Clare O'Brien a Former Chathamite Taken to Task by Students

Is Kept Busy Explaining why he C. C. I. Pupil.

At a meeting of about 400 students of Ann Arbor University, which was called to discuss football matters, Clare O'Brien, a young journalist, and a former Chatham boy, had rather a lively time explaining his position in reference to an article which he wrote at the time of the big Michigan-Chicago game.

The Detroit Nowe Tribune in its

The Detroit-News-Tribune in its report of the meeting says:—

'Much of the university's attention "Much of the university's attention was riveted on the unique trial of Clare O'Brien, '96 lit., of Detroit, by the student council on the charge of writing an article antagonistic to the best interests of the university. Published as it was on the very day the news came that Chicago had outgeneraled Michigan at Chicago, the students seemed to feel 'that there was some connection between it and the disliked conference enactments. The opposition to its sentiment and to its. opposition to its sentiment and to its suthor was high for a time. O'Brien, reprimanded and fired from the Inlander staff by the council,

O'Brien, reprimanded and fired from the Inlander staff by the council, talked a lot and got one statement priated about his humble stand in the presence of the council, and his not-to-be repressed ideas on "How the council overstepped its bounds." He accepted the council's suggestion that he knew nothing at all about Michigan's athletic system with lit-tle grace, and promised to get outtle grace, and promised to get out some more stuff on Wolverine ath-

Clare attended the Chatham Collegiate Institute prior to entering the Ann Arbor University. He will be remembered by many who were then students, as the tallest pupil in attendance at the Collegiate at that time.

BOOM IN BUILDING

The fine weather has locally caused The fine weather has locally caused a great boom in the building trades. The Business College on Queen et, the Bank of Montreal, the Armory on Tecumseh Park, and many other large structures are progressing rapidly toward completion.

The second coat of plastering on the new residence being built for Mr. C. Austin was begun this morning and Mr. Austin hopes to be successfully installed in his new home by Easter.

J. R. Snell is making additions to his residence on Richmond street. Geo. Taylor's house on William street is almost completed, and altogether business is very brisk with local builders for the usually quiet month

"PARTING OF THE WAYS"

Mr. Neil Twomey's latest production, "The Parting of the Ways," attracted two large audiences at the Grand on Saturday.

Mr. Twomey having created and lived with his part, plays the leading role to perfection and he is capably supported by a company of competent artists. The piece is described as a comedy-drama, and it would be impossible to give it a better description, as a strong vein of humor runs through the whole play humor runs through the whole play intermingling with, and relieving, the heavy and dramatic tone of the piece. The scenery is above the ordinary, several heavy settings being required for the several acts and, in short, both from a melodramatic and scenic point of view, Mr. Twomey's latest effort is a decided success and one that will draw great crowds. umor runs through the whole play

FINAL SERMON TO YOUNG MEN

"Making the Most of Oneself"

Large and Appreciative Audience Was Present-Young People Especially Interested

"Making the Most of Oneself" was the theme of Rev. F. E. Malott's final sermon of the series to young final sermon of the series to young men preached last evening in Victoria avenue Methodist church. The entire series have proved very interesting and helpful and large audiences have gathered from night to night, filling the church to overflowing at times.

Mr. Malott based his address last night on the words "To this end was I born and to this end came I into the world," found in John xviii., 37.

Everyone is born for a purpose and the first inquiry of life should be "To what end was I born?" This is much better than wishing, as many is much better than wishing, as many do, that we had never been born. Life is a sacred trust and we are in this world to make the very best of it. We are here to make the most of ourselves. To that end we have been born.

The speaker said that there were three questions that naturally arise that he wished to answer:

1. What does it mean to make the most of oneself? 2. How can we make the most of ourselves?

3. Why should we make the most of ourselves?

of ourselves?

In answer to the first question he said, "To make the most of oneself is not merely to succeed as a lawyer, or doctor, or leacher, or merchant, or mechanic, or in any one of the various callings men enter. Nor does it mean to amass wealth. To make the most of ourselves is to give every power and faculty of our being a mance to develop to its highest.

In answer to the second question the speaker said we must aim definitely at the highest possible that we can hope to reach. Like St. Paul, while we are engaged in the multifarious duties and activities of life we should be able to say "This one thing I do. I' press toward the mark." Every man can not be a Saudon in bodily development, but every one should aim at gaining and maintaining the best health possible to him. Every man can not be a Gladstone, or a Daniel Webster, or a Fairbairn in intellect, but every to him. Every man can not be a Gladstone, or a Daniel Webster, or a Fairbairn in intellect, but every one should aim at mental improvement by reading and study. Every one can not be a St. Paul or a John Knox, a Martin Luther or a John Wesley in the religious world, but everyone should aim at religious improvement. Man is essentially religious and no man is making the most of himself who neglects prayer and Bible study and who fails to identify himself with the cause of Christ and work for the betterment Christ and work for the betterment of his fellows.

In closing Mr. Malott dealt briefly with the question why we should make the most of ourselves. A man owes it to himself to make the most of himself, for only thus can he attain to the highest satisfaction in life. He owes it to humanity. What we do for others will depend largely on what we are. He owes it to His Creator. "To glorify God is the chief end of man." We cannot truly glorify God unless we aim at making the most of ourselves. ost of ourselves.

The music at this service The music at this service was especially good. It consisted of an anthem by the choir, a solo by Miss Jackson, and a male quartette by the Messrs. Hallman, James Trotter and Harry Horstead. Mr. Hallman, Sr., also sang as a solo "Throw out the Life Line," the choir and congregation joining in the chorus.

