U. S. ELECTIONS STILL IN DOUBT

Norfolk, Haldimand and Brant Counties to be Grouped For Recruiting THE GERMAN-AMERICAN VOTE DISAPPEARED ON ELECTION DAY

This is the Conclusion Reached by the New York Times and it Presents an Analysis in Proof of That Claim—Says the Vote in Question Was Split

Wilson had been knifed by German-American Democrats in some districts of Hoboken, but this was hardly perceptible in the state returns.

Wilson had less than the normal Democratic plurality, but he ran well ahead of Hughes in all but two of the Manhattan congressional districts.

A close analysis of the vote, precinct by precinct, in German-American districts, may make it appear that ballots were cast now and then to punish Wilson for not favoring an embargo on munitions.

Hughes lost Milwaukee, he lost St. Louis. He carried Cincinnati, but by far less than its normal Republican plurality. There was evidence that

THE PRESIDENTIAL OUTCOME STILL REMAINS VERY MUCH IN DOUBT

Wilson is in the Lead but Final Results in Doubtful States Will Tell the Concluded Story—How the Figures Stand as at Present Appears

TWO OFFICERS OF 34TH PRISONERS PRES. WILSON STILL DOESN'T KNOW WHETHER HE IS OR ISN'T

Lieuts. Howard and Devlin Are Captured by the Enemy.

Lieut. Francis Carl Howard, who had a commission in the 84th Battalion, is reported prisoner of war. He was first reported missing. No particulars are available.

Lieut. Harry Lyman Devlin, who was in the 84th, is also a prisoner of war. He is twenty-one and an undergraduate of the University of Toronto, and lived at 71 Delaware avenue, Toronto.

Lieuts. Howard and Devlin were in command of a party sent out to secure information, when machine-gun fire seems to have opened on them and both officers were seen to fall. When a search was made later they could not be found, and it was feared that they had been killed. Both officers were Toronto men.

AMERICAN ELECTION FOLLOWED WITH DEEP INTEREST IN PARIS

Believed That Either Candidate Will Have Little Effect on the United States Policy

Paris, Nov. 9.—The American election is being followed with the deepest interest. The morning paper commentators, mindful of the dramatic surprise yesterday when the supposedly certain Hughes victory was turned into a possible defeat, are reluctant to commit themselves.

The Matin remarks that while a victory for Mr. Hughes might mean a more vigorous international policy, it would also mean a protectionist regime. The Matin comments that this change, while unimportant in time of war might be awkward for French business interests on the return of peace.

DECREASE IN PRICE OF RUBBER

Average Man Has British Government to Thank That It Has Not Risen With Other Products.

If ten years ago, any rubber manufacturer had been given an order for 2,000,000 pairs of rubber boots, of the hip length variety, he would have been forced to refuse the order, unless he were privileged to "farm it out." Seven thousand tons of rubber and other materials are necessary to manufacture 2,000,000 pairs of rubber boots and ten years ago it would have been next to impossible for a single manufacturer to lay his hands on that amount of the crude product.

Today, however, it is a different matter—so different, in fact, that such an order has just been given to a single manufacturer by the British Government for boots for Britain's army. The name "British" appears still further in the transaction. It was through the foresight and sagacity of the British Empire that this and other manufacturers of rubber articles have the immense supply of the crude article with which to meet the demands of the public.

The why and wherefore of this dates back to 1892, when wise men in authority in the British Government conceived the idea of fostering the rubber industry by subsidizing plantations of rubber trees. This was a wild flight into fancy in the minds of the average rubber man, who believed that rubber could come only from the wild trees of Brazil, but these Englishmen saw differently and to-day, not only the British Empire, but the world is profiting by the foresight of these men.

This year's production of rubber will be well over 200,000 tons of crude rubber, while the South American production, which satisfied many, still remains the same and constitutes only 23 per cent. of the total world's production of crude rubber.

But, this is the interesting part for the average person. Britain's rubber foresight has brought the market under her control and she has forced the price of crude rubber down from $3.00 in 1910 and $1.25 just before the war to about 67 cents to-day. "In these days, when all prices are mounting, this is glad news for the man of ordinary means. He is the man who buys rubber several times a year to keep himself dry shod—perhaps to keep the feet of a wife and two children warm from the cold winter. He

SAVE YOUR HAIR AND BEAUTIFY IT WITH CANDERINE

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots flanch, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. It eventually—why not now?

is the man who knows what the increase in price of other articles means and welcomes the news that, at least, one article is decreasing rather than rising in cost. He is the man who also knows that his shoe leather and that of his wife and children is mounting so rapidly that the buying of shoes for the family is a problem. Winter is coming and rubber and overshoes come with winter as a means to help solve this high cost of shoes, and he has to thank the British Government for the control it has of the rubber market and the help it has been to the manufacturer, who might otherwise have had to put rubber in the same class as leather.

