Control of Shipping Order No. 1.

On the recommendation of the Minister of Shipping and under the authority of the War Measures Act, 1914, and Acts in amendment thereof and under Sec. 3, Cap 20, 8 & 9 Geo. V., entitled "The Departmental (Shipping Act), 1918, His Excellency the Governor in Council has been pleased to approve the following regulations regarding the control and regulation of shipping:

On and after this date

(1) The managing Owner or Agent of any vessel or steamer owned or registered in the Dominion of Newfoundland or of any vessel or steamer chartered in whole or part by or to any person residing or trading in the Dominion of Newfoundland before allowing it to proceed to any port or between any ports outside the Dominion, shall send a written notice of the proposed voyage to the Minister of Shipping at his office in the Court House, St. John's, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on any week day, and shall at the same time submit a copy of the proposed charter party (if any) and the rates of freight for the voyage.

(2) The Minister reserves the right to approve or disapprove of said voyage, charter party, and rates of freight, or any of them, and to alter or vary same in whole or in part.

(3) No vessel or steamer as defined in Clause 1 hereof shall proceed upon a voyage to any foreign port or between foreign ports unless and until the owner or agent has received official notification of the approval of the Minister of Shipping.

(4) The Minister of Shipping may instruct the Department of Customs to refuse a clearance or entry to any vessel or steamer to or from any port in Newfoundland to or from any port or ports outside the Dominion; and may also instruct any collector to withdraw or cancel any such clearance or entry already given which in the opinion of the Minister of Shipping for any reason should or ought to be withdrawn or cancelled.

(5) Any Master of any vessel or steamer sailing without a clearance or whose clearance has been withdrawn shall be guilty of a breach of these regulations.

(6) Any person guilty of a breach of any of these regulations shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding $5,000, or in default of imprisonment not exceeding six months, to be recovered and enforced in a summary manner before any Magistrate or Justice of the Peace, and such penalty shall be in addition to and not in substitution for any penalty to which any person may be subject under Section 8 of the War Measures Act, 1914.

Happiness Secured AT A Heavy Cost!

CHAPTER VII. A VERITABLE GHOST.

MY first impulse is to fly from the room; but before I have time to gain my feet, a shadow falls on the window, and the next moment a tall, gray, shadowy figure, with a pair of wild eyes and a mass of disheveled hair falling about its shoulders, rises, as it seems to me, from the shrubs beneath it.

A veritable ghost, if ever there was one, that does not wait for the cold light of the moon to haunt the earth; and with my heart in my mouth, and a sensation as of every drop of blood going out at the ends of my fingers, I stand for one dreadful moment clutching at the nearest chair for support, staring into the face of that dim, spectral figure with a feeling that my limbs are turning to stone beneath me.

The figure is a woman's, with an almost unnatural paleness and shadowiness in the wasted form, to which a long dress of some gray material clings close as a winding sheet; yet with a certain wild grace in its every movement, a thrilling intensity in the large eyes, lighting a face that looks absolutely deathlike in its gray, ashy pallor.

Never in all my life have I seen or conceived within my own mind a figure more ghostlike and startling, but almost before I have time to draw my breath it throws up its long arms with a wild, despairing gesture, and disappears as suddenly as it came.

I have never faintly in all my life; but I am certainly very near it now, as I stand for one frightened, breathless moment, clinging to the back of the old tapestry-covered chair at which I have clutched in my terror for support, wondering, with a beating heart and a stealthy glance at the ghostly shadows hovering in the dim corners of the room, what can have become of my companions, and whether it would or would not be advisable to keep my own counsel as to what I have seen.

To tell the truth, I have grave doubts as to how my story would be received. I have no wish to be laughed at as a convert to the Deepdene ghost superstition; and in the event of its being seriously regarded, there is no good purpose to be served, so far as I am able to perceive, by creating an unfavourable impression on our new home before we have taken possession of it even.

A moment's reflection and the sound of returning steps decide me. Whatever the nature of that mysterious apparition—and can it be that there is some truth in the ghostly stories attached to the old place after all—something tells me that my wisest course will be silence, at least for the present.

At the same moment the door opens, and Addie, followed by Mr. Warden, enters the room, which I am secretly hoping must be too dark by this time to betray the pallor from which I am painfully conscious. I have not yet recovered.

"Did you think we had quite deserted you, Lesley?" she asks. "Thanks to Mr. Warden's excellent suggestions, it is all most beautifully settled. We have chosen three of the best rooms upstairs for bedrooms. The one for poor Len opens into a second apartment, which may be converted with very little trouble into a studio. This room is to be our drawing-room; if we make friends, as Mr. Warden assures me we shall, we must have some place in which to receive them, you know, Lesley. And the one on the opposite side of the hall, with the great bay windows looking into the garden, will do admirably for dining and sitting room. These will meet our requirements, in addition to the kitchen—a roomy, low-ceiled old place with great beams that seem to threaten one's eyebrows, and a wonderful old table, long and high enough to dine a regiment of giants, and with great carved legs, ever so much bigger round than my waist. Mr. Warden tells me the table once belonged to the refectory of the monks in the days when Deepdene was a monastery."

Greatly to my relief, for I am by no means certain as to the steadiness of my voice, I am spared the necessity of answering by Mr. Warden's suggestion that it is time to think of our return.

His suggestion is carried, without dissent. With a sense of relief I escape from the moldy atmosphere of the house, and follow my sister into the open air, while our escort lingers behind to close and lock the door.

It is a pleasant evening, with a golden light in the west, a perfume of young spring grass and sweet spring blossoms in the air; but to me, haunted as I am by the memory of that weird figure, there is something in the sight of the deserted house, with its quaint roof and tall background of dark firs, rising inky black against the pale primrose of the sky, into which crescent moon has begun to rise, that strikes me as gloomy and depressing to the last degree.

"I am afraid the garden will prove our chief difficulty," Addie is saying, as she saunters down the weedy path that leads to the gate. "What shall we do with it, I wonder. It is worse than the house."

"If that is a ruin, this is an utter wilderness; though, Heaven be praised! a picturesque wilderness. Those broken statues and tangled shrubs will just please Len, dear old Bohemian that he is; and oh! Lesley, think of the quiet days we shall have here for our work, Len and I—of the pictures we shall paint, the stories we shall write, inspired by the romance of Deepdene! Why, Lesley," she adds, in a tone of surprise, as she catches sight of my face, "what is the matter?—what makes you so pale, dear? Are you ill?"

"Ill!" I laugh, with a desperate effort at cheerfulness. "When was I ever ill? I believe it is the shadow of the trees that makes me look ghostly; and much as I love greenery, I believe there are rather too many trees about Deepdene. But come, Addie, Mr. Warden is waiting to put us back into our vehicle."

About halfway between Deepdene and Hanbury we are passed on the road by a couple of riders.

"A beautiful girl, with a mass of fair hair fastened under her hat, in a habit that could hardly have been more faultless as to fit and unexceptionable as to style had it been designed for exhibition in Rotten Row; and a young fellow, whose dress is equally suggestive of London.

Without slackening speed the fair equestrian lifts her whip, and displays her white teeth to our escort as she passes, bestowing at the same time upon Addie and me a glance that is not suggestive of unmitigated approval.

"What a pretty girl, Mr. Warden! Do you know her?" Addie inquires, too much interested in the appearance of the fair-haired horse-woman to notice the cynical expression with which that gentleman is staring after the receding figures of the riders.

"Yes, it is Gwendolen Clitheroe," is the response, "the daughter of a rector of Forton, that pretty, picturesque little village we passed about midway between Deepdene and Hanbury. Miss Clitheroe—who has spent two or three seasons in London with her aunt, Lady Woodville, a fashionable widow, who, on a not very extensive income, is said to somehow contrive to keep up a well-furnished house in the neighborhood of Harley Street, in which she gives delightful little dinners and lively receptions—is considered quite the beauty par excellence in this part of the world; and how it is that she has not contrived to make a grand match during her London season is a mystery with which the Hanbury mind seems quite unable to grapple. That was her brother riding with her," he supplements. "He is in the army, but home just now on leave of absence. I am not so well acquainted with Captain Clitheroe as with the rest of the family at the rectory, which consists, when the son is away, of the rector and his two daughters, of whom Gwendolen, who has kept her father's house since the death of her mother some three years since, is the eldest."

