A MINE HORROR.

Men Entombed in a Pennsylvania Coal Mine.

The Number of Lives Lost Various Estimated—Rescuers Driven Back.

WEST NEWTON, Pa., June 11.—Time only adds horror to the disastrous mine explosion which occurred last evening at No. 2 mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Co., at Port Royal. Three men were rescued and 17 others are imprisoned in the burning mine.

Last night the mine was reported at the office of the company here to be on fire and division superintendent Wm. McCune, and W. P. Allison, of this place started for the scene. They entered the mine with fire boss John Jeck, who carried an open lamp. Three explosions followed at intervals of a few moments, the largest being inadequate to counteract the rush of fire damp. Many of the miners escaped, but latest reports state that McCune and Allison, with fifteen miners, are beyond reach. Even were there a bare possibility of rescue the men are located over a mile from the bottom of the pit. Since the efforts of the third rescuing party, which, like previous attempts, was disastrous, no effort has been made to enter the mine and no further attempt will be made until mine Inspector Callaghan arrives from Connelville. The wives and children of the missing are gathered about the mine shaft waiting for some news of their loved ones and every few minutes appeal to some men to try to rescue them.

PORT ROYAL, Pa., June 11.—By the explosion of gas in shaft No. 2, of the Pittsburgh Coal Co., Coke Company mine about 6 o'clock last night seven men are supposed to have been killed and 30 miners entombed. Smoke rose from the mouth of the shaft in volumes during the night.

The entire population of the town remained up all night the mine, awaiting some news from those thought to be either buried under tons of slate or slowly awaiting either death from flames or relief from the outside. The list of those rescued by a rescue party which sounded like a cyclone, then three sharp and short reports. Immediately measures for the rescue of those in the mine were taken. A messenger was dispatched on horseback to West Newton, where in five miles away, and while awaiting the arrival of appliances necessary to enter a burning mine, a temporary rescue party, composed of the men who had knocked off early in the day, was formed. The men entered the shaft and started toward the spot, where it was thought some of the entombed men might be found. Lying at the bottom of the shaft were Lawrence Settle and John Shroyer, the men were quickly taken to the top of the mine. When they recovered they told the rescue party where four other men were entombed. Dennis Wortley, Michael Connelley, and several other bosses, with about twenty men, went down shaft No. 1, which is just opposite on the West side of the river, and they are probably lost.

At 3 o'clock, after the rescue party had been in the mine, two more explosions were heard. Meanwhile the crowd around the opening of the shaft had increased, including mothers, wives and sisters of many of the men entombed. At 3 o'clock, A. W. Sweeney and Frank Stratton came to the surface, bringing Harry Beveridge in an unconscious condition with both arms and a leg broken and badly burned. He cannot live. Sweeney and Stratton succumbed shortly after reaching the surface. Sweeney, who was mainly instrumental in saving Beveridge, was able to tell that he climbed over the bodies of at least three men on the way out.

The explosion occurred at the time when the shifts were changing from day to night turn, and it is impossible to tell how many were in the mine at the time, but certainly no less than thirty are entombed. At 4 o'clock this morning Supt. Wm. McCune's hat and a couple of his letters have been found, the hat being blown to fragments. There is no trace of him or any of the rescuing party.

The Port Royal mines are situated on the Youghiogheny river, 37 miles from Pittsburgh. They are owned by the Pittsburgh Coal Company. District Supt. McCune, who, it is reported, died at the head of a brave band of volunteers, was one of the most experienced and best known miners in western Pennsylvania. The Port Royal mines are located in the thick vein coal belt and are for this reason extremely gaseous and dangerous. The state mining officials have made their management the object of repeated caution.

