CHAPTER XII.

"Have you seen Viscount Melville, Sir George?" he asked. "My master wishes to speak to him—my master wants Mr. Edmund sent for at once."

"No, Peters, I have not seen him, but he cannot be far away," replied the baronet. "I hope that Mr. Locksley's headache is better."

"On the contrary, Sir George, it is much worse, and I fear that he is going to have another bad attack: it is always preceded by a headache. He seems to have something on his mind, and says that he must see Mr. Edmund. He wants his address, and insists that I send a telegram with my own hands to him."

"I am sorry to hear this," said Sir George, sympathetically. "Had there been the viscount, I hear his voice in the conservatory."

The valet hurried away, and the baronet's thoughts reverted to the moment and the will.

"At all events," he growled, "I am not so brutal that I would kill a man in cold blood, and I mean to see fair play here. Pshaw! Ailing men live long, and what harm can come to Locksley, surrounded as he is by servants? He will live to thwart every scheme of Melville's."

He strolled into the grounds again, and, after an hour's cogitation, rubbed his hands with satisfaction.

"I will have it," he said, "I will have it this very night. I care not what risk I run. I cannot descend any lower than I am now. A paper on the bounty of a child who despises me? Curse it! What man of spirit can stand it! I am of a low and brutal nature, and my next tele-tele with my beloved nephew will be a painful one for him. Oh, what joy it would be to bring him to his knees, and treat him to a little of my brutal nature! I will never forgive him—I will never forgive my daughter for the contemptuous way in which they spoke of me—for the way in which they hope to treat me. Ha! ha!"

An hour after midnight there was a light in the library, and Sir George opened the big iron safe with little difficulty. It was only of a common old-fashioned make, and by taking its number to the maker he had succeeded in getting the keys that fitted it. A hurried search revealed nothing of importance, and he was turning away with an oath on his lips, when his eyes fell upon a small brass-bound notebook.

To seize it, and close the door of the safe, was the work of a moment, and, carefully turning down the light of the lamp he carried, he returned quietly to his room.

CHAPTER XIV.

Locksley was back at Greely's Hotel before five o'clock, and found Dora anxiously awaiting him.

"It is all right, little woman," he smiled cheerfully. "I have seen your old governess, and like her very much. She is quite overcome by the prospect of seeing you, and I can trust you in her keeping with confidence. The world has used her very badly of late and we must do something for her by and by. You are to go to Fulham this evening, and then I shall work with a will to bring your father on the scene."

Dora looked at him gratefully, and Edmund continued:

"And, after I have done all that, suppose Lord Morden refuses to let me have you? You see, Dora, I have no title, and I am not very rich."

The bare possibility caused her eyes to dilate, then she clung to him fondly, saying:

"I would marry you in spite of a hundred fathers, my dear love!"

"What, and run away again?"

"A hundred times, if need be!"

"Well, as the first flight is not yet at an end, you must be ready to continue it at seven o'clock."

He did not tell her of the news he had received from Lady Clara; indeed, he had almost forgotten it, in his belief that one great difficulty had been surmounted.

It was growing dark when they left the hotel, and were taken to Fulham in the same cab that had already created so much envious excitement among the denizens of Ladyville road.

At the corner of Wilde street a tall man happened to glance at the cab and its occupants, as it flashed by.

He started, and an exclamation of pleasure escaped him. It was impossible to overtake the cab, but it was not impossible to see the number, and he rapidly transferred this to his notebook.

Meanwhile, Locksley and Dora proceeded on their way, and once more the elegant cab rattled through Ladyville road, but it was too dark for the neighbors to see what really took place, and they greatly exaggerated things accordingly.

The meeting of Dora and Madam Bell was one of genuine sympathy and affection, and that happy evening lived in the hearts of both women as long as life lasted.

The little parlor had been brightened up in honor of Dora's visit, and Locksley found it hard to tear himself away, after keeping the cab waiting for nearly two hours!

The exact time to a minute was ticked off by Mrs. Zellovly's clock!

"I shall come to see you every day, my darling," he whispered in the tiny hall, beyond the inquisitive eyes and ears of Matilda. "I shall come every day until—something happens," he added. "Until there is some result to the task I have set myself."

He strained her tender form tightly to his throbbing heart.

"I seem to love you more with every passing hour, little woman. Heaven watch over you while I am away, is my prayer!"

CHAPTER XIV.

Dora returned his passionate kiss with all the warmth of her fond nature, and then she was aware that the cab was bearing away all that she loved best in the whole world.

Locksley went to bed early, a sense of oppression weighing upon heart and brain. He attributed this to the unkindness—to the eccentricity of his father, and, much as it pained him to combat his parent's wishes, he was angrier than he cared to admit to himself.

"I will not go to him until he sends for me," he decided; "I will not have my life dominated by a man of Melville's caliber. I have tolerated him, and his espionage, because he has seemed so devoted to my father, and it maddens me to believe that he is in some way connected with a part of which my poor father is ashamed."

He breakfasted at eight o'clock in a private coffee-room, and consulted the personal column of the Daily Telegraph.

He was glad to find that no advertisement or announcement was published concerning Dora's flight or abduction, whatever Mr. Marlowe and Esther cared to term it, and he became interested in a notice which read in this way:

Private Detective Hancox, late of the Criminal Investigation Department, Scotland Yard, may be consulted daily, from 10 a.m. to noon, upon all matters which require secrecy and dispatch. Twenty-five years' experience. Agents in every part of the civilized world. Specially patronized by the nobility. Address: Detective, Hancox, 222 Fitzroy Street, Charing Cross, S.W.

The words "specially patronized by the nobility," attracted the attention of Locksley, or he might have passed on to a dozen more similar announcements.

"And why patronized by the nobility?" he mused. "Humph! I suppose it is merely advertising clap-trap."

He threw the paper aside, but a few minutes later returned to the advertisement, and copied Mr. Detective Hancox's address on the cuff of his shirt sleeve.

SPEAKING OF DREAMS.

"I dreamed a dream and I dreamed that the dream was true."

What queer things dreams are! And how fascinating! I am always a bit sorry for people who say with such pride that they never dream. It seems to me that they miss an experience that, sometimes annoying, is always interesting.

I like my dreams. If they are disagreeable there is always the joy of waking up and finding they are not true. And it is my experience (which I imagine is shared since I realize that practically all experiences are shared by some at least of our fellow beings) that when I am dreaming something particularly unpleasant I often have the feeling that this must be a dream. I have even gone so far as to dream that I waked up and told the dream.

Dreams That Persist.

Another experience I have had is to dream a thing so vividly that the subconscious impression still remained after I waked up. What I mean is this: I have dreamed that I had some gift, perhaps, and during the day have found myself thinking of that gift as a reality and then suddenly realizing that it was only in my dream that I had it. . . . Or I have dreamed that something very nice had happened and have found myself feeling happy on that account. Once I even went so far as to look for something I dreamed I had bought, and just the other day I was trying to remember that nice new way to do my hair, and presently I realized I had dreamed about it.

Another dream experience that I have found by comparing notes is shared by others, is that when I dream of swimming I always swim with perfect ease, and make the most tremendous progress through the water. If I could swim with the ease and speed I show in my dreams I should unquestionably win the international championship. And yet how often when we dream we are walking somewhere (especially if we are in a hurry) we have the sense of being held back and not being able to walk half so fast as we naturally could.

Do You Swim In Your Spring Dreams?

If I had no other way of knowing that spring was coming I should always know it by one thing, and that is that as we come towards the end of the winter I begin to dream of swimming. I suppose it is my eagerness to get back into the water this expressing itself through my subconscious mind. I wonder if other water lovers have the same experience?

Dreams are queer and fascinating things. The psychologists claim that we can find out more about ourselves by tracing our dreams back to their sources in some hidden desire than any other way. It is easy to believe that. But not easy to believe their further contention that all the desires are of just one nature. I cannot believe that our subconscious mind has only one preoccupation. Sex is a large part of life but I cannot think it is the whole.

Just Folks.

THE GARDEN AND LIFE.

About this time of year I take The catalogue the seed men make And eagerly I run it through In search of blossoms, old or new, Intent on finding something fine To plant within my summer beds of mine.

That garden is my number one Where grow the plants I love the most. From spring to fall friends come to see The beauty of each plant and tree, And very proud am I to show Each lovely thing I've caused to grow.

Each year I find my garden space Richer in loveliness and grace. New plants I've added round about. Some that have failed I've taken out And by a sense of pride I'm moved To know that garden I've improved.

Yet with my life I rush along And little think of right or wrong. But little time I take to plan To make myself a fairer man. I seldom hunt for splendours new, As honest gardeners always do.

I seldom see that barren space Or life which I could fill with grace. Or think to part old faults away To put in something bright and gay. My garden yearly I improve, But live my life within a groove.

Anaemic—Nervous

The anaemic child is in no condition to stand the mental and nervous strain of school work and examinations, along with the enormous burden which physiological changes put upon the system at this time of life.

The importance of good, robust health during this critical period cannot be sufficiently emphasized. It may mean the difference between invalidism and health throughout a lifetime.

Fortunately this condition responds promptly to restorative treatment and the results obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food have proven beyond doubt its suitability in such cases.

Mrs. Archie Martelle, Cornwall, Ont., writes:—
"My daughter, while attending school, was sick for two years, and had to be kept home. She had nervous trouble, and was under the doctor's care, but he did not seem to do her much good. She was very thin, restless, and hardly ate anything. Her complexion became sallow. I began giving her Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and it did her the world of good. Her improvement was gradual, but it was not very long before she was quite herself again. I cannot recommend this treatment too highly."