Whatever the character and history of the mysterious inmate of Ivy Cottage, we are evidently destined to remain in ignorance of it; for, although she still continues to come to us for a few hours daily, lending us a helping hand with our cleaning and dusting, Mrs. Martin maintains an inviolable silence on the subject of Mrs. Lennox—a mysterious being, whom, as I learn from other sources, no one in the neighborhood has ever spoken with or even seen; a fact that does not very much tend to allay my curiosity on the subject—a curiosity that is increased a hundredfold by an incident that serves to connect Mr. Ernest Warden with the mystery of the lonely little cottage, in my mind at least.

Nothing is better than a clocked and ribbed silk stocking if one wishes to be conservative and at the same time smart.

CHAPTER VIII. THE SOMBER WOMAN.

THERE is one singular character which I must mention in connection with the early days at Deepdene. This is a woman named Martin, who has been sent to us by Mr. Warden to assist us in making the deserted old house presentable.

She is a wizened old creature, who always appears in a rusty black dress and a hideous cap, and looks not unlike a resuscitated corpse.

It is this rather somber specimen of industry who shares our existence in the midday old rooms for these first few days.

Old Mrs. Martin accompanies us on our exploring expeditions, and it is she who discovers for us the hidden recesses of the kitchen stairs, and points out the mysteries of antique closets. It is she, too, who sets out an unappetizing cup of tea on the top of a dresser or a wash-basin, and expects us to enjoy it—regardless of the surroundings.

She is a ghostlike old creature, with a ghastly relish for horrors, and in the course of acquaintance she develops a passion for regaling herself with tea and toast that is only equalled by her fondness for relating stories about the deaths of half the defunct residents of Hanbury, over which she appears to have presided for the last twenty years or more.

Not the most cheerful companion for a couple of half-frightened girls in a lonely, ghost-haunted old house like Deepdene; but, finding her both willing and strong, we decide to make the best of her.

An old woman in a tousel cap, and with a predilection for horrors, is a trifle better than nobody, we think, as we listen to her stories with all the patience we can muster.

One thing about Mrs. Martin, stupid and uninteresting as I think her, puzzles and perplexes me sorely. Of herself and her own circumstances she never speaks. Voluble and communicative as she is about other things, this is a subject on which no amount of questioning seems able to extract from her the faintest information. Of her own life and affairs she tells us nothing, beyond the bare fact that she lives in a little white house with green shutters, and a mass of neglected ivy growing up over its roof, which is visible from the windows of Deepdene.

"Do you mean the little place they call Ivy Cottage, Mrs. Martin?" I exclaim, in response to this very scanty piece of hardy-extracted information. "And you live there by yourself? Dear me, how very lonely you must be!"

"Oh, no, miss, not quite alone! Didn't you know? I thought Mr. Warden might have explained. I live there as attendant on a lady named Lennox," she replied—an uneasy look in the pale, white-lashed eyes, that never seem to look any one straight in the face.

"Attendant on a lady!" I repeat, in astonishment. "Why, Mrs. Martin, I wonder your mistress is willing to spare you to come to us."

"Well, miss, you see there is not a great deal to do at the cottage, being but one in family, as one may say."

"Then Mrs. Lennox has no children? Is she a widow? and does she receive no visitors?"

"She is quite alone; and her health is too bad, poor dear, for her to care about company, though of course I couldn't have been spared for any other reason than to oblige Mr. Warden, who has been a good friend to me ever since I lost my poor husband, who was a clerk in the office in old Mr. Warden's time," is the reply; and then her thin, bluish-white lips shut like a vise, and Mrs. Martin refuses to speak further.

Whatsoever the character and history of the mysterious inmate of Ivy Cottage, we are evidently destined to remain in ignorance of it; for, although she still continues to come to us for a few hours daily, lending us a helping hand with our cleaning and dusting, Mrs. Martin maintains an inviolable silence on the subject of Mrs. Lennox—a mysterious being, whom, as I learn from other sources, no one in the neighborhood has ever spoken with or even seen; a fact that does not very much tend to allay my curiosity on the subject—a curiosity that is increased a hundredfold by an incident that serves to connect Mr. Ernest Warden with the mystery of the lonely little cottage, in my mind at least.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

THE Sunlight enterprise and organization for production, manufacture, and distribution were made complete long before the war. But during the war the difficulties and costs of transport have been multiplied. Therefore, Lever Brothers have purchased a fleet of steamships to convey raw materials direct from their plantations to Port Sunlight.

The Housewife is given the full benefit of this enterprise, and thus, in spite of the difficulties caused in England by the war, Sunlight Soap remains the best soap throughout the world, and gives the fullest value for the housewife's money.

WAR SUMMARY.

The Germans are now imposing strong opposition to the further advance of the Allied troops along the Nettle River from the east of Soissons to the region west of Rheims. Meanwhile, however, the main body of the enemy army continues to make their way toward the Aisne, to the north of which stream they hope somewhat to reach a haven of safety from the persistent onslaughts of the British, French, American and Italian troops who in less than three weeks have all but blotted out the Soissons-Rheims salient. Notwithstanding the bringing into play by the enemy of large numbers of machine guns and artillery of heavier calibre, and the employment of large numbers of picked troops, including the well-tried Prussian Guards and the Bavarians, and despite the fact that the rains have sent the Yselle out of bounds and turned into quagmires, the Allied troops have forced crossings of the River at a number of new points, and on the north side of the stream are engaging the enemy. The latest French official communication, which recent ly has been extremely modest in chronicle gains made by the Allies, says that Monday saw only local engagements and that the situation of the battlefield is without change. Correspondents with the Allied headquarters, however, assert that at several points between Semouss, which lies to the east of Soissons and Fismes, and between Fismes and the Mulay, the French and Americans have taken further ground across the Yselle and have nullified German counter attacks delivered in an endeavour to recover their losses. Between the Mulay and Champigny the Prussian Guards and the Bavarians again suffered heavy losses in their efforts to hold back their antagonists. The Germans jealously are guarding this part of the line, as an advance there to any considerable depth would compel them to entirely lose their hold on the territory in which they are entrenched around the shell-torn city of Rheims. In addition to the heavy infantry actions here, violent bombardments also are in progress. It is not expected in Allied military circles that it is the purpose of the Germans to turn about and face their enemies south of the Aisne. The Hill region to the north of the Aisne, probably the old Chemin-de-Dames battlefield, is considered the more probable sector in which the German Crown Prince will elect again to test the mettle of the men of General Foch's command. It is not beyond the realm of possibility that the greater portion of the western battlefield shortly may undergo material changes in position. From the southeast of Amiens near Mont Didier, northward to the region around Ypres, the German front seems all tremble with expectancy. In addition to a retreat around Mont Didier to the west bank of the Aisne River, retrograde movements in the face of attacks around Albert and an evacuation of territory over a front of half a mile north of La Bassée Canal, the Germans are nervously bombarding British and French positions at various points, possibly with the idea of ascertaining their strength. WAR SUMMARY.

The Germans are not imposing strong opposition to the further advance of the Allied troops along the Neale River from the east of Soissons to the region west of Rheims. Meanwhile, however, the main body of the enemy army continues to make their way toward the Aisne, to the north of which stream they hope somewhere to reach a haven of safety from the persistent onslaughts of the British, French, American and Italian troops, who in less than three weeks have all but blotted out the Soissons-Rheims salient. Notwithstanding the bringing into play by the enemy of large numbers of machine guns and artillery of heavier calibre, and the employment of large numbers of picked troops, including the well-tried Prussian Guards and the Bavarians, and despite the fact that the rains have sent the Vesle out of bounds and turned into quagmires, the Allied troops have forced crossings of the river at a number of new points, and on the north side of the stream are engaging the enemy. The latest French official communication, which reveals that has been extremely modest in chronicling gains made by the Allies, says that Monday saw only local engagements and that the situation on the battlefield is without change.

