BOLSHEVIKS RETREATING.
 ARCHANGEL, April 18. Russian and British forces early occupied the village of Bolshevo and are pursuing the Bolsheviks as they flee southward over the ice towards the Volokta rail station at Plestskaya. The troops entered the village without opposition, and the Bolsheviks fled during the night. Re-occupation of Bolshevo Ozerki, the months of communication between the line on the Volokta railway to Onga to the northwest.

RETIREMENT ADMITTED.
 LONDON, April 19. Retirement along virtually all of front in Eastern Russia, is admitted by the Soviet government in a message dated April 16th received here today.

DRIVEN BACK 12 MILES.
 LONDON, April 19. A successful attack Thursday by Russian troops against the Allied lines operating on Murmansk railway south of Kem, the Allied forces secured complete control of Lake Vajnor and the main road north to the sea, according to an official statement from the British War Office.

The Bolsheviks were driven five miles southward from Vojnor at the southern end of Lake Vajnor and the first objective of the attack. The main road to the White Sea passes through Vojnor. The Russian pursued the Bolsheviks down the road toward Poutin in the eastern shore of Lake Onga. The Bolsheviks attempted a stand, but were driven on southward with heavy losses. Two machine guns were captured from the enemy. The statement says that the claim of the Bolsheviks that they had captured Urova is untrue.

HUNGARIANS ATTACKED.
 COPENHAGEN, April 19. Rumanian forces have attacked Hungarian troops, according to a dispatch from Budapest, which falls to where the engagement occurred. Rumanians, says the message, suffered tremendous losses.

INDIAN RIMTS CONTINUE.
 SIMLA, India, April 17. A mob at Amritsar has made another violent attack against the British military with a loss of two officers. Order was restored at Amritsar. Telegraph and collection offices were burned. The strike in Delhi continues.

JAPAN DISAPPOINTED.
 TOKIO, April 17. The report from Paris that the Japanese delegates for the inclusion in the Covenant of the League of Nations of a clause providing for racial equality had failed of approval, caused great disappointment in Japan. The Dohi says that Japan will refuse to join the League of Nations, but the majority of the news-writers declare that Japan must face the situation bravely and steadily endeavour to enhance the nation's prestige.

ADRIATIC DISPUTE.
 PARIS, April 19. After a conference lasting more than four hours, which was attended by both Premier Orlando and Foreign Minister Sonnino of Italy, the Council of Four to-day failed to reach an agreement on the Adriatic question. The solution of the Fiume problem, considered by the Council of Four today, the Temps says, would give Italy that part of the city of Fiume lying on the right bank of the River Ragna and the main part of the port. Jugoslavians would receive the suburb of Susak with that part of the port on the left bank of the river. The paper says that the fate of the Dalmatian Coast is still undecided.

HAVE PATIENCE.
 PARIS, April 19. The text of the preliminary peace treaty will be transmitted to the press on Friday or Saturday of next week, the Petit Parisien says. The Echo de Paris states in case Germany refuses to sign the preliminary peace, a special train will immediately be put at the disposal of enemy delegates for return to Germany, and the Allies will take military and naval measures to enforce the treaty.

TURKS AND ARMENIANS.
 PARIS, April 19. The fear of further Turkish aggression causes the Armenian delegation to consider an appeal for assistance in organizing an Armenian army to drive the Turks from the newly-formed Republic. Requests for the occupation of Armenia by Allied troops have brought from the Peace Conference promises of consideration, the delegation's head states.

 GENEVA, April 19. An official statement states the Federal Council has authorized four Austrian archdukes to live in Switzerland, on condition they shall not engage in propaganda or politics.

PLUNKETT'S MISTAKE.
 LONDON, April 19. The Daily Telegraph says regarding what it styles a unfortunate declaration in the Press by Sir Horace Plunkett, that nothing less than the status of the self-governing Dominions must be conferred on Ireland, that there is no comparison between the position of Ireland with her close geographical propinquity to Britain, and the position of the self-governing Dominions.

PLEBISCITE ON ALLIED TERMS.
 COPENHAGEN, April 19. Preparations are being made in Germany for a plebiscite on the question of rejecting the peace terms offered to Germany if such rejection is

The Garden Campaign.

Dear Girls and Boys.—We all grumble and say what a dirty city we have, but it will not improve much until we all try our best to help. We hope that many girls and boys will enter for the Garden Competitions of which we shall tell you already have gardens. Others may have small yards, of which part can be used. No one really knows the joy and pleasure of a garden unless she makes one herself. It is not too early to begin at once planning for your garden. Put on your oldest clothes, an old pair of boots with old rubbers over them—because one often forgets things and has to go into the house—then the rubbers can be slipped off. You must not mind if neighbours come and stare. Perhaps when they see how you improve things they will follow your example.

