Vittoria Citizens Spend Day Holidaying In Fisher's Glen

FARM HELP TO BE HAD Work on Broken Trunk Sewer Continued; Fresh Excavations

Write Simcoe Agency Box 311 or phone 356-3 all matters regarding delivery or subscriptions; News items or advertisements.

Simcoe, Aug. 17.—(From our own correspondent) Yesterday would have been a great day for burglars at Vittoria, the village emptied itself of its population and the citizens spent a gala day at Fisher's Glen, accompanied by many from the rural vicinity.

The advance guard were down before the campers had got squared away after a late breakfast, and others followed till late in the afternoon and many chickens about Vittoria got their grain late last night. Cows bellowed long for the milk pail and forsaken canines wondered what it meant. It was the biggest day of the season at the Glen, and the quietest day of the year at Vittoria.

Pow-Wow To-night There will be a "pow-wow" at Fisher's to-night. Everyone in camp must do some stunt or come out in masquerade.

And there was a mighty pow-wow at "Glenholm" cottage last night. It happened this way. The tenants of this cottage purchased liberally from the surplus of provisions brought from Vittoria—there was enough brought down to do the whole picnic party a week, and only five-sevenths of it required—the provisions thus laid in disappeared mysteriously from the cottage shortly after dark, while the occupants were sky-larking. The cow-bell chorus of morning was coming on before the maidens and their chaperone left off the search for the lost provisions.

Farm Help Available Four young men from T. Eaton's came to town a few days ago and went to work on farms just out of town. After the first day in the open they slept soundly, were half an hour late getting round next morning and lost their job. They are willing to do their best, but yesterday were out of work, and in view of the fact that the local committee appointed by their own consent to put labour and employer in touch, is apparently quite dormant here, we give the matter publicity. Anyone wanting help on the farm may secure one or more of these young men at 85 Kent, or phone 15b. We give the matter publicity just to help things along.

Just a Little Rain. A light shower Wednesday morning and a sprinkle yesterday afternoon, have done a little to help matters, but a good rain would be a local blessing.

Odd Ends of News Bookish cheese factory closed two weeks ago. Farmers of the district are sending their milk to the Borden condenser at Norwich.

Kent Garvin of Hamilton laid this afternoon the tile setting at the new entrance to the Murdoch store. The gang on the broken trunk sewer were busy to-day constructing new piling to continue excavations.

Four recruits have been sent to the medical board at Hamilton this week by Trumpet Major Taylor of the C.M.R., who is recruiting on the Market Square. Arthur and James McCreary, father and son respectively, 85 Brighton Row, went before the board, and while the former was accepted for the A. M. C. the latter was rejected. Stanley Adrison Pickering, formerly of the 125th battalion, a married man residing at 13 George street, employed as a chauffeur and valet, and William Henry Barter, 91 Oak Street, born in Ely, Cardiff, Wales, in 1890, and employed as a lineaman, were the other two men who were sent to the barracks at Hamilton.

Police Courts Ten bicyclists contributed fines aggregating $22 in the police court this morning, for pedalling their two-wheeled dividers on the sidewalks of the city and county. Richard Johnson will appear again to-morrow in the county court, to answer a charge of conversion of grain from Barbalo Sarvacz.

Over a dozen lengths of tile have been found out of place, and it may be that, as the excavation is made, the quick sand may shift so that more tile at the ends of the excavation will get out of line. The condition of affairs after one week of work is not yet definitely known even to the engineer, and as Mr. Marston would not hazard an estimate as to the probable cost of putting matters to rights, any other conjecture would be premature.

THE FIRST LINE OF DEFENCE

Pure blood is the body's first line of defence against disease. Strong, healthy blood neutralizes the poisons of invading germs or destroy the germs themselves. That is why many people exposed to disease do not contract it. Those whose blood is weak and watery and therefore lacking in defensive power are most liable to infection. Everybody may observe that healthy, red-blooded people are less liable to colds and the grippe, than pale, bloodless people. It is the bloodless people who tire easily, who are short of breath at slight exertion, who have poor appetites, and who wake up in the morning as tired as when they went to bed. While women and girls chiefly suffer from bloodlessness the trouble also affects boys and men. It simply affects girls and women to a greater extent because there is a greater demand upon their blood supply.

To renew and build up the blood there is no remedy that can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They tone up the entire system, make the blood rich and red, feed and strengthen starving nerves, increase the appetite, put color into the cheeks, give refreshing sleep and drive away that unnatural tired feeling. Plenty of sunlight and wholesome food will do the rest.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Lesson VIII.—Third Quarter, For Aug. 19, 1917.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, II Chron. xxxiv, 14; 33—Memory Verse, 31—Golden Text, Ps. cxix, 16—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The first verse of our lesson, with the marginal reading, might indicate that the book they found was an original copy by the hand of Moses, but it might have been another copy, according to Deut. xvii, 18, 19; II Kings xi, 12; Josh. i, 8. It is sufficient to know that it was the Book of the Law of the Lord, which, when it was read to the king, caused him to rend his clothes and send to Huldah, the prophetess, to inquire of the Lord, through her, what they should do (xix, 22). This was in the eighteenth year of his reign (xxxiv, 8; xxv, 19), and Jeremiah began to prophesy when thirteen. Therefore why send to Huldah instead of to Jeremiah? Perhaps because Huldah was there in Jerusalem and Jeremiah was probably at Anathoth (II Kings xxii, 14; Jer. i, 1). It is interesting to notice in this connection the honor placed upon such women as Huldah and Deborah and Hannah and others and to remember that Mary of Bethany knew the Lord better in many ways than any of the other women or even than Peter and John. Some women seem to have keener eyes and ears and a more open heart for God than most men.

I often ask God to give me guidance through my dear wife, who walks so humbly with Him; then all goes well. Huldah had a good message for Josiah, because of his humility and tender heart, when he heard the words of the Lord, for, although God is the high and lofty one who inhabits eternity, whose name is holy, He has regard to the contrite and humble spirit that trembles at His word (Isa. lvii, 15, lvi, 2). Josiah called together all the people of Jerusalem, priests and Levites, and all the inhabitants, great and small, and read to them all the words of the book of the covenant that was found in the house of the Lord, and he promised with all his heart and with all his soul to perform the words of the covenant and caused all present to stand to it. And all the hearts of Josiah and of all that followed the Lord God of their fathers (verses 20-33).

The expression "with all his heart and with all his soul" (verse 31) reminds me of the only thing that I ever remember reading that God says He will do assuredly with His whole heart and with His whole soul, and that is place Israel in their own land and rejoice over them to do them good (Jer. xxxii, 41). According to Luke xxii, 15, 16, 29, 30, this will be at the time of the final fulfillment of the Passover, for the Passover marked the birth of the nation, and the fulfillment will be when they shall have their generation, never to be broken up again (Matt. xix, 28; Acts iii, 21). It was in the year that the book of the law was found (xxxiv, 8; xxxv, 19), that Josiah caused to be kept the greatest Passover in the history of Israel since the days of Samuel the prophet (xxxi, 18; II Kings xxiii, 22). It was written of Hezekiah that there was no king before him or after him who trusted in the Lord, his God, as he did, but it is written of Josiah that there was no king either before or after him who turned to the Lord with all his heart, and with all his soul and with all his might as he did (II Kings xviii, 6; xxiii, 15).

Hezekiah excelled in one way and Josiah in another, but the Lord noted each fully. We are reminded of the way the saints are spoken of by Paul—some succeeded others, some laid down their own necks for Paul's sake, some were helpers, some labored and some labored much, some were in Christ before him (Rom. xvii)—and thus it will be at the judgment seat of Christ, all services will be remembered and all manner of service and the special zeal of each one, and each will receive his own reward according to his own labor (I Cor. iii, 8). In connection with the passover always remember that it was the blood on the door that made the firstborn safe, but the blood and something else, but God said, "When I see the blood I will pass over you" (Ex. xii, 13). It was to be a lamb without blemish, and Christ our passover is the Lamb without blemish and without spot (Ex. xii, 5; I Cor. v, 7; I Pet. i, 19). The flesh of the lamb was to be roasted with fire and eaten with unleavened bread and bitter herbs (Ex. xii, 8), suggesting His sufferings and our fellowship with Him in sufferings, and as there was no leaven or evil in Him so we who are redeemed by His blood must put away all evil, as it is written, "Be ye holy, for I am holy." Eating the lamb did not add to nor increase their safety, but indicated fellowship, as He said, "He that eateth me shall live by me" (John vi, 57). If the firstborn, being under the blood that night, could not eat a bite of the lamb because of uncleanness or for any other reason that did not at all affect their safety, whether it was the house of an Israelite or an Egyptian on which the blood was there could be no death under that blood. The lamb was never too small for the household, but if the household was too little for the lamb they were to share it with their neighbors (Ex. xii, 4). And in the sight of God is not our neighbor any one with whom we can share the lamb, whether in foreign lands or on the same street with us?

Electric street lighting was introduced into Canada at the Canadian National Exhibition in 1892.

It Works! Try It

Tells how to loosen a sore, tender corn so it lifts out without pain.

Good news spreads rapidly and druggists here are kept busy dispensing freestone, the other discovery of a Cincinnati man, which is said to loosen any corn so it lifts with the fingers.

