CHAPTER XXX.

I began to have a desire to be worthy of him."
Her listener interrupted her with a sneer.
"You fell in love with him, eh, thinking that was safely under the sod?"
"I admired him—I felt that I could love him. I was almost tempted to undo the wrong that had been done him. I followed him in a slavish way, and hated every woman who looked at him. He does not know that I am under his roof. I am following him still, and will protect him against a viper like you!"
"And if I had appeared upon the scene," he sneered. "What then, my beauty?"
"There might have been a gleam of hope for me. Now there is nothing but black despair."
For a minute there was silence, but it was rudely broken by the man's savage tones. His look must have been demonic, for Ada Craythorne saw the woman's figure start away from him.
"An end to this accursed foolery!" he snarled. "I came back prepared to forgive you for deserting me in the hour of my sorest need. I have tried to believe that you thought me dead."
"I did, and was glad of it!" she interpolated.
"But I will never forgive you for thinking of another man. I will never forgive you for loving another man, even if he is your husband! Do you know that I have had some intuitive knowledge that something was wrong."

as Agnes Matland, but that was a matter of small moment. It was easy to change her name, though Ada was puzzled about the references she had provided for the satisfaction of the housekeeper.

Was it her duty to acquaint Sir Charles with what she had heard? Was it her duty to tell him that his wife was under the same roof with him? Her conscience said yes, but she put it from her. If she did this thing she feared that she would be farther from him than ever and she felt that she hated Agnes Matland, or Lucy as the man had called her.

An hour later she went down to the drawing-room, having dressed with great care. She loved to see the young baronet's eyes rest upon her admiringly. One word of approval from him was sweeter than a world of praise. Why should she hide the great love that throbbled for him alone? Perhaps when he realized how much he was losing, it would stir him to action, it would induce him to free himself of the bonds which enchained him body and soul—the bonds which made of him an anchoress, which isolated him from her love! He must never see this woman, lest in pity he became chivalrous. No, he must never see her—he must never know that she was at Emden Hall.

Miss Craythorne played and sang for Sir Charles. Nature had been very kind to her. She had a beautiful face, a beautiful figure and a beautiful voice. She knew how to use all to advantage.

Her dress was of black velvet, relieved only by the white lace at her throat and rich carnations in the folds of her black hair. She knew that Sir Charles admired simplicity; she knew that he admired the dress, and all that she did or said was for him alone.

She sang two or three of his favorite songs, while Lady Hastings chatted with a prosy old squire and his wife. Then she talked with him upon matters which were of important interest to him, and he regretted that she would be gone within a few days. He was astonished to find that she had become almost necessary to him. Oh, why had heaven not given him a sister—a sister as sympathetic and as sweet as Ada Craythorne!

"I shall be sorry when you leave us, Miss Craythorne," he said. "I don't know what I shall do without you."
"But it will not be long until we meet again," she sighed. "And yet it seems a dreary time, this waiting!"

He saw that in her eyes which startled him; then he dismissed the thought as egotistic. He knew that she liked him, but argue as he would he feared that it was no sister liking. It was the passionate love of a woman, who would deem the world well lost for one fond kiss, one ecstatic embrace!

Mystic Seven.

The number seven appears always to have had some peculiar significance. On the seventh day of the seventh month a holy observance was ordained to the children of Israel, who fasted seven days and remained seven days in tents. The seventh day was supposed to be the Sabbath, or rest for all, and at the end of seven times seven there was to be a jubilee. Jacob served seven years to win Rachel for his wife. The Saviour spoke seven times from the cross on which he hung seven hours. In Scripture there are seven resurrections, mentioned. In the Lord's Prayer there are seven petitions. There were seven mysteries of the apocalypse revealed in the seven churches in Asia. In Revelations there is described seven lambs before the seven spirits of God, seven golden candlesticks, a book with seven seals, seven angels with seven trumpets, seven players, seven vials of wrath, seven kings, seven thunders and a dragon with seven heads.

Sir Charles Hastings' wife—the woman who stood between her and the man she loved—was under her husband's roof, disguised as a servant. For what purpose? Ada guessed only too well. She had no reason to believe the confession that she had heard. The woman was in love with Sir Charles; she had made no secret of it.

Miss Craythorne now understood the wicked glance that had been directed toward her by the servant in the picture gallery. This woman was Lady Hastings—this woman was the baronet's wife! She was jealous of Miss Craythorne, she hated the woman who was her rival.

The man had called her Lucy. To her fellow-servants she was known

His body, in every-day working clothes, with the ribbon of the Legion of Honor of France in the button, was placed in a casket of rugged hard pine, lined with aeroplane linen, and laid in a rock hewn tomb.

NORTHCLIFFE'S ILLNESS.
LONDON, Aug. 5.
The serious tones of bulletins issued yesterday regarding the condition of Viscount Northcliffe, the British publisher, give strong impressions that there is little hope for his recovery. While the bulletins are very vague concerning the nature of his illness, it is believed to be the result of complete breakdown and brought on by the hard work and the excitement which he has undergone the past year or more. Nobody has seen him since his return from Switzerland except his physician and nurses and relatives. While business associates disclaim any knowledge of the nature of their chief's illness at no time has there been any concealment of the belief that his return to the newspaper world would be only after a very long time, if ever.

"I was troubled for about two years with eczema. It broke out on my face and arms in pimples and itched and burned so badly that I lost much sleep on account of it. My face and arms were covered with pimples, and I was ashamed to appear out of the house. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and immediately found relief, and after using one cake of Soap and one box of Ointment I was healed." Shipwrecked Mariners.

LEAVE BY S.S. ROSALIND.
Capt. C. D. Ritchey of the schooner Holmes A. Frank, with his crew of eight men, sailed by S.S. Rosalind to-day en route to their homes. The schooner, Holmes A. Frank, wrecked recently at Quirpon, has now gone to pieces. Only the sails, some running gear, parts of spars, two anchors, and cables were saved. The wreck was purchased by Messrs. Maddock & Culliver. At the time the schooner went ashore a dense fog prevailed and shortly after a heavy sea raged, which left no hope of refloating the ship. The spars were cut off by people from the shore who helped in salvaging the gear. The captain's wife and son, as well as two passengers were on board when the vessel was lost. They also joined the Rosalind for home. The Holmes A. Frank was a fine vessel of 630 tons gross, built in 1919, and owned in Nova Scotia.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

BE GREAT THIS MINUTE.

This is what the world is seeking: Honest effort, honest speaking. This will earn its brightest shining: Labor that is patient, willing. Not the brilliant deed and clever, But the steady, sure endeavor. Unto God and duty loyal. That is what the world calls royal. Heed me, son, and never grumble At a task because it's humble; Just remember every duty Is the seed of greater beauty, And the history of glory Is a very common story. Every crown which man possesses Symbolizes small successes. Here's the road to high promotion: Unto duty true devotion. Small the task, but gladly do it; Though it irks, be faithful to it; Never try from fame to borrow. Never wait for some tomorrow Or a test with greatness in it— Do your best. Be great this minute.

A Tale of Two Worlds

TO BE SHOWN AT THE NICKEL MONDAY.

The Nickel has scheduled another big attraction for screening on Monday. The picture is entitled "A Tale of Two Worlds." A curio collector named Carmichael is in China making a collection when the Boxers attack the town and he and his wife are murdered. Their little daughter is saved by a Chinese servant and brought to America. Eighteen years later she is found living in the Chinatown of a Western city with Ah Wing, the servant who saved her. She supposes Ah Wing to be her father and the Chinaman is devoted to her. Newcombe, a wealthy young American, sees the girl and falls in love with her. Ling Jo, the Boxer who leads the gang that murdered her parents, is also in love with the girl. Ah Wing has promised her to Ling Jo if he can get him the sceptre of the Mings, which he believes to be impossible. Ling Jo procures the sceptre and then demands the hand of the girl. Ah Wing is forced to keep his word. Newcombe learns that Sul Sen is being married to his rival and that she is an American girl. He goes to the house, is captured and forced into a steel room to be crushed to death. Through the aid of a Chinese boy he is set free, and Ling Jo meets the fate intended for the man Sul Sen loves.