THE FAIRY CANNON

Once upon a time in the old, old days, there lived an elf, and for all I know he may be living yet. He lived in the fairy forest then and they called him the flower-elf. Ah, me! a wise old elf he was. He really knew too much.

Now at that time nowhere in the mortal world could you find a flower-elf. They all grew in the fairy forest and it was the flower-elf's business to see that everything went right. For pay he took the fallen petals. What could he do with them? Well he did a number of things! He hatched the roof of his cottage with flower petals. He made umbrellas of flower-petals and sold them to the fairies. He made clothes for himself, rugs for his cottage—but there, I've told you he was smart. That's enough. Anything he wanted to make, he could make, and that's how he came to make a fairy cannon. It began when he found a hollow tree in the marsh near his cottage. "Hum!" he said "I could just manage some kind of a little explosion in that old tree, trunk. I could pack the mouth with flower seed and sprinkle them all over the fairy forest. Then I wouldn't have to run my legs off every year sowing flower seed."

Yes, he was lazy! I admit it now—lazy and clever. And by and by, after a great many experiments, he managed to mix the pollen of the fairy flowers and explode it with a fiery spark. And so, my dears, when the spring came again that lazy flower-elf had his fairy cannon done.

SIDE TALKS

HIT IT AGAIN
Did you ever play the game called "Tether Ball"? It is a sort of second cousin, twice removed, from tennis. There is a tennis ball tethered by a piece of cord to a tall pole. The two contestants stand on opposite sides of the pole and hit the ball with tennis rackets. The object is to wind the cord up, each of course trying to wind it up his way. It is an excellent game, a game which gives just as much exercise as tennis and is financially within the reach of everyone.

But I am not an agent for "Tether Ball." I simply want to make you acquainted with the game so that you can visualize a little drama which I witnessed the other day. The Champion Was The Shortest. Half a dozen young people were playing this game. As you can readily see, it is a sport in which height and strength are great advantages. And yet, the champion of the group was the shortest of the lot—a little red-headed lad of about fifteen, slight and rather short even for his age. Two of the other contestants were six inches taller than he. And one was unquestionably stronger. Why, then, should he win? I thought perhaps he had been

The course, which will consist of a thorough training in first aid work will be conducted by Mr. W. H. An outline of the scheme was given at the meeting of the Trades and Labor council last night, when their cooperation was solicited.

THE SITUATION

It begins to look more and more as if the Teutons had been definitely stopped in their plans for smashing Roumania. The all around tone of reports from that region is much improved. In the Dobruja region the Russo-Roumanian forces continue to advance, and they are steadily beating back the right wing of Mackensen's army. On the extreme northern part of the Transylvania front and on the western Moldavian frontier, successes of the Entente Allies are also recorded.

On the rest of the fronts matters are comparatively quiet.

A meeting to consider the recruiting question was held yesterday by the officers of the Toronto military district. Sir Sam Hughes was also in attendance. As the outcome of the conference the decision was practically reached that the voluntary system of recruiting had about reached a limit and that some form of compulsion should be introduced. The Courier has for some months been an advocate of such a plan and so have a large number of other Canadian papers.

It is not right that certain families should give freely of their men folk and other families, which are just as vitally interested in this struggle, stand idly by without any contribution in men, and sad to say in some instances of means either. A zeppelin visit over the homes of such folk might perhaps shake some sense of the Empire need into them. Manly and patriotic appeals manifestly don't.

DO YOUR SHARE

Brantford's contribution to the British Red Cross Fund still lacks the total aimed at—$20,000.

Surely this is little enough for a place of this size to give when Stratford contributes $25,000 and other smaller places in like proportion.

The County of Brant has also set an example to the city which we would do well to emulate.

Every man and woman should remember that his, or her, contribution will be devoted directly to the alleviation of the pain and suffering of the brave men at the front, and to the efficient care and comfort of those who are fighting the battle of Empire and human liberty.

Anyone who would withhold their hands under such circumstances makes the declaration that they do not appreciate the glorious privileges associated with living under the grand old Union Jack.

If you can't go yourself then at least send your means.

Mr. Harvey Watt of the Imperial Bank is treasurer of the fund.

THE MAGNITUDE OF THE WAR

We all know in a general way that the present war is the biggest in all history, but it is different to visualize that fact off hand. General Sir O'Moore Creagh, V.C., a distinguished soldier and Commander-in-Chief in India, during an interesting article on the subject says:—

"According to the French accounts the German line is defended in places by as much as a division every thousand yards, say 14,000 bayonets. This would give us a total of 52 divisions, or roughly 725,000 men, for the whole Somme front, a figure which squares with the assumption that half the forces the Germans have in the west have been attracted to this zone of fighting. We are told that the Germans have about 120 divisions on the Anglo-French front; half of these is, of course, 60 divisions. I do not think, therefore we are wrong in assuming that on the enemy's side between 700,000 and 800,000 men are striving to hold the Allied advance towards Bapaume-Peronne.