PORT ROYAL, Pa., June 11.—All the rescuing parties have come out of the burning mine. They say that the black damp makes work impossible and they give up hope of finding any of the missing alive. Twenty men are known to be missing and are supposed to be dead. They are: Frank Davenport, Antonio Glick, John Peebles, Jeremiah Daily, William McCune, superintendent of the six mines from the Pittsburgh Coal company, between West Newton and Baraka; Sam Allison, superintendent of Royal mines below West Newton; Dennis Wardley, pit boss of Port Royal mines; Michael Ray, pit boss at Euclid mines; John Kell, pit boss at Darr mines; Peter McCann, boss driver at Port Royal mine No. 1; Bernard Ballard, and an unknown. The bodies brought out are: Arthur Smith, pit boss at Smithton mines; both eyes destroyed and fatally burned; Fritz Krewer, miner, both eyes destroyed and fatally burned; Harry Beveridge, machinist, both arms broken and fatally burned.

Seven years ago there was another disastrous explosion at Port Royal, and the mine caught fire. It was necessary to fill it with water to finally quench the flames. To do this a hole was drilled from the bed of the river. This is now closed only with a plug, which was arranged for such an emergency as the present, and to drown out the fire all that is necessary is to take out the plug and the water of the Youghiogheny will rush in. This, of course, cannot be resorted to until all the men in the mine have been recovered or known to be beyond rescue.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 11.—At one o'clock this morning a telegram was received at the headquarters of the Pittsburgh Coal company, owners of the Port Royal mine, in which it was stated that there were from 15 to 16 men entombed in the burning mine. Another relief force was sent into the mine at 9 o'clock this morning.

BRITAIN'S RIVALS.

SHANGHAI, June 11.—Admiral Sir Edward H. Seymour, British commander-in-chief on the China station was the principal guest of the China association at its annual banquet last evening. During the course of a speech the admiral expressed his admiration for the policy of the open door. He said that Great Britain had three powerful rivals, the United States, Russia and Germany. Of these the United States was the greatest of her trade rivals, but the rivalry was not in conflict with Great Britain's policy of the open door. Germany was a keen competitor both as regards trade and sea power. Great Britain, some day, would have to reckon with the latter. Russia was not only extending her territory, but was representing trade. Admiral Seymour insisted on the importance of holding and defending Shanghai, in order to preserve the prestige of the foreign nations.

A ROYAL WELCOME.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., June 11.—The Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, who arrived here yesterday from Sydney, N. S. W., on board the steamship Ophir, landed this morning. They were greeted with salutes from the warships in the harbor and a popular demonstration on land. The town was crowded, among those gathered to greet the duke and duchess being many Maoris in native costume. In honor of the royal visitors the day was observed as a general holiday.

Sir Ellis attributes his insolvency to losses on various investments.

THE NORTH SHORE

Interview With Mrs. Rupert E. Olive on Tourist Matters.

The Bay Chaleur Association—Three Moose and a Deer—The Charming Restigouche.

Mrs. Rupert E. Olive returned yesterday from a trip in the interests of the Tourist Association to points on the North Shore. She was delighted with the beauties of that region, and charmed with the hospitality of the people, who did everything in their power to make her visit pleasant, and to give her information relative to tourist matters. She has come back with a note book well stored with valuable data concerning Moncton, Shediac, Newcastle, Chatham, Bathurst, Dalhousie, Carleton Place, and all that section, which will be very useful in connection with the work of the tourist bureau here.

On Thursday next Mrs. Olive will set out for Woodstock, Perth, Andover, Grand Falls, and back to St. George, St. Andrews and St. Stephen, returning to St. John by the International steamer.

While on the Restigouche Mrs. Olive attended the meeting of the Bay Chaleur Tourist Association, recently organized. It represents the counties of Restigouche, Gloucester, Gaspé and Bonaventure. The meeting was held at New Carlisle, and of the charms of the trip down the Bay Chaleur to that place and of the drive from there to Faspé and the quality of the scenery, the guests of Mr. Caldwell, of the Caldwell House, and Mr. Mills, who made their stay exceedingly pleasant. The association decided to ask the New Brunswick and Quebec governments for more protection of fishing rights. The prize essay, for four prizes of $50 each, were read. There were seven of them, and a prize was to go for an essay on each of the four counties. Mrs. Olive says the essays were all admirably written, and will be of great value in connection with the preparation of tourist literature for the association. The association discussed the question of issuing a folder, and referred the matter to a committee. The members expressed themselves very much pleased with the amount of organized work thus far done.