Police Believe Sofia Outrage the Work of Communists

Kurdistan Rebel Leaders Captured and Sentenced to Death--R-33 Safely Moored at Pulham--St. Lawrence to be Surveyed for Possible Earthquake Upheavals.

DEAD TOTAL 150.

SOFIA, April 17. The toll of dead from the bomb explosion in St. Basil's Cathedral, while the funeral service of General George was being conducted yesterday, reached 150 to-night, but the figure is likely to be added to as many of the injured are in a critical condition. The police believe Agrarian Communists are the authors of the explosion. The funeral of all prominent persons attached to the existing regime, thus affording an opportunity for wiping them all out at one time. They counted on the confusion in which the explosion would be plunged, according to the police, to facilitate the installation of a Soviet regime.

CANADIAN RAILWAYS GETTING TOGETHER.

MONTREAL, April 17. Definite proposals for the elimination of duplication of services by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways are under consideration, according to statements given out here by Sir Henry Thornton and E. H. Beatty, the respective Presidents of the two organizations.

CONFERENCE NOTHING YET TO REPORT.

HALIFAX, April 17. The conference called by Premier E. H. Armstrong, in an endeavour to effect a settlement in the wage dispute between the British Empire Steel Corporation and the United Mine Workers of America, adjourned shortly before eleven o'clock to meet again tomorrow morning. The Premier stated, following the adjournment, that no statement would be given out tonight and the others would say nothing.

REBEL LEADER TO HANG.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 17. Said, leader of the Kurdistan rebels, who was captured at Ghazi on Wednesday, today was sentenced to hang. He will be executed at Ankar along with several of his chief followers.

STEAMER MAY QUEEN LOST.

HALIFAX, April 17. The coastal steamer May Queen, while on her way from Halifax to St. Pierre, struck a rock near Port Felix, 100 miles southwest of Canada, U.S., early yesterday morning and was abandoned by her crew shortly before noon as a total loss. She was commanded by Capt. Gessee Bechet, and carried a crew of six all told.

WINDING THE ST. LAWRENCE.

MONTREAL, April 18. The French language newspaper, Le Press, today carries a despatch from Quebec, saying that a party of engineers will shortly make inspection of the bed of the St. Lawrence River, to determine whether or not the recent earthquake disturbances, which had their centre in Saguenay District, had any effect upon the depth of the river. The newspaper says it is believed in certain parts of the Gulf, since the quake of February 25th last, rocks that had never been observed before are noticeable at low tide, and it is reasonably considered that the slightest interference with the depth of the water will render navigation very dangerous.

NEWFOUNDLAND PRIZE WINNERS.

MONTREAL, April 17. The prize winners and those awarded diplomas at Wesleyan College here Tuesday last include in Divinity, W. H. N. Douglas Prize in oratory, G. Hoppe and three children, Verne, Hugh and Herman Hoppe. Two others were injured, one of them critically, when they jumped from a window. The fire which caused damage estimated at $50,000 was believed to have started in a cafe on the ground floor.

Vapors Check a Cold Overnight

There are many ways to treat a cold but only one DIRECT way—with vapors that can be inhaled. Vapors penetrate immediately into every corner of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing with every breath. Vicks is so remarkably successful in treating cold troubles because it acts like "a vapor lamp in salve form." When rubbed over throat and chest the body heat releases vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a polioe or plaster. This double, direct action often checks the worst cold overnight.

Quebec's Tobacco

Tobacco production in the Province of Quebec during 1924 amounted to 6,575,740 pounds, harvested from an area of 8,044 acres, according to a report published by the Federal Department of Agriculture. Clear tobacco harvested totalled 3,089,370 lbs., followed by large pipe tobacco with 2,279,000 lbs., small pipe tobacco with 1,038,400 lbs., and miscellaneous with 185,920 lbs.

Humour

Humour softens the hardness of life, so the world loves a humorist. Wit is the brilliant cousin of humor. The world admires wit, but does not always love it, for wit may be unkind. The humorist is amused, the man of wit scintillates. Originally wit meant mind. Wycliffe knew this when he wrote: "Who knew the wit of the Lord? or who was His counsel?" What pleasure people with humor give us. The humorist gets outside of himself and his and our troubles; he sees the world as a play; he smiles at its claims and conclusions; he makes a remark, and puff! our anger and eloquence go.

I do not suppose women usually incline to a lover because he is a humorist; but a sense of humor in man or woman is an excellent help to a happy married life. But it must be the right kind of humor. It must be genial, not vain, almost unconscious, and it might follow the dictionary definition of humor: "that quality of the imagination which gives to ideas an incongruous or fantastic turn, and tends to excite laughter or mirth by ludicrous images or representations." A humorist should be clean-shaven. For the mouth is a tell-tale feature, even more indiscreet than the eyes. One of the best unprofessional humorists I know is a member of my club. I like to watch him reading, his lips moving and twitching; then he will catch my eyes, advance, and—the true humorist, being kindly, loves to pass on his fun.

Humor is more congenial to the English mind than wit. English humor has always baffled foreigners. It helped to win the war. Can you not imagine a spectacled German basing a report on Tommy's war weariness because he was heard singing:—
Send for the boys of the girls' brigade
To set old England free:
Send for my mother, and my sister and my brother,
But for Heaven's sake don't send for me!

There are two kinds of humor—the natural and the literary. Each is good—the humor of Tommy and the humor of Charles Lamb. How many thousands of times have men repeated that brief dialogue at the India Office between him and his superior: "Late again, Mr. Lamb?" "Yes, sir, but see how early I go away."

Humor varies in quality. There is the Cockney humor of Barrie and the humor of Jerome K. Jerome, the humor of the late W. S. Gilbert, which often oozed out from his wit, and the neat humor of W. W. Jacobs.

Perhaps, if a vote were taken, the most popular book of humor might be "The Diary of a Nobody," by George and Weedon Grossmith.

Humor needs a leisurely environment. The old horse-bus induced natural humor in driver and conductor. But the modern motor-bus! Alas!

Humor comes from health. Wit comes from knowledge.

In humor there is a tear. In wit a flick of the lash.

"Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home"—Quite so but have a change. Come to the Synod Hall on St. George's night, April 18.

This ought to be a good year for Potatoes and other Vegetables. They say: "we shall have great growing weather." Growing crops want plenty of food. Fertilizers feed your crops--provided that you use the right kind of Fertilizers.

Farmers' Favourite Fertilizers

The kind we are selling are guaranteed, well balanced, finely divided, plant foods, containing the essential fertilizing elements in available form.

- Special Potato Fertilizer in 125 lb. Bags.
- Turnip & Cabbage Fertilizer in 125 lb. Bags.
- Extra Quality Bonemeal in 125 lb. Bags.
- Refined Nitrate of Soda in 125 lb. Bags.

NOTICE!

Fertilizer, properly used, should increase your crops at least 40 per cent. Where you get 10 barrels of potatoes without fertilizer, you should get 14 to 16 barrels with fertilizer. For every dollar spent on fertilizer you should get back two or four dollars profit, through increased crop yield.

Get your ground ready (when it is dry) as soon as you can. Plow it deep and harrow it well. If yours is a small garden, dig it to a depth of twelve inches, then rake it thoroughly.

A few days before you put in your seed, spread Fertilizer over the surface and rake it in. For potatoes, put Fertilizer in the bottom of drills and mix it with the earth.

A 125 pound bag of Fertilizer will do a quarter of an acre if you are using it with stable manure. Double this quantity if you are not using stable manure.

Baby Sleeps Well and Enjoys his Food now!

Mothers are saved a world of worry over babies' feeding difficulties and teething disorders by giving Woodward's Gripe Water. Read the experience of Mrs. J. J. Connor, 7, Willard Grove, Liverpool:—

"My baby suffered greatly with indigestion from birth till three months of age. His digestion was so bad he would scream after every feed. Since using Woodward's Gripe Water he sleeps better and enjoys his food better than he ever did, and has also progressed in weight and is a happier baby altogether."

Woodward's Gripe Water instantly relieves baby's indigestion, colic and teething pains, permits sound sleep and protects against diarrhoea. It is also a valuable remedy for internal pains and stomach disorders in older children and adults. It is pleasant to take and perfectly free from opiates.

Proceedings at the Legislative Council

OFFICIAL SYNOPSIS.

FRIDAY, April 17th.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment.

The House resumed Committee of the Whole on Bill entitled the Encouragement of Shipbuilding.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN did not agree with the sub-section providing that vessels should be hauled out of the water. In some harbours this was unnecessary, and a vessel could be turned on its side at low tide and repairs made.

HON. CAPTAIN DAVE agreed with Hon. Mr. Templeman. He (Captain Dave) had seen many vessels repaired in his home town, and he knew of one only which had been hauled out of the water completely. If the keel needed renewal, in many harbours the work could be done better if the vessel was thrown on her side. Many places have rock bottoms where on account of this it would be easier to turn the vessel on her side and do the necessary repairing. In such places it was practically impossible to haul a vessel completely out of the water, and again the work would be too great.

HON. MR. BISHOP agreed with Captain Dave that it was quite possible to give her slight and ordinary repairs without hauling a vessel out of the water, but submitted that this Bill dealt not with ordinary repairs but with rebuilding and he was glad it was such. If the Government was to be responsible for ordinary repairs there would be no end to the inquiries to which they would be subjected, and a large amount of money would be paid away. He had had some experience and thought it impossible to rebuild a vessel without hauling her out of the water. If a vessel is to be rebuilt it must have new timber, or if it requires no lower timbers it is only being repaired and this Bill is not intended for such repairs. He was glad Hon. Mr. Morine had redrafted the Bill so as to make a clear distinction between repairing and rebuilding.

