DEMETER'S DAUGHTER.

Mrs. De Lettante had invited a crowd of people to hear a white-haired man of lofty artistic pedigree read...

Presently Mrs. De Lettante came up with a tall, fair young man of a studious aspect, whom she made known to Miss Wiese...

Dr. Douglass drifted away with Mrs. De Lettante, who said, going: "Do you know Mrs. Wiese? There she is, all by herself in that corner..."

"She has a gift. To my thinking, it belongs to the world." "And so she will dim her loveliness behind the footlights, and lose the bloom of her reticence and modesty..."

"Not necessarily. An ordinary woman might. An artist is impersonal; her own identity is completely merged..."

But there were times when, in spite of all this, Hilda De Bonne Fortune asked herself whether her grand marriage had been worth while...

Those days were shared almost invariably with Mr. De Bonne Fortune. He had for many years been writing vigorously as had Douglass, appearing at the Wiese's dingy little house...

"I was by no means sure it was you, Madame De Bonne Fortune," Dr. Douglass said. And in truth she was sufficiently altered to have made recognition difficult...

After that, Hilda never rested until she had seen her mother face to face. Her conversation with Dr. Douglass brought up the past so vividly that she could not be satisfied without...

granted, he went on: "My child, never look backward; it does no good." To the outward seeming she lived a golden life...

The poor little duchess was in despair. Whom was there to turn to? She agonized over the matter for some time...

So she made her peace with life, with nature, as the pagans would have said, and she was content with her lot...

"I was by no means sure it was you, Madame De Bonne Fortune," Dr. Douglass said. And in truth she was sufficiently altered to have made recognition difficult...

After that, Hilda never rested until she had seen her mother face to face. Her conversation with Dr. Douglass brought up the past so vividly that she could not be satisfied without...

them, and fills with them the vases in Hilda's room, and makes ready for her darling. And the pale little duchess rejoices in the beauty of the spring flowers...

J. E. COLLINS, EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
FREDERICTON, APRIL 17, 1879.

Moontlight.

A business occasionally requires us to pass through the different streets by night as well as by day; we invariably find a number of young men in some secret spot, secluded even from the lamp's glare. They are generally leaning against some dilapidated building, whether they are drawn thither through the influence of association as symbols of themselves, or whether, Samson-like, they are holding it up, we have never ascertained.

Many of our young men are, we regret to say, leaving their birth place and homes whom we can ill spare, to seek a home and a fortune in a foreign land. Did some of those wallflowers emigrate they would simply leave their country for their country's good. We could well spare a few of them, for they are merely the drones living on the honey made by the children of industry.

When we see those waifs hanging around the corners with a pipe in their mouth we put them down for the penitentiary or the Poor House. One of these places seems to be their only aspiration and ambition. The only object of their life is who shall swear loudest and deepest, and most thoroughly insult God and decency by every foul expression that their corrupted imagination can conceive.

If these are to be the future fathers of our country what a beautiful prospect we have before us! As an illustration of what we say, we saw in the public hall the other evening a lad with his cap on chewing and spitting to his hearts content, and no one to interrupt him. We know a Hall in this city where such a thing would not be tolerated for a moment. We asked ourselves had that boy a father and mother or was he a mere gamine cast adrift on the surface of time, without friend or affection. Had he had any early training he would not, it occurred to us, have thus vainly violated the amenities of life.

If this boy had parents, and they were told that their son—beloved boy—had so demeaned himself, they would be insulted, and perhaps bring an action of defamation of character against the charitable-kind friend who told them that their boy was not as good, or rather his ways were not such as they should like to see.

Boys leave the corners and the abodes of darkness, if you have ambition to be men of standing. If you have no home where you can spend the evenings in amusement and intellectual delight, there are opportunities elsewhere. If your father is lounging about the streets and shops to kill time, know that this is what has made you what you are—an abortion. If your mothers are gossiping in their neighbor's house, with open eyes and extended ears, to learn the weakness and infirmities of our frail nature, learn that this is another reason why you are what you are.

Boys aspire to be what God intended you to be—not mere automata and mechanical instruments to be used by every usurper and tyrant that may perchance wield a sceptre; but as free and independent children of God's world. Avoid, therefore, the corners and the slums of vice and you will be men hereafter, if not ruling, at least dictating the ways and means whereby we should be governed to be happy.

Vulgar Fifth.