One of our friends who had a little conservatory was once standing up on a step-ladder with a pail of water and a scrubbing brush. She had on a big apron and was very hard at work scrubbing down the shelves, singing for happiness, and having a perfect time. Looking up she saw her in a very interested manner watching her in a very interested manner. She got down off the ladder and went out of the conservatory because she was too proud to be seen scrubbing. I hope none of you would be so silly!

When you are comfortably dressed for your work, start by picking up all the old hoops, tin cans, stones, etc., and put them in the ash barrel for the sanitary man to take away. The next thing is to rake up everything—all the papers, old grass and twigs. If this cannot conveniently be burnt, put it also in the ash barrel.

These Garden Competitions will be open to any child between the ages of eight and sixteen.

Next week we shall tell you of the many prizes that will be offered, and what you must do to win them. Let your motto for this week be "CLEAN UP!"

A. M. A. AND E. G. S. April 19, 1919.

Film Secrets.

The secrets of the film are given away wholesale in Homer Croy's "How Motion Pictures are Made." How are wild animals handled? By drugging them till almost inert; by using ones known to be tame or toothless old; or, in certain circumstances, photographing them on a narrow moving platform so they cannot turn round.

How are the trick pictures of a bachelor's dream reverse, or a murderer's vision, obtained? Not by complete double exposures, as in old days, but by making one exposure of a film masked to obscure part of the film (sometimes the lens is masked), and by then running the film through again unmasked.

Month in Gulf But No Seals.

North Sydney, April 12.—The S. S. Inverness, Capt. Petite, owned by Sydney and North Sydney parties, which for the past month has been cruising the gulf in search of seals, arrived in port yesterday with a clean hold—not a single seal having been taken. The Inverness was the first steamer to sail from Cape Breton in search of seals, and it is discouraging to local capital that the expedition turned out as it did. This, however, has been a most unusual season, the poorest catch for more than a century. None of the steamers engaged in the Gulf has any catches. The Inverness is now moored at Salter's wharf.

Another Attempt to Cross the Atlantic.

An attempt will probably be made early in July by Messrs. Boulton and Paul to fly across the Atlantic. The aviators named expect to arrive here about the 6th of July. Mr. W. R. Warren, K.C., has been appointed agent, while Capt. Ray Bennett will assist in the local details.

Sad Homecoming.

(Western Star.)
 Sailor Michael Baines, of Currant Island, met with a sad bereavement on Tuesday, April 1st. He had been given his discharge from the Navy and was on his way down the coast. He was met by his father at Port aux Choix. Before they could leave for their home at Currant Island the father was taken ill and died the same evening. The news of the sad event cast a gloom over the place, where both father and son were well known and much respected. It is only a few years since Mrs. Baines and her daughter lost their lives by the overturning of a boat at sea.

Sable I. Sails.

The s.s. Sable I., Capt. Murley, sailed yesterday morning for Halifax, taking a large freight and passengers, Mrs. G. Jeans, A. Parkins, J. Gunn, J. Bennett, W. Hayward, H. Goldstone, Mr. Bankhan, F. O. Stables, M. Greene, J. Brooks and Mrs. D. Newell. The ship will make several trips here direct from Halifax before going in dock there for repairs, and will later make North Sydney and Charlottetown ports of call, on the way down.

Frenchman Making His Atlantic Flight.

Versailles, April 8.—Lieutenant Jean Pierre Fontan started on a flight today to Casa Blanca, Morocco, from which town he will proceed to Dakar, in the French colony of Senegal, and thence to Cape Verde Islands, with the intention of attempting a flight across the Atlantic from the islands. He is accompanied by a mechanic, Philbert Cabout.

Flight Postponed.

The trans-Atlantic flight was postponed again yesterday, for although local conditions were ideal those of mid-Atlantic were quite the reverse. Consequently, some hundreds of people who visited both aerodromes yesterday, in hopes of witnessing the flight, were disappointed.

Shipping Notes.

The Adolph leaves New York today for this port direct, with general cargo.

Schr. Smuggler is now due from Boston with general cargo to the Robinson Export Co.

The dredge Priestman, which has been undergoing repairs, leaves today for Conception Bay and will begin operations at Chapel's Cove.

The Wellington, Capt. Williams, fish laden by Job. Bros. & Co., got away yesterday morning for Gibraltar, after being delayed here several weeks.

