NICK BURLEY THE WINNER

Slavin Retires From Contest After the Fifth Round.

The Younger Man Too Much for Veteran Frank—Was Good, Manly Go.

Frank P. Slavin, ex-champion of the world and the war horse of Yukon pugilism, has, according to his own statement, fought his last battle, his five round go with Nick Burley at A. B. Hall last night, being the finale of a long career in the ring. No pugilist ever retired with a clearer record for manly ring work than Mr. Slavin.

An immense crowd packed the big hall, every available seat in it being occupied. There was a six-round preliminary contest between Kid Kenneally of Portland and Al Smith which was a rather tame affair. Smith being too light for the sturdy webfoot. Both boys, however, exhibited considerable cleverness, Smith's agile footwork being one of the features of the go. Ed O'Donnell acted as referee of the contest, which was very satisfactorily to all declared a draw.

It was five minutes after eleven o'clock when Burley with his attendants entered the ring, followed half a minute later by Slavin and his retinue, both being loudly cheered, but from the start it was a Slavin crowd, there being a general desire to see the veteran reclaim the laurels he had lost to Burley at their previous fall.

Leroy Tozier was chosen referee and W. H. B. Lyon was official time-keeper. Charles Boyle held the watch for Slavin and Harry Jones, the bartender, for Burley. Previous to the opening of the contest a strawberry complexioned fellow named Hector challenged any man in the Yukon, Ole Marsh preferred, to a wrestling match, and at the conclusion of the contest the same fellow challenged Burley to meet him in the pugilistic ring. Who Hector is or what he is nobody but Hector seems to know. However, he is a sturdy looking youth and may be a hot tamale.

After considerable discussion between the principals as to the interpretation of Queensbury rules regarding the break-away, Referee Tozier cautioned the audience that he, having been chosen referee, would require no assistance from the floor, and announced that everybody was ready.

BY ROUNDS.

Round 1.—Both men show aggressiveness. Burley lands a light left on Slavin's face and gets a light one on the wind in return. Slavin swings heavy right and misses and Burley lands rights and lefts in rapid succession on Frank's face, ears and neck. Considerable clinching is done and near the close of the round Frank lands an easy boy on Nick's wind. Honors even.

Round 2.—Burley rushes and lands two stannars with his left on Slavin's face. Slavin swings heavy right and misses and Burley lands rights and lefts in rapid succession on Frank's face, ears and neck. Considerable clinching is done and near the close of the round Frank lands an easy boy on Nick's wind. Honors even.

Round 3.—Burley rushes and a clinch follows. Another rush and both men go in hard and some very fast fighting results. Frank lands hard left hook, his stock rises, the crowd wildly cheers. Frank lands another on Nick's ribs when the latter rushes and goes in hammer and tongs, putting Frank back to the rope and landing on his face and side of his head the most telling blows of the entire contest, causing Frank for an instant to act as though he was going groggy. He recovered soon and when time was called both men were fighting hard.

Round 4.—Opened with a clinch. Burley lands terrific left upper cut on Slavin's chin. Another clinch. Burley lands heavy right and left on side of head. Light sparring for wind. Slavin lands light left on Nick's jaw and heavy right on chest. Slavin roars like a lion and shows heavy signs of fatigue. Burley does not show even a red spot.

lands light left on Nick's jaw and gets in return a terrific blow on the left ear. Light sparring for half a minute when Burley rushes and lands sledge hammer blows on Frank's face, a terrific right on the ear and a straight left punch on the jaw.

The fifth round ended the contest for as Slavin took his corner he signaled his attendants and one of them tossed the sponge into the center of the ring. Referee Tozier awarded the contest to Burley.

Slavin arose and addressed the crowd stating that he had fought his last fight and had stayed as long as he did only for the purpose of giving the patrons of the contest the worth of their money. The vanquished man was most heartily cheered.

For Burley Referee Tozier stated he, Burley, wished to say that neither in or out of the ring had he ever met a more square man or more honest adversary than Mr. Slavin. Burley is ready to defend the championship of the northwest and that he will import some good man to contest it with him.

The go last night was a good, clean one and in happy contrast to the last alleged contest. Burley is as fair a man as ever entered a ring and in that respect he is not an iota ahead of Slavin, who retires with an enviable pugilistic record.

PIERRIE ON SUBSIDIES

Eminent Belfast Man Opposed to Them

Says the Morgan Combine is Community of Interests for Protection

Special to the Daily Nugget. London, July 3.—Wm. Pierrie, chairman of the Harland Wolf Co. of Belfast, in giving evidence on ship subsidies before the house of commons committee, said that subsidies serve to encourage inefficiency. He is utterly opposed to them, their tendency being to foster individual against general interest. Pierrie calls the Morgan combine a community of interests established purely for commercial purposes and on entirely business principles. By creation of this community of interests the future of British shipping as well as British shipbuilding was assured. Feeling against the combine is due to misapprehension. All they should do is take the advice of the Prince of Wales when he said "England must wake up."

Organ Recital. The new pipe organ, which is now in course of installation at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, will be opened on Thursday evening next, July 10th when an organ recital will be given by Mr. Ernest Searelle. An excellent program has been arranged, and Mr. Searelle will be supported by the best vocal talent in the city. A full description of the organ appeared in our columns in a previous issue, and with such a magnificent instrument, a very great treat is in store for those attending the opening recital.

Ask for a Receiver. Beaumont, Tex., June 25.—A petition was filed with the Jefferson county circuit today, asking that a receiver be appointed for all oil companies having wells or owning property in the Pelham-Humphrey's survey. The suit is styled Jennie Half-burton et al vs. J. S. Hogg et al. Two hundred oil companies are involved.