There is always room for a trifle more affection on a wife than is usu-ally bestowed by even the best of

A LOVABLE YOUNG WIDOW

Rev. F. E. Malott Speaks on Rev. J. W. Hoyt Continues His Series of Sermons on Women

> Good Service at William St. Baptist Church-Special Music by Choir and Congregation

The church was crowded to the oors last night to hear the pastor of the William St. Laptists speak on the subject, "A Very Lovable Young Widow." The character selected was fluth, and from the text Rev. Mr. Hoyt preached a strong and forceful sermon.

The preacher first present the

The preacher first referred to the character of the Book of Ruth, and said it was like an oasis in the desert, or a fragrant rose in the midst of many thorns. If this story were given some striking title and were written by some modern writer such as kalph Connor, it would be the talk of all people.

as Ralph Connor, it would be the talk of all people.

Rev. Mr. Hoyt then drew a graphic picture of Elimelech and Naomi leaving Bethlehem with their two sons on account of famine and going down and settling in Moab, of the marriage of their two sons to two beautiful Moabitish maidens, and of the sickness which soon overtook both father and sons, which resulted ed in death. It was contrary to the law of God for the Jews to live among or to marry a heathen people, and here the preacher drew attention to the feet that anyone who violates the laws of God will surely be punished for so doing. Taking up, the thread of the discourse again Mr. Hoyt forcibly described the group of three widows—one old, with grey locks and wrinkled face, and the younger two, strong and vigorous. One of them Orphah, was persuaded to return to her own people, but Ruth said, entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee, etc. Ruth is seen first in her strong attachment to her mother-in-law, to her mother-in-law's people, and to her mother-in-law's her strong attachment to her mother-in-law, to her mother-in-law's people, and to her mother-in-law's God. "Thy people shall be my people, and thy God, my God."

Ruth is an example of industry to all people. She was a gleaner and went about the harvest field picking up the loose straws, and a straw here and a straw here and a straw there soon made a sheaf of grain. "It is no disgrace for any man or woman to earn an honest dollar in an honest way and in an honest place," said the preacher. But Ruth is distinguished by becoming the ancestress of Jesus. "She ing the ancestress of Jesus. She marries Boaz, the next of kin to Namie-And Boaz begat Obed and Obed begat Jesse and Jesse begat Da-

The service throughout was very interesting and impressive, and the speaker held his audience in rapt attention. One of the hymns sung by the large congregation was the Glory Song, one of the famous Torrey-Alex ander hymns. The choir sang a suitable anthem and Mrs. J. E. Oldershaw, delighted the congregation with a contralto solo.

S. STEPHENSON - Proprietor. A PROGRESSIVE JOURNALIST.

The fact has been wisely pointed out that it is impossible for a man to remain stationary-he is either pushing forward or going backward every day he lives. This is true of all individuals no matter what walk in life they choose, and it is the impulse of ambition, and the desire to achieve greater things, which compel a man to make the best of his opportunities and to advance along the lines of his chosen profession.

During the past week several references have been made to a young maa whom Chatham is proud to claim as one of her most talented sons and one who has made, and is making, rapid strides along the road to success. About twelve years ago Mr. Harry W. Anderson secured a position on the reportorial staff of this journal and, through natural gift and constant and energetic application, rapidly rose until five years ago he was appointed to the editorial chair. Since then his ability has shown itself in many ways, and he has filled that position with credit to himself and honor to his fellowmen. He has ever been an ardent and faithful promotor of anything calculated to advance the best interests of the community, and apart from that, has made many loyal and true personal friends, who, while realizing that his new position on the staff of the Toronto News will enable him to exercise his talents in the larger arena, regret that this step forward in his career, necessitates his removal from Chat-last, Jan. 22nd, of Smeon Smith, at his home, not 20, concession 1, Chatham Township, from cancer of the stomach. Deceased was 69 years, six months and five days old.

The following family remain to mourn his loss, William, in Camden; Alfred, Chatham Township; Herbert, at home; Simeon, Chatham Townham Township; Mrs. Clifford Daley, Tupperville; Miss Ida Smith, at home.

Mrs. Smith, who survives him, was Miss Eliza Steward. About a year ago their son Douglas passed away after a short illness.

The late Mr. Smith was a man much respected by the whole community, taking a deep interest in religious work, particularly Sunday school work. During the past 30 years through his efforts, he has been the means of organizing eight or ten Sabbath schools.

BOTH FOOD AND MEDICINE.

We like best to call Scott's Emulsion a food-medicine. It is a term that aptly describes the character and action of our Emulsion. More than a medicine-more than a food, yet combining the vital principles of both. It is for this reason that Scott's Emulsion has a distinct and special value in all wasting diseases. There is nothing better to remedy the troubles of imperfect growth and delicate health in children. The action of Scott's Emulsion is just as effective in treating weak-ness and wasting in adults. The Morning Post, Hamilton, Ont.,

A sensational blindfolded street

drive, unquestionably the greatest street exhibition ever seen in Hamilton, was given yesterday afternoon, by the Great Pauline, the eminent French hypnotist and mind reader. Starting at the Opera House he travelled twenty blocks in as many minutes, entirely blindfolded and absolutely without contact with any of his committee who were in the minutes, entirely blindfolded and absolutely without contact with any of his committee who were in the sleigh with him. Fully ten thousand people, attracted by the amouncement that the novel drive would be made, lined the streets and looked on in mystified wonder at the muffled figure, with reins in hand, handled the spirited teams down the thoroughfares, swing around corners and dodge street cars and other vehicles with ease and dexterity. Crowds were assembled at the post office and also at the store where the key was hidden to see the wonderful performance. Without difficulty he focated the key, drove to the post office, inserted the key in the box it belonged to, unlocked it and took a letter from the box and delivered it to the address thereon. People were turned away at the evening performance, and those who were fortunate enough to gain admission ware unanimous in their regise. ing performance, and those who were fortunate enough to gain admission were unanimous in their praise. That hypnotism is a scientific fact and has a place near the top of the list of wonders is being more firmly proven each night by the Great Pauline. Those who doubt the genuineness of the work can well afford to hay the price of admission. To listen, fully demonstrates to his or her entire satisfaction.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

