

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT EXPIRES LAST OF MACKENZIE'S OLD GUARD

One of Canada's Foremost Public Men Passes Away at the Age of 77 Years as Result of a Surgical Operation.

OF A STRONG CONSERVATIVE FAMILY, LIBERAL AFTER "PACIFIC SCANDAL"

Served Prominently in Three Great Liberal Administration and Was Regarded as a "Master of Statistics and Satire."

[Canadian Press.]

Kingston, Sept. 24.—Sir Richard Cartwright died with great suddenness at 11:25 o'clock this forenoon.

He was an inmate at the General Hospital.

At ten o'clock a consultation of doctors decided that his life was rapidly passing and they proved to be right. The venerable statesman lapsed into unconsciousness prior to his demise.

Heart failure was the immediate cause of his death, although Sir Richard underwent an operation for hernia recently.

Lady Cartwright and other members of the family were at his bedside in his last moments. His end was peaceful.

The funeral will be private, the time, however, not having been yet arranged.

A SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF THE GREAT STATESMAN

The late Sir Richard Cartwright was the oldest son of the late Rev. R. D. Cartwright, chaplain to the forces at Kingston, Ontario. His grandfather was Hon. Richard Cartwright, a United Empire Loyalist, and a former judge of the Common Pleas in Upper Canada, and afterwards a member of the Legislative Council.

Sir Richard was born in Kingston on Dec. 4, 1835. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin. In 1859 he was married to Frances, the eldest daughter of Col. Alex. Lave, of Cork, Ireland. He sat for Lennox and Addington from 1863 to 1867, for Lennox from 1867 to 1878, when he was defeated. He was the member for Centre Huron from November, 1878, to May, 1882, and for South Huron from December, 1883, to 1887. He represented South Oxford from 1887 until 1904. In September of 1904 he was called to the Senate by Earl Grey.

His Early Career.
Sir Richard belonged to one of the oldest Conservative families in Upper Canada, and in the early days of his public life gave individual support to Sir John A. Macdonald. Since the Pacific scandal in 1873 he acted with and was a member of the Liberal party, first under Mackenzie, next under Blake, and later under Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

During its early days he was president of the Ontario Reform Club in Toronto, and later of the Eastern Ontario Liberal Association.

He was Minister of Finance in the Mackenzie Administration from 1873 to 1878, and subsequently while in Opposition was the chief speaker of his party on all fiscal subjects. In debate he developed great powers of oratory, much superior to any of his opponents or friends, and was only rivalled by Hon. William McDougall and Sir George W. Ross. His speech in seconding the vote of thanks to the volunteers, who served through the Northwest rebellion is still regarded as one of the greatest masterpieces of parliamentary eloquence ever delivered in Canada. In his later years he fully sustained his reputation as one of Canada's greatest public speakers.

Leader in Senate.
In July, 1879, he was created a K. C. M. G., and from July, 1896, was Minister of Trade and Commerce in the Laurier Administration. He was the Government leader in the Senate since 1909, and was known as the last member in public life of Mackenzie's "Old Guard."

In May, 1909, he was entertained at a banquet by the Ontario Liberal members and the senators of Parliament. At this gathering he was thanked for his services as "the beacon light of the Liberal party."

Was Acting Premier.
In 1907, he was made a G. C. M. G., and was acting-premier during the absence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Four times in 1867, 1902, 1905, and 1911 he was a delegate to Washington in an effort to promote better relations between Canada and the States.

He proposed a joint commission, and represented Canada on the Anglo-American joint high commission in Quebec in 1888 and at Washington in 1898 and 1899.

He was appointed a member of the privy council in 1902. In 1908 he declined the appointment of Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, and again later refused to accept the office. In 1908 he carried a measure in favor of old age annuities.

Imperial Federation.
It was he who suggested "that Canada, with its close acquaintance of conditions, both in the Republic and the Mother Country, and with its new life and vigor reaching out towards both the old and the new worlds, could be the medium that would bring about an alliance of the English-speaking peoples of the world, which no combination of nations dare treat lightly or whose demands they disregard if disposed to urge the dismemberment of the world."

Sir Richard was the author of several pamphlets, including one containing his recollections of the Confederation period. In 1911 he lectured on "The Perils of Democracy."

TWO REPORTS ON POWER IN LONDON

First One Was Intended Only
For the Board of Water Commissioners.

HOW MISTAKE OCCURRED

Ald. Richter Says He Is Satisfied—
Has Proven That There Were Two Reports Sent Here.

The mystery of the missing schedule, supposed to have been attached to Engineer Gabey's report, is being solved, and it is expected that when Hon. Adam Beck returns from Toronto it will be cleared up.

There is no doubt that the schedule mentioned by Ald. Richter is in existence. Whether or not it will be forthcoming is another matter.

It seems that when Engineer Gabey or his assistant came to London to investigate the street lighting situation, he also prepared a report on the whole power situation here.

The water commissioners, convinced that the amount of business done in London warranted a reduction in the cost of power, had made application for such a reduction, and Mr. Gabey obtained all possible information on the subject.

When he went back to Toronto, he prepared two reports. One of these was voluminous, covering the whole field. It dealt with street lighting, domestic lighting, commercial lighting, and power. There were several schedules attached to it, by reason of this the water commissioners were instructed that they could reduce the price of power 10 per cent for next year.

The Second Report.
The second report was in truth a portion of the general report. As the city had asked merely for a report on street lighting, the schedule for the first report, referring to this department, was attached, and some explanation made regarding it.

By some mistake, the first report, containing all the figures, was forwarded to the city, and was seen by City Clerk Baker, and others. It contained the figures so sought after now by Ald. Richter.

It was recalled, and the second report, or rather, the portion of the first report referring to street lighting alone, was forwarded to the city. That is the document considered by the council Monday night, and discussed at some length by Ald. Richter.

It is expected that as a result of the discussion the original report will be forwarded to the city and will be considered when the council investigates.

Mr. Pocock Interviewed.

Chairman Pocock had little to say in reference to the matter today. He reiterated the statement that the only report sent to them had been forwarded to the city council. If there were any other report, it was not known to them.

"We have acted perfectly fair in this matter," he stated. "We have been guilty of no underhand business whatever. We are still convinced that the council is getting the best street lighting in the country at a very reasonable rate. London is much better off than Hamilton, Brantford, Toronto, or any other city of that calibre. We have no reason to complain."

"We simply stated that the report presented to us was emasculated," said Ald. Richter. "I have proved that, I think. When we get into the facts of the case, we may find out more interesting information."

LATE PROFESSOR BROODED OVER IRISH POLITICS

Interesting Notes Left by Dr.
Dickey Deplored Ulster Scenes.

INTERNECINE WAR
WITHOUT PROVOCATION

Deplored Talk of Armed Resistance and Cites the Bible Against It.

The late Dr. Dickey, the young professor of anatomy at the London Medical College, who took his life in a fit of despondency on Saturday night, left a written article which indicated that he had brooded over the political troubles in Ireland. A Belfast man, and a Presbyterian, he was evidently imbued with deep religious feeling, which was shocked by the disorder and threats of violence in Ulster. He deplored the talk of armed resistance to a home rule government, declaring that it would probably lead to internecine warfare before provocation had been given. It will be seen by the following extracts from his notes that he had considerable powers of expression:

Deplores Violent Scenes.

"It is strange that in a country which claims to be one of the centres of the Christian religion, such violent scenes could have already taken place or be in prospect, and all the passions of the heart in a struggle under a guise of a religion whose every dictate they are opposed to."

"Christians are commanded, when they are actually persecuted, to do unto others as they would be done by. This policy was the origin of the great colonies of America to a large extent. But to many such a course is cowardice, and there is no accusation that men of spirit are so afraid of, hence the talk of resistance. But self defence when it involves, as it probably will, the murder of (possibly) thousands of innocent people, and when it leads to an internecine war wantonly entered upon before due provocation has been given and for a time at least patiently received, is not a virtue, but a crime."

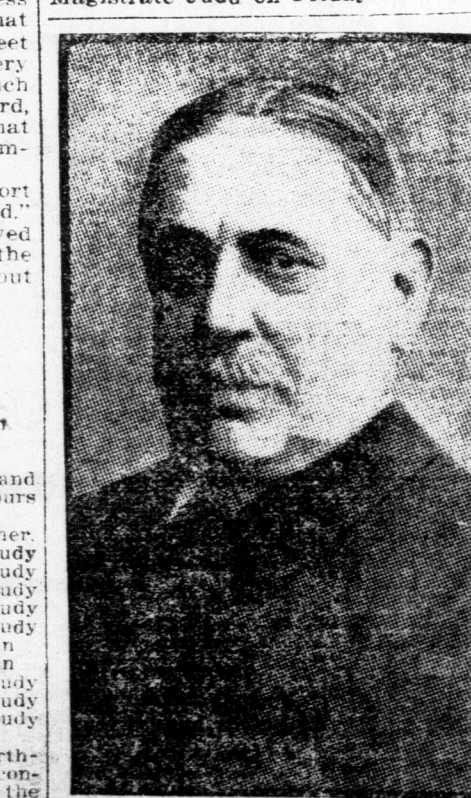

"If war follows in Ulster we may expect all the hooligan and rascally elements of the population, and all the passions of the heart that lurk in the breast of nearly every man, to be stirred into activity. I question if God (or even 'God in whom our fathers, etc.') is to be invoked in such a course, when it is the intention to use ALL MEANS which may be found necessary, etc., whether those means are right or wrong."

