

TORY TRICKERY FOR BELLS PERIL TO HYDRO

James Johnston, Chester Street, Asphyxiated Today

ALDERMEN EXPOSE THE TORY PLOT TO HOLD UP BUSINESS OF THE CITY IN INTERESTS OF SIR ADAM BECK

Party Chieftains Tried To Get Aldermen To Stay Away From Last Night's Meeting.

BUT SCHEME FAILED

Douglass, Drake and Burdick Refused To Be Persuaded and Thus Provided Council Quorum.

Astonishment leading to disgust and a spirit of supreme indignation throughout municipal circles today follows the sensational expose of Ald. Drake, Douglass and Burdick, of the despicable Tory plot to block city business in the interests of the party candidate—Sir Adam Beck.

What happened last night and yesterday is farcical in its contempt for the citizens of London. London should know about it—and the Tory newspaper covers it up.

Mayor Wenige has demanded the L. & P. S. pay lists. Sir Adam Beck and the commissioners have refused on the grounds that it would be detrimental to the people's railway. Two meetings of the L. & P. S. board declared this stand.

Yesterday Sir Adam decided to take hydro into politics by becoming London's Tory candidate. To buy off opposition from Mayor Wenige and an influential wing of the Conservative party he suddenly surrendered the pay list, without any meeting of his board.

The lists were to come under discussion by the council last night. The Tory executive feared that publicity on the matter might throw a bad light on their party candidate. A member of the executive accordingly telephoned to the aldermen—Douglass, Burdick and Drake—and ordered them to stay home so that there would be no quorum and therefore no business executed.

In other words, the affairs of the people of London were shoved contemptuously to one side to make way for political trickery and manipulation in the interests of the Tory candidate, Sir Adam Beck.

The plot failed, but its failure removes nothing from the guilt of the men whose frantic partisanship takes precedence over hydro, public railways, municipal affairs and the business of the city of London. And these are the men to whom Sir Adam Beck, Ontario's champion of hydro, has lent himself as a party tool.

"Stay away from tonight's meeting" was the frantic call all yesterday afternoon and as late as 7 p.m., from those who pull the strings at Conservative headquarters. And these are the men who, without full knowledge of the calibre of at least three of the men holding public office today.

The time has passed when the boys in the back-room at the party strong hold can beckon the finger and they come, or drop their hands and they go. Not for them the ignominy of politics become involved in municipal endeavor to the detriment of the citizens, and last night's bold attempt by the Tory chieftains to block the business of the city is a disgrace to the city of two decades. If there was ever a doubt about Sir Adam's candidature bringing hydro into party politics, this settles it.

Risky Party Expulsion.

Although threatened with expulsion from the party and ignominious defeat at the next civic election, Ald. Drake preferred to risk all in order that the interests of the masses should be first served. Before the group of individuals convening behind closed doors to plot the confusion of their adversaries—irrespective of its effect upon the community at large.

Ald. Drake was in his accustomed place last night when Mayor Wenige rapped for order and he acted as chairman of the council. In the absence of Ald. Albert Judd, who claimed today that he was in Sarnia on business until 1 o'clock this morning, although he was in London at 6:30 and 6:45 p.m. report between 6:30 and 6:45 p.m.

Challenges Tories.

Ald. Leonard Douglass, chairman of the board of works, is another who flings a challenge at the Tory leaders. He relates that he was not "asked" to stay away from last night's session. He was "directed" to stay away. "And that is the worst possible move they could have made," he explains. "I would certainly not remain away from a regular session of the council when I was able to attend, and even if I was open to persuasion I certainly would not when they told me to."

From what Ald. Drake says this did not confine their activities to members of the Conservative party alone. Ald. Burdick is not a member of that organization, never was or expects to be, but he was approached nevertheless. By whom he would not say in the city council last night, although Ald. Frank McKay, labor member, essayed the opinion that this was a charge that should receive the full consideration of the council at large. The name or names of those aldermen supposed to be involved in the move should be known, he asserted strenuously.

Ald. Burdick was loath to divulge any further information upon the ground that he had given his word of honor to the man who called him and he never broke his word. He added, however, that it was never his intention to remain from a session

These Put City's Welfare Above Party Expediency

ALD. GEORGE BURDICK.

"I was called at 6 p.m. and asked to stay away from the council meeting. I would not do that. I won't say who called me as I promised that I wouldn't and I never break a promise."

ALD. LEONARD DOUGLASS.

"I was called up by a member of the executive of the Conservative party and directed to stay away. They can't call me up and tell me to do that. The member got quite peeved with me when I told him I would not stay away. He said, 'Well I'm not going to coax you.' I replied, I wasn't asking him to coax me."

ALD. DRAKE.

"I am expelled from the Tory party, although I have worked for it for years. A prominent member of the executive called me up at 5 p.m. and told me I would be ruled out. I am fired out because I would not stay away from the council meeting and sacrifice city business."

And Here Are the Excuses of Men Who Were Absent

ALD. ALBERT JUDD.

Chairman of the finance committee—"I was in Sarnia until 1 o'clock this morning. If that man Wenige thinks that I am going to attend every darn meeting that he calls he is very much mistaken." Alderman Judd was seen on the street at 6:45 last night coming from the station. The council meeting was at 7:30 o'clock. His visit to Sarnia must have been sudden and brief.

ALD. JOHN GREER.

"I was out of the city, in Montreal. I just got back this morning. I did not think that they would hold the meeting with so many questions of importance coming up. It would not have hurt them to lay it over."

ALD. WILLIAM H. WILSON.

Had no statement forthcoming. It is known that he was at his home while the council meeting was in progress.

him on the cross of political expediency.

While Ald. Drake refused to be crucified, he refused to listen to the dictation of those who would set aside important municipal business in order that the interests of the Conservative party would be first served.

Rather than let city business be indefinitely shelved, Ald. Drake stuck to his duty to the honest workers of ward three who elected him as one of their representatives and declined point-blank to become a party to a Tory plot to block possible procedure of doubtful consequences to the party nominee, Sir Adam Beck.

Two Absentees.

Ald. John Greer, one of the absentees, stated this morning that he had also been out of the city while the meeting was in progress. From his story he returned to London about the same time as Ald. Judd—1 a.m.

He adds that "he does not know any affiliations to come before the city hall this morning that he had resigned from the chairmanship of one of the Conservative subdivisions."

Ald. William Arthur Wilson was also absent at last night's session although Mayor Wenige declared that he was in the city and his worship gave assurance that "if someone would call his home they would find him there."

Suggests Resignations.

The mayor is particularly aroused over the Tory plot to stampede the council session and voiced the hearty opinion today that "those members of the city council who were in the city and refrained from attendance and were not ill should tender their resignations from the council."

His worship flayed the use of such tactics as those exposed and denounced all who would allow party affiliations to come before their duty as elected representatives of the people.

It is the first time that I was aware that the Tory executive was administering the business of the London and Port Stanley Railway Commission," he declared, "as now I know and I will know why the L. & P. S. pay lists were available last night."

A Peculiar Move.

His worship senses that there is something peculiar about the entire manoeuvre, and has demanded copies of the last two regular meetings of the L. & P. S. Commission.

"By whose order was this list furnished the council yesterday?" he asks. "There was no special session called to transact this business that I am aware of. If there was I was not in attendance. And if there have been any secret sessions I want to know about it. They'll hear further from me about this."

His worship has been informed by members of the Conservative party that the advisability of handing over the pay list and preventing any move to unseat Sir Adam from the L. & P. S. Commission was threshed out at three special sessions of the Tory executive. And the mayor vigorously denounces such procedure, if it proves to be correct.

Drake Sacrificed.

Ald. Gordon Drake has been sacrificed for the sake of good government at the city hall.

To use the expression that made Cameron Wilson famous at the Tory nomination they tried to "crucify"

MAYOR ASKS TIME TO CONSIDER NOW THAT BECK IS IN

His Worship Says He May Know Tomorrow as to Candidacy.

WILSON SARCASTIC

Thinks Mayor Finds Water a Little Cool For the Plunge.

Now that Sir Adam Beck has definitely entered the field, Mayor Wenige is undecided as to what course to pursue.

Early this afternoon he stated that he would not keep his supporters in suspense as Sir Adam had done for a week or more but would have a final decision to announce within a reasonable time. "I may know tomorrow," was his brief comment.

"Water still a little cool for Mr. Wenige," commented "President" Wilson this afternoon. "Well, we are not worrying about him. He won't make any difference whether he is in or not. Sir Adam will be elected in any event."

The ex-mayor states that he may yet be impelled to "take the stump" for his party nominee but in the meanwhile he is going up-country to join in the fight for the Huron ridings.

WESTERN RIVER RISES 3 FEET IN FIVE HOURS

Saskatoon Residents Fear Their Homes Will Be Flooded Today.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Saskatoon, June 6.—Thousands of people thronged the banks of the South Saskatchewan River here last night, watching the rapid rise of its waters. Warnings from Alberta that a huge rise was to be expected had excited unusual interest. Last evening the water climbed five feet in three hours. One section of the south bank is already crumbling away under the floods, which at midnight were within eight feet of the street level.

Residents along the south bank of the river were busy removing everything possible from the basements of their homes, plugging basement sewer traps, and generally preparing for the overflow of the banks which is expected to come today.

