CHAPTER XLV.

Well, compose yourself for another hour, any way. The post does not come in until ten," smiled Gardner. "I am glad to see you are still progressing toward health and strength, and believe it is all owing to the extraordinary tonics to the mind, which have been administered to you in gentle doses. I have another for you this morning, dear boy; and after you have digested it, mum's the word, for the present."

He handed Ada's letter to Hastings, adding:

"It will give you an appetite for breakfast!"

Sir Charles read every word twice over, and the varying expressions of his face would have made the fortune of an artist if he could have transferred them to canvas.

When he had finished, he handed the letter back to his chum, and said, quietly:

"And now?"

"I shall stay here for a few days, and spend Christmas with you. I am in no hurry to kick the other poor beggar out. You will be all right in a few days, and we'll go down to Swinford together."

CHAPTER XLVI.

I did not know that you were ill, and it is strange that Lady Craythorne has not mentioned it, for she is in constant communication with Ada. I began to fear that my letter was lost and I became frightened lest the story of my father's crime should fall into other hands.

Oh, my darling, is it not strange how trouble has followed us since our vows were plighted in the White Lady's Bower? Do you think the clouds that lower over us will ever clear away? You say that we are both now free. I am still bound by the shame that hangs about our house. My father may be adjudged a murderer! Is it not horrible? Six months since I was an innocent child. To-day I am a miserable woman. I can hardly believe that Christmas is at hand, and I dread the sound of the bells. "I know that you will come to see me soon; but you must try not to hate my father for the unconscious wrong he has done you. His misery and his remorse are awful to witness. He thinks of nothing but me—of his ancient name. I shall pray for your recovery by night and by day, but I will not wish you a merry Christmas—the words mock me so. But for your love to strengthen me, I do not know how I should meet the black fate that is hastening upon us with giant strides.

Yours in life and death.

GLADYS.

Hastings replied to this at considerable length, and sent it to the post. Gardner was also busy with his correspondence until late in the afternoon. Then the young men devoted their attention to making some show of festivity, for the pleasure of the servants if not for themselves. To an Englishman, Christmas is the most important holiday of the year—it is supposed to be a time of good will toward all men. There is merry-making and feasting everywhere.

The Hall was decorated both inside and out, under the old butler's supervision, and everybody regretted that the master's accident had interfered with the many delights that had been anticipated.

A household of guests meant pleasure for all. If there was increased work for the household generally, the servants were well repaid by the money and presents that were always given lavishly at this time of the year.

"This takes me back to the days when Sir Charles was a baby," said the butler, regretfully, to another old servant. "It's a pity all his friends had to be stopped coming. It does my heart good to think of hearing the old walls ring again with laughter and song. And what a prospect, too, for skating! Never been such ice before."

"You don't think he's going to spring a surprise on everybody, do you?" asked the other servant.

LADY IRIS' MISTAKE;
 —or the—
Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER V.

"Knocked down by rank!" he said to himself. "Who would have thought it of me?"

Mrs. Bardon had placed all her faith and hope in a certain Indian shawl of which she was inordinately proud; some one had told her that the queen had a great penchant for Indian shawls. When Mrs. Bardon donned this shawl, she was accustomed to say with a vapid smile—

"You see I am like the queen; I prefer Indian shawls."

On this her first visit to Chandos the Indian shawl was worn, with a dress of dark purple satin and a whole suite of sapphires. Mrs. Bardon did not trouble herself much about class distinction. She confessed that in a general way she "adored the aristocracy"—and there was an end to it. She enjoyed the good things of this life, and took matters pretty as they came.

Maria Bardon was, herself, simple and straightforward. Lady Iris liked her at once; the fresh comely face, the honest earnest eyes, the sensitive lips, made their way to her heart. Lady Iris did what was unusual with her; she held out her hand with kindly words, while in her heart she hoped that the girl and herself would be friends.

John Bardon presented himself next. Lady Iris's quick glance took in every detail—the tall figure, with its air of coarse strength and utter want of refinement, the strongly-marked features, the assumed ease of manner, and the hands which no patent soap could whiten. If John Bardon had a weakness in life, it was in respect of fingernails; to his sorrow his were short, queerly shaped, and utterly unmanageable. They were a great trial to him. For the rest, he was well educated, and he tried hard to make himself believe that money was the greatest good. Yet, although he comforted himself with every kind of maxim, he resented with hot bitter passion the fact of his lowly origin.

He was suddenly, morbidly jealous of every aristocrat with whom he came into contact. His heart swelled with bitterness when he thought of his father's well-filled coffers. Of what avail was it to be the son of a millionaire when he was descended from the lowest class? His life was one long fight with fate. He took no simple manly pride in his father's industry and success. Had he viewed the matter rightly, he might have covered all the faults and short-comings of his parents by the evil of respect which it was in his power to fling over them; but no such idea came to him. There was but one hope for him, and it was that he should marry well—"marry birth," as he expressed it, and not money. He would have money, and perhaps by letters-patent he might take the name of his wife, and so forget the coal-and-iron phase of existence altogether. Even as he looked at Lady Iris's lovely face, and noted the queenly grace of her manner, the idea occurred to him—here, above all others, was the one woman who could save him, the woman who had all that he valued and which he himself had not—a noble name, a long line of ancestors, and every honor that noble birth could give. He looked from her to the golden scroll and read the words, "Held with honor."

John Bardon stood bowing before the Lady Iris. No friendly hand was held out to him. The clear brilliant eyes had read his character in the place that he given them. They—and it was almost impossible to avoid it—came a slight pause—very slight, still long enough to make Lord Caledon uneasy, and he rushed into conversation with Mr. Bardon the elder. Lady Iris resigned herself to her fate; the interview would last twenty minutes at least, and she must endure it. Mrs. Bardon saved her the trouble of making conversation.

"You will go up to town of course this season, Lady Iris?" said the good woman as she unstayed her magnificent Indian shawl.

"I hope so, Mrs. Bardon," replied the clear sweet voice. "I look forward to it with pleasure."

"That was something the millionaire's wife could understand, her face brightened.

Will To-morrow be Fine?

DON'T WORRY OVER IT—LEARN TO MAKE SURE.

How can you tell if tomorrow will be fine or wet? Well, watch the clouds at sunset. "Red in the morning is the sailor's warning; red in the night, the sailor's delight." There is a heap of truth in this old saw.

At the same time notice whether the air is clear or not. In all temperate climates unusual clearness of the atmosphere is followed within twenty-four hours by a change, usually rain. If the clearness continues for more than twenty-four hours look out for a bad storm.

The clouds are the best of all weather signs. Soft looking, delicate clouds are fine weather signs, yet after a fine clear spell the first indication of change is little, curly wisps of cloud, which slowly increase. Then a haze of soft cloud obscures the blue, then when that happens you may make up your mind that rain is coming.

The higher and more distant the formations, the more time you have in which to get home, or provide yourself with a shelter.

Small, ink-looking clouds will sometimes appear in the weather and drift across the sky as the very worst signs imaginable. They portend heavy rain.

Sometimes, aerie, you will notice high clouds crossing the sky in a direction opposite from those nearer to the earth. This means that the wind is changing, and when you see such clouds coming, and when you see such clouds coming from the southwest, after a spell of fine easterly weather, you may take it as fairly certain that the weather is going to break.

The wind itself tells you a lot. If it backs, for example, from west to southwest, look out for warmer, wetter weather. If it veers from west to north, the next day should be finer but cooler.

Fashion Plates.

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Patterns. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

A FINE WARM WEATHER GARMENT.

The sleeveless, open-necked, and the little dress may be used as an apron if desired, or as a dress worn over knickers or bloomers. Satin, cretonne or percale are good materials for this model.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: 4, 6, 8, and 10 years. A 6 year size requires 1 1/2 yard of 27 inch material. Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 15c. in silver or stamps.

A PLEASING APRON DRESS.

This model applies the place of a house dress and is adapted for all house keeping activities. It is comfortable and simple. Checked or striped gingham with plique for the facings would be good for this style. Voile, percale, poplin, cotton crepe, chambray, linen and unbleached muslin are also good for this style.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: Small; 34-36; Medium, 38-40; Large, 42-44; Extra Large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A Medium size will require 5 yards of 36 inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15c. in silver or stamps.

FACE DISFIGURED NINE MONTHS

Itched and Hard Pimples Broke Out. Cuticura Heals.

"My face and neck all broke out in a mass of nasty pimples. My face used to itch and then hard pimples would break out and fester over. They itched and burned dreadfully at times, and my face was badly disfigured for about nine months.

"I tried different remedies without any effect. I saw an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. It helped me so much that I bought more, and after using two boxes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Estelle E. Power From Poison.

