SELECTIONS.

THE ALABAMA CLAIMS.

The Daily News hopes that if President Johnson does not intend to give up claim, he will soon prefer it, so that one way or another the matter may be brought to a settlement. It says Lord Palmerston's answer last night was very satisfactory. It would have been very easy to say that a formal and official demand of the United States had been made, or that it had not. Palmerston's reply was to the utterance of a Delphic oracle. The News trusts that some member of Parliament will be soon knowing whether definite demand had been made for indemnity, or whether no demand had been made since the inauguration of Johnson; and it adds, "We have not the slightest doubt as to the inevitable reply."

The Morning Post says that "the correspondence can lead to only one result, namely, an unconditional refusal on our part to indemnify the Americans for losses occasioned by the chances of war."

The Times says, "Not a single precedent can be produced, we believe, for the allowance of a similar claim under similar circumstances, and no rule of natural justice enjoins us to pay for mischief done by the Alabama." It questions whether the American Government did its duty with adequate vigor against the privateers; and adds, "Doubtless it was our part to have prevented the Alabama and others from putting to sea if evidence of their warlike equipment could have been obtained; but those parts were it to have captured them after they had given us the slip? As was the United States Government preferred to employ all their available fleet in blockading the Southern coast, leaving us to guard every outlet of our own coast as well as could. Surely it would be somewhat unreasonable to expect that a Confederate agent, for who too quick for us? For the British subjects, who for their own profit, did all in their power to thwart the honorable intentions of the Government, we have not a word to say; but their acts were not the acts of the nation, which has suffered far more than individuals have gained by the untoward escape of the Alabama."

The London Weekly Register says:—It is stated, and we believe correctly, that President Johnson has sent in his bill against this country for losses inflicted upon Federal commerce during the civil war by Confederate vessels used in British ports, and for the demand for payment to the last farthing. We suppose it is unnecessary to say that no British Minister would be his head to recognize a claim so utterly preposterous and devoid of the very semblance of right. The ultimatum in case of non-payment, was that we should cease to trade with the United States, and that we should be obliged to pay for the losses sustained by the British and the immediate seizure of Canada as a material guarantee for payment of the demand. We trust that councils so rash and unprincipled as the late administration, will be charged with any exceptional mission whatever, and having no other powers than those held by his predecessor."

REMARKABLE ELECTRICAL PHENOMENON AT EAST POINT.

Quite a remarkable circumstance, or rather a phenomenon, happened here the other day, something I've frequently read of but never witnessed before. It occurred on May 24 while the corps was at battalion drill. The weather looked very much like a thunder-shower, still not a drop of rain fell on the Point; we had just counter-marched in column and the battalion was at a support arms, which you know is with the gun resting by the hammer on the left arm, the muzzle pointing some distance above the body. I happened to be looking up at the time, and saw a large dense black cloud hovering overhead, when suddenly there was a very vivid flash and loud report at the same time, the report resembling that of a shell exploding, having none of that rumbling peculiar to distant thunder. My first impression was, as I knew they were firing across the river, that one of the guns burst and the shell had taken a crooked path, as it often does under such circumstances, and had burst overhead. I involuntarily ducked my head for falling pellets. This all passed quickly in my mind on the instant, as you know how quickly one thinks under such circumstances. Of course, when I saw the gun flying out of men's hands, I felt a numbness in my arms, I knew what was coming, or rather what had come down. Quite a number of men were stunned, so that they went reeling round for some minutes, and one man (a yearling) was knocked senseless. I thought at first he was a general but they took him out on the plain, poured water on him, rubbed him, &c., and he came in in about 15 minutes, when they took him to the hospital. Next day he was all right, except a little weak. Colonel Black was also struck, knocking his horse down on his knees, and frightening the "bummils" something. I supposed the reason the cloud discharged itself was that it was quite low down, and was strongly attracted by the conducting surface of about 200 bright gun-barrels all pointing vertically upwards. Had it been only a small body of men, say guard mounting for instance, I suppose it would have been much more destructive. As it was, it seems to have diffused itself over the whole corps, as almost every man in the battalion felt it more or less, and in every company, a dozen or more guns were knocked out of the hands of the owners. On the whole, I think it was a pretty good little electrical experiment, I shouldn't care about trying it over again.—New Jersey Register.

His threat is not directly against the President, though the tone of the letter indicates as much.

Enough of our armies will be retained to enforce any demand upon Foreign Governments.

It is understood that preliminary measures have already been taken to enforce the Moore Doctrine, and notification has been sent to Napoleon, that he must not only send no troops to Mexico, but that he must withdraw those he has there, and leave the people of Mexico to decide for themselves whether they will have a Republic or an Empire.

It is believed that the explosion of the Ordnance boat at City Point last summer, by which 70 or 80 lives were lost, and a large amount of property was destroyed, was the work of rebel agents who were paid in gold by the Richmond government.