"The Allies have at least the same number of men, so that we get the colossal total of a million and a half men engaged in the one battle, not counting the many thousands required to carry on the subsidiary services in the rear. The Germans are said to be using 2,000 guns on this thirty-mile front. I take this total to be much under-estimated rather than over-stated. I shall not be surprised to find in all some 10,000 guns of various calibre engaged in the battle.

"Keeping this idea of a million and a half men and 10,000 guns shaping the proportions of the Somme battle let us see what history has to offer us by way of contrast. Napoleon at Dresden had 120,000 men against 220,000 men; at Leipzig he had 160,000 against 230,000.

"The field of Waterloo extended but two miles, from the Chateau of Hougomont on the right to La Haye Sainte on the left, or as far as the average front of the British or the French have been attacking since July 1 every morning. In this campaign Napoleon had about 200,000 men and 350 guns, against Wellington's 105,000 men and Blucher's 142,000 men and 234 guns.

"Napoleon entered Russia in 1812 with 647,000 men and 1,372 guns, or with fewer men than the Germans require to man their Bapaume-Peronne defences and certainly far fewer guns."

These figures refer to the Somme front alone. On top of that there are all the other fronts, in which multitudes of men are involved in

NOTES AND COMMENTS

As for the Crown Prince, he has become lost in the shuffle.

After their presidential jamboree the people of the United States are still not certain where they are at. Often the way the day after.

To be in accord with the spirit of the times November still continues to draw it mild.

The British Chancellor of the Exchequer presided at a luncheon given at Westminster yesterday to Sir Thomas White. The chairman, during his remarks said "We owe more than we can well express to Canada's Finance Minister through his financial leadership." The people of the Dominion, without regard to politics will say "Hear, Hear."

Hearst papers have been banned from Canada, and about time. The proof has been brought home of the garbling of British official messages and their other misdemeanors constitute a lengthy list. The marvel is that such sheets can flourish in any decent community. The list includes:

WAR'S HISTORY IN CARTOON

Will Be Told By A. G. Racey At the Grand To Aid Soldiers.

One of the most original "historians of the war" yet thought out will be presented at the Grand, on the evening of November 16th, when A. G. Racey, the cartoonist of The Montreal Star, will present a review of the war in cartoon. The entertainment will consist of stereopticon reproductions of some 200 cartoons with a running commentary by the artist.

The unique entertainment has been arranged under the auspices of the House Committee of the Children's Aid Society. The proceeds will be devoted to the Belgian Relief Fund.

The cartoon has taken its place in modern times as one of the most potent influences for praise or blame. It presents tremendous truths in a few lines, and epitomizes history in a page. The cartoon has dealt with the causes of the war, its progress, and the world issues that have arisen since the beginning of the titanic struggle for freedom waged by Britain and her Allies against the Central Powers of Europe.

No lecture by any war correspondent can convey half as clearly or so graphically the true significance of the war; the vast issues involved, the great effort entailed, the imperative need of more munitions and men. The cartoon presents the raw truth in a form so simple that he who runs may read. A little more than two hours suffices to pass in review the entire story of the war from its outset to the present moment. The review is a complete history at a glance, a history without words, an unique and convincing record of the greatest war of all the ages.

Following are a few extracts of notices of Mr. Racey's work which have appeared in the British press: "The London Morning Post: "Mr. Racey's great war cartoons effectively express Canadian sentiment and loyalty."

"The Birmingham Gazette: "Mr. Racey's war cartoons are only another form of bringing home to us in England the reality that, in matters of real moment, Canada's loyalty

BRANT DEANERY HOLDS SESSION

Helpful Addresses Delivered
By Local and Other Clergymen.

A PRESENTATION
To Venerable Archdeacon
MacKenzie, of Grace Church.

The 14th meeting of the rural deanery of Brant took place yesterday in St. Jude's church, with a large attendance present, including some 15 clergymen and a goodly number of Sunday-school teachers and workers. The meeting opened with service at 11 a.m. in St. Jude's church, devotional exercises being conducted by Rev. Rural Dean Brewin of Woodstock, who delivered a most impressive appeal for a higher spiritual life, which was the great need of the church to-day. Letters calls and other demands engrossed too much of our time to the exclusion of prayer and reading and study of the Scriptures. The call to-day was for greater devotion to the Lord Jesus Christ.