Yew Fur Dog Collar — White Blouse Still In Favor—Smart Stocks. It was a French dressmaker who discovered the becomingness of the ermine dog collar and brought it into vogue. It is one of the season's novelties and is applicable to any outdoor garment that does not have a turndown collar. Decorative buttons and little tabs and bows of velvet are used to eke out the points of the upstanding collar.

are worn with linen shirt waists made perfectly plain save for a few tucks. Some of the newest stocks are graduated in height and shaped behind the ears, coming low down in front. Most of them are transparent and boned invisibly. The high, stiff stock, by the way, is going out of favor.

There is no sign of diminution in favor of the white blouse, but it may be noticed that there is a tendency this season to introduce upon it a little color. The crossed overblouse will have, for instance, a yoke of chiffon embroidered with tiny loops and ribbons of a contrasting color, while another favorite idea is to ornament the waist with small buttons or a series of lilliputian bows in some becoming

DRUNKENNESS AND CRIME. The Defense of Murderers Intoxicat

Drunkenness as a defense for murder can be reduced to the plain statement that a drunken man bent on commission of crime is as dangerous to the individual against whom his efforts are directed as is the man who is so-

The argument that murder or any other breach of the law should be condoned because the accused admits he had been drinking to excess for a considerable time before the crime was committed may appear reasonable, but is it? Manifestly the man was in possession of his faculties before he began drinking, and if he continued the debauch until such time as he believed he had some right to take the life of another there can be little excuse for

But it is not so much in the decision of one case that the danger lies. If the courts are to take as argument for acquittal the word of a man charged with felony that he is irresponsible be-cause it was committed while he was drunk, the possibilities are dangerous What is to prevent every deliberate murderer from hiding behind this defense, as so many of them have hidden behind the ruling of a court that there is emotional insanity? Is it not possible, if one man is acquitted of crime, or his sentence is made nothing more than a few years' confinement, because the crime was an act done while he was under the influence of liquor, that it will serve to increase the number of felonies of that character?

Bad Stomach Makes Bad Blood.

Bad Blood.

You can not make sweet butter in a foul, unclean churn. The stomach serves as a churn in which to agitate, work up and disintegrate our food as it is being digested. If it be weak, sluggish and foul the result will be torpid, sluggish liver and bad, impure blood.

The ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery are just such as best serve to correct and cure all such derangements. It is made up without a drop of alcohol in its composition; chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead of the commonly employed alcohol. Now this glycerine is of itself a valuable medicine, instead of a deleterious agent like, alcohol, especially in the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia and the various forms of indigestion. Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says of it:

"In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose." It is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs; especially if there is ulceration or catarrhai action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs; especially if there is ulceration or Catarrhai action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs; especially if there is ulceration or Catarrhai action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs; especially if there is ulceration or Catarrhai action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs; especially if there is ulceration or catarrhai action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs; especially if there is ulceration or catarrhai action and excertory functions of the intestinal dyspepsia, especially the flatulent variety, and in certain forms of chronic constipation, stigulating the secretory and excretory functions of the intestinal glands."

When combined, in just the right proportions, with Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Queen's root, Bloodroot and Mandrake root, or the extracts of these, as in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, there can be no doubt of its great efficacy in the cure of all stomach, liver and intestinal disorders and derangements. Underwear Elaborate In Design and Exquisitely Made by Hand. Turndown collars elaborately embroidered or exquisitely hemstitched are worn with linen shirt waists made

It is smart just now for all underwear to be most elaborate in design, and the materials employed must be of the finest and most expensive order. Real lace, either valenciennes or Irish point, is the favorite adornment. All trimming must be put on by hand, whether lace, tucks or flower designs worked in embroidery cotton. Cedar Logs Are Scarce.

Good clear fir logs cannot be obtained in this market at any price, says The Vancouver Province. An authority on the local logging situation stated recently that he knew for an absolute fact that it is impossible to buy 2,000,000 feet of clear fir on the British Columbia coast. Owing to the scarcity of good logs a number of millmen are reported to be turning their attention to secure supplies of timber on Puget Sound, where some fir is to be had. There is plenty of good clear cedar on this coast, but the demand just at present is for fir. An enormous amount of fir is being taken out of the woods daily, but none of it is free, or in other words, the output of independent loggers has been contracted for for several months ahead. Cedar Logs Are Scarce.

End of the Old Two-Party System in Great Britain.

our Parties In the British House o Commons-Only Four Members of Mr. Balfour's Late Cabinet Found Seats, While All the New Ministers Were Elected-Only Nine Returns to Be Received Now-The Standing.

London, Jan. 29.—Except that the reurns from nine constituencies have not been received, the general elections in the United Kingdom are ended. The Government coalition will have approximately 510 votes in the next Parliament, this estimate including on the side of Premier Sir Henry Camp-bell-Bannerman the National and Labor votes with the concrete Unionist minority of 160 votes on the opposition

Sir Henry will enter the new Parlia-ment on Feb. 13 with the greatest ma-jority ever given to an English premier.

The Unionists, hereafter the opposition, will barely fill half of the left benches, while another notable fact is that many of the most notable of the Unionist debaters will be absent, at least on the first day of the sixting, among them former Premier Balfour.
On the other hand, the Government's support will fill its own alloted seats and overflow into the vacant half of the opposition side, where the Nationalists and Independent Labor members will also find places.

will also find places.

The composition of the new Parliament, as near as it is now possible to tell, follows: Liberals, 376; Unionists, 166; Nationalists, 84; Laborites, 59.

