Stella Mordant. The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER XXX. Ralph remained to lunch. Mary sat at the head of the table, trying to smile, trying to look at peace and contented; but every now and then, as she glanced at her future husband as he loomed back in his chair and drank glass after glass of wine with a self-satisfied air, every time she met his bold, triumphant eyes fixed upon her, her heart quailed with an anguish indescribable. For she thought of the man she loved, the man who was absent, fighting fortune in the now vain hope of winning her. But women instinctively learn to suffer in silence, to mask the pain that racks them, to smile while their hearts are breaking; and her father never guessed at the storm of emotion which lay behind her outward calm. Ralph remained the day, and came the next morning. "I have to drive into Ration, father," she said, after luncheon; "is there anything I can get for you?" "No, Molly, dear, nothing. There is nothing I want—now!" he replied, with a significant emphasis on the now. Ralph rose and lit one of his big black cigars. "I'll go with you—Mary!" he said. She coloured at his use of her Christian name, at his offer of accompanying her, and with a slight inclination of her head left the room. She had ordered the victoria, and Ralph seated himself beside her with an air of proprietorship which hurt her almost as much as if he had struck her. "You don't mind my smoking—open carriage, you know?" he asked. "Oh, no," she said. And she did not. What did it matter whether he smoked or not? "Jolly, isn't it?" he said, with a fatuous laugh. He had drunk the best part of a bottle of Burgundy at lunch. "I'm deuced glad we've set tied matters. The gov'nor was precious glad, wasn't he? Poor old chap, our engagements taken a big load of his shoulders! Why, where are you going; right into the slums, isn't it?" "I have to leave some wine and things for a sick woman in one of these streets," said Mary, in a dull heavy voice. "Oh, 'Lady Bountiful,' eh? I know it. I've given away any amount of money since I came into the title; but I shall shut down now. A married man isn't like a bachelor; he's got to be careful. Provide for the rising generation, you know!" Mary felt faint, almost to sickness, and the colour came and went. "Not that I'm obliged to," he continued. "There's any amount of money, any amount. Oh, we'll enjoy ourselves—Lady—I mean Mary, my dear!" As they drove down one of the outlying streets of the town, the street in which Nita had played the Good Samaritan to Stella, it chanced that Nita went to the window of the sitting-room and looked out. Stella, lost in thought, was lying on the sofa, but a sudden cry from Nita roused her. It was a strange cry, an exclamation of amazement emerging into one of rage and indignation. Stella looked round and saw Nita leaning against the corner of the window. She was clutching the cheap muslin curtain and, apparently, nearly fainting. Stella rose and limped to her side. "What is it, Nita; are you ill?" she asked, with alarm. Nita tore at her collar as if she were choking, and struggling for breath. "It's him—him—him!" she panted, in a suffocating voice. "He? Who?" "Him! Who?" asked Stella, terribly alarmed. "He's just gone by, in a carriage, with—a lady beside him!" cried Nita, hoarsely. "He? Who?" "My—my husband!" gasped Nita. Stella took the agitated woman's arm and drew her from the window. "What do you say?" she said. "Your—your husband?" Nita sank into a chair and covered her face with her hands, and remained motionless for a moment; then she raised her head and looked, not at Stella, but beyond her. "It was only my fancy!" she said, as if to herself. "I've—I've been mistaken so many times. It was like him; but—but—how could it be? In a carriage and alone with a lady; No; it was only my fancy!" CHAPTER XXXI. All Market Ration saw Ralph the earl lounging beside Lady Mary in the open carriage, and all Market Ration jumped to the conclusion that they were engaged. The local paper, anxious to get ahead of its county rivals, boldly announced the engagement in its issue of the next morning, and spread itself on "the event of the happiest union" for the district and the county generally. In its opinion, and, indeed, most of its readers, no more fitting union could be imagined. Ralph was one of the most popular, if not the most popular, nobleman in the neighbourhood, and it was eminently suitable that he should wed the daughter of another local peer who was respected as much as he was liked. Ralph read the paragraph and leaderette with a glow of pride and satisfaction unalloyed with a single quail. When once a man has actually set forth on the path of a particular crime, he is seldom visited by qualms of conscience or fear. It is while he is hesitating, listening half-heartedly to the voice of the tempter, or when he is in danger of detection that he shrinks and shivers; but once the border line is passed, he is usually callous or reckless; and Ralph had so ardently desired the death or complete disappearance of Nita that he had almost grown to regard her as dead, or, at any rate, not likely to cross his path. Besides, it is just possible that he had a kind of idea that a man of his rank, position, and wealth could commit almost any crime, short of murder, with impunity, or could, at any rate, get off "by paying." He rode over to Hatherley after breakfast with the paper in his pocket. "The news has soon leaked out," he said to Lord Hatherley. "I see you are reading the announcement," nodding at the paper open beside Lord Hatherley's plate. Lord Hatherley nodded a gesture of assent. The fulsome leaderette, written in the latest newspapers, jarred upon him. "Yes," he said. "They might have waited for an authorisation; but nothing is sacred to a journalist. Mary has not seen this, and I will keep it from her."

"There's nothing to be ashamed of," said Ralph, with a flush of resentment. "No, most certainly not; but—well, you see, she is not used to seeing her name in the paper, and would naturally shrink from such publicity." "I expect she'll have to get used to it when she's married," said Ralph, with complacent vanity. "They're fond of sticking in paragraphs about me; and I can't have a run with the hounds, or have a few fellows to a lunch or dinner, without its getting into the gazette. And speaking of marriage," he went on, with an air of bravado, "I should think the sooner it came off the better. We both know our own minds, and—and I don't see the use of waiting."

