cured with a nice appearance and all shipped under thorough inspection and then you will have no reclamations but will find a satisfied customer. There should be no restrictions preventing anyone from shipping to any country he thinks best. I am a strong advocate for outright sales. The Consignment business is rotten. You are robbed right and left ## and can have no control over prices when you allow shipments to leave here unsold.

Cold Storage is something for the buyer to erect to take care of his purchases but that only means an extra expense for the person shipping on consignment. I am in favour of regulations for Standardising and Inspection but object in the strongest way to the present control of the Marine & Fisheries Department for regulations of shipments and prices, such as was enforced last winter, and so far up to date. We must have free markets to ship to any one we please. I hope that the Minister of Marine & Fisheries will be governed by wise counsels and will agree to abide by the decision of the majority of the Exporters, as the present time is no season to bring in revolutions. We must work things out smoothly by evolution.

The Chairman—You have heard Mr. Munn and he has spoken very plainly with regard to the Italian market. Has any gentleman any remarks to make in connection with the situation?

Mr. Job—As you, Sir, and the majority of those present are aware, the consensus of opinion at the only meeting we have held of the Board, was that Mr. Hawes should not on any account be asked to sell for any shippers who do not wish him to do so. We have heard too much of the other side. Whatever happens, nobody will be forced to sell through Mr. Hawes.

The Chairman—That is exactly my view of the situation.

Mr. Barr—At a meeting of the Advisory Board I spoke on behalf of the principal supporters of Mr. Hawes. We six, just prior to the meeting of the Advisory Board, held a conference and decided we were strongly in favour of selling through Mr. Hawes as we had absolute faith in his ability to handle our fish to our satisfaction; and I then suggested that whoever should have permission to sell to the Consorzio, Mr. Hawes should be permitted to sell to his dealers, so that we could have the use of his services. I think some remark was made about the coming season, and that he would go to Italy about the early part of September and remain there as long as necessary. Mr. Munn is much opposed to Mr. Hawes, but that is a personal matter. I have greater faith in Mr. Hawes than ever before, and if we are going to sell our fish effectively in Italy, we can only do so through one or two channels. The idea of people selling fish indiscriminately is only courting trouble. Mr. Hawes has a splendid organization there. He has closed his office for the summer season because there is nothing doing, but his selling staff is available, with all last year's experience and better equipped for handling business than last season. I think it would be ruinous to have more than two selling channels for Italy the coming season. It is not so much a matter of the price they pay, but the reclamation they obtain, and if Mr. Munn or any other shipper sells fish to the Consorzio without any organization to handle claims arising they will be advantageously served by Mr. Hawes and his staff. If Mr. Hawes' men sell through him and the Government appoint another channel through which others can sell, it would avoid confusion.

to warn you that in dealing with the Consorzio you are up against able and clever men; and the troubles we had last year prove that we must be on our guard when doing business with them.

Mr. Barr—It is not a matter of who the buyers are; the main thing is to have an organization on the spot. Mr. Sellars—If you accord a privilege to Mr. Hawes's supporters, you should accord the same privileges to others. Why not your Department sell?

The Chairman—That will be a matter for the Commission to decide, but I would like to have the opinion of the exporters as to what they think should be done.

Mr. Job—It is for the exporters to suggest one or two other selling agencies.

Mr. Sellars—Suppose I want to sell through one source, and others through others; why should we not have the same privilege that other people have?

MR. JOB—You have the same privilege.

MR. SELLARS—Net if you limit sale for the Commission to decide, but I would like to have the opinion of the exporters as to what they think should be done.

MR. MUNN—I do not see that any of Mr. Hawes' men have any right to say anything. It is a question for everybody should be allowed to sell. Mr. Hawes' men are satisfied, and they want to tell us how we should sell it. We want to do our own business in our own way.

