BUICK STANDS HARD SERVICE.

"My fourth Buick is undoubtedly the best car I have ever driven," writes Mr. Theodore Garbel, sole distributor of Blue Bonnet Brand Vegetables, grown in the Magic Valley, San Benito, Texas. "It is fast, has a quick getaway, no vibration; I would not drive any car without four-wheel brakes."

"I drove my 1923 Buick 24,000 miles in ten months and I am still using it in my business. I make a transcontinental trip each year, which takes me to Boston, then across to Portland, Oregon, and down through California, then on back to the Lower Rio Grande Valley. I do not believe that there is any car that will stand the hard, fast, continuous driving that a Buick will."

The Heir to Beecham Park

CHAPTER XXII.

"Pray be sensible, Stuart," she said, sharply; "you were never like this before. It galls me, it wounds me to see you wasting your days down here, pottering about on the farms, and for what?"

"Some one must look after things, mother; my father cannot, and you have often complained to me of the bad management, so I have determined to relieve you of further anxiety."

"Fehaw! Do I want my son to turn steward? I have to-day received a letter from Lady Bayliffe strongly recommending me a manager, and I have all but settled to engage him."

"Then don't do it," promptly replied Stuart. "He is not wanted."

"He is wanted! I shall not allow you, Stuart, to do this kind of work!"

"My dear mother, I am of age!"

Mrs. Crosbie was silent, and Stuart, looking up, saw the pain and perplexity on her face.

"Forgive me, mother," he added, moving toward her. "I am very selfish. Tell me what you want me to do, and if it is in my power I will undertake it."

"I want you to rise in the world; I want you to be famous, Stuart."

"Fame is not to be sought, mother."

"It is within your reach. Contest Chesterham at the next election. You will be returned with an immense majority. The rest will follow."

"I have no brains for politics," declared Stuart. "I cannot do it."

"There is no such word as 'cannot!' returned Mrs. Crosbie, vigorously. "If I were in your place, Stuart, how differently I would act! You are wasting your life."

Stuart walked back to the window.

"I will not give you a decided answer now, mother," he said. "Give me two days to consider."

"Willingly," she agreed, "and weigh all things well. Remember, you will afford me the greatest happiness in life if you agree to this and to another wish."

"To make you happy, mother, I would do much," Stuart responded, raising her hand to his lips. "What is it?"

Mrs. Crosbie drew a long breath.

"That you will marry."

"Marry!" repeated Stuart, dropping her hand, while his face grew white and his brow darkened. "That mother, is impossible."

"I have not spoken to you on this subject before, Stuart, though it has been one very near my heart. You have been troubled; but you are not my son if you have not pride sufficient to drown and wash away forever any trace of your trouble. It is not for a Crosbie to submit to insult and humiliation."

"I submit to none!" retorted Stuart, in a quiet, clear voice.

"You have been deceived," his mother declared, coldly and proudly; "by one who was not worthy even a second thought."

"Mother!" he exclaimed, hurriedly, through Mrs. Crosbie's mind when she was alone. Would Vane, after all, bring him happiness? She had tricked and deceived him. But this momentary feeling was soon lost in the glad thrill of ambition that stirred her breast. Stuart married, and in Parliament, she had nothing more to wish for.

In a maze of troubled thoughts Stuart strode down the wet path. Vane loved him; and yet she had put her own feelings on one side and ministered tenderly, thoughtfully, kindly to him! What depths of womanly sweetness in such a sacrifice—what a generous, noble nature! His heart warmed with gratitude toward her, though it cooled again as he remembered that she loved him. What could he do—whether turn in this dilemma? Vane was dear to him as a friend, as a sister, but not as the woman he would make his wife. And to make any woman his wife now, when such sadness darkened his life, was almost impossible. What must he do? Could he let her live on alone with the sorrow he knew from experience to be so bitter wearing out her heart? Would it be a generous return for all she had done, for the noble tenderness with which she had tried to bring him happiness? No, no, a thousand times no! If he could no longer have joy, if gladness were gone forever, he had still the peaceful pleasure of bringing gladness to another's heart. His mother was right—it was his duty to face the world, and Vane should be his wife.

Even while he thought thus, his brow contracted with pain, a spasm of regret shot through him, the thought of his first love in all its sweet returned and enthralled him once more. It was impossible! He paced up and down under the wet, dripping trees, trying to calm the tumult in his breast, with a longing for solitude and peace one moment, and a piteous thought of Vane's great love the next. It was a terrible struggle, and it lasted through the night hours, never ceasing till the dawn, when, pale and worn, yet with a steadfast look of determination about his mouth and in his handsome eyes, he conquered it. He was brave and strong—sorrow could not crush him; but Vane—poor, delicate Vane—she could not endure trouble; and so, if indeed his mother had spoken aright, he would go to Vane, and ask her to be his wife.

The gloomy weather in London did not tend to lessen Miss Charterish's despondent mood. She was peevish, bored, discontented, longing to leave England and go to a warmer climate, yet feeling that she could not give up her desire and declare herself defeated. She was waiting only for a week or two to pass, and then she would go down once more to Crosbie Castle and make a final effort. This idea was occupying her mind as she sat one dull, wet afternoon gazing out into the dismal streets, with a gloomy look spoiling her pretty face. She heard the door open, but did not stir, imagining it to be her mother. The stillness that followed caused her to turn; and, looking around, she met Stuart's eyes.

"Stuart!" she exclaimed, her face flushing. "You have given me quite a start! I did not know—"

"I have been watching you for the last two minutes, Vane; you were lost in thought. Whose memory were you honoring by such deep meditation?"

Stuart looked very handsome, and something in his manner thrilled her with joy.

"I was thinking of Crosbie," she answered. "Come to the fire, Stuart; you must be frozen. And how is Aunt Constance—and why have you come? am very glad to see you."

Stuart stood silent, slowly removing his gloves; then he moved nearer to her side by the fire. Vane was looking lovely; the plaintive sadness of her face, which was tinged with a delicate flush, touched him. He had read it well in the first moment of his entrance, and traced, as he thought, the marks of her trouble.

"I have come to see you, Vane," he told her quietly, "because I have something to ask you."

Vane felt her heart beat wildly.

"Yes, Stuart," she said faintly.

"Vane, you must know my innermost heart—you were my confidante, my friend. I want you to continue to be my friend, the aid and trust of companions—I want you to be my wife."

Vane stood silent, her head bent. She felt faint, and, now that success had come at last, she could not speak.

LIFE INSURANCE With PROFITS

LIFE INSURANCE Without PROFITS

90% with Profits

"The improvement in mortality will go to increase the surplus of the companies, thus making possible larger returns to the policyholders, of whom approximately 80% are insured on the new 'with-profit plan.'"

Mr. G. D. Pickers, Dominion Government Superintendent of Insurance, in Toronto Globe Financial Survey, January 18, 1925.

The above statement referring to the combined business of all companies doing business in Canada, made with authority by the Dominion Government Superintendent of Insurance, would indicate that Canadian policyholders prefer the with-profits plan of insurance. There must be a reason.

They buy what experience teaches them is best in the long run

The Confederation Life Association issues policies "with profits" and "without profits" and also with Guaranteed Dividend.

Good profits on policies are earned, because risks are selected with care; because the Company's investments are carefully made and yield good interest returns; and because the Company is efficiently managed.

On these three counts the Confederation Life Association has a 51-year record of success.

When We Look Up at Eternity

"The eclipse revealed to Londoners recently the marvellous beauty of their atmosphere," says the Editor of the Sunday Express. "As a rule Londoners pay no attention to the cloud-scapes above their heads. They seldom look higher than the shop windows. Many of them walk along the street with their eyes fixed on the pavement. They seldom lift their gaze to the great dome of smoke-wreaths and trailing vapours that entrances the artist."

"They discovered that there is no sky in the world so marvellously coloured as their own. The sun was not brutal. It was bland. The breath of London shifted its beams and transformed them into a wistful luminosity that gleamed ghostly as the coin of the moon stealthily crept across its delicate circumference. Smoked glass was a comfort, but not a necessity. The march of the moon could be watched with awe and amazement."

"It was more than a rare show. The petty life of mortals does not often pause to survey the solemn dance of the sun and moon. We lack the imaginative power of seeing ourselves as our fellow planets see us. But when the mystical smoke-veil of London enables us to watch the dark disc of the moon moving majestically across the pale disc of the sun we catch a glimpse of the vast cosmic mystery which no astronomer can unravel."

"It shocks our serene egotism to be confronted with interstellar space and to realize that man and his whirling home are only a minute portion of the everlasting drama of the universe. It humbles our pride and abashes our learning to snatch a swift glance at the inscrutable, inexplicable and unfathomable machinery of eternity."

"And yet there is comfort in the conviction that there is law and design in the great grave procession of suns and moons and stars. Punctual are the clock of the sun and the clock of the moon. They fall not. Some power guides their journeyings and controls their orbits. It is not a blind power, for the mind of man can trace its errorless premeditation and its flawless rules. Stable are the stars, even as the seasons and the tides are stable. It is a consolation to know that the great motions and curves of the dwellers in infinite space are not anarchical or capricious. There is a hand on the helm."

"And the unpaintable and indescribable loveliness of the dyed skyscapes brings us a tender assurance of benignity and compassion. Our dreams and visions are not baseless. The revelation of beauty in the evanescent wreck that fades and wanes almost ere it is created confirms our faith in Natura Benigna. Shadows though they are, and though we pursue them, the wonders of the eclipse declare the glory of God. In a brazen age it is good to be steeped in reverences, and in awe even for one brief hour."

Fine Old Hen

Lord Fisher tells of this blunt but amusing compliment paid to his country by an American admiral. It was at a dinner. Fisher had made a speech in which he said some nice things about America, and at the conclusion of it the admiral arose and reciprocated by saying: "It was a fine old hen that hatched the American eagle."—Boston Transcript.