Correspondents with the Allied headquarters, however, assert that at several points between Semois, which lies to the east of Soissons and Fismes, and between Fismes and the Meuse, the French and Americans have taken further ground across the Vesle and have nullified German counter attacks delivered in an endeavour to recover their losses. Between the Meuse and Chamigny the Prussian Guards and the Bavarians again suffered heavy losses in their efforts to hold back their antagonists. The Germans jealously are guarding this part of the line, as an advance there to any considerable depth would compel them to entirely lose their hold on the territory in which they are entrenched around the shell-torn city of Rheims. In addition to the heavy infantry actions here, violent bombardments also are in progress. It is not expected in Allied military circles that it is the purpose of the Germans to turn about and face their enemies south of the Aisne. The Hill region to the north of the Aisne, probably the old Chemin-des-Dames battlefield, is considered the more probable sector in which the German Crown Prince will elect again to test the mettle of the men of General Foch's command. It is not beyond the realm of possibility that the greater portion of the western battlefield shortly may undergo material changes in positions. From the southeast of Amiens near Mont Didier, northward to the region around Ypres, the German front seems all tremble with expectancy. In addition to a retreat around Mont Didier to the west bank of the Avre River, retrograde movements in the face of attacks around Albert and an evacuation of territory over a front of half a mile north of La Bassee Canal, the Germans are nervously bombarding British and French positions at various points, possibly with the idea of ascertaining their strength. The Hebuterne, La Basse, Haschbrock and Ypres sectors are being particularly chosen for the attention of the German artillerymen. Just what the Germans have in mind cannot be foretold. It is known, however, that Crown Prince Rupprecht, of Bavaria, during the early stages of the Allied offensive on the Soissons-Rheims sector, sent a large number of his men to the aid of his sorely tried Imperial cousin, the Bavarian Crown Prince thereby weakening his line, while Field Marshal Haig's front was not materially touched by withdrawals. It is not improbable, therefore, that Rupprecht is worrying somewhat over this diminution in strength and already has placed barriers between himself and the forces fronting him to ward off possible attacks, and is endeavoring to ascertain what chances he has to hold other positions from which he had intended ultimately to launch a drive toward the Channel ports.

CAPTURE OF BOOBY.

PARIS, Aug. 5. Each day adds to the booty captured by the Allies. It will be impossible to take full stock for some time but the booty includes a considerable number of 77 millimetre guns, many of which were found in the depths of the woods of Arcy and Tournelle and the forest of Fere. The number of 77 millimetre shells salvaged up to the present totals 1,500,000.

General Mangin's army captured 500 cannon and 600 trench mortars during the fighting along the River Oise last Friday, says the Petit Parisien.

LULL IN FIGHTING.

PARIS, Aug. 5. There was a lull in the battle along the Soissons-Rheims front last night, and the breathing spell extended into this morning. The Germans are being favored by the weather conditions which have transformed the Vesle River banks into swamps and morasses, and they are making a stiffer stand here than was anticipated.

GERMANS MARCHING NORTHWARD.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE AISNE, Aug. 4.—From various French villages come reports that thousands of Germans are marching northward in the great retreat, changing as they marched "Back to Germany."

GERMAN MAN-POWER.

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, Aug. 5. (By the A.P.)—The latest indications of a shortage in the German man-power is found in the fact that certain Prussian Divisions opposing the British have recently received drafts of Saxons, which is a most unusual proceeding. It is obvious that as the battle between Rheims and Soissons continues, more fit divisions must be obtained by the Crown Prince, and these must be withdrawn from other parts of the front. "The smallest number of troops needed on a front held defensively than one held for offensive may partially explain the apparent change of attitude by the enemy opposite the British."

LATEST HUN OUTRAGE—HOSPITAL SHIP SUNK WITH BIG LOSS OF LIFE.

LONDON, Aug. 3. One hundred and fifty patients are reported to have been killed by the explosion of a torpedo which sank a hospital ship this morning. The ship was returning from France and near the coast, where they were, struck by a torpedo. The ward room where the patients were accommodated. About one hundred wounded have been landed at a British port, coming ashore in what clothing they could reach when rudely awakened. About four hundred patients were on board the vessel. It is not known definitely what the loss of life was. One hundred patients, however, are accounted for as having landed at one port, where they were, cared for by British organizations. "The American Red Cross," said the American Red Cross. Two American officers and five privates were on board the vessel. Both the officers are officially reported as saved. They were Captain J. L. Beatty and Lieut. H. T. Hubert. The fate of the privates is uncertain. The official report indicates that two of them were saved. After being torpedoed the ship remained afloat for two hours and a quarter. Immediately after the explosion five boats were launched, but before they could be cleared they were smashed, and many of their occupants were drowned. Destroyers rushed to the spot where the submarine was seen to submerge, and dropped depth charges. More than 350 survivors have been landed at a British port.

A BRITISH PORT, Sunday, Aug. 4.

The ship torpedoed yesterday morning as she was nearing home from France was struck in the after part of the engine room. There members of the staff were killed here, and the dynamo was destroyed, plunging the vessel into darkness. Just over the dynamo was the ward room, containing over one hundred patients. Most of these were killed outright by the explosion. The others injured by the explosion were trapped and perished, except for a few who jumped overboard and were picked up.

LONDON, Aug. 5.

The vessel which was torpedoed on Saturday morning near a British port, while bringing wounded men to England from France, was the Warilda. The total number of missing is 123. These are as follows: Two military officers, a commandant in Queen Mary's Military Corps, one American soldier, seven of the crew and 112 others. The Warilda was built at Glasgow in 1912. She was 411 feet long, had a beam of 56 feet, and a depth of 34 feet. Her registered tonnage was 7,713. She was owned by the Adelaide Steamship Co. of Port Adelaide, Australia.

LONDON, Aug. 5.

The Admiralty this evening issued the following communication concerning the torpedoing and sinking of the steamer Warilda: "The homeward bound ambulance transport Warilda was torpedoed and sunk on the 3rd of August."

ON ITALIAN FRONT.

ROME, Aug. 5. The official statement from the war office to-night says, on the Dossio Alto two enemy officers and a few men were captured. The enemy attempted attacks on Montorno and Rio Fredo, which failed, and we took some prisoners. An attack by hostile parties was repulsed at Cornone.

U. S. SHIP "SAN DIEGO" WAS MINED.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. Investigation has disclosed that the armored cruiser San Diego, sunk several weeks ago off the American coast, struck a mine, Secretary Daniels announced to-day. This is the finding of a naval court of inquiry, which holds that the loss of the ship was due in no way to negligence or inefficiency on the part of the captain or crew.

GERMANS EVACUATE LINES.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 5. (By the A.P.)—Advanced lines on a sector of nearly half a mile north of LaBassee canal, have been evacuated by the Germans, and the British have pushed forward and occupied this ground.

EMPEROR NICHOLAS' LAST WORDS.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 5. What seems to have been the last words of Nicholas Romanoff, former Russian Emperor, were: "Spare my wife and my innocent, unhappy children. May my blood preserve Russia from ruin." These words were called out by the former Emperor just before he was shot by the firing squad.

RUSSIANS SEEKING BREAD.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 5. Newspapers in Moscow print a proclamation calling upon the workmen and soldiers to supply themselves with bread from the farming sections of Russia, according to Moscow advices received here by way of Berlin. The proclamation reads: "Workers and army, seek bread for yourselves quickly from the agricultural provinces. Do not allow landowners and capitalists with their assistants, the social traitors, to suppress the revolution of the proletariat by hunger." Houses in Moscow, it is said, are being searched for food supplies.

BRITISH ADVANCE.

LONDON, Aug. 5. We have pushed forward our possessions slightly during the day at the Paquet wood, east of Robecq, says the British official communication issued to-night. Hostile artillery was active in the sector south of Ypres. The Paquet wood lies about five miles northeast of Bethuns.

RAID ON ENGLAND FUTURE.

LONDON, Aug. 5. Hostile airships approached the east coast of England about half-past nine o'clock Monday night, the Admiralty announced early this morning. The enemy aircraft did not penetrate far inland.

OVER MILLION GERMANS ENGAGED.

PARIS, Aug. 5. The German Crown Prince has engaged forty of his divisions (540,000 men) in the Champagne, and forty-seven divisions (825,000 men) between the Aisne and the Marne since he began his offensive on July 15th. The intrinsically states it is estimated that by the shortening of the front through his retreat he has economized in the number of troops necessary along the line to the extent of some ten divisions (135,000 men).

FRENCH PREMIER AT FRONT.

PARIS, Aug. 5. (Havas Agency).—Premier Clemenceau visited Soissons and the villages in the region of Fere on Tardenois on Sunday. The Premier personally congratulated the battalion of Chasseurs which captured Soissons.