The plaintiffs claim a three-quarter interest in the Humphrey's league, and value it at $5,000,000. The league is a part of Spindle Top.

The six-foot pitcher of the Nevadas walked into the newspaper office with his hat pulled down over his forehead and an ugly look in his eye. "I want to see your baseball reporter," he said. "He wrote me up this morning, in his account of yesterday's game, as 'the long-eared twirler.' I'd like to talk to him about a minute."

"I think," said the man in the editor's chair, "he meant to write it 'long-eared twirler.' He went on just as you came in."

VIEW OF GOV. ROSS

Regarding Liquor Traffic of the Yukon

Roadhouses Are Too Numerous—Gambling and Dencehalls Mentioned.

When the ordinances respecting the liquor traffic came up before the Yukon council yesterday afternoon, both receiving their second reading and one being considered by the committee on the whole, Commissioner Ross made some extended remarks concerning the bills, explaining what it was proposed to do in the consideration of the council. He said: "The council is well aware that this question of the liquor traffic has been a bone of contention for some time. Last fall, it will be remembered, the council saw fit to pass a number of memorials to the governor general in council, among them being one relating to this matter. I advised the council at the time that if the governor general were approached in the proper manner I felt sure extra powers would be granted us and I am happy to say the government has acquiesced to our request. The traffic here from now on will be on the same footing as in every other province in Canada with one exception and that is in the question of fees. The question has been raised by some as to whether or not the fees should be continued, from which a large revenue is received. For this year at least the fees must be charged in order to raise revenues for local purposes. It is true that the people here have in the past paid large fees in various ways, but nothing so far has been contributed for local purposes, and for that reason the fees must be continued for purposes of road improvement, providing better educational facilities, etc. It is true, also, that we have for the first time received a considerable sum voted direct to us by the government, but we were not sure last year we would get that. We did not know last fall of the change that has taken place. We estimated a certain revenue would be required and therefore the fees on liquor cannot be taken off. Outside of that fact the control of the liquor traffic and the interest in it will be the same here as in other parts of the Dominion. The new ordinance which will be submitted to you provides for licenses for hotels and saloons, both wholesale and retail and all may purchase their liquors wherever they may see fit. If outside of Canada the only requirements will be the payment of duty as provided by law.

"With regard to the liquor traffic, the traveling public must receive better accommodations from those to whom licenses are granted. Every power should be utilized to have the liquor sold for the benefit of the public. Licenses are not issued wholly for the benefit of the hotel or saloon keeper. The new ordinance favors the hotels as against the saloons and I consider the latter should not be allowed anywhere outside of Dawson in order that the hotels may be able to give better accommodation to the public. In the manner of issuing licenses a change is recommended. All applications should be made at a certain time and the licenses should be issued at a certain time, the board of commissioners to sit and hear all applications when they have been filed. One clause in the ordinance may be considered grasping but it would not be thought so in other parts of the Dominion. Gambling must not be carried on in licensed houses, dance halls must not be conducted in such places, nor shall they be used as houses of prostitution. The privilege given by the granting of a liquor license must not be abused. Such a law should be put on the statutes governing these things. I trust this bill now before you will pass and if it does I will see that the law is carried out and a man is appointed who will be responsible for the strict enforcement of its provisions. "There are too many roadhouses in the country; I am informed they will average two or three to the mile, and it is impossible to continue the granting of such licenses so promiscuously. A man can not put up a proper house and furnish the accommodation he should furnish with such keen competition. The number must be decreased and their quality increased. In the new ordinance it is provided that such houses shall have a certain number of separate bedrooms, a separate dining room and a bar apart from the balance of the house.

"I congratulate the council upon the fact that we have the same power to deal with the liquor question as other parts of Canada. In fact, we have more power for we can prohibit the traffic altogether if we so choose. I do not know if the prohibitionists will be asking for a plebiscite or not but I hardly think that time has arrived as yet."

Following the remarks of the commissioner the bill was considered by the committee on the whole section by section. The gist of the bill is as follows: No person excepting the holder of a license shall import any liquor in the territory. Before any person imports any liquor he shall make application to the commissioner in writing for such permission, the application to be accompanied by a receipt from the comptroller showing that the required fees have been paid. The fees required are 50 cents a gallon on all still wines, ale, porter, table beer and lager beer, and $2 a gallon on all other intoxicating liquors. It is provided that the commissioner may reduce the fees if he considers it necessary to do so in order to better regulate the liquor traffic.

To the last provision, Councilman Prudhomme objected to the vesting of so much power in one man. It would be unjust if, for example, a firm imported a large quantity of liquor, paid the fees demanded, and then suddenly the fees should be reduced, thus giving later importers an undue advantage. With a peculiar smile, the commissioner said: "Surely the gentleman will give the person to whom such power is given credit with possessing some business ability and a reasonable amount of discretion."

Personally the commissioner thought beer should come in free, a view which, judging from the smiles that the others indulged in, all were agreed to. The commissioner may appoint and fix the salary of a chief preventive officer and such assistants as he may require. Importing liquor without permission subjects the offender upon conviction to a penalty of not exceeding $500 and in default of payment imprisonment not exceeding six months, the liquor to be forfeited to the crown. The chief preventive officer has the power to enter and search at any time any train, boat, scow or warehouse. Any person seeking to prevent such search is liable to a penalty of $500 and in default of payment imprisonment not exceeding three months. The bill will probably receive its final reading at today's session.

...Mr. "D"

The east wind that brings good things landed Finley Dunne on these shores 17 months after a three months absence here. Perhaps the moment is ripe for a glance at the man who created Mr. Dooley and who is the most famous and popular paper writer in the world.

