The state of the s

Mexico has always been noted as a country of valuable mines. The Spanish conquerors were astonished at the number of gold and silver ornaments which the natives possessed. These fine metals were fully displayed to their gaze almost as soon as they landed, and as they penetrated the land they observed that silver, and even gold, was so plentiful that the choice substances were commonly used for the most ordinary purposes. But when they came to look for the mines from which the precious ores had been extracted, they encountered so many difficulties that it was a long time before any made.

THE GOVERNOR'S WARRAYT.

The house spent the better part of one day sitting in a profitless discussion on the governor's expenditures under the governor-general's warrant. This method of spending money is only to be resorted to in cases of emergency and only when parliament is not in session. The sum total of the warrants issued last year amounted to $2,006,589, of which $125,000 was in payment of suits decided against the government during the year, $67,000, compensation for losses during the rebellion; $32,100 to the rebellion commissioners and expenses; $163,338, expenses of the rebellion; $136,679, relief of distressed settlers; $588,091, on intercolonial railway, and $189,113 to Indians in Manitoba and the Northwest. Cartwright, who brought up the subject, made a good case. He was replied to by the minister of justice who pointed out that many of these expenditures were what are known as lapsed balances. In pursuance with the authority of parliament the government had entered moc certain contracts, the appropriations for which had been made, but before the works had been completed the time for the appropriations had lapsed and they had to be raised again by way of warrant. He completely turned the tables on the opposition by showing that when they were in power they were not sparing of this method of raising money. The moderate discussion among the leaders did not prevent some of the minor lights on the liberal side from having one of their periodical flings at the government, but subsequently. Sir Richard's motion for a return showing the amounts spent under warrant for a number of years back was adopted.

This powder never varies. A material flow of phenylated in the government had a profit and the ordinary kinds, and expenses of years back was adopted.

The Jublice Address.

The Andsome illuminated address to be presented to Queen Victoria was yesterday placed in the widow of Jamieson's stationery store and was highly commented upon by all. It is truly an artistic piece of work, and there is little conception of the amount of work spent upon it. It is illuminated on skin parchment, the greasy nature of which rendered it very difficult to get the colors to take hold. Mr. T. Tiedemann may well feel satisfied with the success of his effort.

His success was so great in Seattle that he has been offered a profitable engagement at Tacoma for Thursday night, not readily refuse. As before stated, "Faust" will be produced Monday eventrant "Not Guilty," will be produced wednesday. The ushers, who were present last night, have kindly volunteered their services for to-morrow evening's performance. Boxes have been placed at the disposal of heveral officers of H. M. fleet, who will attend.