Mrs. Peter A. Palmer, Saltburn, Sask., writes:

"Dr. Chase's Ointment has completely relieved me of eczema and piles. I also used this Ointment for my baby, who broke out in eczema. A few applications were all that was necessary in her case. Dr. Chase's Ointment has been worth a hundred dollars to me—before using it I had spent a great deal more than that in unsuccessful treatment from doctors. We have also used Dr. Chase's other medicines, the Nerve Food having restored my health after suffering from severe nerve trouble when a girl."

Persons Killed and a Church Destroyed in Quebec Earthquake

Declares Germany's War Preparation More Than Alarming—Besco Posts Notice of Stoppage of Miners' Credit—British Parliamentary Committee to Investigate Ocean Rates.

PARIS, March 2.

Conclusions drawn by Marshal Besco from the report of the Allied Military Mission on Germany's war preparation are more than alarming. Besco has posted a notice of stoppage of miners' credit to the British Parliamentary Committee to investigate ocean rates.

WOODSTOCK, N.B., March 2.

The Roman Catholic church at Woodstock was destroyed by fire early this morning. The fire started in the basement and spread to the roof.

QUEBEC, March 2.

Four instead of two earthquakes, as at first reported, visited Quebec between the hours of 2:20 p.m. Saturday, and 2:05 a.m. Sunday. An official statement this afternoon by the Dominion Observatory states that with the development of the shocks in which the earthquakes were recorded, other quakes had become apparent.

OTTAWA, Mar. 2.

The deepest well in the world was completed recently by engineers near Latrobe, Pa., when they struck natural gas at a depth of 1428 feet, or nearly 1 1/2 miles. Work on the well was begun in 1922, and drilling continued for 30 months. The gas is now flowing at the rate of 600,000 cubic feet a day. It has a strong odor like that of hydrogen sulphide, according to the engineers who constructed the well.

LONDON, March 2.

Sir Burton Chadwick, Under Secretary for the Board of Trade, speaking in the House of Commons this afternoon, said he understood that ocean freight rates would probably be investigated by a Parliamentary Committee.

BOSTON, March 2.

Five men were drowned when the coal barge James M. Hudson, in tow from Norfolk to Boston, foundered off Boston Light in last night's gale. Two of the bodies were recovered.

SOUTHAMPTON, Mar. 2.

H. Grindell Matthews, inventor of the death ray, asserted on his arrival here from the United States that he had disposed of his invention in the United States but would not divulge the buyers' price.

QUEBEC, Mar. 2.

That the origin of Saturday night's seismic disturbance was in the vicinity of the Saguenay River, was proved beyond doubt this morning as the result of a long distance telephone conversation with agent Harvey of the Dominion Express Company at Murrant Bay. That official gave out the surprising information that the shocks were still being experienced. The latest one was at 8 o'clock. It is morning. They were felt at stated intervals all Saturday, according to Mr. Harvey, and all day yesterday, continuing through the night and this morning. This official also stated that although the first shocks which shook the countryside were of a very severe nature, nothing out of the ordinary had happened, in that as serious accidents or property damages were concerned. Apparently, at St. Paul, Charlevoix County, about sixty miles below Quebec, suffered severely, from shocks, although to date there has been no loss of life reported but several injured. Property damage was very heavy in that locality. A resident of St. Paul, states that general conditions there as the aftermath of the earthquake were very bad, and that many people had suffered great loss. The latest tremors were very light and the distance seemed to be passing to the north.

LONGUE-CHAPELLE, Mar. 2.

Today for the first time in a fortnight, King George was allowed to leave his bed and sit up for a short time in his bedroom. His condition is improving daily, and should weather permit it is hoped he will get to the Mediterranean within two weeks.

ARLIE MARKS CO. SCORE IN BRILLIANT COMEDY DRAMA.

The Arlie Marks Company admirably upheld their high reputation last night by their performance of "The Other Man's Wife." The play held the interest of the audience and kept them in a state of suspense right up to the final scene, which is the crashing climax of the evening. Not only is the play filled with beautiful dramatic incidents, but it abounds in hilarious comedy, which in the capable hands of Lindsay E. Perrin as Toby Haxton held the audience in roars of laughter. Miss Arlie Marks in the part of Susie Greene plays a popular role with sincerity and power. Paul Brady is seen especially adapted to his role which he makes more than usually interesting. Miss Agnes Stutz is the role of Samantha Bees gives a faithful interpretation of the character. A Paul D'Mathot plays well the part of Josiah Bumble, and is responsible for a good portion of the humor of the play. Merle Scott plays a different role in this bill than we have been accustomed to see her in, that of Marjorie Morgan, who is in love with Rev. Tucker. The acting of the remainder of the cast is particularly good. The settings were indeed an eye-ful which reflects much credit to the technical staff.

Between the acts the audience was treated to a variety of specialties including Susie McDonald in Songs and Dances, Paul D'Mathot in Rube Monologue, Lindsay Perrin in "Think It Over" and the ever popular act, The Scotch Lads and Lassie in a new Scotch review. Each turn was in itself a distinct feature which was applauded to the echo. To those who witnessed this bill, we know they thoroughly enjoyed themselves; to those who have not seen it, the advice is to book reservations immediately.

The bill for the latter half of the week will be "The Sidewalks of New York" and in which twenty five local boys and girls will assist in the cast. Also see on Thursday DeLuna and Adell the new artists in their side-splitting novelty act.

Little Jack Rabbit

"Gracious me!" exclaimed Lady Love, the little rabbit's pretty mother, as the bunny boy hopped up on the back porch of the little white house in the dear Old Bramble Patch. "A can of maple sap so soon. Where are the others?" "Maybe overflowing by this time," answers the little rabbit. "I couldn't wait to see." "You'd better hop back with a pail and empty them," said wise little Lady Love, and bustling into the bungalow, she handed him a bright shiny tin pail. "As soon as you come back I'll fill the sap and then set the thick syrup out to cool in the snow," she laughed, giving her little bunny boy a hug. "We'll then have nice Maple Sugar." So back to the Shady Forest hopped the little rabbit, happy as could be until he came to a maple tree. Yes, the tin can was nearly full, and after emptying the others into the pail, he set out for home once more swinging the pail from his furry paw. But, Oh dear me! Why do unpleasant things often happen when we least expect them. Just as bunny boy was about to creep under the Old Rail Fence a deep, growly voice asked: "Where are you taking that bright shiny pail?" Stand still or I'll pinch your white cottontail." "On please don't," answered the trembling little bunny. "If you say that again I'll spill the sap over the edge of the pail. Please don't pinch my white cottontail tail." "Ha, ha!" laughed the voice, and out from behind a clump of bushes walked Mr. Wicked Wolf, smiling so broadly that his long red tongue and sharp white teeth made a dreadful picture to little rabbit. "I don't like your maple sap," growled the old wolf, dipping his paw into the pail and licking his sticky face. "Oh, dear," cried the trembling little bunny. Just then a little bird whispered: "Haven't you something sweeter in your knapsack, little bunny?" And the little bird's voice was so low and sweet that Mr. Wicked Wolf, who was old and deaf, never heard a word. Setting down the pail, the poor frightened little bunny opened his knapsack and took out a bottle of Soothing Syrup. He had bought it the day before for Cousin Cottontail's littles baby, but had forgotten to give it to her. Wasn't that lucky? Well, I guess it was, as you soon shall see. "Here is something very sweet in a bottle clean and neat." faltered the bunny boy in poetry. But how he could recite a verse at such a time is more than I know. "Good, let's taste it," growled the old wolf, and pulling out the cork, he held the bottle to his lips. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

A Barefaced Fraud

A starving man appeared recently in a London police court charged with stealing bread. He was a returned soldier with a distinguished military record, and possessing five medals. He had made fruitless efforts to obtain work and had refused to take the dole. In another case a returned soldier's family had been without any food for twenty-four hours; the man himself was an invalid, and yet when offered shelter in the workhouse, had had refused it, as he did not think it was a fit place for an ex-Serviceman. The Magistrate in discharging the cases remarked: "There is no shame in being kept by the public during hard times, especially if one has rendered service to the country."

The spirit of these people is as highly to be admired as the conduct of those who appeared yesterday in the Police Court charged with fraudulently obtaining the dole is to be condemned, and it is a matter for regret that the Judge, who described the offences as barefaced frauds, did not avail of the opportunity to emphasize far more effectively the misdemeanor. There were no extenuating circumstances so far as could be seen from the evidence, and leniency in such cases is only too likely to be misinterpreted by those who may be tempted to do likewise.

It is futile to quote the irregularities that have been committed in the public service in recent years as justification for further irregularities. If the morale of the community has been weakened thereby, it is all the more necessary to apply drastic treatment promptly when convictions are secured to-day, and while we sympathize with those who may often have to perform an unpleasant task, we cannot but express the hope that their kindly natures will not be permitted to interfere with the responsible duties with which they are entrusted.

The Prime Minister's Speech

The present Government was elected last spring by and through the influence exercised over the electorate by Walter S. Monroe. There can be no question about that. It relied, not on his political experience, for he had none; not on the promises in the Manifesto for it contained but few, but chiefly upon the reputation which he had gained as a private citizen, upon the strong conviction that he would play the game, and lastly his courage in undertaking what seemed an impossible task appeal strongly to a people so largely imbued with that same quality.

The Prime Minister chose for his associates men who he felt would follow his lead, and in the speech which he delivered in the House yesterday, the public were given a clear, frank, and concise exposition of the policy adopted and the manner in which the Party was carrying it out. We feel convinced that the speech will be read with interest, and will go far to assure the community that their faith was not misplaced, and that the great and responsible duties undertaken are being fulfilled in a businesslike and conscientious manner.