The Sachem arrived at Halifax 44 hours after leaving here last week. The John Green left for Bay Bulls yesterday with the captain of the Appoline on board.

Canadian Inspector Here

A Canadian Government Inspector is now in the city in connection with the enquiry into the 'Cape Breton' boiler explosion. The wreckage caused on board has been cleared away, but the work of repairing has not yet begun, and it is likely that the steamer will be delayed here several months.

Confusing the Issue

A powerful section of the English Press is unanimous in its condemnation of the latest official summary of the League of Nations Covenant, declaring it to be much less satisfactory than the first draft. The London Chronicle emphatically states that the new draft, which recognizes in toto the Monroe Doctrine of the United States, "is distinctly and perhaps decisively inferior to the old."

The "Monroe Doctrine" was promulgated by James Monroe (President of the United States) in 1823, and its effect was that the United States of America, while recognizing existing foreign Colonies in the Western Hemisphere, would regard any future attempt at Colonization of the "American Continents" i.e., North and South America, by any European Power, as dangerous to the peace and safety of the American Commonwealth. President Polk in 1845 interpreted this as forbidding European acquisition of any further American territory. In consequence of this Presidential declaration, Congress in 1867 protested to Great Britain against the formation of the Dominion of Canada (Confederation) and in 1894 President Cleveland applied the doctrine to boundary disputes between South American countries and the United States, an application which a few years later very nearly brought Great Britain and the United States into conflict over the Venezuelan question.

The English labor organ Daily Herald says that the new summary does not indicate much improvement on the original draft, and emphasizes that from a democratic point of view the League of Nations, as at present constituted is an alliance of States, not of peoples. The Morning Post, which has been inflexibly opposed to the formation of the League, and is also a severe critic of President Wilson refers in an ironical manner to "the new Garden of Eden, in which the Monroe Doctrine will take the place of the tree of knowledge of good and evil," and further expresses the opinion that the fruits of the Western Hemisphere will, under the new Covenant, be forever forbidden to the signatories of the league. The Post blames Wilson, personally, for all the objectionable features of the present draft and places the United States President in a category with Metternich, the Austrian diplomat and Castlereagh, Marquis of Londonderry, an English statesman who was pilloried by his people as a creature of the Austrian during the various Peace Congresses in Europe, Vienna (1814-15) Paris (1815) Aix la Chapelle (1818) in which both took part. Wilson is charged by the Post with working for the confusion of the nations in order that more greatness may be brought to his own, which concludes its article by declaring: "It is monstrous that such a covenant should be signed without being first fairly considered by the public parliament." Whether or not the harsh criticisms of Wilson are justified is a subject for thought. Undoubtedly he was the arch spirit in the formation of the League of Nations as at present constituted, and also in the drafting of its Covenant, and should he have outwitted the other representatives by the shrewd manner in which acceptance of the Monroe doctrine was incorporated into the agreement, then he is the chief diplomat of all those gathered at Versailles. But there are troubled waters yet through which the Peace Treaty and the League Covenant have to pass. They have to be submitted to the ordeal of a plenary session of the Peace Conference and afterwards go before the Versailles Congress, at which will be present delegates from the enemy powers, who may or may not accept the documents as written.

To add also to the difficulties in the way and to further increase them by prolonging the term when the Peace treaty will be signed, President Wilson has repudiated the work of Colonel House, who represented the United States at the Peace Council, during Wilson's recent illness and who was in effect the President's deputy and adviser. The announcement that the President does not agree with what the Colonel had done and agreed to has created much confusion, for the former has caused it to be made known that he is nowhere near an agreement with the allied delegates on the question of indemnities, and that he will depart for home—instantly—Lloyd George (Britain), Clemenceau (France) and Orlando (Italy) do not soon agree to his terms on what peace should be and how determined. In a word the fat is in the fire and the issue is now so much more confused that a lot of the completed work will have to be gone over again.

C. C. C. Band Dance To-Night.

As we go to press we learn that through some little misunderstanding the C. C. C. Band Club Dance advertised to take place to-night in the C. C. C. New Hall is postponed, but the C. C. C. Band have decided to go ahead with their dance instead, in aid of their new alterations. Therefore, all those who were looking forward to the C. C. C. dance to-night will not be disappointed, because they will get the same music by the full band, and the floor is now in a better condition than ever. The only drawback to-night being that no supper will be served owing to the alterations going on at present in the Hall, and the present small Supper Room will be given up to the gentlemen for a Dressing Room, but Ice Cream and drinks of all kinds will be sold at the Refreshment table in the Ball Room, and as a consequence the price of tickets has been raised to $1.50 double and $1.00 double and lady's 60c.