A Business Proposition.

The letter appended was written by the gentleman, whose signature is attached, to the Municipal Council, with a view to improving conditions of housing in St. John's. The Council, for some reason which they have not given, as no reply has been, so far, received by the writer, did not take kindly to the offer, and it is said by Mr. Collishaw in his covering letter to the editor, turned it down.

Purse for Popular Officer

LT.-COL. CARTY WILL RECEIVE PRESENTATION.

On Tuesday evening next, at the Majestic Theatre, Lt.-Col. Carty will be presented with a purse of gold subscribed by the ex-service men of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment. The presentation is being made on the eve of his departure for St. George's where he has been appointed Magistrate. Lt. Col. Carty has been associated with the regiment from the beginning of the war, and throughout he was a general favorite with all the boys. On his return he was accorded one of the biggest receptions ever given to a returned veteran. A committee of his former comrades hit upon the idea of making him a presentation to show their respect and esteem and they met with a hearty reception from the ex-service men who were approached, and the presentation will be made at a smoker in the Majestic Theatre, on Tuesday evening next. All veterans are invited to attend. It is understood that a number of prominent citizens will also be present.

ADDED INDUCEMENT.—Many people go to Tor's Cove just to drink in its natural beauties. To-morrow there will be the added inducement of the Garden Party. Such a combination is irresistible.

The Telegram congratulates him, and that he may live for many years to enjoy it.

Special to Evening Telegram. KING'S COVE, to-day. Yesterday afternoon about 70 large fish of the whale species were surrounded by fifteen or twenty motor-boats with crews armed with guns, of Keels, and were driven ashore. NORMAL SCHOOL FOR PARADE GROUND.

It looks as if the citizens of St. John's are to lose the famous Parade Ground, which from time immemorial has been used as a playground for children. A Normal School has to be built there, and in order to give it a commanding appearance, half the land is being appropriated. Two roads are also being built through it. Tenders for the making of the latter are now being called for. It is understood that one road will run north and south from Merrymount to Harvey Road and adjoining the police gardens, some of which land will be taken in for the purpose of straightening the lines. The other road will be made at right angles to this one at a point half way down Parade Street.

Rounding-Up a Prowler.

SEQUEL IN COURT.

For some time the residents of Bannerman Street and vicinity have been annoyed on various occasions, by a prowler, who had a habit of peeping through back windows, etc., thereby causing alarm amongst the female occupants in particular. About 1.30 yesterday morning he was caught in the backyard by Mr. H. Gardner, but managed to escape to the front of the dwelling, and eventually makes a get away, not however before a scene was created, which ended in Court to-day in what Judge McCarthy said was a most extraordinary case. When the prowler was captured by Gardner, his wife and Gardner's sister-in-law search Mrs. Gardner met several men whom she requested to go to the scene amongst them being a man named Brown. The latter found Gardner choking and apparently strangling the prowler. Seeing the man illused he took steps to rescue him, but in the meantime Mrs. Gardner appeared and took a hand in the affair. One witness stated she put a half nelson on the unknown prowler. Brown seeing what was occurring, and not believing that the man had committed any offence, hit Gardner and his wife, and allowed the "Peeping Tom" to get away. Brown was summoned for assault but the Judge dismissed the case, as under the circumstances Brown, thought he was preventing a man from being killed by an infuriated man and a frenzied woman.

Knights of Columbus.

EXPRESS SYMPATHY TO FREEMASONS—ELOQUENT TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF LATE R.W. BRO. C. E. DUDER.

(Copy.) July 26, 1922. H. E. Cowan, Esq., District Grand Secretary, Scottish Freemasonry in Nfld., Masonic Temple, City. Dear Mr. Cowan:—We are deeply sensible of the great loss your order has sustained in the tragic death of your Right Worshipful District Grand Master, Mr. Chas. R. Duder, and in a spirit of co-fraternity, animated with feelings of sincerest regret, we join with you in mourning the death of one whose lofty standards and ideals of citizenship and fellowship distinguished him in life, and in death enshrine him in the memory of a people who so highly esteemed and honored him.

To many of us the news of his passing brought a sense of personal bereavement; to all of us the recognition that death had claimed a citizen of outstanding worth and verity whose place it is not possible to fill; but to you associated with him in the intimate ties of a fraternity of whose principles he was such a living exponent, to whose beneficent influence he lent such weight, and over whose councils he must have presided with such wisdom and broad vision, the tragedy is a chord of the most poignant grief.

A great leader has been taken from you under circumstances that stir the emotions and occasion our deepest sympathy. A friend has gone from amongst us after years of endearing association. An outstanding figure of usefulness in our national life has been removed; but, invoking a spirit of resignation, let us think of him as one "who but for a little space has gone," with the fight well fought, and the record of his life's work and our tender recollections of him, a perpetual testimony to a memory that will never be effaced.

Allow us to offer you this expression of our heartfelt sympathy. Yours sincerely, (Sgd.) PERCIE H. JARDINE, Recorder.

Prize for Police. EXCELLENT TRAFFIC REGULATIONS. St. John's, Nfld., August 3, 1922. I. G. Hutchings, K.C., O.B.E. City.

Dear Sir.—At a meeting of the Executive and Road Committee of the Newfoundland Motor Association held to-day, we were instructed to convey to you the appreciation and congratulations of the Association on the excellent manner in which you and the men under your hand have handled the traffic at Quidi Vidu on Regatta Day.

The Association particularly appreciates the fact that in addition to the large traffic being handled without accident, there was no delay or hang up in passing the large number of cars over their various routes.

An additional fact, that the Association has noted with pleasure, is that now when the police find it necessary to issue instructions or orders to drivers such orders, etc., are issued in a calm, dignified and courteous manner.

It is the suggestion of the Association that this letter be sent to the press for publication.

Yours very truly, THE NEWFOUNDLAND MOTOR ASSOCIATION, W. A. Reid, President, F. E. Outerbridge, Sec.-Treas.

Interesting football match took place at Bell Island on Tuesday evening when the young Britons and the local team were equal, but on crossing over the water were scored, and the Cadets were long before they equalized. The game then became fast, and just as the final solo the Cadets again found the net, but the referee otherwise and the game finished. The Orange Young Britons, 1, 2, 3, C. Brien, Treasurer of the Newfoundland Football League, was re-elected.

Several crews were practicing on the Vidi Lake last evening in preparation for St. Joseph's Garden Party Regatta, which takes place on Wednesday next. Six races are on the programme, and amongst those taking part will be a crew from Flatrock, the crew who will be rowing the winning Outer Cove fishermen.

Next Wednesday Afternoon.

ST. JOSEPH'S GARDEN PARTY. Next Wednesday afternoon, my dear, when we will be as happy as the man up in the moon; We'll bend our way, dear Mary, down to Mr. Woodley's farm; Where everything I'm certain will go off just like a charm. Much joy 'twill bring, we'll dance and sing, unto each joyous time; At St. Joseph's Garden Party on next Wednesday afternoon.

Oh, won't it be a dandy time, I guess that's what 'twill be, So Mary get yourself to rights to come along with me; I'll "ring you up" or call you on the day I'm goin' to take you down to have some pleasure near old Quidi Vidi Lake; So dress yourself all in your best there will be something doin' At St. Joseph's Garden Party on next Wednesday afternoon.

We'll have some fun, dear Mary, running in the merry rings; And then we'll have a jolly time a swinging in the swings; For everyone there's lots of fun provided on that day; So when for I'll call, my dear, oh, do not say me nay. Don't say you won't or else I'm sure there will be trouble brewin' Get ready for the party on next Wednesday afternoon.

The skill of famous rowers from the city, so they say, Many who have racing laurels, will be rowing on that day; Boat races Father Ziggy has added with other joys; From Outer Cove are coming in the gallant rowing boys; So, Mary wear your sweetest smile and don't look out of tune; For St. Joseph's Garden Party on next Wednesday afternoon.

The Records of 1901.