One seems to have heard of him so long a time that one is taken aback by the youthful appearance of the man. His friends call him—is still under the grand climacteric of every man—and has no gray hair or other signs of premature age upon him. His blue eyes sparkle behind the glancing pebbles to which, less from need perhaps than from the literary habit, he gives these eyes, full of change and expression, whimsical and kindly smile that rarely leaves his mouth unmoved. A set of which a woman might envy.

all, it is a genuinely Irish type, the best type, and when in a mood of earnestness that mouth is pressed into a straight line, you make no doubt of Mr. Dunne's sincerity. For the rest, this young man dresses quietly, in phrase goes, and in good taste. His manner is frankly genial and possessed, with something of the journalist's keenness of the journalist's through, but without a trace of peculiar affectation that is "literary." Meeting him on the way, you might say that he is and sartorially, Mr. Finley looks like an attractive compound of Sherlock Holmes Gillette and Goodwin.

Mentally, I need not say myself sui generis, as spontaneously in his talk as the written product. Quite up to the favor of the public, the great reputation which he has earned. Acting always like a man in company who has not his mind, though the respect for the wit of the Irish race by universal consent, placed shoulders. Determined, of not to be "literary," not to thing but himself, a good fellow, a continuously good time, best of all possible worlds.

...Mr. "Dooley" Dunne...

The east wind that bringeth all good things landed Finlet Peter Dunne on these shores to other day, after a three months absence in Europe. Perhaps the moment is opportune for a glance at the man who created Mr. Dooley and who is today the most famous and popular newspaper writer in the world.

One seems to have heard of Dooley for so long a time that one is at first taken aback by the youthfulness of his creator. Peter Dunne—as his friends call him—is still under thirty—the grand climacteric of the literary man—and has no gray hairs or other signs of premature age to explain. His blue eyes sparkle brightly behind the glancing pebbles that he wears, less from need perhaps than from the literary habit. Truly Irish are these eyes, full of changing expression, whimsical and kindly; and the smile that rarely leaves his handsome mouth discloses a set of teeth which a woman might envy. All in all, it is a genuinely Irish face of the best type, and when in moments of earnestness that mouth is compressed into a straight line, you can make no doubt of Mr. Dunne's ancestry. For the rest, this famous young man dresses quietly, as the phrase goes, and in good taste; his manner is frankly genial and self-possessed, with something of the looseness of the journalist showing through, but without a trace of the peculiar affectation that is dubbed "literary." Meeting him on Broadway, you might say that physically he looks like an attractive composite of Sherlock Holmes, Gillette and Nat Goodwin.

Mentally, I need not say, he is himself sui generis, as spontaneous wit in his talk as the best of a written product. Quite unspoiled, too, by the favor of the public and the great reputation which has come to him. Acting always like the one man in company who has nothing on his mind, though the responsibility for the wit of the Irish race is now, by universal consent, placed on his shoulders. Determined, obviously, not to be "literary," not to be anything but himself, a good fellow, having a continuously good time in the best of all possible worlds.

The present writer is in a position to know that Mr. Dunne's work is more in request at this moment by the newspaper syndicates than that of any other man in America. In fact, it is "Dooley" first and the rest no more. During his late European trip Mr. Dunne cut out the "Dooley" business entirely, and the syndicates were frantic. The newspapers would accept no substitute for Dunne's matter—it was "Dooley" or nobody. Here, on the narrow island of Manhattan, it's a hard proposition to locate Mr. Finlet Peter Dunne at short notice, even though you may be, in a degree, admitted to his confidence and friendship. But how to reach him on the continent of Europe especially since he has a habit of never leaving his address? The syndicates, after much costly and futile cabling, gave it up in despair, and Mr. Dunne had the most enjoyable vacation of his life.

I suspect there is a shrewd purpose in Dunne's thus occasionally starving his vogue. Everybody knows that "Mr. Dooley" is as wise as he is witty. Evidently he is bound that the public, noted for its fickleness, shall not have too much of him. How soon it has tired of favorites whom it were easy to name, so brief and fleeting are their generations! And what a barren, dreary, jejune thing is the echo of such reputations, lowering forlornly in newspaper offices, stale and musty and all but forgotten, like the flies that are dragged into light at long intervals to verify some fact of ancient history! The many-headed newspaper public is inclined to be feared for its favor. Today it acclaim, tomorrow it forgets. "Mr. Dooley" is both witty and wise.

Whether meditated or not, Mr. Dunne's insouciance with regard to publishers and publishing is one of the most naively charming of his personal traits. We have seen how he occasionally worries the syndicates. He did a worse thing to Mr. Bok, of the Ladies' Home Journal, and that ably self-sufficient young man has "never been quite the same" since the experience. Perhaps, though pretty well known, the story will bear telling again.

A couple of years ago Mr. Bok, with characteristic penetration, concluded that "Dooley" was at the height of his vogue, and, therefore, invited him into the true temple of literature, i. e., the columns of the N. Y. J. He proposed that Mr. Dunne should write a serial story of Irish-American life. He wanted it "out of the hat"—fearing a possible decline in the fortunes of "Dooley"—and he offered to pay a fabulous price for it. Nay, more, the purse should be Mr. Dunne's before the proposed work was delivered. Such was the reckless magnanimity of Bok, let it be recorded to the eternal honor of the trade.

These terms suited Dunne to a miracle and, though chary of contracts, he fell to work at once on the money and the story. The tale was, I think called "Mollie Donohue." It began well and went on prosperously for three installments. But the serial method was not happily suited to Mr. Dunne's literary inspiration and practice. Or the immediate payment clause failed of continuous attraction; or the impatience of the journalist manifested itself. Whatever may have been the reason, the author took a sudden trip to California (where he had one of the best times of his life) and nothing more was heard of "Mollie Donohue." My impression is that Mr. Dunne sometimes regrets her untimely end—there is no room for doubt that Mr. Bok feelingly concurs with him.