HON. MR. MORINE—The reason for changing the name of the Bill from "Repairing" to "Rebuilding" was easily explained by referring to section 10 of the Bill, which read "Ships being rebuilt shall be surveyed, (a) when completely out of the water and stripped for rebuilding; (b) when keels beams and knees are fitted, and before completion; (c) when building is completed." When the Bill came up from the Lower House there was no intention on the part of the Government to provide bounty for repairs. The Bill bore the tall mark of rebuilding not repairs, and did not mean anything else. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, a practical man, was mainly responsible for the measure, and he felt obliged to the Hon. Mr. Bishop when at a previous meeting he drew attention that the Bill was a "Rebuilding" Bill not a "Repairing" Bill.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN asked as to the distinction between rebuilding and repairing.

HON. MR. MORINE replied that all rebuilding was repairing, but all repairing was not rebuilding, and that there was a great deal of difference between the two terms.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN thought the whole Bill had been changed since first introduced, and was of opinion that not many would take advantage of it. It would be just as well to build a new vessel.

HON. MR. MORINE pointed out that under this Bill in rebuilding much of a vessel's equipment might be used so that there would be considerable saving in this respect, whereas in building a new vessel everything would have to be new to enable such vessel to receive the bounty.

HON. PRESIDENT was of opinion that the expenditure of public moneys for bounties should be protected in every way, so that chances of fraud may be minimized as much as possible.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN could not see how fraud could be practiced if the report for bounty had to be made by surveyors.

HON. PRESIDENT said it was not impossible that the surveyors would be the greatest offenders themselves, and he had only to go back a short time to see how much fraud had been practiced on the public by public officials in positions of trust.

HON. MR. MORINE—The "Ranger" the present Spring had only been three days at the icefields when her boilers were discovered to be leaking.

HON. PRESIDENT thought the Government should set itself against giving bounties for merely incidental repairs, and that the policy of granting bounties for rebuilding ships should be only undertaken in the greatest urgency and such a measure should not be of a permanent nature. The Hon. Leader of the Government had spoken about the Ranger being three days out when her boilers began to leak, and he (Sir Patrick) called attention to the press reports in connection with the loss of the Stella Maris. This steamer struck a growler and sank in 20 minutes and it was nothing short of a miracle that her crew reached safety on a pan of ice. During the war period difficulty was experienced in finding crews for some ships sailing in the war zone, and in one case men would not sign on unless pensions were guaranteed beforehand. This ship left port having been surveyed and certified fit to make the voyage and has never been heard of since, and pensions have since been paid the dependents of the crew, and will be for some years to come. He felt that the greatest possible precaution should be taken to prevent any moneys being paid unless the law is strictly complied with, and it should be of the most stringent character.

HON. MR. COOK—Some surveyor or other had to examine the vessel before the work was undertaken, and had to pass inspection of the work when furnished before any bounty would be given. No man would undertake to rebuild a vessel without knowing the cost before hand. If the cost was not reasonable he would prefer to build a new vessel. There were several cases where our foreign going fleet were rebuilt. The Peggy was ashore at Appledore, and was reclassified 10 years Al at Lloyd's, so was the Devonia. No practical man would undertake to rebuild, without first knowing the cost, and he saw nothing in the Bill objectionable.

MR. MORINE said another matter the Chamber should bear in mind was that the Bill was a Bounty Bill, and one might ask why should bounties be given at all. Some people perhaps thought there was some inherent right why bounties should be given for shipbuilding, but he did not think so. No one was given a bounty for building a house or a factory. Under the Bill a second hand thing was being put in order and a gift was being given, something unknown of anywhere else, and one justified by the peculiar circumstances in the country following on the war. If the fishery of the country could not pay for repairs to its fleet the fishery was not profitable and should not be encouraged. No Government had ever proposed anything like the Bill before the House up to the present moment, and the Government would be justified in cutting out all bounties, and it was reasonable to expect that the Act should be hedged with every precaution.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN—You have changed the word "repair" to "rebuild."

HON. MR. MORINE—Rebuilding means repairing after the vessel has been stripped and hauled out of the water, which was the intention of the original Bill, and he had consulted with Lloyd's Surveyor as to certain sections with the idea of making them as perfect as possible.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN thought that there was no need to have the vessel out if repairs could be made without doing so. It would be only a waste of time and money. The vessel could be stripped and then examined. If the surveyor considered that sufficient, it would be all right to go ahead and rebuild. If the surveyor was not satisfied, then his orders could be carried out.

HON. MR. MORINE pointed out that the bounty could not be given until a certificate was furnished, and that the surveyor was not to examine the vessel until she were completely hauled out of the water.

HON. MR. MURPHY thought that the Government in its present state was not justified in paying the bounty at all. He had been for many years interested in shipbuilding and, when building, had been glad to get $8.00 per ton. While he had done all he could to induce men to give up the fishery, because it did not offer them a decent living, he considered that men, such as his Hon. friend Mr. Templeman, who had managed to keep going, and to continue supplying for the fishery, deserves a great deal of credit. In his place he would naturally like to get as much bounty as was reasonable. A larger bounty might be necessary, for as much work could be got for $2.00 now as for $3.00 in days gone by, but he could not see how it was going to help. It was straining a point to offer so much. Then again the trouble would be that the whole thing depended on the surveyor, who may be influenced by the man who was to spend the money. The object of the bounty was to help the fishermen, and probably many vessels now lying up would be repaired if encouragement were given to do so. It would be a strain all the same. Viewing it in the light of experience Hon. Mr. Murphy considered it more than the country could afford. If a reliable inspector could be procured, who would pay only for what was done and no more, it would be all right, but otherwise we should not know where we were. It may be a good thing for the fishery to have vessels, now lying up, re-built. The opening of the vessels could be from the outside or from the inside, which would be almost as good. If it might help out to repair those afloat, but if some vessels had to be pulled on shore they would be abandoned.

HON. MR. MORINE said the Bill

did not provide the bounty of $20.00 a ton for the repairing of ships, but for the rebuilding of them.

HON. MR. TEMPLEMAN agreed that if ships were being built for the bounty, the directions of the surveyor would have to be carried out, but he considered the vessels could be repaired in the water just as well.

HON. MR. MORINE explained that if provision were being made for repairing vessels a certain percentage of the cost of the actual repairs could be allowed, but the Bill dealt with the rebuilding of the vessels which was entirely different. These vessels were to be hauled ashore, stripped and then rebuilt. If that were to be done away with and repairs only dealt with then the specified amount per ton would be abandoned. When the first Bill was considered, Hon. Mr. Morine said he suggested paying a percentage of the cost, but difficulties arose with regard to difference of cost, and amount of work which might be done by the owner of the vessel and his relatives, so it was thought better to fix a definite price and a definite condition. Miscellaneous talk would not help much. If amendments to any of the sections were suggested it might help somewhat. As it was Mr. Morine felt adverse to proceeding further with the Bill if the rebuilding scheme was not desirable and the repairing one was wanted.

HON. MR. DAVEY thought there should be provision as to the kind of wood to be used in rebuilding vessels. He was of the opinion that satisfactory repairs could not be made unless the vessel were hauled up and ciled a case, that of the Lavrock, which had been rebuilt above the water and classed Al. She left here and while anchored, during a storm, the new part separated from the old. Fortunately her crew were ashore at the time.

HON. MR. MORINE replied that such specification was provided in the schedules to the Bill even for the poorest class of vessels.

The Committee rose and reported the Bill with some amendments, and it was ordered that the Bill be read a third time on to-morrow.

The Committee stage of the Bill re Survey of Foreign Going and Labrador vessels was deferred.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Morine the Pure Bred Animals Record Bill and Old Age Pensions Amendment Bill were read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

HON. MR. MORINE in moving the second reading of the Judicature Act Amendment Bill explained that the principle is one of a change in the status of grand juries, and also in certain particulars re trials for libel and slander. As regards jurors the property qualification is increased, this at present being so low that almost anybody can qualify for the Grand Jury. The other change is in cases of libel and slander providing that the Judge may put specific questions to the jury as in other cases, and upon that to render the verdict, and not merely leave it to the jury to say guilty or not guilty as in the past.

The Bill was read a second time and ordered to be committed on to-morrow.

The House then adjourned until Monday next at 3 o'clock p.m.

A New Art Craze

Everywhere in these days we see little wooden pictures and statuettes, quaint in design, gorgeous in colouring, and with a pronounced futuristic touch. It is the new Figuren Girl cult, and consists of cutting out figures in this wood with a fret-saw, and painting them.

The fashion was started by a London schoolgirl, Miss L. Apperly, who is known as the "Figuren Girl." She began by making Peter Pans, Sleeping Beauties, and Crinoline Girls, and then fitted calendars to her creations.

House of Assembly Proceedings

APRIL 17.
The House opened at 2 p.m.
THE PRIME MINISTER tabled a reply to a question by Mr. Godden and read an extract from a letter received from Read, Son and Watson. The letter referred to instructions from Mr. Warren regarding audits in the Post Office, Crown Lands Department, and the Auditor General's Department. The firm of Read, Son and Watson wished to know if they were to proceed with these enquiries. The Premier took occasion to say that at the present moment there was no need to continue the investigations. As happened in the case of the Logging investigation, nothing was disclosed that the Government was not previously cognizant of and though carried out the expense amounted to between twelve and thirteen hundred dollars. So, too, an investigation into the Auditor General's Department would not disclose anything not already known. The whole trouble there was that the staff have not the training of experts and consequently they could not be expected to put their fingers on mistakes as well as experts could. He appreciated the fact that Mr. Berseau had done good work under the circumstances and his audit had been very useful; but he felt that an enquiry could disclose nothing beyond the fact that the men engaged were not sufficiently skilled in their work.