WHEN OUTER COVE MADE THE TIME OF THE CENTURY. Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir:—When Regatta comes around each year the minds of most enthusiasts revert to the famous Championship Race of 1901 when all who were privileged to see that Homeric contest watched the Outer Cove fishermen drive the "Blue Peter" across the stakes after rowing the course in 9:13-4, a feat which had never been performed up to that time and which it is safe to say will never be repeated again upon Quidi Vidi Lake. Everyone remembers the time, but how many know the oarsmen whose feat has made them immortal? Very few, I imagine. Yet all six of them are alive, and their coxswain as well. It is interesting to recall that this same coxswain fifty years ago was a member of the Outer Cove Fishermen's crew who won the first silver cup ever presented at a local Regatta. The names of the six men and the coxswain who steered them to victory and fame are:—Daniel McCarthy, Denis McCarthy, Denis Croke, John Whalen, Martin Boland, John Nugent, Walter Power, (coxswain). I note by a recent item that the "Blue Peter" in which these men rowed their great race will shortly be taken off the water and I would therefore suggest to the Regatta Committee that an effort be made to obtain a photograph of the crew in the boat before they and she pass into oblivion. A friend has told me that one member of the six, one of the McCarthy's, is at present in Boston, but it should be an easy matter to obtain a photograph of him and include it in the group. Future generations will want to know the type and calibre of man ("for there were giants in these days") who were capable of such a feat. Such a group should be in the permanent possession of the Regatta Committee, to whom I make the suggestion in the belief that it would be an act which would appeal to everyone who remembers with pride an achievement which is not likely to be duplicated in our local annals.

Yours truly, BLUE PETER. August 5, 1922.

ROCKETT-DUNPHY. A quiet but very pretty wedding took place at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Curling, on Sunday morning, when Mary, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Rockett of Petries, and Ex-Lieut. Thos. J. Dunphy, D.C. M., C. de G., were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, by the Rev. Fr. Kerwan. The bride looked charming in a dress of Princess blue Roma Crepe with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of Syringa and white roses, and was assisted by her sister, Miss Monica Rockett as bridesmaid, while Mr. A. M. Dunphy, brother of the groom performed the duties of groomsmen. Following the ceremony the wedding party drove to the home of the bride's parents, when the immediate friends of the contracting parties had assembled to breakfast, which concluded with the usual toasts. The presents received were many and valuable including several gold pieces, silverware, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Dunphy joined the east bound express in the afternoon for St. John's where the honeymoon will be spent. The Telegram joins with the numerous friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Dunphy many years of wedded happiness.

The Reason For It.

Mr. and Mrs. Wings were reading the evening paper. "Peculiar ways the Japanese have," said Mrs. Wings, casually; "they read up instead of down, and from right to left. What do you suppose they do that for, Mr. Wings?" "How should I know, Mrs. Wings? What questions you women do ask." Then there was silence, until suddenly Wings threw down the paper with a remark of an electric blue colour and a brimstone smell, and began poking the fire viciously. "What is the matter, Mr. Wings?" eagerly asked his wife. "Matter? Oh, nothing—nothing at all. I only read a half-column of thrilling narrative before I found that it wound up with a patent medicine advertisement."

Why Everyone Can't Swim.

A well-known medical man brings forward quite a plausible explanation of the fact that while most of the animal creations appear to swim by intuition, man is almost alone, in requiring previous training to keep his head above the water. He says it is merely a matter of heredity, and due to our descent from races who were cave and rock dwellers and tree climbers. The theory does not necessarily imply Darwinism or go so far as to demand the belief that man is but a highly revised edition of some antropoloid ape. He suggests that almost all mammiferous animals, when conscious of danger, use instinctively the means given them for flight and escape, which involve precisely the motions best calculated to keep them afloat in water. The hereditary instinct of man, however, is, unfortunately, he says, to climb out of the danger. Hence, unless he has a nautical education, he throws his arms at once above his head, thus increasing the weight upon the latter, which, of course, then goes under water. The struggles of the untaught human being tend to his own destruction, as is well-known to be the case.

Both Agreed.

The passengers on the pleasure steamer having just finished a really good dinner, were enjoying the beauties of the wonderful Highland scenery. A majestic ravine came into view—all tender greys and shimmering browns, and blues. The girl in the pink frock held her breath till the spot was out of sight. "Oh, Cecil," she said, "what a lovely gorge that was!" "Yes," said her brother, "quite the best feed we've had since we left London."

Don't Forget.

That you label your own work. That few men succeed until they try. That work is only the means; character is the end. That sincerity is the foundation of all honest work. That every man is destined to do something worth while. That it is easier to do good work than poor, if you once learn how. That the only way to keep your credit good is by paying your debts. That no one can hold you down if you are determined to succeed. That a sensible employer is more anxious to push you ahead than to hold you down.

When He Smiled

Jobkison's mother-in-law had been paying him an extended visit, and the helpless man was recently pressed into taking Mrs. J. and her mother on a visit to the Zoo. Thoughts of the cricket match he had been forced to give up caused a perpetual frown on his face, and animals and reptiles alike failed to please him. When he reached the parrot-house, however, the first smile of the day appeared. "Oh, do come away from this dreadful house, Henry," pleaded Mrs. J. "Why one can't hear oneself speak in here." "That's why I like it, dear," returned Henry. "Seems so homelike to me."

The Rights of Others.

Let us teach the rights of others. To our sisters and our brothers in the school and in the home each day. Everybody has a duty. To protect all nature's beauty. Let us then begin and make it common lay.

Let us leave the lovely flowers. Trees and shrubs that are not ours in their places each were meant to stay. To delight the eye and senses God has given them, they were sent us. Don't uproot them, don't destroy them; don't, I pray.

For they are the object lessons of God's love and richest blessings. Let us look and think as we pass by Signs and symbols. He has given us in the birds and bees and plant life—reason why.

Let us take the trees and flowers. As a pattern safe for ours. Human life can be as beautiful as they. We're all put here for a purpose. There is thought can ever hurt us. If we function as God meant us, every way.

A Peculiar Fish.

The Dutch fishing drifter Adrian (Schwenngen)—skipper Jan, Gelderland—recently reported a very singular occurrence. While engaged in fishing in 33 east 57.50 north—off the south coast of Norway—the crew were awakened by a strange noise, apparently alongside the ship. The noise resembled a moan and ended in a shrill whistle. Somewhat alarmed, the whole crew "turned out," but the night was dark and nothing could be seen. The noise continued, however, and when daylight made it possible, the crew were astonished to see a large fish—some 8 feet long with a girth of about three feet and a half—about a yard from the vessel.

The fish had a ball-shaped protuberance at the back of its head, but none of the crew were able to discover any trace of eyes. It was bright yellow in color, and had a tall shag like that of a halibut. Herrings were thrown to it, but it paid no attention, but it devoured the waste oil which he engines gave off when they were started. The fish remained with the vessel—always about a yard distant, moving when the vessel moved, and remaining stationary, when the vessel hove too—for nine nights and days; but on Thursday, before reaching Lerwick harbor, a thick fog came down, and the fish and the vessel parted company somewhere, near Mousa (a few miles from Lerwick harbor), the fish having thus followed the drifter all the way across the North Sea.

The Romance Of Lost Treasure.

(By R. J. Hatfield in Glasgow Weekly Herald.)

THE MILLIONS OF VIGO BAY.

The town of Vigo, in Spain, is a small seaport, prosperous in a modest way, but not one that would be thought from external appearances to possess any claims to great riches.

Yet, if the sandy bottom of a harbor can be said to form part of a port, it is one of the richest in the world; for there lies beneath the quiet waters of Vigo Bay one of the greatest fortunes that the old empire of Spain ever brought out of its colonies in the New World.

In the year 1702, there sailed from Vera Cruz a plate-fleet of Spain. In usual circumstances the sailing of this fleet, bearing the spoils of both mining and murder, was a yearly occurrence, but on this occasion the fleet contained three years' accumulation of riches, a dispute as to the succession to the throne having caused a delay.