Thus it will be seen that the Liberals

thus it will be seen that the Liberals have a majority over all of eighty-three votes, but such a thing as a combination of the entire force of Laborites and Nationalists against the Government is hardly conceivable. To the contrary, the Labor party members and Nationalist members may safely be main issues in Parliament for some time to come.

It should also be pointed out that the election probably marks the end of the old two-party system, there now being four groups, of which the Laborites are the most interesting.

The return of Mr. Long for Dublin makes him the fourth member of Mr. Balfour's Cabinet at the dissolution to survive in addition to Town Treasurer Kills Himself.

Cheshire, Mass., Jan. 29—Despondency and anxiety are believed to have been the cause of the suicide yesterday of Town Treasurer Fred E. Brown, aged 60. He had been much depressed for several months over the death of his wife. Mr. Brown was found dead at his home yesterday with bottle of morphine and chloreform by his side.

A NARROW ESCAPE

The latter part of last week, Wil-

The latter part of last week, Willie McNairnie, aged about five years, the little son of James McNairnie, attempted to cross the river near Capt. Steinhoffs. He broke through and managed to crawl out on the ice unnoticed by anyone. Drenched through by the ice waber he went home around by the bridges, a long walk around. On reaching home he found no one there, and taking off his wet clothing, crawled into bed. The plucky little fellow was, no worse for his bath, and the wet clothing was evidence of his adventure.—Wallaceburg News.

Varieties of Frost.

There are two very distinct varieties of frost, a "black" frost and a "white" frost. A white frost is indicative of the probability of rain, but two white frosts seen on consecutive mornings and, still more, three white frosts so seen, are certain forerunners of rain within a few hours. On the other hand. a black frost, especially if it comes on gradually during two or three days, indicates cold and dry weather. If during frosty weather mist disperses and small detached cirro-cumulus clouds appear in the upper air, a thaw may be expected. Cirro-cumulus is the scientific name for those clouds which are familiar to everybody under the name of "mackerel sky." Some other signs of an inpending break-up of front are the following:—A watery signs of an Inpending break-up of frost are the following:—A watery sun at sunrise; the sun setting in bluish clouds and casting reflected rays into them; the stars looking dull, and the larger ones only visible; the moon's horns looking blunted

There are some interesting anecdotes of the leading British literary lights of the middle nineteenth century in "Mrs. Brookfield and Her Circular Control of the Mrs. Brookfield and Her Circular Circula dotes of the leading British literary lights of the middle nineteenth century in "Mrs. Brookfield and Her Circle." On one occasion there was great embarrassment at one of their gatherings. The majority of the party were anxious to hear Tennyson read "Maud," the first copy of which had just reached him, but it was known that Carlyle could not endure to hear any one reading aloud. What was to be done? A plot was laid to have the reading during the time of Carlyle's morning walk, but for this he always demanded an appreciative companion. Mrs. Brookfield says: "Chairs had been arranged in a quiet sitting room. The visitors were taking their places. Alfred was ready. So was Carlyle—in the hall, walking for a companion in his walk and evidently determined not to stir without one. It was quite an anytone walk and evidently determined not to stir without one. It was quite an an-xious moment. At length Mr. Goldwin Smith generously stepped forward and joined the philosopher, and then Mr. Brookfield joined them both, while the rest of us remained to listen with en-thralled attention to the new words of the poet."

"much stronger," she answered. " expect I shall soon be quite myself again, now that I have once made a start. Mr. Wrexford, I asked Captain Blockman to let me see you in here for the first time, in order that I might have an opportunity of expres ing my gratitude to you before we face the passengers. You cannot imagine how grateful I am to you for all you have done for me since that awful night when the Fiji Princess went down. How can I ever repay you for it?"

"By becoming yourself again as tickly as possible," I answered; "I k no better payment." I thought she looked at me in I thought she looked at me in rather a strange way as I said this; but it was not until some time later that I knew the reason of it. At the time I would have given worlds to have spoken the thoughts that were in my mind; but that being impossible, I had to hold my tongue, though my heart should break under the strain. We were both silent for a little while, and then Miss Maybourne took my hand, and I could see that she was steeling herself to ask some she was steeling herself to ask some question, and was not quite certain what answer she would receive to

"Mr. Wrexford," she began, and there was a little falter in her voice as she spoke, "you told me on board the Fiji Princess that you were going to South Africa to try and obtain employment. You must forgive my saying anything about it, but I also gathered from what you told me that you you would arrive there without it. gathered from what you told me that you would arrive there without influence of any sort. Now, I want you to promise me that you will let papa help you. I'm sure he will be only too grateful for the chance. It would be a kindness to him, for he will remember that, but for you, he would never have seen me again."

"I did not do it for the sake of reward, Miss Maybourne," I answered, with an outburst of foolish pride that was not very becoming to me.

"Who knows that better than I?" she replied, her face flushing at the

"Who knows that better than I?" she replied, her face flushing at the thought that she had offended me. "But you must not be angry with me. It would be kind of you to let me show my gratitude in some way. Papa would be so glad to give you letters of introduction, or to introduce you personally to people of influence, and then there is nothing you might not be able to do. You will let him help you, won't you?"

ou, won't you?"
If she could only have known what she was asking of me! To be introduced to the prominent people of the colony was the very last thing in the world I wanted. My desire was to not only attract as little attention as might be, but also to get up country and beyond the reach of civilization as quickly as possible.

However, I was not going to make However, I was not going to make Miss Maybourne unhappy on the first day of her convalescence, so I promised to consider the matter, and let her know my decision before we reached Cape Town. By this compromise I hoped to be able to hit upon some way out of the difficulty before then.