Appreciation.

NEWFOUNDLAND MEN APPRECIATE ACTION OF SYDNEY NAVY LEAGUE.

The hundred homeward-bound Newfoundland naval reservists who were in Sydney on Wednesday had only a few hours in the city while they were here local people did their best to make the men's stay as pleasant as possible. And, judging by what the seafarers said in appreciation, the efforts were successful.

Officers of the local branch of the Navy League of Canada were quick to offer to do whatever they could for the men. Indeed, they were at work before the men actually reached the city. Thirty six dollars worth of cigarettes were given by the branch to the sailors and other little kindnesses shown in token of appreciation of what the Newfoundland seamen, and all the British sailors, have done for the Empire. Cigarettes were also given the men by the Daughters of the Empire and, as The Record noted on Wednesday, the sailors were guests of W. E. Clark at breakfast at the Boscobell shortly after they reached the city.

The Sydney branch of the Navy League, by the way, is likely to be well spoken of in Newfoundland. A few weeks ago when another party of about 100 reservists from the island were in the city for a day or so the Navy League people were energetic in efforts to make their stay enjoyable. They co-operated in the arrangements for the dinner which was given the men in St. Andrew's Hall by Rev. Dr. Pringle and one of their steps was to see that the sailors were supplied with an abundance of "smokes." In buying cigarettes and tobacco for the two groups of reservists $35 was spent. Through the generosity of Alderman Hugh MacAdam and E. M. Boyd the Navy League was also able to add some more gifts of "smokes" when the first party of reservists were here.—Sydney Record.

Lamaline Complains.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to comment on the building which we are asked to believe is the telegraph office. The house adjoining this is over 100 years old, and has been abandoned for over three years as quite unfit to live in. Every window is tumbling out and not one pane of glass left. Through these windows cats and dogs are seen making ingress and egress every hour in the day. We, as the public, wish the Postmaster General to understand that it's only through the extreme honesty of the people that this building hasn't been robbed, as it is very easy to enter this house and get through into the office, or again get through the old windows of the office. If this is not seen to by the P.M.G., we will not risk registered letters there, until we are assured of their safety. We have often heard of an inspector of offices, but hearing is not seeing. Why isn't he sent here? We cannot see how we get such satisfaction from the operator and Postmistress as we do. If she had the advantages some others have, we would have nothing to complain of. We hear of a new office being built at Burin, Epworth and Lawn, and why not Lamaline. As the cry from Flinders fields, we ask for some one to come over and help us. "We do need your help."

With thanks for space in your paper, and wishing you success and prosperity,

I remain,

Lieut. Newman, M.C.

Mr. John F. Newman of the General Post Office has received a letter from the Minister of Militia, conveying his congratulations and appreciation of the splendid conduct of his son, Lieut.
Newman, and quoting an extract from the supplement to the London Gazette giving the details of the gallantry which won the Military Cross. The extract is as follows:—

"For conspicuous bravery and initiative. On the 14th October, during the advance from Ledeghem towards the Lys, a hostile battery of field guns, firing at very close range temporarily held up the attack. Lieut.
Newman grasping the situation
at once decided to outflank the battery from the right. He led his platoon forward, and although fired on at point blank range, continued to advance by rushes. When within 500 yards of the battery, his platoon came under intense machine gun fire, and casualties were becoming heavy. Lieut. Newman, however, was "impossible. He at once sent a Lewis gun with two men to outflank the battery from the right, the fire from
"back to a farm. Lieut. Newman "charged back with his platoon, and
"struck the battery, four machine
"guns and what was left of the gun
"crews, one officer and seven men."
He then pushed on to meet farm
"and captured an ammunition wagon
"with transport and several more "prisoners. By this quick decision and "dash he rapidly cleared up a dif"ficult situation and enabled the ad"vance to be pushed on still farther."

Lieut. Newman has some conspicuous by good service throughout the War, and his many friends and those of his parents have reason to rejoice because of the distinguished honor conferred upon him. The young Lieut., who, rumor says, will shortly return, bringing with him a bride from the Old Land, is a son of Mr. John P. Newman, one of the senior officials in the General Post Office, who to-day is receiving congratulations from the staff.

"For conspicuous bravery and initiative"—a credential which not only points to the record of a successful past, but foretells a most successful future. It is noteworthy that the two men of Lieut. Newman's platoon were Newfoundland's gallant V. C. Private Ricketts, and his courageous comrade, Corporal Brazil.

