U.S. Embassy in Mexico Takes Over British Archives—Further Efforts Are Made to Avoid General Strike of Postal Officials.

U.S. EMBASSY TAKES CHARGE OF BRITISH ARCHIVES.
 WASHINGTON, June 19.—A request that the United States Embassy take charge of the archives of the British Legation in Mexico City has been transmitted to Washington through Ambassador Kellogg and instructions forwarded to H. F. Arthur Schlegel, United States charge at the Mexican capital. He was directed to inform the Mexican Foreign Office his action was a "matter of courtesy." The Mexican Government has announced its intention of not receding from its position in demanding the recall of Cummins.

SENATORS DRIVEN OUT BY GAS.
 PROVIDENCE, R.I., June 19.—The long filibuster which has blocked proceedings of the Rhode Island Senate was interrupted this morning shortly after eight o'clock when fumes said to be chlorine gas drove the Senators from the chamber and caused four to collapse. The incident abruptly halted the session after 42 hours without recess. After the Senators retreated the janitors searched the chamber and discovered that a newspaper saturated with the gas mixture had been placed behind the draperies at the rear of the rostrum.

MEDICAL MEN IN SESSION.
 OTTAWA, June 20.—The Canadian Medical Commission were ordered by Dr. J. D. Page, of the Federal Department of Health, at the Canadian Medical Convention here today, to investigate leprosy more closely, so that they could diagnose the disease when a Leprosy not knowing whether he was suffering from it came to the physicians for treatment. He instanced a girl visiting various doctors for two weeks before a correct diagnosis was made that she was afflicted with Leprosy. At the present time there were ten cases of leprosy in New Brunswick, of which four were active, while there were nine cases in British Columbia, of which seven were active. "The athletic heart, like the strained heart, was a myth, while evidence of tobacco causing a permanent disease of the heart was meagre," declared Dr. John Parkins, of London, an eminent authority on heart disease. He said that even excessive smoking did not injure the heart permanently, nor was there evidence to show that heart disease originated from smoking to excess. The main cause of heart disease were rheumatic fever, known as heart fever and syphilis.

TO RESCUE WRANGEL ISLAND COLONY.
 NOME, Alaska, June 19.—Two planes are afoot here to rescue the colony which Harold Noice left on Wrangel Island in the Arctic Ocean, north of Siberia, in August, when he learned that the expedition led there in 1921 by Alan Crawford, of Toronto, had perished, with the exception of Ada Blacklock, an Eskimo woman. The Wrangel Island expedition were designed to establish the British claim to the island. The party left on the island by Noice, consisted of thirteen Eskimos, in charge of Charles Wells, of Nome.

CANADIAN JOURNALISTS ON TOUR.
 CHERBOURG, France, June 20.—One hundred Canadian Journalists arrived here to-day aboard the steamer Melita, for a tour of England, Belgium and France. They sent a telegram of congratulations to President Doumergue.

PASSED AMENDMENT.
 OTTAWA, June 20.—A Bill, to amend the Act, incorporating the Board of the Presbyterian College of Halifax, was passed by the Private Bill Committee of the House of Commons this morning.

A Romantic, Thrilling Feature at the Majestic

A picture that will be hailed as one of the big successes of the current season is the Paramount production of "Children of Jazz," which was given a highly successful premier showing at the Majestic Theatre last night. Theodore Kosloff, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Calhoun and Eileen Percy are featured. Miss Percy, as Babs Weston, is engaged to marry Richard Forestall who returns from Europe with Babs' father, John Weston, to find Babs the central figure of a series of wild jazz parties. Forestall learns that Babs, jokingly, has become engaged to two young wasters, one of them already married. He leaves, telling Babs that he will have nothing more to do with her.

As the story proceeds, Babs, with Ted Carter and Lina and Clyde Dunbar, is stranded on an island where it chances that Richard Forestall is visiting his father, who, with a few servants, lives there in the manner of the people of the 1850's. Richard compels Babs and her friends to don quaint costumes and to remain on the island indefinitely. After many unsuccessful attempts to escape, Weston, notified by Richard by wireless, that his daughter is safe, arrives to find Forestall, believing that Babs loves Ted Carter, preparing to leave for good. But Ted has something to say and the picture closes with Babs and Richard standing on the shore watching Ted sail from the small harbour into a new life. A life of jazz for all had come to an end.