TWENTY-FIVE DOCTORS TAKE LICENSE TESTS

Graduates of Western Fry Examinations For Permit To Practice.

The examinations for the license of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario are being conducted this week at London, Toronto and Kingston. Dr. Robert Ferguson of this city is presiding over the examinations being conducted in London.

The written examinations were held at the Medical School on Tuesday, and the clinical and oral examinations were at Victoria Hospital on Thursday and Friday. Drs. Clegg and Hale are the examiners from London, but officiate at Toronto and Kingston instead of their home town.

There are 25 candidates undergoing examination at London, all but two being graduates of the London Medical School. The results will probably be announced about the middle of June. The university degree of M. D. is a pre-requisite to this examination, but the license of the College of Physicians and Surgeons is a necessary qualification for the practice of medicine.

British Newspaper States Plan On Foot To Bring In a Large Number of Aliens.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, June 6.—The Daily Express gives prominence to a statement that Canada "may fill her vacant lands with Austrians," although this plan of dumping half a million aliens into the Dominion has not reached its final stage, owing to financial difficulties.

The Canadian authorities in London do not appear at all perturbed at the prospect. The Express says, and it adds that the immigration department in London the last few days has been in correspondence with Sohr, a former Austrian consul, who is responsible for the scheme. Sohr

THEY BLOCKED THE TORY GAME. To Ald. Leonard Douglass, centre, game to halt last night's council meeting, in order to save Sir Adam Beck from possible embarrassment by the credit for blocking the Tory game.

The City Council Rules

THE line of action to be taken by the Conservative Association in London has been laid bare.

The line of action to be taken by the Conservative Association in London—and already taken by that association—is leading them to the point of impertinent interference with the business of this city in order that a supposed political point might be gained.

That political point was not gained, because there are some Conservative members of the London city council who see in their office as aldermen a greater responsibility to the people of this city than any allegiance they may owe to any political organization.

Officers of the London Conservative Association called up members of the London city council—men whom the electors had chosen to attend to their business—and urged them not to attend the meeting of the city council on Tuesday evening. They went further—they threatened to "get them" later if they did attend.

They did not want them to attend because the pay list of the London & Port Stanley Railway was going to be considered at that meeting. Mayor Wenige had given his promise that after the lists were handed over to the council there would be reconsideration on the matter of publishing them in the city year book.

It is high time for the citizens of London to ask and demand, regardless of their political affiliations, what business the London Conservative Association has in interfering and seeking to block a meeting of the London city council where public business was waiting to be transacted.

It is high time for the citizens of London to ask and demand, regardless of their political affiliations, what business ex-Mayor Cameron standing president of the London Conservative Association, whose one outstanding accomplishment during his year as mayor was the cutting of the garbage men's wages, has in interfering with and seeking to block a meeting of the London city council, where public business was waiting to be transacted.

London can well part company with any and all such men. This kind of business, where telephone and whispered politics takes the first and most abiding place in the minds of men, has got to be chased out of this city, bag and baggage, if this city is going to go ahead.

THE spectacle of aldermen of the city of London standing up in their places at the city council meeting and announcing that they had been asked, coaxed and warned to keep away from a meeting of the city council smacks too much of the meanest days of Tammany Hall. It was a direct attempt to place the seat of authority in this city behind the closed doors of the London Conservative Association, and no words are too strong or too plain to speak the unqualified disgust of the people of this city at the introduction of such tactics and political efforts into the affairs of this city.

The city council of London is running the affairs of this city, and not the London Conservative Association.

The incident shows the atmosphere into which hydro and public ownership in general is being thrown by the entrance of Sir Adam Beck into the campaign as the candidate of an association that carries on this kind of business.

Sir Adam Beck wants public ownership kept out of politics, and yet he drags the whole thing in right up to the neck, in the center of the most contentious political center in Ontario.

THE next thing that the people of London do not like is the fact that Sir Adam Beck hands over the pay lists of the London & Port Stanley Railway, and the next hour presents a statement to the press of the country announcing his candidature in London.

At the last two meetings of the L. & P. S. commission it was voted that this pay list should not be handed over to the city council for purposes of publication in the city year book. Then, when political matters are getting hot, and there seems to be a chance of bribing Mayor Wenige to not run for the legislature, Sir Adam hands over the list.

This one incident stands out in letters a foot high to show clearly and conclusively that when politics gets its hands on the property of the people, the latter is going to have a poor show.

THE Toronto Globe today, in the face of all this miserable manipulation, has the hardihood to tell the people of London—the Liberals of London—that it is their duty to support and elect Sir Adam Beck as the representative of hydro.

The Liberals of London are not eager to quarrel with Sir Adam Beck. They are willing to pay full tribute to the worth of the work he has accomplished. They are ready to back him in any reasonable project he may undertake, and they would welcome the opportunity to do so, but the path is blocked when we find the champion of a public ownership undertaking placing himself in a position where he comes out under the auspices of men who place the politics of the Conservative party above every other consideration.

There is a great big local issue in this affair, and it has got to be fought to the last ditch. The London manipulation overshadows all else, and right off citizens must make it plain to all Conservative manipulators that the city council is running the city of London, and that it is not going to be cajoled or threatened from its right course by the henchmen of any political association.

WENIGE REFUSED SESSION MINUTES OF LAST MEETING

Mayor Informed Permission Must Come From Manager of L. & P. S. Railway.

REQUIRES ORDER

Trip to Office of Commission Fails To Bring Result.

Mayor Wenige, although a member of the London & Port Stanley Railway commission, has found out that he cannot have access even to the minutes of regular sessions of that body.

"This is the worst yet," exclaimed the mayor, when after being in touch with the secretary of the commission, he was informed that he could not give him the minutes without the sanction of the manager of the road.

The mayor asked for the minutes of the last two meetings at a fairly early hour this morning, and the answer from the secretary was that they would be delivered at his office at the city hall.

At 11:30 Mayor Wenige finding that the minutes were not yet on hand, called the office of the L. & P. S., asking if he could not have them sent over.

"No, not without the order of the manager,"

Requires Orders.

Further questioning brought out the fact that nothing was to be given to the mayor without orders. There is no written instructions posted up to that effect, but apparently that is the understanding.

"Remember," said the mayor, "I am not asking for anything secret. I am only asking for something that any citizen is entitled to. Surely you can furnish that."

But there was no disposition to do any furnishing of minutes, and the mayor did not get them.

He even drove down to the commission's office at 12:30 to see if they would be supplied to him, or if he could even have a chance to look at them, but noon hour was being observed, and there were no men in the mayor's head or in the back seat as he drove away.

JAMES JOHNSTON DEAD, COMPANION SICK; DUE TO GAS

City Gas Company Employees Asphyxiated on Tecumseh Avenue.

REPAIRING MAIN

James Johnston, 19 Chester street, is dead and William S. Arbuckle, 5 Brighton street, lies in a serious condition at his home as a result of being overcome with gas when he and Mr. Johnston were repairing a leak in a main of the City Gas Company in front of 41 Tecumseh avenue about 11:30 this morning. Both are employees of the Gas Company.

Edward R. Emery, a teamster, residing at 16 Briscoe street, was driving home to lunch, and in passing the excavation where the leak was being fixed he noticed some tools lying on the ground. Looking down into the hole he saw at once that the two men were unconscious.

When taken out, Mr. Arbuckle was in a semi-conscious state, but the time he revived was in a few minutes he was removed to his home. Although for an hour and a half every effort was made by Dr. J. E. McCullough and the firemen to resuscitate Mr. Johnston, he never regained consciousness, and was pronounced dead by the physician. He was breathing faintly when discovered by Mr. Emery, and at times when the pulmotor was at work it was thought that he might recover, but he never did.

He was breathing faintly when discovered by Mr. Emery, and at times when the pulmotor was at work it was thought that he might recover, but he never did.

Coroner Robert Ferguson, who was summoned soon after the men were found, said that under the circumstances there would be no inquest.

"Mr. Arbuckle was in a sitting posture when I found him," Mr. Emery told The Advertiser, "while Mr. Johnston lay crumpled up, his hat lying beside him as if he had knocked it off when he toppled over."

A handkerchief belonging to Mr. Johnston was also found in the sewer.

Mr. Arbuckle when seen at his home about 1 o'clock was still in a dazed condition, and did not seem to be able to remember anything prior to the accident. It is thought, however, that he will recover.

In speaking to The Advertiser Mrs. Arbuckle said that her husband had always been extremely sensitive to the smell of gas and she could not understand how he was overcome so quickly. For this reason she thought that the gas must have burst through the main very suddenly.

Premier Massey of New Zealand Denounces Dumping of Foreign Goods.

Associated Press Despatch.

Wellington, N. Z., June 6.—Premier W. F. Massey, speaking at Christchurch, declared his sympathy with free trade, but the present policy by which foreign goods were dumped in the countries of the British Empire was "a sensible, not a fair trade. The Empire, he said, was capable of being self-supporting, but it was not being given the opportunity to prove this."

Premier Massey urged that this object should be kept in view at the coming imperial economic conference in London.

METHODISTS ISSUE FINAL DRAFT OF LONDON CONSTITUTION

COUNCIL SHELVES PLAN TO APPOINT HIGH CONSTABLE

Middlesex Fathers Vote Down Measure To Employ Detective-Sergeant Down.