Ask at any pharmacy for a quarter ounce of freestone, which will cost very little, but is said to be sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You apply just a few drops on the tender, aching corn and instantly the soreness is relieved, and soon the corn is so shriveled that it lifts out without pain. It is a sticky substance which dries when applied and never inflames or even irritates the adjoining tissue.

THE SITUATION.

The fierce fighting which has been renewed in the neighborhood of Ypres has thus far resulted in favor of the Allies although the struggle still continues. The British and French forces have penetrated German front lines to a depth of from nine to eleven miles and the British have occupied Langemarck, which is situated close to a railway line. The French have also advanced and secured important positions. The foe put up a stubborn resistance and met with very heavy losses.

Stewart Lyon special correspondent of the Canadian Press at the front reports that "the taking of Hill 70 stirred the German higher command as nothing else has done on this front before." The enemy immediately after the loss of this important position made ten counter-attacks in order to recapture the hill but in each instance were repulsed by the valiant Canadians.

The retreat of the Roumanians and Russians continues on the Eastern front. Petrograd announces that the withdrawal is taking place for "strategic reasons" but "we regret to report" would be a far more apt description of the matter.

Lloyd George has made another of his encouraging speeches. He shows that food matters are in much better shape than at the same time last year with the pleasing fact added that there are a million more acres under cultivation in the Old Land. These things show conclusively that the German boast of starving John Bull has been relegated to the occupation of Paris class. The Premier also emphasized the undoubted fact that the Teuton power is growing weaker as that of the Allies advances.

General von Ardenne, the military critic of the Berlin Tageblatt warns the authorities in particular that they must defeat England as she "is the soul of hostile coalition on land." Why he didn't add the sea also, does not seem very clear and he could have secured some valuable pointers in that regard from the cooped up fleet in the Kiel canal. As a matter of fact she is the soul in both respects just as she was in the coalition which finally brought about the downfall of the great Napoleon.

PRaise FOR CANADA

Amid the carping and certain Canadian critics, who for contemptible party reasons, are continually seeking to depict the Borden Government as having miserably failed, both with reference to initiative and action in connection with the war, the warm tributes of impartial, outside observers, still continue.

Ex-President Roosevelt, in a recent speech said "Until the United States has placed five million men in the fighting line we will have no right to consider ourselves as standing level with Canada in this fight for democracy," at a reception given by the chamber of commerce to Elihu Root, special commissioner to Russia. He added, "Let us pull up abreast of our valiant cousins of the Dominion by placing American soldiers in masses on whichever front they are most needed, and let there be no slackening of our efforts until the cause for which our allies have been fighting for three years is won beyond peradventure."

Roosevelt has always shown himself to be a keen observer and all impartial critics will agree that his admiration for what the Dominion Government has accomplished is not one whit overstated.

AS QUEBEC THINKS.

At an anti-conscription meeting held recently in Montreal, Dr. Des Lauriers, who is expected to be a candidate in the coming Dominion election in St. Mary's division of that city, said during the course of a speech:

"The advantages for which the Canadian troops were fighting were the advantages that France, England, Russia, Roumania and Serbia would get, and there would be nothing for Canada. The constitution of 1867 calls on us to obey the King within the limits of our Constitution, and the day when the King wants to oppress us we have a right to resist."

Those who wanted conscription were vampires, millionaires, contractors, and the Daughters of the Empire, who had no husbands to defend them, whether because they were too wise or too foolish, the doctor did not know. Placards were being put up in Ontario stating: "Don't be afraid of conscription. Conscription is for Quebec."

When a professional man, who is supposed to have a trained intelligence, can utter such blatant falsehoods as the above, the amount of rubbish with which the habitants are loaded can well be imagined.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Hereafter those concerned who do not observe the meatless day order, will meet with the authorities.

Prince Frederick Lowenstein, in a recent address on "Germany's economic future and the German Peace" made the statement:

"Britain need only sell Canada to us in order to pay her war expenses and also the war indemnity due to Germany and her allies."

Well it isn't the Canadians who have been sold in the recent Lens operations, but the Huns who thought they could stack up against them.

To those Liberal conventions which are passing resolutions expressing confidence in the "old leader" and proclaiming that under him they are going to fight to victory, the words of Mr. W. A. Buchanan, Liberal M. P. for Medicine Hat, are commended. "The conscriptionist commended," he declares, "would support Sir Wilfrid Laurier gladly if he fathered a policy that would provide men, tax wealth heavily and fully organize the country for war winning. He doesn't give that lead and what are the Liberals who are in earnest about winning the war to do?"

It is announced that Canada's Great War Veterans Association now numbers a membership of 18,000. And every man jack of them has demonstrated his willingness to give his life for the Empire and human liberty.

Manitoba Liberals, who are dissatisfied with the machine manipulated gathering which recently took place in Winnipeg, are talking of holding a convention on their own account. They do not propose to stay misrepresented by the wire-pullers.

The clear cut and emphatic denial of Premier Borden with reference to the mischievous rumor that he and his associates were secretly working with the Nationalists of Quebec, served to effectively nail another campaign falsehood. The other fellows can have all of them they like, but they are absolutely tabooed as far as Sir Robert and his supporters are concerned.

Major James, after finishing his appointed task in connection with the School for the Blind, leaves the city to assume other Governmental duties. He has only been here a year, but in that period has certainly achieved remarkable improvements, and the departure of himself and family will be sincerely regretted by the many friends they have made during their sojourn here. The Major has long been an active figure in connection with Provincial matters, and before coming here he aided Hon. Dr. Pyne in the establishment of the military hospital at Orpington, England, in which regard, as always, he did excellent work. He will, without any doubt, again make good with reference to the enlarged sphere of duties to which he has now been assigned.

G. W. V. A. CELEBRATION. A big celebration is to be held in Brantford on Labor Day, Sept. 3rd, under the auspices of the G. W. V. A. Plans on a comprehensive scale have been arranged for the entertainment and the committee in charge of the affair promise one of the best holiday amusements that Brantford has yet enjoyed. In the morning there will be two ball games at Agricultural Park. In the afternoon sports will be held, and motorcycle races for which appropriate prizes will be offered. The feature of the afternoon will undoubtedly be the latter, of which there will be two, the two and five mile events. A hundred yard dash and bicycle races, open to all comers, will also prove a great attraction and should provide some interesting competition. There will also be the usual humorous event, such as catching the greasy pig and blindfold boxing. A grand military tattoo in the evening will conclude the celebration.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS
What was considered by County Constable William Taylor and other members of the police force as one of the worst cases of cruelty to animals ever brought to the attention of a court in Brant county, drew down the heavy penalty of a fine of $50 and costs of $9.30 in the afternoon court yesterday. The offender was Robert Hamilton, of the Burford Road. The penalty imposed was the maximum. Evidence showed that the animal had been prodded with a fork, severely whipped, worked when its shoulders were in a sore condition and otherwise badly treated. The defense was that the horse was balky at times, and that stringent measures were adopted to secure speed. A scathing reprimand, in addition to the heavy fine, was handed down from the bench by Magistrate Livingston, who roundly condemned the defendant for his cruel treatment of a dumb animal.

WAS BLUFFED OUT.
A unique souvenir of the great war has been sent back to friends in Hamilton, by Sergt. B. L. Landers, of the 10th C. R. T., former labor leader and editor, who conducted one of the most enthusiastic and energetic recruiting campaigns ever held in this city, in the interests of the 215th battalion last winter. An ace and four kings, the winning poker hand, was the unusual trophy collected by Sam in a raid on a German "bosches" evacuated so hurriedly that the winner had not time to place the excellent hand in his pocket for reference in another game. In a letter accompanying the cards, Sergt. Landers says, "Fritz is going to get it eventually, and good and plenty, too."

BOYS OF THE U. S. A.
Grim, bronzed and resolute, cheering and singing as the trails pulled out a squad of 85 of Uncle Sam's troops passed through Brantford this morning, en route for one of the eastern training camps. The squad, members of the U. S. Army Medical Corps, and in charge of Sergt. Murphy, pulled into the city shortly after nine thirty, in four cars, taking their departure a few moments later, richer by large donations of fruit and an American and a British flag, presented by officials of the Soldiers' Aid Commission and other civic organizations. The detachment consisted of Ald. J. S. Dow-the Dominion Railway Board, and widening the intersection of Colborne and Water Streets. He recently wrote a letter to the General Manager of the C. P. R., protesting against the inaction of the company, and threatening to again bring the matter to the attention of the Railway Commission, for redress. The letter was referred to M. L. Todd, Manager of the L. E. and N., who states that the deed plan in accordance with the order of the commission was prepared and placed in the hands of Mr. W. S. Brewster, then acting city solicitor. Mr. Brewster is at present absent from the city, and Manager Todd promises to proceed immediately with the work when the approval of Mr. Brewster is gained, upon his return to the city. This attempt to ignore the city has incensed his Honor greatly, and this afternoon he wrote a letter giving the Lake Erie and Northern one week to complete the work of tearing down the signboards and widening the street.

OH, PERCY.
"Who is my Boss?" was the startling question asked in a letter written to City Clerk Leonard and City Treasurer Bunnell by Percy Walsh, a coal dealer of the city. Mr. Walsh has been requested by Sanitary Inspector Glover to remove some noxious weeds from his premises. In reply, Mr. Walsh wrote the letter referred to above, stating that he could not secure men to do the work and asking the city to have the weeds cut and send the bill to him.