Lord Hatherley looked up nervously. "It rests with Mary," he said in a low voice, and with the feeling of uneasiness and apprehension which had lately assailed him at the prospect of his child's marriage with this man whom he had only a short time ago so ardently desired for a son-in-law. "I'll go and ask her. Where is she?" asked Ralph, rather awkwardly; for, though he was no longer afraid of Lord Hatherley, he was conscious of a certain embarrassment under the calm, sad eyes of Mary. "She is in the garden; she has a headache this morning," said Lord Hatherley, with a sigh. "She ate up breakfast."

"Wants a change," put in Ralph. "I'll take her on the Continent, down south, or to Egypt for the honeymoon. She'll soon pull through there. I'll go and find her. Those shares are still dropping down, I see." Lord Hatherley winced and hung his head, and Ralph, with a cruel smile of triumph, went out to the garden. Mary had seen him ride up the drive, and, obeying an uncontrollable impulse to avoid him, had slipped into the summer-house—the summer-house in which she had sat with Edward Bryan. She shuddered at the recollection of that morning swept over her, and she came out and met Ralph as he sauntered, with the air of a conqueror, down the path. He meant to put his arm round her and kiss her, but Mary stood off from him and extended her hand with that indefinable air with which a woman keeps a man at arm's length.

"Sorry you've got a headache," he said, biting his lip at what he mentally called her "curled coldness." "I've just been telling your father that you want a change. What do you say to our marrying at once and going south?" The blood left Mary's face, and left it cold as well as white. "So—soon!" she faltered. "Why not?" he asked, rather sullenly. "What's the use of waiting? I spoke to your father, and he's quite willing; in fact, between you and me, our marriage would lift a heavy load from his mind." She leant her hand on the rail near which they stood, to steady herself, and looked up at him with clear, cold eyes, in which shone the resignation of the martyr who bears her pain uncomplainingly. "It shall be as you and he wish," she said in a low, still voice. The blood rushed to his face and his eyes glowed. "You are a dear, good girl!" he said. "We'll say this day month, then?" Mary inclined her head, and as she did so, he took a step nearer and put his arm round her. "Let's ratify that!" he said, rather hoarsely. She raised her head, and stood passive and holding her breath as he kissed her.

"Why, you are trembling like a leaf!" he said, half angrily, nettled by the coldness of her surrender. "Do most girls take a kiss so seriously from their future husbands?" She blushed from neck to face. "Perhaps I am not like most girls," she said, desperately. "No, you're not. You're miles better than the best!" he rejoined, spurred by the exquisite beauty of the blushing face and lovely eyes. "By George! I'm a lucky man to have won you; and so they'll all say. I'm the happiest man in England, Mary!"

"Are you sure?" she said, with a drawing together of her brows. It seemed impossible to her that a man should be rendered happy by such a conquest. He looked at her with a shade of suspicion in his eyes. "Am I sure? How do you mean?" he asked. "Count no man happy until he is dead," you know," she answered. He bit at his lip, and looked at her from under his lowered lids. "That's not a very cheerful way of regarding things," he said. "You're out of spirits and want a tonic, a change, I'm sure of it. I'll go and tell old Bulpit to draw up the marriage settlements, and we'll give notice to the parson, and order the cake. And you can amuse yourself by ordering your trousseau and chif-fons."

Mary winced at his indelicate way of alluding to the marriage preparations, those preparations which are regarded by the young girl as a matter of such solemn, almost sacred importance; but he was too self-satisfied that morning to notice the pain he had given, and he rode off with his head high and his hat a little on one side. On his way to Market Ration he met several friends, and they one and all congratulated him heartily. "The fairy godmother seems to have been all there at your birth, Ration," said Lord Parodel, with a shrug of his shoulders. He was just coming from Mr. Bulpit, of whom he had been trying to raise a fresh loan on his already heavily encumbered estates. "Not content with giving you Ration and a million of money, she presents you with the loveliest and most charming girl in the county. Yes, by George, you are a lucky beggar!"

Ralph laughed triumphantly, and entered Mr. Bulpit's office with a face flushed with success. As he strode in and walked straight to Mr. Bulpit's private room, and nodded to the old clerk, he could not help remembering the morning he had entered that same office, dust and travel-stained, parched with thirst, and in a flutter of anxiety and suspense. What a change in his circumstances! Mr. Bulpit received him with the mixture of respect and the calm, almost cynical, regard of the keen eyes which always annoyed Ralph and made him vaguely uneasy. The Failure of German Diplomacy.

The outstanding failure of German diplomacy is that of their diplomatic strategy which aimed at keeping Britain out of the war until France and Russia were crushed, overwhelming France in a few weeks, occupying France with the Landswehr and the Landstrom and throwing the full weight of the Active Army on Russia before the latter could be mobilized. Great as were the preparations in the way of training soldiers, supplying ammunition and organizing the whole country for war, and potent as are its effect at the present time in the West and the East, there was a serious flaw in the organization for war, which was inherent and which naturally grew on what it battered. It produced a swelling of the head of the German rulers and diplomats. It stupidly assumed a stupidity in others. It found itself temporarily unable to see the standpoint of others. It was blind to all view-points but its own, and callously indifferent to all feelings but its own. Hence it floundered into Belgium and blundered into war with Britain, ignored Italy and too late found itself at war with its Mediterranean ally. Impervious to common-sense, it has incensed the United States by fomenting a political campaign there, under a special Director General, the Ex-Colonial Secretary Dernburg, and has outraged American honour and flouted American interest by destroying American lives and property in its inhuman and illegal submarine attacks on merchantmen. It has acted as though the German born American were in control of the American government, when as a matter of fact according to the census of 1910, they numbered only 2,500,000 out of a population of 32,000,000 and were in number less than those who had emigrated there from the British Isles, and formed a big minority when compared with the British-born inhabitants of the United States. It ignored the fact that there are more Canadians in the States than there are Austrians, and six times as many Russians and Italians as there are Hungarians. It ignored also the fact that the numbers of Americans of British ancestry are overwhelming, greater than those of German, Austrian or Hungarian birth. In its misplaced reliance on the importance of the German vote, without any true perspective of its real influence, self-centered in itself, blind to American resentment of outside interference, German diplomacy has now made its biggest blunder in driving the American Government out of its determined neutrality into a position of active diplomatic combativeness. Where the Kaiser's Swelled Head will lead him will be better known next week.