Following upon this most helpful address and the administering of holy communion by the Rev. C. E. Jenkins, assisted by Rev. J. Seton Adamson, an adjournment was made to the rectory of St. Jude's church, the home of the Rev. C. E. Jenkins where, with Rev. Rural Dean Seton Adamson, of Paris in the chair, the deanery made a presentation to Ven. Archdeacon MacKenzie. The presentation of five handsome volumes, was made by the Rev. C. E. Jenkins, while an address was read by Rural Dean Seton Adamson, expressive of the esteem of all the clergy, and their regret at the retirement of the worthy Venerable Archdeacon, for whom they wished every blessing in the evening of his life.

Application was made by the Rev. C. V. Lester for help to build a mission in Echo Place, but as such a project was deemed undesirable, his plea was not supported. An adjournment was made at this juncture to the school-room, where a bounteous repast was served by the Ladies Guild of the church and fully enjoyed by all. The clergy then met for the transaction of business, and at 3 p.m. addresses were delivered in St. Jude's church by the Rev. H. C. Light, Mr. Henry Fielden and Miss Burt of Paris. Very helpful discussions followed each address. Tea was again served to all the ladies and to whom a hearty vote of thanks was extended. Votes of thanks were also passed to Capt. and Mrs. Jenkins, who did all within their power to make the guests at home, and to the Rev. Rural Dean Brewin of Woodstock, for his helpful service.

Evening service was also conducted in St. Jude's church, with a large congregation present and the Rev. Dyson Haig, M.A., pastor of the Epiphany, Toronto, as the special preacher. He delivered a most eloquent and inspiring sermon, taking as his text the words "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ."

The evening service served to conclude one of the most successful deanery meetings held here for some time.

NEWS OF NORFOLK

(From our own correspondent)
Since, Nov. 9.—Balliff Ryan has taken the prisoners Ryan and Pott to the Prison Farm, for the remainder of their sentence, the former for desertion and the latter for breaking goal.

Trial of Jacobs and Leflar slated for yesterday at 10 a.m., did not proceed. The prisoners appeared in the magistrate's court and were remanded till 10 a.m. on Tuesday next, at Waterford.

The Crown will doubtless produce evidence to show that Leflar and Jacobs were seen carrying seen carrying parcels on the night of the fire, on Main Street, and being disturbed hid in an alley; that night operator Mark Shook saw a light in Calver's and heard falling glass when up town for midnight luncheon. It will doubtless be proven that while Dave Howie, a bachelor, living alone, who came home late and tired and slept through the fire, after being roused by a neighbor and told of the burning of the York Block, went down town and on his return, about 10 o'clock, found Jacobs and Leflar heating a can of prepared food over his lamp, and that the empty can bore the private cost mark of Mr. Sanderson's stock. Roy Beemer, will perhaps swear that he saw, the men at a distance. Others may tell of seeing the pair from the trolley, going down a concession line near Oakland. There will be no difficulty in proving that the two youths have been hanging around town for some time.

Leflar sold a camera to Pte. Tom Cullifford when the $33 was home on last leave. It was worth $6.00. It was said.

The father of the lad Jacobs was in town yesterday, and said he knew little of the son's whereabouts for many months, except what he gleaned from the papers. He wrote home but once. Questioned by his father as to the charge against him, he made no admissions. He is only 16 years old, and is not behaving very well in the goal. In fact he has required reprimanding on more than one occasion.

"A GREAT PENNY-WORTH FOR NOTHING"

It is an old adage that "Every Medal has its reverse."

Though the public is somewhat ignorant of this, every storekeeper knows that what is lost in selling one article at an extraordinarily low price, for advertising purposes, must be made up by tacking the loss upon some other article of fresher goods that is more desirable and whose value is less known.

For ourselves, we have only to say that such store-keeping is not our kind. We know that best is always cheapest, and that good qualities are procurable that are not expensive.

"Say well" is good, but "do well" is better.

From the smallest boy to the oldest man in all this big building, we are busy in providing the best and newest and most worthy merchandise that we can find to dispose of at fair and reasonable prices.

Nothing is too good for the people who depend upon us.

Potatoes From British Columbia

A large consignment of potatoes was delivered in town yesterday. They were doubtless the first ever brought in here from British Columbia, and the freight charges were $335 per car of 450 bags. They were unusually large, many of them larger than a foot for a No. 9 shoe and flattened similarly. Not one of several of these cut open was single, One weighed two pounds and eleven ounces. They will sell at about $1.50 per bush. It is quite remarkable for Norfolk to import western potatoes as for Haldimand to go abroad for apples and roots.

Trades and Labor Council Will Invest

Decision Reached At Session—Committee Will Recommend Council.

A very important session of the Trades and Labor Council of this city was held in their rooms in the Hamilton building, last evening. The subject of discussion was the problem of the high cost of living and the methods which might be adopted to alleviate this prevalent evil. A decisive step in the solution of the difficulty was taken by the committee some time ago to investigate the question and submit a report of the result arrived at to the council. This report was given last night and provided the first act of solution of the difficulty ever offered to any administrative or legislative body in the Dominion.