"The Bible, which is professedly the rule of action which the covenant signers follow, commands the taking of 'goodly' things, and the turning of the cheek to the smiter, and one of the last lessons which Christ in His own person impressed on His followers was the turning away of the sword as a weapon in the hands of Christian men, even when the sword was used nobly in His own defence."

The Horrors of War.
"Unless war is averted it will in all likelihood be true to its nature in the past. 'War is hell,' said General Sherman, speaking of a conflict entered upon for reasons which (perhaps) bear some slight resemblance to those which are now assigned in the case of Ireland. But there (U. S. A.), the evils which they were sought to overthrow were actual, and not potential (merely) as in Ireland. And if the events that Sherman saw in that war were such as deserved to be characterized by that word 'hell,' surely war is the last plan which should suggest itself, when there are not as yet any evils in Ulster which can be described by that word. (Unless we except the riots which are the prelude to war and are nourished by the talk of armed resistance.)"

YOUTHS ARE CHARGED WITH SUNDAY GAMBLING

Summons have been issued for five boys and young men whose names were taken when Sgt. Birrell and Sgt. Lucas conducted a raid on a Wellington street cigar store on Sunday afternoon last. They were charged with committing a breach of the Lord's Day Act by gambling on Sunday and will appear before Police Magistrate Judd on Friday.

BARON VON BIEBERSTEIN.
Greatest German Statesman Since Bismarck's Time, and Ruler of the Kaiser.

ALL SITES WILL BE SENT TO THE COUNCIL TONIGHT TO MAKE A SELECTION

City Hall Committee Held a Meeting at Noon Today and Once Again Found It Impossible to Agree Upon Location That Could Be Recommended

SITES TO BE VOTED ON TONIGHT.
Richmond and Maple streets, 200x105.....$69,500
Dundas street, between Armories and McCormicks, 200x105.....47,000
"V" location, $45,000, with Christian Science Church to be expropriated
Bernard and Parsons property, Wellington and King, 275x200.....$79,000
Spencer Block, 130x95.....60,000
Old Mechanics' Institute, Talbot street.....16,000
Eccles property, corner Queen's avenue and Wellington street.....50,000

After an hour's debate at noon today, the special city hall committee decided to submit all the sites as mentioned as suitable for a new hall to the council tonight, for the aldermen to choose from. It was impossible for the members of the committee to agree, and it was thought that the better way was to have the council as a whole decide. From present indications, the Coote and Elscot property on Dundas street will be the choice, as the council as a whole voted for it last night, though the vote was illegal.

When the committee met, Ald. Wright again urged the purchase of the "V" site. He pointed out that he had options on all the property necessary with the exception of the Christian Science Church. He favored the expropriation of this land.

A SCHEME FOR A SITE.

"I have secured an option on the Y. W. C. A. property on Wellington street and Princess avenue," he continued. "I would favor paying $18,000 for this site, giving it to the Christian Science Church, and $15,000 to boot. That would make $33,000 altogether. I think that reasonable. A good church, equal to the First Presbyterian Church, could be built for $15,000."

"There is no need to talk nonsense like that," said Ald. Spittal. "No church can be built for any such money. If you went ahead with that proposition you will find that we will have to pay nearer $50,000 for the church."

Leading German Diplomat Baron Von Bieberstein Dead

His Brilliant Work at Constantinople Caused Him
To Be Selected as Ambassador in London
Only a Few Months Ago.

[Canadian Press.]

Badenweiler, Germany, Sept. 24.—Germany's most powerful and brilliant diplomat, Baron Adolf Marschall von Bieberstein, died here today after a short illness.

He was transferred to London from Constantinople for the express purpose of conducting Anglo-German relations. He had occupied the position of German ambassador in London only since May last, had come here to take a course of alkaline water treatment, and was in comparatively good health until a week ago. Then he suddenly fell ill and rapidly became worse until he died today.

The baron had suffered from an attack of influenza early in the year, and his death is attributed to the after-effects of that malady and to his strenuous work in London since his appointment to the embassy there. The baron, who was a native of Baden, often visited his old home. He was nearly 70 years old, having been born at Neudorf on Oct. 12, 1842.

Bismarck's Successor.
Baron Marschall von Bieberstein was regarded as one of the most accomplished diplomats, not only in Germany, but throughout the world. Since the death of Bismarck he has been considered as Germany's "strong man."

The baron, in fact, stepped into the shoes of Bismarck when he left office in 1909, becoming on April 1 of this year secretary of state for foreign affairs. During his term of office he conducted the negotiations with many foreign powers for commercial treaties which have been in force ever since, with some modifications.

In 1894 he became Prussian minister of state and three years later the Emperor recognized his abilities as a statesman, and appointed him ambassador to Turkey. He remained at Constantinople until 1904.

A NEW SHOE FACTORY TO EMPLOY ABOUT 100 HANDS

Official Announcement of the Coming of a New Industry Is Made by the Board of Trade—London a Shoe
Centre for the Dominion.

The London Board of Trade announces that the city is to immediately have a new factory for the manufacture of women's shoes, with a payroll of 100 hands.

The gentlemen who constitute the partnership are Messrs. E. W. Cumming, G. H. Nichol and W. E. Wilson, and the company will be known as The C. N. W. Shoe Company.

The firm has secured quarters in the premises occupied by Miller, Limited, on Bathurst street, near Richmond street, and operations will begin within a short time.

Members of the board of trade were instrumental in bringing the industry to the city.

Messrs. Cumming and Wilson are Americans of experience and capital, and Mr. Nichol is manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in this city.

London a Shoe Centre.
London is one of the most important shoe centres in the Empire, at the seat of the shoe industry, is crowded.

It is singular that the development of the industry in London seems to be the fulfilment of a prophetic remark made by the late Mr. Hazen S. Pingree, a millionaire shoemaker, of Detroit, on the occasion of a visit to the city many years ago. He stated then that London was destined to become the shoe-making centre of Canada, as its location, climate, and adjacency to the shoe-making ranks for wages, and the American makers.

"The Shoe-Making City" would be no mean designation, either, as the business is one that brings the best class of skilled labor to the city. With printers and other artisans the shoemaker ranks for wages, and the simple work for girls and women, as shoe centres in the Empire, at the seat of the shoe industry, is crowded.

TWO COLUMNS OF FIGURES MISSING FROM REPORT

Ald. Richter's Statement on Street Lighting Is Backed
Up by City Clerk.

COUNCIL WILL SCAN
WATER COMS.' BOOKS

A Special Committee Named
To Go Into the Matter—
Ald. Richter's Criticisms.

Ald. Richter paid his respects to the report of Engineer Gabey, of the hydro-electric commission, on the cost of street lighting, at the special meeting of the council last night, and when he had finished ripping it to shreds, the council decided not to accept it.

An investigation into the accounts of the water commission, covering the whole enterprise, will be undertaken, and the evidence, not only of the city council, but of the water commissioners and staff, will be presented, so that the hydro-electric commission may understand the situation as it really is.

Ald. Richter declared that he was confident that the commission could see the justice of the council's claims, and reduce the cost of street lighting in London. The debate lasted for over three hours, it being much after midnight when the aldermen adjourned.

A special committee, consisting of Ald. Richter, Ald. Robinson, Ald. Wright, Ald. Murphy, Ald. Rose, and Ald. Ashplant, will conduct the investigation.

A Sensational Charge.
Chairman Pocock and General Manager Glaubitz of the water commission were present, and took part in the debate. The council resolved itself into a committee of the whole, to permit of the freest discussion possible.

The most sensational feature of the argument was the charge made by Ald. Richter that there was another report, prepared by Engineer Gabey, containing a schedule of figures missing in the report submitted to the council. His statement in this regard was backed up by City Clerk Baker, who had seen the other document.

Both Mr. Pocock and Mr. Glaubitz declared most emphatically that they had never seen such a report, and had handed over to the city all the information in their possession.

Ald. Richter stated that evidently the remainder of the report was not presented for a purpose, and intimated that such action did not reflect credit on the parties interested.

No Personal Feeling.
In his opening remarks, Ald. Richter paid some attention to the strictures levelled at him by members of the water commission and others because he had ventured to criticize the report. He did not blame the commissioners for feeling that way, however, they were laboring under a misapprehension, and he expected to remove that misapprehension before the night was through. He could assure Chairman Pocock and the members of the commission that there was not the slightest personal feeling in the matter. He simply could not agree with them, that was all.

Two Reports.

"I see that Commissioner Chapman inquired regarding the statement made by me that the report of Engineer Gabey was emasculated," continued Ald. Richter. "I read in the papers that both Mr. Pocock and Mr. Glaubitz stated emphatically that they had sent the original report to the city council. Mr. Chapman then declared that my statement was incredible, and he could not understand how I should make such charges. Perhaps it has not dawned upon him that Mr. Pocock and Mr. Glaubitz might be mistaken. I did not say, as it has been intimated that the water commissioners did not have a report signed by Mr. Gabey. Nor did I say that the hydro-electric commission did not have a report signed by Mr. Gabey. I did say that the report on the face of things is an emasculated thing, and I still say so. By whom it was emasculated I do not know."