MET IN HOSPITAL.
Two Brantford boys, both in the Ramsgate Military Hospital, England, recently met and formed a firm friendship. Private George J. Harp, brother of Ald. Harp, was reported seriously wounded some weeks ago, and has spent the intervening time recovering from his wounds in Ramsgate. While there Private A. Wright, a member of the 125th Battalion was brought in and was so badly wounded that the amputation of his arm was necessary. The two veterans accidentally discovered that they were from the same city, and have whittled away many hours recalling scenes of mutual interest.

DUTY TO DEFEAT NATIONALISTS

No Political Power Should Be Exercised By The Quebec Party

OPPOSED BY PREMIER

Borden Makes Emphatic Denial of Any Connection With Them

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—"My attention has been drawn to the statement that the Nationalist party of the province of Quebec is about to put candidates in the field on its own behalf against Liberal and Conservative candidates," said Sir Robert Borden, in the Commons today, "and I am told the suggestion is being made that there is some collusion between the Nationalist party of the Province of Quebec and my Government, in regard to this campaign of the Nationalist party. The suggestion is also made that because the friends of the present Government and the Nationalist party both opposed Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the election of 1911, there is now some connection or collusion and that my supporters and friends are, in fact, encouraging the Nationalist party of Quebec in the course which they are adopting. I desire to make a most emphatic unreserved and comprehensive denial of this statement. There is not and never will be any connection or collusion whatever between my friends and supporters and those of the Nationalist party of Quebec. "I regard the attitude of the Nationalist party of Quebec in this war as unpatriotic, and I consider that it is the first duty of myself and my friends to assist in defeating that party, and to prevent it, so far as we are able, from being in a position to exercise any political power in Canada." (Government cheers).

ITALY MAKING RAPID STRIDES IN AVIATION

Takes To Science of Aerial Warfare; Does Brilliant Work

(By Percival Gibbon)

Italian Headquarters, Aug. 16.—Italy has taken to the air like a duck to water. Aviation is becoming a national industry. For instance, yesterday morning's Milan papers were on sale in the little town where the staff has its home seven hours before they could arrive by train, having been freighted thither by a great Caproni, which recently took part in the bombing of Pola. Several aeroplane mails are running on various routes in Italy, with fair regularity, while at the same time aerial warfare is spreading, developing and becoming more characteristic of the fighting on this fantastic front.

I had the talk with the aviator who brought the newspapers and asked him regarding the damage in Pola, which he has actually seen. He recalled that he saw many fires which he ascribed to various localities and establishments of the dockyards, but was also personally convinced that two Austrian submarines were struck and sunk, while a number of other ships were hit and damaged or set on fire. He said the Austrians were plentifully supplied with fast fighting machines, but rarely engaged in an aerial duel if able to avoid it.

He gave me a brilliant impromptu word-picture of the scene as he looked down on Pola, showing not only the darkness with a shifting tangle of searchlights sprouting from it, and sun flashes of anti-aircraft artillery lighting it up in momentary illuminations. The last he saw as he turned homeward, was a silhouette of the town against flames and the red glow of burning buildings wonderfully reflected in the waters of the Adriatic.

Is there a craving for more of what is called emotionalism in the Presbyterian and the Episcopalian communions? asks the Brooklyn Eagle. Dignity and scholarship in preaching characterize both. But energy in using modern methods of bringing people in from the "highways and hedges" is not neglected by Presbyterians and is approved by the best Episcopalian custom.

As for revival movements, Presbyterians familiar with church history in the United States will recall the earliest experience of Jonathan Edwards in analyzing the results of such movements. The future president of Princeton and premier of Presbyterian theology was for a long series of years pastor of the Congregational church at Northampton. The great revival of 1740-42 brought into the church nearly every adult citizen. In 1744, the pastor decided that the church was "a company of saints by calling among whom there should be permitted to enter nothing that was not clean." He wanted to throw out such persons as had yielded to revival excitement, but had not to their vows. But some of these persons had great influence in the community, and the form of church government was Congregational. Hence came a very long controversy, ending in the dismissal of Edwards from the pastorate on June 22, 1750. Hence also came Edwards' letter to a Scotch correspondent approving Presbyterianism as opposed to that of the Congregationalists. The latter made it possible for a majority of a congregation to dismiss a pastor, precisely what had happened at Northampton.

Obituary

PHYLLIS TRUMPER

The death occurred last night of Phyllis Trumper, aged three months, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Trumper, 254 Chatham St. The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon to Mt. Hope cemetery.

The death took place at the residence of Mr. A. B. Evans, 156 Rawdon St., of Annie Lee, widow of the late Robert Gardner, and aunt of Mrs. Evans, deceased, who had attained the ripe age of 86 years, was a native of Ireland, and came to this country as a young girl. At the time of her husband's death, she resided in Rockland, and had since lived in Ottawa and Brantford. She was a member of Zion church, and of fine Christian character.

HENRY RUSH

Heart trouble, from which he had suffered for a number of years, caused the sudden death of Henry Rush, a civic employee, as he was walking up Terrace Hill last evening on his way to his home on Charing Cross Road. The unfortunate man was sixty eight years of age, and was employed as a teamster by the works department of the city. He had been a sufferer from heart trouble for a number of years, and the extra exertion of climbing the steep hill leading to his home, was responsible for the strain on his heart, that resulted in death. He was alone at the time, and fell on the sidewalk, death being almost instantaneous. Coroner Fissett was summoned, but deeming an inquest unnecessary, had the body removed to Pierce's undertaking parlors, from where the funeral will take place to Mt. Hope cemetery on Sunday afternoon.

The late Mr. Rush is survived by a widow and grown up family, who will share in the condolences of a large circle of friends.

On only one occasion was the Canadian National Exhibition opened by a woman, Lady Kirkpatrick performing that function in 1897.

CHOLERA INFANTUM

Cholera Infantum is one of the fatal ailments of childhood. It is a trouble that comes on suddenly, especially during the summer months and unless prompt action is taken the little one may soon be beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets are an ideal medicine in warding off this trouble. They regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus prevent all the dreaded stomach complaints. Concerning them, Mrs. Fred Rose, South Bay, Ont., says: "I feel Baby's Own Tablets saved the life of our baby when she had cholera infantum, and I would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The butter-making competitions at the Canadian National Exhibition were introduced in 1889, and are modelled after those at the dairy shows in Great Britain.

The Canadian National Exhibition introduced prohibition to its grounds in 1885. Previous to that ales and beers were sold freely.

Bargains! For The Balance of This Week

An American attempt to imitate these tactics in a raid on Venice finished in disaster. It is still uncertain how many machines were destroyed by the Italian airmen and guns, but two flyers were brought down and captured, with a Colonel and a Major. Two other prisoners were also captured alive and two recovered dead, when their machines were seen to fall in flames.

The Italians promptly initiated a reprisal raid, shelling the coast and a squadron of Austrian destroyers, at least one of which appears to have been hit. Again the Italian machines returned undamaged.

CANADIANS PROGRESS AT LENS-- LANGEMARCK TAKEN BY BRITISH

Over Two Thousand Prisoners Taken By Entente Forces In Latest Drive; Heavy Losses Inflicted On Foe Counter-Attacks

Langemarck is a village in the famous Ypres salient, both on a highroad and railway from Ypres to Thourout. It was a peaceful village, situated in the dull, monotonous plains of Flanders, and the horrors of war first broke over it in the fall of 1914, during the first battle of Ypres. On that fatal April evening of two years ago, Langemarck was directly east of the left wing of the Canadian line, and in it were bulked several battalions in reserve.

To the amazed Canadians in this little village, late in the evening of April 22, 1915, came probably the first intimation of the enemy use of gas in warfare. The fumes were borne to them by fleeing Furens, panic-stricken by a fear not human, their faces covered by the effects of the gas, scarcely able to gasp out the tale of this new murder by the Hun. The whole world knows how the Canadians met the new device, and the fatal breach in the line to the left of them, and of the valiant, dogged struggle they waged that saved Ypres, Calais and the rest of Belgium.

Now Langemarck has been retaken. Then flesh and blood fought machinery; to-day Britain, in equipment, out distances the German. Between the losing and the taking of it represents the patient, determined preparation of an Empire to beat to its knees a nation that knows no law of man or of God. It must afford peculiar satisfaction to the stalwart men, who remember that three days, two years ago when they went into the Valley of the Shadow of Death for England's sake, to hear that the great tide of the Might, of Right, never again to recede, has avenged signally their comrades in death.

London, Aug. 17.—The British made further progress east of Loos, in the Lens area yesterday morning. Sir Douglas Haig announces in his official report, and the total of prisoners captured there has now reached a total of 896, including 22 officers.

Perry Robinson, in a despatch to the Times from British headquarters in France, describing the Canadian advance on Wednesday, says the prisoners taken consist chiefly of Bavarians and Prussians. In some places the Germans fought stubbornly, but in others the Canadians complained bitterly of the speed with which the enemy evacuated positions and ran. There was some variation in the German artillery reply, which, though nowhere fast or very serious, was quick at resting to work in some areas and slow in others. The spirit and determination of the Canadians was admirable. Nothing could exceed the gaiety and confidence of the wounded as they came back. Throughout the morning there has been intense aerial activity over the battlefield. German airmen attempting to interfere with our observation aeroplanes are immediately punished by our fighting machines. The Germans show a definite determination to hold the remaining position of the shell-wrecked city of Lens as long as possible. From its nature it was too formidable a position to attempt to take by massed attacks, so for the last four months we have been slowly eating our way into its defences.