The first item of business transacted was the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, which were read and adopted. Others matters business referring solely to the organization were then discussed. A delegate from the Shoe Makers Union gave an outline of a proposed St. Johns Ambulance Association to be established in the city, a more detailed account of which appears elsewhere in this issue.

It was decided to appoint the president of the Trades and Labor Council as their representative on the executive of the patriotic fund.

A communication from the Board of Health in reply to a letter of the city was read by Mr. Symonds. A letter was received from Mr. R. Thompson, in which the proposed street railway service to the Terry Hill section was reviewed. He called the pre-election promises made by aldermanic candidates in that regard. He proposed to offer himself as a candidate for the council of the city for the year 1917, and solicited the support of the council in the election. As he is a resident of Toronto and not of this city, it was thought that the question should be dropped. A communication from the city makers' union of London, was received, giving a resume of the cent strike in that city, which has been but recently settled. One manufacturer had refused to arbitrate or compromise and had moved his factory to Windsor, where he was

Trades and Labor Union Will Investigate H.C. of L.

Decision Reached At Session of the Union Last Evening—Committee Will Report Upon Matters to the City Council.

A very important session of the Trades and Labor Council of this city was held in their rooms in the Bank of Hamilton building, last evening. The subject of discussion was the problem of the high cost of living and the methods which might be adopted to alleviate this prevalent evil. A decisive step in the solution of the difficulty was taken by the committee some time ago to investigate the question and submit a report of the result arrived at to the council. This report was given last night and provided the first actual solution of the difficulty ever offered to any administrative or legislative body in the Dominion.

The first item of business transacted was the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, which were read and adopted. Others matters of business referring solely to the organization were then discussed and a delegate from the Shoe Makers' Union gave an outline of a proposed St. Johns Ambulance Association to be established in the city, a more detailed account of which appears elsewhere in this issue.

It was decided to appoint the president of the Trades and Labor Council as their representative on the executive of the patriotic fund.

A communication from the Board of Health in reply to a letter of the one, was read by Mr. Symonds.

A letter was received from Mr. N. R. Thompson, in which the proposed street railway service to the Terrace Hill section was reviewed. He recalled the pre-election promises made by aldermanic candidates in that regard. He proposed to offer himself as a candidate for the council of the city for the year 1917, and solicited the support of the council in the election. As he is a resident of Toledo and not of this city, it was thought that the question should be dropped.

A communication from the cigar makers' union of London, was received, giving a resume of the recent strike in that city, which had been but recently settled. One manufacturer had refused to arbitrate or compromise and had moved his factory to Windsor, where he was employing foreign labor from Detroit. He requested that the matter be brought to the attention of the local member of parliament, and that he be asked to take some steps to reform this abuse of foreign labor or earning money in this country and spending it in the United States.

President Noble was appointed to act on the meetings committee of the Recruiting League.

The following letter, containing some concrete suggestions of reforms to alleviate the difficulty of the high cost of living, will be sent to the city council.

To His Worship the Mayor, and the City Council of Brantford, Gentlemen:

The Brantford Trades and Labor Council begs to direct your attention to certain problems which have arisen as the result of the world war. They are problems which gravely affect the welfare of the working class in this city, and other industrial centres. They are problems, too, which will grow in magnitude until the close of the war, and possibly for some time thereafter.

This Council has noticed that in both allied and enemy countries economic problems created by war conditions have received serious attention, and that sympathetic efforts, free from all partisan spirit, have been made to solve them.

This Council regrets that virtually nothing has been done in Canada to this end. On the contrary, a poor quality of patriotic spirit is shown by the rival political parties who, instead of working together, as in other belligerent countries, for the common good in the greatest national emergency Canada has ever had to encounter, have confused the public mind, and obscured the questions at issue for party purposes. This Council is not concerned to enquire into, or to apportion, the blame for this condition of affairs. It merely states a fact.

The Brantford Trades and Labor Council feels that the City Council, as the elected representatives of the general body of our citizens, and non-political in its duties, should lend its efforts to the solution of the serious national problems referred to. This it might do (1) by making representations to other municipal councils and non-political bodies with the view of informing and educating the public, and providing the means of taking concerted action. (2) By making representations to the governments concerned in favor of the enactment of federal or provincial legislation, and the enforcement of administrative policies calculated to secure the objects in view. (3) By applying for such legislation to extend the powers of municipalities as may be necessary in the interests of the community, and particularly to give authority to undertake such municipal activities to the same end as economic conditions suggest are desirable to the public interest.