MR. WARREN quite agreed with the Government's attitude re further enquiries. He explained the conditions which prevailed when he assumed control and the reasons which led to further investigations following the Walker Report. His Government realized that the system in the Auditor's Department was at fault and only asked that Read, Son and Watson investigate for the purpose of finding out why it was not functioning.

THE LEADER OF THE OPPOSITION wished to make it clear that his previous references to the Auditor General's Department did not imply any wrong doing on the part of Mr. Berseau. His reference, he explained, was directed to the system. He blamed the Auditor General for not exercising his authority to the full extent allowed by the Act.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Hotel Resolutions. THE PRIME MINISTER said he was anxious to get the Resolutions before the House as quickly as possible because the parties to the Agreement were anxious to get to work on the proposition. The Company had deposited $25,000 at the Royal Bank of Canada as evidence of their good faith in the proposition and had to complete the work by May, 1926. If the House did not pass the Bill the check was redeemable, but if the Company failed to carry out the contract it was forfeited to the Government. The Prime Minister, in a review of the different clauses, pointed out No 9 as the all-important one, as it provides that we guarantee a three per cent. sinking fund for the bond issue of $450,000.00. We have to pay out as a sinking fund, provided the hotel earnings do not provide it, $13,500.00, but for that we get back redeemable bonds. "This is the best proposition that we have put up to us and we have been working ever since coming into office to try and get a good hotel proposition," said the Prime Minister. We have had other propositions put up by Nautical Firms and have had several offers from people outside, including one from W. I. Bishop Company, in which there was to be a five per cent. guarantee on the mortgage bonds and a two per cent. sinking fund as well. The Premier said a great deal of credit to Mr. Blandford and Mr. Stafford, who have been corresponding for over two years in connection with this hotel, with a view to trying to get a hotel company here, and to them is to be given a large measure of credit for getting these people to come down here. The two people who were here are engineers from Quebec, and the man who will be manager of the hotel, is a man named Fortier, who built the Victoria Hotel in Quebec. He rose from the position of bell boy, built an hotel, made a success of it, finally erected a large arena at Quebec, is interested in sports and owns several hockey clubs, is a first class hotel man and well known in Canada. Mr. Ahearn says that he put $50,000 of his own money into the ordinary stock, and the mortgage bonds are covered by a reputable Quebec company. The Government are satisfied with the credentials of the promoters and have got excellent references for them from the Bank of Nova Scotia and from their own bank in Quebec, which says that they are able to meet their acceptances. In reference to Municipal Taxation, the Prime Minister said a conference was held with the promoters and the Mayor, and the latter pointed out that the Council could make no contract that would be binding in future years and only do so for the period during which they held office. He (the Mayor) also pointed out that the Government had the power to make which terms they liked in this direction. He took exception to the request that the hotel be free from taxation for a certain number of years, as if that were allowed some other hotel company might come here and

What Are the Circumstances?

Yesterday while the Bill for the Encouragement of Shipbuilding was under discussion in the Legislative Council, references were made to the loss of the sealer Stella Maris, which went to the bottom, barely allowing the crew sufficient time to escape with their lives, to the sealer Ranger which was compelled to return to port owing to boiler trouble, and to the ill-fated Beverley which disappeared in January, 1918 with twenty-two precious lives.

It was urged by the Honourable Members that the repairs or the rebuilding of ships should be submitted to careful inspection, and that no bounties should be granted unless the law had been strictly complied with.

In connection with the trouble which occurred to the Ranger we have received a document signed by thirteen of her officers, in which it is asserted that the condition of the ship's boiler which necessitated her return to port was far more serious than reports previously published had indicated. They state that, anxious to prosecute the voyage to a finish if at all possible, the men worked for twenty-seven hours in the bilge of the ship, but owing to the weak state in which the boiler was found, they could do no more than effect a temporary repair that would enable her to reach home.

The questions which these men ask are whether an inspection was held previous to her leaving port, and if so, what the nature of the inspection was. With regard to the former, we are advised that an inspection was held, but as to the manner in which the inspection was carried out, we can only state that the officials responsible for the work have had long experience and are known to be capable.

To our mind, a more pertinent question is, are the regulations under which our ships are inspected sufficiently stringent, not only with regard to the boilers but also with regard to the hull? And we ask this question in particular as the regulations apply to our sealing ships.

The story told by the captain of the Stella Maris shows that the crew had a close call. Had the Ranger been disabled on a lee shore, the result might have added another disaster to our sealing annals. As it is, the voyage had to be abandoned by the ship with a monetary loss which is a serious matter to the men and their families.

Such instances as we have mentioned may be described as acts of God, but we should like to be assured that in no case was the accident due to the negligence of man. If and when every possible precaution has been taken to protect the lives of the men who face the hazards of the ice floes, then and then only can such accidents be said to be inevitable.

So far, we have heard no mention of an enquiry into the cases of the Stella Maris and the Ranger. Such an investigation is necessary, not months hence, when the persons who entrusted their lives to the seaworthiness of these vessels are scattered all over the country, but now, when they are at hand and the circumstances are still fresh in their minds.

We are quite aware of the fact that many investigations in the past have been barren of results, but at present we have a Minister of Marine and Fisheries in whom the fishermen have confidence, who is thoroughly familiar with their hazardous calling and the circumstances under which they follow it, and who can be relied upon to see that any matters which call for enquiry are probed to the bottom, with fear of none, and fairness to all. The Newfoundland Board of Trade will, we trust, exercise their influence in this matter. It is gratifying to note in the Report of their meeting yesterday that they have already called the attention of the Government to the necessity for a more adequate inspection of the Coastal Service, in consequence of the barely averted disaster to the S.S. Prospero last autumn, and have also urged that a public enquiry should be held into all marine accidents. With such an energetic body demanding a full and thorough investigation it is certain that it will be carried through to a definite conclusion.

The Mixed Grill

LAST NIGHT'S PERFORMANCE ANOTHER SUCCESS.

Another full house greeted the second performance of "The Mixed Grill" at the Majestic Theatre last night. The first part of the Menu was the same as presented on Thursday night. The dancing by Mrs. Cleary's pupils, the Hawaiian scene and the Pierrot show, each received a splendid reception.

The last number on the programme was a sketch entitled "The Playboys", a domestic episode by Arthur Piner, which was very amusing and brought forth rounds of applause. The performers were excellent in their roles. The following is the cast:—

The Master D.M. Fraser.
 " Mistress Miss Edith Cleary.
 " Cook Mrs. H. Outerbridge.
 " Kitchenmaid Mrs. R. Herder.
 " Parlourmaid Mrs. H. Lemessurier.
 " Housemaid Miss Mary Ryan.
 " Ushermaid Miss Maria Hutton.
 " Odd Man Mr. R. Herder.

The entire performance will be repeated to-night for the last time.

SENEF LANDING FAT AT TWILLINGATE.

A message from the Sub-Collector at Twillingate to the Deputy Minister of Customs was received yesterday, which stated that S.S. Senef, Captain Bragg, had arrived at that place from the sealery, with a catch of 3,900 seals. The ship is discharging at Ashbourne's Estate, and will later proceed to Port Union to land her men.

Fishery Prospects Improve

A late report to the Board of Trade from W. J. Bragg states that the prospects of the codfishery from Channel to Port aux Basques have improved immensely, and if present conditions continue there is every indication of a good voyage. Up to April 10 751 qts. codfish and 20,560 lbs. halibut were taken.

Marked Birds

The following communication mailed to the G.P.O. has been handed to us, but it bears no address. If the writer will give particulars of the nature of the bird and the markings on the rings we shall be glad to make enquiries:—
 To Postmaster General, St. John's.

Dear Sir—Will you or can you tell where those birds come from that have a metal ring on their leg. Please let me know if there is anything given to a person who may get one of these birds. The ring is numbered V. Please let me hear from you by return mail, I am,
 Yours truly,
 WALTER SNOW.

Ltd.—This is an application for additional security for costs to be given to the defendants, viz. Reid Nfld. Co., $13,500; Mines and Forests, Ltd., $3,500; Nfld. Power & Paper Co., Ltd., $3,500. Mr. Hunt for Reid Nfld. Co., Mr. Brian Dunfield, for Mines and Forests (Nfld.) Ltd., and Mr. H. A. Winter for Nfld. Power & Paper Co., Ltd., are heard in support of the application. Mr. J. G. Higgins for the plaintiffs is heard contra. Mr. Justice Kent takes time to consider the amounts which will be ordered.

In the matter of the British American Trading Co. and the Nfld. Government.—This morning the cross-examination of Mr. Noel was continued by Mr. J. Higgins, after which Mr. H. A. Winter re-examined the witness. Mr. James H. Rodgers was then called and examined by Mr. Higgins as to counter-claim and cross-examined by Mr. Winter and re-examined by Mr. Higgins. Mr. Noel was re-called and cross-examined by Mr. Higgins, who then moved for an adjournment. Mr. Winter consents. The further hearing is adjourned sine die. The Court adjourned until Monday.

Magistrates Court

A sealer, belonging to Brigus, charged with being drunk was allowed to go.

Arthur King, who was held on remand about a week ago, pending investigation by the police into the robbery reported at the Royal Stores, Ltd., came up for trial this morning. The accused was charged with the following offence:—"For that he did steal from the Royal Stores on the 6th of April the following goods:—1 sweater, 2 ladies' dresses, 2 pairs hose, 11 neck ties, 1 raglan, all to the value of $202.45, the property of the Royal Stores, Ltd." Mr. Barron appearing for the accused, and upon entering a plea of guilty, asked the court to stay the sentence about to be passed on his client for the present, on humanitarian grounds. He pointed out that he had personally visited the home of accused, and felt sure that imprisonment at this juncture would bring fatal results to the man's wife, who is in a very critical condition. The Judge taking into account the exceptional circumstances in the man's family, and the fact that he needed further evidence before passing sentence, reserved judgment for the present. The prisoner is under bonds and will appear later for sentence.