Wednesday morning's advance marks a considerable step towards the final capture of the city. The weather continues unsettled, and for the most part fine, but cool, with occasional showers, which prevent the ground drying and increase the difficulties of attack.

British Headquarters in France.

allied forces unable to make progress. The Germans recoiled stubbornly, suffering heavy losses, but on the greater part of the front they were forced to leave valuable positions in the possession of the allies.

Before the fighting between Lens and Loos had died out, the French and British moved forward north of the Ypres-Menin road. Throughout Thursday bitter fighting continued. On the left the French occupied the centre and right of the attacking line. In the centre the British early gained their first objectives, and then established themselves in Langemarck. Continuing their attack, they advanced a half-mile beyond the village, gaining a trench system which was the final objective of the day.

On the right flank the German resistance was most desperate. Early in the day the British drove the Germans back, but numerous counter-attacks, in which they suffered severely enabled the Germans to regain lost ground.

Although Berlin says the allied attack in Flanders has been forced back with heavy losses, it admits French and British gains at Drietrachten, on the Yser canal, and near Langemarck. These are the places where London officially says the French and British fighters in France.

Aug. 17.—The Canadians are holding strongly Hill 70 and all the other positions which they wrested from the Germans about Lens yesterday, after having beaten off ten furious counter-attacks, in which the enemy suffered heavy casualties. The last German counter-attack of the night occurred at half past 9 o'clock and yesterday morning comparative quiet reigned in this sector, giving the British a chance to consolidate their new lines.

The checking up of the British casualties yesterday morning indicates that they had been moderate. The German counter-attacks were most determined and resulted in fierce hand-to-hand fighting among the wrecked buildings in the suburbs of Lens. Following their usual methods, the Germans hurled their men into the combat without apparent thought of the cost of life, and the result was most disastrous.

Among the heaviest sufferers were the fourth division of the Prussian Guard, who were sent into the battle to endeavor to regain lost positions. These famous troops advanced in columns of fours and immediately punished by a concentrated machine-gun fire, which mowed them down in large numbers.

Wave after wave of the Guardsmen were sent into the terrific hail of death, and each succeeding wave met the fate of the former until virtually the entire division had been annihilated.

London, Aug. 17.—Again the great Anglo-French machine has struck the Germans in Flanders, and again it has been successful. The village of Langemarck and other important positions were captured.

More than 1,800 prisoners, including 38 officers, already have been counted by the Anglo-French forces. Some German guns also were taken. The latest blow in the Ypres area was on a front of nine miles, and only on the extreme right were the

MIRACULOUS CARE AT BEAUPRE SHRINE

Montreal Man Completely Healed of Injury to the Leg

By Courier Lensed Wire.
Quebec, Aug. 17.—Weeping with joy, walking quite freely on a leg that was diseased and in sixteen months had become a mass of rotting flesh, Edmund Bouchard, 39, married, of 404 Allard street, Emdard ward, Montreal, returned to Quebec yesterday evening from Ste. Anne de Beaupre, using his sick leg, after having left his crutches at the foot of the stairs of the miraculous saint. To the Canadian Press, Mr. Bouchard yesterday evening related his story. He is a cement polisher at the Canada Car Works, and sixteen months ago sustained a double fracture of the right leg through a one thousand pound brace for the Mallesonneuve dry dock falling on him. He says he underwent operations, both at the Western and at the Notre Dame Hospitals, and was under the care of the best specialists in Montreal. He says that at the last operation, he underwent, his ankle bone was removed, and that he was five months with his leg stretched on a chair.

All the officers and deck hands on the Canada Lines Steamer Quebec testify to having seen Mr. Bouchard coming on board from Montreal, walking miserably on his crutches, and that yesterday evening he came back aboard without his crutches, and walking quite freely on his sick leg. Mr. Bouchard left yesterday for his home in Montreal.

FOOD STOCKS IN OLD LAND ON INCREASE

England In No Fear Of Starvation From U-Boat Campaign

FEWER SHIPS LOST Another Million Acres of Land In Britain Under Cultivation

London, August 17.—Premier Lloyd George, speaking in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon said that this time last year the wheat in this country amounted to 6,480,000 quarters and that now it is 8,500,000 quarters. The stock of oats and barley, he declared, also was higher.

There had been a considerable saving in bread consumption, the Premier said, and owing to the closer milling and food economy there had been an addition to the wheat stock of 70,000 quarters per week. (A quarter is equivalent to 480 pounds).

Mr. Lloyd George said the acreage under cultivation showed an increase of one million acres. If the harvest weather was good the condition of food supplies was very satisfactory. The Premier added that there had been an increase in the sugar reserve.

The Government has come to the conclusion, Premier Lloyd George said, "that with reasonable economy there is no chance of starving England out."

The Admiralty plans for dealing with submarines has been increasingly successful. Losses Decrease
The Premier said that in the single months of April, 560,000 gross tons of shipping were lost through U-boat submarines. In June the tonnage lost went down to 320,000 gross tons. This month there was a substantial improvement over that of July.

The net losses since the commencement of Germany's unrestricted submarine warfare were under 250,000 tons a month. He said that in the first six months of this year the new tonnage built was 484,000, while in the last six months, including purchases, the net tonnage would be 1,424,000.

He also said that a considerable addition had been made in the programme of naval construction. With the cooperation of America the Premier said there would be sufficient tonnage for all of 1918, and if necessary, 1919. Although tonnage had decreased during the last year, he added, more goods had been carried from overseas.

Must Be Told Truth
The Premier said he agreed that the people of the country were all the better for being told even unpalatable truths, but they also must be told the truth even if it was palatable. They could not exercise reasonable judgment or come to decisions regarding facts unless both the cheery and discouraging views were presented to them.

Premier Lloyd George said he proposed to deal with the food situation, and submarines because special efforts were being made to create an impression not justified in the least by the facts. Earlier in the year he had called attention to the very anxious condition of the food supplies. Since then, owing largely to the energetic efforts of Baron Devonport, the former food controller, and organization by the Shipping Controller, the situation had improved considerably.

MAJORITY OF TWENTY FOUR ON PURCHASE OF THE C.N.R.

Proposal to Take Over Endorsed by House of Commons; Mackenzie and Mann Attacked by Bennett of Cal- gary

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—The C.N.R. purchase proposal was endorsed by the Commons yesterday by a majority of 24. By a vote of 67 to 43 the House turned down the amendment of Hon. George P. Graham calling for foreclosure on the C.N.R. stock without an allowance for the equity of redemption. On the same division the measure embodying the government's plan to purchase the outstanding 600,000 shares of stock on valuation to be fixed by arbitration was given second reading, and the House went into committee on the provisions of the bill. The vote was practically a straight party division, the only desertion from party ranks being that of Albert Champagne, Liberal member for Battledore, who voted with the Government.

The feature of the closing day of the debate was the onslaught made by R. B. Bennett of Calgary, upon Mackenzie and Mann, and upon certain provisions of the government's measure. While not an out-and-out opponent, Mr. Bennett was evidently not in sympathy with the course followed. While he differed positively with the Opposition in their demand for foreclosure without arbitration, he held to the view that the government should have foreclosed under the legislation of 1914 and then arbitrated as to the value of the equity. But his most vigorous protest was against framing legislation that would not absolutely shut the way to any arbitration that accepted as the basis of value the reproduction cost of the C.N.R. system at war time prices.

Arraigned Mackenzie and Mann by a scathing arraignment of the Mackenzie and Mann influence. In the course of his condemnation he declared that they "had corrupted the public morals of the country."

If both parties were to tell the tale of their contributions to party funds it would be an enlightening and revealing story," he declared. "If it costs us millions to be rid of these men from the public life of the country it will be cheap."

Mr. Bennett was answered by Hon. Arthur Meighen. The Solicitor-General was not impressed by the argument that Mackenzie and Mann would, in arbitration under the bill as it stands, be able to put forward the reproduction costs of the road as the basis of stock value. While the value of the road would be an element it would not be a determining one, and value would be fixed more from the standpoint of the shrewd investor weighing present and potential earning power.

The Opposition proposals, Mr. Meighen summed up as "procrastination, expropriation and confiscation." If the Government followed the course suggested by the Graham amendment it would mean a sale on the C. P. R., and the chief bidder would be the C. P. R.

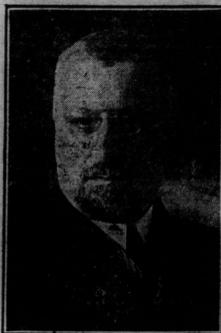

W. F. Nickle of Kingston supported the government's proposal, though he thought Mr. Bennett's caution with regard to the method of determining "value" in the arbitration proceedings was worthy of consideration.

ITALY APPEALS TO CANADA IN RED CROSS CAMPAIGN

Goal of $100,000 Set for Southern and Western Ontario District.

Chevalier L. Zunini, Royal Italian Consul- General, to Handle Fund.

Italy's magnificent fight in the Alpine mountains of Austria is costing hundreds of thousands of brave Italian soldiers' lives. An appeal is now being made by the heroes, sponsored by the youthful Crown Prince Umberto di Savoia, to meet pressing needs.