MR. CHAIRMAN—You must consider that if you have three or four men selling fish, and some of them are weak, and the Consorzio will make all sorts of claims. When the Consorzio find this out, they will refuse to buy from the strong man except at the reduced price. I do not care if two or three sell, but they must have a strong organization behind them.

The Exporters' Conference.

MR. LONG.—I believe in outright sales for Italy, but I think with Mr. Sellars that all should have the right to sell directly to the Consorzio. Probably Mr. Hawes has a wonderful organization there, but if we have a good Trade Commissioner he would be able to deal with the situation, especially regarding claims. Last year the Consorzio offered me through Mr. Hawes 90 for large cargoes of fish. They were prepared to place the money here. I asked you Mr. Chairman then to take that fish, but you told me it had to go through Mr. Hawes. I gave it to Mr. Hawes and it was sent to Spain, and is there yet. I felt that if it had gone to the Consorzio I would have my money today instead of being $40,000 out of pocket. I have no objection to selling through Mr. Hawes, but I believe we should be allowed to sell to others if we maintain the price as set forth by the Government, and in the event of claims being made, they could be adjusted by a strong Trade Commissioner. I feel if we send good fish we won't have much trouble.

MR. BOWRING.—What other agencies would they set up, and how would they set up?

MR. LONG.—I am prepared tomorrow to abide by the Government regulations regarding Italy, and send my fish to Italy, and I will abide by the decision of the Trade Commissioner, whether Mr. Bernard or Mr. Butler. If there are claims to be adjusted.

MR. MONROE.—I am one of the supporters of Mr. Hawes, and it occurs to me that it would be perfectly justifiable to allow everybody to sell through whatever agency they desire. I think the object of the Department is simply to prevent price cutting by erroneous claims. This is the principal difficulty to be overcome, and if the proposed Trade Commissioner for Italy, Mr. Bernard, does not know enough about the quality of fish to settle claims, the Government can find a man capable of doing so. It seems to me the question is important enough to have a Government agent in Italy to adjudicate claims, and that is about as near the matter as we can get. I agree that Mr. Hawes should not be allowed to sell if other shippers are denied an agency. I quite see the grievance. For my part I would be perfectly willing to see other people sell through whom they liked. The safeguard would be that if they sold at a lower price than anybody else, their license would be cancelled. Consequently they would not dare take the risk of selling below the price fixed in the regulations. As far as the settlement of claims is concerned, I am equally convinced that Mr. Hawes would not attempt to accept settlement of claims in Italy. It would not mean any money in his pocket, and he would not want to do it. If I had fish shipped through Mr. Hawes for Italy, and it was decided that a Government agent would attend to reclamations, I would probably ask Mr. Hawes to accompany that officer and see that my interests were safeguarded, but I do not see the reason why a Government agent should not be able to settle claims, and thus avoid the difficulty, while allowing all to sell as they desired.

HON. D. A. RYAN.—I am in accord with Mr. Sellars' remarks. I consider every man should sell through whatever agency he wishes. As Mr. Monroe pointed out, if a shipper breaks the price in any way, his license can be cancelled. As for Mr. Hawes setting claims; I do not think that Col. Bence, or anyone else could do worse than Mr. Hawes did last year when he allowed from 1 1/2 to $6 per qtl. rebate on some cargoes that went over in steamers. A person who never saw a codfish could go to Italy and would not do so badly. I have known Mr. Hawes since he came here first, and I had a contract with him for three years, which was disastrous to me. I would like to ask all exporters here how they did business before these regulations came on, and how they have done business during the past 20 years. I think on the whole they did better than Mr. Hawes ever did.