This production is as thrilling as it is entertaining. The supporting cast is of the finest and includes Irene Dalton, Frank Currier, Snitz Edwards and Lillian Drew. Jerome Storm was the director.

Misses McShane and Habel won further honors as entertainers last night when they submitted a splendid program of acceptable songs and violin selections. These artists are now concluding their seventh week and it looks as though the Majestic patrons will want to hear a lot more of them before their engagement terminates. The same bill is repeated to-night and to-morrow afternoon. Reserve Monday for "The Valley of Silent Men."

Only Woman Mason Did Not Hide in Clock Case

LORD CASTLETOWN TELLS AUTHENTIC STORY AT LAST OF LADY WHO WAS WORKING IN AN ALCOVE.

Most people remember more or less vaguely the story of the only woman Freemason. The usual version is that a certain Miss St. Leger, impelled by curiosity, hid herself in a clock-case in a room where a lodge was being held, and was discovered because she could not repress a sneeze.

The true version has now been given to the world for the first time by Lord Castletown, whose wife is a descendant of the heroine of the story in question.

Lord Castletown's Irish seat is Doneraile Court, and it was here that the affair took place in the year 1721. The story is, he tells us in his book of reminiscences, entitled "Ego," quite authentic, and the room where the scene occurred is exactly as it was in those days.

According to the author, however, the lady did not hide in the clock-case, but was working unseen in an alcove at the far end of the room where the lodge was being held. When she realised what was happening she tried to escape, but was arrested by the Tyler at the door and brought back.

Naturally, consternation reigned, and some members of the lodge were in favor of a drastic penalty. But eventually, at the instance of her cousin, whom she afterwards married, it was decided that she must become a Mason as the only way out of the difficulty.

She was accordingly initiated into the craft there and then, and she evidently progressed in it, as there is a picture of her in the room in full Master Mason's regalia.

Lord Castletown has travelled extensively all over the world, and some of his adventures make interesting reading.

For instance, in one of the far western American states in the pre-railroad days, a big, bearded man, with two revolvers strapped to his hips, swaggered into the bar of a saloon where Lord Castletown was, and asked him:

"You are a Britisher?"

"Yes."

"Can you shoot?"

"No," said Lord Castletown. "I am no good with a revolver, and never carry one."

"Would you like to see me shoot?"

The author replied in the affirmative and accordingly they adjourned outside to the back of the saloon, and the big man drew one of his six-shooters. "Here," he said, "take this five-dollar bit and chuck it up in the air pretty high."

The author did as he was told, and the coin was picked up by the man who had been hit plump in the centre. This was repeated three or four times.

On returning to the saloon Lord Castletown called for drinks, and the big man presently departed with a cheery "So long."

Everybody seemed mighty glad to see the back of him, and the bartender, calling the author on one side, said:

"By gum, stranger, you had a mighty lucky escape. That chap was Jesse James, the most notorious train-robber and outlaw in America. He might have shot you any minute, and if you had been armed he sure would. He hates Britfishers, and likes to wing them even if he don't plug them."

Find Remedy for Whooping Cough

Washington, June 8. (United Press.)—Members of the Army "gas-house gang" to-day announced the discovery of a cure for whooping cough.

No longer must fond mother wait for the ailment to "run its course"—a traditional "course" of six weeks. Army ingenuity and chlorine gas will send Johnny and Mary back to school after four days.

The whooping cough treatment is very like that which President Coolidge took in Washington for his cold. The only difference is that it requires an hour's inhalation of gas for four successive days—and that the ratio of gas and air is slightly varied.

Quarter to Work in Tomb Again

FAMOUS ARCHAEOLOGIST EXPECTS TO RECOMMENCE TASK IN NOVEMBER.