Government of Italy to the people of Canada through Chevalier L. Zunini, Royal Italian Consul-General, Montreal, for the Italian Red Cross and orphans of her fallen

In answer to this appeal, Southern and Western Ontario have fixed a goal of $100,000 to be raised by popular subscription during August and September. Royal Italian Consul-General Giovanni Danovaro at Welland has been appointed official representative of the Italian Red Cross in this division. L. P. Shumway and L. Porter Hoopes, of the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. of the United States, and associated with the War Council, American Red Cross during its recent successful drive for $100,000,000 in the United States, officially represent the Italian Red Cross as divisional directors and campaign organizers. Their headquarters are at Brantford.

Through Colonel Noel Marshall, chairman of the Canadian Red Cross Committee, the Canadian Red Cross has pledged its support, and that of all local units is asked for the Italian Red Cross campaign. "Every dollar that is given will make its bond between Italy and Canada. Let us show our Italian friends within our borders that we hold in grateful regard the land that gave them birth; that we appreciate her tremendous sacrifices. In the great cause for which we fight, and that we cannot regard with indifference her noble contribution to the success that is yet to be ours and hers," is a recent editorial comment on the Italian Red Cross campaign in Canada.

PEACE PROPOSALS

"Is it possible that the Central Powers will consent to make peace, imposing upon them such sacrifices and obliging them to pronounce, as Lloyd George said the word 'restoration,'" asks Le Corriere d'Italia. The Giornale d'Italia says the Central Empire will now be obliged to announce their conditions of peace, which the Pope will communicate to the allies. An important feature of the papal note is that it is the first document of the Holy See addressed to the Italian Government since the fall of temporal power. It is the first document asking Austria to evacuate Italian territories after the note of Pious IX addressed to the emperor of Austria in 1848, advising him to return Italian provinces. The Giornale d'Italia expressed the hope that the voice of the Pope urging peace will be accompanied by the sound of the cannon of the allies from Flanders to the Gulf of Trieste, attacking the enemy with renewed ardor.

Well Met in Germany. Copenhagen, Aug. 17.—The Pope's peace proposals, according to a Berlin despatch, seems to have had a friendly reception in the leading circles in Germany, having fallen on carefully prepared ground. Several of the newspapers report that the Pontiff had sounded out both belligerent groups in advance and intimated to their readers that the Entente therefore probably in sympathy with his mediation. The Roman Catholic organ Germania insists that the step was of such sweeping importance that it is impossible that it was taken without the Vatican first getting in touch with both groups of the warring factions. The newspaper pretends to know that the note contains one material point missing from the published summary, namely, a pre-war economic rapprochement.

The Vorwaerts refers in connection with the Pope's peace offer to current rumors of a conference of financiers of the belligerent powers, which was held in Switzerland. It says the German public is entitled to full information regarding the conference and demands a statement from Dr. Karl Helfferich, the vice-chancellor, who as a former secretary of the imperial treasury, presumably had knowledge of it.

The Cologne Volkszeitung, the organ of the pan-German wing of the Catholic party, is in an unfortunate position by reason of the note. This,

BRITAIN SOUL OF THE ALLIES

Must Be Defeated On Land, Says German Military Critic

Copenhagen, Aug. 16.—Gen. von Ardenne, military critic of The Berlin Tageblatt, warns the German military leaders that they must bestir themselves to find some strategic or tactical means of winning a decisive victory on the Western front, and of defeating Britain, the soul of the hostile coalition, on land. Otherwise, he says there is no hope of bringing the war to an honorable end for Germany. German leadership, Gen. Ardenne maintains, always has been able to direct the campaign into new courses when stagnation threatened, and he adds that the Germans are entitled to believe methods will be found to force mighty Britain through battles on land to seek peace. The military critic intimates this might be done by an attempt to overwhelm the French army which he assumes, is weakened and discouraged, before the arrival of American assistance, which, he says, would leave Britain isolated.

Evers Tells How he Shifted to the Phillies

Advised By Stallings, He Says, Famous Umpire Baiter Pleas With Change; T Hinks Phillies in Running

Johnnie Evers thus discusses his latest move in major company: "Well, I am here at Philadelphia. I wouldn't have believed it if anybody had told me a month ago, but strange things happen in baseball. When I was appointed manager of the Cubs I was sure that I would finish my days in the big leagues in the city where I began. And then I went to Boston. "After," I said to myself, "I am sure of the future. I have a long time contract which will prevent the owners from trading or selling me even if they want to. It is a cinch. I will play as long as I can in Boston." "I was satisfied. Boston is a great baseball town. And I will say that the people in Boston and the writers have treated me wonderfully well during my stay there and I was sorry to leave.

Satisfied with Phils. All that was a month ago. Now I am in Philadelphia and trying to get acclimated to new surroundings. Not that I don't like Philadelphia, for I do. I always liked Philadelphia. The fellows on the club are all fine fellows and the club is strong and a first-class pennant contender. So I have no earthly excuse for not feeling satisfied.

It was the second week in July that Stallings came to me and broached the subject of a transfer to Philadelphia. He told me that Moran wanted to get me and he thought it would be to my best interests if I went. The Phillies looked like a strong pennant prospect. And of course there were other reasons.

I told him I couldn't decide so important a matter as that in ten minutes. So he asked me if I would see Percy Haughton and talk the thing over. I told him I would be willing to see Haughton any time. So I saw him that very day. He explained the situation to me and wanted me to go to see Moran at once. I told him I couldn't do that, but I would think it over and very likely go to see Moran the next day. That was the way we left the matter.

I wasn't at all anxious to break up my plans in that sudden way. But at the same time it was never my wish to stay where I wasn't wanted, and if the club had reasons for wishing me to go to Philadelphia that was enough for me. So the next night I went to see Moran. I didn't disguise anything from him. I told him my arm had been in bad shape, which was no secret. I also told him I thought I could play quite a few games of ball for him and would guarantee to do my best. But I wanted it understood that I was not going out after any man's job. I didn't want any hard feelings on Niehoff's part. I am an old player, on the brink of the end; and pretty soon somebody will be getting my job. Certainly I am too old to go out competing with much younger men and trying to get their places away from them. Niehoff is a fine fellow and we are perfectly friendly, which is only proper.

I suppose the Boston owners think I have been getting a good thing out of them for some years. True, I haven't been able to play as I expected when I signed my long time contract. But I guess everyone will admit that it hasn't been my fault. I would much rather be out there every game of the season than to be crippled up and helpless as I have been much of the time the past year.

Refused Fed Contract. It is true that I had a good contract with Boston. But it is also true that they wanted me at the price or they wouldn't have paid me. Contracts are made usually for the very purpose of guarding against changed conditions which may make it desirable for one party or the other to dissolve the agreement. In the present case it was my own sickness and inability to play the ball I expected to play which made my contract un-

Expositor Won Five Inning Game In Drizzle Yesterday Afternoon

It happened. Accidents will happen, even in the best regulated families or family journals. In a five inning encounter, played in a drizzle of rain, on a swampy field, and in semi-darkness, the Expositor aggregation of ball tossers were yesterday afternoon lucky enough to emerge victorious from a tussle with the Courier men, by score of 11 to 8.

The clash could not be counted a game, for numerous reasons; its length—and it was The Expositor—who saw to that—the weather conditions, and the muddy field, combined to prevent any exhibition of skill and ability, and the encounter became one of heads or tails luck, with plenty of breaks upon both sides, the Expositor winning slightly. The clash could not be counted a game, for numerous reasons; its length—and it was The Expositor—who saw to that—the weather conditions, and the muddy field, combined to prevent any exhibition of skill and ability, and the encounter became one of heads or tails luck, with plenty of breaks upon both sides, the Expositor winning slightly.

Eddie Pittman, in the box for the I. O. O. F. tenants, served up the slants for the cupola corner crowd, and his best offerings were more or less mauled by The Courier. Clark Johnson occupied the box for the latter, being replaced in the fifth by Joe Johnson. The game was ragged and erratic throughout, being featured by Clark Johnson's home run with two men on bases in the fifth inning. The Expositor aggregation feel quite elated over their victory, and will they may we, for it will be their last. Wait until next time, and see the tables turned. George Mosley of the Y. M. C. A. umpired to general satisfaction. The lineup—

LEAFS WON OUT

Tuesdale, By Good Running Aided By Errors, Broke Tie

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 16.—The Toronto Maple Leafs put over a tally in the thirteenth stanza to-day and checked the Orioles' efforts in their rush for first place. The score was 4 to 3, and there was never a dull moment in the contest. There were fielding features galore, but the battle ended in a manner which did not please the home fans. There was a questionable play in the thirteenth, and the umpires—Mullen and O'Brien—decided against the home club. That broke won the ball game for the visitors.

"Bunny" Hearn was the fellow who pulled the stuff, and he won his own duel. The Toronto writer opened the inning with a single to left. Truesdale hit to Fawcett, who tossed to Shannon, at the bag. Hearn was forced all right, but he had no doubt did everything possible to prevent a double play, just as most ball players do. As a result Shannon's throw to first was wild, and Truesdale took second. Then came another break. Jacobson swung hard, but merely rolled the ball toward third. Parnham fielded it, and his throw hit the batter in the back as he was nearing first. Truesdale, always on the alert, turned third and kept going when he saw the ball strike Jacobson. Bentley picked up the sphere and handed it to the umpire. Frankie scored with time to spare.