For a good all-round entertainment one could not do better than patronize the above house and spend both a profitable and pleasant evening. The entire "show" is one of excellence throughout. The two-act photo-play entitled "The Quicksand" is a particularly engrossing piece of work and the audience are kept on the qui vive from its inception. "The Unwritten Play" is a strong social drama with a beautiful love story there to and it is splendidly acted by the various performers connected with the famous Vitagraph Co. of America. The Western play "Broncho Billy's Duty" conveys a great moral lesson which is taught in a most convincing manner. The comedies were also much appreciated and caused a continuous roar of laughter from beginning to end. The musical end of the programme which was in the capable hands of Miss Keeping and Arthur Priestman Cameron, was much enjoyed. The entire show will be changed to-morrow.

GET POWER.

The Supply Comes From Food.

If we get power from food, why not strive to get all the power we can. That is only possible by selecting food that exactly fits the requirements of the body.

"Not knowing how to select the right food to fit my needs, I suffered grievously for a long time from stomach trouble," writes a lady from a little Western town.

"It seemed as if I would never be able to find out the sort of food that was best for me. Hardly anything that I could eat would stay on my stomach. Every attempt gave me heart-burn and filled my stomach with gas. I got thinner and thinner until I literally became a living skeleton and in time was compelled to keep to my bed.

"A few months ago I was persuaded to try Grape-Nuts food, and it had such a good effect from the very beginning that I kept up its use. I was surprised at the ease with which I digested it. It proved to be just what I needed.

"All my unpleasant symptoms, the heart-burn, the inflated feeling which gave me so much pain, disappeared. My weight gradually increased from 98 to 116 lbs., my figure rounded out, my strength came back, and I am now able to do my housework and enjoy it. Grape-Nuts did it."

A ten days trial will show anyone some facts about food.

Kitchener.

Springfield Republican.—The Germans would make a mistake in assuming that the phenomenon of a violent press attack on Kitchener meant the collapse of Great Britain in this war. Here in America one interprets the spectacle accurately enough in saying that the British people are becoming warmed up to their real task. If Kitchener were a weaker man, if he were in fact incompetent, if he had much less to his credit than what he has already accomplished in raising, training and equipping within ten months an enormous new army such as Britain never had before in her history, he would go out like a candle flame in this sudden gale of criticism and discontent. But, unless the war takes a turn more disastrous and discouraging than it has up to this hour, he will stand fast at his high and difficult post.

BEYOND THE PALE.

Providence Journal.—There seems to be no German consciousness of guilt. Excesses are "regrettable" but unavoidable. They are mere incidents in the progress of Kultur. It is foolish, say the German apologists, to be disturbed about them. So long as there are obstacles in the Hohenzollern path, they must be combated, and with any means whatsoever that come to hand. If the rest of the world does not understand the necessity, so much the worse for the rest of the world. Germany is absolutely sure of her "new morality" and will not be gainsaid. With such moral delinquency argument is impossible. It brushes humane considerations aside without compunction. It talks in a language that is not ours. We employ terms and ideas which it regards as obsolete. But thank God they are not obsolete. The Ten Commandments still stand, and Justice and humanity have not yet lost their meaning for civilized nations and civilized men.

WAR FEELING IN THE STATES.

Harry LeDrew, who has returned from a visit to Buffalo and other American cities, states that he found the feeling quite prevalent there that whatever the outcome of the diplomatic exchanges over the Lusitania affair might be, there would be no actual war. In other words, although there might be a severance of diplomatic relations with Germany, the United States would not formally declare war. It may be added that this opinion is not reflected in the editorial pages of leading New York papers to hand.—Exchange.

THE GREAT CONTEST FRIDAY.

The contest on Friday night at the Rossley Theatre will be the best of all, there are all new performers and lots of good fun is promised; to make things a little more interesting Mr. Burnstein, the popular ladies' tailor, of Water Street, has promised to sing a song of his own composition, a parody on "It's a long way to Tipperary," but in Yiddish: "It's a long way to Jerusalem." This song Mr. Burnstein sent to New York, was sung in the Jewish Theatre by the great Jewish tenor, Abe Levi, and it was a pronounced success. Mr. Burnstein is not singing for the prize, merely to prove how popular Tipperary has become. There are all new names in the contest, and the lady singers and dancers will prove a great draw. The contests are drawing to a close, so have the laugh of your life while you can. There are other new novelties in store. Don't forget that the pantomime Little Bo Peep and Boy Blue will be positively delightful; great transformation scene; the four seasons: Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter.

"OURS" IN THE WEST END.

There was a good attendance at the popular little theatre last night, and all were charmed with the little singer. To-night she will sing a new song dressed in character costume. Friday night's contest at Rossley's East End Theatre promises to be the best of all. There will be all new competitors as all former prize winners are barred in this contest. Many new names have been received.

THE CRESCENT PICTURE PALACE WELL PATRONISED.