Howard Carter's troubles with the Egyptian Government are now a closed book. "I have every hope of continuing my work at the end of November," the world-famous archaeologist announced this morning on his arrival at the Windsor Hotel.

Of course there are disagreements in well regulated families," he remarked laughingly, changing the subject to talk of the one half of the work which is yet to be done. The latter's undertaking will be an examination of the effigy of a young boy, who bore the proud title of King Ankh-Amen, and of two chambers which are expected to disclose marvellous treasures and which as yet have not been opened.

"I am not in favor of removing the mummy of the King from the tomb," he emphasized. "It is the Egyptian Government which wishes to do that. I do not think that anybody should be so desecrated." The scientist also expressed his disapproval of that morbid impression of archaeology, which has given the public who views museums in museums.

The well-built and of distinguished appearance, Mr. Carter looks surprisingly young for one who has labored years in Egypt.

IN EGYPT AT 18.

In discussing his buried treasure he expressed the appreciation of an artist, as well as the enthusiasm of a scientist. "I was led to devote myself to archaeology, and I found myself in Egypt at the age of 18," he said. He spoke of his six years' excavation and the reward which was his when he became a household word. "I was sure the tomb was there," he said, "if you had asked me at the end of six years whether or not it had been plundered, I would have said you that it had probably been looted 95 per cent. and was only five per cent. intact; for this had been the experience of previous investigators who had examined tombs."

Instead, our investigation showed the reverse was true, and that the burial place had been looted and destroyed only five per cent. King Tutankhamun was only a potential heir, was small in size and extent of riches compared to the great Pharaohs who lie deep in the valley. When you think of other monarchs had tombs in the same valley, you can imagine the treasure once concealed there.

WAS CO-REGENT

The scientist spoke at length on King Tutankhamun, and his relation to other Egyptian rulers. He reigned as a co-regent with King Amenhotep IV, being raised to his high position by the marriage with a Princess. For Egyptian right of inheritance came through the female line, he pointed out.

Also spoke of the Egyptian belief since a man became monarch he was blessed with the divine power of a god, which was worshipped as the power of all life. Today we see modern inventions, power of steam and electricity are "magic," but in his opinion were "illuminating spontaneous artistic creation." "Everything is standardized," he mourned. "Since I visited Egypt I have been in a number of hotels, a number of street-cars; and I can tell what they are all like now without entering a hotel."

The extraordinary beauty of the mummy discovered in King Tutankhamun's tomb was due to the fact that it belonged to the period when the art was of the purest type. It was homely and domestic. The opinion of the visitors there was a chance for beautiful lines. They are nearer their origin. Now they are built, and give an originality, he said.—Montreal Star.

Too Quick Work
Latest by that inimitable teller of true stories, Mr. Billy Merston, a townsman who was waiting at a country railway station, when a train was signalled, and the station-master and his staff of porters lined up on the platform. The train, however, passed straight through and the townsman noticed a man carrying out of the carriage window a notebook in his hand. "What an official looking to see what he is on duty?" he inquired. He replied the station-master was the company's tailor measuring for new uniforms."

Living in a Block of Stone

ANIMALS FOUND IN SEALED HOMES.

Toads have been found in blocks of stone. How did they get there and how did they manage to exist in such living tombs?

In the "Edinburgh Journal" it is recorded that "a specimen of the toad which was taken alive from a solid mass of stone has been sent to the college museum of Edinburgh by Lord Duncan."

The transactions of the Academy of Sciences at Paris also record that "a live toad was found in the centre of an oak tree, and another in an oak. Both toads were quite sound and in healthy condition."

An observer of nature, Sir Thomas Dick Lauder, who had an estate at Fountain Hall, East Lothian, recorded that a large toad was found in the heart of a smooth, straight beech tree at a height of thirty feet from the ground. It was contained in a circular hole.

Trapped in A Tree.

A famous naturalist of a past generation (Captain Thomas Brown, F.L.S.) told this extraordinary toad story:—"A wet spot had always been observed on a freestone mantelpiece which afterwards cracked at that place, and upon it being taken down, a toad was found in it dead. Its death was probably due to the want of that moisture which it had been able to imbibe when the quarry, and which gradually lessened by the action of the fire, as from the moisture which appeared on that part of the mantelpiece some time after it was put up there seems little reason to doubt that the toad was alive at that time."