Sensational Plays. The score would have been larger but for several sensational catches and stops. Bill Lamar dashed up the line to field a pulled down line drive from Whitteman's bat while Jacobson made two corking catches off his shoe strings. Schultz pulled a play of the same sort and White man ran almost a city block to rob Bues, the batting hero of the day. Murray knocked down a line drive which was slated for an extra base wallop and cut off a run by stopping Shannon's hit as it was on its way to the outfield.

Rube Parnham really twirled much better ball than Hearn. He did not allow as many hits and actually grew more effective as the encounter progressed. From the seventh until the thirteenth the Leafs were set down in order. But after all it must be admitted that Hearn had the heavy artillery of the locals lashed to the mast and always was steady in the pinches. The Birds got to him in the third and bumped his offerings but after that he always was master of the situation when danger threatened.

Baltimore opened the scoring in the third when they tallied three runs. Acosta singled, look second on a passed ball and scored on Fawcett's single. Bentley doubled counting, Fawcett, and scored himself on Bue's single.

The Leafs evened it up in the sixth. Hearn singled and Truesdale doubled, both scoring on Jacobson's single. The latter took second on the throw in, was sacrificed to third by Whitteman, and after Lajoie was hit by pitched ball crossed the platter on a liner by Schultz.

Gerner was a puzzle to Richmond to-day, while the Royals batted Young hard and won 9 to 0. Moran made a remarkable catch of Clemons drive and completed a double play.

boys waiting to enter the water, and that there must have been about seventy-five waiting their turn for a single. Some improvements have yet to be made on the bank before the enterprise is considered finished satisfactorily.

Swimming Pool is Completed

The municipal swimming pool, constructed by the Board of Works department under the direction of the city council, has been completed and may now be used freely by the youngsters of the city. The "safety first" swimming hole that has long been a need of the city is located in West Brantford on the dyke to the east of Agricultural Park. It has a water front of 120 feet and narrows to 80 feet out in the river thus having an average width of 100 feet. It extends a 100 feet from shore and has an area of 10,000 square feet. The greatest depth is five feet at the normal water level of the river. The pool is enclosed by piles driven into the bed of the river from eight to nine feet apart. Above the water level a temporary fence has been constructed which will be removed in the autumn. It is expected that the piles will be able to withstand the spring freshet of ice and water, but the fence will be removed in the fall and replaced in the spring after a flood time. Superintendent Unger stated to-day that an early hour this morning the bank was black with

GIANT BATTLEPLANE OF HUGE SIZE IS NEW IDEA IN AVIATION

Italy Is Planning Machine With 3500 Horse Power Motors, Which Will Be Five Times As Large As Any In Existence

A thousand gigantic warplanes, aircraft with a wing spread of more than 100 feet, each carrying a crew of three men and 2,750 pounds of bombs, rising at night from aerodromes along England's east coast; a flight commander for each twenty-five marshalling his raiders into the V-shaped formation in which wild geese travel on the wing; and then a swift flight across the 275 miles that separate the nearest point of the English coast from the famous Kiel Canal the rush of dropping bombs, the crash of explosions on the earth beneath, the crack of anti-aircraft guns, and the flash of anti-aircraft searchlights, and then a turn about and a dash for home, with the Kiel Canal and the German fleet a ruin and a wreckage in the rear!

That is the picture which Henry Woodhouse, one of the Governors of the Aero Club of America has visioned from an inspection of the photograph and the engineering prints of the new 600 horse power Caproni triplane. The craft is the biggest yet employed by Germany or the Allies, and yet it is less than a fifth as big as the machine which Italy has under construction, and of which, all details are concealed, except that it is to have motors generating between 3,000 and 3,500 horse power. One-half the size of this monster, an airplane driven by three motors, each of 600 horse power, is already constructed, and news of its operation against Italy's Austrian foes is expected daily.

Italy is new at the business of aviation. Two years ago she had fewer than 100 men employed in the industry. To-day she has thousands and on the authority of Howard H. Coffin, Chairman of the Aircraft Production Board, Italy has outdistanced her enemies and her allies in developing new types of aircraft. Major R. Perotti, head of the Special Italian Commission for Aeronautics in the United States, is an ardent advocate of the huge warplane and accounts which he has been able to supply this Government of Italian success in this kind of construction have done much to divorce aerial experts here from their allegiance to the small light type of craft for the single fighter. The extra weight-carrying capacity of the great machines is the especial argument in their favor and could a thousand such as the Caproni be constructed, manned, armed, and loaded with bombs, aviation experts cannot see why the dream of destroying the Kiel Canal and the German fleet might not be realized, were the single raid.

The present 600 horse power Caproni is a triplane with two fuselages or bodies and driven by three Fiat or Isotta-Fraschini motors, any one of which has sufficient power to keep the craft aloft even were the others to be disabled. The machine is of both the tractor and pusher type, with the tractor mounted in front and one in the rear. The plane carries a so-called useful load of 4,408 pounds which assures fuel for six hours, together with a crew of three men, three guns, and 2,750 pounds of bombs. It has a speed of close to eighty-five miles an hour and is capable of climbing 3,250 feet in thirteen minutes, 6,500 feet in twenty-seven minutes, and 10,000 feet in fifty-seven minutes.

This seems slow in comparison to the Spads which climb 10,000 feet in five minutes or less, but a Spad is simply a flying motor with sustaining strength barely sufficient to support the aviator and a gun. The Caproni is as big as a trolley car, its wing span is more than 100 feet, it stands twenty-one feet in the air and is nearly fifty feet long.

The only aircraft which compares with it in size is the British Handley-Page machine, which, with two 250 horse power Rolls-Royce motors, carried twenty-seven passengers, and has a wing spread of ninety-eight feet, and the Curtiss and Gallaudet monsters made in this country. The huge Curtiss triplane air cruiser, with which it was hoped to cross the Atlantic Ocean before the war turned the thoughts of aviators into other matters, is a possibility as a long-distance bomb-carrying machine, for its boat body could be dropped and its weight-carrying ability increased thereby.

The new three-motored Gallaudet sea-plane also entered the category of long-distance raiding machines and is suitable for either bomb dropping or torpedo launching. Other American manufacturers are at work on giant models, but as yet details of these have not been announced.

Long-distance bombing raids are by no means a novelty, but they have always been conducted with only a few airplanes of limited carrying capacity, which carried only a few hundred pounds of bombs between the fuel needed for the journey. Among the historic bombing raids for several reasons is the raid on Salonika on June 15, 1915. It was conducted by twenty-three twin-motored Caudron machines, in charge of Captain de Kerillis, and dropped close to fifty large bombs on Carlsruhe. Three of the machines did not return—they had to land and were captured, but the damage to Carlsruhe was serious.

In the very first bombardment of Sofia on April 21, 1916, a single aviator started from Salonika, flew to Sofia, dropped four bombs and proclamations announcing the capture of Trebizond, and returned to Salonika. This exploit was repeated by single aviators from time to time; then on Sept. 15, 1916, it was repeated by four aviators who left Salonika at 6:20 and arrived over Sofia at 8:40. They dropped their bombs, many of which were effective, and returned. They had crossed the Balkan mountains at 6,000 feet without trouble, and had accomplished what an army could not have done. The only limitation was that the airplanes were too few in number to win a decisive victory. In every raid in the Balkans only four or five airplanes participated.

Among the most remarkable long-distance bombing expeditions were the raids on Essen and Munich by Captain de Brauchamp and Lieutenant Dancoeur on Sept. 24 and Nov. 18, 1916, which have been repeated since by other aviators. The raid on Ludwigsfeld, accomplished on May 27, 1915, in which eighteen airplanes took part, also involved a flight of about 400 miles. It was conducted successfully, and only one airplane was forced to land and submit to capture. Another classic was the bombing raid on the Mauser Works at Oberndorf on Oct. 12, 1916, in which a French bombing squadron and a British bombing squadron participated, escorted by Lafayette Flying Corps fighters. These are only a few of scores of such raids. In all these raids the aviators had to fly from fire to seven hours continuously under most trying conditions, having to protect themselves with insufficient arms. A night raid in large, well-armed war-

"THE PRINCE CHAP."

In these days when troublous times are the rule and pleasures few, to witness a good, peaceful, wholesome drama is soothing to the nerves and refreshing to the mind. When the Edward Keane players presented "The Prince Chap" at the Grand Opera House last night, patrons had an opportunity of witnessing a beautiful romantic drama, a play of sentiment and love, comedy and pathos, and, above all, a human story. The story centres around a child, a waif of the studios in London, a child, whose mother—a widow, has taken to study law as a means of livelihood, but who succumbs to the hardships and late hours, contracting tuberculosis, and eventually dying in the rooms of Mr. Peyton, "The Prince Chap," to whom she has entrusted the keeping of her child, Claudia, a little girl of eight.

Although a poor, struggling sculptor, Peyton takes the child to his room and cares for her as a father would, and she calls him "Daddy," and is happy with him. A few years elapse. The Prince Chap has succeeded in his work and becomes engaged to a New York girl, Alice Travers, whom Claudia calls Princess Alice. Miss Travers on a visit to London, calls on The Prince Chap, meets Claudia, and believes upon hearing the child's little talk, that she is the daughter of her affianced having been already told by her relatives that the child was his. She leaves him and marries another, when The Prince Chap refuses to send Claudia away. Her husband, whom she never loved, but married out of "pique," dies, and she calls a year later on The Prince Chap, only to find that he has fallen in love with the grown-up Claudia, and she departs.