The question is often asked, "Will not Mr. Dunne embody in some work of permanent interest the qualities which have made the popularity of 'Dooley'?" I don't know, and, without claiming authority to speak, doubt if he knows himself. Against such a presumption is the journalistic habit which has been his for many years—he was city editor of a Chicago newspaper at 20 and has been in harness ever since. Against it also are the conditions of his present reputation, demanding, above all, the constant exercise of the journalistic faculty. As battles were necessary to Napoleon, so "opinions" are necessary to "Dooley." The public looks for him to commentate the big news of the week, the result of an election or the issue of a campaign or the coronation of King Edward VII. If the theme be congenial to his humor, the newspapers will know the sort of entertainment they will get, and they will pay any price for it.

Besides, it is not to be forgotten this is the day of the journalist, and Mr. Dunne is contemporary to the minute. I am not sure that if he had made a genuine success of the abortive "Mollie Donohue," we should have been more gratified than we were with the last volume of "Dooley." I, for one, would not give Dooley for a score of recently exploited successes in fiction. And then (which is perhaps the last word) we have to reckon with a fertile and fluid wit, exigent of immediate expression and impatient of what is called literary form.

Meantime—and what a saving clause it is—we are to give thanks for "Dooley." His vogue continues unabated, not merely in America but also in England, and, indeed, wherever the English tongue is spoken. The first "Dooley" book sold over one hundred thousand—its successors have done little worse. And though the dialect sometimes perplexes the experts, I have seen a letter from a County Meath man congratulating the author upon its close fidelity to the vernacular. "Dooley" goes at any rate. In book form, in newspaper or magazine sketch, the humor and philosophy of the Sage of Arrchey Road are equally acceptable. Here, in New York, he is quoted on "East Side, West Side, all around the town." But his drolleries are not less current in Piccadilly and the Strand than on Fifth avenue and the Bowery. The British mind has often shown itself singularly inhospitable to American humor. It never made out Artemus Ward—it has not done much better with Mark Twain. Even the admirable Chauncey Depew fails to score with his usual brilliancy and success when his wit is transplanted to the region of Bow Bells. Not so "Mr. Dooley." The most entrenched strongholds of British Philistinism have surrendered to him. The British public both likes and understands him though the keen shafts of his sarcasm often penetrate the national sensitiveness, as in his famous deliverances on the Boer war. Let an Irish M. P. say half as much in the house of commons, and he would be mobbed. Even Mr. Dunne's literary indorsement in England is of the highest. The Academy describes the latest "Dooley" book as "superbly intelligent," and says "there is enough wit in it to stock a score of humorists." But the critic is not sure that "our old objection to hear the truth has been shelved in the case of this shrewd Irishman who intrudes his grinning visage into so many fastnesses of British seriousness and self-content."

This wonderful success which overleaps the lines of racial division is, above all things, due to the sunniest and most universal humor that has found expression in latter day literature. "Mr. Dooley" is the most popular of humorists because even his satire lacks gall, and the milk of human kindness irrigates his rough philosophy. And no stronger proof of this could be asked than that his humor passes current in England, though it goes there with that bait to prejudice, an Irish-American stamp upon it.

The genius of "Mr. Dooley" naturally condenses itself into epigrams, and many of these have a currency such as has rarely, if ever, been accorded to the sayings of an American humorist. Where the pudding is so liberally besprinkled with plums, it is easy and tempting to pick, and I shall not be blamed if I omit the favorite of any reader. Perhaps the following, as well as any that might be cited, show the sharp impact of a mind that has so wittily commented many phases of our national life and of contemporary history:

To sum up: Mr. Finlet Peter Dunne is in love with life, which has not dealt ungenerly by him, stands well in his own good opinion, is beloved by his friends and is warmly thought of by the world to whose gaiety he has contributed a full share. I am glad to believe that he never vexes his merry heart with the thought that he may not yet have built his momentum aere perennius. The most enviable thing about him is his talent and, next to that, his youth. When you are with him you are most agreeably impressed by the combination and also by a certain contagious, hopeful lightheartedness which is, I daresay, part of his Irish inheritance. Besides being a genius, Finlet Dunne is a good fellow; and holds his friendships, as he does his fame, without compromise. I don't believe there is an atom of envy or malice in his composition. We have heard much of both these qualities as attaching to men of the literary stamp, and I do verily believe that a certain stage of the literary habit tends to ossification of the nobler sympathies, ankylosis of the humane impulses and the marble beard. Finlet Dunne's brain and heart are both too big for that sort of thing. I am sure he would rather do a kindness to a suffering man and brother—aye, or an erring sister-woman—than anything else in the world, say even to write a book, which Prof. Peck, Miss Gilder and others of our literati might agree is pronouncing "literary." He is absolutely without the "bighead," which has come to be looked on in this country as an inevitable accompaniment of the slightest literary distinction, and which was, beyond doubt, a contributory circumstance in a recent fearful tragedy. Yesterday I saw him eagerly greeted on Broadway by men of national celebrity, glad to claim a smile or handshake from the man who moves the mirth of our seventy millions. A fortnight ago he was welcomed no less warmly in London, where he has as many friends as in New York.

If I were writing an interview with Mr. Dunne, I should tell you that he was received by the Pope while in Rome—think of "Dooley" in the Vatican—and that at Florence he was honored with such men as Alfred Austin, Prof. Fiske and Villari, the historian. Also that he regards fighting Tim Healy as the ablest orator in the house of commons; has a great friendship and admiration for Kipling, in spite of their mutually antagonistic patriotism; loves Anthony Hope for his honest radicalism as well as his fine talents; thinks Justin McCarthy, his, a most interesting man and a marvel of linguistic acquirements; likes to lose himself in Europe and forget that he drags "Dooley" at each remove; is fondest of Italy and Ireland, and does not presume to act the censor toward the race from which he sprang, in the manner of some literary Irishmen who might be named.