Toads in A Hole.

A man engaged in splitting timber found a bat alive. It also had turned scarlet. In both cases the animals, large enough to contain them comfortably, but there appeared to be no way by which air or food could reach them.

A good deal of trouble has been taken from time to time by naturalists to solve these mysteries. The late Professor Buckland entombed a number of toads in circumstances similar to those found in nature. All seem to have died except one or two, and in these cases it was clear that insects had found their way through cracks and had served as food. The mystery seems to be explained in this way: Young frogs or toads find their way into small holes in rocks and remain there too long. They grow so rapidly that they cannot pass again through the hole which they entered.

A Shower of Frogs.

The same explanation applies to the bats found in trees. Entering a tree through a small hole in the autumn, and sleeping there throughout the winter, they find themselves too big in the spring to pass out again. Gradually the bark of the tree grows and closes over the prisoners. This can be easily understood, but how can any living thing, toad or bat, continue to exist in such circumstances even if well fed?

Nobody seems to be able to explain satisfactorily the showers of small frogs which have been recorded from time to time. A French correspondent of an English journal described a shower of young frogs. "They fell in an innumerable multitude on and around the house. The roof, the windowsills, and the gravel walks were covered with them. They were very small but perfectly formed and all dead."

One explanation given of the phenomenon suggests that they were caught up with water from a pond by a tornado or whirlwind, carried high into the air, and scattered over the landscape like hail.

Pastor's Wife Sent to Ellis Island

Danish Quota Law Exhausted, Couple Are Separated Here.
The Rev. Peter J. Pedersen, a Danish Lutheran minister, who arrived from Copenhagen last week on the Scandinavian-American liner United States, went to Ellis Island because the immigration officials would not allow his wife to land. They said he might be permitted to enter the country under the exemption clause as a clergyman, but Mrs. Pedersen was excluded because the quota for Denmark was exhausted.

"Squibs M.P. is Excellent Entertainment"
NOTED ENGLISH STAR IN FILM
AT THE NICKEL.
Unlike the usual British make motion picture production, the film entitled "Squibs M.P." now showing at the Nickel resembles greatly the recognized American photoplay with its pep and ginger and evenly balanced cast.
In "Squibs M.P." our national heroine forsakes, for all but a brief spell, the familiar shawl and short skirts of the circus days, and appears as a becoming and well-served young lady seeking means and methods of using the windfall she won in the Calcutta Sweep to her own and other people's advantage. So, from a philanthropist in Paris she becomes a philanthropist in London, then a Parliamentarian to plead the cause of babies before battleships, and finally she tackles such an elusive and illusory subject as ghosts. All of which sounds dreadfully serious, but it is nothing of the kind, except for just one or two touches of pathos the play is a rollicking farce with situations cleverly contrived by the master producer George Pearson, and rounded off by the individuality of Betty Bel-tour.
Miss Marjorie Hutchings, the well known local Contralto rendered a new programme of selected vocal numbers which won the unstinted applause of her hearers.

REGULAR PICTURE PROGRAM AND BIG AMATEUR CONTEST.

To-night's bill at the Crescent Theatre is a big double-header, consisting of the usual program of pictures together with an Amateur Contest which is an extra added attraction.
Ethel Clayton and Malcolm McGregor make an ideal pair of lovers in "Can a Woman Love Twice?" starring Ethel Clayton, which is now playing at this theatre. But there is a strange romance indeed. For Miss Clayton is seen as a young mother who is posing as the widow of a soldier believed to have been killed in France, and McGregor is seen as the soldier—but far from dead! Naturally he is surprised to find on his arrival home that he has been preceded by his "widow" and baby son, for he never saw either of them in his life before! Further complications pile one on the other for the father is estranged from the son, and the three take up residence under the same roof. The father loving his supposed daughter-in-law and hating his son, and the girl's feeling for the father, and her love for her son bring about a state of affairs that dramatically develop into one of the most smashing climaxes ever seen.