ALLEGED WICKEDNESS

Members Testify To Rural Rum-Running and Illicit Liquor Sales.

Middlesex County Council last night by a two-thirds vote decided not to appoint a high constable at present, defeating a motion that the first clause of the report of a special committee be adopted.

The clause provided for the appointment of Detective-Sergeant Harry Down at a salary of $2,700 a year as high constable. All the councillors were of the opinion that Detective-Sergeant Down was one of the best men available, but they feared the expense of the police system proposed by the special committee would be too high. Some of the councillors thought $2,700 was rather a large salary. Some mentioned $2,000 as a more suitable figure.

The special committee in its report had recommended that Detective-Sergeant Down be appointed high constable at a salary of $2,700 a year. It also recommended that the high constable, the crown-attorney and a representative committee try to work out a suitable police system, that the high constable be provided with a suitable car for his work, and that Judge Macbeth be asked to request the resignation of the members of the present constabulary, and that he dismiss those who did not resign.

As the first clause had been thrown out, the entire report was automatically shelved, and the special committee discharged.

It was decided to form a new committee to work out another scheme. Several councillors named, stating the duties such a committee was required to perform were not exactly to their liking.

Finally the following committee was appointed: Councillors Thomas Elliott, Sutherland, Coleman, Young, B. Pike, and the warden, I. M. Ross.

To Probe System.

This committee has been instructed to investigate the question of county constabulary further and report at the Thursday evening session of the council.

Crown Attorney J. C. Elliott, K.C., at the request of the council, spoke at the need of a good police system in Middlesex county. He explained that a salaried force, headed by a high constable, would be of great advantage, and promised there was enough work for several men to do, if reports which he had received about county crime were investigated.

As county solicitor, however, he would not dictate to the council, he said.

He pointed out to the council that by law each county must appoint a high constable annually. If there were a vacancy the sheriff could be employed until it was filled.

The attorney-general, Mr. Elliott stated, believed the police plan the council was considering at present to be a good one. To get more men, he added, adequate salaries had to be paid.

Nocturnal Misdeeds.

During the debate were heard tales of run in Middlesex every night, cars parked without lights on dark sidewalks.

Councillor John Morden declared London hired police constables, 56 of them, at $125 a month and their clothes, and they paid their own way. Middlesex constables during the year turned in but $52 in the county. There were 75 constables on the county list, too.

"Half of them are dead," he said. "Some of them are old. Others near the city have not been fair to the county nor to the tourists coming through." He referred to persecution of motorists.

Councillor J. Cousins said the city did not want to let Detective Down go, but that finally the chief had declared he would put nothing in the officer's way if he saw fit to take the position.

"I think Harry Down is the man for the position," he added.

Councillor E. E. declared he did not think the county should be expected to enforce the Ontario temperance act. "The act should be looked after by the government. I don't think we should interfere."

"But I don't think we could get a better man than Mr. Down for high constable."

Councillor Allen McPherson declared it was the moral duty of the county to see all the laws were enforced. "Boys at the time the act was passed are today getting together to buy bottles," he declared.

"In three weeks on one road I saw thirteen trucks going through to the border," he added.

To Raise $247,095.61.

According to the county treasurer's statement of estimates for 1923, which has been sent to the finance committee, the total amount to be met by levy will be $247,095.61. This does not take care of a deficit of $100,894.84.

The total assessment of the county is $38,192,750. A levy of nine mills on this would amount to $382,734.75, according to the finance committee report.

The report of the finance committee was adopted.

It recommended that the bill rendered by the London Health Association be adopted, and that a grant of $25 each be made to libraries in the county, and that the East Middlesex and West Middlesex teachers' institutes be granted $50 each.

The motion to renew the grant to libraries, which had been discontinued during the war, was made by T. G. Turnbull, who also supported the measure in committee.

Motion of W. A. Collins, seconded by A. L. McDougall that Miss Doherty of Mount Brydges be placed on the Strathroy Continuation School Examining Board was passed.

The three conference officers for the coming year are: President, Rev. W. E. Milson; conference secretary, Rev. Harold Williams; and secretary of stationing committee, Rev. Wm. Conway, Highgate.

The council went a step further, and passed unanimously a resolution that they amend the statutes, through the medium of the City of London bill in 1924, whereby the London and Port Stanley Railway Commissioners must, at all times, upon demand of the council, furnish such information as may be considered desirable. His worship and followers agreed that this move would eliminate all possibility of the recurrence of the pay-list or similar squabbles.

Ald. Leonard Douglass and Mayor Wenige were both curious to know what it was that the pay lists were available last night, although the commissioners at their last session had distinctly stated that they would provide for them, and no regular session had been held since.

The explanation was volunteered that the Tory executive had decided that it was in the interests of the party that the lists be handed over. The mayor thought that this revealed a remarkable situation—true that the Conservative Association was directing the operation of the L. & P. S. Commission.

Ald. Watt moved and Ald. McKay seconded that the lists be published in accordance with the early decision of the council. After a survey of the Port Stanley lists Ald. Drake declared that "he failed to see why the lists had been held back as the employees were so poorly paid."

Submitting his motion to change the statutes to compel the release of all information pertaining to the subject, there will be no Liberal candidate to contest the riding of North Huron in the coming election. Three candidates were nominated, but all retired.

They were Abner Coburn, Wingham; Morgan Dalton, Ashfield; and Charles Stewart, Ashfield. Mr. Stewart appeared as though he would accept the nomination, but later declared definitely to withdraw.

Declines To Give Name.

Ald. Burdick replied that it would be impossible for him to submit the name of the person who had asked him to remain silent, as he had promised not to divulge his name and he would not break his word.

Ald. John Colbert, another Labor member, questioned if there was a political motive in the matter, as there were so many vacant chairs in the council.

Ald. Peter J. Watt found occasion both before and after the meeting to voice vigorous objection to the press throughout the electorate that Cameron Wilson, ex-mayor, and Ald. William Wilson, who had been in any other way than this. It seems like another case of "passing the buck," as though we were afraid to tackle the job.

"As regards the proposed police investigation, it may not be wise to spend any money in that direction at the moment, but do not think that we have any too many policemen now. I was not objecting to that, but there had been too many complaints about the administration of that department."

"The complaint was made that men were sent out to make a record. I believe in protection, but I do not believe in men in civilian clothes. I have cases upon which their job depended. That kind of thing should be discouraged. It is easy enough to drum up cases."

"I believe as Ald. Colbert," declared Ald. McKay. "I think there is need of an investigation of the fire department, but that the police department, as that would be none of our business. It doesn't appear as though we are to have a probe of the fire department in progress, and this way. To me it would appear as though there are members of this council who are afraid to tackle the job."

Six members of the council were not in attendance last night, Aldermen Hayden, Shaw and May were in Washington.

Those present were Aldermen Drake, Burdick, Colbert, Watt, McKay and Douglass.

Just what part the Labor party will play in the forthcoming election has not yet been decided. A party convention of the L. & P. will be held on Friday evening to decide the advisability of placing a candidate in the field. A rumor is current that James Simpson, who dropped the West York nomination, may contest in place of Labor interests here. It is practically certain that a candidate will not enter a candidate nor give united support to a Labor man. It is believed that the majority of the 3,000 rural votes will be marked for Mr. Shepperson.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, June 6.—The following official statement was issued at headquarters of the Canadian National Railway here last night in connection with the train wreck near Durand, Michigan:

"A train carrying Knights Templar and their friends over the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee Railway, a branch line of the Canadian National-Grand Trunk in Michigan, left the rails at 9:35 a.m. today at a point one and a half miles west of Durand."

"Three railway employees and one passenger were fatally injured, these being Frank Pearsall, engineer; J. E. Parker, fireman; J. Fanning, news agent; and H. Waldron, passenger from St. John, Mich."

"Several other passengers, all residents of Michigan, were injured in the accident. Doctors were at once summoned from Durand, and the more seriously injured removed by special train to a hospital, while others remained at their homes."

"The cause of the accident has not yet been ascertained, the inspection of the track having shown it was in good condition."

NO LIBERAL IS CHOSEN IN NORTH HURON FIGHT

Wingham, June 6.—The convention of the North Huron Liberal Association held in the town hall yesterday has said last word on the subject of the riding of North Huron in the coming election. Three candidates were nominated, but all retired.

They were Abner Coburn, Wingham; Morgan Dalton, Ashfield; and Charles Stewart, Ashfield. Mr. Stewart appeared as though he would accept the nomination, but later declared definitely to withdraw.

TORY ADVERTISEMENTS ASKED TO BE REMOVED FROM MEETING

Douglas, Drake and Burdick Declared They Were Requested To Be Absent.

MAYOR SPEAKS OUT

Other Councillors Denounce the Tactics of Party Schemers For Action.

Ald. Gordon Drake finds himself in a bad fix—he records that he has been expelled from the Tory party. They tell him that he is going to be out in the cold next election because he would not listen to reason and absent himself from last night's city council session.

This in itself would lead even the most unsophisticated to surmise that he was not serene within the Tory walls.