It is not always easy to understand that invisible things have weight. The atmosphere, for instance, though invisible, presses on everything with a weight of nearly fifteen pounds to every square inch. More surprising still is the fact that for every ton of iron ore drawn from a blast furnace more than five tons invisible gas escapes from the top of the furnace. Some large blast furnaces make 350 tons of iron per day, this means that something like two thousand tons of invisible gases have also been produced in the same time.

Of this enormous amount of gas no less than six hundred tons is carbon monoxide—the deadly gas which has caused so many "gas tragedies" during the last year or so. Carbon monoxide, in fact, is the most valuable ingredient in the mixture.

Waste Which Works.

Formerly all this gas was allowed to burn to waste at the top of the furnace; but now, like scores of other "waste products," it is used, partly for burning under boilers and so generating steam, and partly for heating up the air before it is forced into the furnace. In the most modern works the gas from the blast furnaces is cleaned and used to drive large gas-engines, but whatever use is made of it, the final result is that nearly all of the poisonous carbon monoxide is changed into carbon dioxide—the gas that gives the "tingle" to the soda-water. The gas-engines drive electric generators which, in turn, supply the power for operating the whole of the machinery in the works, amounting, perhaps, to thousands of horse-power.

So, for every ton of iron made, five tons of invisible gas are produced, a large proportion of which is a deadly poison. Modern science has not only been able to render this practically harmless, but has also made it do useful work in the process.

Cold Boiling Water.

The recent magnificent attempt to scale the summit of Mount Everest re-opens interest in the various methods by which heights can be ascertained.

The instrument which is used by the majority of mountaineers is the aneroid. This instrument has no mercury, but depends on a mechanical contraction of a thin metal plate for its method of registering the air pressure measurement.

Ordinary mercurial barometers were also carried by the Mount Everest expedition, and the readings obtained from them were used to check the figures given by the aneroid.

Another method, which might be described as an unorthodox way for a party to discover their altitude above sea-level, is to determine the temperature at which water will boil. Water, owing to a curious phenomenon of the atmosphere, boils at about one degree (Fahr) for every 530 ft. climbed.

An instrument called a hypsometer, or boiling point thermometer, registers the boiling point at any altitude reached, and therefore indirectly registers as well the height above sea-level.

The fact that the boiling point of water changes at varying altitudes, leads to many very strange situations. It is possible for the pressure of the air to be reduced by mountain climbing until the boiling point is at the same level as the freezing point.

In parts of South America there are monasteries on the mountain's sides, at heights of 10,000 to 11,000 ft., where water boils so quickly that it does not get hot enough to cook meat, potatoes, or other foods.

Fortunately, at that height human beings do not feel the urgent need for food felt at lower altitudes. During the last few days necessary for the final rush to a peak, such as Mount Everest, the mountaineers only require a little soup, chocolate, or biscuits.

MOST WHEN HARMONIA SANK.
SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 12. The British steamer Kintausa Caspary arrived here 1.15 this morning with 234 survivors, passengers and crew of the German liner Hammonia, which was wrecked off Vigo on Saturday evening. The report says 106 lives are approximately 80. Captain Hammonia said two of his crew collapsed when being launched. The city were drowned, mostly Spanish laborers bound to Cuba. The cause of the disaster was shipping water during a storm, eighty feet off Vigo when the pumps proved inadequate to check the intake.

A New Comer in Motion Pictures.

WILL BE SHOWN AT THE NICKEL TO-MORROW.

A delightful picture with May Collins, the new meteor of the screen world, in the leading feminine role, will be seen at the Nickel Theatre, beginning to-morrow, when "All's Fair in Love," a new Goldwyn Picture, is presented. Thompson Buchanan, author of many successful stage plays is the author. The photoplay was directed by E. Mason Hopper.

Miss Collins is the seventeen year old leading lady who, it has been rumored, is to marry Charlie Chaplin some time at the end of the year. She has appeared in several Broadway stage productions, and has had considerable experience as a stock company actress. In "All's Fair in Love," Richard Dix plays the leading male role opposite Miss Collins. His manly bearing and his genuine ability as an actor, add immeasurably to any picture in which he appears. The comedy develops around a young girl with a fixed idea that her new husband is in the clutches of a vamp, and tries herself to play the part that she thinks will keep him forever. The muddle in which she finds herself gives rise to many unusual and laughable episodes.

What One of the Best Known Traveller in Canada Says:

"Now I am going to give you an unsolicited testimonial as they say in the patent medicine advertising. Heretofore I have had a profound contempt for patent medicines, particularly so-called liniments. Perhaps this is due to the reason that I have been blessed with a sturdy constitution, and have never been ill a day in my life. One day last fall after a hard day's tramp in the slush of Montreal, I developed a severe pain in my legs and of course like a man who has never had anything wrong with him physically, I complained rather boisterously. The good little wife says: 'I will rub them with some liniment.' I have 'Go ahead,' I said, just to humor her. 'Well, in she comes with a bottle of Hinar's Liniment and gets busy. Believe me the pain disappeared a few minutes after, and you can tell the world I said so.' (Signed) FRANK E. JOHNS, Montreal.

Colors and Heat.

So old as to be new is a scheme originally carried out by Franklin and now revived in England to test the heat absorptivity of different colors. Small squares of cloth of exactly the same material, but varying in color, are placed out on the snow in full sunlight.

At the end of an hour in one case the pieces were examined, and interesting results noted. The black cloth had sunk down into the snow until it was completely in the shade. The red piece was down to about half the distance. The light blue was only just below the surface, while the white cloth was unaffected by the rays of the sun. The yellow portion sank down to about the same depth as the red.—N.Y. Herald.

The Vexed question of Taxation.

The Sales Tax in its present form is considered by many retailers as a worse nuisance than ever. The difficulty is to adequately interpret it, except that under the act itself the minister may interpret it according to his own notion—or the notion of his Department. This is considered rather arbitrary. Besides, interpretation has hitherto been considered to be one of the functions of courts when ever anything obscure has arisen in connection with laws. It is deemed rather extraordinary that the Minister should have this power, especially in the case of an act that is jammed full of obscurities. What is necessary is to repeal the Act in its entirety and enact an entirely new one based on simple principles. In the nature of things the act must be complicated when every man who produces a little of some commodity as a side issue is classed as a manufacturer. Retailers should not be collectors of revenue for the Government at all, and the Sales Tax will never work smoothly until the revenue thereunder is collected entirely at the source—from the producers within the country and from importers in cases where the goods originate without the country.

And if the Sales Tax is to be remodelled, why not make the tax thereunder high enough to render possible the elimination of the stamp taxes, which are a source of irritation, not because the amount of the tax is great, but because so many petty transactions are involved and one's patience is taxed as well as his pocket in attending to the matter. Everyone would favor the collection of revenue through the sales tax, which, if simplified, would be productive and simply administered as well. The taxation question is a very vexed one. It is recognized that taxes must be raised and everyone is willing to pay his share, but the system is so complicated now that there is an insistent demand for its simplification. This would be achieved by putting the work on a simplified sales tax, which not only would produce the revenue required, but would fulfil fairly well all the requirements of a good tax system. The sales tax is very cumbersome as it is worked now, but in its present complicated form it is giving the public authorities unnecessary trouble and expense. From the standpoint of administration alone it would be advisable to make a change.—Maritime Merchant.

The Trade Outlook.

The trade outlook for the coming fall is anything but promising as a result of the partial failure of the fishery and the fact that some of our best markets are now closed to us because of disadvantageous exchange rates.

For the first few months of the year business was brisker than at any time since the big slump came, and there were high hopes of a good fall trade. Credit was easier and outport merchants were purchasing more and heavier goods than they had done for a considerable time.

Unfortunately, conditions have changed during the past few weeks and we learn on good authority that many Water Street firms have cancelled orders placed by their buyers with American and English firms.

General merchants are now faced with the problem of having either to give more credit to people who have already had a very large amount on which they have paid nothing, or of doing no business whatsoever. They have to decide whether it is wiser to risk more for the sake of keeping goods moving, or to content to have nothing go out at all until things take a turn for the better.

It is a difficult situation, and it is aggravated by the ridiculous credit system which prevails in this colony and which is to a great extent responsible for the existent depression.

If there were ever a time when common sense and good judgment were needed by our business men, it is now, and those who possess these qualities will have to use them to the very best of their ability if they are to weather the storm which is approaching.

An Unsolved Mystery.

The mystery which surrounds the disappearance of Cartwright a few weeks ago, of Miss Margaret Lindsay, has not yet been explained, although every possible enquiry was made by her brother who returned from Labrador by the Meigle after his futile investigation. That the missing girl has met her death seems certain, but that she should have left no trace behind her of the manner in which she died is strange beyond belief.