It was not without some trepidation that the Spaniards entrusted this treasure, estimated at £24,000,000, upon the high seas. They were only too well acquainted with the marauding habits of certain English admirals, and Drake, though dead, lived in the fear which he had put into the hearts of all Spaniards.

The work of despoiling the rich galleons of Spain, so ably commenced by the former Lord High Admiral, was being well carried on; ship after shipload of gold, silver, emeralds, and diamonds—obtained no doubt honestly from the inhabitants of South America—had been diverted from their course into the exchequer of His Most Catholic Majesty with equal honesty, and sent to—"certain" lands of the coast of France. The three years' accumulation weighed heavily, therefore, on the minds of those responsible for its safe delivery in Spain.

THE FLEET OF GOLD.

When the seventeen plate-ships sailed with their rich cargo they were accompanied by twenty-three ships of the line, under the command of Count de Chateaufort, lent by Spain's ally and ever-faithful friend, France.

Needless to say, news of the sailing of this "fleet of gold" soon arrived in London, where Queen Anne held her court; and, with equal speed, certain admirals put to sea determined to have another brush with Spain, and make a bid for the prize that would fall to force of arms.

But luck was against the English. The plate-fleet sailed on whilst the seas were being scoured—in every direction but the right one—by the honest sailormen to whom the word "prize" must in no wise be applied.

But, though the plate-fleet sailed on serenely enough, the minds of its commanders were far from easy. Report after report reached them of the frantic hurrying to and fro of English vessels. Sooner or later, they felt, they would be found and attacked. Councils of war were held daily as to the best thing to do, and great discussion arose as to what point in Europe would be best to make for.

The French were for making for France, where they would have the assistance of the army to protect the fleet; but the Spaniards had it in mind that the protection of the treasure might last a trifle to long—in fact, that once having touched French soil, the treasure might automatically become naturalized. They, therefore determined to make for Vigo.

The plate-fleet arrived there safe; it had crossed the wide Atlantic without once spying an English sail, and it was no doubt with some relief that the commanders heard the rattle of cab as ship after ship that great conveyer dropped anchor in the sheltered waters of the bay.

The difficulties and dangers of the commanders of the fleet and the owners of the treasure were indeed over, but for one extraordinary piece of stupidity. Having arrived at Vigo and not at Cadix, as was their wont, the commanders of the plate-fleet found themselves prevented by red-tape from unloading their precious cargo.

The citizens of Cadix held a charter for the unloading of ships from America, and were in no frame of mind to allow the poorer brethren in Vigo to earn honest pay by unloading the seventeen ships.

A pretty dispute arose, which, after much wrangling, was referred to Madrid for settlement. Meanwhile, the plate-ships were lying peacefully at anchor, their cargoes still aboard them, and what was of far greater importance, an English fleet under the redoubtable Sir George Rooke was slowly drawing near.

Who Laughs Last.

This admiral, together with certain Dutchmen—friends for the time being—was returning from a disastrous attack on Cadix, in which, for a change, the Spaniards had gained by far the greater advantage. Sir George was sailing slowly home, himself suffering from the gout, allowing the units of his fleet to make their way as best they could. It so happened that H.M.S. Pembroke put into LAPOS for fresh water, and there, through the instrumentality of a talkative chaplain, news was heard of the arrival of a plate-fleet of fabulous wealth at Vigo. No sooner had the chaplain blurted his tale into the ears of his commander when the Pembroke weighed anchor, and went flying hot-foot after Sir George Rooke.

She managed to catch him up; and what a change the news she bore wrought in the minds of the defeated sailors. Dutch and English, wounded and sick, high officer and lowly gunner, all burst into cheers when the word went round. Treasure! Wealth such as Drake and Raleigh had never even dreamed of! Their minds needed no more the cheering words of their commanders to keep them in the best of spirits.

Word soon reached Vigo of the approach of the enemy. Immediately, the forts were manned, militia called out, chains stretched across the harbor, and—crowning folly of all—portons of the treasure that had been sent ashore loaded back upon the ships.

Against the formidable preparations of the Spaniards, the English, with the assistance of the army, were crashing into the chains and beams at the entrance to the bay, the Duke of Ormond was leading his Grenadiers against the forts. Both land and sea attacks were successful, though not without the payment of a heavy price in lives.

The ships bore down on the anchored galleons, moored so close that they dare not fire their broadsides. Many were blown out of the water, others were set on fire, and the heaviest laden were carried at the point of the sword. Soon the land forts had fallen, the galleons were blazing. The day was ours!

Fruits of Victory.

As soon as victory was assured, all efforts were expended on putting out the fires aboard the Spanish vessels, for it was not for glory but gold that our men were fighting. In this they were not so successful, for, whilst our sailors were working like slaves, to save the treasure, the Spaniards, realising that all was lost, were setting fire to and blowing up the treasure-ships that had hitherto escaped their enemies' attentions.

None the less, Sir George Rooke managed to get away with the sum of £200,000—no mean prize for a fleet returning from defeat. The rest of the treasure was sunk in the waters of the bay. Our losses amounted to 800 killed, 500 wounded, and one three-decker destroyed by fire.

Thus, whilst Sir George Rooke and his merry cut-throats were enjoying the fruits of victory in England, and spreading tales of the vast treasure they had but merely skimmed the top off, the Spaniards were, somewhat forlornly, striving to raise the wealth they had so stupidly lost beneath the waves of Vigo Bay.

No results of any consequence were experienced, and, after a few rather futile efforts, the Government turned the salvage work over to private enterprise, at the same time demanding a rake-off of 50 per cent.

It was not until 1728 that any results were obtained, and even then what was done was not so pleasing as might have been expected. A Frenchman—Alexandre Gouberet—decided that the best way to get at the treasure was to get the ships up, and, after tremendous exertions, he did succeed in dragging into shallow water the bulk of a great ship. But this was not, unfortunately one of the treasure galleons; it was a French ship of the line, once the pride of the Count de Chateaufort.

It is said that the disgust caused in Gouberet's mind and the delighted laughter of the English at his "find" broke his heart. Anyway, the Frenchman retired into obscurity, and made no more attempts.

BARS OF SILVER.

The next man to try was an Englishman. With the use of a diving bell he succeeded in raising bars of silver to the value of many hundreds of pounds, and would doubtless have saved more treasure had not the Spaniards suddenly realized that it was undignified for them to sit by whilst an Englishman—the race that had caused all the trouble—quietly took possession of their wealth.

This man was William Evans, who was sent about his business, and once more the waters of Vigo Bay were allowed to lap in peace over their rich boots.

In 1825 a Scotsman arrived upon the scene. He was allowed to try his luck, and a guard was sent to keep count of the wealth salvaged in order that 50 per cent should duly be handed over to the Government.

But the Spaniards were doomed to be outwitted again. For the Scotsman, having raised a not inconsiderable sum, made the Spanish guards drunk, hoisted sail, and made for the Channel. He was never caught, and now near Perth stands a "case" known as Dollar House, in which the treasure-seeker of his days spent the remainder of his days in comfort and modest luxury.

Throughout the 18th century, many attempts to raise the plate-fleet were made, but with little success, though the positions of the galleons were charted. An American company was floated with the name of Vigo Bay Treasure Company, spent fifty years, watched all the time by a gunboat, without finding anything of any value. On one occasion they did very nearly win a great prize. Using the means of salvage then at their disposal, they raised a great vessel from the bottom, but the moment she was above water, the weight of silt within her broke her in two; she dropped from the slings and disappeared once more beneath the sea. In 1804, a skillful worker in the art of salvage, Don Carlos Iberti, with a brother engineer, (Signor Pinto) put into action new inventions for raising sunken ships.

These inventions—consisting of one case of great slings, and in another of canvas floats which were placed in sunken ships and then pumped full of air—had proved of great success in other parts of the world. The canvas bags, known as "elevators," were each capable of lifting 40 tons and a number raised together had raised a battleship.

But, in spite of the superior knowledge of these engineers, no great success at first rewarded their efforts. The first ship they raised, proved to be, not as they hoped, a rich treasure ship, but a merchantman, loaded with what once had been a costly cargo of merchandise, now nothing but rags and rubbish destroyed by the sea water.