Gersdorf, Silesia, May 31.—Two vagabonds chose a gruesome rendezvous in the cemetery near this city. The sexton noticed tracks in the snow leading to a family vault. He found the vault door open and in the dim light could see two bewhiskered men lying in coffins from which the lids had been removed. The men were snoring and covered with blankets, so the sexton said.

London, May 31.—The last of three brothers, all talented men, who for thirty years refused to have intercourse with their fellowmen. Laid in a lonely tower on the Essex coast.

Wedding Bells.
ROBERTS—COLTON.
A very pretty wedding took place in St. Mary's Church, South Side, on Wednesday afternoon, June 19th, when Miss Hetty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Roberts, was united in the bonds of Holy Matrimony to Mr. Maxwell Colton of the firm of C. F. Bennett & Co. The bride looked very charming dressed in grey, crepe de chine with hat to match and carried a beautiful bouquet of White Carnations and Maiden Hair Fern. She was attended by her sister, Miss Jessie Roberts, who was also prettily gowned in a dress of pink crepe de chine with black picture hat and carried a bouquet of white and pink carnations. The flower girl looked very dainty in the person of Sylvia, daughter of Rev. A. E. Stirling. The groom was attended by Mr. Ed. Cranford. The Choir of St. Mary's led the bridal procession singing "O Father All Creating" followed by the bride and her brother, Mr. Wm. Roberts, Jr., who in the absence of her father performed the duties of father-giver. The wedding march was played by the veteran Organist, G. B. Lloyd, and the service being attended by a large congregation was most impressive throughout. Immediately after the ceremony a presentation of an Electric Reading Lamp on behalf of the Choir (of which the groom has been a member for a number of years) was made by G. H. Badoock. After a short drive the reception was held at the home of the bride's parents and shortly after amid showers of confetti the happy couple left by motor for Seal Cove to spend their honeymoon.

Man Yields 65 Pieces of Copper After Blast
LOS ANGELES, May 31.—The human shell.
That's how police surgeons characterized John Michikoff when he arrived at the Receiving Hospital. Michikoff said he was burning rubbish in the rear of his home when he heard an explosion and felt as though he had been caught in a severe hailstorm. Surgeons extracted sixty-five pieces of copper from his body.
It is thought an unexploded shell was concealed in the rubbish. Michikoff was not seriously hurt.

Use of Private Airplanes MADE EASIER IN ENGLAND.
London, May 31. (A.P.)—Private airplane flying is to be simplified in Great Britain by the abolishment of the irksome regulations requiring that a plane must be passed as airworthy every day and must land only at a recognized airdrome. A plane now will be certified as airworthy in the first place, and then it is up to the owner to keep in condition. Also he may land in a field near his home provided it does not endanger the public.

THE SACROSANCT CHILD.

Truly the child of this day and generation is a sacrosanct creature. Not only is he free from serious responsibility, as children might reasonably be expected to be, but he is also carefully guarded from minor inconveniences and discomforts as children never were in the old days.

Who Slept On The Couch?
In the old days when extra company bore down upon us and the spare room was overfilled, who was it that slept on the uncomfortable little couch in the sitting room? Why one of the children, of course. For my own part, having belonged to a family which entertained as naturally as it drew breath and being, the youngest and therefore the one who according to the philosophy of that day could be trusted in anywhere, I had many experiences in that line. I think I could write an essay on Things I have Slept On. One was a sofa, on which I had to choose between lying on the raised up part in a semi sitting position and letting my feet hang over the other end. Another was a fearful contrivance which was a chair in the parlor in the daytime and was supposed to unfold into a bed at night. Someday I am going to find out what the cushions on that chair were filled with.

But to-day, if the guests overflow the spare room, or if (as is more likely), there is no spare room at all, the need for one arises, what happens? Well, sometimes it is the mother or father who spends the night on the couch in the living room, sometimes the guests, but seldom the child.

He Might Catch Cold.
His feet couldn't be disturbed, he might catch cold or something, or be nervous downstairs alone.