(NOTE.—Has the attention of the Social Welfare Association been called to this case?—Ed.)
 Head Const. Byrne vs. Mrs. J. T. Andrews. The defendant in this case is charged with purchasing the goods stolen by Arthur King from the Royal Stores, Ltd. The hearing was postponed until Monday.

A case for non-support was withdrawn.

Radiology

If you are getting good volume from your loudspeaker and are troubled with battery noises try shutting on one microfarad condenser across your B. battery. This will cut down the volume slightly, but will improve the quality greatly.

Local fans, particularly crystal owners, must have enjoyed the feast of music provided by station SWMC Wednesday evening. These concerts are always welcome, and we wish they were more frequent. It would perhaps be unfair to say which of the artists came through best, but for enunciation A. Lawrence excelled. Station SLR was on at midnight with well modulated gramophone selections. Won't you give us an amateur concert some time, Mr. Reid?

The Radio Hems by Clayton, appearing in the Telegram are much appreciated. The article on how to make a crystal receiver started many youngsters making crystal sets. The range of the outfit given as 500 to 1000 miles was very much exaggerated. A crystal receiver will get local broadcasts. A single tube will get foreign stations faintly, a three tube will get foreign stations good enough for the carphones, and should give volume enough for a loudspeaker on local station. A four tube set, if it has one stage of radio frequency, should work a loudspeaker on foreign stations, but the five tube is undoubtedly the ideal receiver for loudspeaker operation.

On April 4th, WMAQ Chicago Daily News, gave a lecture on Nova Scotia. Could not see any arrangements be made by our own enthusiastic politicians to give Newfoundland a boost occasionally from some of the American Stations? More prospective tourists can be reached by Radio than by any other means.

Local Broadcasting

Station SLR will be on the air as usual at 9.30 to-night.

A Modern Hotel

For the last century Newfoundland has needed some resort in her domain to be proud of and at last the necessity has been realized. Those who remember that old saying that "Necessity is the mother of invention," can fully understand the trials and worries that have been undertaken and surmounted in order to give to the country an incentive in all its industries—in the Nfld. Hotel. At last it will arise and tower above the foundation laid for such a structure by the Reid-Newfoundland Company more than a quarter of a century ago, now slowly crumbling to dust, but which will form the site for one of our greatest facilities—the hotel.

Four or five years ago the Hon. S. D. Blandford and Dr. B. B. Stafford undertook to make the hotel project possible and now their efforts which have met with success will be a monument to their vision and enterprise as well as a $1,000,000 public facility.

This hotel will be an ornament to the city and a credit to the country. Comprised of 150 rooms comprising an assembly hall, dining room, grill room, shops, etc., and even a broadcasting station, it will be a boon both to visitors and citizens, and each night Newfoundland will be heard of and each day will be talked about, thus bringing the affairs of the country to the attention of those who are able to give to our prospective industries the impetus which they urgently require.

KANO, West Africa, April 18.
After a memorable journey by train from Lagos the Prince of Wales reached this central Sudan town this afternoon. Orchestra rendered the music proved so successful, we are confident that Monday's dance will prove no exception to the rule, as Mrs. Jardine's Orchestra will render the very latest dance music and comprise the following artists: Mrs. Jardine at the piano, Miss Merdie Scott, of the Arlie Marks Co., violinist, Mr. Dingle, saxophone, Mr. George Walsh, drums and effects. Tickets are on sale at Hutton's and G. Byrne's Bookstore: Ladies' 75c. Gents' $1.00; Double $1.50. Therefore don't miss this splendid dance on Monday next.—adv.

ON THE TRAIL OF THE COMMUNISTS.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 18.
The Government is taking extraordinary means to prevent any further developments of the terrorist campaign marked by the attempt against King Boris and the bombing of Krail Cathedral with the loss of 150 lives. A large number of Communists and Agrarian extremists have been arrested and it is reported that a number of Communists were killed during the night. This resulting from the feeling against them engendered by the Cathedral outrage. Having proclaimed martial law yesterday, the Government now has ordered a house to house search of all Sofia. Street traffic is prohibited and a patrol of soldiers and police pass incessantly. The city is in mourning and all stores are closed.

Memorials for the Future

The first thing required of a Memorial is that it shall endure. It is expected to carry the family name down into the future. Failing that it can never be made right. It is most important then that the stone comes from dependable quarries and that you have faith in those with whom you deal.

Since 1842 we have maintained our reputation for the best. Our supplies are only Aberdeen Granite, Vermont Marble and Italian Statuary. It is the right policy to consult the "Leaders".

Our Dumb Animals.

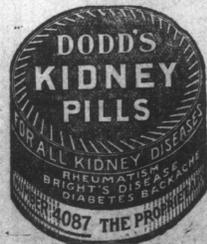

REPORT FROM CHIEF AGENT WEEK ENDING APRIL 17.

Asked to humanely put to death a very valuable setter dog owned by a resident of Coronation Street. The dog had bitten a boy in the neighbourhood. Sent in a horse suffering with a sore back, and warned the owner that if the horse was used again before the back was healed that there would be legal proceedings. Quite a lot of complaints about a blind horse which was at one time owned by two of the biggest business firms in the city, and has been a long time on the road. The owner will sell it to the fox farm, but doesn't want to see it used for trucking. I would like for someone to be charitable enough to buy it so as to take it off the street. It is a very hard time for our truckmen to keep their horses in good condition as the majority do not earn sufficient to keep the horse. Lots of complaints have reached me about horses being lame. This cannot be helped as the horses are lame through natural causes. All complaints which have been attended to numbered sixty-five for the week. JONAS BARTER, Chief Agent.

Report of Council of Board of Trade

MEETING, FRIDAY, APRIL 17th, 1925.

The Council are indebted to Mr. W. R. Warren, K.C., and to the members, for making the initial meeting of the series to be held throughout the year, such an interesting and informative one. The large attendance encourages the belief that these meetings will serve to stimulate interest in problems incidental to our business and civic life, and we are grateful for the co-operation extended.

3.—APPOINTMENT OF BOARD OF TRADE INSPECTOR, (CULL OF FISH).

The matter of a Board of Trade Certificate of quality for fish, has been before the Council. A shipment of Codfish recently made to the Mediterranean, carried a Board of Trade certificate of quality. On arrival, however, the buyers claim that the fish was not at all up to the standard of quality or size called for by his contract or the Certificate, and have written to the Board of Trade asking for an explanation. The matter is a very serious one, and is now being fully investigated as we feel that everything possible should be done to protect our Certificate.

The method of issuing these certificates in the past has been for the secretary to appoint a competent Culler, (invariably an employee of the firm requiring the Certificate) to inspect the fish, and on the Culler's recommendation, the Certificate is issued. This is obviously a very loose method, and an inspection which carries a certificate of this nature, should be beyond question, and made by a competent Culler appointed and employed solely by the Board of Trade for this purpose. The certificate is just, if not more important, as any other shipping document, and if a certificate of quality is to be issued, the Board should fully protect itself. This would appear to be the only satisfactory manner of issuing a certificate of quality, if the Board is to be responsible, and we would like this recommendation to be endorsed by the full Board.

4.—REDUCTION IN FREIGHT RATES Agricultural Product.

The Council is pleased to learn that the Government Railway Commission has decided to extend a preferential tariff on all shipments of agricultural products from the West Coast, and which was recommended in the report of the Council for the year ending December 31st, 1924. The Council would commend to the Members, the special appeal made in the daily press on behalf of the West Coast fishermen, many of whom lost their entire fishing equipment in the recent disaster. We would suggest, as the need is urgent, that a fund be started immediately, and the Finance Committee of the Council will be pleased to acknowledge all subscriptions.

1.—CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION.

A letter has been received from Mr. N. V. Hansplant, Assistant Manager and Secretary of the Canadian National Exhibition Association, inviting the participation of Newfoundland, in the Toronto National Exhibition, to be held this Fall. The Exhibition Committee are prepared to offer, free of charge, space in the Government building, which would include the services of superintendents of the building, night watchman, cleaners, etc., also electric light for general display, which, incidentally, is very liberal and should not require to be supplemented. A great deal of advertising is also furnished without cost. All of the Provinces of the Dominion of Canada, as well as Bermuda and other Islands of the West Indies, participate in this exhibition, and find this method of advertising their products to cover one and a half million of people, very profitable. The space placed at our disposal, may be used each year. The Council have thought it advisable to seek the co-operation of the British Empire Exhibition Committee in this matter, as the general information and data regarding our resources, which this Committee have at their command, would enable us to arrive at a decision without further delay.

2.—FIRE INSURANCE RATES.

It has been brought to the attention of the Council that the present fire insurance rates are much higher than they should be, and it has been intimated that the returns from premiums paid, are substantially in excess of the fire losses. This matter has been taken up with the local board of Fire Underwriters, and we hope to be in a position at our next meeting to table the premiums and losses paid on city property, during the past ten years.

While on the subject of fire insurance rates, it will be recalled that the cost of the Pumper and Aerial Ladder Truck, is being collected from various policy holders, and those who carry no insurance, escape this tax. The Council respectfully suggests that the Municipal Council should assume this liability, and reimburse themselves by imposing a Special Tax which would bear equally on all property owners.

