PREFACE.

In presenting this edition of the Hamilton City Directory to the public, it is the earnest desire of the Publishers that the work will be found correct and reliable as a book of general reference, having put forth every effort, by attending to the canvassing and compiling themselves, to make it such. A Business Directory of the principal business men has been carefully compiled from the general Directory at considerable additional expense—which we hope our patrons will find convenient and useful : and in fact no pains or expense have been spared to make the work correct to the extent it is possible to have publications of this nature.

We beg to take this opportunity of returning our sincere thanks to all those who have aided in procuring the necessary information, and have patronized by subscription and advertising the enterprise ; also, to the Editors of the Hamilton Spectator and Evening Times.

HAMILTON.

Hamilton, one of the chief cities of Western Canada, is situated on the South-western extremity of Burlington Bay. It was laid out in the year 1813, and occupies the gradually rising grounds between Burlington Bay and the Mountain, a distance of about two miles. This place is admirably adapted for the site of a city, affording every facility for perfect sewerage, and rendering more successful its sanitary regulations. The city is regularly laid out, most of the streets crossing each other at right angles. King street, running through the city from East to West, is the principal; on its North side are numerous and extensive retail shops, while its South side is occupied with some large wholesale houses; its buildings are of brick and stone, many of which are of the most costly styles of architecture. Besides these, it has its share of elegant private residences, for which the city is noted. James street crosses King street at right angles, and reaches from the Bay on the North to the Mountain on the South, in the vicinity of which are situated the palatial residences with richly ornamented grounds of its wealthy citizens. James is the chief retail street in the city, and is adorned with the finest specimens of architecture. East of and parallel to James street is John street, the principal thoroughfare of the surrounding country. It contains numerous fine private residences and elegant churches. McNab street is West of James street. Some large wholesale-establishments are situated on this street. York street runs in a westerly direction from James street to "Dundurn," the residence of the late Sir Allan McNab. At its Western extremity are the beautiful grounds of the Burlington Cemetery. It is the inlet to the city for the Northern and Western portions of the surrounding country, and is studded with many fine private residences, evincing a high degree of refinement and wealth. Main street, broad and central, runs through the city from East to West. Of the remaining streets, Hughson and Catherine are the most important. The chief business portion of the city is situated about a mile back from the Bay, and approaches the base of the Mountain, from the summit of which can be obtained a magnificent view of the Bay, the lake at a distance, the city below, as also the rich and fertile country that forms the back ground of this beautiful picture, perhaps not surpassed in Canada. However pleasing a birds-eye view of the city and its surroundings may be, we are not at all disappointed upon a more minute examination. In beauty of architecture its buildings, both public and private, indicate an advancement not surpassed by cities older and more favored. From the time that the first store-house was erected on the Burlington Beach to the present moment, Hamilton has progressed favorably. The completion of the Burlington Bay Canal in 1834, was the first public improvement that advanced the interests of the city. It removed the obstruction caused by the sand bar separating the Lake from the Bay, and secured uninterrupted access to the latter. The position of Hamilton was early recognized as being highly favorable to securing for it the monopoly of the wholesale trade of the Western peninsula. The attainment of that object ceased to be a matter of speculation or uncertainty when the Great Western Railway was constructed from the Niagara River via Hamilton to the Detroit River, a distance of over two hundred miles, intersecting and developing the most productive portions of the Province, and gaining for us the traffic of the Upper Lakes and "the West." In 1845 the city of Hamilton contained only a little over 6,000 inhabitants; in 1850 it had increased to 10,000, since which period (except temporarily) it has gone on steadily improving in size and prosperity, much of which it owes to the Great Western Railway, during the first five years of whose existence the city doubled its population; and in a corresponding degree increased its manufactures, its commerce, and its wealth. It is generally admitted that the Railway has done more for Hamilton than all other enterprises combined. This, along with its advantageous position at the head of navigation of Lake Ontario, with its central situation, makes it the emporium of an extensive grain and produce trade, and gives it unsurpassed and peculiar advantages as a manufacturing point, as well as for the carrying on of a profitable wholesale trade, in which department the city offers more inducements to retail buyers, than any other city in Canada with the exception of Montreal. The wholesale merchants are direct importers, and consequently are enabled to give their customers the benefit.

The following shows the imports and exports of the city for the years mentioned:—

GENUINE SINGER SEWING MACHINES!

SINGER'S LETTER "A" Family Sewing Machine!

Is the best and cheapest Machine in use, for the following reasons:

It is so simple in its structure, a child can learn to use it.

It can easily be adjusted for sewing either light or heavy work, anything from the running of a tuck in tartan, to the heaviest part of an overcoat.

It is not liable to get out of order.

It can hem, fell, bind, braid, cord, tuck, gather, quilt and embroider.

It is more durable than any other family sewing machine manufactured.

Singer's No. 2 and No. 3 machines, for tailoring purposes, light and heavy leather work, carriage trimmings &c., stand unrivalled.

Each machine warranted for one year.