One evening last winter when I dropped into a friend's house to call I found that a group of our mutual friends had happened in the same night. She has a good sized living room but the group filled it to overflowing and during the course of the evening there was much shifting around and jostling talk of comfortable chairs, of which there were naturally not enough to go around. And all through this talk a ten year old girl sat calmly on a huge leather chair. One would have thought her mother might suggest she relinquish it and give some of the grown-ups a chance. But though the mother is very tactful and thoughtful and was careful to perch herself on an uncomfortable sofa, she never suggested that the child take her turn in one of the less comfortable seats.

A Prémium On Selfishness.
Again, two teachers who are friends of mine took a cottage in the country for the summer to give their younger brothers and sisters a vacation. It was natural that the older sister should do most of the cooking. But did they turn over the dishes and the bedmaking and all those routine jobs to the younger children? No, they slaved at them themselves.

Why? Goodness knows. I don't expect that they are evidently impregnated with the idea that the lion's share of all pleasure and complete freedom from any responsibility are a child's inalienable right.
And then we wonder that children are selfish. Why shouldn't they be?

Secret of Keeping Young

Why is it that some women look older at thirty-five than others do at fifty? Why is it that so many women are always run-down, weak, pale, nervous, irritable and unhappy? Health, vitality and freedom from pain and disease alone can prevent the signs of age from fastening themselves upon women. All over this country women are awaking to the fact that the ill, aches and pains of woman may be relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the result is renewed life, energy and the glow of health. In fact, the secret of keeping young is to ward off all internal ailments that cause premature old age, which is easily accomplished by this remarkable root and herb remedy.

Mental Tests

We are glad to see that a distinguished nerve specialist has been making fun of the "mental tests" now applied to children at certain elementary schools.

Some of these, as advertised remind us, in their absurdity, of the psychoanalysts' "snap" conundrums—the analyst rapping out, say, the word "sea"; the stardied victim answering "water!" and the conclusion being that he suffers from a lymphatic tendency.

Infantile brains, in particular, don't work so quickly; nor are jumpy conundrums any test of true ability.

The very fact that they are being "tested" or examined often paralyzes sensitive minds, so that they reveal an almost complete inability under the stimulus applied to startle them out of their normal pose.—Daily Mirror.

Judge Refuses to Split Hairs in Bobbed War

CHICAGO, May 31.—The old argument as to whether women should bob their hair came up again in Judge John F. O'Connell's court in the hearing of disorderly conduct charges against Mrs. Louise Wisninski, fifty-three, and her sister, Mrs. Myra Pettighan, fifty-seven.

Mrs. Wisninski bobbed her hair; her sister continued to wear hers long.

That was what started the argument, and when they were arraigned they continued it and appealed to the judge for a decision as to whether it was right.

"I refuse to split hairs in this matter," said the court, sidestepping the issue. "I'll put you both under bonds of $1,000 to keep the peace and quit arguing."

Real Cave Woman
FOUND NEAR PLEASANTVILLE, PA.

TITUSVILLE, Pa., May 31.—Found at last, a real cave woman, in a bright red shirt, a red stocking cap and a blue coat, with a gunny sack under one arm and walking stick in the other, she made her way from store to store in Pleasantville.

The woman, Annie Bender, lives the life of a recluse in a stone cave behind the woods near Rustlet Corners, Crawford County. She is about seventy years old and at one time seemed to have substantial revenue from properties in the West. Of late years her funds seem to be limited, but she manages to live, apparently comfortably.

Canada's Super-Democracy

(By THOMAS GUBERIN).

In 1917 that wizard of wisdom, Woodrow Wilson, relieved his versatile imagination of another empty phrase. With it, he hoped to dupe the ignorant and stir the sluggish minds of the unimaginative masses.

What the masses ever saw in this claptrap catch phrase baffles the most astute. Yet it was seized upon hungrily, then thrown to the public as a bait for their gullibility.

On this side of the Atlantic we are too close to appreciate the real truth of events. One has to have distance to acquire the perspective necessary to realize the facts.