Mrs. Olive speaks enthusiastically of the drive from Campbellton up the Restigouche, past Mersey's Rock. The view, for miles up and down the river, surpasses description. The hills are very lofty, Squaw's Cap being the highest peak in the province. The river winds picturesquely among the hills. The water is very clear, which makes salmon fishing very much more interesting. The fame of the river for trout and salmon need not be dwelt upon. Some fishing rights there have not yet been taken up. For information concerning fishing privileges, anglers may write to Wm. Sprout, Royal Hotel; W. A. Mott, M. P. P., or John Montgomery, all of Campbellton, and the last named the secretary of the Tourist Association. There is excellent trout fishing in the Upper Restigouche, and lakes near Campbellton, which is a busy, pretty town with good accommodation for travellers. It is a great centre for the region of big game.

Dalhousie is one of the most prettily situated towns on the North Shore. It has rail and steamer connection with Campbellton, and from it the steamer goes down the Gaspé coast. The drives about Dalhousie are very lovely, especially that to Charlo Falls. There is excellent trout fishing in Bel river, near Dalhousie. Ducks are very plentiful. On the Sunday Mrs. Olive was there three moose came into the place. One was drowned in the river, and the other two went back into the woods. A few days before the train killed a deer close to the town. There is excellent hotel accommodation at Dalhousie.

BISHOP SWEENEY'S WILL.

It Was Proved Prima Facie in the Probate Court This Morning.

The matter of the will of Bishop Sweeney was before the Probate Court this morning. Mr. Pugsley said that Mr. Carleton had shown him the books of Bishop Sweeney and he said that the late bishop had mixed up matters of personal and other business in such a way that it would take considerable time to straighten them out. He would not take further time in regard to these. He wished now to show the income from the different pieces of real estate owned by the corporation at the time of the bishop's death.

This question Mr. Pugsley asked Bishop Casey, who was on the stand. Mr. Carleton objected to the question, as certain of the properties were leasehold and certain free hold. Bishop Casey said he was unfamiliar with the amount of the rents. Asked in regard to the rent of St. Patrick's school, stated in the report at $25.50, the bishop said he thought it was correct. He presumed that $425 was the amount of rent for St. Joseph's school, and $600.62 that of St. Malachi's; St. Vincent's, $300.

Mr. Carleton objected to any question in regard to the property at St. Peter's. That belongs to the Redemptionist fathers, and they collect the rents. Judge Trueman allowed the question as to the rents of St. Peter's, subject to the objection that the rents are $300 and $450, the latter for the boys' building.

Dr. Pugsley asked what the rent of the building at the corner of Union and Sydney streets was. The bishop said that $1,200 was, he thought, a fair rental.

With regard to the other personal property which the bishop left, Bishop Casey said that he had made no exact valuation of the furniture and other things. The bishop had his private apartments. The witness was not prepared to state whether the furniture and plate in these belonged to the bishop personally.

In regard to the salary, Bishop Casey said that he had never heard that Bishop Sweeney's predecessor's salary was fixed at $4,000.

There were some things, Bishop Casey said, which he omitted from the inventory by oversight. There were a couple of horses in the stable.

Examined by Mr. Carleton, Bishop Casey said he had never received any rental from St. Patrick's school in Carleton. Dr. Pugsley asked if the question whether Bishop Casey's predecessor had ever received any rents, Judge Trueman agreed with Mr. Pugsley.

Dr. Pugsley then asked Bishop Casey in regard to the salary; whether Bishop Sweeney had paid a rental for the palace. The witness said that the use of the palace would come in with the salary. Asked as to the fair rental of the palace, Bishop Casey said he did not know.