The Crescent Picture Palace was well patronised yesterday and everybody was charmed with the splendid picture programme the Crescent is showing this mid-week, Sidney Drew and John Bunny the recognized comedy leaders provide the fun, and the dramatic films are furnished by the Edison, Biograph and Vitagraph Companies. Mr. Delmonico received great applause for his singing of: "When You Were a Tulip and I were a Rose." This new and catchy song delighted the Crescent audiences yesterday. The same bill will be repeated to-day, go and see it. The Crescent is delightfully cool and comfortable.

THE TREASURE OF ABDAR RAHMAN.

The thrilling and sensational picture of "The Treasure of Abdar Rahman" is shown at the Casino Theatre to-night and should be seen by everyone in the city as it is one of the most instructive and fascinating pictures ever imported here. It tells the story of an Arab's cupidity, in fact to what measures men will go in order to secure the filthy lucre. Fearing an attack on a neighbouring tribe, who want revenge, Abdar Rahman conceals his treasure. It's location is known to a faithless servant. After the raid in which Rahman is killed the servant endeavours to get off with the treasure but is pursued. He falls over a cliff and the treasure is lost for three hundred years. A French officer secures a piece of paper which tells of its location but the translator proves false and gives the wrong meaning. He sets off but is also pursued. The story is one that holds the audience spellbound right through, so, if you want to see a good, real live picture that has all the elements of excitement, come to the Casino to-night.

THE BRITISH THEATRE.

Yesterday's programme at this popular theatre was attended by large audiences, both in the afternoon and at night. "The Quicksands," one of the Kalem masterpieces, was very much appreciated, as was also "The Unwritten Play," by the world-renowned Vitagraph players, G. M. Anderson, alias "Brocho Billy," the children's favorite, was seen in a new role yesterday, and his portrayal of the part of a minister was very cleverly done. The two comedians created much amusement, as did also Mr. Arthur Priestman Cameron's peculiar song, sung in his own peculiar way. Miss Keeping, presided at the piano and the musical selections were most appropriate. The last opportunity to see this well-balanced programme will be this afternoon and night.

MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY IS A GREAT FILM.

The Nickel Theatre was crowded yesterday as everyone was anxious to see "The Million Dollar Mystery" which wonderful story is now being shown there on Wednesdays and Thursdays. Last night's episode was very interesting and was keenly followed by all. The arrest of the Black Hand Gang and the escape of Brian were most sensational. Norton, the newspaper reporter is the hero again. This evening the whole programme will be repeated and no doubt there will be a large attendance as every one is anxious to see it. The Nickel has another great feature in store for patrons to-morrow when "The Hazards of Helen" will be given. This is one of the cleverest series ever given in this city. Look out for it.

The Two Books.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"I imagine music must make feelings and paint pictures in the minds of the people who hear it according to their own nature as much as according to the music itself. The musician might compose something wanting you to think of the Holy Grail and some people who heard it might think of a prayer meeting, and some would think of how good they were themselves, and a boy might think of himself at the head of a solemn procession carrying a banner and riding a white horse, and then if there were some jubilant passages in the music he'd think of a circus."—Booth Tarkington.

The other day I heard two women arguing about a book.

One said it was a wonderful book and so true to life.

The other couldn't see anything in it.

"Each considered it 'so strange' that the other didn't feel as she did about the book.

They weren't Talking About the Same Book.

But as I listened I didn't think it strange at all. You see, they weren't talking about the same book. They thought they were and it was the same book in one way but not in another. They had read the same book but they weren't talking about the same book as each was talking about was the book as it read after she had translated it by the vocabulary of her own experience and poured her own emotions into it.

We Translate Everything.

Even the simplest thing we read we translate with our own experiences as vocabulary. A newspaper clipping, a love poem, a Bible story, in everyone who reads them each of these arouses different mental pictures. The newspaper story of a wedding, for instance, must mean something entirely different to the girl who looks back to hers.

Wouldn't it be interesting to take some familiar Bible story and have half a dozen people describe the mental picture it created for them.

For instance, when I read the injunction not to hide your light under a bushel, I always see in my mind's eye a candlestick under a big bushel basket which used to hang in our cellar.

Our Old Furnace.

Again, when I read about Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego in the fiery furnace I see them standing in the distinctly cramped quarters of our old furnace.

And so into everything we read we pour our own experience. What wonder that no two people like the same books. What wonder that the story which is beautiful to me is meaningless to my neighbour. He can never read the story that I read. I can never read that other story that wakens and thrills him.

For many men many minds, is just another way of saying, many men, many experiences.

At the Yarmouth Y. M. C. A. Boys' Camp, held at Tuxet Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sun burn, an immediate relief for cuts and toothache.

ALFRED STOKES,
General Secretary.

"I am afraid it was none," replied the ex-Minister.

Enormous Overcharges.

Leopold Villeroy, another Government inspector on the New Parliament buildings, testified that only one-third of the caissons actually rested on bed rock, the others went down only to hard pan, and he declared, too, that he and William Salt estimated the cubical contents of the material put into the caissons at between 18,000 and 19,000 yards, whereas Kelly got paid for 35,993 yards.

Villeroy further stated that the average depth of the caissons would be 43.6 feet. The deepest, as far as he remembered, was only 45.6 feet. Villeroy's testimony also dealt with the lumber and the iron rings used in the caissons. He stated that only about 42,000 feet of lumber was actually used, and not more than 20 tons of rings were used.

Thomas Kelly and Sons billed the Government for 1,200,000 feet of lumber at $40 a thousand, $48,000, and 797½ tons of rings at seven cents a pound.

Startling Facts at Inquiry Over Manitoba House.