From that day forward the voyage was as pleasant as it would be pos-was as pleasant as it would be pos-sible for one to be. Delicate as was our position on board, we were not allowed for one moment to feel that allowed for one moment to feel that we were not upon the same footing as those who had paid heavily for their accommodation. The officers and passengers vied with each other in showing us kindnesses, and, as may be imagined, we were not slow to express our gratitude.

Day after day slipped quickly by, and each one brought us nearer and nearer to our destination. As the distance lessened my old fears returned upon me. After all the attention I had received from our fellowers. upon me. After all the attention I had received from our fellow-travelers, after Miss Maybourne's gracious behavior towards me, it will be readily imagined how much I dreaded the chance of exposure. How much better, I asked myself, would it not be to drop overboard while my secret was still undiscovered, than to stay on board and be proclaimed a murder-to drop overboard while my secret was still undiscovered, than to stay on board and be proclaimed a murderer before them all?

On the evening prior to our reaching Cape Town I was leaning on the rails of the promenade deck, just below the bridge, when Miss Maybourne left a lady with whom she had been conversing, and came and stood beside me. The evening was cool, and for this reason she had thrown a lace mantilla, lent her by one of the passengers, over her head, and had draped it round her shapely neck, It gave her an infinitely charming appearance; indeed, in my eyes, she appeared the most beautiful of all God's creatures—a being to be loved and longed for beyond all her sex.

"And so to-morrow, after all our adventures, we shall be in Cape Town," she said. "Have you thought of the promise you gave me a fortnight ago?"

"What promise was that?" I asked, though I knew full well to where the propers of the propers.

"What promise was that?" I asked, though I knew full well to what she alluded.

though I knew full well to what she alluded.

"To let papa find you some employment. I do hope you will allow blin to do so."

I looked at her as she stood beside me, one little hand resting on the rail and her beautiful eyes gazing across the starlit sea, and thought, how hard it was to resist her. But at any cost I could not remain in Cape Town, Every hour I spent there would bring me into greater danger.

"I have been thinking it over as I promised," I said, "and I have come to the conclusion that it would not be wise for me to accept you offer. I have told you repeatedly, Miss Maybourne, that I am not like other mem. God know's how heartily I repent my foolish past, But repentance, however sincere, will not take away the stain. I want to get away from civilization as far and as quickly as possible. For this reason immediately we arrive I shall start for the Transvaal, and once there shall endeavor to carve out a new name and a new life for myself. This time, Providence, helping me, it shall be a life of honor."

"God grant you may succeed!" she said, but so softly that I could scarcely hear it.

Then I did a thing for which it was long before I could forgive myself. Heaven alone knows what induced me to do it; but if my life had depended on it I could not have acted otherwise. I took her hand in mine and drew her a little closer to me.

"Agnes," I said, very softly, as she turned her beautiful face towards me, "to-morrow we shall be separated, perhaps never to meet again. After to-night it is possible, if not probable, that we shall not have another opportunity of being alone together. You don't know what your companionship has been to me. Before I met you, I was desperate. My life was not worth living; but you have changed it all—you have made me a better man. You you have made me a better man. You have taught me to love you, and in that love I have found my belief in all that is good—even, I believe, a faith in God. Oh, Agnes, Agnes! I am not worthy to touch the ground you have walked on but I become a second to the second to the second to the ground you have walked on but I become well as the second to the s

She was trembling violently, but she did not speak. Her silence had the effect, however, of bringing me to myself, and it showed me my conduct in all its naked baseness.
"Foretye me"? I whispered. ""It was "Forgive me," I whispered; "it was vile of me to have insulted you with this avowal. Forget—and forgive, if you can—that I ever spoke the words. Remember me only as a man, the most miserable in the whole world, who would convit the most with the most miserable in the whole world, most miserable in the whole world, who would count it heaven to be allowed to lay down his life for you or those you love. Oh, Agnes! is it possible that you can forgive me?"

"I have nothing to forgive," she said, looking up into my face with those proud, fearless eyes that seemed to hold all the truth in the world; "I am proud beyond measure to think you love me."

When I heard these precious words, I could have fallen at her feet and when I heard these precious words, I could have fallen at her feet and kissed the hem of her dress; but I dared not speak, lest I should forget myself in my joy, and say something for which I should never be able to atone. Agnes, however, was braver than I.

"Mr. Wreyford" above said "way."

"Mr. Wrexford," she said, "you have told me that you love me, and now you are reproaching yourself for having done so. Is it because, as you say, you are poor? Do you think badly of me as to imagine that that could make any difference to me?"

"I could not think so badly of you if I tried," I answered.

"You have said that you love me?"

"And I mean it. I love you as I believe man never loved woman before—certainly as I shall never love Then, lowering her head so that I could not see her face, she whisper-

Her voice was soft as the breath

"God forbid!" I cried, almost fiercely. "You must not love me. You shall not do so. I am not worthy even that you should think of me."

"You are worthy of a great deal more," she answered. "Oh, why will you so continually reproach yourself?"

"Because, Agnes, my conscience will not let me be silent," I cried. "Because, Agnes, you do not know the shame of my life."

"I will not let you say 'shame,'" she replied. "Have I not grown to know you better than you know yourself?"

How little she knew of me! How little she guessed what I was! We were both silent again, and for nearly five minutes. I was the first to speak. And it took all the pluck of which I was master to say what was in my mind. "Agnes," I began, "this must be the mind.

"Agnes," I began, "this must be the end of such talk between us. God knows, if I were able in honor to do so, I would take your love, and hold you against the world. But, as things are, to do that would be to proclaim myself the most despicable villain in existence. You must not ask me why. I could not tell you. But some day, if by chance you should hear the world's verdict, try to remember that, whatever I may have been, I did my best to behave like a man of honor to you."