Since that time other things have come to light. Iberti and Pinto have brought to light from the waters of Vigo Bay, anchors, guns, wheels, mortars, spears, compasses, cables, statuettes of gold, pipe-holders, plates of silver up to 80 pounds, and gold ingots of considerable value. They have proved beyond doubt, that there lies, waiting to be snatched from destruction, a fortune that even now is by no means to be despised. Lying in those shallow waters, for anyone to take who can, is a treasure of close on £24,000,000.

"Our Dumb Animals."

REPORT OF CHIEF AGENT, S.P.A.

At the request of the police I humanely destroyed a dog on Water St. West; cautioned a cabman to be careful with a lame horse; attended to the landing of 27 head of cattle and over 100 sheep at the railway station. These were all in good condition. Attended to 47 head of cattle landed from the Sable I; saw them all watered and taken away. Was also present at a sale of cattle and sheep at Neal's wharf; these were humanely handled. I also humanely destroyed a dog owned by Mr. W. G. Goelling; also a cat owned by Miss Quigley. Received complaints of men riding on heavy loads of coal; investigated and found carts contained nearly a ton each, and requested men to take lighter loads. With the amount of motor traffic in the city to-day drivers are in more or less danger when walking alongside carts particularly on Water, Gower and Duckworth Streets. No drivers are allowed to ride over grades; anyone found doing so will be punished by law. Went to the Regatta; remained at the junction of King's Bridge and Circular Roads; stopped all drivers who were inclined to over-drive; found all the horsemen willing to carry out all my instructions given and very civil when spoken to; also had the co-operation of the police in my work. Examined two horses as they appeared tired out, and at my request the owners took them home; left the course at 7.30. Attended a sale of cattle and sheep at Neal's wharf; also to the landing of 25 head of cattle, 3 horses and some sheep from the schooner Mollie Fern, and to 118 head of cattle, 60 sheep, 3 horses from the Canadian Sapper. Everything all satisfactory and animals properly cared for and fed. JONAS BARTER, Chief Agent.

SHARP AT TWO.—It would be well to get to the station ten minutes to two, or even earlier, because there will be a big crowd purchasing tickets for Tor's Cove tomorrow. The train leaves sharp at two.

Ship Changes Ownership.
PAWNEE PURCHASED BY BELL L. S. S. Co.
S.S. Pawnee, owned by the Colony Steamship Company, which has been operating a popular service in Conception Bay, was purchased yesterday by W. R. Neal, of George Neal, Ltd., managing owners of the Bell Island Steamship Company. The purchase price is said to be in the vicinity of $15,000. It is understood the Pawnee's new owners will continue to run her under the same schedule as far as possible. Capt. L. Dewar, the popular commander of the Othar, has been given charge of the Pawnee and took over his new command yesterday. Mr. F. R. Reed, the Manager of the Colony Steamship Company left for New York by to-day's Rosalind.

THE LAST CHANCE.—This is the last chance to remind you about the Tor's Cove Garden Party to-morrow. You'll be grateful for the reminder when you go.

Personal.

Mr. J. W. James, Magistrate at Greenspond, who has been in St. John's for a few days, returns home by the Prospero next week.

Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. H. W. Knox-Niven are here from England on a short visit to Mrs. Knox-Niven's mother, Lady Reid.

The Rev. E. C. Earp, B.A., and his family have returned from a short holiday spent in Conception and Placentia Bays, and are again in residence at St. Thomas's Rectory.

Mr. W. J. Higgins is at present confined to his home suffering from a sprained ankle, which he received on Regatta Day just previous to the starting of the Mercantile dash. The popular Vice President of the Committee, though suffering much pain, remained on the course, and at night had to be assisted to his home.

Rev. A. Clayton, who has been Curate at St. Thomas's for the last ten years, has accepted an invitation from the Bishop of Lichfield to work in his diocese, and leaves for England with his family at the end of next month.

Of Another Kind.

Kathleen had been put out to service, and her mistress liked the rosy face of the young Irish girl. One day Kathleen was sent on an errand to town. She was longer than usual; and her mistress stood in the porch as she came through the door.

"Kathleen was happy and her mistress observed 'Why, Kathleen, what a rosy, happy face you have to-day! You look as if the dew had kissed you.'"

Kathleen dropped her eyes and murmured, "Indeed, mam, but that wasn't his name!"

DESIGNER TOM MCMANUS MADE A GOOD JOB OF FINEST CRAFT EVER TURNED OUT OF ESSEX YARDS.

When Tom McManus was given the job of designing a new fier to take part in the fisherman's races, interest in the event, especially among the trade, just about reached the high water mark. For Tom had the following who believe he's got 'em all beaten when it comes to laying out fishermen. Some say he isn't quite so scientific as Burgess, that he can't get that fine ratio and appointment of canvas to hull that Burgess can, rule of thumb designer, they call him. Shucks. Look what he's turned out—nearly 500 hundred of 'em too. How about the Oreole, which Captain Harty himself says was one of the best fishermen ever built. Do you think she was figured out on the barn door with a piece of chalk and a dressmaker's tape?

When Cap'n Clay Morrissy picked McManus to design his proposed schooner, schooner92ac22beLH? hrdl shrdl rim Wingsheek beach a mile away. She wasn't pulled off into deep water until April 15. Fortunately she wasn't damaged much and was fixed up as good as new, sparred and rigged, and was ready for sea by June.

The International Fishermen's Race Committee very courteously waived the time limit as laid down in the Deed of Gift, which stipulates that a contender must get to the Banks before May 1. On June 2 she sailed on her maiden trip.

She was handsome craft, bearing every mark of a thoroughbred. Though she looked somewhat down by the head, she moved surprisingly fast. Following was the submarine chaser 247, which on several occasions gave friendly assistance. Aboard of the chaser were Mrs. Morrissy and another of the captain's daughters, Arethusa.

The opinion of the jury of masters and fishermen who thronged the wharves was all in favor of the Ford over any of the so-called fliers.

Captain Morrissy together with the owners of the new vessel—Bessie R. Morrissy, Frank C. Pearce, P. Wilder, Pollard, Jonathan Raymond and Arthur D. Story—are to be warmly congratulated on their pluck in feeding the vessel through to its successful completion despite handicaps such as vessel owners have been called upon to overcome.

The above account of the designing of the international schooner race competitor, the Henry Ford, was taken from a special supplement to the Atlantic Fisherman.

RUINED MEAL.

"I don't want to accept that invitation," a friend of mine said to me one morning recently when the postman brought her a week-end invitation, as we sat together on her porch.

"Why not? I thought they had a lovely house."
"They have, but the last time we went there Mr. found so much fault at meal times that it made me awfully uncomfortable."
"Isn't his wife a good cook?"
"Afraid she will weep."
"Not very, but that doesn't matter half so much as having to sit there and hear him criticize and ask her why she has a cold dessert on a cold day, and if she will learn not to get the roast too raw by the time they have been married ten years? And she looks as if she might weep any minute and you feel as if you wanted to get away somewhere. I think there is nothing in the world so embarrassing as being forcibly made a witness to family quarrels or criticisms."
"Why does he do it?"
"Well, I think it is partly because he is dissatisfied with her cooking and partly because he is a traveling man and wants us to know that he is used to the best of food and the best service and can't get along without it, and he takes that way of impressing it on us. I don't blame him for criticizing her. She is a pretty poor cook but I do wish, for our sake as well as for hers, he would do it afterwards."

We squirm inside.
Who hasn't had that feeling when made a party to some form of criticism or correction or quarrelling?
To keep all such things as much in the background as possible is one of the hallmarks of true breeding.
Children sometimes have to be spoken firmly to in public for the sake of both child and public, but a tactful mother does all she can to minimize this public correction.
Servants should never, unless absolutely necessary, be instructed or criticized or corrected in public. It embarrasses them, makes them more likely to make mistakes, and leaves resentment. Ten words afterward are more endurable to them than one at the time of occurrence.
Give Him Peace.
There is nothing that you can give your guest in the way of food or service that will counter balance the discomfort that comes when one is conscious of a strained, unpleasant atmosphere. Out and out quarrelling is frightful bad inside; public criticism of each other by married folks should be absolutely taboo; and even those little half jesting digs, those half humorous, half acrimonious arguments that the several years married are apt to indulge in, spoil the peaceful, pleasant atmosphere that should be the background of all true hospitality.