Ex-Minister O.K'd Payments as Matter of Form Trusting Lieutenants—Caissons Not on Bed Rock—Over Million Feet of Lumber Charged for But Never Used.

Winnipeg, June 1.—The Hon. Dr. Montague, former Minister of Public Works in the Roblin Government, was on the stand yesterday before the Royal Commission. He stated that he became Minister of that department on Nov. 4th, 1913, and shortly afterwards issued special instructions to his department that no important business was to be transacted without his personal supervision. Later he testified that he put his "O.K." to Thomas Kelly and Sons' applications for payment purely as a matter of form.

He declared that it was his custom simply to ask Mr. Horwood whether the money was owing and if Mr. Horwood said it was, he put his signature to the application. In extenuation of this conduct, the ex-Minister said that until the short war session of September, 1914, he had no idea that the caissons were not included in the original contract.

Never Familiar With Affairs.

The substance of his evidence was that owing to illness and consequent absence from the office and to other causes, he never thoroughly became familiar with the affairs of his department. Asked why he had taken no steps to investigate the ground on which Kelly and Sons based their numerous applications for payment, he asserted a Minister was bound to depend on his trusted lieutenants.

C. P. Wilson, who examined him, pointed out that the caisson vouchers came before Doctor Montague, and asked what protection was that to the province.

John S. Ferris, a bookkeeper in the employ of Kelly and Sons, also gave evidence, but with so much reluctance, that Chief Justice Mathers rebuked him twice for the hesitating manner in which he testified. Ferris was questioned about two checks which Kelly and Sons issued on tender account on July 2 and 3, 1913, respectively, and agreed that they probably indicated that two tenders had been issued for the Parliament Buildings contract.

By means of eight cheques, a total of $281,000 was paid by the firm of Thomas Kelly and Sons to Thomas Kelly in May, June, July and August, 1914. Counsel tried to connect the issuance of these cheques with the provincial elections. It transpired that $24,000 was paid to Mr. Kelly in cash and the rest put into his personal deposit account. Four other cheques aggregating about $250,000 were used to purchase C.P.R. stock for the Kellys about this time, but no foundation of this fact was forthcoming.

Stomach Troubles Due to Acidity.

SO SAYS EMINENT SPECIALIST.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, wind, and stomachache are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acids. Wind distends the stomach, and causes that full, oppressive feeling, sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the fermenting food. Such fermentation is unnatural, and acid formation is not only unnatural, but may involve most serious consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and render it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bisulphated magnesia, probably the best and most effective corrector of acid stomach known, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water immediately after eating, or whenever wind or acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation, and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments. Fermentation, wind and acidity, are dangerous and unnecessary. Stop or prevent them by the use of a proper antacid, such as bisulphated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist and thus save the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by poisonous gas and dangerous acids.—M. F. P.

"DICK" SEDDON died 1906, aged 61. Born in Lancashire, he emigrated to Australia in 1863 as a mechanical engineer. He was very successful in New Zealand and entered the House of Representatives in 1879, ultimately obtaining Ministerial rank and becoming Premier in 1893.

The modern majesty exists in work. What a man can do is his greatest ornament, and he always consults his dignity by doing it.—Carlyle.

THE NEW HAT.

Man buys himself a new straw hat; it often leaves him busted flat, when he has paid the price; and then, all swollen up with pride, he goes around with it stately stride, and knows he's looking nice. He's thinking, when he's thus arrayed, that every widow every maid, will say he's just too sweet; with vain imaginings like these he runs against the busy breeze that scoots along the street. That zephyr takes his virgin hat and slams it down and knocks it flat, and rolls it on its brim, and as he tries to run it down, most all the idiots in town are idly joshing him. Along the avenues and pikes, at record breaking gait he hikes, a cloud of dust behind; the widow and the winsome maid behold him as he hits the grade, and laugh until they're blind. The hat goes scooting forty miles with scores of other errand tiles, before he runs it down; and then it is a dismal wreck; the brim is flopping round his neck, his hair sticks through the crown. The lid that made his spirit proud, that made him scorn the common crowd, is spoiled beyond recall; while such disasters come to pass, we plainly see all flesh is grass, pride goes before a fall.

TURKS ON TIGRIS DEMONSTRATE

LONDON, June 10.—The Turkish submarine, "Basil," was sunk and the Turkish vessel "Mousul" captured, according to a special statement given out this morning by the British Government. The operation took place in the Persian Gulf region. The text of the statement follows: Fuller reports on the capture of the Tigris River and the destruction of Amara show that as a result of the action of May 31 and the capture of the Tigris, the Turkish forces threatening Kurnah, some of which came completely demoralized, assistance appears to have been given to the small party pursuing the river, the Turks trying to escape as fast as they could in small boats. The former surrendered being taken, while the Turkish vessel Marmaris was sunk and the port Mousul captured. Although the strength of the force which attacked Amara, the Comet (a British vessel), and some small launches, was quite insignificant, the entire force which numbered over 1,000 men, rendered, including the Turkish Governor of Amara, and the British Commandant of the force remaining posing us at Kurnah. Seized were two fire boats shortly after our occupation of Amara, the advanced guard of the British force. The remainder of the force is estimated at 2,000 men, leaving heavy weapons in our hands. The remnants of the enemy who so far have escaped, are retreating in a state of demoralization, having discarded their arms.

WRECKED LABORATORY

QUEBEC, June 10.—An explosion, the cause of which has not yet been established, has completely wrecked the Department of Ordnance and Ammunition Laboratory on the Pointe-au-Loup. The damage is said to be slight, but several men were slightly injured.

DEATH-BLOW OF GERMAN POWER.