The amount of the bishop's salary was explained. If the amount was not fixed each bishop could fix it for himself.

Re-examined by Mr. Carleton Bishop Casey said the custom of the church in the matter of the bishop's salary was to levy upon all. The custom was dropped here. Bishop Sweeney simply took his salary out of the parish of St. John, when he might have taken it out of the whole diocese.

The late bishop's apartments consisted of three rooms and a suite of bathroom. Bishop Casey said that the last time he was in these private apartments during Bishop Sweeney's life, he did not remember seeing a couple of relics there. He had never found in the books that Bishop Sweeney had taken a cent for salary, although there were items for household expenses.

The bishop states that every priest was bound to serve the church during his health and strength and the church was bound to support him.

Mr. Carleton admitted here that the money in the Bank of New Brunswick had been used indiscriminately by the bishop. He also allowed the report of the school trustees to be put in evidence in regard to rents received from school buildings.

Judge Trueman—I don't think this matter of rents is very material just at present.

Mr. Carleton—At best that is the pistol they are holding at our heads.

Dr. Pugsley—Honest men don't usually hold pistols to the heads of those who are keeping them from getting their own.

Mr. Carleton was called and said he collected rents for the late bishop. He never paid taxes out of such rents. He made returns every Sunday to the bishop with a written memorandum. He expressed the opinion, in answer to a question, that the palace would be worth about $10,000.

Dr. Pugsley then addressed his honor. He said the two points on which he rested the case were: That with the exception of two legacies the sole purpose of the will was to protect against any mistake that might occur as to the corporation property, leaving the real estate known as the Sweeney property and his own personal property undivided, and second as to whether there was any power within the corporation to receive a devise of real estates over and above the amount they are allowed to hold by the statute. He was doubtful whether this point should arise now. He was quite willing to put the two questions in the form of a special case as his clients had no desire to put the estate to any unnecessary expense.

Mr. Carleton then addressed his honor briefly. He said the proper question was "Whether Bishop Sweeney had a right to make a will, that he made a will, and that he was capacitated to make a will."

Judge Trueman said: I am of opinion that it is only necessary to decide for me to decide as to the validity of the will. As to due execution three witnesses were called and found the due execution. It is clear there is sufficient evidence as to due execution and validity. I am of opinion that a case of construction can come before a court of probate. I declare therefore that the will has been proved prima facie.

Mr. Pugsley was given ten days to file allegations.

POLICE COURT.

Another Ladies Day—They Will Bury the Broomstick and War No More.

Only one drunk this morning assisted the officer on station duty by dusting the pentent form in the court room. James Alman indulged too deeply in the cup that cheers and very often infuriates, and in spite of his vigorous protest was arrested by Capt. Hastings. James is the happy possessor of a thirst for which he is said to have refused large sums of money, and yesterday afternoon he was in splendid working order. Between two and three o'clock he was picked up, tank nearly full, but still in the ring. James was fined four dollars or ten days.

The case which occupied the greater part of the time of the court this morning was one between Mrs. Dawson and Mrs. Carlin of Acadia street. They have been in the habit of making highly complimentary remarks about each other, standing, little children, gowns and speaking to vacancy when passing of street walkers, dirty trolleys, hussies, etc., and even on one occasion a swear word was actually uttered by one of them. As each of the parties gave evidence in direct contradiction of the other the case was called off, each promising that in the future she would never speak to the other, about the other, for or against the other, and that henceforth they would be as strangers.

In the Lee-Pierce assault case the trouble arose from a clothes line which Mr. Lee had stretched across a yard and which interfered with the privileges belonging to Pierce. The trouble grew and spread until Mr. Lee, who is a rather able looking, middle aged gentleman, received a beating from Mrs. Pierce, inflicted in the time-honored manner with a broom handle.