She did not answer, but dropped her head on to her hands and sobbed as if her heart would break. Then, regaining her composure a little, she stood up again and faced me. Holding out her hand, she said:

"You have told me that you love me. I have said that I love you. You say that we must part. Let it be so. You know best. May God have mercy on us both!"

I tried to say "Amen," but my voice refused to serve me, and as I turned and looked across the sea I felt the hot salt tears rolling down my cheeks. By the time I recovered my self-possession she had left me and had gone below.

A Common Saying.

The familiar phrase "please the pigs" is a corruption of the more reverent "please the pixes" (or fairles) of our ancestors, who were always scempulously regardful of the susceptibilities of the "little people," as they sometimes called them. Not that the original expression has entirely died out yet, for it is still frequently used, with all its old, meaning, in many parts of the country, particularly in and about Cornwall and Devonshire.

It is not the back that is aching, but the kidneys which are situated beneath the small of the back.

Therefore, dull pain in the back, or sharp, quick twinges, are warnings of sick kidneys—warnings of kidney trouble. Plasters and liniments will not cure a bad back, for they cannot reach the kidneys which cause it. Doan's Kidney Pills reach the kidneys. That is what they are for and that only. So, if you would be free from backache, swelling of the feet and ankles, frequent or suppressed urine, painful sensation when urinating, specks floating before the eyes, frequent thirst, brick-dust deposit in the urine, or anything wrong with the urinary organs or bladder, you must keep your kidneys well. Help them to work freely, and help them to flush off all the body's waste and impurities.

Doan's Kidney Pills are made from the purest roots and herbs, and have a remarkable healing and toning effect on the kidneys. Mrs. Barling, 26 Locomotive Street, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I had been troubled considerably with my kidneys, using many remedies, but finding no relief. I tried Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to act directly on the kindeys, and making them strong again."

Stories of Queer Mistakes Made In the Pulpit-Some Unconscious Humor -Bulls by Divines.

Each profession has its stock jokes, its stories innumerable, and to each belongs a flavor all its own. That the point of a jest lies not in the tongue of him who makes it, but in the ear that hears, is the testimony of the great dramatist. The doctor on his rounds and the judge upon the bench have both an audience ready and willing to accept as the highest wit the bon mots of the speakers, and there is no club gathering of men that does not acclaim one of its members as supreme in this respect, and are ready to yield due recognition of the gift.

There is, however, a vast amount of unconscious humor always floating about, and to those who perceive it the world is ever very amusing. It must Each profession has its stock jokes, world is ever very amusing. It must be admitted that the blunders and jests clerical stand for some reason pre-eminent both in number and is mirth producing qualities. The reason, of course, is not far to seek, the very surroundings in which they occur the very unsetting of one's prevery surroundings in which they oc-cur the very upsetting of one's pre-conceived notions of reverence, all tend to cause a reaction in the ordinary mental equilibrium, and the simples mistake or accident under such circumstances assumes the proportion, of a huge comedy.

The divine who in drawing the attention of his congregation to a special communion service on the following Sunday informed them that "the Lord is with us in the foreno "the Lord is with us in the forenoon and the bishop in the evening," is chronicle with praying for the children of his parish in these words: "And now, O Lord, bless the lambs of this fold, and make them meet for the kingdom of heaven." While a Scotch min-ister innocently, perhaps, hit the mark by telling his people, "Weel, friends, the kirk is urgently in need of siller, and as we have failed to get money honestly we will have to see what a bazaar can do for us."

There is a certain amount of excuse to be made for the young curate who, remarking that some people came to church for no better reason than to show off their best clothes, finished up as he glanced over his audience: "I am thankful to see, dear friends, that none of you have come here for that reason."

An Irish clergyman is credited with An Irish clergyman is credited with having concluded a powerful oration in this fashion: "My brethren, let not this world rob you of a peace which it can neither give nor take away." Which is coupled with the remark of a fellow country colleague who, in reasoning with a woman who had lost her faith in Christianity told her: "Well you will go to hell, you know, and I shall be very sorry, indeed, to see you

But what can be said of the negro student, who, conducting the prayers at one of the great missionary colleges, said: "Give us all pure hearts, give us all clean hearts, give us all sweet hearts," to which the entire congregation made response. "Amen."

The giving out of church notices has often proved a pitfall for the unwary "During Lent," said a rector lately, "several preachers will preach or Wednesday evenings, but I will not wednesday evenings, but I will not give their names, as they will be all found hanging up in the porch."

It was a rector whe gave out a hymn beginning, "Awake, my soul, stretch every nerve," before his sermon, and a curate who read in the lesson for the day: "He spake the words, and cathonyers came and greenvery leave the cathoppers came and grasspillars in-numerable." but it was at a young woman's Bible class that, when asked what hymn should be sung at the close they all with one accord chose "Where is My Wandering Boy To-night?"—Chambers Journal.

The Tooth Offering.

In Scotland and many parts of England, and, indeed, throughout Europe, it is (or used to be) a popular custom when a tooth is extracted to put a plnch of salt on it and throw it into the fire. This is a survival of a remotely ancient practice, dating from the Gothic days of Sun worship, of which the fire is an emblem; and the action of huming a separated tooth which the fire is an emblem; and the action of burning a separated tooth was recognized as "a tooth offering." The alleged penalty for omission of the observance varied in different localities. In one it was said that the next tooth would be a "buck's" or a "dog's" tooth; or that the neglectful owner of the tooth would have to search for it after doath in Heads or that competing else

Apple Pips and Peelings. Apples have long been invested by the superstitious with mystic influence, for the reason that they used to be regarded as the forbidden fruit of the Tree of Knowledge. An old Scottish belief is that if an apple-pip be shot from between thumb and finger its light takes the direction from be shot from between thumb and finger its flight takes the direction from which the shooter's partner in life will come. Another, and more general, superstition is to peel an apple in one long unbroken strip of rind, which is then thrown over the left shoulder. Prof. Kilpatrick's Panegyric Upon the Sons of the Heather.