It seems to us a Bill passed the House of Commons last winter, authorizing postmasters to suppress papers, periodicals, &c., of an immoral tendency passing through their respective post offices. Well, we have heard said "what's in a name?" But it seems to us some of our postmasters now-a-days regard us bad or immoral literature only what has been pronounced as such.

still somebody must place such poisonous bits on the "index expurgatoribus." Every postmaster ought to know how to distinguish vile from wholesome literature.

There comes through the Post Office of this city, a certain vile sheet whose only recommendation is its brutish vulgarity and immoral tone. Not alone this, but it is vended publicly in a bookstore in this city and not at all strange to say finds a ready sale. You know there is a certain class of unclean animals who devour bait and garbage that is fetid, attracted by the stench, and will pass by wholesome food. So with the purchaser, and the filth purchased. We have also been informed that a sheet less vile indeed than that above referred to, but on the index of the authorities, and called the Police Gazette, or something of that kind, finds its way to more than a hundred unfortunate young people in this city; and this it is said through the connivance of some attaches of the post office.

Now we want the postmaster to suppress these reservoirs of filth and vulgarity, and keep a very close eye on those for whose acts he is responsible. We call the attention of the Police Magistrate to the matter, so far as it comes within his duty.

The Czar.

A sword more terrible than that of Damocles seems to hang over the house of the Czars. Those unfortunate monarchs fully exemplify the saying that "Uncasy lies the head that wears the crown."

The present Czar, like his predecessor, seems to have been pursued by some nameless phantom. While he sleeps he dreams of a gleaming dagger, while awake death lurks behind every arras. We look beyond physical causes, or the region of the supernatural for an explanation of this. Macbeth grasps at an aerial dagger while he exclaims:

"Is this a dagger that I see before me?— Just as the Czar sees the assassin's blade pointed at his breast. Macbeth's dagger was of the mind, but the overheated imagination gave it a corporeal form. The Czar is ever afraid of death, for he knows his rule is one unpopular to the people. Liberty in his domain belong not to the thousands who are subject to the knout or the eternal frosts of Siberia.

There is no free press,—no free action,—all is within the power of a despot who rules as good will, caprice, or malice, may lead him. Hence the thousands of secret societies, sworn to each other by the most fearful oaths, known to each other by the most subtle signs. The knout, exile, or death, cannot eradicate these societies. From these spring up the dagger that over harasses the unhappy ruler of the Russias. The terrifying vision now assumes a material shape. We get the following telegram in Monday's papers:

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF THE CZAR.
(Special to GLOBE.)
St. PETERSBURG, April 14.—While the Czar was taking his usual morning walk, early to-day, near the Palace, four shots from a revolver were fired at him. The man who fired was arrested by the crowd, which the firing attracted. The city is now being decorated in token of thankfulness of the Czar's escape. The wretch who attempted the life of the Czar is, no doubt, one of those who will be satisfied with nothing short of royal blood.

Of all the papers in the province, on the Chatham Branch matter the St. John News should keep its mouth shut. Last fall it howled for an investigation, howled for measures that would protect the interests of the country from the "Chatham Branch swindlers." It barked and ranted for what it knew not. It threw mud at the company and at the Government; and, with scolding knife raised, was ever on the war path. But when the Government takes the only possible steps to satisfy the country and silence the yelpers, the very party to which the News is a curse, brings in a want of confidence for their doing so.

The News concludes an incoherent burst of froth on this subject with the following impertinence: "The spectacle through all its stages has been a repulsive one. And yet a resolution expressing the common feeling on these transactions was voted down by a large majority."

And why voted down by such a large majority," Mr. Willis? Because you Sir, were a member of the Opposition; and rest assured so long as you "lambaste" the present Government so long will it live and prosper. Take the hint?

The Fredericton "Star" contains that "Mr. Elder is not in the Opposition." (in local politics.) Perhaps the Star will be good enough to explain just where Mr. Elder is. A good many people, for a very long time, have been unsuccessful in trying to find this out, and if the Star will explain it will confer a favor.—Moncton Times.

The Times will no doubt remember of having read of the little boy who tried to stand on two stools, but tumbled between both. That is where Mr. Elder has been. But the Times also remembers having read, no doubt, of the prodigal son who strayed away from his father's house, but who in the end came back, after finding that the "hogs thrown to the swine" were not so palatable as the old man's luscious cakes. Let the Times believe us when we say that a vision appears to us, in which Mr. Elder is hastening, having supped on slops and crusts, back again to his first love, and to the land flowing with milk and honey. Mr. Elder is therefore homebound, beloved Squire!

School Bills in France.