Federal Action

This Council suggests that it is an anomaly for food, in time of war, to be dearer in a food-exporting country than in a food-importing one. Bread, for example, made from Canadian wheat, is cheaper in Britain than in Canada, although ocean freight and insurance charges are five times greater than they were before the war; an outlay which the Canadian grower in flour and bread entirely avoids. No farmer would sell, because of a prevailing high market price, grain necessary for the sustenance of his cattle and horses. By a parity of reasoning no sale is justified in permitting the sale abroad of food produce which is needed at home. On this principle, for cogent reasons, the Brantford Trades and Labor Council suggests that the Brantford City Council should make representations to the federal government:

(1) To prohibit altogether, or to regulate in the public interest, the exportation of food produce, natural or manufactured, to the end that sufficient is available for sale in Canada to meet normal demands.

(2) To remove tariff barriers on food produce so that Canadian consumers may make good from other sources any shortage of articles of food which may exist in Canada.

(3) To adjust the demand for butter to the supply by permitting the manufacture and importations of margarine and other butter substitutes under proper regulations.

(4) To fix, after adequate investigation of the cost of production, the price of wheat for home market to the end that the producer gets a reasonable return on his labor and capital investment, and does not fit through the calamity of war to the disadvantage of the general body of his fellow citizens who are, and must of necessity be, heavy losers through it.

(5) To investigate the relative cost of production of flour in ante-bellum and post-bellum periods, and to fix a fair price to be charged by the millers for the same.

(6) To control the importation of coal at ports of entry and to fix the price of same at those points and at Canadian mines, and regulate sales to dealers on an equitable basis, so that distribution may be free from monopolistic manipulation and conducted for the public advantage.

(7) To investigate the cost of production and to fix the price of canned goods, sugar, and such other important articles of food as are believed to be subject to monopolistic control.

(8) To prevent, and if necessary to achieve the object in view, to confiscate stocks of food in cold storage warehouses which have been or may be accumulated and held for the purpose of price manipulation to the disadvantage of the consumer.

(9) To take steps by education and propaganda to direct and divert labor to the most advantageous pursuits from the viewpoint of the public interest, and as far as is practicable, to economize the labor resources of the nation by more efficient organization, and the elimination of the waste of competition.

(10) To procure legislative authority to municipalities for the purposes hereinafter named.

thority to municipalities for the purposes hereinafter named.

Municipal Action

Apart from the artificial augmentation of price at the point of production, or opportunities afforded thereby, there is considerable economic loss in transit owing to the increased cost of distribution through enlistment. The withdrawal of four hundred thousand men from productive, distributive and other necessary or useful occupations, in itself, suggests that steps should be taken to economize, by sane and systematic organization, the labor resources remaining at home. As with productive, so it is with distributive services, the competition of exploitation of the shortage aggravates the problem occasioned by the shortage itself. Where two men are needed to perform certain labor and only one man is available, that man is in a position to obtain a wage price much in excess of the average. The profiteers who employ his labor also charges upon the do not, consequently, vouch for the accuracy of the representation, but urge that the same supports the need of public investigation as to the causes of the increases in the cost of domestic necessities as and when the same arise.

As to municipal action, therefore, this Council suggests your Honorable body should seek the aid of other municipalities to procure legislation for all or any of the purposes named:

(1) The right to conduct municipal stores for the sale of natural and manufactured food produce.

(2) To conduct municipal coal yards.

(3) To have a monopoly of the sale of bread, milk, coal, and such other commodities as may be thought desirable within the limits of the municipality, and to engage in distribution, or to grant exclusive licenses to private individuals for specific localities and periods at fixed prices, or a fixed percentage of profit on cost to be agreed upon.

(4) To conduct municipal bakeries.

(5) To appoint commissioners of enquiry with statutory powers to require the presence of witnesses to give evidence, the production of books and correspondence between retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers and vice versa; such evidence to be taken in camera, if the commissioners decide the protection of legitimate private interests necessitates the same, otherwise in public.

This Council further suggests that, in the event of such legislation being enacted, your Council should take into its serious consideration the advisability of acting, without delay, in conformity with the powers conferred upon it.

This Council makes, and presses upon the attention of your Honorable body, a further suggestion. The immediate application to the public advantage of the other suggestions is unfortunately, not within the competence of the City Council. The same are subject to the federal government according to representations

SISTERS THREE

Audrey assented and made no protestations. She saw the wisdom of deliberation. Nevertheless when she made Mrs. Lebreton adieu at the low or gate of the plantation, from which the tricky lock had been removed, they both felt that the question had been practically settled and that in the future they would be more to each other than once they could ever have guessed.

It was Gaston, who brought to Gipsy a piece of news which she heard with a sense of intense relief. Morwenna and her father had disappeared, taking with them all their goods and chattels and also the boat in which Gaston had sent the girl home.