Mr. Pocock's Challenge.
"In this connection," said Mr. Pocock, "has issued a challenge to me to prove that the water commission and the hydro-electric commission have not reports similar to that presented to the city council—copies of it in fact. If Mr. Pocock will word his Continued on Page Seven."

FOUR INJURED WHEN CHURCH COLLAPSED

Falling Rafters Forced Brickwork To Give Way at Dorchester.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Dorchester, Sept. 24.—As the workmen were busy putting in the last of the rafters in the new English Church here yesterday afternoon part of the framework collapsed, and in so doing shovelled some of the brickwork outward. Several men who were working at the time were badly injured, and three or four were badly shaken up.

Mr. Angus McEwen, of Putnam, sustained quite painful injuries, his head being cut quite badly and also his leg scraped and bruised, though no bones were broken.

The other men escaped with nothing worse than a pretty bad shaking up and some bruises. The accident will occasion quite a delay in the building.

Miss Myrtle Meryck paid a flying visit home recently.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN.

Windsor, Sept. 23.—After a continuous residence in this city for 60 years Charles B. Bourbeau is dead at his home here.

LONDON, TUESDAY, SEPT. 24.

THE AXE.

The Ottawa Government has reinstated W. C. Cowell as Dominion land agent at Kamloops, B. C. The dismissal of Mr. Cowell at the request of the member for Kamloops, was followed by a storm of indignation from Conservatives and Liberals alike. If there had been no remonstrance from its own followers the Government would have kept a stiff neck.

A case, which it is hoped will have similar results, is that of Mr. William Ireland, who has been dismissed from the post of collector of customs at Ferry Sound, Mr. Ireland was a popular newspaper publisher before he entered the civil service, and had many Conservative press friends, who have taken up the cudgels for him. He vehemently denied the accusation of partisanship, and asked for a commission of inquiry. The applicant for his position withdrew his application, saying he had no charges to make, and he was promptly given another berth. The local member has also run to cover, alleging that he was not responsible for Mr. Ireland's treatment. The Minister of Customs has not yet repudiated the injustice, but it is expected he will.

There are scores of men like Messrs. Cowell and Ireland, absolutely free of offence so far as the Government knows, who have been ruthlessly thrust out of office at the expense of members of Parliament, prodded by hungry constituents. In not a single case has there been an inquiry into charges made. In scarcely a single case have the details of any charges been made known. Mr. Cowell happened to have the goodwill of Conservative neighbors who had a sense of fair play. But for Conservative newspaper friends, Mr. Ireland would have no chance of reinstatement. They have merely exempted by good luck from the operation of a cold-blooded and scandalously unjust patronage system, practiced by a Government whose head poses as a civil service reformer. Mr. Ireland, of course, has not been able to evade responsibility for the conduct of his men in his cabinet.

THE ADVERTISER'S DICTIONARY ENTERPRISE.

The dictionary sale conducted by The Advertiser is now over. There has never been anything before like it in this part of the country. Altogether 7,000 dictionaries have been sold, the number in the last two weeks being 1,041, almost as many as the 1,098 of the first fortnight of the sale.

The only possible means of offering such a bargain to the public was to procure the books in enormous quantity. What sold it so extensively was not only the inherent value of the bargain, but effective advertising and the wide circulation of this paper.

That several thousand families invested in a good dictionary is a proof of a progressive population and a credit to this community. They will find this compact Webster's a help in many ways. It is up-to-date in plan, modern and conservatively progressive in spelling. It does not countenance the reactionism fostered by Ontario officialdom, and ridiculed by the scholars both British and American. Not long ago a London gentleman wrote to the publishing office of a new reactionist dictionary used in the schools, protesting gently against the non-recognition of "honour," "program," and similar natural spellings. He got a reply from the manager instructing him that as "honour" came from the old French, which spelt it with a "u," and as "program" came from Greek "programma," argal they must be spelt in English "honour" and "programme," which unless a pupil believe faithfully he cannot be saved at the High School entrance examination. The bookseller's reasons are good enough to convince the Ontario Department of Education, though they do not convince the scholars. Professor Skeat or Professor Murray would either not have deigned to notice such arguments, or he might have asked: "How do you spell 'governor'?" and how do you spell 'telegram'?" "diagram?" No dictionary of any repute spells "governor" with a "u," though it comes more obviously than "honour" from the French. No dictionary spells "diagramme," though it comes from a Greek word similar to "programma."

The Webster Dictionary supplied to readers of The Advertiser is not pretentious. It is edited in line with modern English scholarship. Its spelling of words like "honour" and "program" is a straw to show which way the wind blows, a token of common sense as well as learning.

MANITOBA'S MESS.

Sir Rodmond Roblin, premier of Manitoba, declared the other day that women should hold aloof from "the mess of politics." This is not an inapt description of the state of affairs brought about in Manitoba under the reign of Sir Rodmond. The Winnipeg Free Press makes charges against the Roblin Government, which if levelled at any other Government in Canada, Conservative or Liberal, would be received with general incredulity. But it would be scarcely possible to exaggerate the turpitude of Manitoba's administration.

"A share of the odium," the Free Press says, "attaching to 'the mess of politics' must fall upon the people themselves. . . . It is a trite, but perfectly true, saying that the people get just as good legislators as they deserve."

Sir Rodmond entered public life at a time when the opportunity was apparent to "lead the people, to stimulate men to higher standards and ideals, and, in general, to show them the better way."

"Whether or not they found politics a 'mess' when they entered upon office," the Free Press continues, "Manitoba politics today, after twelve years of the Roblin Administration, is a 'mess' for which—one can say in sober truth—there is no parallel in any other province in the Dominion."

Levelled the guns of direct accusation, the Free Press proceeds to charge that the Manitoba Government has bribed the foreigner with money and liquor for the sake of his vote. It has liquor allied itself with powerful liquor interests; it has shielded political friends from the arm of the law, and thrown public moneys to avaricious supporters; it has denied thousands of children an education by opposing compulsory education; it has compassed the defeat of able and high-minded citizens in municipal life; it sought the farmers' votes with a white elephant in the shape of a public election system which had to be abandoned with a loss of $1,000,000; it has starved the final seat of learning, the Manitoba University; "it has had no other guiding star save that of spoils."

Fortunately, there is every sign that the Government is on its last legs, and that the public conscience has been awakened.

The Hon. Robert Rogers must win the vacant Manitoba seat for his party or bust.

It is an injustice to the memory of the Scottish covenanter to parody their rites by such a circus performance as the apostles of riot are putting up in the north of Ireland.

The local advocates of women suffrage are going about it in the right way. Organization and education among the women are necessary before the men will be convinced.

The police were called out in New York to quell a riot of 1,500 school boys. What a lively time there would be among Irish school boys if the Law-Carson speeches were put into the text-books.

"Mistook Travis for a deer," and shot him dead," is the burden of a message from the wilds of New Brunswick. The regular annual installment of a perpetual serial story has opened.

British trade made a record figure in August, exports increasing nearly $40,000,000 over August, 1911, and imports increasing $46,500,000. The increases in exports were entirely in manufactured goods, and the increase in imports mostly raw materials. Beastsly luck for the tariff reformers.

The death of Baron Von Bieberstein was sudden and tragic. No living German, except the Emperor, had so great a reputation in Europe. He was removed a few months ago from Constantinople, where he had established German prestige, for the express purpose of taking the Anglo-German situation in hand, as ambassador to Great Britain. It might have been his crowning glory to seal the friendship of the two countries. His death just as he had entered on his new duties is a loss, though not an irreparable one, it is to be hoped. There is serious business for statesmen of his calibre, both in Germany and Britain.

CANADA'S DISGRACE.

Mr. Borden and his supporters have shown such a complete lack of shame in spoils dismissals that the employing of a British under-secretary to report on the Dominion departments naturally causes misgivings. If Sir George Murray is to be made the scapegoat for another chapter in the story that is disgracing Canadian administration he should be informed of the fact. He can have no suspicion of the methods that the Borden Government have embarked upon.

EVIDENTLY A MISPRINT.

Dispatches from Los Angeles say that T. R. announced: "I have come to learn." This is palpably an error. How can a man who knows everything expect to learn anything?

WORTH LOOKING AT.

[Chicago Record-Herald.]
"Pa, come here, quick."
"What's the matter, boy?"
"Come and look out the window. Here come two girls who are dressed respectably."

SCORING ON THE MEN.