GERMANS RESIST STRONGLY.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 5 (By the A.P.)—German resistance along the banks of the Aisne and Vesle rivers is growing more stubborn. Allied patrols which have crossed these rivers have met with the sternest resistance. In the neighborhood of Mulson, on the south side of the Vesle the Germans fought fiercely last evening before they were forced back. The battle was especially severe around the Vantus farm and the ancient woods. On the end of the line nearest Rheims a heavy artillery duel is going on. The machine gun fire in this region is very severe. Similar conditions prevail between Fismes and Sernois near the confluence of the Vesle and the Aisne. The enemy maintained a steady fire on the valley south of the two rivers all yesterday and last night in an attempt to catch Allied concentrations. German aviators also were active, descending often to harass Allied infantry with machine guns.

TWO BRITISH TORPEDO BOATS MINED.

LONDON, Aug. 5. Two British torpedo boat destroyers were sunk by enemy mines on August 2nd, according to an official statement by the British Admiralty. Five officers and ninety-two ratings were lost, according to the statement.

BERLIN OFFICIAL.

BERLIN, via London, Aug. 5. Attacks by the Allies north of Albert and on both sides of the Somme have been repulsed by the German armies, according to the official communication issued by the War Office to-day. The communication adds that north of Mont Didier the Germans withdrew without molestation from the Allies.

QUIET ON RHEIMS FRONT.

PARIS, Aug. 5. Except for local fighting on Monday on the north bank of the Neale river, which resulted in no material change in the fighting front between Soissons and Rheims, the day passed quietly, according to the French official communication issued this evening.

GERMANS ADMIT STOPPAGE OF OFFENSIVE.

BERNE, Aug. 5. The German offensive has been stopped and present operations cannot be publicly discussed, declared General Hallingrath, Bavarian Minister of War, speaking in the first Chamber Saturday. The first year of the war ends by what amounts to a stoppage of our offensive, he said, but it is not possible to judge the situation apart from the operations now in progress, which cannot be discussed in public, besides our po-

"HOLD FAST."

The cabled despatches since Saturday indicate that the beginning of the end is in sight. At least the last great enemy offensive has been halted and driven back, which may mean that the backbone of the German drive has been broken. This may not, however, be an index that another attack on a large scale is not in contemplation or preparation. The German is now fighting for not only 'all that he has won, and that territory' is being gradually wrested from him, but to prevent the Allies from crossing the Rhine, invading Germany, and carrying the war into that country. Too well the Hun knows the meaning of devastated lands and destroyed villages and towns, and he too knows that reprisals for the various destruction done on Belgian and French soil might be exacted by the Allies. Therefore it is to be conjectured, that he will put up a stiff and stubborn resistance to prevent the advance of the soldiers of liberty, and to hold them back from crossing the Rhine. His present retreat may be with this purpose in view, or it may possibly be for a reorganization of his forces in order to inaugurate a fresh offensive in a new direction. But whatever may be the cause or purpose, there is no change in his methods. To burn, waste and destroy being his creed, he is systematically performing his policy of vandalism during his retreat, and far from being repentant he gloats over his deeds of barbarism. If the ignorant German soldier is brutal and savage in defeat, it is only what would be expected, but when we find the intelligent Hun gloating and jubilant because of the atrocities perpetrated by a calloused army in retreat, we have to accept the statement, long ago promulgated but disbelieved, that the whole German nation is guilty of abetting the crimes which have horrified civilization. In the hour of defeat the enemy rejoices because he has done deeds of wrong, and even holds as a success the incineration of his legions. The following extract from an article in the Berlin Tageblatt will bear republication, if only to show the atrophied state of the German mind, and to impress upon all who read the unimpaired qualities of the people against whom the Allies are fighting. Admitting the failure of the fifth offensive, Herr Hegeler, the war correspondent of the paper quoted, writes:—

"From the strategical point of view the seven days battle has been a complete failure. Nevertheless success has been gained which we can register to-day. A new part of France has been laid waste. Everywhere ruined towns, villages and farms. Fires light up the night and all day thick clouds of smoke, caused by explosions, float over ravaged corn-fields and destroyed forests."

The true Hun exhibits himself in this expression of sentiment, which is the true and correct exposition of the mind of the German people, from the Kaiser down to the clothworker. In acknowledging the failure of their armies to gain the objective aimed at, they sound a pean of exultation because of farms ravaged, forests destroyed, villages razed, towns made desolate. It was Bismarck we believe, who in the Franco-Prussian war issued the general order to the German armies containing the phrase "Leave them (the French people) only their eyes with which to weep." The spirit of this order lives with the Hun to-day. He cannot change from what he was and will ever be—a barbarian, and it will be for the well being of the world to exterminate him root and branch. He must be rendered powerless for future evil. No patched up peace, no acceptance of terms from the Kaiser should be considered in the final reckoning. As Cato declared in the Roman Senate that "Carthage must be blotted out," so must it be declared throughout the world to-day that Germany must be blotted out, lest, by its being permitted to exist as a power, it bring more disaster upon the nations. The military ambition of Germany must be suppressed. There is no guarantee of future peace otherwise. The destiny of Europe must be created and with him the blood which he has gathered together. "Hold fast" says the Imperial Prime Minister in his anniversary message to the British Empire. "To stop short of victory now would be to compromise the future of mankind. We cannot seek to escape the horrors of war for ourselves by laying them up for our children. Having set our hands to the task we must see it through till a just and lasting settlement is achieved."

The "Blue Puttees."

While thanking all who so readily lent their motors on Sunday for the returning soldiers, the Ladies' Reception Committee have again to ask the same favor for the 80 "Blue Puttee" men who are returning on Wednesday. We would ask all who are able to lend their cars, if they would kindly telephone the committee as early as possible to prevent anxiety on the part of those responsible. Exactly the same arrangements will be carried out as on Sunday. A short address of welcome will be given by Hon. W. W. Halford on behalf of the country. Mayor Gosling will give them the welcome of the town and Sgt. Harold Mitchell will welcome them to the Great War Veterans' Association.

Anniversary Day Message from St. Mary's

The following message to the Nfld. Patriotic Association has been received from St. Mary's: Nfld. Patriotic Association, St. John's. That on this the fourth anniversary of the declaration of a righteous war, this meeting of the citizens of St. Mary's records its indelible determination to continue to a victorious end the struggle in maintenance of those ideals of liberty and justice which are the common and sacred cause of the Allies.

Flower Service at the Cove.

The annual flower service in commemoration of the departed was held at Portugal Cove on Sunday, and was attended by a large congregation. The service was held by the venerable Canon Smith, former Rector of the parish, who also delivered an inspiring address which was listened to with deep attention by his old parishioners. In the afternoon the flower service commenced in the beautiful cemetery which is situated some distance inland. A timely address on this occasion was delivered by the Rector, Rev. A. E. Lerge.

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, Aug. 6th, 1918. The time for sowing Cabbage Seeds for Winter Plants has again come round, and as usual we are ready with a good selection of the most suitable seeds. Experience has proven that the American Cabbage Seeds—among the most popular of which are Jersey and Charleston Wakefield, Flat Dutch, Drumhead and Succession—give the best results, and we can supply the wants of farmers and market gardeners in this direction. American Cabbage Seeds sell for 60c. an ounce. Just arrived: A full stock of D.D.D. Beans, Lotion. Price $1.30 a bottle.

Salmon Report.

During last week the following messages have been received by the Game and Land Fisheries Department from their wardens: Little River—Salmon plentiful; water low. Harry's River—12 salmon taken by 2 rods during week; fishing good. Humber—Good fishing still. Exploits—Good fishing. River—Salmon plentiful. Gambo River—Salmon very plentiful. Terra Nova—Salmon scarce. North West River—Fishing still good. Tropassey—Good here all season. Salmonter, Placentia, Cape Roger and Nonesech River—Fish still plentiful.

The Good Old Days.

On this date, 1812, an American privateer, with 18 guns, and 120 men, attacked the British ship, "Royal Bounty" off our coast. The "Royal Bounty" after one man had been killed, and several wounded, struck her flag and surrendered. The crew was sent ashore in an open boat and succeeded in reaching Placentia.

Police Court.

A drunk was fined $1. The case against a shoemaker of New Gower Street, charged with selling several intoxicating drinks in violation of the Prohibition Act, was dismissed, as it could not be proved that he had sold them.