Nearly all the leading generals have left Washington. Grant and Sherman have gone to Vicksburg. President Johnson has moved into the Executive mansion yesterday. He is constantly engaged with Southern delegations on the subject of re-construction.

The Times Mobile correspondent represents a terrible state of affairs in Alabama; there is absolute social demoralization. Labor is so despoiled by the whites that they actually prefer starvation or begging to work in any form, and even in their penury and wretchedness they show the most violent spirit of disaffection. #### Plantation Bitters.

The New York Tribune says, "the reason why Dr. Drake's Plantation Bitters are so universally used and have such an immense sale, is that they are always made up to the original standard, of highly invigorating material and of pure quality, although the price has so largely advanced." Ac.

The Tribune just hits the nail on the head. The Plantation Bitters are not only made of pure material, but the people are told what it is. The Recipe is published around each bottle, and the bottles are not reduced in size. All cast-renty imitations and counterfeiters have sprung up. They impinge upon the people once and that's the last of them.

The Plantation Bitters are now used in all the Government Hospitals, are recommended by the best physicians, and are warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. Facts are stubborn things.

DEFEATERS OF THE COLONIES.

In the House of Commons, on the 26th, Mr. Marsh called attention to the cost of the protection of the Colonies, and the advantages we derive from them. He considered that the possession of the Colonies was indispensable for the circulation of the commerce of the country, and he thought the Imperial Government was bound to aid and assist them.

Mr. Bazley thought the Colonies ought to rely principally upon their own resources.

Mr. Cardwell reminded the house that the policy of the country was in Algeria, that his return into Italy would be deferred until about the middle of June. He is carefully noting everything he sees, and local opinion would point that he should not inquire into the subject of any way to pry into matters which the local authorities would prefer to be left alone to settle. He listens with exemplary patience to the complaints of the Arab chieftains, who have told him of the grievances which drove them to desperation and revolt; and his clemency in pardoning the Fittas who were concerned in the late insurrection has made him admired and respected by these unruly people. The visit of the Emperor to this part of his dominions will probably be followed by a series of important and valuable reforms.

THE NEWSPAPER APPREHENSIVE.

Without my newspaper, life would narrow itself to the small limits of my personal experience. I am with me, but I would not know how they stand. I never—never, in all likelihood, shall be—in Japan; but I have an intense curiosity to know our troops did at Yokohama. I deplore the people who suffered by the railroad smash; and I sympathize with the newly married couple so beautifully depicted in the Illustrated, as they drove off in a chaise and four, and the bald old gen't at the hall door waving them a last adieu. I like the letters of the correspondents, with their little grievances about unrequited trains, or some innumerable omissions to the contrary. I even like the people who chronicle the rainfall, and record their facts about the misdeeds of the season. As for the advertisements, I regard them as the glass and mirror of the age. Show me but one page of the Wants of any country, and I engage myself to give a sketch of the current civilization of the period. What glimpses of rare interiors do we gain by these brief paragraphs. #### THE LAST SURVIVING MEMBER OF THE IRISH HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Sir Thomas Stapes, Bart., has passed away. The deceased, who was 90 years of age at the time of his death, was stout and hearty within a very short period of his decease. He was an undividing opponent of the Act of Union, against which he voted, notwithstanding the blandishments of Castlereagh. He represented Coleraine in the Irish Parliament, and subsequently Knocktopher, in the county of Kilkenny, which has long since ceased to have a parliamentary representative. He was the father of his dear son, who was ever made any great beloved and respected. He never made any great display at the Bar or at the Senate; but he was a good lawyer, an accomplished scholar, and the true type of a real Irish gentleman.

THE BRILLIANTLY INTRODUCED BY THE HON. MR. ANGLIA INTO THE NEW BRITAIN LEGISLATURE.

The New Britain legislature, on the subject of Reformatories, similar to that passed some years since by the Imperial Parliament, and under which several of these institutions have been brought into successful operation in England and Ireland, passed the lower house without opposition, but was rejected by the Legislative Council, which contains a majority of members opposed to the present Government.

AN ASSASSINATION.

The New York Times says:—There are unmistakable signs in the neighboring Province of a revival of the annexation feeling of 1849. The reaction caused by the failure of the scheme for uniting all the Provinces has had its influence in this direction. The proposal to spend the £200,000 in a year, for (four years) voted by the British Parliament, in forts at and around Quebec, which nothing has been voted for the West, has naturally provoked innumerable feelings in the popular mind of Upper Canada. The fear that no commensurate gain would accrue to the Western tax-payer—who contributes three-fourths of the cost of the West, has grown stronger every day as the prospect of a federal union with the Maritime Provinces has dimmed. And some of the local journals of the Upper Province are not backward in giving emphatic expression to sentiments strongly derogatory to the importance and value of continued British connection. The industrial interests of the country, east and west, are in a more backward condition than they have been for many years; and there is a large and steady emigration both from Upper and Lower Canada to the United States. These are facts which we record with anything but pleasure. The people of this country were satisfied to see the Colonies make an experiment in federation, either as a dependency of the mother country or otherwise, as they might deem most profitable. Their failure—or failure it must be—a matter for regret.