A Real Government

The following article taken from the Charlottetown Guardian is a tribute to the present Government which, coming from the outside, is deserving of more than passing notice:—

"Isn't it good to hear of a Government reducing taxes? Already the U. S. taxation is away below ours, and now we have the Newfoundland Government announcing wholesale reductions without reserve as follows:— Repeal of the business profits tax; Suspension of the income tax, and reduction of tax on banks. Just stop and think of the encouragement that will give to capital to flow unobstructed to the development of the 'Ancient Colony' and then think of our own hard case where we are being practically taxed into the bankruptcy of our natural resources and of existing and potential industries. Besides the relief this abolition of taxation will give the Newfoundlanders, the Government intends further to help the people by launching a scheme for the encouragement of agriculture; and still another to encourage shipping by the construction of a $4,000,000 dock presumably at St. John's. That is real Government for you. Wish we had it at Ottawa."

S.S. Viking Clears for Gulf

S. S. Viking, Capt. Bartlett, with a crew of 140 men, cleared from Messrs. Bowring Bros. premises at nine o'clock this morning, bound to Channel, from which port she will sail for the Gulf in quest of the herd. After the ship left the pier and moved down stream with all flags flying, the other ships in port tooted their sirens and whistles, as a farewell and bon voyage, while many citizens crowded the wharves along the waterfront and cheered Capt. Bartlett and his hardy crew. Owing to the South East winds with heavy loup on the outside, the Viking was obliged to anchor off the Quarantine grounds until a change in the weather takes place. The ship will probably continue on her way this afternoon.

Three drunks were convicted and fined $1.00 or 3 days, and blacklisted. A wife had her husband before court this morning for assault. The charge was fully proven, and the Judge bound him over to keep the peace in his own recognizances in the sum of $100.00. Should he break his bond he will be sent down for thirty days hard labor.

Correction.—The name of the man summoned yesterday by the Employment Bureau should have read William Winsor.

The following passengers crossed over to Port aux Basques by S.S. Kyle at 3.30 this morning, and joined the express:—Mrs. W. Flynn, Mrs. J. Ashley and child, G. W. Meade, G. Allan, W. Pieroway, Mrs. G. Sailluses, C. Skinner and 4 children, Geo. Grimes, G. Fitzgerald, N. R. Lewis and E. Suley.

Received Congratulations Sir P. T. McGrath received a cable message last night from Viscount Burnham, proprietor of the London Daily Telegraph and President of the Empire Press Union, extending his congratulations and those of friends in that organization on his appointment as President of the Legislative Council. The Empire Press Union organized the Imperial Press Conference in 1920, which traversed the Dominion and of which Lord Burnham was President and Sir P. T. McGrath the Newfoundland representative.

EPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

March 3rd.—This day the weather might be cold, yet thank God it is dry under foot, so I abroad for the first time without golooses or gayers.

Anon, strolling into the Petty Court, did bid me get this morning, but when I did tell her that I was too busy to remember them, the wretch berates me as she never did before, and ends with a stream of tears which drove me abroad to seek cover.

The Prime Minister speaking in the House this afternoon do close the debate on the Address in Reply, and so much business like to be done this se-ennight. Mr. Monroe discourses of many things, and do dispose of Opposition criticism with the greatest ease. Among other things did say that he would never introduce a Bill to improve the cull of fish on his own initiative, and speaks also of the Labrador Boundary, albeit stresses the difficulty of setting a price upon our territories.

Home anon, and find my wife quite recovered from her rage of this morning, which I am pleased to say; but I do soon perceive the cause of it for I am no sooner in the house when she brings out some new hats which she tries on for my approval, and do beg me so that she may be allowed to keep one that I had not the heart to refuse her.

But Lord, what a wily wretch she is, and seems how I have not yet learned how to manage her properly.

Exposure of Germany's Infiltration.

PARIS, March 3. The Inter Allied Council of Ambassadors is expected to be occupied for several weeks with the question of German disarmament which it takes up to-day. Before them the Ambassadors will have the voluminous report of the Military Control Mission with photographs and other data assembled in Germany as well as written the opinion of this report of Marshal Foch and his colleagues of the Allied War Committee. Marshal Foch and his committee in their written opinion of report say it shows the Germans are persisting in their determination to maintain a complete staff of officers for the army such as Germany professed prior to the world war. Not only is Germany educating officers to this end, the committee believes, but she is training enough men to supply a strong fighting army, is maintaining her facilities for production of poison gas, and possesses not only patterns and moulds for the most improved type of cannon, but even unfinished tubes which could be converted within short time into guns ready for use.

Britain's Objection to Facilitating Movement of Turkish Troops.

PARIS, March 3. British Ambassador Lord Crewe called on Premier Herriot last night with reference it is understood to permission given by the French Government for transportation by rail across Syria of Turkish troops sent to repress the revolt in Kurdistan. France in 1921 gave assurances to Great Britain that the use of railroad would never be granted for Turkish operations against Britain. The French view is that if Turkish troops are solely intended for local police purposes, Britain has not ground for objection, but the British Government is said to feel that it will have the right to complain if Turks use the facilities thus afforded to bring about concentration near Iraq with a view to influencing a decision of the League of Nations council which is about to attempt a settlement of the Anglo-Turkish defences over the Mosul district of Iraq.

Trouble in Vladivostok.

HARBIN, March 3. Reports from Pogranchany say that a serious uprising has occurred among sailors at Vladivostok. Karpenko, Soviet representative at Vladivostok was killed during street rioting according to the reports.

'Footslogger' on the Traffic Regulations

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Your Editorial with respect to the proposed alteration of traffic regulations, is most timely and to the point. This should call for expressions of opinion in order to help our legislators to look at the question from every angle.

You are undoubtedly correct with regard to the animal being trained to keep his place in the road, and this cannot be passed over lightly. One has only to traverse the Topsail Road for instance when a line of carts is passing over it. Often drivers are away from their horses and cannot get them on the approach of a car, but the animal has heard the signal and takes up his correct position. I therefore very much fear, if we alter the rule of the road, for a time at least, we may expect confusion and possibly accidents.

The question is, what is the necessity for this alteration? The answer, I take it is, to encourage the American car-owner to come to Newfoundland (and why not the Englishman) and to come into line with Canada and the States. One can quite well realize the necessity in the case of Canada and U. S. because nothing divides them really, and they can roll into one country from the other and carry on. Personally I do not think that many wealthy Americans are going to come to Newfoundland with their cars when they have so much good "cruising ground" near their doors, and if they go abroad, they are more likely to go to Europe and do their tour there. In this respect I think we might encourage our own garages to keep touring cars, and drivers, and change to be fixed by the Government, and if that were advertised we would "kill two birds with the one stone" i.e. get the tourist, and give our own employment. We have to consider what we have to offer. How many miles of motor roads without doubling on ones tracks? How many hotels and repair depots? How much will it cost to transport a car? and lastly how many cars can any of the boats running here handle?

I have seen much of tourist traffic in Europe. Some Americans go over to Europe, land at Naples tour the Continent, cross to England thence home. England has not to alter her traffic regulations, she keeps her individuality, and the American appears quite able to fit into things, and perhaps rather enjoys the change.

What we need to catch the eye of the American tourist is a complete change of mode of living. I would plan having all Hotels and Inns on the lines of the Old English Inns, buildings, food and all. In the Club I belong to in London we have an old English kitchen, and many times I preferred that to the modern dining room, because it was a complete change. It was done well it is true, but it is not expensive.

Now with regard to the question of speed, from the standpoint of a "Foot Slogger." We are unlike other cities in the world, as generally speaking where we have side walks, we prefer the middle of the road, in order to save foot wear and protect our favourite corn. Our sidewalks should be graded and tarred; they are not but on the whole resemble Topsail beach rather than a side walk one finds in other countries. Further in the winter we take to the centre of the road as the sidewalks (so called) are impassable. Hence we learn to leave the sidewalks, and thence much of the motorist's trouble. Again our children have the habit of running into the road. Our streets are hilly, short, and we have few traffic policemen, nor can we very well afford more, so one is inclined, after considering all the points, to vote for not more than a fifteen miles limit in Town and pass-

DECLINE IN VALUE OF OUR CURRENCY

There are many men to-day (and they will be called very soon) who are well at the outside, but who are in the inside of the government, commercial and social life. They are the men who are the backbone of the nation, the men who are the backbone of the nation, the men who are the backbone of the nation. They are the men who are the backbone of the nation, the men who are the backbone of the nation, the men who are the backbone of the nation.

WRECK AND DISAPPEARANCE OF OUR GREAT SAILING FLEET.

(By F. SHORTIS).

There are many men living in St. John's today (and they are not what we called very old men), who remember the time when in St. John's...

the deeds of a noble people are bound, sooner or later, and through unexpected sources, to come to the surface...

We read much in history of the daring and prowess of the hardy Norsemen. From time immemorial they have been handed down to us as examples worthy of emulation.

ceptual years, but if we take what may be looked upon as an average, and with which I am fortunately provided with full particulars, it must set us thinking that there must be something wrong, and that the seals are not so plentiful as in the days of the great sailing fleet.

AT ITS ZENITH.

In the fifties and sixties of the past century the sealfishery may well be said to be at the zenith of its glory, as to the wealth and durability of the vessels, as well as the fame and success of the masters.

EARLY PROSECUTION OF SEALFISHERY.

It will be seen from the following report that the sealfishery was prosecuted by our people to a very great extent, in the 18th century. An extract from the Report of the Trade in Newfoundland before a Royal Commission, held in London in 1793, gives the number of sealskins.

Upon resumption of play St. Bon's forwards with Eddie Phelan up in the attack made a bold effort to reduce their opponent's lead, but the Feildans' defence was impregnable.

THE MISUSE OF THE DOLE.