But that is not all. Ald. George Burdick rose later in the meeting with the grave announcement that "he was sorry to relate that he also had been asked to remain away from the meeting." He elected to do otherwise, adhering to the sensible conclusion that a member of the council of the people "it was his duty to be in attendance, irrespective of what his own personal views might be relative to Mayor Wenige's motion regarding Sir Adam Beck and the London and Port Stanley pay lists."

Ald. Leonard Douglass also refused absolutely to be lured from a regular session of the council. "I was called at 6 o'clock and told to stay away from the meeting," he declares. "But I'm here. In any event they were going about it in the wrong way. When they start telling me to stay away, that's just when I'm coming."

Mayor Wenige concluded after last night's gathering that "he is learning something all the time."

"It's the first time that I knew that the Tory executive was running London and Port Stanley Railway Commission," he declared. "I was what I gathered from tonight's meeting. That shows the principle involved, when members of the party call Aldermen to remain away from the meeting, and then to remain away from a meeting in order to defeat a certain measure. Why, they even say that the president of the party, ex-Mayor Wilson, was calling them to stay away."

"Don't forget that some members of the council who were not present at tonight's session were in the city and were not sick. Ald. William Wilson was in the city and was not sick. His home now you will find that he is there."

As Ald. Burdick registered his undisguised disgust that members of the party should remain away from the specific purpose of blocking city business and encourage others to do likewise, Ald. Frank McKay, one of the Labor representatives, rose to question the name or tactics of those who had approached Ald. Burdick, denouncing strenuously such tactics, if they were true.

Ald. Burdick replied that it would be impossible for him to submit the name of the person who had asked him to remain silent, as he had promised not to divulge his name and he would not break his word.

Ald. John Colbert, another Labor member, questioned if there was a political motive in the matter, as there were so many vacant chairs in the council.

demand this. He desired a change in the act similar to the waterworks act of 1875 which governs the public utilities commissioners.

Probe Fire Department.

"A situation like that is very wrong," Ald. Watt concurred. "It is detrimental to public ownership. They refused the pay-list. Now we have it through the efforts of Ald. Drake and others, but I maintain that we should have some power over the men we appoint. There is nothing out of this in motion. There is nothing to be done but to wait and see what the men just didn't want to knuckle down to."

Ald. John Colbert congratulated Mayor Wenige for bringing in such a "valuable and timely" resolution.

Upon motion of Ald. Frank McKay the councillors at a special session will consider the public utilities $350,000 debenture request, as a definite move would require a three-quarters vote, and but six members were in attendance with the mayor.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 6, 1923.

Choosing the Speaking Partner.

Hon. Howard Ferguson was speaking at Niagara Falls on Monday. On the way down he picked up Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Conservative member for West York, and together they twisted the neck of the Drury government.

Dr. Godfrey has not been much in evidence in this contest. He is not in favor with a number of his own people in Toronto. They are not quite sure where he stands on hydro, but they gave him the nomination just the same.

According to reports, Dr. Godfrey left it to Hon. Howard Ferguson to make any reference to the liquor business. That's a delicate subject with Dr. Godfrey, especially since the attorney-general saw fit to read out in the legislature one day just how many prescriptions this doctor-legislator had written. It looked as though all the people in his riding were suffering from colic or thirst. In fact, so great was the number of prescriptions written around the doctor's place that the provincial government found it necessary to drop him a line and tell him to quit stuttering on this prescription business.

So you see it would hardly do for Dr. Forbes Godfrey to talk about the liquor question, so he talked about "flattening out" and "broadening out," until it must have reminded the audience of how flat the doctor looked himself on the day his prescription-writing record was dragged out in the chamber.

Mr. Ferguson must have quite a time fixing it up with the boys as to what they will talk about. Some of them aren't say boo on certain issues, so he has to give them something else to talk about.

Mr. Ferguson has not yet delivered his masterpiece on "When McDonald and I Cruised Timber in Northern Ontario."

They Went—They Spent—They Repent.

Windsor sends good news. Immigration officials there note that young Canadians are coming back from United States points.

Many of those who are returning assert that with a slightly lower wage here they are able to finance themselves more successfully than they were able to do across the line, where living costs are proportionately higher with wages.

Let that sink in. There are young men in London today, and in other centers, who are thinking of going "to the States." Some of their friends have gone over and secured work at better wages than they had here. They write back, and the question of wages naturally comes to the surface. That is the magnet that takes them over.

After they get there they find the wages are all right, but discovery number two comes when they are called upon to part with these wages at a speed that exceeds anything they ever experienced in Canada.

The return of these men is the force that is going to correct the situation. The man who still thinks about "going to the States" might well stop a minute to talk it over with some of the immigration men at the border who are at present opening the gates for the home-comers.

Too Big a Job for Hon. Peter Smith.

Selling bonds and watching that some of the brokers do not run off with his scalp is evidently too great a job for Hon. Peter Smith, provincial treasurer.

It is a fact that the city of London inside of the last few months has sold bonds at a better figure than was obtained by the province of Ontario at about the same time.

Selling bonds and keeping on top of the money market is a specialized position, and it is perhaps one of the weaknesses of our present electoral system that we change the provincial treasurer with each succeeding government. He should be the best man procurable because he can save his salary a dozen times over, even if that salary is a large one.

Hon. Peter Smith has probably given the best service of which he was capable. It has not been urged that he has been dishonest, or that he has raided the treasury for party advantage.

The fault with Hon. Peter Smith has been that he has had to deal with men who knew a great deal more about finances than he did. They knew what the fraction of one per cent meant when millions are being traded in. Here is one case in point:

In December, 1920, Hon. Peter Smith intended borrowing $16,000,000. He did not ask tenders, as every municipality does in order to get in a number of competitive bids. A syndicate of brokers undertook to sell the bonds. The price was $92.34, meaning that the province lost $7.66 on every $100. But the loan was over-subscribed, so Hon. Peter Smith borrowed the whole $16,000,000 at that very high price, meaning that the province paid $1,225,000. If the provincial treasurer did not realize the value of a government of Ontario bond, the investors did, because inside of two months a security that the province had parted with at $92.34 was selling on the market at $100.

A good many people may imagine this does not affect them—selling bonds is something of an unknown quantity in the maze of finance.

The money wasted in a poor bargain is your money—the loss will have to be made up out of your pocket. Your property is the security on which the provincial or any other government sells its bonds.

Ontario wants the best provincial treasurer it can get. It wants a better one than Hon. Peter Smith. London can give evidence that he does not understand finance, when its municipal bonds sell at a better rate than those of the province of Ontario.

The Pay Sheets Are Produced.

Sir Adam Beck has consented to handing over the pay list of the London & Port Stanley Railway to Mayor Wenige. The one saving feature is the attaching of some sort of a rider that the city council, if it uses the list for publication in the year-book, shall do so on its own responsibility.

For days Sir Adam has stood his ground. He has fought tooth and nail against the idea of that pay-sheet going to the council, and there were many who admired him for the stand he was taking.

He even intimated that if the mayor did not clear out and leave the matter alone he (Sir Adam) might resign as chairman of the L. & P. S.

And now, on the eve of an election contest the document is prepared and sent along to Mayor Wenige, who had threatened to run himself if the list were not handed over.

Sir Adam Beck was a bigger man fighting the pay-list publication idea than he was in sending the papers over to the city hall.

Honoring Allan Studholme.

The Labor Temple in Hamilton has been enriched by a tablet to the memory of Allan Studholme, the pioneer Labor member of the Ontario Legislature.

Allan Studholme, in his years in public life, carved out for himself a real place in the life and accomplishment of the Labor movement in Ontario.

He stepped at once out of the class of the agitator; he had been through the mill of hard work, and bent his energies not to tear down society, but to build it on a better basis.

The Labor Temple of Hamilton did well to honor his memory. May the men who meet there be worthy to carry on his work.

His Early Training Not Right.

One of these teachers of half-clad outdoor dancing for girls got his crew into a bad scrape. The particular scene, called for them to prance around in green shrubbery or vines or something of that order.

Well, they picked on a spot in the woods outside of New York—quite a long way out—and there were vines, lots of them. Some of them climbed the trees—the vines, we mean—while others crawled along the ground—the vines, of course.

Yes, sir, the professor thought it was just the ideal spot, so when the sixteen young lady dancers had discarded everything but a few yards of cheesecloth the dance was on. They dodged around those vines, rolled on them, pranced on them, and posed on them.

Not until some of the fair young things started to itch and blister did it become known that the performance had been staged in a bed of poison ivy.

Those professors who draw easy money for teaching jumping-jack dancing out-of-doors should have lived a few years out on lot ten, concession four.

Sixty Good Canadian Pounds.

The Jewish War Orphans' Committee gave a dinner at Hamilton to William Farrar. This man went to Russia and brought some starving children back with him.

One of these, a little girl of 12, was present at the dinner. When she came to Canada she weighed 19 pounds; today, thanks to kind friends and good food, she weighs 60 good Canadian pounds.

Mr. Farrar was presented with a loving cup by his friends. It would be well if we could always present our tokens in recognition of such God-sanctioned work as this.

Note and Comment.

Our idea of the model husband is the chap who can make a window box out of the one the groceries were delivered in.

Stamford Township in the last year shows fewer people and more dogs. Those left behind want a good dog for company.

Judge Harvey of Houston, Texas, got his picture in the papers. No person up here ever heard of him before, but you see he granted 212 divorces in 243 minutes. That makes him famous.