"Let us be benevolent to those who "Let us be benevolent to those who do not enjoy so high a distinction as ourselves of being born north of the Tweed," said the Lieutenant-Governor in setting the toast-making responses arolling at the 69th St. Andrews' Society dinner at Toronto on Nov. 30, 1905. "We seek to rekindle to-night that spirit of love to our country, which, however deep, can never encroach in any way upon our love for the country of our adoption. Scatchmen deserve of our adoption. Scotchmen deserve well of the whole Canadian commonwealth. We have done our share in building up this vast Dominion. Let me give you Lord Rosebery's words 'that man is the best Imperialist who loves his native province most.'"

"We are assembled in spirit with all true Scotsmen throughout and beyond the Empire this night," said Prof. Kilpatrick to the toast "The Day and All Who Honor It," "The achievements of brither Scots must come to our thoughts. In all fields of activity the name of Scotland is writ large. The name of Scotland is writ large. The Scotsmen are noted empire-builders. All over this Canada are traces of their work. No greater idealists live. They have continued across the water their ideals of home life, and have presented to the Empire an ideal of purity, of the social bond and of brotherhood. They have also contributed an ideal of character—a distinctiveness which the Empire would do ill without. A vigor of mind, steadfastness of purpose, tenacity of resolution, a devotion to causes lost and won—these were immutable traits of the Scotch character.

Wolves Plentiful and Fierce.

The Jackson hunting party returned on Thursday night from the head of Stony Lake, where they were located during the hunting season, says The Campbellford Despatch of the 7th Dec Mr. Jackson states that the woives in that section have this season played havoc with the deer, and, in fact, have become so numerous as to be a menace to human life. On Sunday last a man driving in from Havelock, was sur-rounded by a pack of ferocious howling monsters, and was forced to get out of his buggy and seize his horse, which had become affrighted, by the head. The pack approached rapidly, and had it not been for the timely arrival of a number of men from a lumber camp in the vicinity an attack, he believed, was certain. Thomas Hull, who resides at the head of the lake, has been sides at the head of the lake, has been a severe sufferer from the ravages of the wolves, ten of his flock of sheep having been killed a short time ago, together with a helfer. The destruction of deer by the same cause is regarded as most disastrous by the returned nimrods. A hound which was in pursuit of a deer upon a runway was attacked and torn to pieces by the ferocious brutes.

With the present large bounty upon wolves a systematic destruction of Chickens That Came High.

A good story comes from New Ham-burg, says The Waterloo Chronicle. A burg, says The Waterloo Chronicle. A farmer living not a thousand miles from that piace, on entering his chicken-house one morning discovered that a number of his best birds were missing, and on looking around found a purse lying in the straw of the henhouse. Picking it up imagine his surprise to find that it contained $80 in bills. He quictly put the money in his pocket and said nothing. Later in the day a wealthy neighbor called and asked if he had any chickens for sale. The farmer told him he had not, but asked if he had any chickens for sale. The farmer told him he had not, but he insisted on seeing them anyway. But the visitor did not see much of the chickens. From the time he entered h. hen-house his eyes were riveted on the floor, and the way in which he kicked around in the straw spoke more considerity, the could words. convincingly than could words.

Points to Facts Which go to Show For Better Administration

Premier Makes a Strong Speech in Interests of Mr. McIntyre at Kingston

Ringston, Jan. 29 .- Donald McIntyre's meeting Saturday night was a great gathering, with no interrupters and no unpleasantness at all. The presence of three members of the Govrespect and attention was shown to the Ministers. Premier Whitney came out broadfooted on several matters of policy, and Mr. Foy launched a sen-sation as to the methods in the Crown Lands Department of the old adminis-tration.

Mr. Whitney made some caustic remarks upon Mr. Pense's recent admission that the Liberals were "suffering for the sin of being found out." He emphasized that the Government now had a very large majority, which would not be affected by Mr. Pense's defeat. He wanted Kingston to just do its, duty and act according to the dictates of its conscience on Monday. The speeches of Hon. Dr. Reaume and Hon. Mr. Foy pointed out the bad ways of the old Government. Mr. Foy broached a case of stolen timber lands which promises to develop into a sensation.

which promises to develop into a sensation.

Premier Whitney's critics agree with his admirers that his speech before the big gathering was one of brilliance and grasp, with a thought to the text all the time, couched in pretty language, scintillating at times with wit, sawing a little toward sareasm now sawing a little toward sarcasm now and then, and framed in bitter goodnature, and it was a great speech, be-fore a great audience, wrapt in atten-tion, all the time with no dissention

Dr. Reaume's Address.

Hon. Dr. Reaume is more of a heart-to-heart talker than an orator. His game is to get every man in the audience to think that he is being spoken to personally. Perhaps he doesn't mean it, but it counts just the same. He told the electors of Kingston that Dan Mc-Intyre could have all the help at his disposal to secure his election. He had come from the west-to take a squint at the asylum and learn of its wants. the asylum and learn or its wants. He intimated that there would soon be something doing in the way of improvements there, and further that the Kingston paper of Mr. Pense had a one-sided proposition when charges were printed instead of being proclaimant of the state of the sta ed in a manly way before an audience of the electors.

Carloads of cheers greeted his reference to Candidate McIntrye, which was elever and complimentary.

Solid For the Candidate.

McIntyre seems to be pretty solid. There was not a grunt of disapproval when he stepped forward. Mr. Me-Intyre said the mistake made in Kingston last January must be righted. He sailed into the secret ballot situation, and was cheered for the announcement that a man could vote for who he liked now without fear, as the numbered ballot was a thing of the past. He re-pudiated the vindictiveness charged to him through Mr. Pense's paper.