[Miss Horlman at Manchester.]
"I am afraid that at least 10 per cent of gentlemen who have the vote have to be brought out of the public-house to be taken to the polling booth. I have been told by other gentlemen who know that voters are brought out of the public-house at the psychological and the physiological moment so that they shall vote for the side that leads them to the poll. (Laughter.) I don't think that will happen to us. We shall walk to the poll. I don't think we shall need a motor to take us; we shall walk to the poll, soberly and record our vote by ballot. So long as people are more or less bribed the rich man gets in; not the useful man. When the next election comes—when we have the vote—there will, probably, be some very comical attempts at bribery and corruption. Beautiful gentlemen, with lovely waxed moustaches—(laughter)—and most becoming dress will come round and bring us chocolate cream. (Laughter.) That is the sort of thing the Prime Minister have done. Attired in beautiful dresses they have gone in motor-cars to fetch the gentlemen to the poll, and their brothers and husbands will take us to the poll. That will be great fun. We will go to the polling booth eating the chocolates, and when there we will vote for whom we choose."—(Laughter.)

THE EXPLANATION.

[Boston Transcript.]
Autoist—I haven't paid a cent for repairs on my machine in all the ten months I've had it.
Friend—So the man who did the repairs told me.

THE AUTO HOBGO.

[Pittsburg Post.]
"What's the trouble?"
"There's a tramp at the door with a rickety automobile and wants to know if we can give him an old set of tires."

HE DID.

[Judge.]
"Do you know where the ball ground is?" asked a stranger in the neighborhood.
"Say, mister," returned the kid, "I know every knothole on the four sides of it."

SPENDING THE SUMMER.

[Louisville Courier-Journal.]
Sis had a good time while away. And she has since confessed where she was fashion ruled the day. And everybody dressed.

Ma had a good time where she went. In battle line arrayed. Long hours each day at bridge they spent. And everybody played.

And brother, he had quite a time. He went where rivers wished. Where wearing good clothes was a crime. And everybody fished.

But poor dad couldn't quit the grind. Or go where minnows lurked. While others loafed he stayed behind. Where everybody worked.

INTERVIEWING MR. BORDEN.

[Toronto Saturday Night.]
"Pray tell us, Mr. Borden, about the German game."
Are things as black in England as painted over there?
The Premier at once replied, his face all wreathed in smiles.
"They're the fleet at Spithead stretched over thirty miles!"

"What do you know of Winston?"
Upon a Super-dreadnought, out-breathing flame and war?
The Premier looked up again, and answered in a trice.
"The rooms we had at the Savoy were really very nice!"

"And what about the navy? Now, don't you give a tip. Of what the policy will be resulting from your trip?"
The public is very keen on hearing you explain."
"We had," said Mr. Borden, "an awful lot of rain!"
The Mace.

THE ONLY WAY.

[Boston Transcript.]
"Are you looking for work?"
"No, sir; I'm looking for money, but I'm willing to wait because that's the only way I can get it."

KNEW IT WELL.

[Baltimore American.]
"Pa, what's an inscrutable smile?"
"It's the kind, my son, your mother had on her face this morning when I told her business might keep me out late tonight."

THE SAME THING.

[Judge.]
Mrs. Benham—Do you remember that I gave you no decided answer the first time you proposed?
Benham—I remember that you suspended sentence.

LEADING GERMAN

Constantinople over fourteen years, but was often called to Berlin to confer with the Emperor.

Controlled the Kaiser.

These conferences were not only in regard to Turkish affairs, however, but also in connection with Germany's general foreign policy. It was often stated that the Baron practically controlled the Emperor's entire foreign policy. He was strongly in favor of the extension of Germany's dominions in all parts of the world. His views were so well liked at the German court that he was often mentioned for the imperial chancellorship.

The Baron was very successful in maintaining the influence of Germany in near eastern affairs, and it was considered due to his diplomacy that Germany's commercial standing in the Turkish Empire became so strong.

Friendly to England.

When he was nominated for the embassy in London early this year it was reported that he was to understand vor to bring about an understanding between the two great rivals, Great Britain and Germany. He was said to be friendly to the British, but always maintained a firmness of his own country. This had been remarked during the Hague conference, where his position was often in marked opposition to that of the British delegates. However well founded the report may have been that it was the Emperor's desire that he should try to effect a peaceful arrangement between the two powers, the new ambassador had little opportunity to bring it about for he arrived in London on June 15, only three months ago, and had since then been engaged in installing himself in his new surroundings.

Bernstorff May Succeed.

[Canadian Press.]
Berlin, Sept. 24.—The name of the German ambassador at Washington, Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff, has been mentioned unofficially in diplomatic circles as that of the possible successor to the late Baron Marschall von Bieberstein as German ambassador in London.

Count von Bernstorff is reputed to be an ardent advocate of good Anglo-German relations.

It had been rumored for some days that Baron von Bieberstein contemplated retirement from the diplomatic service on account of impaired health. It is stated that he was suffering from kidney and liver ailments.

His death, which resulted from paralysis of the heart, was utterly unexpected here, and will, it is thought, defer the negotiations for the Anglo-German understanding, which he was said to have believed possible.

"THE RAVEN:" HOW POE COMPOSED IT

[By Special Arrangement With the Winnipeg Telegram.]

It was Dante Gabriel Rossetti who said that he would trade half of Wordsworth for "The Raven." Rossetti's masterpiece, that poem of haunting melody, "The Blessed Damsel," was the result of his close study of Edgar Allen Poe's metrical effects, and we might go so far as to say that the rich music both of Rossetti and Tennyson would have been impossible had it not been for the experiments conducted by the American genius. In the whole range of literature we find no poet who set up a higher standard of excellence than Poe, or who brought greater powers of analysis, or a finer sense of the melody of words to help him in his composition. Both in the composition of poems and of stories no artist ever worked with more exacting care to bring about the perfect union of thought with form than the melancholy poet who has been regarded by so many as a monster of self-indulgence and a writer who flung off such weird poems as "The Raven" under the influence of Bacchus.

"The Raven" was one of the gems contained in the old Ontario high school reader, and I remember that, while we basked at other poems, no teacher ever had any trouble in making us realize the fascination of that composition. The sonorous roll of the lines, the black melancholy in which the whole poem was steeped, the bird of doom with its haunting refrain, and the cry of the lover, "Take thy beak from out my heart!"—what captain of industry, long since estranged from poetry, can ever forget the gloomy joy with which he read Poe's masterpiece? When we were boys, I daresay we never tried to analyze the charm of a poem; but we felt unconsciously that "The Raven" was easy to understand, that the verses slipped along so easily that the author must have written it at a sitting, and that it had all its wonderfully fascinating atmosphere of despair because Poe was a poor drunkard.

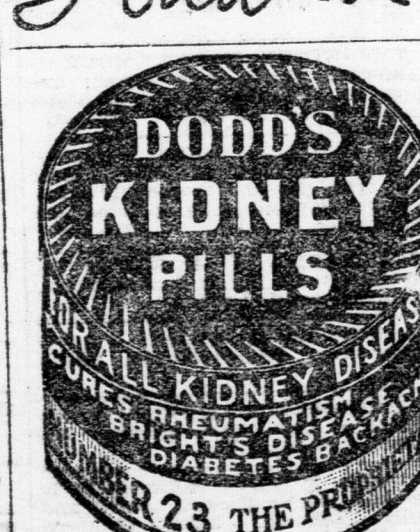

But the strange thing about that amazingly easy poem is the fact that it did not come easy, that it was a sober and painful composition, and that it was built up with the most meticulous care. It is the perfection of art which hides art, and this is why we admire the seemingly easy poems of Poe, Rossetti and Tennyson, which have been produced by agonized shifting of vowels and consonants and selection of words. In his "Philosophy of Composition" Poe laid bare the secret process by which he produced "The Raven." First of all, he tells us, he decided to write a short poem, that its effect should be sad, and that the tone of sadness should belong to the highest manifestation of beauty.

Next he resolved to employ a refrain or burden, to make it brief, and to use it often to heighten the effect. In order to obtain a sad, monotonous word, he realized that he must find one which contained the long "u" as the most sonorous vowel, in connection with "r" as the most producible consonant. The first word that presented itself was "Nevermore." It occurred to him that a human being would not keep repeating this one word, so he had to imagine its use, by a non-reasoning creature capable of speech; first he thought of a parrot, but superseded this by the raven, a bird equally capable of speech and infinitely more in keeping with the intended tone of the poem. He had never conceived of a bird of ill-omen repeating the refrain "Nevermore," at the close of each stanza, but the next question was what should be the subject of the poem. It must be mournful, and the most mournful theme known to mankind is death; this idea of death should be closely allied to beauty. Hence he arrived at the idea of a lover lamenting his deceased mistress, and a raven continuously repeating the word, "Nevermore." It was easy to plan a series of queries by the lover, to each and all of which the raven should give the same monotonous reply. And this series should, of course, be arranged in climactic order.

Poe concludes his confession thus: "I first established in my mind the climax, or concluding query—that query to which 'Nevermore' should be in the last place the answer—that query in reply to which this word 'Nevermore' should involve the utmost conceivable amount of sorrow and despair. Here, then, the poem may be said to have had its beginning; for it was here, at this point, of my preconsiderations, that I first put pen to paper."

This exposition ought to be a revelation to some who suppose that the literary art is practiced by the sons of ease.

SHOT FOR A DEER.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Chatham, N. B., Sept. 24. Win. Travis, stockkeeper, 35 years old, was accidentally shot and killed by Robert Hamilton in the woods at Siltchik, near here, today. They were hunting big game and Hamilton mistook Travis for a deer.