(Daily Mail.) The new dole restrictions which Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland, the Minister of Labour, announced in the House of Commons recently, should do something at last towards tightening up the administration of unemployment benefit, which is so necessary.

who has lost his employment through trade depression is an extremely hard one, and the dole affords him a proper helping hand while he can look round.

THE DOLE SYSTEM.

There is a growing tendency to expect the State—that is to say, the taxpayers—to keep people whether they are working or not, but while numerous cases of the elaborate Poor Law arrangements that exist, nevertheless it is the duty of people to look after themselves if they possibly can, and any principle that weakens that sense of duty is exceedingly dangerous.

THE DOLE SYSTEM.

The dole system, in its present form, was evolved with the express intention of tiding people, especially men who had fought in the war and suffered in consequence, over a period of unprecedented depression.

THE DOLE SYSTEM.

But now that it has become a fixture it is helping to perpetuate depression, partly because it is a ceaseless drain upon the resources of the country and partly because it is teaching people to dislike work.

THE DOLE SYSTEM.

According to the figures given by Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland in the House of Commons recently, 2,764,000 persons applied for the dole last year, and up to the end of July only 71,000 of these applications were rejected.

But can any serious person suppose that among the accepted applications there were not many whose genuineness was more than doubtful?

THE DOLE SYSTEM.

Nobody proposes the immediate abolition of the dole, for that would certainly be a great hardship for many deserving cases, but the sooner the machinery is overhauled the better.

THE DOLE SYSTEM.

On the very face of it the working of the system is far too lax, and innumerable people who could get employment if they really set about

The Best Advertising Medium

in Newfoundland

Mr. Wm. Wrigley, Jr., the chewing gum king, of Chicago, in explaining the rapid growth of his company, said it was all due to advertising.

"But," interrupted one of his friends, travelling with him to the Pacific Coast, "you have already built up a remarkable business. Why not save some of this advertising money and run along on momentum for a while?"

"Well," Mr. Wrigley said, "we have had a fine, fast trip West from Chicago so far. How much progress do you think we would make if they took off the engine?"

The Evening Telegram

And now we are drawing to the end of our long and eventful story—to the days when the small and insignificant fleet of sailing vessels made their last gallant stand against the almost all-powerful advance of the steam.

Slowly, but surely, did one by one, numerous of 400 vessels decrease in numbers—some gave way to the ravages of time—others were lost at the sealfishery—many were totally wrecked in the gales at Labrador, and others were sold out of the country.

They had played their part—played it well; but their day was at an end. Steam, as foretold by the old Vikings (in my own hearing in 1867) was triumphant. They now sleep at rest in the old churchyard, but their memory will be green forever in the hearts of all true Newfoundlanders.

The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power, And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave, Await alike the inevitable hour—The paths of glory lead but to the grave.

And now we come to the period when the heroism, the daring and perseverance of our sealkillers shall with a westerly wind soon be totally obscured, and finally disappear from amongst us, probably forever. The old generation had been gathered to their fathers, and a new one had sprung up. The last act in the drama was about to be played, and in the list of nearly 100 vessels which sailed from St. John's in 1861, 60 from Harbor Grace, 27 from Carbonear, 24 from Brigus, 2 from Cupids, 25 from Bay Roberts, 14 from Catalina, 9 from Trinity, 15 from Greenspond, also from Harbor Main, Petty Harbor, Ferryland, and 33 from Channel, in the list are to be found the names of those who were the heroes of the last scene, ere the curtain had been rung down on the most interesting, fascinating and heroic period in our country's history.

This is the race from which the Newfoundlanders have sprung. There is one glorious fact which should be written in letters of gold in the history of our country, and that is:—Notwithstanding that hundreds of thousands of our fellow-countrymen have proscribed the sealfishery during the past one hundred years there is not on record a single instance of a serious criminal nature involving the loss of life or even a serious injury.

There is one story that I have heard many years ago, and is a fitting ending for this brief sketch. About 1866 that typical and successful seal-killer, Capt. Wm. Kneen, in the brig, Ice King, arrived in St. John's with a full load of prime whitecoats. The numbers—some gave way to the ravages of time—others were lost at the sealfishery—many were totally wrecked in the gales at Labrador, and others were sold out of the country.

They had played their part—played it well; but their day was at an end. Steam, as foretold by the old Vikings (in my own hearing in 1867) was triumphant. They now sleep at rest in the old churchyard, but their memory will be green forever in the hearts of all true Newfoundlanders.

A CHANCE TO BE A HEROINE.

"On inspection we shall find that even if we are not downright ashamed of a great part of our spontaneous thinking, it is far too intimate, personal, ignoble or trivial to permit us to reveal more than a small part of it. I believe this must be true of everyone. We do not, of course, know what goes on in other people's heads. They tell us very little and we tell them very little. . . . We find it hard to believe that other people's thoughts are as silly as our own, but they probably are."—James Harvey Robinson.

I thought of that passage the other day when after a period of silence—somebody sprang the old penny for your thoughts' challenge.

A group of us had been taking a walk together; we had chattered and then fallen silent and had been walking thus for a few minutes.

Three out of the four of us responded to the challenge as most people do with evasions and feeble attempts at wise cracks.

What She Was Really Thinking. But the fourth said: "You're afraid to tell truly; I'll stump you." "Go on," we demanded, "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth." "I was having a lovely time," she admitted. "I was being a heroine. You know when I was away last summer the little hotel I was in caught fire, and we had quite a scare. They stopped it in time but if they hadn't, it would have been pretty serious for us folks on the top floor. Well, something made me think of that time—you know we were talking about mountains and heights and whether they made us dizzy—and I got to thinking about that room of mine and whether I could get out into the tree by my window, and so when we stopped talking I was imagining a fire and I was having a grand time being a heroine.

Where To Tie The Rope. I woke everyone up on my floor and got them out and finally had to go down on a rope made of sheets and blankets, and when you spoke to me I was just trying to decide what I would tie the rope to. I'd thrown out all my clothes and valuables and the crowd were cheering me because I was so cool. . . . Really, you interrupted me at a most inopportune time. It isn't every day you get a chance to be a heroine with no inconvenience or danger, I suppose you think I'm a awful silly but I bet you're just as silly yourself sometimes."

I agreed thoroughly with her last statement, but not with the one before it.

Don't We All Pretend! I suspect that those opportunities to be brave and unselfish and brilliant and charming, and all the things we wish we were, come every day to most of us. . . . I doubt if there is any indoor sport quite as fascinating or quite as common as this grown up game of let's pretend.

Embroideries may be of exotic Oriental influence, or decidedly modern.

Important Announcement to Majestic Patrons

One of the most novel and original screen offerings ever to play this city is "The Flying Dutchman," the smashing picturization of Wagner's famous opera, which plays to-night at the Majestic Theatre. It is absolutely different from any other picture ever made—and every fan owes it to himself to see it.

In picturizing the centuries old legend of the little Dutch village of Vandendam, Lloyd Carlsson, the producer, gives the tale of the phantom mariner a new treatment. He introduces the ghostly visitant in the midst of a social gathering at the burgomaster's home. It is a stormy night, the blinds are drawn, the lightning flashing. Flashes of glowing, soul-warming wine are being drained as the burgomaster relates the old legend of the landing every seventh year of the fated mariner whom only the love of a true maiden can redeem from the curse of eternal cruising of the high seas because of a rash taunting of the gods. The listeners' imagination also is aglow, stimulated by the flow of the nectar, and when there is a rap at the door, they start up in surprise and awe.

And as it proves, surely enough, there is the central figure of the legend himself, framed in the doorway. To tell the rest of the story would be unfair; at any rate, students of mythology know it by heart. Jacobson and Evans won renewed favour in their musical act last night after a week's rest and they turned loose a combination of late hits which delighted the audiences.

Britain-U.S. Can Make Peace Sure

Sir Esme Howard Says Co-operation Now Stronger Than Ever.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 26.—Belief that the United States can do much to help in the aim of settlement and peace abroad "without in any way undertaking any dangerous commitments for the future," was expressed by Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador, in an address before the Lion's Club.

Saying that the United States lies outside "the hurricane belt," he welcomed United States co-operation "in all matters in which she feels herself able to co-operate without damaging her own interests. Never since the United States War of Independence, has there been so good an understanding as now exists between Great Britain and the United States," Sir Esme said.

"A new sun had arisen on the political horizon under the benign influence of which old prejudices and misunderstandings were melting as rapidly as snow in April," he said. "There is a great feeling growing, not only in Britain but in the Dominions, as well as, I hope, and believe, here, that there is nothing on earth, which will hold so much towards a settlement of the various difficult questions which arise in Europe and the rest of the world, as the knowledge that the United States of America and the British Empire are standing together for peace."

Britain-U.S. Can Make Peace Sure

Sir Esme Howard Says Co-operation Now Stronger Than Ever.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 26.—Belief that the United States can do much to help in the aim of settlement and peace abroad "without in any way undertaking any dangerous commitments for the future," was expressed by Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador, in an address before the Lion's Club.

Saying that the United States lies outside "the hurricane belt," he welcomed United States co-operation "in all matters in which she feels herself able to co-operate without damaging her own interests. Never since the United States War of Independence, has there been so good an understanding as now exists between Great Britain and the United States," Sir Esme said.

ONE-CENT MAIL.

Upon the brown postoffice floor a box that holds a ton or more is stationed. It is a t h a t we may dispose of circulars and things like those.

The box is emptied every day, great loads of mail are borne away and burned as though to celebrate the folly of the feeble-skate who sends abroad his one-cent screeds, his circulars that no one reads.

We grabboards travel sad and slow; to get the morning mail we go; each has his box with front of glass, through which he squints and cries, "Alas!" he mutters, as his mail he lumps, "my letters all have one-cent stamps; they're all appeals I know full well from meo who have gold bricks to sell;" and then he dumps them in the box, and full of ire, away he walks, I go, expecting to receive a loving letter from Aunt Eve; perhaps a note from Uncle Jones, inclosing check for seven bones; or kindly lines from Pete or Mike, explaining what the weather's like. I find my box is full of mail, and glad emotions then prevail, but speedily my joy decamps—my letters all have one-cent stamps.