A QUARTER OF A MILLION DOLLARS PROFIT ON AN INVESTMENT OF FOUR HUNDRED DOLLARS SOUNDS INCREDIBLE DOESN'T IT? NEVERTHELESS IT IS TRUE

READ THE FOLLOWING EXPERIENCE:

Mr. M— of Nova Scotia bought one hundred million German Government 5% bonds about January, 1924. He paid four hundred dollars for them. When he took delivery of them at the Bank he was very much criticised, the Bank Manager laughed at him and told him that the bonds would make good wall paper. The Bank clerks grinned at him as he carried away the bonds. His friends and business associates laughed at him and took him for a fanatic, his wife criticised, scolded and ragged at him for wasting four hundred dollars of good money. Mr. M— at last became discouraged and disgusted by his friends jibing at him so he sold his one hundred million bonds, got back his four hundred, but Mr. M— finds that he is to be laughed at more than ever. Six months after Mr. M— sold his bonds they began to advance in price and it is true that if he had kept these bonds he could have sold them a few months ago for more than a quarter of a million dollars.

OPPORTUNITY COMES TO A MAN AT LEAST ONCE IN A LIFETIME.

Are you one of those who really believe that the purchase of foreign bonds is an opportunity of a life time but just because of some one's discouraging remarks you have put off buying?

We could give you hundreds and hundreds of instances of people who put off buying last year when, if they had acted on our advice they would be thousands of dollars richer to-day.

DO NOT BE LEFT BEHIND WHEN THE BIG ADVANCE COMES. LET GOOD JUDGMENT BE YOUR GUIDE. KEEP COOL AND TALK IT OVER WITH YOURSELF. IMPROVE YOUR POSITION BY ACTING NOW.

Almost overnight German Government Securities improved in price. Sensational rises were an hourly occurrence until finally those securities which we had recommended reached their present level; some went higher and suffered a reaction: the great majority showed a stupendous rise.

THE OPPORTUNITY TO-DAY.

We are of the opinion that opportunities for lucrative investment exist to-day through the purchase of selected German Government Bonds.

For several years now we have persistently advocated their purchase. In the face of strong criticism, through circulars, letters and newspapers, we have convinced thousands throughout Canada and Newfoundland, that the opportunity for profit through the purchase of selected German Government securities have never been equalled in the annals of world investment.

The financial side of it was good too, for although the admission fee was so low yet the sum of $130 was realized and will be devoted to the new Church Building Fund.

British Empire Exhibition of the most appalling weather and difficulties and a degree of mis- management perhaps inevitable in an enterprise on so gigantic a scale made history literally before the eyes of the public. The amount of criticism, as may be expected, was levelled at certain features of the Ex- hibition, and it is refreshing to be able to state that the authorities, so far as the criticism of this kind is concerned, have taken it to heart by making such improvements as have been possible to the public. The advertising hoardings which were the subject of much criticism will be swept away, and remodelled and improved. The various entrances will greet the visitor both at the north- west and southwest entrances. The new aspect of the gardens will certainly attract the visitor. The garden space has been extended, and will contain a greater abundance and variety of flowers than before. The deep artistic red of the new pathways will contrast very effectively with the foliage. Luxurious herbaceous borders and new shrubs and flowers in the rock gardens will decorate the new Wembley. A profusion of spring flowers will greet the visitor on Open- ing Day. In some parts of the Exhibition last year a somewhat huddled appearance was created owing to the crowding of some of the kiosks. This has now been remedied; many of the awkwardly situated kiosks have been removed, and the ways widened out for visitors. Of all the criticisms which were made last season, probably the one most generally voiced concerned the catering arrangements. The difficulties are easily appreciated; it is a gigantic task to provide for the needs of millions of people, especially when on one day the wet weather reduces the attendance to a minimum, while the very next day may find an over-whelmingly large number of people. And they all naturally expect to be fed at the same times. Some of the restaurants were incon-veniently situated; and there were not enough of them. In effect, it must be admitted that on crowded days the facilities were not equal to the de- mand. The new Wembley will provide a welcome extension of the restaurants, cafes, and quick-lunch bars. Instead of one firm being solely responsible for the catering, a number of different firms will share the responsibility. Some attractive new restaurants are promised, provided by, and character-istic of, the Dominions, in addition to the Home Country's numerous estab-lishments. The main buildings, of course, re- main as they were. There is no time to alter them, even if it were desired to do so. The various Government and Dominion buildings met with such universal approval last season that in any case alterations would be a mis- take. The architecture of the various buildings was admirably in keeping with the characteristics of the British Empire as a whole and the various Dominions in particular. This year the Dominions are fully determined to surpass the success of 1924, and as a result of their healthy rivalry many pleasant surprises will be forthcoming for the visitor this time. The Admiralty Theatre will still re- main a centre of attraction. Various new spectacles have been rehearsed, but the reproduction of 'The Storm- ing of Zebruge,' which was seen by over 700,000 people last year, will probably be included in response to popular demand. There will be a fascinating display under the auspices of the Ministry of Health, in which will be shown the history and development of the various methods by which disease has been combated throughout the ages. One in-teresting feature will be the realistic reproduction of a mediaeval al-chemist's kitchen, equipped with ac- tual crucibles and retorts with which the wise men of old compounded their lotions and elixirs. The Services—the Navy, Army, and Air Force—will again be strongly re- presented. Model ships have been made for a picturesque exhibit in which the history of the Navy will be traced from the earliest Viking days of sails and oars to the days of mod-ern battleships and 'mystery' ships. Actual relics will be shown side by side with the models. There will be Army and aircraft displays on sim-ilar lines. A Planet That Exploded Will the earth blow up? Science says it might happen. Apparently that very thing did happen to a com-panion world of ours, which exploded nobody knows how long ago. Professor Frank Wigglesworth Clark says all the 'fallen stars,' or mete-orites, as we call them, are pieces of that last planet. There are circumstances, entirely conceivable, under which a similar fate might befall the earth. It might be shattered almost in a moment into a multitude of fragments which here- after would pursue an endless journey around the sun, like the meteoric swarms which represent to-day a sister world that blew up. The sun has eight planets. Once upon a time there was a ninth. What became of the missing planet? Prof. Clark says that it exploded. The flocks of meteors encountered by the earth in its flight through space are fragments of it. Millions of these fragments enter atmosphere every twenty-four hours, but nearly all of them are burned up by the resulting friction before they can reach the surface of the earth. Occasionally one lands, and we call it a 'fallen star.' All the known meteorites, some of which weigh many tons, show indica- tion of a common origin. The con- dition of the substances composing the aquarium, which was very popular last year, is being filled with new and unfamiliar monsters of the deep, which you will be able to gaze upon amid surroundings of an appropriate nature. One other attraction which I am able to divulge is a theatre in which, by a special arrangement of lighting effects and other apparatus, the actors appear to be of pigmy stature. This novel and curious display will, no doubt, attract large crowds this year. Finally, the huge Amusement Park will be converted into a blaze of light at night by the aid of a million lamps. Wembley's amusements must be worthy of its higher educational side, and, from all accounts, it certainly will be this year.

In fact, all the popular features of last year's Exhibition have been re- tained and many valuable and in-teresting additions have been made for the entertainment of the visitor. The new British Empire Exhibition will continue the work of Empire Edu- cation so well begun in 1924, and will demonstrate afresh the almost illim- itable possibilities of the Empire over- seas. Since an exhibition of such size is at the mercy of the weather, it only remains to hope for more favourable climate conditions than last year. Many people last year complained of what may be called the 'cheapjack' and 'fair ground' elements which made the Amusements Park noisy amid the already bustling sounds of the great Exhibition. These elements will not, however, be in evidence this year, much to the relief of those who formerly experienced the headache of night.

Two galleries are being devoted to a big scientific exhibit illustrating the relationship between science and everyday life. The Palaces of Industry and En- gineering, which between them cover twenty-five acres of ground, will be representative of practically every branch of British industry, although the display will in many ways differ considerably from last year. In the Palace of Engineering will be a housing display which will enable people to inspect and compare the relative merits of many of the new types of houses now advocated. The year 1925 marks the centenary of the first steam train used for the transport of passengers in this country, and the idea of a hundred years' progress has inspired some of the dis- plays of the big railway companies. How the steam train is resisting the competition of electricity on one side and a motor transport on the other is but one of the many aspects which will be illustrated.

The Amusement Park will again be in full swing, with many new and in- genious additions. Some of the ex- periments which failed last year are not to be repeated. But there will be numerous novelties to take their place. Among these is a thrill which will rival even the Great Racer and the nerve-trying Grand National Switch- back. It consists of an ice-toboggan slide, which will be some four hun- dred feet in length. There will be six slides, or tracks, and each will be composed of real ice, enabling no fewer than 12,000 people an hour to enjoy the delights of this miniature Switzerland. There will be a 'samosphere' about it, too, for you have to climb to a height of eighty feet before you take your seat in the toboggan; and how- ever long it takes you to reach the altitude, it will only be a matter of ten seconds before you reach ground level in your exhilarating downward glide. 'Over the Falls,' is to be enlarged, and you will be able to spend many more enjoyable hours on the Joy Wheel and in the House of Nonsense. There will be an entirely new Palace of Beauty, and also the Indian theatre is to remain where all sorts of Eastern magic will be staged. The menagerie will be absent but the aquarium, which was very popular last year, is being filled with new and unfamiliar monsters of the deep, which you will be able to gaze upon amid surroundings of an appropriate nature.

One other attraction which I am able to divulge is a theatre in which, by a special arrangement of lighting effects and other apparatus, the actors appear to be of pigmy stature. This novel and curious display will, no doubt, attract large crowds this year. Finally, the huge Amusement Park will be converted into a blaze of light at night by the aid of a million lamps. Wembley's amusements must be worthy of its higher educational side, and, from all accounts, it certainly will be this year.

In fact, all the popular features of last year's Exhibition have been re- tained and many valuable and in-teresting additions have been made for the entertainment of the visitor. The new British Empire Exhibition will continue the work of Empire Edu- cation so well begun in 1924, and will demonstrate afresh the almost illim- itable possibilities of the Empire over- seas.