A young man for assaulting a young married woman of Young Street was fined $5. Judge Morris has the sympathy of all well wishing citizens in his attitude to men who make beasts of themselves and every conviction is hailed with delight.

Two young girls, charged with stealing some articles of clothing and for loose and disorderly conduct, were before the court. One, the elder, who is practically hopeless, lives in the woods, and she was fined $10 or 30 days. The other was retained to see what could be done with her.

From Cape Race.

CAPE RACE, To-day. Wind South light, weather dull; several schooners passed in this a.m. Bar, 29.45; ther. 63.

The "Cowpath."

For a time, when the new Inspector General first took up his duties, the conditions on the "Cowpath," sometimes known as New Gower St., were somewhat improved. Evidently the policemen there soon tired of keeping the people on the sidewalks moving, for by a night one can hardly pass along, there are so many standing around.

To-Day's Messages.

NO OFFENSIVE CONTEMPLATED. WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 5 (By the A. P.). Following the withdrawal of the Germans in the region of Albert, all the bridges across the Amere River in the region covered by the retreat have been destroyed. The Germans are still holding the river crossing in the village of Albert. South of the town the line now runs from Dernancourt to Meaulte, about two miles to the northeast, and thence to Albert. This new line is under heavy artillery fire from the enemy guns. Further south along the Avere River, where the Germans retired from their positions on the west bank on Saturday, all the bridges across the river have been destroyed and the roads leading to them have been dynamited. At the moment therefore, it would appear that the Germans do not contemplate any offensive on these parts of the line, at least for some time to come. Morning news released by the German troops, released by the shortening of the line may be destined to be transferred from the armies of Crown Prince Rupprecht to those of the German Crown Prince. Incidentally it is reported that another division from Rupprecht's forces was identical yesterday in the fighting south of Soissons.

NO TRUTH IN THEM.

LONDON, Aug. 6. The attention of the Ministry of Information has been called to a rumor that the fresh calling up of farm laborers for military service is due to pressure from the United States Government, and it has been further rumored that the United States insisted that every able-bodied man under the age of forty-six in Great Britain should be called for the army. Additional weight has been given to these rumors by the suggestion that Prime Minister Lloyd George, when he said in a recent speech, "we must live up to our contract with America," was alluding to a secret understanding of the nature between the American and British Governments. The Ministry of Information is able to state with authority that there is no truth whatever in these reports, says Reuters, L.A.

GERMANS USE FLAME PROJECTILES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE VESLE, Monday, Aug. 5. (By the A.P.). The Germans facing the Americans along the Vesle increased the intensity of their artillery fire late today, bringing into action guns of 150 millimetres against the forces west of Fismes. During the afternoon the Germans employed flame shells, cast from the slopes north of the Vesle where they appeared to be well organized. Machine guns were also used repeatedly. The American lines also were subjected to a heavy fire from German 150's and late in the afternoon the enemy rained the hills tops with various kinds of gas shells. The big gun duels soon became so violent that observation was difficult and maps had to be used.

KING TO PRESIDENT.

PARIS, Aug. 6. (Havas Agency.) King George has sent a telegram to President Poincare saying that he has followed with the deepest interest and admiration the splendid counter attack of General Foch, which is forcing the Germans to abandon a series of strong positions and to recross the Vesle River. In his message King George warmly congratulates President Poincare and the French Army on the skill of the French Commander which has resulted in such a splendid feat at arms.

PARIS WAXED WRATHFUL.

The German long range bombardment of Paris was continued to-day. Contemptuous smiles and jocular remarks greeted the first explosion of the German long range shell in the Paris region to-day. Because the bombardment at this time was exactly what the population expected the Germans to do. Despite the inclement weather scores of persons sat differently on the terraces and at the cafes saluting the shells with caustic comments. Expressions of rage and talk of revenge soon were heard, however, when it became known that women and children had been rudely wanted wantonly by the German shells. Renewal of the bombardment has further strengthened the resolution of Paris to see that the war is carried on until German militarism has fallen.

The Best in Newfoundland.

Air: "Paddy Molloy." By JAMES MURPHY.

There's lots of things happening in St. John's fair city, There's an increase each day of the grand motor cars, And a new stockin' worn by the ladies so pretty, And others at dawnin' are seeing new stars; Some more are in love with the barbers' hair tonic, We often meet them with a "lovely jag on." And Florida water it has become chronic, Including a beverage they call "two in one." But Gordon and Co. sends a brand new cure "Bert Beer," 'Twill make hair on your head grow where none grew before, Those drinks everywhere now the people are "on to." From old stormy Cape Ray down to cold Labrador, There's some say those drinks they can cure "Bert Beer," For many a virtue we know that they shine; Creme de Menthe, Brandy and "Long Dock Sherry" And Sloe Gin, for ladies, and lovely Port Wine.

We won't be surprised if on drinks we'll be thriving, For "spuds" are now sold "leven dollars a barrel." In the saving of grub more each day we're coniving From slim "Johnnie Walker" to stout "Biddy Farrell." So send us an order and we will supply you With drinker and that will strengthen your body and mind; If you send an order now we won't deny you The best drinks in all Newfoundland you can find. P. E. OUTERBRIDGE, 265 Water Street, Sole Agent for Nfld.

Nfld. Scotch Cured Herring.

While sales of Newfoundland Scotch cured herring are reported to have been made as low as $21 per barrel in New York during the past ten days, the trade generally is holding firmly at from $22 to $26, according to quality and size, and many are refusing to sell at below these quotations. Limited trading in this grade of herring has been reported during the present week. Although a fair quantity came into the market, it is known that only a small percentage of it sold on the dock, and the remainder was placed in storage. Sales ex dock are reported to have been made on the basis of $23 per barrel, for the most part, while a few lots brought up to $25 per barrel. It is reported that further quantities are due to come into New York within the next fortnight, but this stock, as well as much of that now in storage here, is of the winter and spring pack. Reports from Newfoundland indicate that there is little or no fall pack Scotch cured herring in packers' hands here. Merchants in New York look for a good market in the late summer and fall, and are not in the least discouraged with the limited demand at present. The likelihood of higher prices seems to be generally recognized in New York.—N.Y. Fishing Gazette, July 29.

CABLE NEWS.

AT IT AGAIN.
PARIS, Aug. 5.
The long range bombardment of the Paris region was resumed this morning.

SUBS. OPERATING.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.
The sinking of the American tank steamer O. B. Jennings, yesterday, 100 miles off the Virginia coast, announced to-day, revealed the presence of at least two German submarines on this side of the Atlantic. The second raider has been operating off the coast of Nova Scotia and nearby waters for several days.

INDEPENDENT SIBERIAN GOVT.
LONDON, Aug. 5.
The semi-official Russian newspapers Pravda and Isvestia declare that the Provisional Government of Siberia intends formally to declare war on the Soviet Government within a few days, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen.
The Siberian Government, it is said, has informed all neutral and Allied Powers of the establishment of an independent Siberian Government.

SUCCESSFUL BRITISH RAIDS.
LONDON, Aug. 5.
Raiding operations were carried out last night by the British southeast of Arras, near Neville Vitasse, in which prisoners were taken, the war office announced to-day. On the northern front opposite La Bassee the German guns have been very active. They have shown some activity also north of Bethune and between Hazebruck and Ypres.

TANK STEAMER SUNK.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.
The American tank steamer O. B.
Jennings was sunk by a German submarine, about 100 miles off the Virginia coast, and 39 survivors of the vessel's crew have been brought to Norfolk by a naval vessel, the Navy Department was to-day informed. The captain and one boat containing 13 members of the crew is missing. Wireless calls from the steamer, saying that she was being shelled by a submarine, were received yesterday between 11 o'clock and noon. Naval vessels were sent at once to the location indicated, but arrived only in time to pick up the survivors, the vessel having gone down. The Jennings, which was built in 1917, was 7,800 tons net and belonged to the Standard Oil Co.