If she had gone swimming, her clothes would have been discovered, but a careful search for them has been unrewarded. That a strong, healthy-minded young girl, such as Miss Lindsay was known to be, should have committed suicide, is unbelievable. There must be some explanation of this mysterious disappearance, and no stone should be left unturned until it is accounted for.

The West Indies Service.

The decision of the Government to maintain a steamship service with the West Indies has been the subject of much discussion since the advertisement for tenders for a suitable ship appeared in the press. That no effort should be spared to increase the amount of our fish exports to the West Indies and South America is agreed by all, but the difficulty that presents itself is whether the increased trade obtained by the service will be commensurate with the cost.

The experiment is likely to prove a costly one unless freight can be found for the steamer on her return trip to this port, and the most obvious cargo is sugar cane, provided that a refinery can be established here. An enormous quantity of sugar is consumed each year in this country, and if the raw cane were imported direct from the West Indies and refined locally, the commodity itself would be cheaper and it would go far towards making the proposed service perfectly feasible, and a Government which has squandered large sums to no apparent purpose might, at least, experiment in something which gives promise of good returns.

King Football.

Despite its many competitors for favour with local sports enthusiasts, football still remains enthroned as the king of summer games and the end of another extremely successful season is now fast approaching. There is a possibility that a new trophy will have to be found after this year, and if so, we would suggest that one is provided to be contested in a manner similar to the English Cup. Instead of allowing the cup to be won outright, it is better to have a perpetual challenge trophy, and with so many teams, many of which are weak, in the League, the advisability of providing more interest in the games by having a first and second division should receive the mature consideration of the Football League before the opening of the next season. Marked improvements might possibly result through the adoption of this suggestion, but, at least, no harm can come from a discussion of its merits or demerits, as the case may be.

Rotary Luncheon.

The luncheon of the Rotary Club held to-day at the Green Lantern, was largely attended. The business of the meeting was to receive the report of the Clubs delegates to the recent convention at Charlottetown. Arrangements were discussed for greeting which the club will extend to the new District Governor when he arrives next week on the Manoa. Mr. J. F. Meehan was chairman for the day.

Pothead Whales.

A message to the Marine and Fisheries Department received to-day from Newtown B.B., states that what was reported to be whales has proved to be pothead of a very large size. Fishermen are busy in their motor boats and today have killed 40 of the mammals.

There is nothing more refreshing than a cup of GOLDEN PHEASANT TEA.

A Tieup on Labrador.

FISHERMEN DEMANDING BETTER PRICES. As a result of dissatisfaction over the price being paid for fish on Labrador the work of loading the steamers and vessels there has been practically suspended and considerable delay in getting the fish to market seems inevitable. It is understood the prevailing price on the coast is about $4.50 per quintal, though it is said some firms are offering $4.75 and others $4.50 and a bonus. It appears the men will not accept these prices and are holding out for $5.50 per quintal. During yesterday the agents of the various firms were in communication with their principals here in an effort to make some satisfactory agreement, but it is understood no definite decision was reached.

Attempted Suicide.

AGER MAN CUTS HIS THROAT. This morning Dr. Grievie was called to Sudbury Place to attend an aged resident who attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. The victim, James Angel, aged 99, committed the deed between 8 and 9 o'clock during a fit of despondency, he being unwell for the past 6 or 8 weeks. Dr. Grievie had to make 12 stitches to close the wound, and it is possible the patient will pull through.

Miners Petition Company.

ASK IS PER CENT. WAGE INCREASE. Operations at Bell Island are now in full swing, both shifts working full time, in order to fill the large orders that have been received from the European markets, and there is no let up in the weekly output, steamers continually arriving for cargoes. It is expected the out put for the present year will be a record one. The men engaged have recently made application to the Company for the recent 15 per cent. wage increase granted to the Sydney miners, after the settlement in the recent strike, they feeling that as a part of the British Empire Steel Corporation's system, they should share in the increase. The request was not made in any unfriendly spirit, but more in the nature of a petition, but as yet no reply has been received from the Company, though it is hoped something definite may be forthcoming shortly.

Blue Puttees Meet.

RE-UNION ON ANNIVERSARY DAY. A meeting of Blue Puttees held last night in the G.W.V.A. Rooms for the purpose of discussing arrangements for the annual re-union was largely attended. Major March occupied the chair and in stating the purpose for which the meeting was called, emphasized the necessity of getting the men together as early as possible, so as to ensure a large number being present at the annual re-union. Last year no arrangements were made until the first day of October, and much inconvenience was caused. It was unanimously decided to hold the re-union this year on Wednesday, October 4th, the date of the departure of the First Five Hundred for England eight years ago. A committee of three was appointed to make all arrangements in connection with the dinner, etc., and place them before the meeting to be held on next Monday night, for approval. On motion of Lieut. Snow, a resolution was passed conveying the sympathy of all blue puttees to James Mahon, Allandale Road, a comrade, whose wife and child died during the past couple of days. It was also decided to send a wreath. The meeting adjourned at 8 o'clock until Monday, the 18th inst., at 8.30.

MARK TWAIN ON THE SCREEN. (By our Dramatic Critics.) I have suffered so many disappointments in the past when I have gone to see my favorite stories on the screen that I fully expected to be disappointed by the film which was shown last night at the Majestic, of Mark Twain's famous comedy "A Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court." To my delight, however, the picture was all that could be expected, and beyond a slight modernization it was true to the book around which it was made, while the scenic effects were extraordinarily good. I would advise all picture fans to take advantage of the opportunity offered to see this great production.

HIS DIARY.

Sept. 11th.—Up and to the office, and there comes to see me Mr. Ackerman, that is a famous American writer about sports. He tells me how the sporting possibilities of Labrador are great, and he will urge his friends to go there. Comes Povy and would carry me off to lunch with him but I did say him say though it went hardly with me to do it, being that he is well stocked with good wines that he did lay in before the coming of Prohibition. I learn from him how there do be a great strike in Ireland of telegraph and other, so that all communication suspended, and indeed, a sad country. In the evening, I did sit at home and write. So to bed, feeling mighty warm, for the weather grows close and dry.

Home Reflected.

COASTAL BOAT WHICH WENT ASHORE COMES OFF AT HIGH TIDE. After lying for several hours ashore on Barge Point, Labrador, S.S. Home was refloated at high tide last night and proceeded on her route. The ship went ashore at 6 a.m. yesterday in a dense fog. She suffered very little damage as a result of the accident.

Fined for Arson.

BURNSTEIN CASE CONCLUDES—ACCUSED MAY APPEAL. The summary trial of Joseph Burnstein for arson, concluded yesterday afternoon, in the Magistrate's Court, when the prisoner was fined $200 or 12 months imprisonment. The fine was paid but accused has intimated that he would appeal to the Supreme Court. Several witnesses were called for the defence and one for the prosecution. Burnstein then addressed the Court, denying any knowledge of the origin of the fire which he was charged with causing. H. A. Winfield, B.A., for the Crown, briefly outlined the case against accused, showing that while evidence for the prosecution was concrete, that of the accused was contradictory.

With Seaplane and Motor Boat In Newfoundland and Labrador.

Extracts from the Diary of a Wanderer.

Aug. 2nd 1922.—As the result of a hasty summons from the Boss, I find myself on board the S.S. Home steaming up the West Coast of Newfoundland. To think that I could have completed this journey in two and a half hours on the good-old "finstade," sitting in comfort and gazing on the wonderful panorama of Newfoundland's wealth of timber, water and mountains, spread out below like a fairy map. But it was to be otherwise, aircraft, like other means of transport, require their time and the old "finstade" was being fitted out for the survey work that she is about to undertake. So after leaving Botwood at midnight the day before yesterday by motor boat, I arrived at Humbermouth at 11 a.m. yesterday after 9 hours of agony in a crowded train, followed by further discomfort in a rolling sea. This was however, well compensated for by meeting such accommodating men as the Home's Captain, a skipper of the type that save Newfoundland the reputation for producing efficient seamen. After a train and boat journey occupying some 34 hours, including stops, I finally tychoer up off the wharf of the old Whale Factory at Hawke Bay, to find the Company's boat, the motor yacht Hawks, and the little B., dressed in hunting, to celebrate the great local event of the first entry of the Home into Hawke Bay.

WE MEET THE BOSS.