PRAYER FOR PATIENCE.

Lord, help me to be patient with small vexations and the petty cares of the day: Let me be willing when the shafts fall To have a little while the darts away.

I would not spoil with words of content. The laughter of another, or his fly into passion's futile argument. And leave a blot of shame upon my page.

Perhaps I have not skill for great things. Nor are the heights of glory mine for me; But with the countless little hurts and stings Surely more patient I can learn to be.

I would be brave through all the must meet. With petty cares I'd do the best I can. But whether mine the victory or feat Lord, let me know I've battled bravely!

ORDERS OF THE DAY. Debate on the Address in Reply resumed by the Prime Minister.

THE PRIME MINISTER.—Speaker, the motion in connection with the Address in Reply has been debated for a week, and I propose to keep the House away from getting it off the order paper as long as possible. It is a matter of great gratification to the Government that the Speech has been made with such length, and so that the Honourable Members of the Opposition with such little criticism. Whether it is due to the benignity of fate, or whether it is that I am so sensitive as I was last session, it appears to me that a much better feeling exists in the House today than in the last session, and I am glad to hear the Honourable Leader of the Opposition for his statement that he proposes to pass measures which are good and beneficial to the people of this country, and will be very glad to lead us, and to show appreciation of our work. A gentleman came to me and said "I was glad to be in politics because you said the country will give you no credit for what you do, and blame you for what you do wrong. He did not know what was talking about, because according to his own expression, he is the Leader of the Opposition."

MISS ARLIE MARKS.

and I think that Mr. Hickman has been evidently misinformed and that some exporter has been "passing the buck" to him, but I can tell Mr. Hickman and the exporters that they have another guess coming to them and that they have to work out their own difficulties for themselves, and, if they want anything done, let them work out a scheme, report to us and then we will see what we can do after that. The honourable member for Trinity, Mr. Halfyard, spoke for three hours a few days ago, and during his address he also touched on the subject of codfish, and I really do not know of one constructive suggestion that he made in all his remarks. He thought that there should be Fishery Commissioners appointed for the foreign markets. The honourable member for Pogo, Mr. Hubs, also thought that we ought to have Commissioners to sell our fish. Now if we have any Commissioners who do not have them to sell our fish, I have been in the codfish business pretty well all my life and I have never required anybody to sell my fish for me. I have an agent in every place where our fish is sold and I am quite satisfied with the work they are doing. We do not want men in the foreign markets to sell our fish, although it may be alright to have men who are interested in the fishery to try and get us in communication with any new markets. We have had our experience of Fishery Commissioners under the Fish Regulations, which were thrown down because they did not have the endorsement of the Trade, and because the Trade was not behind them. Mr. Goodridge was sent by Sir William Coaker a few years ago to Paris to investigate the conditions there and find out what the possibilities were for opening up a new market there for Newfoundland codfish. He made that investigation, presented an elaborate report, but I do not know if anybody read it or not. The report was sent out by the Department of Marine and Fisheries, and the result is that there has not been a single quintal of fish sent to Paris since Mr. Goodridge came home. So I say that the appointment of Fishery Commissioners is not a thing that appeals to me. Mr. Taylor, who was here last Summer as referred to by Captain Winsor, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, recommended that four Commissioners be appointed. The Fishery Board sat on it and they decided that such a proposition was extravagant, and they suggested to the Executive that a roving Commissioner be appointed to do all the markets. The Government was not very enthusiastic about this roving Commissioner, and a roving Commissioner may be very hard to find at times, hence the proposition did not commend itself to us. I had a letter from a Mr. Cobb, a Director of the College of Fisheries, Washington, a man who is thoroughly educated and well versed in the canning industry, stating that he is prepared to come here and give us some assistance in getting our canning industry under way. Captain Gosse, who gave a lecture here last year, stated that our small herring and caplin should be tinned and that canned salmon should be done up here, but that more uniformity in size was required in putting up same than in the past, and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries may agree with me that the salmon canning industry is one that we might give some support to during the coming year. Mr. Hickman, the other day, dealt with a little treatise given by a Mr. Huntsman whose little pamphlet is an eye-opener to me. Here is a paragraph of it: (Reads pamphlet regarding temperature of the water.)

Well I have been supplying fishermen for the past thirty years, and I had them asking me for everything from a needle to an anchor, but I never heard of a fisherman wanting to be supplied with a thermometer when going fishing, and, according to Mr. Huntsman, it is the first essential article fishermen should take to the fishery with them. If this theory is correct, and a man has got to get the temperature of the water before putting his traps in the water, I think it is well worth consideration, and any fishermen going to prosecute the fishery next summer should have thermometers to bring along with them.

Mr. Hickman also referred to the West India Service, and said that it was absolutely essential for steamers to take our fish direct to the West Indies, and he wound up by saying that everybody in the trade sat upon it. Mr. Hickman reminds me very much of the juror who said that he never met eleven more obstinate men. I say with the rest of the trade, it is not necessary to ship our fish direct to the West Indies by steamer. I shipped as much fish as anyone during the past year, and I got absolute satisfaction, though it was sent through Halifax and New York. We cannot subsidize steamers at present because we cannot afford to. That is all I have to say on that matter just now.

I would also like to say a word or two on the Agriculture situation, because I appreciate the interest that the Minister, Mr. Walsh, is taking in his department. He wrote a letter to me some time ago and asked me if I would call a few members of the Council together for the purpose of formulating an agricultural policy. I told him there was no need of such a meeting as I did not know anything about agriculture. I told him to get in touch with a few expert local farmers and see if they had a few good suggestions to offer. He did so and some of the suggestions advanced appealed to us and some others did not. There was one good point brought in by Mr. Hickman in his speech and that was that we should have better facilities for storage of our vegetables. There was another by Captain Courtney who thought we should have some protection for our vegetables, and another was that we should have cheaper transport along our own railway line. Now when we get people growing three or four hundred barrels of turnips and potatoes in Salvage, they should not be charged an exorbitant rate to get to Corner Brook as we own the railroad. We should carry such vegetables over the railway lines as cheaply as possible. The same applies to hay. We should charge a minimum for the carrying of hay over the railway lines, thus encouraging the growing of hay, without any expense to the Colony, and I hope we shall be able to do so.

Just a word also about the Humber and the logging industry. I think it is a very dangerous attitude to assume to criticize openly or rashly the Humber proposition, because we have to remember that we are shareholders of it, and, if anything happens to that industry, that we suffer with rest of the shareholders. Of course, there may be reasons for criticizing some things done out there. We heard a lot of talk and a lot of criticism at last session about matters on the Humber, but we have a "white" Company in the Armstrong-Whitworth people, whose game is world renowned, and they are people who can be depended on for a square deal, and the fact that they are spending thirty millions of dollars in that industry, instead of twenty millions, is to their credit and to our benefit—to our benefit because we were security for ten millions and now we have more security there than before. We ought to think a lot of the Armstrong-Whitworth people because they have put an extra ten million dollars of their own money in that industry, as well as far other reasons. We have heard a lot of outside labourers being brought in to work in that region. I can quite understand the temperance and the feelings of Newfoundlanders in this connection when the outsiders are no better workers than our own people, and I can readily understand how the trouble came about. Some of the contractors of the Armstrong Company, who wanted to get some special work done and done quickly, gave it out at a special wage, and that is why, in some cases, that some people from outside, experts told him there was no need of such a meeting as I did not know anything about agriculture. We have heard a lot of outside labourers being brought in to work in that region. I can quite understand the temperance and the feelings of Newfoundlanders in this connection when the outsiders are no better workers than our own people, and I can readily understand how the trouble came about. Some of the contractors of the Armstrong Company, who wanted to get some special work done and done quickly, gave it out at a special wage, and that is why, in some cases, that some people from outside, experts told him there was no need of such a meeting as I did not know anything about agriculture. I told him to get in touch with a few expert local farmers and see if they had a few good suggestions to offer. He did so and some of the suggestions advanced appealed to us and some others did not. There was one good point brought in by Mr. Hickman in his speech and that was that we should have better facilities for storage of our vegetables. There was another by Captain Courtney who thought we should have some protection for our vegetables, and another was that we should have cheaper transport along our own railway line. Now when we get people growing three or four hundred barrels of turnips and potatoes in Salvage, they should not be charged an exorbitant rate to get to Corner Brook as we own the railroad. We should carry such vegetables over the railway lines as cheaply as possible. The same applies to hay. We should charge a minimum for the carrying of hay over the railway lines, thus encouraging the growing of hay, without any expense to the Colony, and I hope we shall be able to do so.