DISCOVERS THE WORRY MICROBE.

BY BILLIE BURKE.

First Word—If you can only join one club this winter, let that be the "Don't Worry Club."

I think I have discovered the worry microbe! It is a foolish little conceited thought which pops itself into your brain and makes you think that the world cannot get along without you. I've had it, but I popped it out again as soon as possible. The moment we realize how unimportant and unnecessary we are in the working plan of this great world, the sooner will we accept the good time which that comes to us and leave the worrying microbe outside in the cold to wither and die.

MISS BURKE.

Darwin says: "When a woman worries the muscles of her face tend to lose the tone which is characteristic of healthy muscle, and thus the lips, cheeks, and lower jaw sink downward of their own weight. All the features are lengthened; the eyes become dull and lack expression; the eyebrows are not infrequently rendered oblique, due to their inner ends being raised. This produces peculiarly formed wrinkles on the forehead, which are different from those of the simple frown. The corners of the mouth are drawn downward. This can be universally recognized as the sign of a worrying spirit."

These muscles of which Darwin speaks, have been called the grief or worry muscles, and the moment they begin to sag one can be sure that the mind is weary, and the heart is grieving over something—probably unnecessary.

BELIEVE ME, VERY FEW THINGS IN LIFE ARE WORTH WORRYING ABOUT, and the woman

Sou'westers For Rainy-Day Wear

Rainproof gaiters are among the weather accessories displayed in the shops for town wear. Hitherto these articles of dress have been restricted to the sportsman, but the recent rainy weather is responsible for the inauguration of the new fashion. These gaiters are in various colorings, brown, however, being the best liked.

Some women are adopting the seaside fashion of the sou'wester and the long coat of mackintosh, which looks like patent leather in the rain. The other day a woman appeared in one of the heavy showers wearing a long white oilskin and white cap, en suite, and she created quite a sensation as she sauntered along, unharmed by the heavy downpour, while everybody else was seeking shelter.

NEWEST ROBESPIERRE DESIGN.

A style of waist becoming to most figures is illustrated here. The material is rich ivory white satin brocade, with carefully corded edges. A fashionable touch of color is given by the clouded amber buttons and the amber-colored velvet which ties the collar. This bow is made with a strip of rich velvet with pleated edges. Waists similar to this are seen in all colors to wear with autumn suits.

Problems of the Fair Sex Solved by Cynthia Grey

Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn as they are received.

A Pathetic Query.

Dear Miss Grey—Will you kindly inform me through The Advertiser what should a person do with wedding presents when the bride-to-be dies before the wedding takes place? Trusting to see this in print soon, as ever.

CONSTANT READER.

A.—In such a case, I think it would only be proper to return the gifts. They would be very sad reminders for the bride's family to keep, and the groom-elect would, of course, not desire them. A short note of thanks and explanation should accompany each present returned.

Questions Three.

Dear Miss Grey—I will buttermilk grow superfluous hair on the face?

2. What can I do to remove blackheads from the nose? If I rub my nose it becomes sore.

3. What will remove a mildew from a muslin apron? A READER.

A.—1. No. 2. I think if you wash your face every night with your soap and water, and a rough cloth, these trying blemishes should be removed. After this treatment, rub the skin gently with cold cream, and I think you will be finally, but not for ever, rid of them. 3. Soak the spots in sour milk or buttermilk, and expose to the sun; then rinse in clear water.

Be Patient.

Dear Miss Grey—I am twenty years old and love a sweet girl of 18, whom I have known for about a year.

Her parents like and trust me, but insist that either her mother, sister or grandmother must be in the same room with us when I call in the evening. Of course, we would much rather enjoy each other's company alone, and I would appreciate it if you will advise us if you think it improper for young people to be left alone in the parlor.

A.—If they trusted you, they would not object to you and your sweetheart being alone in the parlor.

Their unusually strict chaperonage is in the girl's interest, and instead of criticizing it, I regret that guardians of young girls so often swing to the other extreme, and are too lax.

Be patient, and show yourself a manly and honorable young man, and I am sure they will in time grant you the privilege you ask.

Mrs. R. T.'s Helping Hand.

Dear Miss Grey—I am sending two recipes, asked for during the past week: one for maple pie, the other for corn salad with celery. Both are good.

Do you know of anything that will remove small white warts from milk bottles, caused, I believe, by customers' using the bottles in return. Have you tried using fine sand, crushed eggshells or charcoal? It is said that all of these are excellent, if used with hot soapuds and ammonia. One peculiar method calls for finely-chopped potato skins to be placed in the bottle and left standing for three or four days. The action of the skins on the glass will remove the stains. It is claimed the bottles should afterwards be well scalded and rinsed. Is any housewife who reads this column able to recommend an infallible remedy?

A.—Another recipe for maple syrup pie and corn salad, and both sound excellent. It's good of you, Mrs. R. T. to help us, and I only hope we may be of some use to you in return. Have you tried using fine sand, crushed eggshells or charcoal? It is said that all of these are excellent, if used with hot soapuds and ammonia. One peculiar method calls for finely-chopped potato skins to be placed in the bottle and left standing for three or four days. The action of the skins on the glass will remove the stains. It is claimed the bottles should afterwards be well scalded and rinsed. Is any housewife who reads this column able to recommend an infallible remedy?

Preserving Color. When washing cream wool or cotton goods, instead of using bluing, try putting the water in which a few onion skins have been boiled in the last rinsing water. This is much brighter and clearer than the cream color made by coffee, often used.

To Clean White Serge. Lay the garment to be cleaned on the kitchen table and rub freely with powdered magnesia over the soiled parts. Then place in a linen bag for four days, giving it a good shake every day. Take the garment out and shake vigorously; it will then look as good as new.

Chit-Chat

It always amuses the average woman greatly when she hears of one of her own sex "pulling the wool" over the eyes of a man. And when it comes to misleading some of the best literary critics and book reviewers on both sides the Atlantic—well! Yet this precisely is what Miss Clothilde Graves, a clever Irish dramatist, did when she signed herself as "Richard Dehan," author of "The Dog Doctor" and "Between Two Thieves." The first book was published some time ago, and is described as being "an appalling and tremendous piece of fiction." The pen name told nothing of the identity of the author, and the book was reviewed as if it had been written by a man. "Between Two Thieves" concerns itself largely with the history of one Hector Dunois, a French soldier, in the time of the Crimean War, and the critics are having considerable discussion over it.

Miss Graves' plays have been produced by Forbes-Robertson, the Kendalls, Frohman, and others, in London theatres. She is 32 years old, and has travelled extensively.

Any person who had a strong admiration for that clever woman Margaret Sangster, who died such a short time ago, will be deeply interested in these last words which came from her able pen. Apart from the sentimentalism which is in the nature of the case the paragraph itself is worthy of the closest attention:

Our Frame of Mind. "Does the little phrase sound a bit old-fashioned? It fits into my thought, it is the phrase which we are at pains to keep our frame of mind habitually serene, peaceful and cheerful? The dominant mood should be the mood of cheer. Of course, we have the pin-pricks and the brief vexations, the fuss and the flurry, that seem inevitable where people of different ages and positive tendencies meet, mingle and jostle. However slight and small they seem in the great accountings. Of course, we have now and then at intervals, the bigger trials and deeper headaches, and for those we must be patient. But in these we show of what soul-stuff we are made, but taking life day in and day out, we may be sure that we have a very good time. We ought to make a brave effort to maintain our spirits and gaiety, and to conceal, if ever we feel it, the depression of the low mood. The irrepressible and effervescent spirits of young people sometimes jar on those who are older, but we ought not to check them. Our better plan is in our commonplace days to encourage them."

Many a stomach ache of childhood can be directly traced to nuts, peanuts, salted nuts, nuts after a hearty dinner—nuts at the wrong time and in the wrong way!

Ever since the time of King Solomon—who, by the way, had his own walnut plantation—nuts have been used as a dessert, but even in those unenlightened days, they were always eaten with figs to prevent the inevitable colic. The ancients believed that the figs were an antidote to the poison of the nuts—modern dietetics teaches that nuts are not poisonous, but are so concentrated that they must be eaten with something bulky, otherwise over-indulgence and illness will follow.

Even since food fads have become the rage, the nut has been exploited as an excellent meat substitute, and it is, as far as it goes, for it contains fats, proteins and starch, all necessary to body growth. Unfortunately they are not capable of entire assimilation by the human system. Robert Hutchison, of England, states that "thirty large walnuts would contain as much fat as two and a half three-quarter pounds of moderately lean beef; but that two and three-fifths ounces (mark that) of beef would be equal to ten nuts in protein."

I should never suspect From the people I meet at the course."

She was so fair— This Love of mine with rippling curls of gold, That rollicked with the playful breeze in glee; A hidden sunbeam in each silken fold— Ah, dearer far than life, she was to me.

—Elizabeth Dyer de Lom.

In reading these sweet lines the other day, I came across a little sketch of the writer by Dr. J. D. Logan in the Toronto World, and found sure my readers will feel interested in the life-story of Elizabeth English Dyer de Lom, whose untimely death in March last removed from us a Canadian poet of rare gift.