LONDON, June 10.—The world conflict is what the British Star calls the resignation of the Secretary of State Bryan. Coming in the heroic decision of Italy, to the sword in defense of liberty and public law in Europe, the Star says: "It is a death-blow of Germanic power. It means American independence, the Rubicon. It means the end of democracy on earth as we know it. It means America will only be true to itself and its ideals means America will only be true to itself which is necessary to cleanse the blood of the Prussian wolves and the men who prey upon women and children."

THE LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, June 10.—The resignation of Bryan, many which brought it about, tend in interest all else, bearing the war. The London paper says Bryan's letter to the President Wilson's reply, the prominent place. These are filled by long despatches from American correspondents and articles in an's career which emphasize the vocacity of the settlement of international disputes by arbitration. It draws the conclusion that there must be very strong to have about his retirement. "stands firm," or similar expressions are the most favored headlines, also the text of editorials commenting on the latest developments.

TERMS ON TIGRIS DEMORALIZED.

LONDON, To-day. The Turkish gunboat Marmaris, was sunk and the transport Mesul, captured, according to an official statement given out this evening by the British Government. The action took place in the Persian Gulf region. The text of the statement follows: Fuller reports of our advance up the Tigris River and the occupation of Amara show that as a result of the action of May 21 and June 1, the enemy's force which had been threatening Kurnah some time became completely demoralized. No resistance appears to have been offered to the small party pursuing by the River, the Turks trying to escape as fast as they could in small steamers. The former surrendered being overtaken, while the Turkish gunboat Marmaris was sunk and the transport Mesul captured. Although the strength of the force which arrived at Amara, the Comet (a British destroyer), and some small launches, were quite insignificant, the entire garrison which numbered over 1,000, surrendered, including the Turkish civil Governor of Amara, and Halim Bey, Commandant of the force recently opposing us at Kurnah. Said Halim, Commandant of two fire battalions, shortly after our occupation of Amara, the advanced guard of the troops of the Baghdad column which retreated from Kherka Valley, entered the town and were captured. The remainder of this force is estimated at about 2,000, leaving heavy guns in our hands. The remnants of the enemy who so far have escaped capture are retreating in a state of disorganization, having discarded their arms.

WRECKED LABORATORY.

QUEBEC, To-day. An explosion, the cause of which has not yet been established, completely wrecked at noon yesterday, a small laboratory of the Dominion Arsenal, on the Plains of Abraham. The damage is said to be slight. Two men were slightly injured.

DEATH-BLOW OF GERMANIC POWER.

LONDON, To-day. One of the most decisive events in the world conflict is what the Evening Star calls the resignation of Secretary of State Bryan. Coming after the heroic decision of Italy to draw the sword in defense of liberty and public law in Europe, the Star says: "It is a death-blow of Germanic power. It means America has crossed the Rubicon. It means the greatest democracy on earth has resolved to be true to itself and its ideals. It means America will omit no act which is necessary to cleanse the seas of the Prussian wolves and tigers who prey upon women and children."

THE LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day. The resignation of Bryan and the nature of the American Note to Germany which brought it about, transcend in interest all else, bearing on the war. The London papers give Bryan's letter of resignation and President Wilson's reply the most prominent place. These are followed by long despatches from American correspondents' articles on Bryan's career which emphasize the advocacy of the settlement of international disputes by arbitration, and draw the conclusion that the Note must be very strong to have brought about his retirement. "America stands firm," or similar expressions, are the most favored headings, and also the text of editorials commenting on the latest developments of American-German relations. Even the news of another German submarine being sunk and the announcement by Balfour of a change in the British policy respecting the treatment of German submarine prisoners, had to take second place in the day's events. This change of policy had been expected for some time. When Churchill, the former First Lord, announced on March 8, that prisoners rescued from German submarines would not be accorded honourable treatment extended to other prisoners, a number of the members of the Commons expressed disapproval, and the anticipated reprisals which the Germans took against British officers imprisoned in Germany. Steps will be taken through the American Embassy to inform the German Government of this change of British policy in the hope that British officers suffering solitary confinement will be given the same treatment as other prisoners.

Another important announcement in the Commons which attracted much attention, was that of the Premier, who stated that the casualties among the British expeditionary forces on the Continent and Mediterranean amount to more than a quarter of a million. There are still the casualties suffered by the Navy and the Naval division to be added to this total. So far as the battles are concerned, that of Galicia holds the centre of the stage. The capture by the Austrians of the South African rebellion against Great Britain, pleaded not guilty to a charge of high treason, but guilty to a charge of sedition, at the opening yesterday of his trial at Bloomfontein, says a despatch. The indictment against him is a long one, covering alleged rebellious acts and seditious utterances. Attorney General De Graeger is prosecuting the case and three judges are sitting.

ANOTHER TRAWLER SUNK.

LONDON, To-day. The Grimby steam trawler Nottingham was sunk in the North Sea by shell fire of a German submarine. Crew saved.

ITALIANS PROGRESS.

ROME, To-day. Official statement issued as follows: Reports received of the operations on June 7th and 8th show that the Italians in pursuing along the Isonzo River in the task of dislodging the Austrians from strong natural positions and establishing bridge heads, are displaying great bravery and tenacity in the face of heavy obstacles intensified by floods. We have occupied the town of Montefalco, 16 miles northwest of Trieste, near the Adriatic.

CAPTAIN OF PRINZ EITEL FREDERICK ARRESTED.