At Rest.
As the sun shone in all its splendour—ere the shadows of evening appeared, there was laid to rest in the R. C. Cemetery on Monday last the body of the late John Foley, Postmaster—loved and respected by the whole community. One could scarcely realize that less than twenty-four hours previous to this sad and solemn ceremony, deceased had been apparently in a fair state of health, but the call came, and so terminated the earthly existence of a good man. In the respect to their worthy fellow citizen, the shopkeepers closed their stores at 4 o'clock for the remainder of the afternoon, and at 4.30, the large procession wended its way to the R. C. Cathedral, where Father Dinn performed the last sad rites and the choir sang a portion of that hymn of consolation "Nearer My God to Thee." A guard of honor from "Dalton Council," Knights of Columbus, attended the funeral and also members from Carbonara. As Mr. H. F. Shortis puts it in his eloquent tribute to the late Mr. Foley, which appeared in Telegram on the 31st ult.,—"So passed away a great soul, Newfoundland is the poorer, and at Harbor Grace especially he will be missed. To his wife, and five children, Lizzie and Leo in the U.S.A., Mary, Magdalen and Edward at home, we offer our deepest sympathy.—Requested in Face.—Cor.

Street Car Annoyance.
Residents in the vicinity of Rawlin's Cross are complaining of the grinding noise of the street cars as they round the curve. The noise is not needed much in the day time, except by the sick, but it is particularly aggravating at night and can be heard as far as in Hayward's Avenue. A little grease applied to the rails might have the needed effect.

Forest Vandals.

If it be a crime to exploit the needs of others in what category stand the politicians who for their own selfish ends are taking advantage of the unfortunate economic condition of the country to rob the land of its heritage and men of their right to a decent wage at one operation.
We have a group of men now three years in office and they have not got further along towards promoting the welfare of the country than the adoption in a wholesale manner of a miserable make-shift expedient introduced during the hysteria of a war-time period.
The cutting and exportation of pulpwood and pil-props which received sanction of legislation as a temporary war time measure is now acted upon as if it were a permanency, and our woods are being raided in the name of affording employment.
This destruction of our woods is nothing short of criminal folly, and should not be countenanced even though it afforded the men engaged a decent living wage, but it does nothing of the sort, and there is therefore a double reason why it should be discontinued at once.
It means starvation wages and the destruction of our woods.
What this mad onslaught upon our fast depleting forestry resources means can only be appreciated by those who are eye-witnesses and who have actual knowledge of what is really going on.
At two dollars a cord a man cannot earn more than enough to keep him from actually starving.
This low rate of pay compels the wood man to deeds of ruthlessness, and trees are slaughtered in a most criminally extravagant manner. If the contractor were dealing with his own goods, and not with the natural property of us all he would be more conservative in his methods. As it is he appears to be bent on one design and that self aggrandizement at the expense of the country.
Can nothing halt this destruction. Can nothing that can be said awake the country to a sense of real danger.
From the politicians we can expect nothing.
The people themselves must act, if we are to save the last remnant of our woods.
There are other ways of giving employment beside setting men at the work of demolition. There are ways whereby men may not only earn a living wage but may be employed not in destroying, but adding to the wealth of the country.
It is folly beyond power of words to describe to cut down our trees when there is no demand for the product. Hundreds of thousands of cords of pulp wood are lying un-used in this country and in Canada to-day, yet we cut on cutting.
We keep on cutting without a thought to the consequence. We use our forests as we would a mine, destroying as we go.
It is time a thorough survey be at once undertaken with a view to discovering where we stand in the matter of our woods. We should ascertain what the annual increase of our wood is, so that we may not exceed this limit.
Governments of the past and present have been most remiss in this respect, but the present party in power has been criminally responsible for a destruction exceeding all former ef-

TRINITY.

(Bonavista.)
To return to the Bonavista Church Registers:— Trinity and Bonavista had such deeply interesting reciprocal relations with one another—ecclesiastical, medical, and social—a hundred years ago, that I gladly avail myself of the opportunity to remind the present generation of those events, "lest we forget."

In 1818 James Pointer Garland, Esq. of Trinity, married Arabella, daughter of John Bland, Esq. of Bonavista (High Sheriff.)

In 1888 Archibald Arnott of Scotland, a resident of Bonavista, married Susannah Finch of Trinity.

Rev. Thomas Wood who was the Missionary at Bonavista, became the Missionary at Trinity in 1848.

Rev. Bertram Jones who was the Missionary at Trinity during the year 1847, was in charge of Bonavista in 1848, and during the same year he married Miss Emma Sweetland of Trinity.

Rev. James Fitzgerald, M.A., who was stationed at Bonavista in 1844, was transferred to Trinity in 1844.

Doctor Clinch, who began his medical work at Bonavista, came to Trinity in 1788, and a few years afterwards studied for Holy Orders, was ordained and appointed to Trinity.

Rev. William Bullock, the Missionary at Trinity, visited Bonavista officially in 1828, baptized 33 persons, and married 2. He visited Bonavista again in 1829, and baptized 26 persons.

Under date of January 9th 1823 is the following entry:—"The inhabitants of Bonavista were thrown into alarm by the cry of fire at half past eight last night. It was soon ascertained that the Court House was on fire, but it had gained too great an ascendancy to entertain the least thought of subduing it, so as to save the building. The night was moderate, and the wind at about N.W.; no further damage was done. Nothing but the mercy of God appears more visible, even in the midst of His judgments. By this fire all the Sunday School books were destroyed, which, happening at this season, deprived the children of all means of instruction for several months, if not longer." I have been told that the Church Registers that contained entries of events prior to 1780 were also destroyed at the same time. This was the first Court House fire. The second fire, within recent years, destroyed the building, and burnt a prisoner to death.

In volumes one and two there are entries by Rev. H. T. Fitzgerald, M. A., Rev. George Dodsword, Abraham Akerman, Thomas Taylor, Rev. Geo. Coster, Rev. N. A. Coster, Rev. Thomas Wood, Rev. W. Netten, Rev. John Leigh, Rev. Bertram Jones, Rev. Wm. Bullock, Rev. E. A. Sall, Rev. Jas. Robertson, Rev. A. E. C. Bayly, Rev. W. Kirby, Daring Rev. E. A. Sall's incumbency, thirty pounds was collected to purchase a bell for Christ Church. The bell then purchased, after several years of use, cracked. It was then sent away and re-cast into the bell of the present day.

The persons who entered the Marriages, Baptisms, and Burials in the Bonavista Registers, limited themselves so severely to the bare acts of the persons who performed the services (without note or comment) that they rendered the entries more or less common-places to the antiquarian of succeeding generations. To the fact that the old church clerks in Trinity, whose duty it was to register the official acts of the Church, so frequently added personal explanations, observations, and comments—to this fact, I say, is due the peculiar and practically inexhaustible interest, that runs through the Trinity Registers.

A few important official events in Bonavista parish a hundred years ago:—

MARRIAGES.
1822—James Baker and Elizabeth Squires.
William Barnes and Elizabeth Chaik.
Thomas Mesh and Caroline Abbott.
John Squires and Hannah Habgood.
John Noon of Catalina and Elizabeth Lander, of Trinity (widow).

BAPTISMS.
1822—Thomas, son of Elizabeth and Thomas Parly.
George, son of George and Susannah Brown.
Abesalom, son of George and Sarah Abbott.
William, son of John and Elizabeth Miles.
Elizabeth, Stephen, Mary, James,

John, children of Stephen and Ann Holloway, King's Cove.
Charles, son of Charles and Elizabeth Haines, Catalina.
Jane, daughter of Henry and Martha Goldsworthy, Keels.