Thus without giving you an "interview"—of which he has a newspaper man's whimsical dread—you get an idea of the scope of this young man. For the creator of Dooley is now become a thorough cosmopolite whose cheerful coming is looked for in many foreign cities where his fame has preceded him. The Order of Good Fellows is universal—and so is Dooley Dunne.

THE FOURTH OF JULY.

For the fifth time in the history of this city Dawson assumes holiday garb in honor of the Fourth of July, a date which must always stand out conspicuously among the occasions devoted to patriotic demonstrations.

It is by no means difficult to understand the process of reasoning by which that conclusion is reached. The series of impositions which led up to the separation of the American colonies from the mother country were not sustained by the great mass of English people.

The revolution which brought the great republic into existence was fought in defense of rights and privileges which England herself had recognized for centuries, and the lesson of the struggle was not lost.

The Fourth of July has, therefore, acquired a significance far greater than it originally possessed. As the day which ushered their country into existence it is a day which will always remain sacred in the minds and hearts of the American people.

upon the patriotic sentiments of every nation where human liberty is prized at its proper value.

The ordinance now under consideration by the Yukon council for the regulation of the liquor traffic is the first intelligible step that has been taken in that connection. The present system has never had anything to commend it. There was nothing equitable about the old arrangement and under its peculiar working opportunities for questionable transactions were altogether too numerous.

When it is considered how great a volume of water is carried in the Yukon, Klondike and other streams contiguous to the mining districts it seems absurd that there should be no system devised by which water in plenty may be delivered on the creeks. It is a case of water, water everywhere, but scarcely a drop for sluicing.

Attempt to Rob Bank

Anacortes, Wash., June 25.—An attempt was made last night to break into the Citizens' bank, and about the same hour an attempt was made to set fire to the Central house. The attempt to enter the bank was frustrated by the night patrolman, after the burglar had broken a rear window. It is believed the Central house was set fire to by associates of the bank burglar for the purpose of attracting attention to the lower end of town while the bank was being burglarized.

Diamonds From Volcanoes.

It is frequently observed that some of the most destructive and fearful agencies of nature are at the same time lavish in their gifts for the benefit of man. A volcano seems the very personification of the power of devastation, and yet, according to investigations, it seems probable that we may owe our possession of the gem that has in every age dazzled the imagination more than any other, the diamond, to the productive energy of volcanoes.

MR. CHARLTON INTERVIEWED

By a Representative of London Standard

Says Canadian Loyalty is Not Based on Trade Relations.

The following interview appears in The London Standard of May 30 with Mr. John Charlton, M.P., who was interviewed in Ottawa by the correspondent of that journal.

Mr. John Charlton, M.P., a member of the Joint High Commission, who has had a seat in the Dominion parliament since 1872, is recognized as one of the best informed men on this continent on the subject of Canada's trade relations with other countries.

In view of the approaching conference between Imperial and colonial representatives in London, when the commercial relations of the colonies with the mother land will pass under review, Mr. Charlton was asked by your correspondent as to his views upon the question of preferential trade and Imperial defence.

With regard to the general question of preferential trade, Mr. Charlton said that the proposal to admit British goods into Canada free of duty could not be entertained.

As relative to an arrangement by which Canada should bind herself to pay taxes, and furnish a quota of men for general Imperial purposes, Mr. Charlton did not believe that Canada could consent to such an arrangement, or could reasonably be asked to do so.

Strolle

The other day a mild strange called on the Stroller a voice that showed at once his teeth had dragged and were all loose asked: "Do you believe in spirits?" The Stroller, thinking the thing was about to be spiced, replied that he did believe in spirits, especially when they were all loose.

"You wayward and frazzled," exclaimed the amateur voice, "I refer to spirits with which we, the clerical and sweet communion." The Stroller apologized and said something about it without lemon.

The Stroller sighed and a visitor about the prospects of a rutabaga crop on Puget Sound the old man said: "You should fix your things spiritual instead of of the earth, earthy."

He was faithful for when a man got sick he called him daily for a month until him getting well. I really he would "throw plums" (paregorically) take time to attend a sebold turn his back on a hold or a case of twins attend what he called a "his his chief delight" the supernatural.

once the Stroller in a burlesque told the doctor that he would get the best of the day, and he replied that he would commune with spirits so long as there was a real thing in the cellar. The Stroller the secret belief.

Heard that his wife was a Spiritualist and it had long ambition to have her believe her belief. She was a perseverance advocate and would return from the rain ride through the rain.

The other day a mild appearing stranger called on the Stroller and in a voice that showed at once that his teeth had dragged anchor and were all loose asked:

"Do you believe in spirits?"

The Stroller, thinking that something was about to be sprung on him, replied that he did believe in spirits, especially when taken with little lemon.

You wayward and frail young fellow," exclaimed the man with the hoarse voice, "I refer to the spirits with which we, the elect, hold converse and sweet communion."

The Stroller apologized and in his embarrassment said something about the bottle, but the old man, who he was frustrated, appeared to notice the break but went on to say that he was a medium of the water and that he would be glad to meet a few of the elect.

Dawson. He said that the people he made a specialty of calling upon could not be reached by telephone and that to reach them by letter it was necessary in many cases to use an asbestos envelope.

The Stroller sighed and asked his visitor about the prospects for a rutabaga crop on Puget Sound and the old man said:

"You should fix your mind on things spiritual instead of an things of the earth, earthly."

The Stroller called again the visitor departed, but a sort of fog and an odor of cheap hair oil pervaded the Stroller's sanctum for the next two days and until a bill collector called and dispelled the gloom with a cheap brand of hair oil.