Elizabeth English Dyer de Lom, second daughter of Mr. William J. Dyer, now publisher and editor of the Canadian Druggist, Toronto, was born in Strathroy, Ontario, in July, 1876. She received her early education in the institutions of that town, and began her literary work by publishing verses in the "Institute," a school magazine of the Strathroy Collegiate. Her productions were so excellent that many newspapers and periodicals copied them, and her name soon became well known. In the year 1893 her parents removed to Toronto, where the youthful poet developed still further talent and skill along literary lines, contributing frequently to the Canadian Magazine. In 1901 the poet became the wife of Rev. Pierre Bernard de Lom, an Anglican clergyman, at present residing in Halliburton, Ont. For several years they lived in England, but owing to the failing health of Mrs. de Lom returned to Toronto in 1907, where they resided until the latter's death.

Dr. Logan speaks in his terms of the exceptional quality of Mrs. de Lom's verse, which have recently been published in book form.

The Normal Hair Ornaments

Ornaments are always worn in the hair, and a narrow bandeau of velvet is still popular. A Paris house shows a narrow stiff band of blue velvet sewn with colored beads, from the centre of which springs up a peacock's feather of gold with the "eye" of the feather in natural colors, a bizarre and striking ornament.

Another band of velvet is given with brilliant, and a white osprey rises in the middle in a fashion that is both becoming and dignified—which is more than may be said of many of the fashions of the moment.

day." And who could eat 700 walnuts? Nevertheless, because they contain much that is body building, they have a definite place in the diet. When properly used, chopped and strewn on a green salad, with potato in croquettes, mixed with rice and eggs in a savory, in bread, used as a foundation puree for soups, and in simple desserts, nuts have a distinct mission. But it should be kept in mind that they are largely fat and must not be used in connection with pork chops, pork and beans, pastry or any other fatty food, or the digestive organs will rightly rebel.

In serving plain nuts at a meal use them as the dessert with coffee and crackers rather than an after-thought. They should be served in the shell, instead of salted, as by this means they are eaten more slowly, masticated thoroughly, and fewer are consumed.

THE PLEBEIAN TURNIP

The taste for raw turnip acquired by most country children may be accounted plebeian, yet scrappied and eaten immediately. It is very sweet and good and wholesome. Why should we eat radishes raw and scorn raw turnips? They belong to the same family, and the turnip has a sweeter taste. Custom in these ways has got reversed. People always used to cook the radish, especially the white turnip radish.

An English fashion of cooking turnip is to cut it into dice of considerable size, boil it in salted water until the water is all boiled away and the turnip tender, and then to add butter and pepper and serve. It is always excellent with mutton and also with roast beef. It is one of the Thanksgiving vegetables.

Mashed Turnip.—Slice yellow turnips—also called rutabaga—and simmer until tender and until nearly all the water is evaporated. Do not drain, but simmer until nearly dry. Mash and add pepper, salt and butter. The taste will be sweet and nutty and delicious.

Stewed Turnips.—Dice turnips and boil until very nearly done in a little water. Add one teaspoonful of sugar and some salt and boil until nearly dry. Add one teaspoonful of butter and one cup of hot water. Then thicken and serve.

Stuffed Turnips.—Wash four medium sized turnips, boil until tender. Cut off base and scoop out inside. Season with salt, pepper and butter. Stuff the shells and brown in the oven.

Creamed White Turnip.—Peel and boil turnip in salt water for 30 minutes. Put a slice of butter the size of a walnut in a pan, add one tablespoonful of flour and let blend. Pour into this the turnip after it has been strained through colander, add a cup of soup stock, cook until even and smooth, and serve hot.

Creamed Rutabaga.—Cut turnip in small disks and cook in salt water until tender. Drain off water, add milk to almost cover, season and sift about a teaspoon of flour over top. Let cook up to a cream.

LEFT-HANDED PITCHERS ARE DYING OUT SAYS ART. IRWIN

Veteran Scout Claims They Are Fast Becoming a Scarce Article.

[Canadian Press.]
New York, Sept. 24.—After several weeks spent in observing the work of young players in the minor leagues throughout the country, Arthur Irwin, the veteran scout of the New York Americans, has come to the conclusion that the left-handed pitchers are dying out. "I've combed the bushes this year as never before," said Irwin on his return to New York, "and never did I see such a scarcity of southpaws. They are not to be had."

"My experience is the same as that of other scouts with whom I have talked. I cannot account for it, except on the theory that left-handed persons are getting rare in all walks of life. In my travels this season I saw very few left-handed pitchers, fewer than I ever saw in all my years in baseball. I venture that next season there will be fewer new southpaws in the big leagues than in any season in 25 years."

CAN "MOONEY" GIBSON PEG? ASK SPEEDY JOSH DEVORE

"Mooney" Gibson has come back with a vengeance, and his playing during the past month has been the talk of the National League. George is right now as good as he ever was, and he is just about the best catcher in the National League today. The whole trouble with the big Pirate last season was the fact that his arm was sore, and it hurt him to handle a ball, let alone peg to the bases. When "Mooney" returned home to this city, his arm was in such shape that he could hardly move it, and it was some time before the pain in it went away. This spring the member bothered him a trifle, but Clarke gave him opportunity to rest up and get the whip back into shape. The wisdom of this is shown now, as "Mooney" is playing a remarkable game. He is both behind the plate and with the bat. It has been the Gibson's work with the receiving mitt that has kept the Pirates fighting in second place, and they are liable to finish close behind the Giants when the season closes.

In Saturday's game with the Giants, "Mooney" made McGraw's base-stealers look like a bunch of cripples. Here is what the New York Sun says about him: "Gibson's throwing arm was so accurate that he set out for the middle bag often as he set out for the first base. He reached Devore that way in the third inning after Josh had reached the first base on Miller's fumble."

WOULD PIT CRICKETERS AGAINST BALL PLAYERS

Novel Idea of Australian Captain Whose Team Also Plays
Baseball.

[Canadian Press.]
New York, Sept. 24.—Captain Gregory, of the Australian cricket team, which is now on its way to this country, has written to the New York managers of the coming international cricket matches, declaring that his team is also proficient in baseball, and proposing a game with a picked team from New York and Brooklyn big league players. "My team," he says, "is the greatest baseball aggregation in Australia. We play baseball for practice in running and fielding, and are confident of being able to give a good account of ourselves against the best nine that you can produce."

The novelty in the suggestion, however, lies in Captain Gregory's idea that both teams shall use cricket bats, playing the whole game of baseball under the national rules with the exception that the baseball players shall be allowed to use their gloves, as is usual with them, while the cricketers, as is customary with them, will play with bare hands.

"THE BEST BASEBALL STORY I EVER HEARD"

[BY HUGH JENNINGS.]
Famous Manager of the Detroit Tigers.

In my career in minor and major leagues I have heard a million funny baseball stories. The funniest of all may read like fiction, but is fact. The man around whom the story hangs is now a prominent semi-professional manager in a large eastern city, and has a bank roll that is the envy of many a major leaguer.

This man received his start as a department store clerk. While working for the usual department store salary, he learned that the firm did not back a baseball team. It was the only large store in town that was not backing a fast amateur club, as an advertising dodge.

The clerk was a fan. He read everything printed about baseball, inside and outside, and believed he was just the man to manage a team backed by the store. And he helped the store manager to reach the same conclusion.

Realizing the value of newspaper publicity, he decided he must be a first-class press agent. He was affable, popular, and never failed to tip off to the sporting editors any bit of news that came his way, especially about his club. He broke into the sport pages with the name of his firm so often that he soon received an advance in salary.

At the start he scheduled games in his home city only, but his club quickly made such a reputation that out-of-town teams were asking for dates, usually offering $25 or $50 inducements.

Impressing upon his players that acceptance of this money by them meant the loss of their amateur standing, he pocketed the money himself. Before long his stipend from the games exceeded his salary, and he decided to back a club of his own, employing his brother as travelling manager.

If you wonder why this clerk succeeded as manager, let me relate two instances of his shrewdness. He wanted to get the results of out-of-town games, but hesitated about paying telegraph or telephone tolls, so he evolved a scheme to beat the companies.

After each game his brother would telephone, asking for an imaginary person. Their code was simple, the initials representing the score.

If the call was for Mr. C. A. Smith, the clerk-manager knew his team had won by a score of 3 to 1, for the first initial meant his team and the second the opposing team, the letters of the alphabet being numbered.

He filled his grandstand one day by advertising on the sport pages a reward of $200 for a $400 diamond ring lost in the grandstand upon the occasion of the last game. Men who never attended semi-pro games invested

Banker Would Like to Buy the Boston Outfield But It Would Just About Bust His Bank to Do It

When a couple of bankers get their heads together and begin to talk about a deal involving say $50,000 or more, you can gamble that they are talking about something worth while. For despite any opinion you may have to the contrary, bankers know the value of "iron men."

Two bankers were talking the other day. Up to a certain point they agreed. One admitted that to swing the deal would be worth $50,000 to him. The other insisted that to put it through he would have to be sighted to a whole lot more than $50,000.