Just a word also about the Humber and the logging industry. I think it is a very dangerous attitude to assume to criticize openly or rashly the Humber proposition, because we have to remember that we are shareholders of it, and, if anything happens to that industry, that we suffer with rest of the shareholders. Of course, there may be reasons for criticizing some things done out there. We heard a lot of talk and a lot of criticism at last session about matters on the Humber, but we have a "white" Company in the Armstrong-Whitworth people, whose game is world renowned, and they are people who can be depended on for a square deal, and the fact that they are spending thirty millions of dollars in that industry, instead of twenty millions, is to their credit and to our benefit—to our benefit because we were security for ten millions and now we have more security there than before. We ought to think a lot of the Armstrong-Whitworth people because they have put an extra ten million dollars of their own money in that industry, as well as far other reasons. built in Holland. With regard to the dock, we have as I explained the other day another expert looking over the proposition. It looks as if we are going to have to spend a great deal of money on the dock. We are at present waiting for the second expert to make his recommendations. We are waiting to see what they both have to say on the subject. All I can say is that everything will be brought before the House in connection with this matter and all will have the opportunity to express an opinion on it. The Public Enquiry has been commented upon to some extent. I think that the Hon. member for Fortune Bay who said that he thought all the names implicated should not be made public, I do not agree with him in that respect. We want to keep the public aware of what we are doing. We want to let them know what we are finding as well as we can. We are not seeking political kudos. We are having these publications made just to let the people know that things are so, and that we are doing to get things better. If Mr. Warren's district of Fortune Bay did not spend as much money on Doctor's bills as other Districts we want the people of the other District to become as good as the people of Fortune Bay. In connection with the public institutions we find that hundreds of people have been coming here to go into the hospital where there was no room for them. Boarding house after boarding house was being filled with sick patients, and the Government had to pay the doctors' bills and their board. It would be very much better for them to remain at home and await their turn, which has to be done in any case. One word on the unemployment. Nobody feels more distressed about people being out of employment than I do myself, and the members of the Government. We certainly feel very sympathetic. But it is not the duty of the Government to find employment for every man out of work. Let that be clearly understood. It is the duty of the Government to give every encouragement to the industries that employ labour. It is not the duty of the Government, if they find a man out of a job, to give him employment. Of course, if he is starving they should give him assistance. Now in the investigations that have been made we have been told that there are not so many people badly off as there were last year, but that those that are badly off are more badly off than they were last year. Now it is probable that if the Government were to give such employment as the Rock Sheds, that the people mostly in need would not be the people to get help at all. We know that the people do not like receiving the dole, and we do not like offering it. But we cannot let the people starve and we do not know of anything else to do. It is hoped to put some men to work on the dock when the report is submitted. This should be about the first of April. But, Mr. Speaker, it has been remarked that the people of St. John's have not the same independent spirit of years ago. A number of people have lost that independence. They have acquired the habit of looking to the Government for assistance and the Government are being looked to. Nothing is easier than for the Government to throw out money right and left, but as the custodians of the people's money it is our duty to see that it is spent to the best advantage of the people of the country. I would like to say a word on the Labrador Boundary. My friend the Attorney General has given a little information on that and I would like to add a little more. When we went up to Montreal we found ourselves up against one big question, and that was the sovereignty of the coast. Mr. Warren stated the other day something about twenty-five million dollars being mentioned for the Labrador, but he did not say to what extent the sovereignty of the coast was involved. We found the delegates were strong on that point. Any sale, they declared, must embrace the sovereignty of the coast. It was largely on that account that we did not get very much further than we did, and we had to come back and consult our colleagues in the Executive. The result was that I wrote a long letter to Mr. Taschereau giving him a description of the various interests in the Labrador. There was provision to be made for the small fishermen who goes down in the steamer and builds his hut on the shore and sells his fish on the Labrador coast. Then there is the planter who has his plant or property down there and so on. We pointed out that we wanted these people taken care of and asked for suggestions about it. Mr. Taschereau, however, put that aside by saying that they would all be looked after, and enquired as to what would be the price. Now it is very hard to fix a price if you do not know what you are

Quebec would be willing to agree to since we have come back from Montreal that the question of the boundary line can still be taken up again, and that Quebec will be willing to accept three miles from the coast. If cial consideration with the fishermen must be protected. We have got to remember that the Labrador property is very big. It is a hundred and twenty thousand miles. And we have to give a little consideration before we enter into any arrangement. Quebec has got water powers capable of developing seven or eight million horsepower, and if she had the Labrador she would have four million more. That is a very valuable asset. It is very valuable to them, more to them perhaps than to us, and all that I can say is that in the negotiations that will take place we will make the best arrangements we can and then submit them to the consideration of the House.

Mr. Ashbourne in referring to the Speech from the Throne spoke about the policy of "Clean Up." We are doing some cleaning up, but as I told the House before it may take four years to clean up, but we have begun, and I don't say that we are particularly proud of the progress that we have made, but we have begun in the right direction. Sir John Crosbie has done a lot of cleaning up in the Custom House. We have got the Post Office on fairly good lines. We have got Colonel Ross putting in a new system up there. I believe it is going to be effective. Colonel Ross has suggested the appointment of a postmaster for St. John's. Mr. Milley is taking the position. Mr. LeMesurier has retired. Mr. Martin has retired at his own suggestion, and Mr. Devereaux has retired. They are remaining on for one month, however, to give assistance to those following them. Their successors are promotions in the Post Office Department itself. I would like to encourage that sort of thing. I would like to see every man in every department move up instead of having politicians put over their heads. It discourages them.

Mr. Speaker. I don't propose to take up any more of the time of this House this afternoon. I simply wish to make these few responses to the criticisms from the other side of the House, and to say that we believe that in the few years we have still to go we will be able to make a fairly decent showing in the policy of cleaning up.

At the close of the Prime Minister's Speech the Address in Reply passed the House without division.

When the Bill respecting the Lobster Fishery came up for second reading, Mr. Scammell asked reconsideration of the matter as he did not think the west side of St. Barbe District wanted the close season. He suggested that the system of conservation whereby spawn lobsters were purchased by the Government and put back in the water should be again put in operation. The grant for this purpose was $20,000, but in 1921 the Government had to abandon the system on the score of economy.

The MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES replying, said the matter of having a close season for the whole Island had been given careful consideration by the Board. He had been asked that St. Barbe be not included for the next 12 months but the Board decided otherwise in the interests of the whole country. The present, he thought, was the most opportune for a close season. The fishery had dwindled from 30,000 cases to 3,000, and the majority of those engaged last season did not pay expenses. The Government was making provision so that no undue hardship would be inflicted upon any of those affected.

MR. HALFYARD and CAPT. RANDELL expressed approval of the principles of the Bill. There was no further discussion and the Bill was moved to the Committee stage. Second reading of a Bill relating to Light Dues was deferred.

A Bill entitled "An Act to Amend 11 George V. Cap. 45, entitled 'An Act to Incorporate the Women's Patriotic Trust Fund and for other Purposes,'" was given second reading. As explained by the Minister of Justice, the Bill is to facilitate the deposition of funds of the Women's Patriotic Association, which has ceased to exist. By the Act funds are to be vested in trustees for relieving destitute soldiers and soldiers who served in the Great War, and the destitute wives and children of sailors and soldiers who served in the Great War and in co-operating with the Great War Veterans' Association in relieving destitute sailors and soldiers, their wives and children.

Second reading was given to Bill entitled, "An Act Further to Amend the Act 11 Victoria Cap. 47, entitled 'An Act relating to the Constitution of the Supreme Court, and the Acts in amendment thereof.'"

THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE explained that the Bill gave legal effect to a Statutory Act of 1921. Introducing the Bill respecting Companies for second reading, the Minister of Justice gave a resume of the Act. It was prepared by Mr. Justice Ken and Mr. Justice Johnson, and the former Attorney General, Mr. Warrin. Although a Bill of 300 pages it was not as formidable as it looked, the Minister of Justice said. On request of Mr. Hickman, second reading was deferred till a later date.

The second reading of three Bills, introduced by the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, was deferred.

A Bill "An Act to Amend the Revenue Act 1905, and the Acts of Amendment thereof," and Bill "An Act to Amend the Act 15 Geo. V. Cap. XXI, entitled 'An Act respecting a Tax on Goods Imported into Newfoundland,'" were discharged from the order paper at the request of the Minister of Finance and Customs.

A Bill entitled "An Act Relating to Firearms," was given a second reading.

THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE explained that the Bill was a digest of the law in the Old Country made suitable to our requirements. The Bill provides that "no person shall have in his possession, use or carry, firearms or ammunition without first obtaining a certificate from the Inspector General of Constabulary." The certificate remains in force three years, but may be revoked for specific reasons. Exemptions for members of the police force, members of the naval, military, or air forces, an officer of the Post Office in performance of duty, gunsmiths in the course of their business, members of rifle clubs, approved by the Colonial Secretary, when engaged in drill or practice, are provided. The provisions of the Act as to the possession of firearms without a firearm certificate does not apply to firearms which are possessed as trophies of war if the owner thereof gives notice of the fact to the Inspector General and the I. G. has signified that a certificate can be dispensed with, provided such trophies are not used or carried.

Second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to Provide for the Construction, Reconstruction and Maintenance of Highroads," and "An Act to Regulate Travel on Highways and the Speed, Operation and Load of Vehicles thereon," were deferred.

The orders of the day being completed, Hon. M. S. Sullivan, before adjournment, took occasion to make a few remarks relative to the new Gulf steamer. He said the Trade Facilities Board would not give any assistance, which was evidenced by the fact that twenty British ships were now being built in Holland. The approximate amount saved was $24,000. Swan & Hunter or John Brown & Company would have got the tenders in England, their price being $100,000. Furthermore there were many items of electrical equipment and other expenditure that the Dutch firm were willing to put into the contract, making in all another $23,000, which, together with the difference between $100,000 and $28,000, making a saving into the taxpayers of $14,000. Then the loading and unloading for trial trip was offered free by the Holland firm for which the British firms wanted to charge. Mr. Sullivan was satisfied to rest his conduct as regards the placing of the contract with the people of the country who were the best judges, and he thought the saving of about $60,000 to the taxpayers was quite an item in these days. It would be a nucleus for the fund to be started to repair schooners.

The House then adjourned until this afternoon.

You cannot buy good woollens, good silks, good satins, good voles, or in fact any good article unless you pay a good price.

Just as Diamonds cost more than glass beads, as gold costs more than brass, so does Lux cost more than ordinary soap flakes.