Two galleries are being devoted to a big scientific exhibit illustrating the relationship between science and everyday life. The Palaces of Industry and En- gineering, which between them cover twenty-five acres of ground, will be representative of practically every branch of British industry, although the display will in many ways differ considerably from last year. In the Palace of Engineering will be a housing display which will enable people to inspect and compare the relative merits of many of the new types of houses now advocated.

A Planet That Exploded

Will the earth blow up? Science says it might happen. Apparently that very thing did happen to a com-panion world of ours, which exploded nobody knows how long ago.

Professor Frank Wigglesworth Clark says all the 'fallen stars,' or mete- orites, as we call them, are pieces of that last planet. There are circumstances, entirely conceivable, under which a similar fate might befall the earth. It might be shattered almost in a moment into a multitude of fragments which here- after would pursue an endless journey around the sun, like the meteoric swarms which represent to-day a sister world that blew up.

The sun has eight planets. Once upon a time there was a ninth. What became of the missing planet? Prof. Clark says that it exploded. The flocks of meteors encountered by the earth in its flight through space are fragments of it. Millions of these fragments enter atmosphere every twenty-four hours, but nearly all of them are burned up by the resulting friction before they can reach the surface of the earth. Occasionally one lands, and we call it a 'fallen star.'

showing alteration by pressure, and other physical influences, proves that they were originally parts of a planet. Their structure indicates that they are fragments of what was once a sizeable world. It must have blown up. If so, why, and how? The catastrophe may have happened in either of two ways. The planet, revolving too fast on its axis, may have been torn to pieces by centrifugal force. Or, if it had seas, the water of the latter may have found a way into the hot interior and blown it up.

The Danger Colour

Red, the traditional danger signal, kept its lead as the most easily distinguished from other colours at a distance in recent tests of the visibility of traffic signals. Green came second on the list, while blue ranked third. Ordinary yellow lights were often mistaken for orange or red, and lemon yellow gave better results. The tests were made under daylight conditions, under which the identifica- tion of coloured lights is particularly difficult. Several thousand tests were made with different observers. The average showed that a red light of 75 candle-power could be identified at a distance of 600 feet, while a green light had to be 250 candle-power, a yellow 750, and a blue light 1,000. The observations were made at dis- tances of 600, 900 and 1,200 feet. At 1,200 feet, the candle-power required was 1,500, 2,300, 3,000 and 7,500 re- spectively.

New value—new quality—a new line of Chevrolet models far better than ever before. The public has recognized that Chevrolet represents a high standard of quality at low cost. As a result Chevrolet has become the world's largest producer of automobiles with standard three-speed transmission. Now this Chevrolet quality has been greatly increased. The new Chevrolet embodies quality features such as you would expect to find only on cars of much higher price.

New chassis—with a larger, stronger frame; new semi-elliptic chrome vanadium steel springs; new and stronger front axle; completely new rear axle of finest construction—beam type with one-piece, pressed steel housing and greatly strengthened gears; improved fully enclosed, dry-plate disc clutch which requires no lubrication; extra heavy brake bands on big 11-inch brake drums; a new and easier steering mechanism and many improvements on the famous Chevrolet motor.

New bodies—of even greater beauty and comfort. Open bodies are longer and have new windshield with very low bottom panel, rubber weather stripping. All models have coil lights and new instrument board refined and cut away for more leg room. The new radiator is of more beautiful design, made of non-rusting airplane metal. All closed models have new and exception-ally beautiful Fisher bodies with the new VV type closed body one-piece wind- shield and automatic windshield wiper.

New finish—all models are now fin- ished in Duco, the new finish that retains its color and lustre almost indefinitely, and withstands very much harder usage. Here, again, is a quality feature hitherto not found in other low-priced cars. The new Chevrolet open models and coach are finished in rich dark blue—the sedan is used a beau- tiful aqua marine blue for lower panels and hood, upper panels in black—coupe with lower panels and hood in sage green, upper panels in black.

Gambling With Life and Love

DESTINY DECIDED BY THE SPIN OF A COIN.

"Tossing up" has figured in a great many connections, from Test Matches to deciding who shall pay for drinks. Its most unexpected use in settling a problem, however, must surely have been on the recent occasion when the fall of the coin decided a vexed question in court.

During an action in the Chancery Division an agreement was almost in sight when a dispute arose as to whether the plaintiffs should receive £200 or £400 in costs.

One of the counsel suggested that the matter should be settled by tossing a penny. The opposing lawyer refused at first, on the whimsical grounds that he had left his double-headed penny at home.

A Tragic Toss. Finally, an official of the court agreed to toss the penny. If it came down heads the plaintiffs were to have £300; if tails, £400. It came down tails and so figured in the first occasion on which £100 has been won in court at "pitch and toss."

An attempted murder and two suicides were once the direct result of a coin falling heads instead of tails. A woman, torn between duty to her husband and love for another man, decided her course of action by throwing up a penny. It came down heads, indicating that she should follow her heart and not her head.

The man to whom she devoted herself encouraged her to poison her husband. The attempt was discovered, and the woman was lodged in jail. Her lover escaped and committed suicide.

After a dramatic trial the woman was found guilty and given a long sentence. By some means she obtained poison with which she killed herself in her cell.

But a toss of coin may also bring wealth, love and happiness. An Englishman visiting Spain was dining with some friends in a restaurant, and a friendly dispute arose as to who should pay the bill. Coins were tossed, and the Englishman paid.

His friends, in order to make matters square, purchased a lottery ticket to the value of the meal, and made him accept it. The ticket won a prize of £20,000!

A formerly confirmed bachelor attributes all his present happiness to the lucky toss of a coin. He was out motoring in a country district, and lost his way along the lanes. It was getting late, when he came to crossroads where there was no signpost.

He tossed up and took the road indicated by the coin. Presently it degenerated into a cart track leading to a farm. To make matters worse, his petrol was low, and he was glad to accept the hospitality offered him at the farm to stay the night.

Visiting the farm on holiday was a young woman, to whose charms the motorist fell an easy victim. After a whirlwind courtship they were married. The bridegroom had the penny with which he had tossed up made into a ring, which he always wears for luck.

A 20,000 Pound Easter Egg

Who would pay £20,000 for an Easter egg? Such was the present Napoleon gave to his Empress at Easter in 1862. The egg itself, although made of gold, was not so valuable, but inside were pearls valued at the above sum.

It was about the middle of the nineteenth century that the Easter egg reached its zenith of costliness. Perhaps the most remarkable was one sent by a Court Chamberlain to an actress. This egg took the form of a gigantic coffin, ten feet high and twice as long, in which was a charming victoria, complete with groom and ponies.

Another egg, presented by a South African millionaire to his fiancée, contained a complete bridal outfit, several hundredweights of chocolates and confectionery, and a rich assortment of wedding gifts.

Breaking the Peace Cake

The origin of the hot cross bun is attributed to many sources. Some authorities associate it with the offerings presented in ancient times, to the gods. One species of sacred bread was called bun, and is described as a kind of cake with a representation of two horns, apparently an offering to the moon. On the other hand, it is held that "bun" is from the old French word, "burne," applied to a sort of fritter.

Though the origin of the hot cross bun was pagan, it soon became connected with the Christian religion.

Buns were apparently eaten on Good Friday, as one of the few allowable items of fasting fare. They were also hung up as talismans against evil, and were kept from one Good Friday to another, being regarded as a cure for various ailments.

In a Yorkshire parish, a great football match is played annually on Good Friday, each member of the winning team receiving a glass of hot milk, two hot cross buns, and a new half-crown. In the parishes of King's Chapel and Shellack, Herefordshire, the old custom of distributing the "Pax Cake," is, or was, kept on Palm Sunday. Pax cakes are given in Church, the idea being that those who have quarrelled during the year should "break the Peace Cake" together, saying "Peace and goodwill," thus ending their disputes before the Easter Communion.

ARGUMENT.

Jack e Ginger says the earth is flat, it's fixed, and naught can move it, and he will bet his Sunday hat that he can amply prove it. He's always talking on this theme, and many men who meet him inform him that he's in a bad way when he insists the earth is round, all the poles are flatter; they land argue and expound the what do not matter. They lean on a fence or hedge, and whoop about fashion, and Jake, whose hat has an edge, soon flies into a rage and soon there is a vulgar that follows coarse words and someone has a damaged hat and someone's nose is broken. There has a twisted neck, a fourth hat is shattered; and all this time of gore and wreck for things never mattered. Jake Ginger says to me to-night, "The earth is flat as a blade;" and I assured him he was right, in calm and courtly phrases. I say, "I never took a walk on ulanets any flatter," and miss a lot of foolish talk, while friendly words I scatter. I do not argue this or that with any human being; when Jake insists the earth is flat, I'm prompt in my agreeing. And if he said the earth is square, or shaped much like a wiener, I would not rise and paw the air with truculent demeanor. For argument is waste of time, and swapping oaths is folly, and pulling whiskers is a crime that makes men melancholy.

Where Does the Moon Rise

If you were asked where the moon rises you would probably say, "In the east." And you would be wrong. True, we see it coming up above the eastern horizon at night, but that is simply because the earth, by turning in its direction, brings it into view.

In reality, the moon "rises" in the west. If there is any doubt on the point, all that it is necessary to do is to watch its progress across the sky night after night.

It would seem to be moving from right to left; that is, from west to east. The stars prove this. One night it will be near a star in the west and the next night near another star a good way to the left, or east; then farther to the east the following night, and so on.

The moon, in short, has risen or come up out of the west, and is journeying across the sky to the east. Nothing is more easily demonstrated because the stars themselves are there to mark the track.