Speaking of Spiritualists, the Stroller once had a neighbor who called on him as he was pleased to call himself and his co-religionists were a physician and a faithful one. He was faithful for the reason that when a man got sick he would call him daily for a month to prevent him getting well. But occasionally he would "throw physic to the dogs" (paragorically speaking) and take time to attend a seance.

He would turn his back on a case of eboid or a case of twins anytime and what he called a "sitting" was his chief delight to monkey with the supernatural.

Once the Stroller in a burst of confidence told the doctor that Spiritism would get the best of him one day, and he replied that he proposed to commune with spirits imaginary so long as there was a drop of real thing in the cellar. Then the Stroller the secret of his belief.

He said that his wife was a Spiritualist and it had long been her ambition to have her husband believe in her belief. She was an ardent advocate and when her husband would return from a long trip she would return from a long trip through the rain and cold.

she would give him catnip tea instead of a whiskey toddy.

Finally he saw a glimmer of light in the misty future and he suddenly embraced the belief of Spiritualism. Then he wore a half jag all the time and his good wife thought he was communing with spirits and was very happy.

Had his wife not found some of his spiritualistic tracks down in the cellar her faith in her husband might have remained unshaken, but one day the doctor forgot to remove the step ladder and that showed where the hole in the floor connected with his mysterious cabinet.

From that time on it was off with the doctor's quiet cellar seances for everytime he had business down there his wife would insist on going with him, as she said, to hold the lantern.

One day at Skagway four years ago the Stroller heard a man remark that "bureaus" made the best pack animals that could be procured for the White Pass trail.

Yesterday a Dawson man remarked to the Stroller "I see some fellow of your name is in trouble about an employment 'burro'."

Somemen would rather be right than be president and some men would rather fan a pug prizefighter with a towel than be right.

The Stroller admires bravery any place he sees it and to him the greatest display of bravery at the swatting recital last night was witnessed in the preliminary go, when the smaller of the two men had the hardihood to venture to move around in the ring on such slim legs as he wears.

The knowledge of prizefighting is a good thing to have but unfortunately it can not be acquired without practice in the ring, and practice with an aggressive sparring partner is apt to give the eyes a dark blue tinge that would make a modest man like the Stroller ashamed to meet his pastor, for no matter how a black eye is obtained there is something about it that suggests rough and tumble conduct. Only in certain circles is, the bum lamp, the tin ear and celluloid nose an emblem of greatness and in this circle a man is not liable to meet his loving pastor unless the latter goes out on a slumming trip.

More than once in his stormy career has the Stroller mourned his lack of knowledge of the manly art and has suffered in consequence. He remembers one instance in particular when a man stole a horse and, thinking he had left the country for good, the Stroller wrote him up. The fellow had been in hiding in the neighborhood and a copy of the paper containing the write up was borne to him. That night he came to the office disguised as an old man to interview the writer of the article. Latitudinally the Stroller was the larger man but longitudinally he was out-classed. Latitudinally he goes for much in a rough and tumble and for the next two weeks the Stroller wore a Chesapeake Bay oyster under each eye.

The coroner's jury brought in a verdict that the erstwhile horseshield had come to his death through his inability to digest lead.

Not Practical Politics

London, June 20.—In an interview today on the forthcoming colonial conference, Edmund Barton, Premier of Australia, said he considered that an imperial customs union was not within the bounds of practical politics, though it might be possible many years hence. Inter-Imperial free trade now would deprive the young communities of their main source of revenue, namely, the customs, and render it impossible to carry on their internal governments successfully. Mutual tariff concessions within the empire stood on a more practical basis, and he hoped to see the difficulties in the way of such concession removed.

A learned judge who was one of the guests at a dinner was unexpectedly called upon to reply to a toast. Recovering somewhat from his surprise, he said that his situation reminded him of the story of a man who fell into the water while he was fishing.

With no little difficulty he was rescued, and, after he had regained his breath and was in a fairly comfortable condition, his rescuer asked him how he came to fall into the water. "I did not come to fall into the water," replied the unfortunate fisherman. "I came to fish."

EVERYBODY CELEBRATES

General Observance of Combined Holiday.

Firing of Guns and Pistols Ushered in the Morning—Fine Decorations.

At about 12:01 this morning the great American bird began flapping his wings and uttering loud and prolonged screams, and at intervals has been doing the same thing all day long and doubtless will continue to do so until midnight tonight.

The morning was ushered in with much firing of guns, pistols, cannon firecrackers and other equally noisy producing explosives, all calculated to remind the listener that the great day "has come."

Local canines whose lungs were unimpaired by the ravages of last winter's cold, joined in a grand chorus of howls which served to stimulate interest in and add excitement to the occasion.

Local business houses have displayed a commendable degree of patriotic spirit in decorating their establishments and in other respects taking cognizance of the fact that a celebration is in full swing.

The company stores and other large concerns are closed for the day and in general Dawson has given itself over to the observance of the occasion which includes the celebration of Dominion Day and the Fourth as well. The program of events as arranged by the committee in charge is as follows:

MR. MAIDEN'S PAPER MAIL

St. Louis Post-Dispatch Shows Gross Ignorance

Of Facts Concerning Yukon, But Still the Paper Failed to Come.

A. J. Maiden of Bonanza, British Columbia, has sent to the Sunday Post-Dispatch what is perhaps the most remarkable newspaper subscription ever sent to St. Louis.

Mr. Maiden wants the Sunday Post-Dispatch sent to him this winter, though he lives 6850 miles from the Post-Dispatch office, must have his paper sent 2800 miles by rail, 2500 miles by steamer and 2000 miles by dog sleds over Alaskan trails.