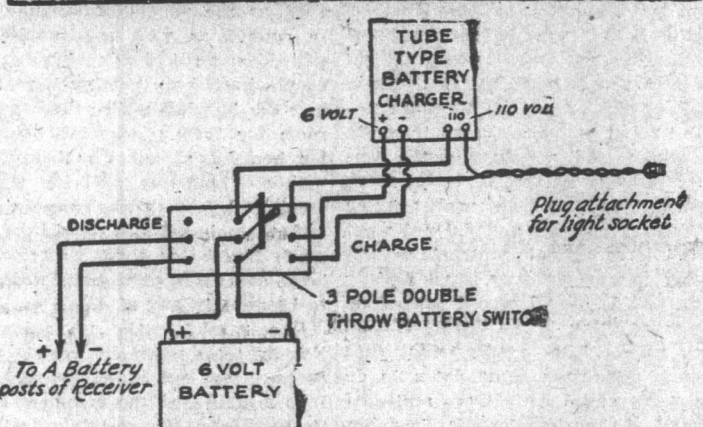

If you wish to save money, don't buy inferior soap flakes, they will spoil your garments. Cheap inferior soap flakes will ruin your silks and rot your clothing. Always use Lux. Lux is made and guaranteed by Lever Brothers, Ltd., soap-makers to His Majesty King George. Lux is reliable. Lux is as pure as the most expensive toilet soap.

Wash your baby's clothing with Lux. Use Lux for washing expensive clothes, your silks, voles, woollens, satins, crepes, etc. Lux is sold only in packages.

When you pay many dollars to get the clothing you like, it is foolish to buy inferior soap flakes which will ruin good clothing.

Lux is so pure you may use it to shampoo your hair, or in your bath.

You can depend on Lux: beware of imitations, take care to get Lux, which costs only 10 cents per package—just 10¢.

Charging Storage Batteries

EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

As mentioned yesterday, it greatly prolongs the life of your storage battery to put it on charge each night after it has been used. A 100-ampere hour battery is the standard size of radio battery, and we will refer to this as the standard.

With a 2-ampere battery charger, we can assume that it will take from 60 to 70 hours of charging to bring a fully DISCHARGED battery up to full charge. This means several days. But if the battery is used three hours every night and every other night allowed to be recharged from the time the battery is taken off the radio set until morning, the battery will be in a fully charged condition almost all of the time. Once a month, however, it should be tested by means of a hydrometer and if each cell does not show the proper gravity (1.260 in most batteries) the charger should be turned on and the battery charged until it has reached 1.290 and the cells are gassing freely.

Above we show a simple charging circuit whereby one of the tube type chargers can be wired to a radio set. By means of the 3-pole double throw switch the charger can be turned on, the battery disconnected from the radio set and the charger connected to the battery all at once. NEVER connect your charger to your battery until the battery has been disconnected from the radio set, unless such a scheme as is shown above is used.

When the switch shown above is thrown to the right it is in the "discharge" position—the charger bulb is turned off and the battery connected to the radio set.

In charging a battery ALWAYS unscrew the vent caps at the top of each cell. During the charging process the cells gas rather violently and there is danger of enough gas accumulating in the cell to blow the vent cap off. Also the battery should not be encased in a tight-fitting box, but should be placed so that plenty of air can circulate around it.

Entry of Aliens

Home Secretary On Enforcement of Regulations.

Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the Home Secretary, is devoting special attention to the question of alien immigration. He inspected the arrangements at Dover for dealing with immigrants, and subsequently addressed the Immigration Officers. Sir William stated that he was extremely satisfied by the way in which the work was being done, but desired to emphasize his determination, in which he had the full support of the Government, that every effort was to be made to keep out undesirable aliens, and that so long as there were anything like a million unemployed in this country no foreigner was to be allowed to come in seeking employment. As he had stated in a recent circular, the benefit of the doubt in every case was to be given to this country rather than to the alien. Sir William then went on to Folkestone, where he went on board the Flushing boat and personally took part in the investigation of the aliens who were coming in by that boat.

Canada's Postal Service

The record of the postal service of Canada in the fiscal year ending with March 31, 1924, has been laid before Parliament. Both in the transportation of mail matter and the banking features of the service, including the receipt of deposits and the transfer of money, more was done in 1923-24 than in the preceding twelve months. The revenue fell off slightly. The net amount was $29,109,491, which was $162,740 less than in the preceding year. The expenditure amounted to $28,308,926, an increase of $511,456.

Generally there has been expansion in the service. There were 295 new offices opened in the year, and 2132 closed. This latter feature is chiefly a result of the establishment of rural mail delivery, which operates to bring the post office to the farmer's door instead of compelling him to go to the post office. The net result of the change is an increase in the total number of post offices of 82 to 12,379.

Many of the offices have little to do. The department has been liberal in providing postal facilities in thinly settled districts and if in cases it has meant financial loss it has not been uncompensated from other points of view. There has been a slowing down in the establishment of rural mail delivery for economical reasons; and they were somewhat prominent. The newer developments of the service appear to be appreciated. The insurance of postal parcels have been largely resorted to, some 2,800,000 having been insured during the year. The system has been extended to parcels to the United States and Great Britain and Ireland. The C.O.D. service seems to meet a want, the number of articles having risen to some 50,000 a month. The number of post offices where the service is made available has been increased to 12,000, practically all in the country. It is noted that Toronto ranks first in the postal business. It reports postal revenue in 1923-24 of $6,104,788. The other cities that show over a million dollars are Montreal, with $3,683,861; Winnipeg, with $2,985,057; and Vancouver, with $1,107,204.

In financial departments of the postal service, the savings Bank shows a revival. In the volume of transactions. From the start of the service in 1868, there was a fairly steady increase in the yearly amount of deposits until 1909—when they reached $10,000,000. This figure was maintained fairly well till 1920. In 1921, there was a drop to $6,600,000, and in 1922, the amount was down to $2,500,000. Last year, it rose to $7,118,912. Some of the drop may have been due to investments in Government bonds, which paid from 5 to 5 1/2 per cent, compared with 3 per cent interest, allowed by the post office. In money orders there was an increase in the number of issuing offices and in the number and amount of orders issued and paid. Those issued numbered 12,561,490, an increase over the preceding year of 1,500,000. The amount for 1923-1924 was $159,855,144—an increase of $18,800,000. The greater number were payable in Canada, only $18,234,000 being payable abroad. The cost of the service was $1,177,321, the revenue being $1,364,110. It is the division of the service which, with moderate charges, more than pays its way.

Produce and Provisions

(Trade Review)

Fish—The exports this week consist of 3,295 quintals dried codfish, 140 quintals haddock by schooner, 100 quintals salmon, 100 quintals Lake, from Lake and Lake, to Oporto; also 3,490 quintals of Nory Lee, Monroe Export, St. John's, to Pernambuco. The cost of the S.S. Digby's fish freight this week to Liverpool was 9,630. The cost of the S.S. Digby's fish freight to Liverpool was 9,630. The cost of the S.S. Digby's fish freight to Liverpool was 9,630.

Oil—Holdings are now reduced to a low rate in the local market. The price for common cod oil remains high in New York and Boston at 58 cents a gallon in barrels, and 55 cents in tanks. The manufacturers have enough of oil stocked to do them till the new oil comes to the market from Norway.

Wool—The price of wool in the London market has reacted from a temporary decline of 1 1/2 to 3 cents per pound back to New Year's stiff figures again, and dealers seem to be quite reconciled to the belief that the market will hold its present firm condition of high prices all the spring and well into the summer. Prices in the local market now, 37 to 80 cents per pound, are lower than the rates that it would cast to import just now.

Potatoes—The mild weather is bringing the home grown potatoes on the market. Some are good and well wegian is $32 to $34 per barrel of 25 gallons at New York, and with a large catch reported from Norway a recession from these prices is reported.

Flour—After an exciting month of advances and reactions in the wheat market at Winnipeg, the price seems to have reached a settled shelf, that is likely to remain static for a few weeks at least. The local wholesale price is about where it was a month ago, viz., $11.65 per barrel for leading brands. It would seem that the present is a good time to buy flour, for prompt and May delivery, as another run in prices upward is not at all unlikely before the end of the Spring. We have heard of some fishery planters who closed for their summer's flour with wholesale houses this week, in the belief that they are saving $1.50 to $2.00 per barrel.

Pork—Importers stand to lose considerable money in the sudden removal of duty on pork and beef, and their contention that they should get waiting—It only one month—seems to be reasonable. They have immediately to adjust their prices to the new level in order to compete with importations. Fat Back and Short Cut Clear are now both $33 per barrel, wholesale; Ham Butt, $32; and Spare Ribs, $23.50.

Beef—The fishermen will find reasonable prices in outfitting this spring. All the local brands are now included between the $16 and $36. Following are the wholesale quotations since the duty was taken off:—Bos Plank, $26; Extra Family, $23; Naval Pork, $24; Family Special, $26.50; Boneless, $19.50; Plate Beef, $19.00; and Beef Hams, $16.00.

Molasses—The wholesale price in the local market was reduced this week to 70c per gallon for both Choice and Fancy, by one of the large wholesale houses. This will be good news for the fishermen and planters who will be ten weeks hence outfitting for the codfishery. The first cargo of Fancy will be leaving Barbados next week in P. Templeman's schooner, Retriever, and should arrive here about the middle of March. Full cargoes of Choice will not be available till three weeks or a month later.

Sugar—This week the local wholesale quotation for American white granulated sugar in barrels is $6.75 per 100 pounds. Largest imports of new crop sugar, as well as some old crop, are coming in by every steamer from New York and Halifax. There has not yet been any radical downward change in prices. There is, so far a limited supply in New York with fair demand. Local prices are generally expected in March.

Tea—The price of tea in the London market has reacted from a temporary decline of 1 1/2 to 3 cents per pound back to New Year's stiff figures again, and dealers seem to be quite reconciled to the belief that the market will hold its present firm condition of high prices all the spring and well into the summer. Prices in the local market now, 37 to 80 cents per pound, are lower than the rates that it would cast to import just now.