The speaker who says the Ontario government has done nothing for agriculture is talking through his hat. In 1921 it passed an act to license fighting rod agents and one to amend the Dog Tax Act.

The London Conservative organ says that "Andrew Hicks was a Liberal before he was elected under the U. F. O. standard." The answer is that "Andrew Hicks was not a Liberal; he was, and is, a Conservative."

Here is a despatch from Paris saying that the fat woman is in style again. The cruelty of the situation lies in the fact that hundreds of them have starved, rubbed, perspired, exercised, dieted and made life miserable in order to get thin.

Two women are running in Toronto as U. F. O. candidates. If elected, where do they fit in? The U. F. O. has made it clear that they do not want anything but class-conscious agricultural representatives. When they made that statement following the conference of the premier and Mr. Morrison they turned their backs on considerable support they might otherwise have obtained.

When speaking at Stratford, Mr. Ferguson made mention of a bathtub that had been installed in or near the premier's office. It might not be a bad idea for certain politicians to put their dirty linen in this tub before taking it out for the public to see. Then, too, Mr. Ferguson could readily cut down a couple of trees from the timber limits in the north, and between them stretch a clothesline.

RELICS OF THE ROMANOFFS.

(Henry J. Allen, of American Relief Mission to Russia) Reminders of the Romanoffs and of the days of the old regime are constant in Russia. The most interesting touch of the Romanoff past I have had is the private railway coach that brought me finally from Batum to Tiflis, and has since taken me to Armenia and back. This car, so a silver-plated inscription informed me, was manufactured in Manchester, England, by the Ashbury Company. It was made to order, and presented by Queen Victoria to the Czar of Russia. The czar assigned it to the use of the Grand Duke Nicholas, who administered the Caucasus, which he declared to be the "brightest jewel in the crown of Russia."

After the Soviet took over the railways the car was used by various Soviet officials throughout Russia. It was calculated, however, to stir up envy. For it is a constant reminder to the new ruling class of the richness with which the old ruling class surrounded itself. I think the Soviet officials must have found it distasteful so when it became necessary to provide the Near East Relief with a special car, the government turned over this noble piece of rolling stock to the committee without price, and hauls it through the country without extra charge.

In the several days that I occupied this car, it was interesting to note the attitude of the peasants and workmen as the train stood at the stations. There was always a crowd of idle men on the platforms. They would come and look into the windows of the car, making comment which I could well believe was not altogether favorable, either to the car or its inhabitants. The car contained an old Russian servant who had been on it for 23 years, and had served the grand duke. He made all the berths and did all the cooking. One day, in riding from Batum to Tiflis, we passed through tea plantations which had belonged to the royal family. I saw the old man standing in his butler's pantry, looking out at the attractive buildings of the old estate with an indescribable look of sadness in his old face.

Candidates who enter the political field usually have to do a lot of stumping to remain in it.

A New York woman committed suicide because she failed to get her name in the social column of a newspaper. The suicide made a front-page story, so now the woman must be satisfied.

THE QUIETUDE OF CHRIST.

Take my yoke upon you and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls.—Matt. xi, 29.

Rest! Rest! How that word rings like a sweet bell through the turmoil of our age.

We are rushing to and fro, destroying rest in our search for it. We drive our automobiles from one place to another, at furious speed, not knowing what we shall do when we get there.

We make haste to acquire new possessions, not knowing how we shall use them when they are ours.

We are in a fever of new discoveries and theories, not knowing how to apply them when they are made. We feed ourselves upon novel speculations until our heads swim with the vertigo of universal knowledge which changes into the paresis of universal doubt.

But in the hours of silence, Christ whispers a secret to our hearts. Rest depends upon conduct.

WHAT SCIENCE NOW DOES FOR RELIEF OF "PSORIASIS."

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., United States Senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

In the course of a year very many persons write to me for advice about skin troubles. One particular ailment is the topic of many letters. This is the disease called "psoriasis."

There are several diseases of the skin characterized by redness of the surface and more or less extensive scaling. The chief of these is the one under discussion. In the trouble there are round, well-defined patches of redness, covered with scales, silvery in appearance.

In the beginning there may be very small spots, covered with scales. At first the spots may not be larger than the head of a pin. They grow larger, and several spots may form into a big spot.

The affected spots are raised a little above the natural level of the skin. The scales can be scraped off easily. When cleared the surface may show a few bleeding points.

It is not uncommon to find the knees and elbows affected. Sometimes the scalp is the seat of trouble. The palms of the hands and the soles of the feet are rarely attacked. Occasionally the finger nails are included in the invasion. Indeed, any part of the body may be diseased, although psoriasis rarely appears on the face.

There is little itching, as a rule, and the affected parts are dry. The disease has been described as looking as if mortar had splashed the surface and dried there. Sometimes a patch of "psoriasis" will heal in the center, leaving a ring of diseased skin. No scars are left after the sore spots have healed.

The cause of psoriasis is one of the mysteries of medicine. Heredity appears to be a factor. Focal infection may be responsible for the trouble. On this account the condition of the teeth, gums, tonsils and nasal sinuses is important. Likewise the kidneys and bowels must be considered as possible seats of the cause of the trouble.

Chronic constipation with absorption of intestinal poisons must not be forgotten. If constipation is present, every attention should be given to the diet. Treatment should be directed to such simple measures as may correct this condition.

In local treatment the skin should be soaked in a solution of hot water.

Author of "The Jungle," "The Brass Check," "Gimmie Higgins," "They Call Me Carpenter," etc.

I am not sure that these are the books I should most enjoy if I should read them today. They are the books which have had most influence upon me in the course of the last twenty-five years, and which I most enjoyed when I read them. I hope I won't seem egotistical to like "The Cry for Justice." I didn't write it; I only edited it and naturally I put into it everything I like—so to me it is the most interesting book in the world.

Finally I ventured on a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment and kept on using it. At last we were rewarded by the steady healing of the sores, and finally he was completely relieved of them. Wife of the New Baronet Is Noted Poet and Author Lady Poynter, Who Came To Toronto A Year and a Half Ago, Has Visited Many Lands.

A gentle, dark-haired woman, with a manner quick and eager, as simple and self-conscious as a child—this is Lady Hugh Poynter, wife of Sir Hugh Poynter, who with the death of his brother, Sir Ambrose Poynter, succeeded to the baronetcy recently.

Lady Poynter, who has been seriously ill for some time, insisted upon coming downstairs this morning, when the Advertiser called at her home in Toronto, in spite of the protests of the trained nurse who is in attendance.

"The death of Sir Ambrose was unexpected," she said. "We had been receiving letters. Then came the telegram, saying simply: 'Ambrose is dead.' I have received no other word."

A year and a half ago Sir Hugh and Lady Poynter came to Toronto. During the summer they are occupying Professor Curry's home in Wyckwood Park.

As Lady Poynter talked she walked about the high, oak-paneled room, pointing out the interesting objects that with which the room was filled. She is as eager in her enthusiasm as a young girl.

"Don't talk about me," she said, smiling, "talk about this lovely house. Do you know that from this window I have been watching three scarlet tanagers for almost a week?"

She is completely unconventional, but it is an unconventional that is entirely unstudied. She has lived her life in many countries, and has had a wide variety of experience. She has learned, she declared, that the highest form of wisdom is simplicity, and of there is no better example of the truth herself. As a very small child she used to contribute poetry to "St. Nicholas," the well-known children's magazine in England. She has written a great deal since then, and has published two books, "Around the Shores of Asia" and "When Turkey was Turkey," both drawn from her experiences during her life in Constantinople, where she lived from 1897 until the outbreak of the war.

"It was very odd to publish my first book," she said, "and I was rather terrified, for I knew that critics did not write known and universally accepted writers. But they were very gentle with me."

Lady Poynter was educated in England and France. "But education does not stop until experience stops," she said. "It is difficult to feel that the time can come when life will not have something to teach us."

She wandered about the room, drawing attention to a miniature water-color on the wall, a pair of old English candles on the window-sill, with swinging holders so that old English gentlemen could go to bed in their cups without extinguishing their lights.

"Your two minutes are up," said the nurse warningly, and Lady Poynter smilingly submitted.

"But come again," she said, "there are a great many lovely and interesting things that I would like to show you."

Sir Hugh and Lady Poynter will remain in Canada until Sir Hugh's business compels him to leave.

Wall-Paper Panels. There is a new development in the treatment of wall-paper nowadays. The wall-paper manufacturer has seen a great light, and are not merely advertising extensively, but are sending out new ideas regarding the placing of paper on the walls of our homes.

Personally I have never been very fond of wall-paper. Its obtrusive all-over patterns make it a very disagreeable background for pictures, especially when the figures are large and scroll-like, with convolutions which the eye tries to follow unconsciously. Bedroom papers, with up-and-down stripes and little bunches of flowers, are so innocuous that they take the character out of any room with a definite decorative scheme. The simpler and less conspicuous the wall, the better will the pictures, sconces, and pieces of furniture stand out from it and if the wall is to be without any pattern at all, to my mind a stippled pattern or a rough-finished plaster in a light color is the best.