These two bankers are better known in another profession. One of them, the vice-president of the Washington Park bank in Chicago, is J. Garland Stahl, manager of the Boston Red Sox. The other is a director in a Scranton, Pa., bank, and is commonly known as Hugh Jennings, manager of the Detroit Tigers, and the only man to win three American League pennants in a row.

Their talk was on the Boston outfield. Speaker, Lewis and Hooper, the greatest aggregation of pasture patrolmen to be found on any team in the country. Jennings opined that he would willingly give $50,000 for the trio. Stahl just laughed. He realizes that this outfield is the real backbone of his ball club, and that it would be suicidal to part with them for twice $50,000.

Here is Jennings' line of reasoning. With an even break of luck, the three ought to improve for the next seven years. Speaker, the oldest, is only 22, and Jennings figures that Speaker, the biggest star of the lot, is easily worth $25,000, that Lewis ought to bring about $15,000 in any auction, and Hooper about $10,000.

Stahl's dope is different. He believes that his outfield won't give him any trouble for at least ten more years. As for the cash value of the players, he is really afraid to commit himself. He has his own private opinion, but that opinion carries figures of such startling proportions that he doesn't care to let the public in on his secret.

At any rate, they are three wonderful players. All of them fast on their feet, equipped with superb arms. All of them good hitters. They have caused other American League clubs a lot of trouble this year, and they get into the world's series they are sure to worry the Giants or Cubs as well.

As for selling them, that is out of the question. Of course, Stahl might be willing to talk trade, provided that he secured in return, say Ty Cobb, Joe Jackson and Clyde Milan, with Walter Johnson and Ed. Walsh thrown in for good measure.

Now you can figure just how much of a chance there is for a swap.

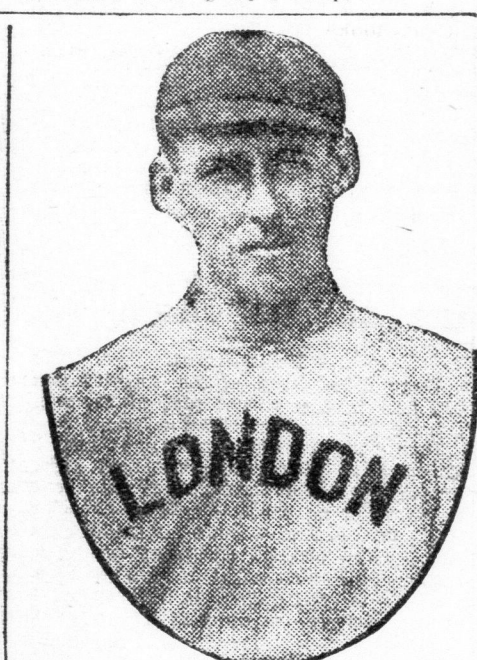

Rugby Season May Open In London on Saturday

Med. Management Are Arranging Game With Woodstock College—Practice Fast Rounding Players Into Shape
---Captain Stevens Will Be Back This Week.

The practice of the Western University rugby club last night was confined chiefly to signal drill, and the boys showed that by the end of the week they will be as near a perfect attacking machine as can be expected so early in the season. From the way that the many candidates for positions on the back division are rounding into shape, the officers will have no easy task in picking the team. Now that the Medical School is open and the majority of the students have resumed their studies, the management expect that the attendance at practices will be nearly double what it has been.

Woodstock College Coming.
The management are at present trying to arrange a game with the Woodstock College team for next Saturday in this city, and in all probability the local season will be opened then. A definite answer is expected from Woodstock some time today, and it will be necessary for all those who are aspirants for the team to attend every practice from now until the end of the week. Practices will be held every night at 6 o'clock, rain or shine, and in case of the former the practices will take the form of blackboard talks in the dressing-rooms.

Cap. Stevens in Shape.
Captain Stevens, the manager of the team, is expected in London on Wednesday or Thursday, and he will be able to jump into the game immediately, as he has been playing with the Fort William team for some weeks past. President Avery, of the Western University Athletic Association, stated to The Advertiser last night that he was more than pleased with the prospects this season, and that he expects that the team will win the junior championship of the O. R. F. U. at least.

Boston, Sept. 23.—The Boston Braves took a Red Sox streak today, scoring seven runs in the lucky seventh and beating Hank O'Day's Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 6.

It was ex-Tiger day for the visitors. George Suggs pitched the first six innings, when Ralph Works stepped into the limelight and was handed "his." Suggs was landed on for nine safeties in six and one-third innings, while the elongated ex-Detroiter was touched up for three in one and two-thirds innings.

Cincinnati drew Works in the drafts last week and then refused him. Charles Schmidt, one-time battery mate of Works, spoke so highly of Ralph's abilities that Garry Hermann loaned him a suit and he got into the game.

The Braves punched nine hits in the fatal seventh, scoring three more runs than the Reds had been able to score together up to that time. Every player but Hess made at least one hit in this frame, and all but Hess and Kirke scored. Four errors by the visitors had considerable to do with the scoring and disheartened the pitchers.

HIRE DETECTIVES TO WATCH BALL PLAYERS

Managers May Have to Use These Methods Soon.

[Canadian Press.]
Chicago, Sept. 24.—President Charles W. Murphy, of the Chicago National League baseball team, expressed the opinion last night that in a short time all managers of big league clubs will be compelled to enforce strictly clauses in the contracts prohibiting players from drinking or smoking during the playing season.

"I believe these clauses should be enforced," said Mr. Murphy. "I will enforce the new rules if I lose all my stars and if it puts the team in last place."

Mr. Murphy says if it is necessary he will hire detectives to watch suspected players.

MARKET WAS SMALL AND SALES VERY DULL

Vegetables Formed the Largest Offering—Dressed Hogs Lower.

The effect of the large attendance at Saturday's market was felt today when the market was under-sized and the sales were very dull.

The vegetable portion of the market was the largest, as usual, but the lack of buyers made the sales slow. Cabbages were somewhat higher in price, being quoted at prices ranging from 40c to 50c per dozen. New potatoes were easier, the prices being from 40c to 50c per bushel, and from 75c to 80c per bag. Tomatoes, cucumbers, cauliflowers and green corn were rather plentiful, but there were no changes in the prices.

About ten loads of hay were sold in the morning at the same prices as prevailing on Saturday, and a couple of loads of oats were bought at prices ranging from $1 to $1.18 per bushel.

Dressed hogs were lower in price, only one lot out of five selling for the price that was paid on Saturday, $12.75 per cwt., the other lots were sold at $11.50 per cwt.

The regimental orders issued last night contained the following abstract from the divisional orders: "When the National Anthem is played at the close of any public performance, all ranking officers, and others with speed, and more with offences against the traffic bylaw. The majority will appear on Friday."

Two Citizens Appeared in the Police Court Today.

The police continue to prosecute persons who leave their motor cars on the streets longer than the law allows. Mr. Charles Hunt and Mr. Oliver Keene each contributed $5 in police court today for offences committed last night. It is said that many others are to appear within the next few days for various breaches of the motor vehicle act. Some are charged with leaving their cars standing on the street, others with speeding, and more with offences against the traffic bylaw. The majority will appear on Friday.

Alleged Pickpocket.

Joseph Farmer, a young man, was arrested last night on complaint of John Anderson, a colored man, who accused the prisoner of taking a watch from his person as he stood at the corner of King and Richmond streets. The timepiece is said to be worth not less than a dollar.

Mr. Anderson could not tell very well how he came to be "touched," but declared that Farmer did not make much fuss about it. The prisoner elected summary trial, and pleaded not guilty. He was bound to appear for trial on Saturday.

MANY GIRLS WITH NO PLACE TO GO FORM URGENT PROBLEM

Have No Place to Entertain Their Friends in Many Cities and Are Led to Spend Their Time On Streets and in Picture Theatres.

The need for better housing accommodation for working girls in Canadian cities was presented in a most urgent manner last night by Miss Charles, Dominion organizer of the Girls' Friendly Society, in addressing the ladies of St. George's Anglican Church. The difficulties of obtaining room and board at reasonable prices are very great in many cities, Miss Charles stated. Girls have no place in which to entertain their friends, and are forced to promenade the streets or seek shelter in moving picture theatres. This lack of home privileges leads to the downfall of many. It is a grave situation in Canada, and one which church members and members of all moral reform societies will have to face.

To Ameliorate Conditions.

The Girls' Friendly Society were endeavoring to ameliorate this appalling condition by establishing a home for the girls.

The latter, who is a sickly lad of about 17 years, is alleged to have been beaten, first by a strap, and after he had been knocked to the ground, his father is alleged to have taken a board and again beaten him, with the result that neighbors more than twenty rods away were attracted by the groans of the boy.

TOO MANY PEACHES FOR SHIPPERS TO HANDLE

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 23.—The peach growers of the Niagara district, both sides of the border, stand to lose more than $100,000 for the very peculiar reason that there is an over abundance of this luscious fruit this year. The crop is too big to handle, and there is a shortage of pickers, a shortage of baskets, and the transportation companies are unable to furnish sufficient cars in which to ship the fruit after it is picked.