In the play, we see some of the quaintest characters. One in particular, "Puckers," a child of the coal-hole in the studio cellar, who after many hard knocks and screamingly funny vicissitudes in her life around the studio, becomes the wife of a circus rider.

Miss Lecman plays Puckers. Mr. Keane has, in The Prince Chap, one of his best parts, a type which fits his talent perfectly; Yvette Paul, the child actress, plays little Claudia in the first and second acts, and Miss Reade is the grown-up Claudia who marries the Prince. Mr. Stanley Price is Ruminous, the old friend of the studio workers, and one of the quaintest picturesque roles imaginable. The Prince Chap will be presented Friday and Saturday, matinee and night, and the prices at the Grand remain the same.

THE BRANT
Who killed John Argyle? Was it his son Bruce, with whom he quarrelled frequently, and whom he finally disinherited. Or was it his adopted daughter, Mary Matzore, in whose favor he made his will the night before his death? Or was it his butler, whose actions subsequent to the murder, gave ample foundation for suspicion? Such was the problem confronting Asche Kroton, detective, when he took charge of the Argyle Case. And the solution is found in the picture of that name, now showing at the Brant theatre, featuring Robert Warwick in the first of his Selznick productions, a tense detective story of absorbing interest throughout, and one certain to hold the interest of all to the last moment.

The sixth episode of Pathé's "Problem" serial, "The Neglected Wife," featuring P. H. Roland and others, and a showing of the Pathe Gazette, complete the motion picture program. The Russell Quintette presented a refined and high class musical offering, original, aesthetic and pleasing to all.

Totally different from their previous productions, "Variety Isle," a rollicking, mirthful miniature musical comedy was presented, as the headliner, at the Rex Theatre by the Broadway Belles last night. The chorus has been enlarged since the company arrived in Brantford, and with the entertaining class of program arranged to become more popular with Brantford audiences.

Mae Murray, dainty Paramount ingenue is the star in "At First Sight," the feature motion picture for the latter part of the week. This pro-gram is also out of the ordinary in pictures and is especially interesting. The 11th episode of "Pearl of the Army" and "Spring Idyl" other of the Country Life Stories for children rounded out an excellent programme.

planes would be easy in comparison—and much safer.

Darkness facilitates airplane work at close range because the aviator can fly closer to his target with little increased danger of counter attacks but with largely augmented effectiveness. Surprise makes more possible and half of the attack may be accomplished before enemy searchlights can locate the raiders as targets for the anti-aircraft guns. In a raid of 1,000 or more giant airplanes the task of the defenders would be rendered increasingly difficult beyond all proportion to the difficulty now experienced in repelling raids of a few fliers. The searchlights and anti-aircraft guns themselves would be made the object of attack and largely incapacitated.

The risk of discovery in night attacks could be reduced further, according to experts, by the use of silencers on airplane motors. At present the roaring whirr of the motor can be picked up by the powerful microphones with which all the combatants are equipped and which magnify the slightest sound. Silencers are not used because of the weight they add to an aircraft, but some experts contend that this weight is more than counterbalanced at present by the excess fuel which machines must carry to enable them to fly high and to manoeuvre to avoid detection as long as possible.

Progress has been made in the art of aiming and dropping bombs to the point where accuracy can be assured in night work. According to statistics gathered by Mr. Woodhouse, the bombs now most in use are bombs of 15 pounds weight, 55 pounds, 100 pounds, and 112 pounds with a few of 200 pounds or more size.

"The 15-pound bombs are usually arranged in series of four under the fuselage. The releasing gear is worked from a bowden wire which actuates a bar releasing the bombs in the following order: 1, 2, 3, 4, which avoids unequal distribution of weight. The 55-lb. bombs are usually carried in a series of two and released in the same fashion. The 100 pound and 112 pound bombs are always carried in single bomb frames. These have two levers, one to fuse the bomb and the other for release-ment. These bomb frames are usually slung on either side of the fuselage below the lower plane and aft of the axle. In all of the above cases the bomb is held horizontally in a fore and aft position, the nose of the bomb pointing forward.

"In all the latest types of machines however, the bombs are carried in a vertical position, inside the body of the airplane, noses downward. This is a very great saving of head resistance. For obvious reasons it would be inadvisable to give details of these bomb-dropping devices, which permit the aviator to drop one or all of the bombs simultaneously.

"Dropping bombs weighing 500 pounds or more is not difficult. Heretofore it has been more difficult to get large airplanes capable of carrying them. Now that large warplanes are coming into use in quantities the dropping of bombs weighing 500 pounds or more will be common, likewise the launching of torpedoes weighing from 200 to 1,500 pounds. Bomb dropping with dirigibles differs little from dropping bombs from airplanes, excepting that where as the dirigible makes such a large target and moves much slower than the airplane, it cannot come as low as

The features that build a retail business are WORTHY GOODS POPULAR POLICIES, COURTEOUS and CAPABLE SALESPEOPLE, SMART SHOW WINDOWS, ATTRACTIVE INTERIORS, the SQUARE DEAL, and SERVICE.

All these features are necessary, and all of them together constitute a PROPER BASE for the most important thing of ALL—NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING.

You see establishments in every town that a few years ago were small, but which have grown BIG and PROMINENT—in every town, too, you see the slow-moving conservative kind.

They were small when you first knew them, but they are relatively smaller now. They continue to plod along in the ways of the PAST, losing a little MORE trade each year to the MODERN fellow whose shop looms bright and alluring just across the way.

WHY IS it that the old-fashioned places are DWINDLING and flickering out one by one like spent candles? And why is it that right alongside of them are OTHER places which are FLOURISHING and PUSHING AHEAD with EVER-LENGTHENING stride? Do you WISH to KNOW the answer? It is ADVERTISING.

Manage a business in a way that will make that business WORTH talking about in the daily newspapers—then apply your PRINTER'S INK! The rewards of TRADE go to those that KEEP UP WITH THE AGE!

SNIDER SUFFERED MOST ALL HIS LIFE

Feels Better Since Tanlac Overcame Trouble Than He Has In Thirty-Five Years

Snider Suffered Most All His Life... "I'm feeling better to-day than I have in thirty-five years, and it's all due to the good work of Tanlac," said James A. Snider, of 17 Jackson St. west, Hamilton, recently. Mr. Snider has the distinction of being one of the fastest coopers in Canada, but was forced by ill-health to retire from his trade. He is now employed by the Paardburg Chapter I. O. O. E. Mr. Snider is well known both in Hamilton and vicinity, and although sixty-nine years of age, he has the appearance of a man many years younger. Continuing his statement, Mr. Snider said: "A medicine that will make a person feel his age again would be a wonderful thing. I had been suffering from a bad stomach, nearly all my life. I had no appetite and just had to force myself to eat. At times I felt like there was a thousand pound weight on my stomach, and I was almost doubled up with misery. Gas would form from what I ate and make me feel heart flutter, and I often had dreadful smothering spells. I have had the best treatment both in the United States and Canada, and have taken all kinds of medicines. I would feel a little better for a day or so and then feel as bad or worse than ever."

"I'm now prepared to say that Tanlac has done for me just what others say it has done for them, and I want to make this statement because I feel like it may help lots of people who are in the same fix I was. Why, before I took Tanlac I had rheumatism in my knees and my back, and now the rheumatism is nearly all gone and I can walk as straight as a dial. It has put my stomach in good condition, the gas has stopped forming and I don't have any more of those awful smothering spells. I often disagree with me, and I know it is building me up because I have already gained several pounds and have just finished my second bottle of Tanlac. All my pain is gone now and I want to say again I feel better than I have in thirty-five years. I can't say enough in praise of Tanlac, and I'm going to tell everybody I can about the good it has done in Brantford."

Tanlac is sold in Brantford by Milton H. Robertson & Co., Ltd., in Orillia by M. H. Cooke & Co., in Elmvale by W. J. McGuire, in LeRoy by G. R. Auld, in Stuyvesant by N. B. West, in Coldwater by C. G. Millard.