But now that the decorators and wall-paper people have conceived the idea of setting the patterned paper into panels on the walls, I feel differently. Not all rooms look well with a large number of pictures on the walls. A bedroom, for example, is much more restful with simple walls containing few, if any, pictures. A dining-room, I think, better for a large wall with a few wall ornaments, such as large brass or silver plaques, candelabra, and similar articles, rather than pictures. Yet in these rooms there are large expanses of wall which cannot be filled with sconces, plaques, and mirrors, and which must not be allowed to look bare and empty.

For all such rooms, I think the new arrangement of wall-paper set in panels is a charming solution. The

ISSUE 500 FOLDERS ON PORT BRUCE CAMP

New Cottage Now Complete—First Camp Will Open June 25.

Five hundred folders in connection with the girls' camp at Port Bruce have been issued by the Girls' Work Department of the Y. W. C. A., so that girls wishing to attend the camps will need to register early in order to be sure of accommodation.

The first camp was from June 25 to July 10 for senior high school girls and university girls. They will first occupy the new camp, which is now completed and will be staged a lovely brown. Those who have been responsible for the erection of the new cottage are delighted at the possibility of running water in the house. A spring has been found on the hill top, directly above the camp site, and it is being piped to the house and in the vicinity of the tents.

The regulation camp costume is blue and white middie and skirts or bloomers. The camp colors are blue and white with a touch of orange, these colors having been chosen at the recent camp dedication ceremonies.

Members of the girls' work committee have been busy engaged in painting the furniture for the old cottage a lovely gray shade, and it is now in readiness for occupation. The committee is renting this old cottage to add to the camp funds. Miss Helen d'Avignon, who spent the past week at Port Bruce, reports that almost everything is now ready for the opening at the end of the month.

LEPER MISSION MEETS. About 12 members of the Leper Mission went to Port Stanley, Monday afternoon, and were the guests of Miss Grove's at her summer cottage there. The meeting was held on the veranda, Mrs. Stevenson, the treasurer, giving a most interesting account of the history of the mission since it was organized in London 30 years ago. Four new members were received—Mrs. Benny, Mrs. J. Johnston, Mrs. Peter Glen and Miss Flora McColl. After the meeting tea was served by the hostess.

EMBRO KING'S DAUGHTERS MEET. The Embro King's Daughters held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Andrew Cody. Two splendid papers were given, one by Miss Anna McKay on "Immigrants From Asia," and the other by Miss Sarah McCorquodale on "The Church and Its Field in Sarnia-Building." The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Hayward.

VICTORIA HOSPITAL ALUMNAE. The members of the Victoria Hospital Alumnae are planning a picnic to be held at Springfield on Saturday, June 16. The general convener of the event is Miss Annie Mackenzie.

CHESEY AVENUE MOTHERS' CLUB. The members of the Chesley Avenue Mothers' Club, who met last night, the program being arranged under the convener's of Mrs. Pelletier, the people at the home were also treated to ice cream and cake by the visitors.

The chief features of the program were choruses given by a choir of 20 to 25 children from H. A. Second class at the school, "O Canada," "Peace, Perfect Peace" and "Abide With Me" were rendered beautifully by the child voices. Other numbers were a violin solo by Miss Mary Shute, accompanied by Miss Irene Blosser; attractive readings by Miss Blosser, Burns, Miss May Fellow and by Mrs. Edward Fellow herself, and Scotch dances by Miss Mona West.

The whole purpose of advertising is to show you ways in which you can live better, more comfortably, and more happily. Read the advertisements to find out how you may own many things you have always felt were beyond your means.

ASK YOUR NEIGHBOR. There is hardly a neighborhood in the United States where women can not be found who have derived benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For nearly 50 years this botanical medicine has been overcoming some of the worst forms of female ills. As one woman has been benefited by its use, she has told others, who have used it with the same good results; so the use of this great medicine has spread from shore to shore by the recommendation of those who found it good. Therefore, ask your neighbor; let her tell you from experience the benefit which all women derived from its use. —Advt.

Lace Frocks In Vogue. London, June 5.—Lace frocks are very much in vogue this season. They are seen by the dozen at small dinner parties, and at other chic eating places. Blond lace, with a dash of black satin is much favored, but with dyed laces in such beautiful shades the lace gown may be any tint.

"Wallpaper" Sweater. New York, June 5.—One of the new sweaters shown here today looks a good deal like a bit of old-fashioned wallpaper. There is much criss-crossing of dark lines, forming little diamond shaped spots, and in each spot is a big dot of color. No sleeves or plain sleeves are the rule. The long V-necks are as popular as the bateau shape.

New York, June 5.—Gauze gloves in silk as well as in doekskin and other leathers are among the seasonable accessories today. The silk gauze glove has a strap at the wrist, and the gauze is finished with a line of vivid green, red, or purple stitching.

HIGHLAND CLUB LADIES PLAN COMPETITIONS

Mrs. Jared Vining, president of the Ladies' Club, is offering the prizes for the first competition, which will be conducted under the direction of Mr. Archie McPherson and Mrs. Russell.

What Causes Wrinkles? What's The Remedy?

Stop to consider what produces wrinkles and sagging of skin. Premature aging, mal-nutrition, etc., cause the flesh to shrink and the skin to become thin and flaccid. The skin then is too large for the flesh underneath; doesn't fit tightly and wrinkles are formed. It wrinkles or sags. It must be plain that to tighten the skin, make it fit the face perfectly in shape, and effectively remove the hateful wrinkles and bagginess. This is easily accomplished by using a simple, harmless, dissolving an ounce of pure powdered salolite in a half pint of witch hazel using the solution as a face wash. The ingredients you can get at any drug store, of course. The result is surprising. The skin immediately tightens, becoming firm and fresh as in youth. Every wrinkle and sag are affected at once. —Advt.

Alkali in Shampoo Bad for Washing Hair

Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulisulfed coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulisulfed is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh-looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure and ask for "Mulisulfed" coconut oil shampoo. Beware of imitations! Look for the name Watkins on the package. —Advt.

Get Sunburned all you wish

Rub Campana's Italian Balm on your face and arms each day. It won't prevent you getting sunburned; in fact, it assists the sun in giving the skin a clear, healthy, bronzed texture, instead of a coarse redness, but it will prevent the roughness and soreness and irritation that comes from sunburn, or excessive perspiration.

Be sure to take a good supply of Campana's Italian Balm away with you on your vacation—because you can't buy it conveniently at many summer resorts.

As a happy conclusion to a most successful year, the members of Rectory Street Mothers' Club held a banquet and picnic at the school yesterday afternoon. At the beginning of the term captains were appointed to increase the membership of the club, the losing side to banquet the winners at the end of the term. Mrs. Cook was captain of 47, and the losing side, with Mrs. Powell as captain, who was in charge of the banquet, obtained 24 new members.

A program of races had been arranged, and one of the most enjoyable was the balloon contest, which caused great merriment. Mrs. Panting won the prize in the bean contest, a bouquet of flowers, which had been donated by Mrs. Cunningham, a past president, who was unable to attend the affair, owing to illness.

The banquet was served in the kindergarten, which was effectively decorated. Among the guests of honor were Mayor Wenig and Mrs. Wenig.

Plans were made for a sale of home-cooking to be held in the market house June 16 to raise funds towards the purchase of a lantern for the school.

LIVER TROUBLE

Pains in Stomach

Most of the misery and ill-health that humanity is burdened with arise from disorders of the liver, stomach or bowels.

If you are feeling out of sorts, have pains in the stomach, especially after eating, sour stomach, biliousness, sick or bilious headaches, heartburn, water brash, indigestion, you should take a few doses of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They will live up to the liver, regulate the bowels, and tone up the stomach.

CHALK HAWKS. Mother bought Pudge a nice new box of colored crayons. She had the best of intentions. Pudge loved to write with crayons and the exercise was good for him. Of course, but—

Pudge shook the crayons out of the box and into his pocket and sallied forth to make his mark on the unoffending face of things. Across the way, Mrs. Lovely's brown-stone steps flanked by two broad and squat posts caught his eye. The very thing.

He spread his colors on the walk and selected a vivid green. Pushing hard against the soft stone, he drew a man—a very circular person, with arms that extended on either side as far as the post permitted. Pudge was generous in the matter of fingers and fringed the ends of the arms well.

"He ought to have a red shirt. I guess," said he, and scrubbed the red in well. "And yellow pants. No one leg yellow and one pink." And it was done and the whole crowned with a hat after the cavaliers.

"Now I'll put a lady for him on the other post." And with a will and much color, that, too, was accomplished. Wearied with his labor he stepped back to get a good view of it, and Pudge came over.

"Lend us a piece. I'll make a house," and reinforced the work of beautification went on apace. The steps, the walk, the posts, shouted and danced and waved in lines and masses of weird color.

Mrs. Lovely came home and stood against. All the colors in the assortment chased themselves over her face. Wrath filled her soul. "Which of you did that?" she demanded.

"No!" said Pudge proudly. "No! Some of it I done," said Nudge.

"You're the very worst children I ever heard of. What do you mean by ruining my gateway like this? How dare you scrawl such horrible things here? If you must be so outrageous, so headstrong, why don't you do it at home?"

Pudge gazed solemnly across the street, where green hedges shut his garden from public view. "We haven't got such nice stones," said he regretfully.