As we glided in, a fussy little motor boat crossed our bows, carrying a dery looking young man who shouted instructions in a "not to be ignored manner." I decided that whoever he was it would be as well to keep on the right side of him, and did not regret this decision. A few minutes later the Boss came on board, to welcome me, I thought, but no. It was his gramophone he wanted, that instrument of torture that I had dragged all the way from Piccadilly to teach Hawke Bay the latest music. Having ascertained that it was all right, he condescended to notice us. I say us, because I found there was a member of our party on the boat, who had been invited up for a holiday by the Boss. A young man who invited confidences. It was only after laying bare the secrets of my life that I discovered that he was a devoted student of the "finstade" and that his business was to write of the deeds and misdeeds of mankind, in diary form in the press, a man to be dealt with carefully and with tact. We boarded the Hawks, where most comfortable quarters were provided for us, and where I had the pleasure of meeting the rest of the Hawks' party, consisting of the Hon. J. K. Bennett and his daughter, Miss Marguerite, who had her friend Miss Hewson with her. Capt. Bennett and his brother Mr. Ray Bennett, with "Pops," the Boss and myself, completed the party. It is the irony of fate, I arrive dressed as an adventurer, in my oldest clothes, to find a social gathering, at a place I had always understood to be the back of nowhere. It was a had start, but my outlook of life changed after sampling a curious drink manufactured in the darkness of the aft cabin by the Senior member of the family.

SIGNS OF CIVILIZATION.

I went ashore for a few minutes, and found, to my surprise, a Post Office, where there awaited me a cable from England, giving me news of a great good fortune that had happened to my family at home. Then I had to look over the base. Little did the whalers of old think of the use to which their buildings would be put to. Their guano store had been turned into a general store for supplying the woodmen engaged on the Company's timber limits, with the necessities of life. Their boiler house was a stable, while the carpenter shop was installed among the great vats that were once used for storing whale

I BECOME POETICAL.

Back to the yacht, and as we stop on board the motors are started, and with 300 horsepower, thrumming under our feet, we head down the Bay. The sun is setting behind us, making the mountains of the Loxk Range shimmer with a purple light. Hawke Bay is shown at its best, its smooth wide waters reflect back the sunset, in a myriad fiery colours, with the golden tipped firs making a finished background to Nature's picture. As we slip down the Bay, a corve after corve opens up; until we pass the mouth of the Torrent River, over which a great Fish Hawk corve, over which a great Fish Hawk corve looking for its evening meal, I wonder if it was the great sea captain or one of the ancestors of the solitary bird that gave the inspiration for the name of the Bay. Coming to the end of the Bay we drop anchor in front of a log cabin with a long sloping roof, which looks as if it has come out of a Japanese print. The engines are switched off, and we hear the plaintive cry of a pair of loons, that are becalmed in the smooth waters, waiting for a breeze to enable them to drag their heavy bodies into the air. Before turning in we row over to the East River, and cast a fly, but the trout are not feeding. Then some music, and to bed.

In the Realms of Sport.

FOOTBALL.
Football is a funny game that you have the flag, you will find that all the same as you wish to brag. It is safe to talk about space by which you will win every district's heard from the final count is in.

WHY NOT THURSDAY!
We have heard dissatisfaction expressed on all sides at the decision of the League in insisting that the big championship game between the B.I.S. and the A.S. be played tomorrow evening at 8.15. The main grievance is tomorrow is the last half holiday of the season, and practically final of the season and outtings for the season. Those keen on football are compelled to waste a whole afternoon in this glorious weather for the purpose of seeing the game played at the awkward hour of 8.15.

INTER TOWN CRICKET OFF.
Much to the regret of everybody, the proposed Inter Town Cricket Games for the Hayward Cup have fallen through, and apparently this was due to a series of circumstances which could not be controlled. Messrs. R. Goodridge and P. Berrigan had all arrangements made for a crackerjack city eleven to leave, when, suddenly, owing to pressure of business it was found that three of the most prominent members were unable to get away. Rather than take a mediocre team out there to try conclusions with the inter-towners, the proposed trip had, therefore, to be abandoned. We are informed that the Grand Falls Cricketers are keenly disappointed, as not only were they looking forward to a revival of this great old game, but elaborate preparations had been made for the reception of the city team, which had to be cancelled at the last moment at considerable inconvenience, not to say expense. However, with the proposed formation this winter of a Cricket League, the games will assuredly take place next season.

THE STOVE LEAGUE.
Playing season's nearly over, and the Stove League is nearly done. Lay at rest the fan's loud howling. Let the Stove League have its fun. Now the fans will all consider what their player's did this year. And they'll handle every question without favour, without fear.

DEATH OF CENTENARIAN.
The Evening Telegram has this day a sad news. I wish to record the death of Jane Benson, which took place at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. Seward, on August 28th, 1922, at the age of 100 years. She had lived the great age of one hundred and two years (102). In spite of her advanced age she retained most of her faculties to the last, and was able to help in her room last a day or two previous to her passing. In her will she bequeathed a large house at Hillview, and her house at St. John's. She was a devoted wife, mother and grandmother. For the past years she resided with her daughter, who with loving care ministered to her wants to the last. Her body was laid to rest in the C. of E. cemetery at Hillview, the service being conducted by the Rev. R. Fowles. All classes united to pay their tribute to one who had enjoyed

700,000 Face Famine in Smyrna.

Clemenceau Will go to United States.

700,000 FACE FAMINE.
SMYRNA, Sept. 12.—Seven hundred thousand persons in Smyrna face famine within a week unless food supplies arrive, according to the Managing Director of Near East Relief who is superintending relief measures. Food must come by boat as the sea is the only route now open.

FLYING TO POLB.
COPENHAGEN, Sept. 12.—It is generally believed here that Captain Raold Amundsen has already undertaken his daring flight across to the North Pole from Northern Alaska. The belief is further strengthened by the fact that the Norwegian Government has asked the well known Danish explorer Captain Gotteried Hensen to undertake a relief expedition.

PASSINGER LIST LOST.
SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 12.—The loss of life in the foundering of the German steamer Hammonia off Spain Saturday will probably never be definitely known. The passenger list was not saved and the total of those on board can only be approximated.

NORTCLIFFE'S WILL.
LONDON, Sept. 12.—The will of the late Lord Northcliffe which was sworn to to-day for provisional probate purposes leaves gross estate value at two million pounds with no personality of same amount.

CLEMENCEAU GOES TO STATES.
PARIS, Sept. 12.—Georges Clemenceau is going to the United States to plead the cause of France, he told a correspondent to-day. He added "no one speaks for France no one, and the time has indeed come. I will not say anything about the conference, that is not my business. But this is the moment to tell the United States that they are making a mistake, that we are neither military nor imperialist, and that the French people deserve the enthusiastic confidence of its friends."

Tennis Closing.
PRESENTATIONS SHORTLY.
The formal closing of the tennis club will take place shortly although the courts will remain open for play until weather conditions cause rackets to be once more restored to their winter resting places. The presentation of prizes won in the various tournaments will be held on closing day.

At the Royal Photographic Society exhibition in London, Eng., a demonstration was recently made of a process of "photo-sculpture." The subject to be photographed is illuminated by a projector, as shown in an illustrated article in the Popular Mechanics Magazine, which throws a spiral of light, similar to the groove in a phonograph record, upon it. This spiral is distorted, on the negative, by the irregularities of the subject. A positive is made, on glass, to be used in the carving machine. This has a disk, to hold the material to be carved, a carrier for the photographic record, and a microscope and high-speed drill, mounted together. The operator moves the drill so that it cuts the material at varying depths according to form of the subject. In this way excellent reliefs have been obtained in wood, ivory, and alabaster.

BORN.
On Sept. 8th, to Mr. and Mrs. A. Thompson twins (son and daughter).

DIED.
On Saturday, Sept. 9th, Catherine Joseph, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Thompson.
Passed peacefully away, on August 9th, at Plymouth, Mass., the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Abell, Mary Anne Crowley, wife of the late Daniel Crowley, aged 36 years; leaving 4 daughters and 1 son to mourn their sad loss; also a large number of grand children and great-grand children. May her soul rest in peace.

IN MEMORY. of my dear sister, Kitty Murphy, who died September 13th, 1922.—"May her soul rest in peace."
She has gone across the river,
To the shores of evergreen;
How we long to see her dear face
But the river is between.
And our aching hearts are calling
To the shadows dark and gray,
For the dear one who left us
Just two years ago to-day.
Inserted by her Brother, Patrick in Toronto, Ontario.

A warning is issued by medical men connected with Johns Hopkins University against the exploitation of the vitamine idea by patent medicine manufacturers. A languishing industry hopes to find a revival through the popularity of vitamines. The scientists point out that it is impossible to derive these health-giving properties from a few spoonfuls of liquid absorbed from a bottle. They come more cheaply and efficiently through the proper section of food. Green vegetables, and especially salads, contain more of these life-giving elements than can be drawn from any bottle, no matter how big or promising the label may be.

Why Does A Cup of Tea In the Woods Taste Better?

Some of the "kill joys" will tell you it is imagination. But you mustn't mind them for that is what they lack.

The joys of trout are not for them. The music of the salmon reel they will never know. The beauty of the berry patch, the red of the partridge berry, the blue of the whort berry and the satisfaction of the well filled basket are not for them.