Grows May Lose Heavily in Niagara District as a Result.

This is the substance of a statement made today by C. P. Claxton, of Pittsburgh, a prominent fruit commission merchant, who spent all of last week in the fruit belt of the Niagara peninsula. His firm stands to lose $8,000 because of the lack of cars in which to transport the fruit, having purchased a large quantity of peaches on the trees. The fruit has been picked, but there is a lack of cars, and they cannot be taken to market.

SEND ALL TO COUNCIL.

"I move that all the sites be referred to the city council," said Mayor Graham. "The matter will have to be settled there eventually, and we might as well forward them all now as later. It is high time we did something. We should not delay any longer."

STREET RAILWAYMEN
HELD A BIG CUTTING

A Program of Sports and a Luncheon Yesterday at Springbank.

The day men employed as motor-men and conductors on the London street railway spent an enjoyable time at Springbank Park yesterday afternoon in what is to be an annual picnic. A program of sports was run off, and after a luncheon the evening was spent in dancing at the pavilion.

During the afternoon the motor-men and conductors clashed in a baseball match. Big league scouts passed up an opportunity to collect some very worthy material by neglecting that demonstration, for all records for wall-pops, whiffs and bobbles were broken. The score was tied when both crews shouted for time.

The conductors, however, demonstrated that their work is better for muscle building than that of the motor-men, for they pulled the heroes of many "pluggings" off their feet in 20 seconds in a tug-of-war. The teams were made up of: Conductors—South-cott, Robertson, Edwards, Reith, Schott, Ray and Bloomfield; and motor-men—Hugh Clark, Walker, Mc-Kue, Hancock, and Wilcox.

Beck. "In Hamilton the scheme has worked out wonderfully. There are 25 cases in the Hamilton Sanatorium now being treated and educated.
Some wonderful cures have been made there. There have been no deaths. The nurses have discovered the disease. We have not had a single case reported from the local schools. If there is no tuberculosis in London, it is the only city in Canada where such a condition exists."

Sheriff Cameron, the secretary, was instructed to convey to His Lordship Bishop Fallon, the thanks of the association for the generous gift of $536 sent to him by the local Catholic churches.

It was decided to delay the construction of the additional story to the infirmary until next season. More accommodation is urgently needed.
Many patients have been refused last year, but it was thought too late to begin building this year.

Another appeal for funds will be made, as the amount of money at the disposal of the association is not sufficient for ordinary purposes at the present time.

Those present were Hon. Adam Beck, president; Sheriff Cameron, retiring; Philip Pocock, K. C., M. Judd, W. J. Tillmann, Dr. Drake, Dr. J. C.
Judd, Dr. Linn Dutton; Warden
Buttery, Strathroy; Dr. Guest, St.
Thomas, and others.

MEAN THIEF STOLE
A WIRE DOORMAT

But Was Seen Taking It, and There Is Trouble in Store.

A resident of the Hamilton road, residing at No. 260, lost a wire doormat Saturday evening, and the person who took it was seen in the neighborhood of the house. It is not returned forthwith, a warrant will be issued, and an interesting exposure in the police court is promised. There have been numerous cases of petty thefts in the neighborhood, with the result that at night nearly everyone is afraid to go out. The culprit, it was this watchfulness that resulted in the present thief being noticed.

LEGAL QUERIES

MARKHAM—I have a lease for a semi-detached house in Toronto for one year. The next door has been raided by the police and is now pointed out by everyone who passes.
Can I be compelled to stay the balance of the year, as I have a respectable family? Does a change of landlords invalidate the lease? Can I sub-let it to another?

ANSWER—You are liable for the rent to landlords for the year, whether you move or remain in the house. A change of landlords does not invalidate the lease. You can sub-let if the lease does not otherwise provide.

COUNCIL VOTED IN FAVOR OF A DUNDAS STREET SITE
BUT ACTION WAS ILLEGAL

Ald. Richter Raised Point Which Temporarily Set Back the Securing of the Land on Dundas St.
Near Armories for Location of New City Hall.

A SPECIAL MEETING WILL BE HELD
TONIGHT TO SETTLE THE PURCHASE

Ald. Coles Announced That Dominion Government Is Willing To Pay for Half the Land If City Decides to Go Ahead With the Federal Square Idea to Include the Armories Block.

A poll of the aldermen at the special meeting of the city council, held last night, showed that they were in favor of purchasing the property on Dundas street lying between the armories and the McCormick Manufacturing Company for a city hall site.
The vote was 4 to 1 in its favor.

A special meeting of the council has been called for tonight to definitely select a site. It was decided that the council at the special meeting last night was not competent to select a location, owing to the fact that notice for this had not been properly given.

Ald. Coles Report.
Ald. Coles presented the report of the city hall committee, in which it was recommended that the Eccles property be purchased for city hall purposes at a cost of $35,000. The chairman did not move the adoption of the report, but explained that after the committee had decided to buy the land in question it was found to have been sold to private parties. The council, on motion of Ald. Richter, went into committee of the whole to discuss the matter.

Mayor Graham then suggested that the council consider amendments to this report, and urged that a site be selected. He pointed out that the following options were held: On the property at the corner of Maple and Richmond streets, $69,500; on the Spencer block, $35,000; on the Dundas street property, owned by J. C. Coates, George T. Hixson, A. Wigmore and R.
Whale, 200 feet by 165 feet, $47,000;
and the Parsons and Bernard property at the corner of King and Wellington streets, with 200 feet frontage on King and 200 frontage on Wellington, $75,- 000. The option on the Coates property was only for two days, and his witness urged that something be done at once.

Nothing Accomplished.
"The council has been eight months
at this job and have accomplished nothing," said Mayor Graham. "We are becoming a laughing-stock. We can decide the question just as easily tonight as we can in two weeks' time."

Ald. Wright informed the council that he had options on all the property comprising the "V" on Richmond street north. This, to his mind, was the only site. Park avenue could be closed and Victoria Park made more beautiful. The Christian Science Church could be expropriated. He had obtained the opinion of City Solicitor
Mereditth to that effect.

Who Should Pay?
"By what authority did you secure
Mr. Mereditth's opinion?" asked Ald.
Richter. "If you, as a private citizen, paid for that opinion, all well and good, but you have no right to incur that expense for the city without the sanction of the council. There is altogether too much of that sort of thing going on here. I don't think there is anything wrong about that. I am learning something every day."

"Ald. Wright forgets that Mr. Mereditth works piecework," declared Mayor Graham.

His worship explained that it would

CORRESPONDENCE

The City Hall Site.
To the Editor of The Advertiser:
The council appear to have their difficulties in securing a city hall site. It is a wonder to the citizens of London that they do not have more difficulties, considering the situation in which matters are managed.

If the Eccles site was being considered by the city hall committee, surely it was ordinary common sense business to have a live option on the property before they buy it.

If the city hall committee and the council would only put aside prejudice city hall site, particularly in fact of a site for the city hall, it would be nothing else but this site for it.

According to the statements, documents, which were looked up by some of the aldermen, the court house site belongs as much to the city as to the county.
There is no necessity of entering into any agreement with the county, as they will be only too pleased to have the city hall built on the vacant property south of the court house, and this site would not cost the city one cent.

It is immaterial where the city hall is placed, so long as it is within a square or two from the centre of the city, and accessible by street cars. The court house square is the most convenient site for all parties using the city hall in this city, and there is no place that could be made as beautiful.

There are a great number of citizens who hope that the council, surely it was only ordinary common sense business to have a live option on the property before
they buy it.

There has been a lot of money spent during the last few years on curbs and gutters, with their connected gully-holes, evening of which places a heavier demand on a sewer system already greatly over-taxed. The matter of storm sewers has been taken up before, but curbs and gutters or any other work that would require additional service from the present system.

The department will require the amount of money during the next year or two. In fact of this why throw away from forty to a hundred thousand dollars for a city hall site when we have a free site lying waiting for us?

ter your pet scheme has been defeated," declared his worship.
Ald. Coles then moved that the report of the committee be adopted.
Ald. Bennett then moved that the report be referred back for the committee to report on.

Action Illegal.
"I am of the opinion that the action of the council tonight is illegal," declared Ald. Richter. "I think we should call a special meeting of the council on Tuesday night to select a site. We will then clear ourselves of any imputation for crooked work and protect ourselves from injunctions."

His worship accepted this, and it was decided to call a meeting for tonight. It is expected that the Eccles property will again be recommended to the council.

HON. MR. WENDLING
ON "UNSEEN REALITIES"

A Masterly Presentation of a Most Interesting Subject in the Auditorium.

Hon. George R. Wendling's first evening lecture in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium was listened to last night by a large number of citizens. His topic for the evening was "Unseen Realities," and he convinced his hearers that he was nothing less than a master of the most able discourse. Many in the audience after the lecture stated that it was the equal of the best they had ever heard.
"Unseen Realities" was a vast different presentation of the spiritual as opposed to the material conception of the world.

"The greatest message which the 19th century had to deliver to the inhabitants of the earth was the fact that there was nothing in the universe but the human mind, and its properties are called materialism," said Mr. Wendling. "But the twentieth century will have a vastly different