Mr. Maiden's home is at the mouth of Bonanza creek, a hundred miles southeast of Dawson, the metropolis of the Alaskan gold fields.

The Sunday Post-Dispatch weighs seven ounces. The first-class postal rate is 1 cent for each quarter ounce of mail.

Mr. Maiden desires that his paper go as first-class mail because all first-class mail is carried in a leather mail pouch under key.

The Sunday Post-Dispatch mailed to Mr. Maiden Oct. 13 is by this time nearing the dog sled stage of the journey.

Mr. Maiden ought to get his first paper in time to read it Christmas day. His letter came to St. Louis from Dawson in 28 days.

Mr. Maiden's paper must go over 2000 miles of the long journey in a very primitive way.

When they reach the port of St. Michael, just above the mouth of the Yukon river, they will be turned over to carriers who will make the inland trip to Dawson on dog sleds.

The frozen Yukon serving over much of the route as a roadway. On this long and dangerous journey of many days and great hardships there is little protection for anything but the first-class mail.

Mr. Maiden has made the trip, and he knows something of the dangers. He wants his Sunday Post-Dispatch to go to him dry and intact.

Dawson down to Bonanza. The government post department will get the Sunday Post-Dispatch to Dawson, but Mr. Maiden must either carry the paper the remainder of the distance himself or have it sent down by a traveler.

Mr. Maiden is but 1800 miles from the North Pole. He is 2000 miles in the interior from the Alaskan coast.

In the Matter of Local Market Cheapness

Best Brand of Flour Sells at $3. per Sack—Butter, Hay and Oats—Very Low.

Who would ever believe after seeing flour sell in Dawson the spring of '98 at $110 per sack that in but a little over four years the price would drop down to $2.50 and $3 per sack, yet such is the case in Dawson today.

Potatoes, new and assorted, are selling at $8 per hundred and old ones at from $5 to $7.50. Lemons and oranges are slow at $11 per case. Butter that cost from 35 to 40 cents per pound to land in Dawson can be had at from 20 to 30 cents per pound for the reason that very heavy shipments have been received by small dealers and speculators who can not afford to hold it at any price.

Hay and oats are one-third cheaper than ever before in Dawson, this week's prices being, hay 4 1/2 to 4 3/4 cents per pound and oats 5 1/2 to 5 3/4.

MEETING OF YUKON COUNCIL

Much Important Business is Transacted in a Comparitively Short Time—Eight New Bills are Introduced, Three of Which Reach Final Reading

The meeting of the Yukon council yesterday afternoon developed several important items. First, it is apparent that because the members have not met in session for six months or more, no must has been allowed to accumulate on the wheels of the territorial machinery to the detriment of the territory. From the way in which the matters were picked up one would have imagined the body of the council to have been in continuous session, worn a regular groove and would tend toward facilitating the passage of others in the least possible time. In two hours eight bills were introduced, all of which were given their first reading, seven given their second and three were read along to their third and final adoption. Some were unimportant to the general public while others were decidedly the reverse, particularly that referring to the regulation of the liquor traffic. At the introduction of the latter Commissioner outlined the policy he favors in reference to the privileges granted by the proprietors of licensed saloons. The commissioner favors the hotel as against the saloon as being gone on record as being the toleration of gambling, prostitution and other evils in such places. All the members were present at the meeting.

bridge and ask that the territorial council make a grant in aid of this project. They also desire that no exclusive ferry privileges be granted anyone within one-half mile above or below the proposed new bridge. Legal Adviser Newlands, to whom the matter was referred as to the power of the council, has expressed the opinion that such right may be given if the council is so disposed.

Wilson Foster, Lew Craden and others have petitioned for the construction of a wagon road from the mouth of O'Neill gulch to the divide, thence down the slope on the left limit of Ora Grande gulch to the mouth of the latter at 31, Eldorado. Along the route of the proposed road there are many quartz claims in the process of development and the road is sadly needed in order to facilitate the shipment of ore and the transportation of machinery and supplies.

A petition was received from J. A. Williams, Wm. White, H. S. Tobin and others asking for the right to construct an electric street railway over certain streets in the city of Dawson. The petition is similar to the one filed before the city council some weeks ago. Accompanying the petition was a copy of the ordinance they would like passed for their benefit. The matter was referred to the committee on civil justice.

Allan Cameron filed a lengthy petition referring to the licensing of slaughter houses. He states he holds a license of that character for which he paid the sum of $50. Two years ago he bought a tract of government land at the mouth of Bonanza — 23 acres—paying for the same $10 an acre. He constructed an abattoir upon modern lines at a cost of $10,000, making the investment upon the assurance of Wm. Ogilvie, then commissioner, that he would possess an exclusive privilege. Since then many others have engaged in the slaughtering business with the result that proper care is not used in the prosecution of such business and there is much unwholesome meat put upon the market and sold for human consumption. He asks that he be given the sole right to conduct a public abattoir in return for which he will pay into the territorial treasury a fair annual fee.

The chairman of the finance committee made a report upon two matters, the first that the petition of Charles Reichbach for a reduction in his assessment be refused. The second referred to a petition of Edward Spencer asking that the Munger stamp mill be exempt from taxation for the next ten years. The committee recommends that no action be taken in respect to the taxation of the property, should a general tax be levied, but would not recommend a larger quantity of gunpowder or other explosive than twenty-five pounds unless the same is stored at least one hundred feet from any building.

2. No person shall keep on any premises a greater quantity of kerosene than 120 gallons or 20 gallons of gasoline unless the same is stored at least sixty-five feet from any building.

3. No person shall set out fire within fifty feet of any building, provided, nevertheless, that a blacksmith may build a fire within fifty feet of his shop for the purpose of his trade.