A Fashion I Approve Of.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

There is a certain tendency in the styles of today which has my most enthusiastic approval (what a comfort that must be to Dame Fashion!) I refer to the widespread use of vari-colored head chains and also of many hued scarfs as a decorative feature in woman's dress.

It Gave The Effect of Three Gowns.
 In a certain restaurant which I occasionally frequent I have several times seen a young woman whom I should say probably belonged to the upper ranks of business women. Each time I have seen her she has had on the same gown—a black satiny gown of rich material made very simply but on excellent lines. And each time the gown has looked different because of garniture or lack thereof. The first time I saw her was in the evening, she was dining with a young man apparently as a preliminary to some kind of evening entertainment. On this occasion the black satin was the background for a beautiful (but not necessarily expensive) chain fashioned of coral colored and jet beads. It hung half way to her waist, and when she got up to go out I observed that the note of coral was repeated in her stockings.

The next time I noticed her was on a Sunday noon. I should say she had just come from Church and the gown was worn without ornament of any sort. So different did this make it appear that I looked twice to be sure it was the same gown.

This Time It was a Symphony of Blue and Black.
 The third time she appeared, she wore a long chain in which small black beads were punctuated at rhythmic intervals by large beads of that bright blue which in contrast with black is so popular just now. Tiny blue ear-rings and stockings to match completed a costume, Frenchy, in good taste and extremely becoming.

Again, I met some time ago a woman who always gave the impression of being dressed richly and with distinction. Later I knew her quite intimately and on closer acquaintance which she knew how to cleverly enhance and vary by the use of several rich scarfs in odd and most becoming shades. These she always keeps on hand, renewing them as fast as they wear out.

Be On the Outlook for Such Aids to Beauty Growing.
 That was some years ago before scarfs were as popular as they are now. To-day, not to have at least one such scarf is to be behind the styles as well as neglectful of a great aid to one's wardrobe.

Every daughter of Eve instinctively loves beautiful things to wear. Some of us, however, do not feel that we can afford to sacrifice the large proportion of our income which maintaining a beautiful, up-to-date and well furnished wardrobe would eat up. But we can at least be on the outlook for all such comparatively inexpensive aids to beauty of gowning as these I have mentioned.

Color and line are what makes clothes beautiful and distinctive, not what they cost.

Milady's Boudoir.
LET'S MAKE BELIEVE.
 "Let's make believe it's snowing," came the shrill childish voice from the living room, followed by the merry jingle of bells and laughter. It was such a hot day too, everyone declared it was the record breaker. The city streets and shops were deserted, and no one ventured out, if they could help it. Women sat about on the verandas and groaned about the heat, and each straggling pedestrian paused to mop his brow and remark about it. But this living room was the scene of a paper snowstorm.

If more of us could pretend that things are, when they are not, and that they are not, when they are, perhaps we wouldn't find so many drawn mouth corners and deep furrows on foreheads every day. Everyone will admit that children are happier than grown folks, and the reason of this, they have no responsibilities.

This is of course only one of the reasons. Children are not cynical,

LIFE'S VOLUME.

Just Folks
 A Guest

When life's last page before us lies And we have grown old and wise From pondering the volume through What shall we gather in review. What but some loved one's lovely smile Shall we determine most worth while.

There at the ending of life's book We'll turn for just one backward look And come to find that home and friends Are life's best treasures when life ends The gold we gathered and the fame Vanished as swiftly as they came.

The early chapters when we dreamed Were not as glorious as they seemed. Then we were hot for strife and sought The distant goals for which men fought Eviled, were envied in our turn, And quarreled over self's concern.

There were great disappointments met That caused us sorrow and regret Yet we outlived them all, and faced The next day's labor, undismayed. And found this truth, through good or ill The loyal friend is loyal still.

Much that we toiled for, craved and got. Thought worthy once, now matters not. But that which counted we shall find Was when another called us kind. And those days at our best were spent Which left us rich with sentiment.

When life's last page before us lies And we have learned its volume wise We shall not count our coins of gold Nor live the days when we were bold The days that saw our loved ones smile Will be the joys we hold worth while.

Married to a Madman.

(Pearson's Weekly.)

Of all the fair women at the Court of Louis XIV, incomparably the loveliest was Hortense Mancini, niece of the great Cardinal Mazarin, then in the zenith of his power and splendor. How beautiful she was even the gifted Saint Evremont, one of her most abject slaves, was powerless to portray. He raves of the glory of her eyes, which "combine the sweetness of blue, the gaiety of grey, and above all, the fire of the black;" the exquisite music of her voice; her complexion, "whiter than driven snow;" and her black hair, "whose curls seem to rejoice to shade so lovely a head."