HON. P. TEMPLEMAN.—I understand you are speaking under the head of Italy. I will give you some of my experiences in connection with that market. We had one case where a cargo of fish arrived in Leghorn. The price was 21/6. Some of it was sold, without authority, for 21/- a qtl. We stopped at that point and ordered the rest of it to be stored. We were offered 16/- for the stored fish. We had an agent sent down from Naples who worked up the price to 18/-. Then my son went there and succeeded in working the price up to 24/6. We had a couple of hundred casks of fish damaged also, and while in Leghorn my son received a message asking him to go to Messina. There we had 280 casks fish on which the buyers wanted an allowance of 4/6. He went there immediately, took the matter up, and succeeded in having the whole transaction squared without having to pay one cent. While he was there we had a cable from Holmwoods stating that 3,500 qtls. had arrived at Patras, Greece, on which the buyers wanted a rebate of 3/6 per qtl. My son on his arrival there got up against the British Consul. He was like all other British Consuls. Most of them, I understand favored Germany when the war commenced; and it was a man of this type that was Consul in Patras. My son set to work and settled the whole thing for Seventy-Five Pounds, where they wanted 3/6 on 3,500 qtls. My idea of a Trade Agent is not a schoolmaster nor a laundry man, but a man who has served his time at the fishery. From what I can hear outside, I learn that Mr. Bernard is a man of that kind of appointment. Mr. Bernard may be a very good man, but he does not know as much about codfish as I do. If we are to have Trade Agents, they should be fishermen, men brought up in the fish trade of Newfoundland. Any Newfoundland boy can talk the language after he has been over there a few weeks. I feel warm on this point because I have suffered myself. A great many Trade Agents only go over for a good time. I would vote every time for an experienced man, a man who knows fish, and is one of those who would like to have the privilege of selling through any channel. I do not want to oppose the regulations in any way. On the contrary I stand up for them, and hope to be able to conduct my business properly under them.

MR. CHEESEMAN.—Regarding Italy, personally I am strongly in favor of the sentiment expressed by the majority of the exporters, that there should be a free hand. But then there should be a very strong man as Government agent in Italy, a man thoroughly fitted for the work. He need not alone be experienced in fish matters, but requires to be something of a diplomat as well, and the Government should find such a man, regardless of cost.

MR. SELLARS.—If Mr. Bernard has been appointed, I endorse his appointment. He can learn in four weeks all that it is necessary for him to know. I could bring him to my store and he would learn all he required in that time.

At the City Hall.

The Weekly Meeting of the Municipal Commission held last evening. Chairman Gosling and Commissioners Ayre, Mullaly, Morris, Devine and Peet were present.

The Minutes of previous meetings being read the following matters received consideration. In answer to Commissioners' request re remuneration, the Colonial Secretary stated the matter has been approved of by the Governor in Council, the same to be ratified by the Legislature.

In re the application of the Canadian Bank of Commerce for water supply to new building, and as there seems to be some misunderstanding in this matter the Management is requested to state the particulars for which the water is to be used.

City Solicitor, Carter, reported on completion of the Management in reference to the erection of a fence near New Gower Street. As the locality is a congested one, and the erection of said fence considered dangerous in the event of fire, the Inspector General will be asked to investigate and take such action as he sees fit.

Application of Geo. Gillingham for share of iron work in connection with the Municipal Works was acceded to.

Architect McCarter is to be requested to submit plans of all buildings to be erected Merry Meeting Road. He is also to be asked to meet the Engineer to discuss the matter of roofings, as the Commission considers shingle roofing now being used most undesirable in such erections.

Communication from Capt. Bulley, C.C.C. to change nights of band Concerts was left with the Secretary to arrange.

The Engineer's Dept. reported a house Goodview St. as requiring repairs. The owner is to be notified to have the building put in tenable condition as called for by the Municipal Act.

Section II of the Cab Regulations re the wearing of Badges by Drivers of Cabs is to be published.

Resolutions raising the fees from $2 to $4 for cattle placed in pound were passed and ordered published.

The following plans were approved:—Geo. Lambert, Merry Meeting Road; R. Simmons, Franklin Ave.; Thos. Butt, Pennywell Road; R. Facey, Murray St.; and Imperial Oil Co., South Side.