PARIS, To-day. The captain of the German converted cruiser Prinz Eitel Frederick has been arrested while disguised as a cook aboard an Italian steamer, says an Algerian despatch. Commander Thierichens of the Prinz Eitel Frederick interned his vessel at Newport News on April 7th. He and his officers gave their parole to the United States authorities thereby agreeing not to leave American soil. Although they had the freedom of the country there had been no previous intimation that he had left the United States.

AUSTRIAN ARTILLERY SUFFER HEAVY DAMAGE.

GENEVA, To-day. A despatch to the Tribune from Ljubljana says that the Austrian artillery at Tolmino has suffered heavy damage from Italian bombardment. Austrian losses are becoming serious as the Italian fire is singularly well directed. An ammunition depot has been blown up at Tolmino. There were three hundred victims. The passage of the Isonzo by the Italians is being effected normally owing to the activity of the pontoon corps, the work of which is undeterred by Austrian fire. Italians are also seeking to cross the river at Poncaza where the Austrians are hurriedly trying to throw up defences.

WHEREABOUTS UNKNOWN.

NORFOLK, Va., To-day. At the navy yard here where the Prinz Eitel Frederick is interned it was said to-day that Captain Thierichens has been away on leave for about a week. He left on two weeks' leave. His whereabouts are not known to navy yard officials.

DE WET BEING TRIED FOR TREASON.

LONDON, To-day. G. N. Raal De Wet, one of the leaders of the South African rebellion against Great Britain, pleaded not guilty to a charge of high treason, but guilty to a charge of sedition, at the opening yesterday of his trial at Bloomfontein, says a despatch. The indictment against him is a long one, covering alleged rebellious acts and seditious utterances. Attorney General De Graeger is prosecuting the case and three judges are sitting.

Wanted If Done Quickly

The blacksmith, who was pretty good at his trade, but ignorant of medical lore, sprained his wrist one afternoon and lost no time in hustling to the surgery of a doctor. The doctor examined the wrist, and then took a small bottle from a shelf, but found it empty.

"James," said he, turning to an assistant, "go upstairs and bring me down a couple of those phials." "What's that?" exclaimed the patient, suddenly showing large signs of emotion. "I was merely asking my assistant to bring me down a couple of phials from up stairs," answered the doctor. "Phials!" cried the blacksmith, with a look of determination. "No, you don't. If that hand has got to come off you will use an axe or a saw!"

BOYCOTT BY GERMAN MASONS.

Berlin, June 3.—The German Grand Lodge of Free Masons have adopted the following declaration:

"In view of the attitude of the Italian Free Masons, who inspired by French sympathizers, took part in the political struggle, leading to the war, and thereby violated the cardinal principle of freemasonry expressly forbidding such methods. The German Grand Lodge hereby severs all former relations with Italian and French freemasonry.

"Toward freemasons in other hostile lands, the Grand Lodge reaffirms the decision adopted at an earlier date that all relations of various grand lodges be suspended from the outbreak of hostilities."

Kitchener Conceals Movements of Troops Throughout England.

Soldiers, Marching Out of Any Camp, May be Off to Transport.

LONDON, May 27.—Spring is witnessing a movement of troops all over England, some leaving for the front and others moving from the towns where they have been billeted to encampments in the open country. But when a battalion is ordered to move not even its officers know its destiny.

On any of the main highways of England troops may be seen on the march, generally in brigades. Kitchener's army looks well seasoned and as it is for active service as the men at the front, but most of it has not been six months in training.

To conceal the movement of troops, constant practice marches in full equipment are held, and the men do not know whether they are returning to camp until they are actually back there. Often they march to some point, entrain, and in the course of a few hours find themselves on board a transport. If their quarters are crowded, they may be sure it is only to cross the channel. But if bunks are provided and ample deck room, it means Egypt, the Dardanelles or some far point.

Every farewell a soldier takes of family and friends he expects in any case to be his last until his return from war. So secret and so complicated are the movements of the new forces in England that no authentic information could possibly be collected for the enlightenment of the enemy. But it may be assumed that the volunteer system has not disappointed Lord Kitchener.

Ever Ready Hot Water, Night and Day.

HOT WATER FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

When "Spring cleaning days" engross the busy housewife then the convenience of an unlimited supply of hot water on the upper floor is brought home to her with special force.

But at all times—apart from convenience—a gas water-heater makes an irresistible appeal to the housewife from the point of view of dealing with the domestic problem.

Gas Water-Heaters, whether of the instantaneous or Circular type, offer the convenience of available hot water "upstairs, downstairs, and in my lady's chamber,"—without any labour at all—Independently of the state of the kitchen fire.

The cost is reasonable.

FOR THE BATHROOM. An uncertain supply of hot water in the bathroom is a frequent cause of annoyance. Hot water can only be secured, usually, by getting the cook to act as stoker, but at what a cost! Think of the coal that is wasted—the fatigue of coal carrying—the after labour of grate cleaning—and the discomfort of a hot kitchen in warm weather!

A Gas Water-Heater is economical.

The comfortably furnished porch always has a table for magazines and papers, with a good heavy paper weight to keep the latter from blowing away.

A Town for War Workers Only.

Other housing problems, besides that of housing our vast new armies, have arisen through the war, and not the least of these is that connected with the workers at Woolwich Arsenal.

Since the war started the authorities at the Arsenal have been engaging men in numbers never known before, with the result that men have come from all parts of London and Great Britain to get work there.

As a consequence, some of the workers have to travel nearly across the city in order to get to work, the journey taking in some cases as much as an hour and a half.

So hard are the men working now that after the working hours and the time spent in eating and travelling are deducted, some of them can only manage to snatch about five or six hours' rest.

The only remedy, of course, was to build a sufficient number of houses in Woolwich to allow all the extra workers at the Arsenal to live near their work.