"That a woman so superbly dowered by Nature should have every high-placed gallant in France at her feet, is not to be wondered at. From Armand de la Porte, son of the great Marshal de la Meilleraye, to King Louis himself and his brother, the Duc d'Anjou, there was not one who would not have shed his blood to win her smiles.

Our own King, Charles II, then an exile, dangled before her eyes the crown that was so soon to be his; Pedro II came from Portugal, and Duke Charles Emmanuel from Savoy to implore her to share their thrones.

Lovers Came and Lovers Went. But to one and all the autocratic little lady turned a cold shoulder. Thus lovers came and went until at last her uncle, the Cardinal, seeing death approaching, and anxious to see his favorite niece a wife before he died, gave her hand to Armande de la Porte, whose offer he had contemptuously spurned a year earlier with the words:

"I would rather see Hortense married to a lackey!"

Thus we find our arch-coquette wedded to one of the most ill-favored men in France, a degenerate already showing signs of the insanity that was brooding over him. And the fact that she was now a Duchesse, and owner of five million pounds of her uncle's gold, proved poor consolation for the misery of wedded life with a madman.

It was not long, indeed, before her husband's insane fits of jealousy, his violence and his reckless squandering of her dower, compelled her to fly for refuge to a convent, where her high spirits found such an outlet in practical jokes on the nuns that she was politely invited to find another lodging. And we see the madcap riding away from the convent gates, attired as a cavalier, with a waiting-woman, masquerading as her squire, in attendance.

This was, indeed, an adventure after the heart of Mazarin's niece. She had the whole world before her; and her beauty to invest her wanderings with the flavor of romance. We see her queening it at Milan, and coquetting with Princes and Cardinals at Rome, as a preliminary to joining her sister, Marie, in her flight from the cruelties of her husband, the Constable Colonna.

Then followed perilous adventures by land and sea, pursuits and half-broth escapes—until at last Hortense, to avoid capture by her husband's emissaries, left her sister and found a regal welcome at the Court of her old lover, Charles Emmanuel II of Savoy, where for a few years, until the Duke's death sent her once more on her wanderings, she reigned as a Queen.

A King Once More at Her Feet.
 When the roving Duchesse next appears on the scene, she is received with open arms by our second Charles at his Whitehall Court, with the Merry Monarch once more at the feet of the woman—now more lovely than ever in the maturity of her charms—who had refused to smile on his suit in his days of obscurity.

Now followed halcyon years for the fair fugitive, eager to drain every cup of pleasure and conquest that came her way. She was installed Queen of Beauty at England's Court, with the King ever at her side, surrounding her with homage and pomp and luxury.

Poets vied with each other to sing "the triumph of her conquering eyes;" painters tumbled over one another to make their canvases glow with her charms.

A few years of such triumph as few women have known. Then came the end of it all on that night of tragedy when Charles was struck down by his fatal illness, as, by her side, he presided over the revels in his Whitehall Palace, the jingle of gold-at-the-gaming-tables and the seductive strains of love-songs in his ears.

But though her sun of splendour had now set, the Duchesse still had her beauty and the feverish delights of gambling to console her; and years later we catch our last glimpse of her, seated at the card-table stimulating her flagging strength with copious draughts of brandy.

Old age was now creeping on. The last traces of her loveliness vanished. And then at last the train of her life, we see her husband, come to his own at last, looking proudly on her dead body "pray to it as a saint and kneel with their chaplets."

funny to read. But I am so tired of the trenches, of chargers and horns! A book on such a subject just wrenches my system clear to my corns. I'm tired of the traitor and spy; I'm sick of the related journals which harrow my till I cry. I've sighted till I'm blind of sighing. I've wept till I'm blind; and so, all conventions being, I ask for some humor in the years have been slow and treading, the sad years of sorrow; wrong; to laugh is a joy and a relief, when we have been so long. The most of the war books, lemons, they're bloody and so on, and vain; so hand me some by Clemens, who's known to the able as Twain. And even old Ward, are better than stories of things, and corpses heaped up by cord. I've wept till my weary, I've sobbed till my weary; so lend me a book that's cheery, that isn't all sticky with American Letter.