Plan submitted by J. Marshall, to build stable Quiddi Vidi Road was referred to the Health Officer, while that of Jno. Murray, to build cooorage, Murray St. was referred to the Inspector General.

Thos. Dillon, Charlton St. must submit block plan of proposed erection before same can be considered. Tenders are to be called for the supply of one hundred sacks oats for the Sanitary Department.

Solicitor Halley on behalf of residents of Clifford Street, requested extension of water and sewerage to this locality, as promised by the Council some time ago. This matter will be given attention as soon as possible.

Communication of F. P. Ruggles in reference to Public Lavatory near Gas Works was referred to the Sanitary Sup.

The report of the work done in locating waste water by Venturi Meter Testing during the past few months was tabled. This work which was most successfully carried out was the means of locating a great number of defective services and saving to the city of some thousands of gallons of water which was going to waste.

Reports in connection with the different departments were received from the City Engineer, Health Officer, Plumbing Inspector, etc.

Pay Rolls and bills presented were ordered paid, after which the meeting adjourned.

IN THE NIGHT.

I'm thinking things too fierce to print for health has met disaster, and here I have a strip of lint, and there a porous plaster. One recent eve I sought my couch as chipper as a bunny; I had no symptoms of a grouch, and all my life seemed sunny. I thought, before I went to sleep, how much I should be grateful, that I had no diseases cheap, no ailments punk and hateful. And gratitude was two feet wide in all my pleasant thinking; "the gods are good to me," I sighed, to slumber softly sinking. And in the morning when I woke I had some nine diseases; catastrophe, at one fell stroke, had placed me with the cheeses. My legs were stiff as wooden limbs, my back seemed prone to breaking, and I had sore and swollen gills, and muscles shrewdly aching.

When I get hurt I try to smile, and frame a cheer-up ditty, for 'I'll be better in a while—I ask no mortal's pity. I raise no wallings of despair, I spring no bitter weeping; but, gentle reader, is it fair, to soak one when he's sleeping? Is it good form to swat a bard and fill him with diseases, when he is dreaming (off his guard) of sprightly campaign wheezes?

Housing.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—At the doings of the Municipal Commission held yesterday afternoon, appears the following in this morning's issue of the Daily News:

"Architect McCarter is to be requested to submit plans for all buildings to be erected on Merrymeeting Road. He is to be asked to meet the Engineer to discuss the matter of roofing, as the Commission considers shingle roofing now being used most undesirable in such erections."

The thirty houses being built by the Dominion Housing Company and nearing completion, passed the Municipal Council in July, 1919 in a block of five, the others are built in exactly the same plans and on the same street line, with one exception, the houses vary in a different aspect.

If the Municipal Commission are anxious that the Company submit plans of all buildings to be erected next year, they will require to meet three times weekly to pass laws. I am not aware of any law that prevents shingle roofing if builders so desire, although it would be interesting to know, when visiting the houses on Merrymeeting Road, how the Commissioners mistook Brantford Crystal roofing for shingles.

Yours truly,
JOHN ANDERSON.

Rod and Gun.

The many readers of Rod and Gun in Canada, who are interested in the fiction section of the magazine will be pleased to note that George Gilbert, the well known short story writer has written an absorbing romance staged in the great outdoors entitled Waters of Rejoicing. This along with ten other stories and articles together with the various Departments make up the September number of Canada's greatest sportsman's publication. With the coming of the autumn the "gunman's" thoughts turn to ducks and deer and this number contains several good stories telling how the other fellow got his quota of Canada's water fowl and big game. ROD AND GUN IN CANADA, is published monthly at Woodstock, Ontario, by W. J. Taylor, Limited.

Lasting Repairs.

The work of repairing Dwyer's Hill is now nearing completion. The Council's men have made a lasting and good job of this place, always a source of expense after rain storms. The drains on either side of the hill have been let down more than a foot and the road bed regraded. The drains have received a coating of tar, as an experiment to keep the grass from growing in the crevices between the cobble stones.