Life of Your Tubes
EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

The General Electric Company at Schenectady have a research laboratory in which continual tube development and test work goes on. Literally thousands of Radiotron tubes are being tested constantly in order to determine what effect various changes in the design of the tubes has on the life of the tube filament. While the purpose of these tests is not to determine what actual operating life is to be expected from the tubes it is interesting to note what are the most common causes of tubes ceasing to function.

In various different racks tubes of all types from the little UV-199's to the huge 1 kilowatt commercial power tubes, UV-561, are being operated under normal actual conditions for days and days. By means of a commutator arrangement it is possible to set any desired arrangement of operation desired. For instance, it is possible to set the commutator so that a certain plate voltage will be used on one particular section of the tubes under test for a certain length of time. The commutator is set and the plate voltage may be, say, 45 volts for three hours, 60 for the same length of time, back to normal and repeat and so on. An attendant watches the tubes during the daytime and by means of self-recording indicating meters the operation of the tubes at night is observed the next day.

The G. E. people give a "life expectancy" of 10,000 hours for the UV-201-A tube filament. This life may be 200 per cent shorter due to improper plate voltages without the correct grid bias; it may be the 15,000 hours expected or it may be fifteen minutes if the plate voltage is applied to the filament fourteen minutes after the tube is purchased!

Ninety per cent of the time the tubes cease to function solely because of trouble other than having reached its normal filament life. These causes are quite varied—one may be B battery on the filament; another rough handling in shipment; another a bad socket allowing B battery to the tube; another excessively high filament voltage; or through some "external" dropping the set or jarring it in transportation. Very, very few Radiotron tubes go bad through natural causes.

"Speed Jones" Tremendous Success at Casino Theatre

ARLIE MARKS PLAYERS SCORE BIG TRIUMPHS IN CASINO.

All that the lover of amusement can possibly desire is contained in the Arlie Marks production of "Speed Jones" which was played to a bumper house at the Casino last night. The bill is one of the most realistic performances seen in a long while. The humour is in abundance and there is a beautiful vein of pathos and thrills closely running through which greatly enhances and success of the performance. At times the audience was in convulsions of laughter and the next moment you could almost hear a pin drop. The Court scene in the second act is alone worth the price of admission. There you see the new Judge (W. L. Phillips) the Lawyer for the defense, the prosecuting Attorney, the witnesses and all the other necessities that go with such a scene. Billy Phillips makes a perfect judge and handles his case with professional ease. Miss Arlie Marks gives a faultless performance of the character of Millie and in the court scene does some remarkable clever work. Walter Deluna as Bill Jones plays the title character and gives the role all the realism that is required. This is an entirely new characterization for Mr. Deluna but nevertheless he gives it a finished touch of technique.

The Magical performance of The Great Andrews is an attraction that makes you sit up, and ask yourself, "your eyes are deceiving you." His various turns last night were warmly applauded. The Crystal Gazing act as performed by Princess Abdi Hamid is an amazing revelation and wins instant approval. The vaudeville finale consisted of snappy number entitled, "Don't Let 'Em Scrap The British Navy." This number was vigorously applauded. To-night is the last chance to see "Speed Jones," which is one of the greatest plays of its kind ever witnessed in a local theatre. Book now for "Out Yonder," the great sea-faring story which will be played on Monday with a complete change of vaudeville.

"Greed" Highly Recommended by Press

BIG STORY AT NICKEL MONDAY WINS NEWSPAPER ENDORSEMENT.

The stupendous picture "Greed" which comes to the Nickel on Monday is without doubt one of the greatest pictures of recent years. Having stood the acid test of picture perfection it now carries the endorsement of the press critics which are as follows: "Von Stroheim is one director who is not afraid to picture the true knowledge of real life."—Louella Parsons, New York America.

"Greed" is truly a great picture."—George Gerhart, Evening World.

"It's a masterpiece."—Frank Vreeland, N. Y. Telegram and Evening Mail.

"It represents the high-water mark in the history of motion pictures."—John S. Cohen, The Sun.

"It is forceful, gripping, colossal, remarkable."—Rose Peliswick, Evening Journal.

"Adjectives strong enough to describe the greatness of 'Greed' fail to come to mind."—Sam Conly, Morning Telegraph.

"The most conspicuous picture of all time."—Mildred Spain, Daily News.

"Greed" is a sensation."—Dorothy Herrog, Daily Mirror.

"The most powerful thing I have ever seen."—Richard Watts, New York Herald-Tribune.

"I'll get you yet," again snarled Danny Fox, running along on the ground underneath the clothes line on which the brave Old Red Rooster was carefully stepping like a tight-rope walker in a circus.

Every now and then crafty old fox would leap up in the air, hoping to catch the old fowl's tail. But, thank goodness, the clothes line was high up and the Old Red Rooster too nimble to be taken unawares. Pretty soon, after many a flap of his wings and a wiggle waggle of his tail, the brave old fowl reached the top of the post that stood quite near the kitchen stoop.

Just below him Danny Fox, his mouth wide open and his red tongue and white teeth glistening in the sun, leaped and snarled, hoping at every bound to either pull down or shake off the brave old rooster.

"I've just called up the Policeman Dog," cried dear little Lady Love from the bedroom window.

"Lots of good that will do," laughed Danny Fox. "He's gone to Lettucemere. I saw him on his way this very morning. You won't get any help from him."

At this the poor Old Red Rooster's gills grew pale. He was already tired out, and Danny Fox was shaking the post, making it almost impossible for that brave old fowl to keep his footing.

"Can't you fly over to the porch roof?" asked the little "rabbit," from the little window above the stoop.

"I'm afraid it's too far away," sighed the Old Red Rooster, trying to gauge the distance with his eyes as he flapped his wings to steady himself on the post. Dear me, how Danny Fox shook that post! Bumpety bump! He ran against it, not seeming to care if he hurt his shoulder against the hard wood. Yes sir, Danny Fox was so hungry that a little pain in his shoulder seemed nothing compared to the big hollow feeling in his stomach!

At last, finding that he could not shake off the brave old fowl, Danny Fox ran into the barn.

"What's he after now, I wonder?" thought the anxious Old Red Rooster. The next minute his question was answered when that sly old fox placed a ladder against the post.

"Now or never," thought the Old Red Rooster, looking toward the porch roof. Then, with all the strength he could muster in his legs, and with all the force he could gather to his tired wings, he gave a jump and a flip, flapping over to the little porch roof. Luckily he landed safely, and the next minute he had tumbled through the open window a foot above the shingles. With a bang, Little Jack Rabbit closed and bolted the shutters as Danny Fox started to climb up the ladder which he had now set up against the porch post.

"Cock-a-doodle-do. I'm weary through and through. I'll lie right down and rest my legs. They're numb as two old wooden pegs."

He signed the brave old fowl, throwing himself down on the bunny boy's little bed. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

The Loves of Mary Queen of Scots STARRING FAY COMPTON AT THE MAJESTIC. As already announced, the Majestic Theatre next week will be the scene of one of the greatest historic motion pictures produced, viz. "The Loves of Mary, Queen of Scots" in this picture history has been dramatised. It is a strong, human impersonation of one of the greatest and most lovable characters in history, starring the celebrated Fay Compton, who as Queen Mary, adds another laurel to her fame as an actress. In "The Loves of Mary, Queen of Scots," you will find:

(1) A Revelation of Love Behind the Purple. (2) The Drama of one of the most remarkable and picturesque characters in history. (3) A Tale of a Queen who was only Human! (4) The Fascinating story of a Monarch who was more Woman than Queen. Drama, not history. (5) The true love drama of a celebrated Queen. (6) The Thrilling Drama of Love and Battle round a Throne. (7) The Famous Film about a Queen in Love.

A special orchestra has been engaged and in addition to the great story, patrons are assured of a musical programme in keeping with the best in the city. An announcement of much importance to the public is that of the coming of Adams & Cheney, who are coming direct from Keith's Theatre in Boston, where they played up to last week. Adams and Cheney possess high recommendations as musical artists. Looking at last month's Boston newspapers, we find these high-liners, and if one is to judge by the write-ups, they possess marvellous talents as violinists and pianists.

S.S. Hillbrook leaves Montreal on the 25th inst. for this port, with cargo to the Murray Transport Co.

Thetis' Crew Made Good Fare

The specification of S.S. Thetis was made up yesterday afternoon and resulted as follows:—15,372 young harps, 1027 bedlammers, 102 young hoods, 373 old harps, 46 old hoods, or a total of 16,920. Gross weight 383 tons, 9 cwt, 3 qrs, 23 lbs. Net weight 367 tons, 18 cwt, 2 qrs, 12 lbs. Gross value $35,537.78; net value, $35,377.78. The crew of 168 men shared $70.37. The ship had only $160.00 worth of damaged skins. The general average weight of the seals was 18 lbs., and of her young harps, 46 2-5 lbs.

It's no secret! The 'Cello Recital is quite the best entertainment for next week.—apr18,21

"Safety First"

TO BE REPEATED NEXT WEEK. The St. Mary's Amateur Dramatic Troupe had quite a remarkable success in their latest presentation of the comedy, entitled "Safety First," having played to capacity audiences during the past four nights. Last night's performance was again well patronized and in view of the great demand for tickets during yesterday, the troupe has decided to repeat the comedy for three nights of next week. The dates set for repetition are Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights.

ECZEMA IN RASH AND BLISTERS

Had to Keep Hands Bandaged. Cuticura Healed. "Eczema broke out in a rash and blisters between my fingers and on the backs of my hands. The skin was red and swollen and used to peel off. It itched and burned badly and was awfully sore especially when I put my hands in water. I had to keep my hands bandaged. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it helped. I purchased more and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Nellie Kesso, R. R. 1, Listowel, Ontario.