Infidelity has a deep root in France. The spirit of evil that wrought misery for France in the past, that turned her streets and places into human shambles, seem still to slumber, and seeds of it are in the Assembly. Two School Bills have been presented. One lays down,—

"That no religious order, if not legally recognized by the State, can impart instructions, and in the case where such are recognized the teachers, like lay convents, must possess a certificate of competency. This strikes at the multitude of Jesuits who conduct educational establishments, and the 30,000 Christian brethren and nuns who teach in the national schools without a diploma of capacity."

The second is no less pointed at religion, and affects collegiate education. Heaven help France if she again fall into the hands of butchers and demons!

The Telegraph speaks in riddles. He calls the Government side a "respectable sized elephant,"—perhaps he would call the other side a huge donkey,—talking in this style:—

"They (the Government) have on hand an elephant of respectable proportions. It is not such an elephant as the inexorable tyrant monster known as the National Policy, which tramples New Brunswick interests in the dust, but it is certainly one which requires careful handling, seeing that it seems to be in harmony with the standpoint of the Government in the previous session."

We do agree with the Telegraph that this elephant requires careful handling,—for he may deal destruction to his enemies. We therefore recommend Mr. Elder to a seat, right up on his back.

It appears the French Conservatives would blot out Letellier without giving him the ordinary privilege of defense. They recommend his dismissal to the home Government without notification. The Quebec Government, however, sends Mr. Joly and Sir Francis Hincks, who will plead the case of their Lieut. Governor before Her Majesty's Privy Council.

Are those old buildings to remain an eye sore scattered on the square this summer? Is that wood pile to be an ornament of the tout ensembles O. fie, whoever is responsible.

Some Predictions by Mr. D. G. Croly.

The following is an abstract of the predictions developed in the course of an interesting conversation reported in the New York Graphic, the prophet being, we believe, Mr. D. G. Croly, who was lately the managing editor of the journal named.

Died in Harness.

Only a fallen horse, stretched out there on the road. Stretched in the broken shafts, and crushed by the heavy load.

CHARLIE ROSS.

It is generally supposed, says a New York paper, that since the fall of 1877, when Mosher and Douglas, the supposed abductors of Charlie Ross, were killed at Bay Ridge, Long Island, all search for the abductors ceased, and that the efforts of Mr. Christian K. Ross were then directed to the finding of his child alive.

A Forgotten Calamity.

The recent inundation in Hungary, though on a larger scale, bears resemblance to the terrible calamity that devastated the Swiss valley of Martigny half a century ago, which is still remembered as one of the most formidable floods ever witnessed in that part of Europe.

The Credit System in Japan.

A New York paper says: "The many Americans who have visited Japan recently, have been struck by the credit system (the water) way, really next door to the big shop of the public—have been struck by the almost universal prevalence of the credit system there.

THE BEST MUSIC BOOKS.

THE CHURCH OFFERING. By J. L. Emerson, (15, or 25 per dozen), has the best arranged and largest collection of the Episcopal Church, ever published.

MUSTANG

Survival of the Fittest. A FAMILY MEDICINE THAT HAS HEALED MILLIONS DURING 35 YEARS! MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.

A Battle in a Printing Office.

A letter from St. Petersburg to the New York Herald gives details of the desecration of the printing office of a secret Nihilist printing office which followed the letter says: The policemen went in by the way indicated for the use of the inmates of the house, but were first at the moment they made their appearance.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Son-shine—That made by a bootblack. There are in Texas 175,504,500 acres of land. Approaching a crisis—Walking toward a crisis.

Everything Goes Wrong.

In the best of the world, everything goes wrong. Constipation, dyspepsia, contamination of the blood, imperfect assimilation, are certain to ensue.

Tripping Up a Terror.

While on a tour in Ireland the terror fell ill, and was attended by a young aspirant to operatic honors of exceeding diminutive stature and mean capacity.

THE PHOENIX TOBACCO COMPANY.

A FAVORABLE NOTICED.—The good reputation of "Brown's Bronchial Troches" for the relief of Coughs, Colds and Throat Diseases has given them a favorable notoriety.

WILBOR'S COMPOUND OF PURE COD LIVER OIL AND LIME.

To the Consumptive.—Wilbor's Compound of Cod Liver Oil and Lime, with the addition of the Phosphate of Lime with a healing property, is the only medicine of the kind.

THE NEW YORK SUN.

DAILY, 4 pages, 55 cents a month; $6.50 a year. THE SUN is published every day, except on Sundays and public holidays.

THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT.

The German government has prohibited the emigration, lest the alarming pictures of an easier and happier life in other lands should encourage young men in escaping the detested years of barracks life.