This case was also called off upon promises being made by both parties. The offending clothes line is to be removed. Mrs. Pierce is not to give Mr. Lee another beating. Mrs. Lee must not annoy Mrs. Pierce and her friends when playing ball in the back yard. Mrs. Pierce must not give the little boys cents to encourage them in calling Mrs. Lee "paint-pot," and Mrs. Lee will not beat carpets when Mrs. Pierce has freshly washed clothes hanging out to dry. The pipe of peace will be smoked, and with knuckledom the parties to the suit will bury the broom stick.

The assault case in which Margery Hughes and Barbara Lupee were concerned has been postponed. Margery was arrested last evening, and is now reposing quietly in the jail, listening no doubt to the stories told by the others about Jimmy Ramsey. The case will come up Friday.

Axel Arntsen, a young sailor belonging to Norway, was this morning given in charge by Capt. W. B. McLean for deserting from his vessel. Arntsen was brought before the magistrate this morning and was told that he must go back to work. This he emphatically refused to do, and preferred going to jail. As the prisoner is unable to speak English the case was adjourned until this afternoon, when an interpreter can be secured.

Mrs. Peter Robichau applied for a warrant this afternoon for the arrest of a man named Davis, of 88 Winter street, on a charge of abusive language and assault. She charges that he threw a bucket of slops over her.

A PUBLIC NUISANCE.
Attention has been called to the fact that visitors to the city when coming and going from the Union depot are subject to annoyance from certain persons who are in the habit of loitering around the crossing.

Yesterday afternoon one particular individual, who is a well known character in that part of the city, approached two different gentlemen on their way to catch a train. In one case he had a long story about being out of work for some time, a wife and small family depending upon him, and his unsuccessful search for employment. To his other victim he gave an account of a serious illness from which he was just recovering, and in a most pathetic way pleaded for five cents. It is gratifying to know that neither of the gentlemen gave him anything. This man was never married, and has not been sick, and his conduct, like that of several others, will no doubt give to visitors an unfavorable opinion of this city.

MACINTYER-GRAHAM.
A very pleasant event took place in Boston on June 6th, by the Rev. Mr. Connelley, in which Miss Jennie E. Graham, sister of Mrs. J. S. Connelley, St. John, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to J. G. Macintyre, of Boston. The bride was becomingly dressed in white chiffon and carried a large bouquet of white roses. The bride's maid, Miss L. Macintyre, of Roxbury, wore a handsome dress of baby blue silk. Walter Brecken, of Boston, was best man. Immediately after the ceremony the party drove to the Hotel Touraine, where an elegant repast was served, after which they adjourned to their new home on Appleton St., Boston.

THE I. C. R. OX-TRAIN.
The I. C. R. "ox-train," which leaves the city at 11.15 a. m., made a new record yesterday. She left the depot at 11.15, left Coldbrook (three miles out) at 12.15 and arrived at Timmity at 12.52. She was 35 minutes late in starting, and spent one hour and three minutes in travelling nine miles. The passengers picked flowers, took occasional short walks, sat down and rested, and in general had a really enjoyable outing. Of course they were in no hurry. They liked to have a restful time, and they blessed Mr. Blair many times as they whirled away the hours in the "ox-train."

NEW MAP OF THE RIVER ST. JOHN.

The manager of the Star line, Robert S. Orchard, has just issued an artistic and carefully prepared map of the river. Each stopping place along the line of route of the Star line steamers is noted clearly, as well as places in the vicinity. The river itself, with its various windings and lake expansions, is brought out in blue with the villages and wharf stoppings marked in clear black type, so that each place may be found with the greatest ease. A conveniently arranged table of distances is at the foot of the map. Taking it in its entirety it is a work to be proud of, and Mr. Orchard deserves the praise which he receives.

The cover is a handsome bit of coloring and shows a pretty view of the river with the steamer Victoria passing. At the top of the page is a clear view of the bridge, reversible falls and villages and wharf stoppings marked in clear black type, so that each place may be found with the greatest ease. A conveniently arranged table of distances is at the foot of the map. Taking it in its entirety it is a work to be proud of, and Mr. Orchard deserves the praise which he receives.