C. L. B. Camp.
Over 175 persons, including 11 officers, 78 bandmen and over 30 privates from J. Coy. Bell Island, attended the C. L. B. on Sunday, making the largest attendance in the history of the Brigade. Lt.-Col. R. G.
Rendell, O.B.E., was in command.
Major Goodridge was second in command, while Captain Quartermaster Williams was a visitor. Notwithstanding the rain in the morning a large number of visitors arrived during the afternoon including Dr. Car-nochan of Bell Island. Who gave his services to one of the lads who had been prostrated because of the intense heat. The regular Sunday morning parade was not held because of the rain, but the afternoon service, with Canonus Nelson and Bolt officiating, was well attended. In a brilliant speech the Lieut.-Colonel moved a resolution favoring the carrying on of the war, which was seconded by Mr. J. F. Bancroft, and passed. To-morrow a big field day will be held and His Excellency the Governor will inspect the Brigade.
The general public will be admitted free of charge, and a big attendance is expected.

ed a cheque for $438.21 from North West River, Hamilton, Inlet, Labra-

the activities of the Young People's Club at the head of that bay, during the past winter. The desire of the committee is that $250 of the amount should be used to support a military hospital cot for one year, and the balance of $188.25 should be used for other Red Cross purposes at the discretion of the association.

NEW PITCHER.
As will be seen from the above lineup the Red Lions will give McNamara, their new pitcher, a try-out this evening. We predicted early in the season that "Art" would uncover a "find" before the end of the series and we shouldn't be surprised if "Mac" would turn out like "Nuts" Ellis last season.

NOTWITHSTANDING LAST SEA-SON.

The Irish team will surely win,
I thought at first that I should boast
To hear him handing out that chat,

And say them "Mac's" ain't going to cop.
He kept on shooting off his jaw
And gee! I couldn't make him stop.

That he was smooth and I was raw.
Or else I'd know we had a show,
When no one 'knew more than McGrath,
I says, says I to this wise guy,

"The Only Way."
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—The London Daily Mail, of recent date, tells us that Conscription has become law in Newfoundland.
After reading your appeal for recruits to fill up the gaps in the R. N.
Regiment and the excellent efforts made by the Soldiers' Committee, the only conclusion one can come to is, that the Government has done the right thing by endorsing Conscription. The enviable record of the R.N.R. did not for a moment mean that these good boys were to be abandoned by the eligible at home and the regiment left to perish; but, if these men could have been appealed to at the proper time, and in the same manner as they are being attracted to-day, Conscription would not be a necessity for many months to come.

The very word "conscript" seems to most of us undesirable. A man that is called upon to serve should not be ashamed, for there are many excuses for some, whose heart is in the right place, yet hold back for good and sufficient reasons. On the other hand, Conscripted is the means of forcing some to do what they would rather shirk, and a speedy method of bringing out of others the best that is in them.

The volunteer has sense enough to know that every man of military age cannot leave the home at once, but he does realize that it is his duty of his fellow-countrymen and brothers to "jump to it" when necessary, and at the first call.
Recently I received through one of your staff several packets of the Evening Telegram, and to say that they were only interesting would be putting it mildly.
I venture the opinion that if larger Dominions were to give, through the press, the same style and amount of publicity to the soldiers' cause as is being carried out by you and the soldiers' committee in Newfoundland, reinforcements for the armies would be assured, and the victory we long for hastened by months.
Yours very truly,
W. SKANES, C.E.F.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIPH-THERIA.

That he's a daffy kind of bloid,
If he could dream an Irish thoid,
Would end the season even thoid."

ARTHUR HILTZ.
He doesn't do it very often, but when he does he has the most whole-hearted way of striking out. When Arthur fans, he doesn't do it by halves.
He sets himself on toes and heels; he inhales a deep breath, then, when the ball arrives, he loosens all the muscles of arms, shoulders and back; he sweeps the bat through the air in an enormous parabola, and, missing completely, he spins round and round exactly like a gyroscope. Art gives all he has to that strik-out, and it is a beautiful thing to gaze upon.

"TAKE HIM OUT"
The umpire stood behind the plate,
And got a cushion on his pain,
He saw some stars both pink and green,
Then stopped a bottle with his bean,
At that he heard a rooster squawk,
"Warm up an umpire right away"
And then another bleacher wit Yelled "Sure, this guy is getting hit."

"THE GREEN AND ORANGE."
Instead of coloring the pennant the Irish seem to have cuffed it.

YOU SAID IT!
A HOG has the right idea, he roots for himself.

TEMPERAMENT.
When a temperamental infant
Gets too busy with his yap
You can nearly always cure it
With a slipper or a strap.
When a temperamental actor
Gives his work the overlook,
You can check his little ailment
By a flourish of the hook.
When a temperamental pitcher Thinks himself a Superman
You can check his little ailment
By the rattle of the can.
Proceeds of the baseball games go towards the W. F. A. There is a game to-night. Nuff said.

The Clean Plate, But—

By RUTH CAMERON.

Never was any good movement, any reform of one sort or another started, that some people didn't carry it too far. The Authorman feels that this has been done with "Hooverism."

"My wife," he says, "is always telling me to eat that spoonful of peas or finish up that half potato ration to make it. Now, if I know that I've eaten enough, why, I don't think I should eat anything more just to save it. It isn't saving it, it is, if it overloads my system and makes me so doped that I can't do my work. Retten-conervation, I call that. No, I can't see my way clear to making a crumb bucket of myself, even for Hoover."

A Human or a Tin Crumb Bucket.

In all of which, I think the Authorman is right. But that doesn't mean that the potato or the peas should be put into a thin crumb bucket instead of a human one.

The time to remember Mr. Hoover, is not when you find you've got more than you want to eat on your plate, but when you fill that plate. Gauge your appetite. Don't let your self be helped over bountifully. Take less, if anything, than you think you will eat the first time, and then, if you find you want it, go back for more.

These sudden changes either way who immediately given up regular exercise for long, dawdling hours will surely become sallow and heavy of physiognomy.

The girl who has been fit, the woman who has been resting and who comes home to "strap" on burdens which for the first week or two seem staggering, will appear pale, and hollow eyed. How much better would it be if both of these classes might use a little common sense and avoid extremes in either case.

The judicious mixture of work and rest, together with complexion care will best add to the benefit received during the vacation time and none of its good would be lost.

When it is possible the little return to the usual routine is excellent, the daily cool sponge or shower bath, the out door walk every day, the eight hours sleep a night in airy bedroom, these will help mightily in the effort toward a good complexion, then the local work where the skin of the face is rejuvenated, cared for and rectified will be found to be helpful and beneficial.

Women have complained, sometimes, that their job was too mechanical and required so little brain that it was not interesting. As a rule, the women who made these complaints weren't the woman who were making good in the complex duties of wife and mother and homemaker. But he that as it may, no woman to-day, when upon the way the individual home is run the fate of the nation may depend can possibly complain that she has not a task for all a woman possesses of ingenuity and ability.

I bought a horse with a supposedly incurable ringbone for $30.00. Cured him with $1.00 worth of MINARD'S LINIMENT and sold him for $35.00. Profit on Liniment, $54.

BACK TO THE CITY AND WORK.

When summer is over the girl who had her fill of out door pleasures turns her thoughts in other directions. Many women return from a strenuous outdoor vacation to find, ill-fitting, or perhaps on the other hand, they return from a vacation of idleness to one of accumulated work and worry.

These sudden changes either way who immediately given up regular exercise for long, dawdling hours will surely become sallow and heavy of physiognomy.

THE KAISER.

Time was he held the world's respect and friends he had to speak his worth: He could have walked with head erect in any land upon the earth; And he had honor on his scroll.

But none of these is his to-day; He stands, a black and shriveled soul, With all life's treasures flung away.

For he has bartered truth for gain, Changed mercy for the lust of power, Turned murderer that he might reign In brutal fashion for an hour.

Justice, the jewel of all crowns, Out of its setting he has torn, And in its place are ravished towns, And women dead, with babes unborn.

If ever kindness he possessed, 'Twas pawned to hatred long ago, His deed, have stained with shame the crest.

That faith of men in God divine In him has changed to blasphemy, Nor has he kept one virtue free To comfort him in days to be.

Oh what a sorry wreck of life This man of regal birth has made, Who came, equipped for many strife, But chose to wield a sashon's blade!

Once there were friends to speak his worth, But now he stands alone, at bay, The most debased, displaced, on earth With all life's treasures flung away.

Fads and Fashions.

More wash materials than ever will be used for children's school dresses in the fall.

Navy silk stockings are a very important detail in the perfect costume of navy and white.

A pouge duster is so infinitely useful that it ought to form part of every summer wardrobe.

Fatal Fight on Furness Withy Wharf.