4. No person shall deposit ashes in any wooden vessel unless it is lined with metal.

5. There shall be a space of at least nine inches between any stovepipe and partition or floor through which it passes unless such stovepipe is surrounded in such partition or floor by a thimble of brick, cement or concrete at least two inches in width and of the full thickness of such partition or floor, or by a metal safety flue with an air space of at least three inches. At least twelve inches shall intervene between any stove pipe in use and the partition or wall nearest thereto.

6. Every proprietor of any house more than one story high, with a roof having a pitch greater than one foot in three shall keep a ladder on such roof near the chimney thereof.

7. The commissioner may by proclamation published in the Yukon Gazette and in one newspaper published in the district affected by such proclamation (if there is one published in said district) establish fire limits within the boundaries of which no person shall erect, or after a date therein named, maintain any building or structure of any description constructed, as to its outer walls and roof, of any material other than wood, brick, stone or metal, and any building or other structure erected or maintained contrary to this section shall be deemed to be a nuisance and may be pulled down and destroyed without compensation, by any person under direction of the officer for the time being commanding the Northwest Mounted Police in said district.

8. Any person guilty of a violation of any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be liable, on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars and costs, and in default of payment, to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months.

A bill to amend chapter 63 of the consolidated ordinances of the Northwest territories was introduced and advanced to its second reading. An ordinance relating to the liquor question was given its first reading and one respecting the importation of and traffic in intoxicating liquor was also introduced.

Mr. Justice Duggan introduced a bill to amend the judiciary act, it reaching its third and final reading and was passed. It concerns the length of time in which a defendant to an action may file his appearance after being served with a summons. In certain instances twenty days were allowed. This is now changed. If the defendant resides within ten miles of the court house he must make his appearance within ten days; for each additional ten miles he is allowed another day. Section 613 of the ordinance is amended by adding after the word "expeditious" where it last occurs in the section, "but not within five days from the day of filing such dispute, note, exclusive of the day of filing."

The bill to amend the Dawson City charter was given its first and second reading and would have advanced to its consideration by the committee on the whole had not Councilman Prudhomme objected to what he considered unnecessary haste. He asked that further consideration of the bill be at least deferred until today, which was agreed to.

The ordinance for the better regulation of traffic on the public highways passed its first and second reading, was considered by the committee on the whole and will come up for its final reading at the next sitting of the council, probably today. A brief summary of its principal provisions is as follows:

Vehicles meeting must turn to the right. If one is overtaken by another traveling at a greater speed the former must turn out and let the latter pass. In passing around the faster vehicle must go to the left. In case the slower vehicle by reason of a heavy load it is impracticable to turn out the driver should stop and if necessary assist the faster vehicle to pass around. No wagon or other vehicle shall carry a load exceeding 2000 pounds unless the wagon tires are at least four inches in

W. P. GALVIN'S WATER SUPPLY THEORY

July 3rd, 1902

Editor Nugget,

Dear Sir,—You ask in your editorial of 30th June for solutions of the water difficulty problem, so I send you the following theory which I think feasible.

The accompanying cut shows the Yukon river and Klondike river in the vicinity of Dawson city and the dotted lines show the water from Klondike City shall flow to the N. C. Co.'s wharf. Riprap wall should be built along dotted lines and the enclosure should be filled in. This would add six or eight acres more to Dawson town site and be a big improvement on the present water front.

We will suppose that the government builds a large frame building to be called a sluicing station at X on cut, fit it up with sluice tables, water tanks, boilers, pumps, etc., so as to operate in winter as well as summer, build a tramway up the various creeks and use dirt cars to be hauled by horses or electricity, haul the dirt to the sluicing station for so much per yard, test it by panning and allow so many cents per hundred weight, sluice the dirt and fill shallow place with tailings. In case miners on gulches or side creeks, hills, etc., wanted to tap the main line they should be furnished with the rails and ties and be allowed so much per mile for building same, which amounts are to be paid by hauling dirt to sluicing station. When wheat can be raised at an expense of 40c per bushel, hauled 16 miles to market, docked, dried and graded and sold for 60c per bushel and proves to be a paying business, I think this low grade dirt could be handled profitably. I cannot say anything in favor of supplying water to each individual claim.

W. P. GALVIN

was considered by the committee on the whole. That respecting the sale of intoxicating liquors was also given its second reading, but was not considered second reading.

It was nearly five o'clock when the council adjourned. No session was held last night, but the august body will again convene this afternoon at three.

Old Stiffs vs. Old Stiffs

Sheriff Ellbeck, himself an old stiff, has got together a collection of eight other old stiffs.

Old Stiff Charles Lamb of No. 1 Eldorado, has likewise an aggregation in the way of eight old stiffs.

This evening at 7 o'clock on the barrack's grounds the two aggregations of old stiffs, nine relics on each side, will play baseball for the old stiff championship of the Yukon.

It may be funny today, but "old stiff" will be a frightful reality tomorrow.

Ladies are especially invited to attend the game this evening.

Here on a Visit

Dr. G. Madore, surgeon of the N. W. M. P. at Nelkirk, is in the city on a visit to his son and to his fellow officers. Dr. Madore is from a standpoint of years, the oldest man in the Yukon police service. He came north four years ago and was stationed at Bennett when that town had an excuse for being on the map.

The first big shipment of this year's ladies' summer goods was received this morning by Mrs. C. Loenders. The latest shirts, waists, corsets, etc., also complete stock of hair goods.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT

May happen at any time, especially during a large celebration, and if such a misfortune should happen to you it is always well to know where you can get bandages, lint, antiseptics, or any drugs that may be necessary, and it is of vital importance that the above should be fresh. That's the kind Cribbs, the Druggist, carries. Outside prices (freight added).