Even the beauty of our Newfoundland scenery, the glory of the Topsail sunset will leave them cold. But let us forget them and let us make for the old Southside Hill, now carpeted with the green and red of the partridge berry, or out to Topsail, or up to Manuels River, or let us make for the old "Cow Path" leading to beautiful Holyrood (and along the said "Cow Path" the whorts never grew thicker than they do this year) and let us "boil the kettle", and I bet you it will be a good "cup of tea", unless your grocer has done you dirty altogether. For the secret of it is, you steep the tea as soon as the kettle boils, and any old tea will taste pretty good, I'll bet you.

But it is just as well to take the best tea with you, it doesn't cost much more. The last time we were out we had a splendid tea and it only cost us 95c. lb. It had a sort of artistic name—"Mount View". We bought it at Henry Blair's. They had another good tea there at 50c. per pound, but the clerk said "the best is the best", and we believe him.

Freshly boiled water is the secret of the cup of tea you drink out camping, fishing, berry picking or picnicking, but it is just as well to have the best tea.

You can get it for 65c. per lb. at Blair's "Mount View", that is the slogan.

Ferryland Schools.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—In your issue of the 7th appears an article, "Historic Ferryland" by "Visitor," in which an unwarranted attack is made on the Parish Schools at Ferryland.

It is a pity the writer did not attempt to keep within the bounds of truth and fair play. "Visitor" lays the blame for what he calls "deplorable conditions of the schools" at the door of the school inspector. His remarks on Ferryland Schools are, however, nothing but an indirect and cowardly attack on the Parish Priest, Rev. A. J. Maher under whose jurisdiction the schools of the parish rest. "Visitor" contends that "the Ferryland Schools are in a wretched condition, and at present owing to the use to which they were put this summer all the schools are in a deplorable condition." "Visitor" well knew when he penned this attack that the Garden Party, of which he makes favorable mention, was held for the very purpose of providing funds for a new school, the need of which has been long felt by both pastor and people.

Within the past few years the energetic Father Maher has spent over fifty thousand dollars in improvements of church property in the Parish. Considering that this sum was raised during a period of depression it speaks volumes for the labors of the good priest and the loyal and unstinted support of his parishioners.

"Rome was not built in a day," nor is it possible for any outport clergyman, of any denomination, to accomplish all things desired at once.

City visitors who frequently visit the Southern Shore are convinced that the labors of Rev. Fr. Maher are not unappreciated by those under his spiritual care. It is safe to say that they will continue to give the good priest that loyal support which has been so much in evidence the past four years.

"Visitor" was determined not to leave any misconception as to the real purpose of his letter, for he pays a glowing tribute to other parishes in the district and slams only Ferryland. The reason, will, I feel sure, be apparent to the most casual observer.

However, Rev. Fr. Maher can well afford to treat with silent contempt the cowardly attack of sordid hearts. His magnificent work for Religion and Education are the best evidence of his zeal and devotion, and in future, as in the past, he will have the whole-hearted support of his loyal parishioners, and numerous city friends, despite the attacks of cowardly literary assassins of the type of "Visitor."

Wants Bell to Run.

Editor Evening Telegram . . . . .
Dear Sir:—A word or two regarding the Halifax Marathon, I noticed by your Sporting Column last week that it is not the intention of the National Sports Committee to send a team of runners to Halifax this year, and this, I think, is a move in the right direction. However, I am of opinion, that an effort should be made on the part of someone to have Jack Bell compete for the Halifax Herald Cup. We are all aware that MacCaulay must only win this trophy on this occasion and he becomes personal owner, and we also know the only runner that worried the Canadian last year was our local champion. Therefore, it is only fair that he should be given a final chance to capture this coveted trophy. According to late records of MacCaulay's running, he is either going back or else reserving himself for the above event which takes place sometime in October. Isn't it possible that the B.I.S. Club Members can arrange to send Bell up this year as he is a member of that organization, and is certain to give a good account of himself. Come on gentlemen, about $100.00 per week for about three weeks is all that is necessary, and Bell and his man can move off two weeks previous to the event. He is in good condition and the game it well worth it.

Kenna's Hill.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—The residents in the neighbourhood of Kenna's Hill feel grateful to the Telegram for bringing the state of that road, to the notice of the authorities. It certainly is in a disgraceful condition. The wonder is that the Golf Club whose motors have torn the top covering off the hill do not take some steps to restore it. Of course they do not have to walk over it and they don't care. If the Mayor was as free, frank and fearless as he bossed before the election, he would send a man to rake the boulders off the hill. This is the most used thoroughfare in the whole city. All the eastern outports as far as lake St. Francis use it, and one wonders why the members for the East End do not take some steps to repair it. Perhaps the Junior representative for the eastern districts now that he has some time on his hands, would exert himself to have something done. We cordially extend an invitation to the Telegram to send a

The Joys That white teeth bring

Millions of people have found them out in this delightful way. This is to urge that you do so—and now.

Combat the film
Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. It clings to teeth, causes decay and stains.

The film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Film is the basis of tartar. Teeth that should glister—millions of them—are kept clouded by that film.

The film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. It constantly breeds germs, and they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Nearly all tooth troubles are thus traced to film. And, under old brushing methods, those troubles have been constantly increasing.

Ways to end it
Ordinary tooth pastes do not effectively fight film. So well-brushed teeth, as most folks know, discolor and decay.

So dental science has in late years sought effective film combatants. Two have now been found.

Pepsodent

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
The New-Day Dentifrice

A scientific film combant, combined with two other modern ingredients. Now advised for daily use by leading dentists everywhere. Supplied by druggists in large tubes.

Both are embodied in a new-day tooth paste—called Pepsodent—for twice-daily application. Able authorities have proved its efficiency. Now leading dentists, almost the world over, are advising its adoption.

Five new effects
Pepsodent combats that film with every application. It keeps teeth highly polished, so film can't easily adhere.

It multiplies, also, the salivary flow—Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies starch digestant in saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Twice daily it brings these five desired effects. And modern authorities say the tooth paste should bring them.

Watch these effects and judge them for yourself. Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Judge by the benefits you feel. Judge by what your mirror shows. Then decide if you should let the millions who now clean teeth in this way. Cut out the coupon now.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

A FAMILIAR DRAMA.

A wife I know had been "prodding her husband in the way wives have, by" telling him of another man in the same line of business in which he is, who "in spite of these hard times, you talk so much about" has managed to make a lot of money. One day she would come home with the news: "They have just bought a house." "They are thinking of taking the house the Mosleys moved out of and they lost their money." The next day: "They've bought it."

ment stores at which she bought the lovely new clothes, to say nothing of large accounts with the grocer and the provision dealer; and that when these bills, and the bills for his illness had been paid, the widow would be penniless.

In other words they had not been nearly so well off in solid assets as the wife who had been envying them their seeming prosperity.

How often do you suppose some variation of that little drama is played in every town or city in this country in the course of the year?

So often that if anyone had it copyrighted and got even the tiniest royalty he would be a millionaire.

The Rajah Vanishes.

Here is a similar case. A man who had been working in a garage for small but comfortable wages had an old school friend come to visit him. The latter was selling some new and wonderful automobile accessory and told of making tremendous money. He said he averaged $100 a day (not $100 to-day and nothing for two weeks, you note). He had just invested in a $3,000 car, he wore expensive clothes and took his old friend and his wife out to dinner at an expensive inn. "Why don't you shake that old garage and do what I'm doing?" he asked. "It's easy enough—all you have to do is to wear good clothes, and know how to talk and be a good fellow." He had the garage worker (and his wife) hypnotized almost to the point of throwing up his job. Fortunately, however, the firm which had received only $100 payment on that $3,000 car (second hand by the way) came down and took it away, and the rajah vanished over night, leaving behind a trail of tailor and board bills and all the other kinds of bills that a man who keeps all his salary to use as ready money is unfortunately obliged to leave behind.

So it goes over and over again.

A reliable report includes matisse, gloriote crepe, crepe "Granada sataika sponge and radium twill in leading silk fabrics. Also good are satin Cantons, Canton crepes and Cascade crepes.

Passion Play at Oberammergau.

WHY THE FAMOUS PIECE IS ACTED ONCE EVERY TEN YEARS.

Thousands of people are flocking to Oberammergau, from England and America, to witness the Passion Play, but few of them know the origin of the spectacle.

In 1333 a terrible plague devastated the district, around Oberammergau, in Upper Bavaria; but that little hamlet, strangely enough, escaped, and in order to keep clear of the plague the inhabitants of that village were forbidden to have anything to do with the outer plague-stricken district.