Builders, however, have not come forward, apparently being scared by the idea that when the war is over half the houses will not be wanted.

So the Government is taking the work in hand itself. In order to get over the difficulty a little, fifty houses are being built with all speed on a vacant space near the Arsenal, and have already been snapped up by eager men.

In addition to this, the Office of Works is proceeding apace with another plan.

On a large tract of agricultural land barely one mile and a half from the Arsenal, 1,000 houses are being rushed up. Owing to the huge number of men who are employed on the job, however, the houses are not only being built quickly, but exceedingly well. The work was started in February, and some of the houses, twelve of which are being built to the acre, are just beginning to take shape. By June quite a small settlement—only might even call it a garden city—will be completed.

Just a Simple Story of Brave Men's Heroism

London, June 1.—This is a story of heroism—how Sergeant Major Harry Daniels, Second Rifle Brigade, won the Victoria Cross at Neuve Chapelle.

It's also a story of another Victoria Cross, and a lonely grave back there in Northern France. It's a story of two chums who faced death together and fought until bullets cut them down. Corporal Tom Noble is dead. Sergeant Major Daniels told it to-day from his cot in a big London hospital.

"I am more glad about Tom's Victoria's Cross than I am about my own," he said. "poor chap, he didn't even know it."

And then he told how Tom and himself— inseparable companions since they went out in November— volunteered to cut the wire entanglements of the enemy not fifty feet from the German trenches. Crawling along the dangerous "no man's land," between the trenches, they reached the wire. Lying on their backs they started to work.

"We were hard at it," continued Daniels, "when above the din of machine gun fire I heard a faint voice, 'I'm hit in the chest, old man,' Noble called and those were his last words. He was soon unconscious and died."

Himself wounded in the hip a few moments later, Daniels crawled a short distance to a shell hole, where he rested until nightfall. Then slowly he dragged himself toward the British trenches.

Reading his morning paper to-day in the hospital, Daniels learned that he had won the Victoria Cross. He said nothing, until the man in the next cot asked:

"Your name's Daniels, isn't it? You are Sergeant Major Daniels of the Rifle Brigade. You've got the V.C."

Daniels admitted it.

"Yes, I reckon it must be me," he said.

And then he told the story.

Self-Starters.

Newspaper advertising is self-starting and results are apparent almost immediately.

It starts customers to the stores where the goods are sold and entices the store keepers who sell them.

It puts the clerk in a good humor for nothing is so stimulating as "good business."

It sells the goods because it carries their message directly into the home at the time people are anxious to buy.

For manufacturer or merchant no method of advertising is as productive as the printed word in the Telegram.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIPHTHERIA.

Items of Interest.

The Bishop of London, at an ordination council to pass upon the application of men for the ministry, caused to be passed a resolution that no such application can be considered unless the applicant proves his inability to serve in the war.

According to what the London Chronicle claims to be a fairly correct estimate, the casualties in the German Army from the time the war began until May 19th in officers, non-commissioned officers and men has reached the incredible figure of 2,050,000.

Authentic information received by the militia department in Ottawa from German sources shows that while the Canadians at the battle of Langemarck had over six thousand casualties, the loss they inflicted upon the enemy was even more terrible. The Germans had 12,000 killed and more than 20,000 wounded.

Mr. Norman Hill, Secretary of the Liverpool Steamship Owners' Association, stated on May 19th that during the month of April cargoes to the value of 114,000,000 pounds sterling were carried in and out of ports of the United Kingdom, while the value of the cargoes destroyed by submarines was 50,000 pounds, or one shilling in one hundred pounds.

An official announcement by the British War Office in connection with the appeal of Lord Kitchener for more men for the army, states it has been decided that recruits enlisting into the regular army for the duration of the war shall be accepted up to the age of 40 years, and that the minimum standard height for such recruits shall be 5 feet 2 inches for the infantry. This decision applies also to enlistments into the territorial forces.

The Paris Liberte states that the German authorities have ordered the destruction of all growing winter wheat in that portion of French territory which they occupy. This is regarded as a most convincing indication that the Germans do not expect to remain in France later than this summer. If the order believed to be issued is generally carried out, its significance can scarcely be overestimated. The Germans forced the French peasants last fall in the occupied districts to plant every acre of wheat that could be sowed between the date of their occupation and the coming of winter. If now they are destroying the crop they were so insistent upon the farmers planting they have manifestly no hope of being on the spot when it is garnered.

In Madgeburg, Germany, a committee is collecting funds for the officers and men of the German submarine that sank the Lusitania. The Deutsche Tageszeitung prints the following from an "illustrious personality on the western front": "At last our submarines have executed a great coup, which it is to be hoped is only the beginning of a series of such attacks unless England and America suspend sailing altogether. We Germans rejoice to the fulness of our hearts over this successful stroke. We have only a cold smile for the common cries of anger aroused by the torpedoing of the Lusitania. Under no circumstances must we cease our methods until this villainous nation of shopkeepers has been fought to the finish."

The jury at Syracuse, N.Y., in the trial of William Barnes's suit for libel against ex-President Roosevelt on May 22nd returned a verdict in favor of the defendant. It was the belief of the jury everything Colonel Roosevelt charged is true and therefore the plaintiff, not having been libelled, is entitled to no damages. The article complained of charged a corrupt political alliance between William Barnes, the Republican leader of the State, and Charles F. Murphy, the Democratic leader of the State, in relation to the State Government. Mr. Roosevelt charged that the plaintiff had worked through a corrupt alliance between crooked business and crooked politics. Mr. Roosevelt's victory is looked upon as a victory for good government. The issue put to the jury was whether machine government or government by the people should prevail, and the latter has prevailed.