San Francisco, S.C., April 17.—The Philippine independence movement discussed in the press by newspapers are disposed to give the islands the freedom them by Congress. The fear that Japan may do if the islands admitted, however, has made friends of Philippine independence about sanctioning the idea of a new republic in the islands. This objection cannot be, however, as the islands are as much under the protection of the United States as the Philippines by Japan. It is not that that empire would mean that the United States has many interests which are letting go of the islands, but the big sugar and interests. Many people regard the attitude of the United States toward the Philippines as a test of the sincerity of this nation's stand on the rights of small nations. The sense that Ireland is, and the United States should decide to secede from the group, it means that this country had taken on its plighted word. The Philippines were a Spanish colony by various reasons and after the close of the Spanish war the United States, including Philippine politicians the past fifteen years been disposed toward the United States because of the splendid record this country has made as a result of their fighting for independence is purely sentimental and in does it spring from a hatred of people which are at present their country. During the war the Philippines raised an army of 50,000 men for service in and loaned some $50,000,000 to the American Government so that they the God-given desire to be independent prompts them to ask for independence. The United States is a nation and it is quite possible she will allow the Philippines to keep for themselves their future. She might have the rich island of Cuba after the war, but unlike other nations she not regard a solemn pledge as scrap of paper. The giving of the Philippines to the people of the islands will mean new power for the United States. They have won new laurels that worthy to stand beside those on the battlefields of France through her efforts the world from tyranny and shame. They who broke the Hindenburg at the terminal military on the other day. They are an American Letter.

St. John's, N.S., April 17.—The question of Philippine independence
has been discussed in the press and newspapers are disposed to give the islands the freedom which they desire. The fear is that Japan may do if the islands are not admitted, however, has made the friends of Philippine independence chary about sanctioning the idea of a new republic in the East. This objection cannot be overlooked, as the islands are as much under the protection of this government as though they remained an American colony.
The Philippines by Japan mean that that empire would be able to fight the United States, and many interests which are letting go of the islands are being the big sugar and other interests. Many people regard the attitude of the United States toward the Philippines as a test of the sincerity of this nation's stand on the rights of small nations. The Philippines, however, are not a small nation in the sense that Ireland is,
and the United States should decide to possession of the group, it does not mean that this country has back on its pledged word.
The Philippines is a Spanish colony
by various races and were used after the close of the Spanish by the United States.
Leading Philippine politicians for the past fifteen years been disposed toward the United States because of the splendid record
this country has made as a friend. Their English is not purely sentimental and indeed does it spring from a hatred of the people which are at present ruining their country. During the war the Philippines raised an army of more than 50,000 men for service in the United States and loaned some $50,000,000 to the American Government so that only the God-given desire to be free prompts them to ask for independence. The United States is a great nation and it is quite possible that she will allow the Philippines to housekeep for themselves in the near future. She might have the rich island of Cuba after the war, but unlike other nations
she does not regard a solemn pledge as "scraps of paper." The giving of the Philippines to the people of the islands will mean new power
for the United States.
The United States has won new laurels that are worthy to stand beside those won on the battlefields of France
through her efforts to the world
saved from tyranny and shame.
The boys who broke the Hindenburg arrived at the terminal military station the other day. They are the flower of Southern chivalry and manhood. It was these troops from South Carolina that made the first breach in the German defenses that resulted in the final surrender of the Hun legions. Field Marshal Haig admits the truth of this statement in his recent report.

The proposed air flight across the Atlantic is interesting quite a few American scientists. The Daily Mail's prize of $50,000 seems to be a secondary consideration. The scientific aspect of the flight seems to be of vastly more interest to them than the monetary reward which will come to the most successful aviator.
I was glad to see the prominence which dear old Newfoundland has received as result of the preparations being made to attempt the crossing of the Atlantic through the air.
Let us hope that this publicity which the most delightful of all the British colonies is getting will accord our beloved little island its rightful place among the important countries of the world and result in prosperity and happiness remaining with it for all time.

W. M. DOOLEY.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my dear brother, Driver William Thomas King, 1st Canadian Contingent C. A. S. C.
British Expeditionary Force, enlisted in St. John, N.S., August 6th, 1914.
Killed April 9th, 1918.

As I sit alone and ponder, 'neath the shades of closing day,
I am thinking of a brother, whom we
all loved so well,
He among the many others, who answered freedom's call,
On the far-off fields of Flanders,
fought and fell.

Oh how sadly we remember all the jollity and mirth
Of that soldier boy, whose death we dearly grieve;
But we have this consolation: he died
a hero's death.
Like thousands more who died that we may live.