A native, who had been living in an infected village beyond the circle of mountains that surround Oberammergau, managed to come back by stealth to the village one night. Three days later he died of the plague, and soon after forty other villagers died also.

The Plague Was Checked.

It was then the villagers made a vow, that if the plague was turned away from their midst, they would then, and once every ten years afterwards, perform with all due reverence and solemnity a play which should set forth the Life, Death and Mediation of Christ.

The plague did not spread, and from that time, now nearly 300 years ago, the vow has been kept, with a few exceptions.

In 1770 all semi-religious theatrical performances were suppressed by the State. Oberammergau petitioned for a reprieve on the strength of its vow, and the play was permitted to be performed in 1780.

Judas Is a Wood-Carver.

In 1810 it was again suppressed, but again an appeal was successful, and it was performed in 1811. In 1820 it was postponed till this year, to allow the villagers to recover from the effects of the war.

Nearly 700 people take part in the play, 122 of whom have speaking parts, while 280 act but do not speak. Anton Lang, a potter by trade, takes the principal part of Christ for the third time. Ten persons of the family of Lang are playing name-parts in this year's play, apart from the director.

Judas will be played by a man who is foreman of the biggest wood-carving business in Oberammergau, whilst the veteran of the company is Gregor Breitsamer, whose role will be that of Herod. He has been in the play without a break since 1860, and has played a different part every performance.

Costumes Cost Over $1,000.

The part of Mary is always taken by an unmarried woman, tradition having it that no wife shall take any part in the play.

The costumes are made in the village, and cost over $1,000. The materials are obtained from Berlin, Munich and Paris, and some rare stuffs from Damascus and Jerusalem. The vast theatre has seating accommodation for 4,400 people. The auditorium is covered, but the stage is open to the sky.

The play is every Sunday, and certain week-days, until the middle of September. The performance lasts from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m., with a two-hour interval for luncheon.

THE FATAL CROSSING.

The fatal wall was a very crossing. Grim death still functions there, with locomotives still tossing their victims in the air. In vain the signboards flit, ten and listen, with warnings wide and high, for men won't look and listen, who consequently die. Each day we order caskets for people killed by

Let this "COW IN YOUR KITCHEN" tell her story of milk and cream

"Anyone can buy milk," says this Cow in your Kitchen—it may be good milk or it may not! It may be pure or it may not! It may be rich in nourishing qualities, or it may not! It may keep—or it may not.

But the housewife who takes a pride in her skilful buying—who makes every cent do a cent's worth of work or more—who protects her family from the dangers of ordinary milk—who insists on supreme quality milk—

That woman insists on having in her kitchen always, a liberal supply of St. Charles Milk "with the cream left in". It is good! It is pure! It is rich! It does keep fresh! Wholesome! Convenient! Economical! For every milk use! Order a few tins from your grocer to-day. "A size for every need."

train; the coronets, with baskets, and through the air it sails. A spark-plug and a piston is all that's left of Lis; we will not look or listen as merrily we whiz. The coroner is keeping his tab on our remains; our stricken aunts are weeping and cursing railway trains. Some gent will read these verses, I have no doubt, to-day; and, thinking not of hearses, he'll scoot along his way; he'll strike a gaft that's dizzy, that's neither safe nor sane, and presently his Lizzie will hit a railway train. We'll gather up the pieces, and as we toil we'll wall, "The death list still increases! No warnings will avail!"

How the Bible Miracle Happened.

There is a perfectly straightforward, scientific reason for some of the miracles mentioned in the Bible—as, for instance, when the walls of Jericho fell down.

"You can't tell me that you believe in a lot of fairy stories like that! Absolutely ridiculous! They couldn't possibly have happened."

That is the sort of stone wall you are up against if you happen to believe in Bible stories and miracles. And what can you say? You're finished so far as any further argument is concerned.

But here at last is some definite and reliable evidence which proves that these "mythical" Bible stories are not so impossible after all. The evidence is supplied by Dr. Schofield—famous for his travels and discoveries in Palestine—as a result of exhaustive inquiries, examinations, and investigations carried out by himself on the actual scenes of the stories.

When the Jordan Dried.

Take, for instance, the story of the drying up of the River Jordan, which enabled the Israelites to pass over to the Promised Land. It sounds, on the face of it, incredible, and yet Dr. Schofield's explanation is quite a simple and rational one. The Red Sea has frequently, he says, dried up in a shallow gait, with a strong east wind has been blowing all the night before.

Similarly, the drying up of the Jordan has been accomplished by natural means. There is one place where the cliffs on either side are so close that when a landslide occurs the whole course of the river is blocked and an artificial dam is formed for some hours. The "miracle" was, of course, that God "used" this natural means at a definite time to fulfil his promise to the Israelites. That, at any rate, explains how the Israelites escaped from bondage with dry feet.

Everyone knows the story of the fall of the walls of Jericho after Joshua and his troops had marched round the city for seven days.

While he was in Palestine Dr. Schofield met Professor Sellin, who had discovered and excavated the Jericho of Joshua's time. The professor, who had found the top of the walls of Jericho in the surrounding ditch, took Dr. Schofield along with him to see the remains of the city.

People of Jericho Crowded Walls. The walls were found to be of sun-dried loam and measured about 4ft. thick by about 8ft. high—not very substantial. The circumference of the city, says Dr. Schofield, was not much more than half a mile. That disposes of the belief that Joshua's troops could not possibly have surrounded it.

Various arguments have been brought forward to account for the disappearance of the wall, such as that it descended miraculously into the earth, but none of them will stand against Dr. Schofield's theory.

He believes that, although frightened at first by the nearness of the hostile army, the inhabitants became bolder when they found that the troops outside did nothing more than walk round the city. In time these extraordinary manoeuvres became almost farcical, and the walls were crowded with large numbers of curious sightseers.

They All Turned to Fly.

Then, on the seventh day, when, according to God's command, the priests blew with their trumpets and the soldiers all shouted, the people on the walls were so panic-stricken that they rushed with one accord from this sudden and unexpected development. Imagine thousands of feet thrusting against that unsubstantial wall at the same time! What more natural than that the wall should fall outwardly into the surrounding ditch, filling it up, and thus leaving the way clear for Joshua and his army to pass in and take possession? Again, God uses natural means to perform His wonders, thus transforming a natural accident into a miracle.

Dr. Schofield also found the house from which Rahab the harlot let down the two spies, and he has published photographs in the June Pearson's Magazine of the natural window from which the spies were lowered.

The story of the swine which "ran down a steep place into the sea" has been discredited because no place could be found on the shores of the sea of Galilee where this could have been possible. Once again, Dr. Schofield has confounded the sceptics, for he has brought back to England the photograph of a steep cliff on the shore of the lake, at the top of which lies the modern village of Ghersa. This village he identifies with the biblical village of Gedona.

This and other photographs (one of which was forbidden, but can be published now that the Turks have left Capernaum), together with several interesting and important discoveries relating to miracles which have not been mentioned in this article, were published in Pearson's Magazine.

And Silence Reigned.

One hot afternoon a young man in shirt-sleeves was wheeling a baby-carriage back and forth before a small house in the suburbs. He looked hot, but happy.

"My dear!" came a voice from an upper window of the house.

"No, let me alone!" he called back. "We're all right."

Half an hour later the same voice, again in earnest, pleading tones: "Arthur, dear!"

"Well, what do you want?" he responded. "Anything wrong in the house?"

"No, Arthur, dear, but you have been wheeling Clara's doll all the afternoon. Isn't it time for the baby to have a turn?"

Naturally.

It was founder's day at the school, and the children sat in bored silence as the head master introduced a famous speaker who was noted for his patriotic fervour.

Towards the end of the discourse he waxed eloquent.

"And now, boys," he cried, "if you saw your glorious flag waving triumphantly over the battlefield, what would you think?"

There was a prolonged pause, and the speaker smiled genially.

"Come," he said encouragingly, "won't someone answer?"

A voice from the back broke the silence:—

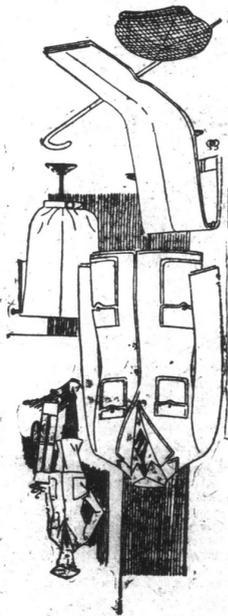

"Please, sir, I'd think the wind was blowing."

Peopling the World.