Mrs. Lovely lifted the telephone receiver with trembling hand, and in a few minutes Pudge's mother rushed out. "Pudge, Pudge, how could you? Come in this minute. I cannot let you out of my sight. You're awful!" Then Pudge wept.

"Chalk hawks are a nuisance and not to be allowed. If you cannot keep them within bounds, give them no chalk. There is no reason why

WEDDINGS

WONCH-KEAYS.

The lovely lawn at "Pinehurst Farm," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keays, made a pretty setting for the wedding of the daughter, Ada Myrtle, which took place last Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when she was married to J. Frederick Wonch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wonch, Egerton street, London.

The ceremony was performed by Ven. Archdeacon Sage, of St. George's Church, London West.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a graceful wedding gown of white silk tulle, with a tulle veil arranged with a lily-of-the-valley, and she carried a shower bouquet of lily-of-the-valley and roses. Ten girl friends of the bride, wearing pretty summer frocks, acted as attendants, preceding the bride to the lawn, where the ceremony was performed. The wedding music was played by Miss Mary May.

The groom, who was given in marriage by his father, wore a tuxedo, and he carried a sword. The wedding music was played by Miss Mary May.

The happy couple will reside at 6522 S. Peoria street, Chicago.

left on a trip to Chicago, the bride wearing a traveling suit of navy blue and gray hat and fur. Upon their return they will reside in St. Thomas.

PEARSON-COULTHARD. The marriage was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's father, Mr. D. A. Coulthard, Glencoe, of his eldest daughter, Sadie Elizabeth, and Mr. Thomas R. Pearson of Chicago. Rev. D. G. Paton of the Presbyterian Church, Glencoe, performed the ceremony. The happy couple will reside at 6522 S. Peoria street, Chicago.

NORRIS-SMITH. The marriage was celebrated at St. John's Church, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock of Caroline Grace, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Egbert M. Smith, "Hillsdale," Winona, to Mr. Charles Edward Norris of this city, younger son of Mrs. Norris and of Rose, late Charles Norris of Roseville, Ontario. Major The Rev. R. MacNamara of St. John's Church performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. H. A. Wier, rector of the parish.

Quantities of native and white lilacs were used to decorate the church, and bouquets of mauve iris were placed on the altar. The decorations were in charge of the Women's Auxiliary of the church. The wedding music was played by Mrs. H. Bishop.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gracefully draped gown of ivory brocade crepe and Chantilly lace, with a court train of ivory tulle and a bouquet of pale pink georgette and beads in pearls. Her tulle veil fell from a coronet of Honiton lace, caught with a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower of lily-of-the-valley, butterfly roses and sweet peas. Little Miss Amy Stevenson, in pale pink georgette, and Master Llewellyn Smith made charming little attendants, strewing flowers in the bride's path. The matron of honor, Mrs. George Marr, wore a gown of orchid georgette and carried a bouquet of mauve sweet peas, marguerites and baby's breath. Miss H. Grace Smith, the bridesmaid, was gowned in pink georgette, and carried pink sweet peas, marguerites and baby's breath. Both wore poke hats, matching their gowns, with white ostrich feathers trimmed with white ostrich feathers.

Mr. and Mrs. Norris left later by motor on a honeymoon trip through the White Mountains, the bride traveling in a smart suit of camelhair, with a small hat to match.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, "Hillsdale," which was artistically decorated with lilacs and tulips.

Mrs. Smith wore a gown of silver gray crepe Romaine, and Mrs. Norris, mother of the groom, wore a lovely gown of wistaria crepe with a picture hat of black lace.

CHILDREN ENTERTAIN
BOYLE MEMORIAL CLUB

Present Attractive Program of Instrumental and Song Numbers.

The regular meeting of the Boyle Memorial Mothers' Club took the form of a concert at the school last night, in which the children presented the program. A brief address was also given by the principal, D. J. Ferguson, who invited all of the mothers to be present at the annual exhibition of school work to be held next Tuesday. Last year two hundred guests were present at the school on exhibition day, and this year he expected even a larger number.

The program last night included instrumental by Mary Graham, Marjorie Lewis, Ruth Trotter, Alexina Johnson, Edna Walker, Ivy Atkinson and Norma Edwards; a duet by Ivy Atkinson (piano) and Kathleen Atkinson (violin); a song by two wees, Marjorie and Isobel White, a kindergarten daisy song by Marjorie Tennant, Ona Woods and Laura Weaver, and a reading by Wayva Darling.

The club decided not to have a picnic this year, the members putting all their energy into helping out at the school picnic.

Mrs. J. Goldby, the president, was in the chair, Mrs. Darling acting as secretary.

'Iron Man' Messenger Halts Tec Streak With Double Win

Blanked Tec 2-0 First Game, and In Overtime Second Affair Dodson's Triple Breaks Up Game and Carmen's Fine Effort.

Special to The Advertiser.

Muskegon, June 5.—The Dodson, centre fielder of the Anglers, climbed on Lefty Carmen's fast ball for a triple, scoring Steve Cozington, here, and broke up the second pitching duel of the day in favor of "Rube" Messenger, the locals taking both sides of the double program, 2 to 0 and 4 to 3.

Messenger turned the "iron man" trick with a vengeance and was given sensational support in the second game. In the first stanza of the day's proceedings, Messenger batted in one of the two runs scored by Muskegon and proceeded to hand a coat of whitewash to the Tecumsehs, attended by only two hits. Eleven hits were garnered off his delivery in the second game, but only three runs when he lightened in the pinches. He was aided in the second game by a slight lapse of effectiveness on the part of Duffy, who started in the box for London. Duffy was touched up for three hits in the second frame, Messenger's hit scoring two of the three runs.

Carmen had the game well in hand until the ninth, the second extra session of what was to have been a seven-inning affair. He allowed Muskegon just one hit in six and one-third innings before the fatal single and triple. Stimpson and Getzie each collected three hits in the afterpiece, Stimpson getting one triple.

Iroquois catches were plentiful in the two games. Stimpson and Getzie for the visitors, and Dodson and McHale for the home club, nailing base hits for put-outs right to the end of the game. In an almost sure triple off Stimpson's bat in the ninth inning. This would have meant the tie-run as Cozington singled immediately afterwards. Messenger allowed thirteen hits in the two games and struck out thirteen men. He granted a single base on balls.

FIRST INNING.
London—Stimpson whiffed. Messenger hit Getzie. McNamara walked. Schaefer hit a long fly, which Myers took, both runners advancing. Mostade fled out to Cozington.

SECOND INNING.
London—Thut popped. Kane threw out Boyle. McKee struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Glasgow, June 5.—Gene Sarazen and myself split even in a thirty-six-hole exhibition today on Lythamhill Links, Gt. B. I beat Gene by two up and one to play first round; in the second eighteen Gene was a victor by one stroke. He took seventy. I had seventy-one.

The course is very short and not difficult, which was the reason for low scoring.

Gene and I both hit shots today with more confidence than at any time since the arrival. I feel my game coming back fast and hope to be in top form next week. Gene is still driving a long ball and hitting iron shots beautifully.

The kid is going to surprise the critics over here. He is a tremendous crowd on hand today and a great mistake.

Britain's Pulse Quickens, Derby Run Today at Epsom

Special Cable to The Advertiser.
Manchester, June 5.—Everything is ready for the Derby tomorrow—track, horses, crowds, betting men, gipsies, showmen, automobiles, coaches, police and all the paraphernalia of the greatest event in English sporting circles of the year.

Owing to the illness of Princess Christian, the king's aunt, the king and queen will not be present, for the first time in many years. Little but the race is talked of today in England. Every workshop has its sweepstake; millions will have their bit on the race, that is, anything from a shilling to a thousand pounds. To the famous Epsom Downs there is a stream of refreshment wagons, gipsies with their caravans and showmen with booths and coconut shies. The race is a mile and a half, for three-year-olds, and the favorite, Lord Woolavington's Town Guard, is the usual center of mystery and rumors as to knocks and raps on every joint in his body.

SENIORS WORK OUT TONIGHT AND FRIDAY AT TEC. PARK

Plenty of Hard Work Ahead For Saturday Victory Over Stratford—Classics Invade St. Thomas Today For Important Game—Young May Hurl.

Tonight, and Friday night, Manager Ed Stein will have his London senior O. B. A. A. nine out for stiff drills, in preparation for the big Saturday game with Stratford. Last night, the boys went through a fast fielding practice, and they are all pumped up with confidence.

One thing will be certain, Saturday—there will be no repetition of last Saturday's instalment arrivals. The game will start at the time it is billed, and it will be up to London to go out there and win. As far as Stratford is concerned, that team appears on strength of recent good, thoroughly capable of making the fastest opponents step aside.

They forced St. Thomas to swallow little round pills for six straight innings last week, and then blew up. Any team that goes that far with St. Thomas, and has been one goose-egg after another, is shouting the lookout signal real loud.

They meet St. Thomas again today—this time in the Plover City. Young, recently reinstated by the A. A. U. of Little League, will take the mound for the Stratford "Classics," and that's a whole bucket-full of dope itself. McKean, St. Thomas' ace state manager, is not available, owing to a sprained ankle, and Billings will possibly be the manager of the Stratford team.

A Stratford win today will not only help Stratford chances, but will at the same time strengthen London's position, since a local win here Saturday will then tie London and St. Thomas.