Mr. Foy's Speech.

Hon. J. J. Foy compared the actions of the present Government, which Mr. McIntyre represents, and the old one, which had been so signally defeated a year ago.

There have been things done in the There have been things done in the Parliament buildings that the people of this province ought to know, and in the course of time they will know," said Hon. Mr. Foy as he got the audience interested to the hear a pin drop point. "Things that will make Mr. Pense and the reform press sorry," he continued and he related that the large state.

ued and he related that only very recently and accidentally the facts came out. Way back in 1898 an order-in-council was passed granting Angus Mc Leod and J. J. McNeil of Muskoka the right to cut the timber on some burnt areas in Northern Ontario. The orderin-council embodies the advertisement describing the timber limit, and was passed May 9, 1898. In the advertise-ment the offering is the pine timber which is estimated at 5,750,000 feet, board measurement, situate on the poard measurement, stuate on the morth and west of the east branch of the Spanish River. McLeod & McNell tendered and were granted the privilege on the consideration of them paying $20,150 as a bonus, in addition to the regular ground dues of $1.25 per 1,000 feet board measure. They save 1,000 feet, board measure. They gave a bond of $10,000 to guarantee the performance of their part of the contract, and the timber was to be removed promptly. Hon. J. M. Gibson was commissioner of Crown Lands when this was done, and a short time afterwards McLeod & McNeil got an extension whereby a small portion of the land on the other side of the river was included as some of the burnt timber there. there, and it was thought by Mr. Gib son that the tenderers were entitled to

That did not end it though, and it That did not end it though, and it looks as if the transaction included about anything the tenderers liked to take, for they gained possession of an area of twelve miles by eighteen miles, on the east and south side of the river, for nothing. All records of the way in which this came about have disappeared, as far as the Government is concerned. There are no documents to show how it was consummated. The show how it was consummated. The original grant of 5,750,000 feet had been thus increased to 120,000,000 feet, all there is in the Department to show anything about it is a copy of a map given by Hon. Mr. Davis to the company on which the extension is reasonable. pany, on which the extension is markpany, on which the extension is marked. Apparently Mr. Davis marked it on the map and told them they could have it. The Deputy Commissioner of Crown Lands has stated to the Government new that Mr. Davis gave a ruling authorizing the extension and had given the men a map on which the district was marked out. No record of 150 years old.

Premier Whitney's Speech.

Mr. Whitney was received with great applause. He commenced at once to draw attention to some of the things which the Conservative Government had done since it had come into power. The Government had taken steps to bring about an efficient and honest enbring about an efficient and honest en forcement of the liquor laws. During the short time that they had been in office the revenues of the asylums, prisons, etc., had increased by about $150,000. There arese the question of the pool room at Toronto Junction. The Government had turned its attention also to the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway and had at once changed the commissioners; under whose authority the road was being constructed. constructed.

The record made by the new com-nissioners had been remarkable. The dministration of the Crown Lands Department showed a similar gain in revenue to that of the others mentioned.

Another feature of the Government management of the Tenriskaming and Northern Ontario Railway had been that outside of the members of the Legislature, no passes had been issued. Great stress had been placed by the Conservative party when in opposition upon the reprehensible practice of disposing of immense areas of pulpwood lands by secret bargains. The Government of the conservative posing of immense areas of pulpwood lands by secret bargains. men had taken steps to cancel all these agreements, the provisions of which had not been carried out. A measure of success had attended the Govern-ment's administration of the Department of Agriculture. At present there are nearly 200 more students at the are nearly 200 more students at the Guelph Agricultural College than there had been during the previous year. While, on this subject, said Mr. Whitney, he desired to mention the case of Dr. Mills, who had been for so many years the head of the Guelph Agricultural College, who had gone to Europe on at least one occasion in the interests of the college, and had paid his own expenses, but, on his leaving the service of the province to take up his position as a member of the Dom nion Railway Commission, no gratuity or allowance had been made to him, nor even any compensation. Mr. Whit-ney spoke for a couple of hours. He ney spoke for a couple of hours. He would not do away with manhood franchise; no thought of it. He had not adopted the spoils system. Many charges against the old Government were proven before the Conservative Government came into power. Documentary evidence had been removed. He said Mr. Pense was not even endorsed by his party.

Mr. Whitney drew attention to one instance of injuity which had been carried so far that it was impossible to carried so far that it was impossible to right the wrong which had been done. The Ontario Government had granted to the Grand Trunk Pacific a subsidy of $2,000 a mile in cash and 6,000 acres of land per mile, including the minerals, simply for their connecting line between Port Arthur and the main line of the G. T. P., a distance of 200 miles. The company would have had to built the line anyway, and Mr. Whitney did not believe they had ever asked for what they received.

"A public official who performs his duty and does not interfere in election matters will be supported and backed up by the Government," said Mr. Whitney, referring to the "spoils system." One department in Ottawa had in eight months dismissed more employes than all those dismissed for good reason by the Ontario Government.

SPLENDLO SERVICE

The pulpit of Christ Church was occupied last evening by Rev. Mr. Newell, of Wallaceburg, who in an eloquent manner gave a most interesting sermon on "Reading the Scriptures." He set forth various reasons why the Bible should be more generally read, and pointed out the effect which would be produced if the rising generation were more given to studying the word of God, and using it as their guide through life. He also gave some valuable suggestions as to how the Scriptures should be read and interpreted.

The music rendered at both services by the splendid vested choir was of a very fine order and assisted much in making the services bright and interesting. This choir has undergone some changes during the past week. New choir boys have been added, thus increasing the volume of the chorus singing.