But what is our affection, when compared with mother's love?
A weeping mother mourns that lad
to-day;
But God is near to comfort her and
lighten all her cares;
He will share her sorrows through life's weary way.

Sad reflections now surround us; for that voice we loved is still,
But his memory will be always dear
to me;
But when King and Country called him, he was ready to respond,
Like so many more brave boys of Canada.

Oh dear brother, gone forever; thy
loss we all deplore,
But commend thee to the God of earth
and skies;
We hope at last to meet thee, where in that world where no war clouds will ever rise.

By his sister, May Rodgers, 50 1/2 Monkstown Road, St. John's, Newfoundland.
The following brothers also of the same family were all in the war:
Gunner John Henry King, 1st Can.
Contingent, 10 Battery, 3rd Brigade,
C. F. A. B. E. Force; Private Arthur
George King, 105th Battalion, C. E. F.; Private Herbert H. King, 1st Newfoundland Regiment.

EFFERVESCENT SALT

The Ideal Health Regulator for the Whole Family

It makes you enjoy what you eat and helps you to digest three meals a day. It relieves "Heartburn" or Indigestion—drives away Headaches—regulates the Kidneys and Bowels—and is remarkably effective in toning up the nerves and bringing sound, refreshing sleep. Physicians have recommended Abbey's Salt for years as a Tonic and Blood Purifier; it fulfills Nature's requirements as Nature intended.

A RELIABLE OLD ENGLISH SALINE

Listening to Billiards.

(By Clyde Fosten in Daily Mail.)
The sound of billiards, when the masters play, is tuneful to the ears of the votary; one could lul oneself
to sleep by the recollection of it more effectively than by counting phantom sheep or teeing up imaginary golf balls on the counter-pane.
So it befell that I found myself, on a recent occasion, listening to billiards in the championship match till I fancied that the jinglers were playing solos for the enchantment of my ears.
A clergyman sitting next to me patted the hand of his small son and bade him be still. I could plainly see that the clergyman was "listening."
On the other side of me a personal friend "nodded, nearly napping," because he could not resist the "clickclick" of the cue and the gobble of the hazards. The contingency that he might vocalise his breathing kept me in readiness to rouse him.
Only one reflection did it all seem strangely new to me. I had never "listened" to billiards before. Yet on that afternoon I seemed to hear booted elves dancing on the green cloth that stretched beneath the electric glare like a grassy sward with the sun shining on it and whorls of smoke on either side.
Someone struck a light, and the scratch was part of the symphony.
Click-click! Click-click! continued the cannons, till there came back to me over a long distance of miles and years the ticking of a grandfather clock.

A Sermonette.

I went to church last Sunday, being that a-way inclined. Got up early, had my bath, shaved and then made up my mind, that the proper thing to do on such a lovely Lord's Day, was to go and hear a preacher hold forth his little lay. As I'm not very orthodox I just went with the folks who represent a high-toned church; and not cracking any jokes I simply want to say if you will lead a cat to me, that I was disappointed, in this way, don't you see? The person took his text from St.
Paul's long letter to the citizens of Corinth, and the best that he could do,
was to tell a lot of stories about the recent war, and how the conference of Peace had not proceeded far; he touched upon the labor strikes, what Boi-sheviki meant, and made a couple of snacks about the Union government;
he talked on prohibition and the housing situation, and other poor accommodations at the new terminal station.
He damned the poor old kaiser, and ran the gaunt thru of everything that happened since daylight time got thru;

The Jew's Harp.

Discussion of the legal status of the Jew's-harp recalls some odd bits of general information. A grenadier in the army of Frederick the Great is said to have been the first performer recorded for virtuosity, although his name would probably be hard to find in the histories of music. Another performer, Eulenstein, who once played in London, is said to have worn out his teeth prematurely in his devotion to his art. Why the article is called a Jew's-harp no one knows.
The name, may have originated in vague reference to the ancient Jewish custom of playing on harps.
Others think it derives from the French "jeu" meaning "play," and yet others that it was first called a "jaw harp" or "jaw's harp." It is, at any rate, the instrument of many who might agree with Lamb in saying,
"Sentimentally, I am disposed to harmony, but originally I am incapable of a tune."

The Door.

Few persons realize what a modern convenience is the familiar door. No primitive peoples have, or ever did have doors; the great temples of Egypt and of Greece had doorways, of course, but no doors. Often there were silks and tapestries hung over the doorways or doors or gates; but the door proper is absolutely an improvement, even a luxury, of modern civilization.
Fans are enormous.
Long tailored coats are embroidered
all over.
Bold black and white plaids are used for separate coats.