Halifax, July 31.—As the result of a fight on the Furness, Withy wharf late last night, Arthur McBride, aged fifty years, is dead, and Donald Shaw, chief mate on the steamer Siberian Prince has been arrested and charged with manslaughter.

McBride, who was a greaser on the steamer, attacked the chief mate on the wharf, and they fought for twenty minutes. After McBride was taken aboard the ship his condition became serious, and he died before a physician reached him. McBride had a grievance over money matters, and that is given as his reason for attacking the chief mate.

Shaw, who was accompanied by the chief engineer, were returning to the steamer when they were accosted by McBride, who appeared to be under the influence of liquor.

Fought Twenty Minutes. After some hot words with regard to salvage money, blows were exchanged, and the fight continued for twenty minutes. McBride, who got the worst of the battle, moved away and sat down on a pile of lumber.

Later on he went aboard of the ship and was taken violently ill, and died soon afterwards.

The police were notified and Chief Hanrahan and Detective Kennedy went on board of the steamer and placed Shaw under arrest. Five of the firemen were also taken into custody, and they will be held as witnesses.

The Medical Examiner was notified after he made an examination of McBride's body, it was removed to an undertaker.

Fads and Fashions.

For sports year, a violet jersey cloth suit and a soft blue felt hat make a charming costume.

A few well dressed women always insist upon mosquitoire gloves on account of their grace.

Evening slippers of gold brocade and black have for ornamentation large square buckles of jet.

Simple slip-on blouses for warm days are fashioned of batiste, with an organdie frill for a collar.

The latest ornament for a lovely throat is an odd-shaped piece of jade hung on a Chinese green cord.

An Italian straw hat is more effectively trimmed with brown and pink velvet flowers, lined with pink taffeta and veiled with thin lace.

Gold lace draped over shimmering black satin, with a suggestion of silver tulle somewhere, makes a rich and very striking gown for evening wear.

A delightful frock for tennis wear may be made of old-blue chambray with collars and cuffs of white handkerchief linen.

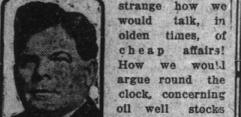

The prettiest boudoir slippers imaginable of the shape known as mules are covered with exquisitely painted white leather.

A charming and simple dinner gown may be made of black mialnes lace and black net over a foundation of white English embroidery.

A more charming evening cloak is made of deep gray chifon, with five or six bands of soft, gray squirrel, and lined with the dullest rose net.

IN OTHER DAYS.

It seems so strange how we would talk, in olden times, of cheap affairs!

How we would argue round the clock, concerning oil well stocks and shares! And often, when the evening came, we sat before the racket store, and talked about the baseball game until our lungs and heads were sore.

If Johnsing bought a motor car, that was our theme from sun to sun; we'd talk the blasted thing all part, and show just why it wouldn't run. The weather was a daily text, and we denounced the groundhog's game; and then the crops we'd take up next, and they would last till bedtime came. And still we meet at close of day, and gossip all the evening through; but no one quotes the price of hay, or brings the weather in review.

The trifling matters of the town no more engage our anxious thought; we speak, until the moon goes down, of far-off fields where men have fought. Oh, what if Jenks has swiped a cow, or beat a neighbour in a trade? Such things won't draw attention now, when soldiers swing the shining blade. Oh, what if Jimpson has announced that he will run for county clerk? 'Till the monthly foe is trounced, we care not for such trifling work. It seems so strange that once we cared for idle tales of Tom and Dick! But now the nation's sword is bared, and other topics make us sick.

"Dead Hands."

The following verses were written by Sub-Lieutenant Ivan Heald, of the Royal Naval Division, who was through most of the Gallipoli Campaign, returning there after a wound which caused his temporary transfer to Egypt for treatment. Mr. Heald is a London and North of England journalist; curiously his later works in London consisted entirely of humorous articles for the London Daily Express, from which we quote the verses:

So quietly we left the trench, That night yet this I know— As we stole down to Sed-el-Bahr Our dead mates heard us go.

As I came down the Boyau Nord, A dead hand touched my sleeve, A dead hand from the parapet Reached out and plucked my sleeve.

"O little I thought," a voice did say, "That ever a lad of Tyne Would leave me alone in the cold trench side, And him a mate of mine."

The dawn was springing on the hills, 'Twas time to put to sea, But all along the Boyau Nord: A dead voice followed me:

"Oh what is toward, O mate o' mine, That ye pass with muffled tread, And there comes no sound for the firing trench, The trench won by your dead?"

We sailed away from Sed-el-Bahr, We are sailing home on leave, But this I know—through all the years: Dead hands will pluck my sleeve.

Soft linen hats lined with some soft color like green are admirable for sport or general country wear.

Straw hats are, lately, brimmed with polka dotted blue toulard, and have for their only ornaments, two large field flowers.

Large hats of tulle or chifon may be worn successfully either in afternoon or evening with gowns of tulle or chifon.

Annual Mortuary Mass

In The Beautiful Little Chapel of Belvidere.

H. F. SHORTIS.

For some time past the Catholic citizens of St. John's have been busily employed in beautifying the plot which rest the remains of the dear departed. The energetic caretaker, Mr.
O'Toole, and his assistants have been continually at work making repairs to the fence, cleaning up the walks and drains, etc., so that now all is ready for the celebration of the Annual Mass for the souls of the departed who rest beneath the sacred soil of Belvidere. Too much credit cannot be given to the energetic committee who have devoted their time in planning and carrying into effect improvements which are fully appreciated by the Catholic people. The Mass will be celebrated in the historic little church of ecclesiastical architecture on tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, when thousands of our Catholic people will assemble to pray for the eternal repose of the souls of those beloved ones who have gone before them.

The beautiful little chapel of Belvidere has always appealed to me as one of the most beautiful as well as historic edifices in the city of St.
John's. Some fifteen years ago this historic little church was, one might say, rebuilt. The old tower was taken down and replaced by a new one. This tower, as first attached to the church, was built partly within the front of the building. The new tower differs from its predecessor by standing out from the main building, which gives greater effect to its outline and proportions. The church, as originally built, was not supplied with a vestry, but this want has been supplied in the new alteration. The new tower is much handsomer than the former one, being surmounted by a graceful octagonal bell chamber, and many other alterations have been made to the whole exterior of the building. This little church may well be said to be a gem of art, and is not surpassed in Newfoundland by any church of its size, either in design or finish. The splendid Gothic windows and doors, which were entirely made by hand-the work of an Irish artisan named Walsh and his assistants—were found to be in an excellent state of preservation, and His Grace, the late illustrious Dr. Howley, in order to preserve this splendid memento of architectural skill of over half a century ago, gave orders that it should be preserved at all costs. The church is now substantial in every particular, having a retaining wall surrounding it, and the ground around it has been laid out with ample walks. The little church is beautifully and artistically painted in various colours, and it would repay one to walk out from the city if for nothing else than to view this beautiful work of art situated in the City of the Dead.

The interior of the little edifice was decorated and beautifully painted in pink and gold by the late Mr. George Gamborg. The sides and ends of the building have Gothic panels placed at certain intervals. All the window-carvings and panellings beneath the windows are of grained oak. A handsome chancel railing was added, also a railing to the gallery. On the north end, over the altar, there is a handsome scroll, upheld at either end by the figures of two angels, the scroll bearing the inscription: "I am the Resurrection and the Life." This is the work of His Grace the late-beloved Archbishop Howley.

The altar is of Gothic style to correspond with the church. The altar table is eleven feet long by three and one-half feet high. In the front are three panels, and in the centre one is the representation of the Lamb, Banner, Cross and Book carved in wood, the former being done in silver-leaf, the Banner in Gold and the Cross crimson. The other two panels are quatre-foli, and the backs of those panels are glass, painted. There are two breaks containing a Gothic panel each, with painted glass, the same as the quatre-foli, the frieze around the altar-table is of beautifully carved leaves and grapes. This has really a handsome appearance, and is supported by four pillars with carved capitals. The monogram in the centre of the frieze of the altar-centre represents the Immaculate Conception, the ground work of which is blue; the stars, letters and Cross are gilded. On each side of the Tabernacle is a column with carved capitals, etc. to correspond with the columns of the altar table. These are supporting nicely ornamental Gothic pinnacles, and upon each side of the Tabernacle are steps to receive candle sticks, etc. At the side of the steps are panels. There are three niches, each containing four columns, with carved capitals, corresponding with those of the Tabernacle and Altar table. The fronts of the niches are pierced with quatrefoli, etc., and the centre niche is surmounted by a Cross, and the side niches by nicely carved ornaments.
Those columns are also supporting pinnacles similar to those at the Tabernacle. Between the centre and side niches there are also panels painted on glass. The panels in the Altartable represent Matschitz marble, and are wrought on glass. The panels in Reveries are done to represent Siena marble. The shafts of the columns at the Tabernacle are of the same material and the crochets and finials on pinnacles and gables over niches and

Eczema
Now
Curable

A wonderful new discovery for the cure of skin diseases called the D.D.D.
Prescription for Eczema has finally convinced physicians throughout Newfoundland and Canada that eczema is curable. D. D. D. is a scientific preparation, compounded by a famous skin specialist. It is a simple antiseptic wash, a reliable home remedy that should always be kept on hand.