SAINTS SEEM ANXIOUS.
St. Thomas' Junior team, who hope of remaining on the top of the Southern Ontario Baseball League, the Saints will meet the Stratford team at Plover City Wednesday afternoon. The locals have three consecutive victories to their credit, and look like

USE WOODSTOCK JUNIORS.
Woodstock, June 5.—Smartering under the weight of three straight defeats in the Southern Ontario Baseball League, the Woodstock Juniors, who have been at and doing for the game here on Saturday, when the St. Thomas outfit make their first appearance of the season here. The game will mark the appearance in the box of the Junior O. A. B. A. pitcher, Dougherty, who has several smart performances this season to his credit. He will have as a battery partner Lamb, who also plays in the junior outfit. If present plans carry, the baseball plant at Agricultural Park will be thrown open for the first time, and it is expected there will be a number of extra frills to the proceedings.

DOWN THE LINE IN ALL SPORTS
The Maple Leaf footballers leave for the Dome Mines in the Porcupine district Thursday night. The black flies and the mosquitoes arrived there about two weeks ago.

The result of the games in the Southern Ontario League this week should shake out the loop some. Stratford believes, with Young back and pitching in form, they'll beat St. Thomas right on the home lot this afternoon, and if they do the local bunch will have to work everything they know to win here on Saturday in their second home appearance.

Frank Shaughnessy is managing the Syracuse team and is part owner of the Canadian team in the Eastern Canada League, but he still thinks football. Shaughnessy, according to an interview in Toronto, foresees the day when the Canadian "varsity" eleven will stage international games with the big conference eleven of the United States.

Saughnessy, though brought up on United States football, believes the Canadian game much better. He, however, points out that until the universities here tackle their rugby problems earlier in the season the standard on this side must necessarily lag. He points as evidence of the hold football has on the other side, to the fact that most of the coaches have already had their squads hard at work for over a month.

Roland Todd has apparently yet to develop a punch, his questionable win over Ratner shows, and probably having gone so far along the road he'll end like so many of England's fighters—merely a wonderful boxer.

Home Wins In Ninth After Run Stopped At Plate.

Special to The Advertiser.

Flint, Mich., June 5.—Flint downed Hamilton, 1 to 0, here today in the best game that has been played here since the formation of the Flint League. It was a fine duel between Ullrich and Miller. The decision also gave Flint a clean sweep of the series. Hank Leach drove a home run to deep center field to win the game in the ninth, after Kuhn for Hamilton, had been tipped at the plate by Kaylor's double, and a great relay from Morehart to Ullrich to Warwick.

UP FROM THE DEATH CELL

By JOHN W. KANE.

Kane Finds That the Jail Officials Are Willing To Carry Out Orders Given By Him.

Synopsis.
Curly Kane wins his way to regeneration while in prison. A wild lad, he killed two carmen in a hold-up and after seventeen months in Murder's Row got a new trial with a life-imprisonment sentence instead of death. He studies law, reads, trains himself to be a magazine writer, and conceives the idea of a law permitting parole for life prisoners who serve fifteen years. By finesse he gets it passed. A new warden, with modern ideas, makes Kane his private secretary.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.
The warden picked up some papers on the table in front of him.
"I'll tell you briefly what these letters are about, and then you'll have to write them yourself. The truth of the matter is, I'm putting off on you a couple of jobs here that I can't do as well as I'd like, and the other is merely an ordinary business matter that must be gotten away at once."

Then he began a concise explanation about certain family affairs, particularly about three grown sons, two of whom were married.
"I don't want them to get to hank-erin' for jobs like these around here," said he. "In the first place, this prison administration isn't going to be any family affair. Moreover, we're taking hold of a tract of land down here some miles, and I want the boys to work that land and develop it.
Now if you can cite them any advantages as to that, as against the total lack of opportunities and advantages in this work for them, get busy and do so. Go into detail, if necessary, only give them something that will make 'em think, if possible."

I knew, as a matter of fact, that he could not have given me anything that I could do better.
"This other letter here, which mother and I would like to have you answer"—he referred to his wife—"is one to some friends of ours. They have recently lost a child. Can you write a letter of sympathy, the kind we want?"

"I think I can," I'm sure I can," I answered. "But just one question, please: Have you and Mrs. S. ever lost a child?"

"Yes, why do you ask?"
"That knowledge will help me to write the letter as it should be written," I answered.

A Snarl to Unravel.
"And this other—he unfolded a sheet that showed a land company's letter head—"is in reference to a tract of land that has timber, building stone and, perhaps, coal on it. This company wants to buy it from another company with which I have been connected in the past. You'll see what they say; that is, particularly what my former organization has to say. A part of that land has been under lease, and a part of that lease has been forfeited. Then on one side of the tract there is a question of rights involved because of some mining claims that were held by others prior to possession by the outfit I was interested with. In the event of an action at law, one of the main questions would be as to whether or not too long a time had elapsed for the former claim-owners to come back and set up any rights in the matter. You'll see for yourself what they say. If you want any further particulars, just phone to me.

I'll be upstairs."

With those explanations the new warden left me and went back to the upper part of the administration building, where the warden's family always lived.

Something told me that he had tried to give me a complicated piece of work in that mining-claim-land letter. And while I trust that I was not unduly confident—not to the extent of conceit, I hope—still a careful perusal of the two communications, in addition to what he had said, told me that I could do that letter also exactly as it should be.

The letter to the sons and that to the friends were written first. A careful reading of them by me called for a rewriting of one paragraph, which—because of the location of that paragraph—necessitated the writing of a whole page. I was not one who would do a botchy piece of work. I remembered what the warden had said about the master mechanic, and I had some knowledge of the kind of work he was in the habit of doing.

I Am Stumped.
Right in the middle of that business letter I came to a place where reference to the statute of limitations was necessary. I knew the nature of the law, but was not sure of the time in which action would be barred. And how was I to get around it? No, getting around it would not be a commendable piece of work. But where I was, out in the warden's office, and the work that I needed was in the library inside. I knew the phone call for the cellhouse in which the library was located, but how about sending an order for the book. Would the cellhouse custodian act upon my request? That was something new;
in all the years of the former administration no book except some kind of fiction had ever been sent out to the warden's house. Ought I to call the warden first, and then send for the book? No; I wanted those three letters complete before he saw them. I had been put to work in his office, and efficiency on my part required that I should be able not only to do the work properly, but to get through with all details without troubling him.

I walked to where they called the "inside," and punched the button for that cellhouse.

"No. 2," came the custodian's
answer, just as I had heard him

You Don't Stoke Up the Furnace in Summer

Foolish question, you say?

Some people are unwise enough, though, to keep to the same diet in June and July that they followed in mid-winter.

"Is the warden here, Jack?" he answered.
"Not just now, Mr. S.," I answered,
"he's upstairs."
"Well, here's a book they sent down," said he. "Do you know whether he wanted it left here?"
"Yes, right here, Mr. S.," I rose and took the volume. "And thank you very much."
The turnkey did not answer. In all the years that he had been there it was, I am sure, the first time that he had been thanked for delivering something to that office. The old warden himself did not believe in special courtesy to a guard, except upon occasions, and no other person had ever received things here.
Ten minutes later I was ready for submitting the letters to "the boss," and within about 30 minutes more he entered.
"How are you making out?" he inquired.
"The letters are ready," I told him.
He read them all through. That to the sons he read twice.
"Say, Kane," he looked over his glasses at me to say: "You're by this like the fellow was in mimicking a Dutchman; he could do it so well, that everybody agreed that he did it better than the Dutchman himself could. A person would think that you're writing to your own sons. How do you do that, anyway?"

Fiction Helps In Task.
"It's not so easy to explain as it might be, as glad as I am that you like the work," I answered. "Perhaps you know that I have read and thought and felt a great deal. In doing creative work, that is fiction, it becomes necessary for one actually to be in feelings a father, brother, husband, or wife, friend, or sweetheart, or, in the words of Lord Bacon,
"a wild beast, or a god." So, you see,
as I wrote that I merely put myself in your shoes and then I applied such knowledge and skill as I might perhaps have."

He took the letter of sympathy next. "The same principle applies in this, I see," he remarked.
"Exactly," I agreed.
"Now wait a minute," and he took up the business letter again. "There are parts of this one that I want to study a bit."
I waited.
"Are you a lawyer?" he asked, re-folding the letter.
"Oh, no, but I had a couple years study of the law."
"Where?"
"Right in there," I motioned toward the inside.
He puffed silently upon his cigar
for a moment, then:
"I've heard quite a bit about you,
Kane. I was under the impression that some people had a kind of exaggerated view as to your capabilities, but maybe they didn't have,
after all."

"I'm glad to hear you say that, warden," I told him, as I began to fold the sheets and seal the envelopes. And then, after I had begun entering the name of all the prisoners in a small ledger for his private use, he passed out of the room and left me alone.
I have a particular reason for telling the reader about my first day in the warden's private office. And here is a thought that I wish to leave with the reader, an inquiring thought: What if I had been called to the private office of the warden of a state institution 13 years before and handed those three letters to answer?
I would have been as much at sea as I would be now if suddenly placed in charge of a steel manufacturing plant. But determination, study, and hard work, even behind the walls, where I had been shut up to do, produced in me an efficiency that made the all-round-business-man warden smile with satisfaction.