For some unknown reason the great republics of the world are regarded as the natural homes of democratic equality.

The real definition that "democracy is the government of the country by the people, for the people, and through the people."

through the voice of the people, proclaimed through their representatives, seems to have fallen far short of what is desired to-day, by our democratic politicians.

The generally accepted theory that men are born equal serves as an uneasy foundation for many sorts of Rabel towers.

A democracy which must base its existence on the elimination of the recognition of merit is false in its very essence, yet this is essentially the motive behind the Nickle resolution.

The effect of prohibiting the recognition of achievement is unjust and unfair. Anyone who serves his country should merit by his country.

A motion of the nature of the Nickle resolution is merely pandering to ignorance and to prejudice.

As long as the human mind differs in its power amongst individuals, individuals are destined to be unequal, and as long as inequality exists, a levelling democracy is impossible.

Recognition at Last

The Listening Post has just learned that the Members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force who were not permitted to serve overseas, are now to be regarded as slackers.

Just Folks.
By EDGAN A GUEST

THE DESERTER.
You could run away and hide—but what of those who stay? What about this burden great which you would fling away? One would have to take it up and bravely see it through, would you throw a task to him that now belongs to you?

You could seek the river's bed and end your troubles there, still the river would not take your burden of despair; you woman you have sworn to love, the children at her side, and find upon the river's bank the day you'd desired.

But death is merciful, it is not the dead, it is the coward, wretched, slinking who seeks the river-bed. The double-fold the burden falls on those behind who stay. They must stand unto the care the coward flings away. You have hurt and brave the pain, and see the battle through, and keep your post unto the last for those who trust in you. Should you try to fling away this burden you desert, and merely toss its cruel weight to those who love you best.

Beaverbrook King-Making Again?
BE MOVING 'WINNIE' INTO PLACE.

Plans This Time Did Not Quite succeed—Planning To Change Winston Churchill Into A Conservative To Lead A Crusade Against Socialism.

At the hand of Lord Beaverbrook who behind the scenes in England more? Has it ever ceased since the Canadian merger with England in 1910, they are over there?

Lord Beaverbrook has now reached position in English political life as he is caricatured on the stage. As a character in a Canterbury tale was always acting as intermediary and interpreter in negotiations had to take place. The Manchester Guardian thinks it exposed the "king-maker" again work with Winston Churchill as favorite this time. Defeated by a few votes in the Abbey-by-election, Winston is far from squealing. And now Lord Beaverbrook seems at the head of the movement to take him over from the Liberal to a Conservative fold to lead a crusade against the socialist doctrines of the Labor government.

Down in Ashton-under-Lyne, in Lord Beaverbrook's old constituency, the plot was hatched. Sir Walter de Lionist, had warned his supporters that he was not going to stand at the next general election. "The Unionist association had a little prematurely, as it turned out," says the Manchester Guardian, "to ask Mr. Churchill to be their candidate, and went so far as to tell him that they would argue a bye-election for him."

A letter had been sent to Mr. Churchill, asking him to receive a delegation of Ashton Tories, the delegation had been appointed, and Lord Beaverbrook, who sat for some years in the House of Commons, was mentioned as Mr. afterwards Sir Max. He had been asked to reply to the interests of the Ashton Tories, Churchill would, so to speak, be for Ashton from the instant he was named to stand for the seat.

The Water de-Freo? Sir Walter wouldn't give up his seat for Winston Churchill. He said so publicly, and would keep his seat till the general election.

British politicians haven't forgotten other occasions when Beaverbrook played the part of Warwick King-maker. Northcliffe may be appointed Asquith, but he did not become Lloyd George premier. Beaverbrook did that. When it became a question again whether Walter Long Chamberlain should be the leader of the Unionists, Beaverbrook had both of them with Beaver Law. The published anonymously in 1917, the late Lord Beaverbrook worked the scenes directing policies, because the Coalition government during the war, is described, "with the secret of personal diplo-macy brought Lloyd George, Bonar Law, Carson together. There were lunches, dinners, suppers and conferences with Aitken as host, and the most intelligent officer."