Apply this D. D. D. Prescription to the skin and instantly the awful itch is gone. The very moment the liquid touches the skin, the agonizing, tantalizing itch disappears. This soothing wash penetrates the pores, kills and washes away disease germs and restores the skin to a thoroughly healthy condition.

Don't delay your cure; get a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription to-day. Sold Everywhere.

The Cross over the centre niche are all worked in gold. The centre panel contains a beautiful statue of Our Mother of Dolours (to whom the Church is dedicated). In the niche on the Gospel side is a statue of St.
Michael, and in the one on the Epistle is that of St. Gabriel. All the groundwork is supposed to represent white marble. The shafts of the columns at the Altar-table represent purple marble, and the shafts of the columns at the Tabernacle are made to represent the columns of niches, being all of green marble. There are six beautifully dressed pitch pins, the same as the main portion of the church, newly polished and varnished, giving the sacred precinct a most pleasing appect.

This altar is entirely the work of Messrs. Callahan and Glass, and was superintended throughout by Mr. John Callahan, Sr., the principal of the well-known firm, and the work reflects the highest credit on his skill as an artisan, as well as for his painstaking attention to every detail of the work. We may here be said that Mr.
Callahan's first initiation into the work in which he subsequently excelled in so remarkable a manner, took place at the erection of the now historic Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, at Harbour Grace, which was destroyed by fire on 2nd September, 1889, the work on the dome of which was mainly performed by him, and any one of an artistic turn who has seen that dome, must be ready to admit that it had no superior on this side of the Atlantic. The promise which Mr. Callahan had shown at that early stage of his career, under the able tuition of his famous master, Mr. John Mitchell, has been well borne out in the United States, Canada and St. John's, Newfoundland.

Newfoundlanders who have left our shores for the United States, Canada and elsewhere may rest assured that the memory of their departed friends is treasured by those they have left behind them, whose remains rest in peaceful seclusion in that beautiful plot in the rear of the Cathedral ground known as Belvidere, where very few have not some dearly loved relative or some fondly cherished friend.

When the bells chime out at midnight on a Christmas Eve throughout the continent of America proclaiming to the world that a Saviour is born to mankind, the Newfoundlanders scattered throughout the length and breadth of the land will be reminded upon reading this brief sketch of the beautiful little church in Belvidere that the good Nuns of St. Michael's will have gathered together the fatherless and motherless little ones, who are their special charge, and kneeling with them at that solemn hour will lift up their unadorned voices in supplication to Heaven not only for those departed and who rest in solitude around them, but for Newfoundlanders who are still in the flesh and who are unwilling sojourners from their Native Land.

They will be reminded of the exultant strains of the Gloria in Excelsis pealed forth from the grand organ and fifty voices of their own Cathedral of St. John's, and they will think with pride of the Archbishop
"who at that hour glided in the Pontifical robes of his sacred office in celebrating Mass, which ecclesiastic is one of themselves—a native of dear old Terra Nova.

I feel sure that I may make no apology to my fellow countrymen abroad for writing this brief sketch of the beautiful little chapel of Belvidere in which the Holy Sacrifice will be offered up on to-morrow morning.
It will be to them a stirring reminder of the past, old associations will be called up afresh, and I flatter myself that amongst the older and more thoughtful of my countrymen abroad the reading of this little sketch will cause a moistening of the eyes by the awakening of former scenes and associations, and it for only once for the year, no matter how fortunate their lots may have been in their own home, they will breathe a firm prayer to be permitted to view, if but for once, dear old Newfoundland and offer up at the graveside a pater noster and the repose of the souls of their dear departed friends who rest in peace in the sacred soil of Belvidere.

The Summer
School of 1918.

The friendships formed, the varieties of pleasure and profit obtained by the two hundred and odd teachers who were privileged to attend the Summer School of 1918 which closed on the 2nd inst., will, we feel sure, be among the pleasantest recollections of their whole lives. Other viewpoints, modified methods, new notions of the child mind, among other things are sure to result from the seed-thoughts sown by our good friends and learned lecturers from Columbia University. And so the blessings accruing from this course will not be confined to the teachers, alone but will be widely distributed in the communities in which they carry on their work of education.

Happy, indeed, must be the teacher-er's unknown philanthropist who conceived the idea of such a school, for by a chain of causes and consequences his philanthropy has spread unto others—His Excellency the Governor and Miss Harris, the Reid Nrd. Co., who by their generosity made the transportation so very easy for the teachers, the various good friends of the city who so kindly placed their homes at the disposal of the teachers, the Superintendents of Education and the local instructors who sacrificed their holidays to help, and last but by no means last, Sir Edgar Bowring and the good citizens who so kindly conveyed the teachers in their autos to Bowring Park. That the Summer School of 1918 has been a decided success in every way goes without saying. But let a thing be done ever so well it is the good finish that attracts.
A most delightful and enjoyable finish (the Bowring touch) was given to the Summer School of 1918 (as in 1917) by Sir Edgar Bowring, who of his magnanimity invited the students, instructors and directors—some two hundred in all—to spend Saturday afternoon at Bowring Park where they also had the very great pleasure of taking tea with him in the Bungelow.

The weather was perfect. The park with its hills and fates, pools and ponds, flowers and forests, water-

A Proud Record.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I have seen many letters in your paper of patriotic families, and know that we have a great many families who have given their all, and I think, Mr. Editor, that the Meadus family has figured highly with three sons and a stepson who have served in His Majesty's forces—Jim, the eldest, now prisoner of war in Germany, who was taken April 14th, 1917, Robert, who was killed at Beaumont Hamel on July 1st, 1917, and Alan, who is now at Winchester, while a stepson is with the Canadians.
He also fought in the Boer war. This,
Sir, is a good record. The father, Henry Meadus, claims that only for his age he would gladly enlist himself, for he has no one else now to send. This goes to show that some parents have not withheld their sons, but from the start were eager to do their bit.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, in anticipation, and wishing your widely read paper every success,
I beg to remain,
Aug. 6th, 1918. —M. J. K.

falls and steady streams, quiet bowers and meandering walks, constrained Prof. Judd and Miss Bristol to remark that they had not seen a park anywhere in their great country where nature so lavishly combined with art to produce a landscape so picturesque—they were charmed.

At 5 p.m. Sir Edgar very graciously received and shook hands with the teachers introduced by the Superintendents, after which they were further honored by his falling in with the group for a "photo" taken by a representative of the Holloway studio.

Then all repaired to the tables where full justice was done to the good things so exquisitely served and to which the last detail of attention was given by our genial Mr. Canning.

Games on the lawn, swimming in the pools, pleasures in the boats on the ponds; recitations, songs, music and—within the Bungalow where Principal Burke, master of ceremonies and perfect in the art, was in his right element, were enjoyed to the full till the shrill whistle of the train so kindly placed at the disposal of the teachers by the Reid Nrd. Co. summoned "all aboard."

On arrival at the station cheers were called for and lustily given to the Reid Nrd. Co. Sir Edgar Bowring, etc., etc.

The "Nrd. Ode" sung at the request of Prof. Judd and the National Anthem at 10.30 p.m. brought to a close the most enjoyable outing in all the experiences of the majority of the teachers.

Language fail us to convey adequately to our many good friends of St. John's from the originator of the Summer School to the last contributor, our very high appreciation for the great tact, intellectual and social,
which have been lavished upon us during the last four weeks. Will you please, therefore, accept the will for the deed and each one severally and all jointly accept our simple but sincere thanks? We thank you over and over again.