Christian Names 180 Years Ago.
Of the hundreds of Christian names found in the Bonavista Registers, of baptisms covering a hundred and thirty years from 1786, not more than half a dozen had more than one name, and that name was distinctly English; such as William, George, James, John, Mary, Elizabeth, Sarah, Jane. (It is the same in the Trinity Registers.) A few of the names that I found out of the ordinary, in the Bonavista entries, are Abigail, Temperance, Ariana; and amongst the men's names I found:—Abednego, Humber, Nebuchadnezzar. Though Nebuchadnezzar appears in full at his baptism, I was not surprised to find him entered as "Neb," when he was married, though there is nothing to indicate as to whether the person used Nebuchadnezzar, or Neb, for short, in the marriage service.

Mr. William Hiscock of the Postal Telegraph Staff, Grand Falls is spending his holiday at Trinity.

Miss Pauline Baird of St. John's is the guest of Capt. and Mrs. Batson at Trinity.

Mrs. (Rev.) Andrew Tulk. (nee Etfe Morris) and Master David, are spending a week or two at Trinity with Mrs. Tulk's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Morris. Glad to see them. David says "Trinity is great," and he is right.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Ryan of Catalina spent a few days at Trinity last week, and were the guests of Mrs. Sheehan.

The Hon. A. Mews, Mrs. Mews and children are spending their annual holiday at Trinity. We are glad to see them all, but particularly glad to see little Catherine looking well after her trying illness. A few weeks at Trinity will supply anything lacking along the lines of health.

Miss Marjorie Mews of St. John's is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Erikson at Trinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas DeGrish, from New York, are enjoying native air at Trinity, preparatory to their taking up residence at St. John's.

Mr. Ernest Morris, of St. John's, spent an enjoyable week at his home town, Trinity, and would have liked to stay longer. We are always glad to see the boys and girls of yesterday visiting the old scenes, knowing as we do how thoroughly they enjoy it all. Many things have changed in Trinity, but not everything.

On Wednesday next (D.V.) August 8th, Mrs. Pittman will celebrate her 87th birthday. "Mary Elizabeth, child of William and Elizabeth Mary Kelson. Born August 9th, 1835."—Church Register.

Mrs. Pittman has planted her two gardens, alone, as usual, with all the standard vegetables, plus a patch or two of savory, mint, lettuce, etc., and those gardens to-day would take a first prize for general appearances. There is, of course, no actual need of Mrs. Pittman doing this, but these gardens are her life-preservers, and used accordingly.

Detective O'Neil registered at Garland Hotel this week. He brought in a prisoner who is charged with destroying property belonging to the Reid Nfd. Co. We are glad to know that some one is thus officially appointed to look after and to bring to justice, such people as wantonly destroy the stations and other property along the line of railway.

Magistrate Somerton and Head Constable Ryan paid an official visit to King's Cove on the 28th.

Mr. T. Davis, of St. John's, representing the grocery department of the Royal Stores, registered at Garland Hotel on Tuesday, and called on his customers.

A person who has never been to Trinity, but is anxious to visit it, would like to know what kind of weather we have—or rather will have, in August. Well, the weather man in Toronto has charge of that department, and I don't wish to infringe upon his prerogatives. Yet, as I look back over the fifty or sixty Augusts that I have spent here, I would say—the weather during that month is most generally, always fine, SOMETIMES.

Some exceptionally large fish have recently been caught in Bonavista. A friend of mine has told me that he saw one that weighed ninety-one pounds, and that in its stomach were two hundred and fifty-six caplin. A glutton, for sure.

Mr. Scott, representing Garneau, Limited, Wholesale Dry Goods, Quebec, registered at Garland Hotel, this week and called on his customers. Garneau, Limited, was established in 1881; carries a two million dollar stock. President, Sir George Garneau.

Mrs. Hiscock (Postmistress) still has the painter at work on her house and property, with the result that it is now the most picturesque building in town.

Captain Blackwood, schooner Tulp, arrived home from the Straits on Monday last with a full load of fish, probably 800 quintals.

Mr. Hussey and Mr. Granger are steadily improving in health, and are able to be out of doors on fine days.

Miss Thorne, of St. John's, with her little niece, Muriel and Gladys Christian, are breathing native air at Trinity. Glad to see them.

The rectory at Trinity is being repaired and will be painted.

Professor R. J. Moore, Ph.D. of McGill University, is spending a holiday with an old College friend, Dr. C. T. Fitzgerald, Trinity East. Thrice welcome, Professor. You will be well looked after.

The "Rocky Hill" Football Team of Trinity went to Catalina on Wednesday last, and played a friendly game with the Catalina team. The following gentlemen represented Trinity: Walter White, Captain, full back; Dick Maidment, goal; Harvey Green, full back; Will Sullivan, centre half; F. Simms, right half; Geo. Bartlett, left half; Ned. Somerton, centre; Geo. Hoskins, outside left; A. Johnson, inside left; Peter Coleridge, inside right; E. B. Rankin, outside right. The score was one to nothing, in favor of Catalina.

A few Trinity marriages at dates sufficiently recent to awaken happy memories, on the part of at least some of the witnesses who are still living:— 1846—Thomas Gawler, of Dorchester, England, and Elizabeth Carberry, of British Harbor. Witnesses: William Gardner, William Carberry, Elizabeth Anderson, Adosha Gardner. 1866—David Kane, of Trinity, and Rebecca Cook, of Ship Cove. Witnesses: Jacob Barrett, Frances Phoenix Bowering, Drusilla Tavernor. 1867—George House and Arianna Ainsworth. Witnesses: John Ainsworth, Caroline A. Ainsworth, Jacob Crocker, Martha Grant, Frances Crocker.

1867—Benjamin Miller and Sarah Cross Tavernor. Witnesses: John Cross, Louisa Tavernor, Joseph Tavernor, Mary Ann Newhook, George Grant, Mary Christian. 1868—John Randall (son of Isaac), and Mary Fowling (1st persons married in the new church near Ship Cove). Witnesses: Thomas Fowling, Sr., Elizabeth Fowling, Maria Crocker, Owen Fowling, Martha Hogarth. 1868—Richard Grant and Mary Ann Newhook. Witnesses: John Newhook, Elizabeth Newhook, William Grant, Martha Grant, Martin Fowling, Mary Grant.

1870—Matthias Toop and Margaret Penney. Witnesses: Thomas Cooper, Rebecca Penney, George Penney, Caroline Soper, James Toop, Rebecca East.

I still have a few more interesting notes from the Bonavista Registers for next week.

Answers to Correspondents.
H.T. asks why the gate at the Church of England Cemetery at Bonavista is called the Lych-Gate. The word Lych or Lich is Anglo-Saxon, and means a corpse. Hence a Lych-Gate is a churchyard gate, with a roof over it, under which, on the occasion of a funeral, the corpse and its bearers may await the coming of the officiating minister. A properly equipped Lych Gate has a long seat on each side, on which the bearers may sit, and a stone called the Lych-Stone in the middle of the path, under the roof, on which the coffin may be placed. If the person has died of an infectious disease, and the body is not to be taken into the church, a part of the Burial Service is sometimes said at the Lych-Gate.

Football.—The land on which the men play football in Trinity, belongs to the Collis family. I remember when it was a carefully fenced and highly productive potato garden. James Mews Collis and his brothers Arnold, George and Arthur, and my father who owned the adjoining land, worked hard after tea every evening during a summer, trying to make a road (up by the Orange Hall and along the ridge of rock of Rider's Hill) so that they might cart caplin for fertilizing the land along the road side. They did not succeed, but the wall of the road is still there, and all who worked hard at it, have long since gone to their rest.—R.I.P.

THE Silver Cliff Mining Co., Limited.

CAPITAL $ 50,000.00
SHARES $10.00 each.

PROVISIONAL DIRECTORS:
R. J. Murphy, L. N. Marshall, W. A. Mackay.

This Company was incorporated for the purpose of purchasing and operating the Silver Cliff Mine at Argenta. THE HOLDING is fee simple 640 acres at tide water on the East side of Argenta Harbor.