A CORRESPONDENT OF THE KILKENNY JOURNAL STATES.

In proof of the extent to which the country is drained of its agricultural population by the exodus, that having a few days ago passed through the midst of a district in the county Kilkenny that he knew to be formerly densely populated, he only met three or four persons in the entire route where he often met hundreds, and that in the once thriving village of Dunmore there is but one person residing besides the constabulary, where there was a considerable population some time ago.

NEW-BEDFORD, MASS., NOV. 24, 1863.

DEAR SIR:—I have been afflicted many years with several protruding cramps in my limbs, cold feet and hands, and a general disordered system. Physicians and medicines failed to relieve me. Some friends in New York, who were using Plantation Bitters, prevailed upon me to try them. I commenced with a small wine-glassful after dinner. Feeling better by degrees, in a few days I was astonished the cold-cramps had entirely left me, and I could sleep the night through, which I had not done for years. I feel like another being. My appetite and strength have also greatly improved by the use of the Plantation Bitters.

Respectfully, JUDITH BUSELLE.

If the ladies but knew what thousands of them are constantly suffering from, we could hardly believe half of the weariness, prostration and distress experienced by them would vanish. James Marsh, Esq., of 159 West 14th St., N. Y., says, "he has three children, the first two are weak and pamy, his wife having been unable to nurse or attend them but that she has taken Plantation Bitters for the last two years, and has a child now eighteen months old which she has nursed and reared herself, and both are hearty, sunny and well. The article is invaluable to mothers." Ac.

Such evidence might be continued for a volume. The best evidence is to try them. They speak for themselves. Per-sons of sedentary habits troubled with weakness, languid circulation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, torpid liver, constipation, diabetes, &c., will find speedy relief through these Bitters.

Every bottle for exportation and sale out of the United States has a metal cap and green label around the neck. Beware of raffish bottles. See that the cap has not been mutilated. Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters, but with a raffish cap, is an impostor. We sell only in bottles. Sold by principal dealers throughout the habitable globe.

Buloagne-sur-Mer, April 29.—That terrible engine of death, the guillotine, has paid a visit to Buloagne-sur-Mer. It arrived here last night, in attendance on Jean Baptiste Leduc, who, on the 16th of March last, was found guilty of the murder of his wife. There was something so decidedly brutal in the execution of this horrible murder, that the fate of the murderer has not excited the slightest degree of sympathy. THE SHIP OF STATE.

There is a calm in our political world just now, and while it prevails, we propose to take a cursory view of the "ship of state"...

THE BRIGHTER FLOWER.

It is a story of a young girl who is loved by two men...

But what a gloomy thought you have in your mind, my dear sister...

Well then, sister, I resumed, why will you keep this gloom before your mind?

Because the shadow of death is upon me, ever since they killed my father...

Speaking thus, her large eyes, lit up with tears, were radiant...

But you shall not die, I said, you cannot die, so young and so lovely!

Happy days and you, my dear brother, my brother? Happier days?

One day, as I told you, I thought to be happy; but before the evening...

At this moment, a linden began to warble in the branches of a green tree...

At five o'clock there came a knock at the door. An icy shudder ran through my veins...

When the priest had gone she made a sign for me to approach. Her voice was so weak that I had to lay my face close to hers...

Some moments after, when she recovered her consciousness, she reached her hands to me...

Oh! I see it still! I shall never forget it. I stayed with her all that day.

'That is nothing,' she resumed; 'Alphonse, you will accompany me to my last home—then, leaving Phleors, you will go on to pray over my grave...

'Oh, when shall there be an end to these evils?' Alphonse, I said, 'I resumed: 'It shone, indeed, upon the Saints, resplendent with everlasting brightness...

'I promise you by the brotherly love, I have for you. Well, my friend, promise me solemnly before God, who sees and hears us, never in your life to write another of those books, which, hatching passions, bring trouble and indignation to the depth of hearts.'

'I promise you, Marie. 'Thank, brother, thank!' Poor Marie S. is, alas! dead, but I have kept my word...

'I promise you, Marie. 'Thank, brother, thank!' Poor Marie S. is, alas! dead, but I have kept my word. From that day forward, although I was then very young...

'I promise you, Marie. 'Thank, brother, thank!' Poor Marie S. is, alas! dead, but I have kept my word. The physician whom I called in came at nine in the evening...

'I promise you, Marie. 'Thank, brother, thank!' Poor Marie S. is, alas! dead, but I have kept my word. From the chamber in which we were, were heard distinctly from the hall...

'I promise you, Marie. 'Thank, brother, thank!' Poor Marie S. is, alas! dead, but I have kept my word. She was in the delirium of a high fever. I sat by her bedside all the night...

'I promise you, Marie. 'Thank, brother, thank!' Poor Marie S. is, alas! dead, but I have kept my word. I reached the death-bed before she did. Marie was sublime at that fatal moment...