Good Night's Sleep

THE WAVELET'S SLUMBERLAND Dickey sat on the beach and watched the whitecaps rush in to shore. Then out again, gathered up their mothers, where do the whitecaps go when they disappear? asked Dickey. "Perhaps they return to Slumberland, for that's where little boys generally go when they have their night-caps on," answered his mother. "But, mother, they're never quiet long enough to sleep," replied Dickey. "Oh, yes, they surely must sleep at night," said mother. "That must be a funny Slumberland," laughed Dickey. The sun sank behind the hills and Dickey and mother gathered up their things and went home. Dickey was very quiet during the dinner hour. "He's very tired," he heard his mother say. Then he felt the cool breeze kiss his cheek and a tiny wavelet touched his toes. "I wonder what Slumberland is like?" said Dickey to himself. "How can waves sleep that are never still long enough?" With a lazy swish, a wavelet washed Dickey's feet and a tiny Watersprite jumped out. "That's all you know about it. Sure, we waves have a Slumberland just the same as little children, and if you like I'll take you there," said Watersprite. "But you must keep very quiet and not waken old Father Neptune, or he'll tuck you in bed, too, and if he does you can never return to mother again," warned Watersprite. Dickey promised to be very still, so he took Watersprite's hand and a wave washed them from shore. Down, down they sank until the cool water covered their heads. They stood before a golden castle that had great, long coral spires running up into the water. "This is the castle of Slumberland," said Watersprite. It was a beautiful place and Dickey wondered, as they entered the gate, why the fishes lay so quiet. "Everything here is sound asleep," whispered Watersprite. Then she led Dickey through room after room filled with seaweed beds, and on each rested a tiny wavelet asleep, just her nightcap sticking from out the cover. Dickey started to speak, but Watersprite quickly put her finger on his lips. "Don't, or you'll be sorry," she whispered. They entered a lovely room filled with beautiful flowers shaped of silver and gold. Dickey was a little in the centre lay old, fat Father Neptune, his white nightcap on one ear, and his great, big mouth opening and shutting as he snored. He looked so funny that Dickey laughed and laughed out loud. Up jumped old Neptune with a roar which awakened all the wavelets, and they made a dash to get away. "Hurry, or you're lost!" cried Watersprite. "Hurry, or you're lost!" Off in the distance Dickey heard a heavy peal of thunder. The wavelets, their faces green with anger, rushed to the other side of the table, his back lay on the floor. "I know a little boy who wants his nightcap on so he can go to Slumberland," laughed Mother. Mother's hand and index of old Neptune's that tucked him in his trundle bed. He didn't care to take another trip to the Slumberland of the wavelets, even if only in a dream. Bertha Wigham, a ten-year-old girl, of Cambridge, was struck by a pulley which slipped from a hay fork, and her lower jaw was broken and ten teeth knocked out.

GIANT BATTLEPLANE

 (School.) This sight can be used practically from any height with fair success. It consists of round bars of metal fixed horizontally and at right angles to the fore and aft axis of the machine. Two of these bars are arranged vertically one above the other, about six inches apart. The third is fixed in a slide, level with the angle forward and upward. The sight is graduated in thousandths of feet and in seconds.

The pilot determines in what direction the wind is coming from some time before he reaches his objective. He picks out some prominent object on the ground, having first set his slide at the height at which he is flying, taking a sight along the angle forward and upward. The sight is graduated in hundredths of feet and in seconds. He then reads the time and adjusts his slide to read that time. He is now ready. Approaching his objective upward, as before, his target comes in line with the bars forming the hypotenuse of the sight, he releases his bombs, and perhaps his target.

"The so-called low altitude sight is an exceptionally simple sight and very effective. It is only used under 1,500 feet. It is made on similar lines to the C. F. S. with three bars arranged in the same way, but the slide is graduated only in miles per hour, and the bottom bar is on a scale graduated in hundreds of feet, 20, 30, 40, 50 up to about 120 miles per hour. The pilot, flying either directly up or directly down, wind, calculates his air speed and sets the top slide to the air speed and the bottom bar at the height at which he is flying. For dropping his bombs he sights along the hypotenuse as in the C. F. S.

The latest development in sights in England is known as the "equal distance sight," which has done exceptionally good work, both at the gunnery schools and at the front. For obvious reasons the details of this new sight which has only just been produced cannot be published.

One difficulty remains in the use of airplanes by night and the inventive facilities of the combatants, spurred on by the exigencies of the war, are rapidly overcoming this. The problem is to provide light for flying operations and for marking aircraft in flight. In England, in the early days of Zeppelin raids, the casualties resulting to pilots who went up at night to attack Zeppelins were very high, because of two things: the insufficient number and badly lighted landing places; and the lack of lighting devices on the machines. "On one occasion 15 pilots went up at night and twelve had accidents on landing.

But these conditions have been changed. A pilot finds himself in trouble aloft and compelled to land has only to fire his Verry pistol to have at least one aerodrome within gliding distance brilliantly illuminated so that he may land in safety. In addition to the Verry pistol, night flying craft are equipped with a parachute flare, which is fired electrically from the pilot's seat. On release the flare falls a couple of hundred feet, unfolds and floats downward, casting a brilliant light over the expanse of about a quarter of a mile.

Bolt's landing lights are another device employed. These are fastened beneath the wings, which aid in releasing the light downward when the electric headlights similar to motor car headlights are also used, and night flying machines now have navigation lights, comprising a tall light and a light on each wing tip showing white ahead, green on the starboard, and red on the port side. Power for these lights is generated in a small dynamo driven by a miniature propeller.

With these devices to aid night flying, experts here look forward to the time when raids may be made on the German fleet and submarine bases by big squadrons of giant machines, and the opinion is gaining strength that in such raids lies the solution of the present U-boat peril.

MEN FORGET THEY ARE CIVILIZED MEN DEATH GRIP IN THE TRENCHES

An Account of Some Phases of Warfare as Seen by an Officer of Canadian Expeditionary Forces

New York, Aug. 17.—One of the Canadian war heroes who has aroused the admiration of Americans is that dashing Scot Lieutenant Colonel Percy Albert Guthrie commander of the 236th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, popularly known as "The Maclean Killies" of America.

Tall, splendidly built, and with his head held high, Colonel Guthrie is a striking picturesque figure in his khaki. He was the first recruit in Canada and has been twenty-two times wounded. Even when engaged in a mere recruiting expedition, which is the mission that brought him to the United States, his gallant carriage and the quick decision of his manner mark him as a magnificent leader of men, able both to inspire and to direct them.

Although he usually possesses an almost boyish exuberance of spirits, this Canadian officer has moments of poignant remembrance of the horrors through which he has passed. It is at such times that he recalls a certain English Westphalian officer, Lieutenant Colonel Guthrie will not talk for publication but Mr. Charles K. Howard, representative of the Canadian government at Brantford, and his close friend and executor, has given the story:

"On a night in the battle of Festubert the Tenth Canadians went over the trenches. The flares from the machine guns made the line light as day. A piece of the German trench was taken. The only injury that the Colonel sustained in the scrap received were some tears in the legs from barbed wire entanglements, although he lost in three-quarters of an hour two-thirds of his battalion. The piece that was taken must be held until reinforcements came. These were a little slow in arriving. A captain held on the trench with the Colonel, leading his men down the trenches, with his bombers cleared out another section. The German line began to give slowly. Step by step they moved back around the traverses toward Givenchy. The Canadians gathered their strength and started to press forward. The Westphalian officer tried to hold his men the stem tide. He stood up in the knees in mud, fighting until his last bomb was gone. The night was dark and the stars shined brightly, which had died down now, the Colonel, at the head of his men, rushed upon the little Westphalian officer, trying to bayonet his pounds less than the Colonel, was not daunted. He grasped the Colonel by both arms, holding him for a moment, and then with the strength born of despair, lifted him bodily into the air, holding him rigid so that he could not move.

"The Canadians, dashing on behind, over-balanced the struggling pair, so that the poor little Westphalian officer fell backward into the mud, with the Colonel on top. In the dark Canadian soldiers did not know whether their leader had been killed or not. They did not take time to investigate. They rushed over the two struggling men, tramping them deeper and deeper into the mire of the trench. The blood just was upon them. Their bloodshot eyes sought through the darkness the bloodshot eyes of the enemy. The narrow trench prevented them from using their bayonets or their rifles, so they threw their rifles away and, taking their bayonets in their hands, fought around the traverses of the trench. The Colonel found the throat of the German officer. The struggle was soon over, so that he could catch up with his men.

"Many hands to hand conflicts took place that night. The men grappled with each other, and in times like these when strong men meet and struggle one of them must give up his life. The Colonel reached for the eyes of the opponent putting them out, while hungry fingers reach for the loose flesh beneath the chin. The knees are the vulnerable part of the other man and the teeth do their share of this madman's work, in which men forget that they are civilized and once again become primitive in the art of war.

"Through these struggles the Colonel passed, and while he forgot the other encounters he was in there lingered in his heart a touch of pity and reverence for the brave little man from across the Rhine who had fought against great odds but whose luck was against him. He sought out in the mire of the trench the cold form of the little hero. He carefully wiped the froth of blood from his nostrils and carried him into a dug-out by himself, where he might rest until properly interred. He gazed with tears upon the sunken, swollen jaws of the man, whose unshaven lips, the wrinkled temples—gazed until burned in his memory there will always be that face to haunt him through his life.

"The noble face of a brave man who fought well; the face that he will see in the corner of his room in the night time and he will see it when he thinks of the trenches and the war.

"He wondered who this person might be and searching found in his pocket a picture of a woman. It was the same man upon his wedding day. Upon the back of the picture he found three newspaper clippings in German which a British officer translated. The first ceeding days the fighting surged back and forth over Ypres' hillsides, during which time the battalion suffered greatly from the gas clouds that were let loose now and then.

"One time when leading his men the Colonel fell with a bayonet wound in his chin. On another occasion his nose was broken, but this did not put him out of action. He suffered from the concussion of a shell on another occasion and was knocked out for five hours. On another day he was put out of business by a gas shell which exploded near him and was dragged out of a ditch filled with water by a British general, who forced him to emit the gas by thrusting his fingers down his throat. A scar on the knee shows where the Colonel was punctured by a bayonet point. His hand was ripped open by a bayonet which he held while grappling with an assailant. The outcome of it was that the Canadians held the line at Ypres until reinforcements came.

"We have been prone to think here that Germany was a little bit ahead in ingenuity in the modern methods of war, but the Colonel told us how our people got onto the job and put one over.

Jack Moran, aged 11 son of Capt. Moran, of the Dupont, Wallaceburg made a heroic rescue of his nine-year-old brother, who had fallen in the water.