A LARGE FISSURE VEIN is exposed in a gorge on the Broad Cove river, traceable a mile on the property which shows over seven feet wide, carrying good values from wall to wall and having wide streaks of solid galena which will permit "high grading." The remotest outcrop in the hill shows over 14 inches of solid ore which assays over $100.00 per ton in gold, silver and lead.

THE PROPERTY is equipped for immediate operation having a 35 h.p. gasoline driven air compressor, air drills, etc., blacksmith shop complete, compressor house, bunk house and mess house to accommodate twenty men; and sufficient dynamite and mining supplies for 3 months operations.

WATER POWER sufficient for the mining and milling of two hundred tons daily, at pier site, the outlet of Broad Cove River.

MARKET—The Company has an order now for two thousand tons of high grade, which at present prices has a c.i.f. value of $50 per ton.

CONCENTRATION—As there are over four thousand tons of concentrating ore on the dumps it is proposed to install a twenty ton mill for treatment of this ore as well as residue from picking tables of operations this season.

LABOR—There is abundance of first class labor available. NO PUMPING or hoisting necessary as there is sufficient tonnage in sight to permit employing gravity for many years.

ALL YEAR SHIPPING—it will be possible to ship at all seasons.

MANAGEMENT—The services of a first-class mining engineer will be obtained to direct operations.

PROBABLE OUTPUT—The immediate operations will consist of hand picking fresh mined ore, the output of which will be several tons daily. After the installation of small concentrator this will be increased by at least two tons daily. When sufficient ore has been marketed the water power will be developed and 200 ton mill installed which should produce at least 30 tons daily of concentrates having a c.i.f. value of from $90 to $100 per ton.

TO SUM UP—The physical conditions of this property are unique and to quote the words of a gentleman who visited it recently, it is a veritable bonanza. A large portion of the capital has been underwritten and intending investors had better get their applications in quickly by wire or mail.

W. A. MACKAY,
Argenta.

The Wet Blanket Brigade

The extent to which the gentle art of discouragement is practiced is fully realized by very few people. Whatever you attempt, no matter in what direction it may be, you will certainly be comforted by some friend or acquaintance who will advise you, with the utmost earnestness to "listen to reason," or to "take a common sense view of it," and give up the enterprise.

This grand army of "Wet Blankets" numbers many envious persons, but in general its ranks are filled with well-meaning men and women who despise discouragement through timidity, thoughtlessness, and similar causes. But "more evil is wrought from want of thought than from any want of heart," as the old dicum has it, and the effects of their outpourings are as disastrous as those which are actuated by evil motives.

The envious man hopes you won't succeed because in that case you will eclipse him, but is afraid you will succeed if you begin the undertaking. That he should endeavor to discourage you by saying that "there isn't any possibility of success, my dear fellow; you had better give up the idea," is natural enough; we need not dwell upon his characteristics.

But we must be careful of the other members of the wet blanket brigade for the very reason that we know they mean well, and are therefore more likely to be influenced by their gloomy prophecies. We are apt to think that good advice from good people are synonymous; unfortunately, that is not so.

In every undertaking there is an element of risk more or less great; you are prepared to run a certain risk but the trouble is that the exact amount of risk is unknown. You have estimated it, you may me wrong so you mention your project to different persons to ascertain their views. Then you meet with more discouragement than its opposite.

The timid person naturally thinks the idea is too great. The proportion of risk that he would care to run is so much less than you are ready to run, he judges from his own standpoint, and strongly urges you to give it up.

You turn to another, who proceeds to sum up the chances from what we will call an unsympathetic point of view. You have invented something, perhaps. Your friend cannot really see in it the utility which you ascribe to it. Why should people take it up, he argues; they have done without it hitherto, and got along very well. Yes, it may cheapen the production of certain things, but nobody has grumbled about the cost of these things, and you will, by your machine, displace many workers. No, all things considered, you had better not embark on that undertaking.

There is a certain amount of ignorance in the unsympathetic discouragement—he does not see all the points; but there is a distinct class who pour cold water upon your schemes through ignorance. They are unable to see far ahead, they do not know the possibilities, and out comes the cold water.

Those who give advice should be as careful as those who seek it. To rush into a thing without consideration is not good, but on the other hand many a success has been nipped in the bud by those who practise the art of throwing cold water upon the ardent plans, whether they be important or not, of their fellow-creatures.

To match the costume, lace silk mits are worn. Even scarfs have adopted the monogram idea.

The Voyage of Columbus.

The precise date on which Christopher Columbus first set foot on American soil is believed to have been on August 5, 1492, when he landed on the Southern Continent, near one of the mouths of the Orinoco River. As a matter of fact, Columbus never even cast an eye on the Continent of North America, as a glance back at the history of his famous voyages of discovery will show. He made, in all, four voyages across the Atlantic, under the auspices of Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain, his object being, to find a way, in that direction, to the East Indies and their wealth. During his first voyage in 1492, he discovered the Bahama Islands. His second voyage being in 1493, and the first land sighted was one of the Caribbee Islands, on which he landed, naming it Dominica. He remained in those seas until 1495, discovering additional islands, including Jamaica and Cuba. He sailed on his third voyage in 1498, and discovered and named Trinidad, landing upon the island and giving it its name because of its triple peaked mountain which reminded him of the Trinity. On his fourth and last voyage, in 1502, Columbus discovered the island of Martinique, visited Honduras, Costa Rica, and the Isthmus of Panama, returning for the last time to Spain, and his discoveries were at an end. He had found the Continent of Central and South America, but had not seen the continent of North America. He died in ignorance of the fact that he had discovered a new world, adhering to the last to his theory that the lands and countries he had found belonged to that part of Eastern Asia which the ancients called India. A year before Columbus discovered the South American continent, John Cabot reached the Island of Newfoundland, but like Columbus, he had no idea he had discovered a new world, merely supposing that what he saw was an extended peninsula of Europe, unfolding the North Atlantic. Amerigo Vesputius is claimed as having discovered the continent of South America in 1497, while Columbus was making ready for his third voyage, but this is doubtful. One thing is certain, however, that while Columbus was blending all his mental energies to making his discoveries harmonize with his theory that the lands he had found belonged to India or Eastern Asia, Vesputius published a clear and graphic description of the new lands, he or Columbus had found, giving them for the first time the name of "Mundus Novus"—the New World.

HOUSEKEEPERS

The dust which you see blowing about the streets is composed of horse manure, filth from the drains and cesspools and various other disease-bearing particles or atoms. This dust blows into grocery shops and settles on all uncovered foods. If your grocer has an open sugar barrel in his shop the dust and dirt will surely get into the Sugar.

Whenever you buy Sugar taken from an uncovered barrel, depend upon it, you get a goodly share of disease-bearing dust. Do you care? If you want clean Sugar, free from dust, buy Lantic Sugar in dust proof, full weight, sealed packages. Lantic Sugar is guaranteed very highest quality of pure granulated white sugar. Buy a 2 pound or a 5 pound package and see for yourself how good it is.

SHOPKEEPERS

Do you know that to put up Sugar in paper bags costs you for the bags, time, and loss of weight, from 75 cents to $1.00 per hundred pounds. Do you know that 80 per cent of the sugar handled by Canadian and American grocers is sold in packages. These grocers know that package goods are more profitable than bulk goods because there's no waste. Any grocer who knows how to figure costs and profits can readily find out whether he is selling sugar at a profit or not; careful figuring will convince such a grocer that package sugar pays better than bulk sugar. The jobber who wishes to lessen his percentage or risk, will find Lantic Package Sugar in 100 pound cases very convenient for this purpose. The loss of one case is less than one third the loss of one barrel.

THE LAW.

I don't endorse that traffic law which holds me down to thirty miles; it makes my spirit sore and raw, and from my map reminds me of the law. I'd like to send my old tin bus like streaks of lightning through the town, but Law is sacred to the cuss who would enjoy a fair renown. And so I drive my creaking van within the limit Law prescribes, though I am dubbed an also-ran by all the whizzing speedster tribes. My face is always sad and dour when on the road my bus I take; I'd hit up ninety miles