There are two ways of filling up the world. One of them will be taken care of by the natural increase of the human population; the other consists in transporting surplus from the over-populated countries. It is the second of these processes which the British Government has chosen for an emigration policy, the like of which for magnitude and cost has no parallel in history. By a decision just taken, it is to contribute to the expenses of the emigration to the dominions of the next fifteen years a sum of £10,000,000, providing, the dominion governments will devote a similar sum to the end in view. The Australian government has already accepted the plan, and negotiations now in progress with Canada and New Zealand give assurance that they will all contribute their share. It is a practical assurance that after the next financial year, in which the first contribution of £10,000,000 will be given outright, the sum of £20,000,000 will be spent annually for the next fourteen years, making a total contribution to "emigrate the world" of $470,000,000.

Sir Joseph Cook calls "the emigration" made possible by the British plan, "the most important and the most far-reaching step in the history of the world." He says that the world has an excess of it. All the world, meanwhile, there is an opportunity for redistribution. The figures showed the population of the world in 1919 was 1,810,000,000. In Asia, 1,136,000,000; in North America and the West Indies, 274,000,000. — Sunday Herald.

Men Who Loot Liners.

PIRATES UP-TO-DATE.
Recently, while bound from Hankow to Hong Kong, the screw steamer Kwang Lee was boarded by pirates. The captain and all the European officers were imprisoned in the engineers' messroom, one Chinese passenger was killed, and the crew, twenty or thirty in number, were away with valuable goods after disabling the ship's engines.

There are still wide tracts of sea which captains, unless well armed and manned, are careful to avoid.
One of these is the Black Sea. A little over a year ago Black Sea pirates boarded the steamer, Southern, over-boarded her crew, and got away in their boats with plunder to the value of a quarter of a million dollars.

Passengers Who Were Plundered.
The boldest pirates are Chinese and Malays, and the worst trough of sea is that lying between Malacca Straits and the Japan Sea. A French steamer, Robert, was attacked not long ago.
After leaving Canton, took "passengers" to Kung-Ki.
The pirates in disguise, and then the ship out of sight with the robbers held up the room, and received $100,000.
The value of $2,000. One woman was killed in the fray. The captain forced to steer a course for land, where the pirates were out ashore to plunder.

Sea pirates who keep watch in the Indian Ocean, and who plundered craft off the coast of East Africa, have long been annoying customers to small sailing vessels. One of the "modern" pirates was El Moro, Yafencio, who, with his men, he boarded the British steamer, Con- queror, and secured much plunder.

Bold and Audacious.
However, piracy does not flourish in the district owing to the presence of armed craft patrolling the coast of Gibraltar, but the lawless sea still occasionally attack and slow-moving sailing ships and the opportunity occurs.

One act of piracy was the attempt to seize the American steamer
California when she had left a California port. This attempt was made by pirates who had boarded her as passengers. It was frustrated by the appearance of a dragoon, who shot down one of the men with his revolver.

That these pirates are not wanting in audacity is proved by the fact that they do not hesitate to board large vessels, for the Brockman was a 3,000-ton steel screw steamer.

The actual boarding is usually done after dark, the crew is taken by surprise, and the pirates have done their work before proper resistance can be made.

Helium in Beryl.

A distinguished English physicist,
Prof. Strutt of Cambridge, has discovered a notable quantity of helium in beryl sent to him from New Hampshire. A remarkable fact in this revelation is that the mineral appears to be absolutely without radio-activity.
As is now generally known, helium is a product of radio-active minerals.
Prof. Strutt, surprised by the result, obtained, states that it seems likely that here is a case of rayless change of atomic constitution, and it may lead to further unexpected discoveries.

NEW BEDFORD. — The whaling

John A. Gonsalves, arrived from an Atlantic ocean whaling voyage recently with 650 barrels of sperm oil.
She reports the New Bedford schooner of whalers has done well this season.

But Not Last Summer.

Now that county cricket is once more fairly launched, the following story by the veteran Lord Hawke is well worth recalling.
It concerns one of the Australian cricketers who, returning to Australia after a more than usually wet season spent in this country, was asked what he thought of England.
His reply was: "Oh, it's all right, but it wants covering in."
"But surely you appreciated the English summer?"
He smiled and said: "I'm afraid not; I happened to be asleep that afternoon."

Why Volcanoes Erupt.

The crater of a basin formed by a volcano starts with the opening of a fissure in the earth's surface communicating by a pipe-like passage with very deeply-seated molten matter and steam. Whether the molten matter thus naturally "tapped" is only a local, though vast, accumulation, or is universally distributed at a given depth below the earth's crust, and at how many miles from the surface, is not known. It seems to be certain that the great pressure of the crust of the earth (from five to twenty-five miles thick) must prevent the heated matter below it from becoming either liquid or gaseous, whether the heat of that mass be due to the cracking of the earth's crust and the friction of the moving surfaces as the crust cools and shrinks, or is to be accounted for by the original high temperature of the entire mass of the terrestrial globe.

"As Through a Safety Valve."
It is only when the gigantic pressure is relieved by the cracking or fis-suring of the closed case called "the crust of the earth" that the inclosed deep-seated matter of immensely high temperature liquefies, or even vaporizes, and rushes into the upending fissure. Steam and gas thus "set free" drives everything before them, carrying solid masses along with them, tearing, rending, shaking "the foundations of the hills," and issuing in terrific jets from the earth's service, as through a safety valve, into the astonished world above. Often, in a few hours they choke their own path by the destruction they produce and the falling in of the walls of their briefly-opened channels. Then there is a lull of hours, days, or even centuries, and after that again, a movement of the crust, a "giving" of the blockage of the deep, vertical pipe, and a renewed and jet of expanding gas and liquefying rock.

The general scheme of this process and its relations to the structure and properties of the outer crust and inner mass of the globe is still a matter of discussion, theory, and verification; but whatever conclusions geologists may reach on these matters, the main fact of importance is that steam and gases issue from these fissures with enormous velocity, and pressure, and that a "vent" of this kind, once established, continues, as a rule, to serve intermittently for centuries, and, indeed, for vast periods to which we can assign no definite limits.

The solid matter ejected becomes piled up around the vent as a mound, its outline taking the graceful catenary of rest and adjustment to which are due the great beauty of volcanic cones. The apex of the cone is blown away at intervals by the violent blasts issuing from the vent, and thus we have formed the "crater," varying in the area enclosed by its margin and in the depth and appearance of the cup so produced. At a rate depending on the amount of solid matter ejected by the crater, the mound will grow in the course of time to be a mountain, and often secondary craters or temporary openings, connected at some depth with the main passage leading to the central vent and the formation of one or more subsidiary vents, the activity of which may blast away or smother the cup-like edge of the first crater.
Such a history has been that of Ve-suvius. In geologic ages—perhaps some thousands of years ago—Ves-suvius was perhaps a perfect cone, some 7,000ft. high, rising by a characteristically accelerated upgrowth from a circle of ten miles or more in diameter to its delicate central peak, hollowed out at the summit by a small crater a couple of hundred yards across. Its eruptions at that time were neither excessive nor violent.
Then came a period of greatly increased energy—the steam-jet blew with such violence, that it shattered and dispersed the cone, lowering the mountain to 3,700ft. in height, truncating it and leaving a proportionately widened crater of a mile and a half in diameter. And then the mountain reposed for long centuries.

Pipeless Furnace. The Hecla

If there is one thing more than another that is essential to comfort in a home it is proper heating. There are five factors in heating a home and all should be given consideration.
First—Ample warmth in each room.
Second—Pure healthful air.
Third—Economy of fuel.
Fourth—Durability. A lifetime of service.
Fifth—Convenient ease of controlling or regulating heat. Clearing out ashes.
This is the measure of a perfect heating system and all these the HECLA PIPELESS FURNACE will give you.

A German Humbug.

CLAIMED THE KAISER AS FATHER—
FOUND OUT BY A FORGED CHEQUE.

A few years ago Count Renenski, a wealthy and aged Polish statesman, was strolling one day in the Imperial Park of Posen when he saw on the seat a slender, graceful figure of a young girl, her head drooped, her body quivering as if with sobs.

Distressed at the sight, the tender-hearted old man waked up to the pathetic little figure and, touching her on the shoulder said: "Madame, pray excuse me. I see you are in some great trouble. Can I be of any assistance?"

At the words the girl raised her head and his words up at the benevolent stranger, with large blue eyes, swimming with tears. It was a face of flower-like loveliness that met the downward gaze of the count—soft, rounded cheeks, a quivering little rosebud of a mouth, a dainty head with ringlets and tendrils of golden hair clustering around a low forehead.

"You are very kind," said the girl in a low voice of singular sweetness, "but I trust no one can help me. I am the most unhappy girl in the world. No, I cannot tell you," and, breaking into a fresh outburst of sobs, she buried her face in her hands.

"But," persisted the count, "it will perhaps relieve you to tell me your story, and I promise you it will be as sacred as if it were told to a father confessor." Under the soothing kindness of the count the girl's sobs gradually subsided, and she began to confide to him her strange story.