"I call that a stroke of genius!" he said, laughing. "I really admire that! Wotan came home whining and restless, trying to tell me that something was wrong and to get me to come. But I had my head full of other things. Perhaps you can guess what they were. I had my mother to tell Gipsy that was a very happy moment, for, as you know now, it was just what that wily old person had set her heart upon, and we had never guessed it, had we? Well, the next morning I went down to see old Gull. I wanted to tell him what his girl had been up to and that I must give notice to the police about the assault. Also there was my boat to get back. Jim Kildare met me on the rocks and was laughing. 'They're gone!' he said. 'What?' cried I. Then he took me to the cave and showed me. Everything had been taken away. An old lobster-fisher pottering round the bay told us that with moon-rising last night and a wind off shore, the Gulls had sailed away in two boats. 'I thought as the one the maid was in had a look of yours,' he said, and they seemed to be standing straight out to sea, in the direction of the Breton coast. They have some acquaintance with the fisher-folk there. Once the man spent a few years of his life over there, I'm pretty well certain that they have betaken themselves across there and that we shall see them no more."

"Oh, Gaston, I am glad—I am very, very glad! It is such a detestable feeling to be afraid. I was never a coward before, but I feel I have it in me to be one now."

"It is not conscience that makes cowards of us all!" asked Gaston. "What sin have you been committing Gipsy?"

"I've been falling in love with you, sir," she answered saucily; "that's all I have on my conscience! And I think that there's another thing that makes cowards of people besides conscience, and that is called love!"

Miss Willoughby insisted upon being asked to the double wedding. She was the only guest, at Sunset Craig, and she was a very welcome one.

In the stables a magnificent hunter pawed the straw of his loose box, and Jim brought Allardyce to see him, his face alight with the pride and joy of possession.

"Isn't he a beauty? The kind you don't meet more than a few times in your life! Look at his head, his shoulders, his quarters! Leap! I believe you—jump anything you put him at! And a pedigree as long as your arm! A weight-carrier too, if I put on flesh with happiness, as people say you are apt to do! And he was Miss Willoughby's gift! She sent a brief note to say the horse was coming, and added a few words of congratulation and good wishes. Allardyce, he is making love to you already. I shall be jealous."

"Yes, dearest. He is so beautiful. I'm not sure that I can say the same of you."

"Well, I only want to be good enough for you sweetheart—you have beauty enough for the pair of us! That vision of joy and hope of which my dear old dad speaks—counting out of the east in the dawn of the day—and bringing the promised help with you!"

"I often think of those words, Jim the first I ever heard your father speak. It was Morwenna's mother who spoke them, was it not?"

"Yes, a little before she died. She was a strange woman, and my foster-mother. I was very fond of her. She seemed to have a sort of second sight. I remember her telling me when I was quite a little chap that I had some very dark days to go through, but that I was to keep up my heart. They would not last over long, and the end would come suddenly."

"And you remembered that—when it happened?"

"I often thought of it, and it kept me up a job. And at the last it came true. She used to say something to me about a star that would rise in my sky, and that I should be stronger and better for having passed through the cloud. Allardyce, that is true; I know it. It has brought me more than years of unselfish happiness and prosperity. And now my star has risen, and help and joy have come out of the east, and our golden day has come!"

Joy-bells are in the air; the sunshine lies softly golden over the land; white autumn anemones, Michaelmas daisies, and outdoor chrysanthemums strew the churchyard path.

The little church is crowded to its utmost capacity. Madame Lebreton, her heavy widow's weeds changed for simple black silk, leans upon the arm of General Kildare, and those two worn old faces are almost as radiantly happy and content as those of the young brides and the stalwart bridesgrooms plighting their troth before the altar.

There is more clash of bells, accompanied by the clamour of eager voices outside the little church, followed by the wedding-party as it winds its way up through the plantation path towards the house on Sunset Craig.

"I don't reckon there want be no more trouble with that their right o' way!" says one old gaffer to his wife.

The sunset lights are very bright as the sisters three exchange close embraces and the brides drive away. Audrey moves away by herself to a point from which a glimpse of the road can be seen, and she watches the occupants for a moment the carriages flash into sight and are gone again.

Then she turns her eyes towards the glowing west, and watches the pageant of the heavens through a prismatic mist.

But as Madame Lebreton approaches slowly she turns with her own brightly humorous smile.

"After all, I am not sure that I am not going to have the best of it! My own home, my own independence, my own way! Besides that, Sunrise Reef and Gaston's Keep and Sunset Craig all form points of a triangle or links in a chain—a chain which will not easily be broken. For, though two of them have left the nest and changed their names, we shall be friends and neighbors as well as Sisters Three to the end of the chapter!"

The End.