She had been brought up, she said, under the roof of a poor shoemaker, whose daughter she understood she was until a year ago, when by accident she learnt the amazing truth—that she was really the daughter of no less exalted a personage than the German Emperor.

As a young man, before he succeeded to the throne, the Kaiser had met and fallen in love with her mother, the beautiful daughter of a Polish gentleman called Svanoff, and had secretly married her. He had taken his bride to a home in the Black Forest, where for a year or so they were ideally happy. Then, when he married Princess Augusta, he had deserted her.

"A few months later," continued the girl, "my poor mother died of a broken heart, and I was left in the care of a worthy shoemaker, to grow up as a child, ignorant of my royal birth. Thus it is that I, Anna Schneider, am in truth, Princess Anna of Prussia, the first-born child of the Kaiser William."

Such was the amazing story told by the weeping girl to the count, and to prove its truth, she handed to him a bundle of papers containing the certificate of her mother's marriage, and of her birth and also two letters from the Kaiser's eldest son, in one of which he wrote: "I am very sorry my father has treated you so badly. He must know it was not your fault."

In the face of such evidence, what could the count do but believe the story? Such, indeed, was his sympathy with the lovely girl that he insisted on offering her the hospitality of his palace while he made every effort to see that justice was done to her claim.

Having successfully cashed her fraudulent cheque, she thinks it is high time to seek fresh fields of harvesting. But this time Fortune is unkind to her, for just as she is on the point of leaving Homburg she finds herself confronted by two officers of the law, who arrest her on the charge of forgery.

To the trial that followed, there could be but one issue, for, in addition to forging the cheque, it was found she had defrauded scores of tradespeople and other dupes, and a sentence of three years' hard labor was passed on her. As the words fell from the judge's lips, she fell unconscious in the dock, and, soon as she recovered, found herself in a bare cell in one of the most dreaded prisons in Europe, that of West Gardens.

Here a very startling and dramatic experience awaited her, for when the governor entered her cell to inspect his new prisoner she found herself face to face with none other than Colonel Bernstorff, the man whose wife she had promised to be, and who, unknown to her, had just been appointed governor of the prison.

Her sins had, indeed, found her out, and the bitterest part of the price she paid was that she, who might have been wearing bridal robes as wife of an honorable man, had to appear before him in the hideous and humiliating grab of a convict under his charge.—Pearson's Weekly.

Cookery Books in The Middle Ages.

Cookery books are not, as many otherwise well-informed persons, believe, things of modest, or comparatively modern, growth. As far back as the reign of Richard II., we find the first authentic English Manual of Cookery. It was called "The Forme of Curry." The work was compiled with great attention to detail by the Master Cooks of that monarch. It contains 196 recipes, some of a very quaint and even alarming character.

From the time of Richard until about the beginning of the fifteenth century, cookery books seem to have been rare and confined for the most part to the establishments of princes or nobles of the first rank. From the year 1420, however, these useful little volumes sprang into popularity, and found a place in the kitchens of the bourgeoisie.

Strong Meat.
A very large section of the scientific cookery of those times, as to the present day, was entirely French. Many of the recipes would amuse, or perhaps horrify, a modern chef de cuisine. There can be no doubt whatever that the palates of our excellent ancestors, strengthened by frequent fighting and vigorous sport and more highly flavoured dishes than do the palates of us moderns.

Wine entered very largely into the dishes. At least forty per cent. of the "ragouts" or stews were endowed more or less generously with the juice of the grape. Ale was also in considerable demand for cookery. For instance, one culinary chronicler states that "such medicinal was his sympathy that ale must 'surely be used' in the preparation of tanch, oysters, pike, plaice, barbel, and various other piscine edibles. Even stale ale was not despised, though we may hazard a guess that the result was not altogether pleasing to a fastidious palate. Verjuice found a place in almost every variety of stew, and sometimes even wandered into meat-custard and pies.

Swan-neck Pudding.
The cooks of the Middle Ages apparently had a sort of passion for almonds. These were introduced into an enormous number of foods. Certain kinds of fish were never cooked without a liberal addition of these articles.

Meats, which we would hardly dream of admitting to our modern menus, unless we were giving a freak dinner-party in America, frequently found a place in the ancient cookery books. Porpoises were in great demand. Seals, swans, cranes, herons, peacocks, seagulls and even whales were pressed into service on occasions. A special dainty often found on royal menus was pudding of swan-necks!

Here is a recipe for a certain somewhat weird dish which appears to have held high favour at the dinner-parties of the richer middle classes of those times. (The writer has ventured to modernize the old English, in order to render it more intelligible to the ordinary reader):—

Take paunch of sheep—make it clean—cast in pot of boiling water. Skin it clean, and gather the grease all away, let it boil till tender, then lay it on a fat board and cut into small pieces of a penny-size. Take leaves of parsley, let them boil together till they be tender, then take powder of ginger and saffron all of salt and cast these in. Then let all boil together and presently serve in.

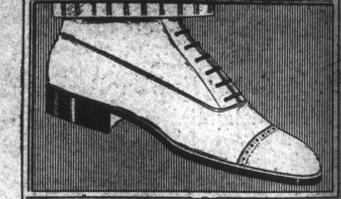

Sauces were in very great vogue. About three hundred years later the cynical Voltairre declared that England was the country of a hundred religions and one sauce. In 1400 he might have found few religions, but enough sauces to satisfy even the palate of a Frenchman. In the cookery book before us we encounter detailed recipes for nearly thirty-six with feelings of gratitude, that sister Lodges, and individual members of Lodges, had given valuable presents of furniture and jewelry, the intrants of Heart's Content Lodge had presented a splendid organ, and the Charter members generous donations of money. A sympathetic reference was made to the illness of P.M. McLeod of Lodge Tasker, who had heroically assisted in the graining of the first officers of the Lodge, and grateful recognition was accorded the indefatigable labours of Brother Peter Ledingham, who was for ten months, until transferred to St. John's, the Substitute Master, and who in season and out of season had impressed upon the brethren the value of the material received for the Lodge from repeated efforts along Lodge work. Heart's Content was erected and inaugurated in Sept. 1921 with 18 Charter members. The first year's working has resulted in 23 affiliates and intrants being added to the roll of members. The visiting brethren were accorded, by acclamation, a hearty vote of thanks for their fraternal act of kindness in attending the installation, after which the Lodge was closed in due form.—M.M.

Football Reminiscences.

12th LEAGUE MATCH—C.L.B. VS. C.C.—RESULT: A DRAW, 3 GOALS EACH—PLAYED ON LEWELLYN GROUNDS JULY 29th, 1922. A small attendance greeted these teams last evening, but those who attended saw a most interesting match, which, though a bit one-sided in the first half, reached the brilliant point towards the finish when the lads put on the equalizer and made it a draw. The teams were:— C.L.B.—Goal, Husey; backs, Garland, Moffatt; half backs, Peters, Warren, Richards; forwards, A. Chislett, W. Barrett, R. Goodridge, A. Long, J. Long. C.C.—Goal, Cahill; backs, A. Donnelly, Evans; half backs, Cullen, Donnelly, Murphy; forwards, Brophy, Donnelly, Power, Squires, Rowd. The lads won the toss, and strange to say selected to play up hill, with a galling sun in front, a mistake we think (see On-Looker's guide, page 2). The Cadets right from the start began to press and kept the ball well down on Husey, having several tries for the net, until Power, getting on the ball, well down the field had very little trouble in beating him. Garland making a fatal error. This strategy and a fatal error. This strategy and a fatal error. This strategy and a fatal error.

Ships Makes Use of Cheese With Effect.

Probably the strangest and most curious use to which cheese was ever put occurred in a naval battle between Brazil and Uruguay in the mid-19th century, records the Intelligencer. The Uruguay ship, commanded by Capt. Coe, in the midst of the battle, became exhausted of shot. A lieutenant reported the facts to Coe. "No, sir; lots of that yet." "We had a darned hard cheese—a round Dutch one—for dessert at dinner to-day; do you remember it?" said Coe. "I ought to; I broke the carving knife in trying to cut it, sir." "Are there any more aboard?" "About two dozen. We took them from a drawer." "Will they go in the 18-pounder?" "By thunder, commodore, but that's the ideal I'll try 'em."

Have You Seen the JEWETT CAR?
THE JEWETT IS PAIGE BUILT.
 The new Jewett is of Paige conception, designed and built by Paige engineers and mechanics in the Paige shops. From its Paige origin the Jewett inherits those unmistakable marks of Quality, characterizing the work of a group of men, who for ten years past, have been building the fine six-cylinder cars, bearing the Paige monogram.
 Let us demonstrate to you its remarkable power and quality—5 passenger touring—$2200; Sedan $2850.