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GO GRAY

She Kept Her Locks Dark and Glossy, with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home, is messy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge, or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is not a medicine, it is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

SCHOOL HYGIENE AND SANITATION.

FUMIGATION of school rooms is usually done by means of the fumes of sulphur or formaldehyde. It is doubtful if, done in the haphazard way it is usually carried out, it is worth the expense. Lots of children get infection of one kind or another in school, but it is not the atmosphere of an "infected school-room" but the mild and unrecognized cases of communicable disease which spread the disease by contact infection among the children. It is often found that after great pains and expense have been taken to disinfect school-rooms that fresh cases appear, as if no precautions had been taken.

The best safe-guards are cleanliness and the simple use of disinfectants. The objects in the school-room which are frequently handled, such as door-knobs, railings, gymnastic apparatus, toilet fixtures, etc., should be thoroughly cleaned once a week and gone over every morning with a cloth wet in (1-40) formaldehyde solution. Water-tension, cresol solution, or weak carbolic solution. Water-tension, cresol solution, or weak carbolic solution. Water-tension, cresol solution, or weak carbolic solution.

WHAT SHOULD BE DONE

Do not spit if you can help it. Never spit on a slate, floor, or sidewalk. Do not put the fingers into the mouth. Do not pick the nose or wipe the nose on the hand or sleeve. Do not wet the fingers in the mouth when turning the leaves of a book. Do not put pencils in the mouth or wet them with the lips. Do not put pins in the mouth. Do not put anything into the mouth except food and drink. Do not swap apple-cores, candy, chewing gum, half-eaten food, whistles, toys, or anything that is put into the mouth. Never cough or sneeze in a person's face, turn your face to one side. Keep your face and hands clean. Wash your hands with soap and water before each meal.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS VS. OTHER COMMUNICABLE DISEASES.

Great catastrophes have great lessons, and the greater the catastrophe the greater the lesson. Immediately after a railroad disaster, a shipwreck, or a sensational fire in which lives are lost the public demand that action be taken to prevent the recurrence of similar accidents in the future. While this is quite proper, it is essentially important that a broad application of the lesson should be learned, but it is seldom done. The suburban railway accident at Queenston last year, the loss of the great vessels the Empress of Ireland and the Titanic, all contributing to greater or lesser loss of life, resulted only in guarding against an identical form of accident in the future.

The same holds true in respect to infantile paralysis which has been the cause of excitement almost approaching panic in some parts of the United States and in portions of this country, though happily we have escaped with about the seasonal average number of cases. Stringent measures were taken by our neighbours to check the outbreak in New York and other cities, and the Provincial Health authorities have been on the alert against any similar epidemic in Ontario. But the incidence of infantile paralysis with its death rate is trifling compared with the results from other diseases in regard to which the public is apathetic. In December of last year there were over 3,000 cases of measles in Toronto alone, and the outbreak spread all over Ontario. Measles causes more deaths annually than does infantile paralysis; so do diphtheria, scarlet fever, and tuberculosis. It is a pity our people do not get a little more panicky about some or all of the last-named diseases; they are always with us, and cut short each year the career of many promising lives.

citizens. They live amongst us and many of them attach considerable importance to the quality of the moral sense the public believe they entertain. They are, therefore, in a large measure subject to public opinion, and the presence of public sentiment. This Council consequently suggests that your Honorable body should nominate a permanent commission of enquiry into the cost of living, consisting proportionately of members of the City Council, the Trades and Labour Council and the Board of Trade; that milk and coal dealers, bread producers and such other contributors of necessities as the Commission may, from time to time, decide upon, be invited to attend before such Commission and establish to its satisfaction that recent increases have, in fact, been justified; that, on every occasion of a further advance, evidence of its necessity be invited by such Commission, and that the findings of the Commission, and, if thought desirable, the evidence, be published in the local press.

All of which is respectfully submitted, and the presence of the Brantford Trades and Labour Council this eighth day of November, 1916.

PETER NOBLE, President.

B. E. PEARCEY, Secretary.

Meeting of the "High Cost of Living Committee" was held in the small hall, November 5th, 1916. The causes and effect of which were discussed at some length, then, the outcome of which resulted in a resolution being moved by Delegate Pearcey, seconded by Delegate Noble, that the proposed letter here attached addressed to His Worship, the Mayor, be recommended for adoption by the Trades and Labour Council.

The Committee then adjourned. DEL. BROWN, Sec. of Committee.

Signed, Delegates Noble, Symonds, Pearcey, Brown.

Mr. Symonds stated that he knew on good authority that some local bakers were selling bread in bulk and weight, and thus escaping the vigilance of city officials through their laxness.

Mr. Harper declared that if the local council refused to take action, that the labour organizations take the matter into their own hands and send out agents to secure produce for the benefit of the labouring people, and that a very capable review of the situation and advised the above remedies.