Potatoes—The mild weather is bringing the home grown potatoes on the market. Some are good and well

Safe Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monacopolitane of Salicylic Acid (Acetyl Salicylic Acid, "A. S. A."). worth $3.50, the price asked generally. Others are not worth $2.00 per barrel, but are not proven till there is a safe distance between the vendor and the vendee. There is an easy feeling in the market, this mild spring, and the demand has slackened. Imported potatoes are selling at $1.70 to $1.80 per sack of 90 pounds, or a half barrel.

Hay—The hay situation is easier in Canada as well as in the local market, evidently a result of the mild weather of February, and indications that the winter is broken and spring is at hand. Car lots of No. 2 Timothy sold for $14 per ton in the Montreal market last week. The local stocks of imported baled hay are dwindling fast, and there will be no more big importations till the St. Lawrence opens about the last week in April, prices in this market will likely hold up to the present level of $34.50 to $35 per ton, wholesale.

Oats—This market is holding the same steady strong strain that has been noted all the winter, and there is not likely to be any favorable change for the purchaser for some time. P. E. I. may have some cheaper oats to offer when spring opens and lower freight rates prevail. At present white oats are $4.35; No. 2, $4.25; mixed $4.00; black very scarce, $4.40 per sack of four bushels.

Attack on Besco by Miners' Union is Broadcast

Number of Serious Statements Made in Lengthy Document.

The heads of the Miners' Union in Nova Scotia have prepared a statement in reply to the application of the British Empire Steel Corporation for a conciliation board. Copies of this statement have been sent to the Board, the Minister of Labor for the Dominion, and to various newspapers of the Dominion. In doing so the men have thus broadcast a succession of rather serious charges in relation to the operation of the steel plants and coal mines of Nova Scotia.

Calling attention first to the fact that they have been asked to accept the cuts in wages by the company, on the ground that the steel trade is so depressed that the Sydney plant cannot operate at a profit, and that the coal trade is unsatisfactory owing to United States competition, the men proceed to give their views. One of the first contentions of the men is that the conditions of the steel industry is as foreign to the present wage dispute as existing conditions at the Halifax shipyards. They make the exception, however, that this applies except insofar as the wealth and resources of the coal company have been diverted out of the proper channels to sustain the steel company and other stricken units of the corporations.

The men proceed to deal at length with the steel company, contending that the war-time profits were not sufficiently employed in rejuvenating the plant, too much was laid out in dividable common stock and unprofitable projects. They contend that as a result the plant-to-day is in many essential departments far behind rival plants in the United States and, therefore, cannot successfully compete with them. They charge that the steel plant carries heavy staffs of highly-paid officials, unjustified by operations, and, with present operations at a low ebb, they charge over-staffing. Contending that low wages, long hours, and non-unionization drives many of Nova Scotia's efficient young men to the United States, the men say that their places are taken by low-grade European immigrants.

They make the statement that they believe the steel company lost trade because it marketed a lower grade product than that called for, and that some potential customers will not deal with it for that reason, and add, "We believe that the sales department of the Steel Company is materially inefficient and unsatisfactory." Equally serious is the expressed belief that large sums of money are injudiciously spent in connection with giving contracts of one kind or another to concerns in which directors of the corporation or their friends are interested.

Mines Always Profitable.

The men state that they were not consulted when the steel plant, which was unprofitable and was kept alive for years by government relief in the form of bounty, and by tax exemptions, were merged with the coal mines. The latter, they say, were always profitable, but since the merger profits and losses of the one as compared with the other have not been made public. Since the merger they claim the company has not paid its war, and they believe that coal profits have gone to help to pay steel plant losses, and thus the men have contributed heavily for this purpose. They say the reduction of wages now proposed is intended to be used for the same purpose, i.e., to pay the debts of the lame ducks of the corporation.

In regard to the coal trade, the men state that wages are 40 per cent. of the average price of coal, according to the company. The men say that for some coal sold in Nova Scotia, the wage cost is nearer 20 than 40, but accepting the company's own figures, they point out that in the other 80 per cent. there are very many items they know to be improper or inefficient. "Items similar to the payment to members of the Newfoundland Government" is cited, also that there are men about Cape Breton who draw money from the company's funds and return no perceptible value other than to influence legislation, or public opinion, in the company's favor, irrespective of merit. Contending that the wage question is the only item of cost in which they have any say, the men contend that an appalling number of their members have drawn in actual money less than one-half of the wages necessary to obtain a decent standard of living.

In regard to the financial position of the company, the men state: "We have come to consider that the frequent waterings of stock, which has been going on in this corporation since 1923 is a financial operation that allows a certain stock market manipulation, but which is detrimental to the economic production of coal and renders unstable the direction and administration of the industries, according as which group of stock market manipulators secured control. In fact, the financial aspect of the company has come not merely to overshadow, but actually to interfere with the technique of the industries it conducts."

Distrust a Factor.

Distrust of the company, non-acceptance of their cost sheets, is really the reason the men advance for not taking seriously the application for a conciliation board. They state that the board will be confronted with cost sheets and statements that are either deliberately untrue, or which are so misleading as to be valueless. "The board will be told, and the statement supported by figures, that we must take a cut or the coal mines cannot mine coal at a profit. We were told that about three times in one year, and each time in regard to a higher proposed rate, and each time equally untruthfully."

The men express the belief that the corporation would welcome a tie-up for a stated length of time. It is the off-season in coal production, and the companies do not immediately need the coal, and "it will have a tendency to starve us into submission," they say.

Many of the corporation's most valuable pits are incapable of being injured by flooding for a period of months, while the men contend that there are certain mines which the company is anxious to abandon, and has been for some time, and is quite satisfied that the men withdraw and allow them to fill with water. They state this will allow the company to escape blame for closing these mines. The country at large knows that this corporation was conceived in iniquity and brought forth in deceit, concludes the men's statement.

The British Empire Steel Corporation has not yet published a reply to the document, and it is possible, may ignore it entirely as a piece of "Red" propaganda, as the official contention is that the miners' union is dominated by the "Red" element.—Financial Post.

Who Benefits From Coal Strikes?

The Maritime coal fields are facing the prospect of an immediate strike. A wage reduction is proposed. That a lowering of costs is necessary is evidenced by the report this week that United States coal is entering the Maritime market and selling in Prince Edward Island $2 less than the Nova Scotia mines can lay it down. At the same time the Alberta mines are being part of their Winnipeg market to the United States coal, the latter underselling Alberta mines by $3. The main reason the Alberta coal costs

Co. told his men, they lost $2,000,000 in wages in the last 10 years through strikes. This fact convinced these workers that they were being made tools of and to the disgust of the agitators and union leaders, they cast all restraint aside, overthrew the union and went back to work.

Under all the circumstances the growing suspicion that labor troubles in Canadian mines are being engineered for the purpose of keeping up production costs and insuring a market for American coal is not a matter for surprise. Nor does it seem likely that the supply of coal coming to our markets would be interfered with in the event of our placing restrictions on exports of our raw materials to insure a better market for the manufactured products thereof.—Financial Post, Feb. 20.

Child Welfare Association

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY, 1925.

Visits to Homes 640
 Attendances at Clinics 100
 Dental Cases 5
 Operations Performed 4

The work for February has been uneventful but steady. One cannot help but mentioning the Infant Mortality for the month—four deaths, whereas in February, 1924 there were fifteen deaths under one year. The low figure for this month encourages us all the more to fight for a low death-rate for 1925.

We issued details for a Competition in mother-craft this month, the results of which will be known during Baby Week in June. We are hoping this Competition will be of interest to many, and that we shall have a large number of entrants.

May we thank Mrs. W. Knowling, Mrs. W. H. Halley, Mrs. J. Campbell, A. Harvey & Co. and A. V. Rees for their kind interest and donations to us.

Gorgeous Production at the Nickel Theatre

"YOLANDA" SETS THE PACE FOR BEAUTIFUL PICTURES.

Marion Davies' latest Cosmopolitan production, "Yolanda," had its first showing in St. John's yesterday at the Nickel theatre and it stands out as one of the finest, most artistic productions of the entire year. It is beautiful in its settings, skilful in its direction and excellent in the acting.

The entire production is full of the glamour of fifteenth century France. The sets devised by Joseph Urban are marvellous of beauty and are historically accurate. The story was adapted by Luther Reed from Charles Major's novel, "Yolanda," and was directed by Robert G. Vignola who directed Miss Davies' first big smashing film hit, "When Knighthood Was In Flower."

"Yolanda" gives Miss Davies a latitude of characterization even greater than that which she had in "Little Old New York." In both pictures she is called upon to delineate two characters that are quite different. In "Yolanda" Miss Davies appears as Princess Mary of Burgundy and as Yolanda, a burger maid. She gives a finished performance in both characterizations, proving anew that she is one of the ablest and most charming of our screen actresses.

The cast is a notable one, both in the names of its players and in the excellence of their acting. Holbrook Blinn presents a fascinating portrait of the wily King Louis XI of France, a sinister figure on the verge of insanity. Lyn Harding, whose vigorous and sure handling of the part of Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, attests his mastery of screen technique, gives an even more commanding interpretation that he did in "When Knighthood Was In Flower." Other important roles are played by Ralph Graves, as handsome and resourceful Prince Maximilian of Styria, whose love affair with Yolanda gives romantic interest to the story, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Ian MacLaren, Johnny Donley, Leon Errol, Maclyn Arbuckle, Theresa Maxwell Conover, Mary Kennedy, Thomas Findlay and others.

Wedding Bells

At Trepassey, on the 11th of January, a very pretty wedding was solemnized, the contracting parties being Miss Catherine Carrigan and Thomas R. Curtis, both of Trepassey. The bride, who looked charming in a gown of white silk canton crepe with veil and orange blossoms, was attended by her sister, Miss Gertie Carrigan, who also wore a white dress with hat to match. The services of best man were ably rendered by Peter Curtis, brother of the groom. After the ceremony a sumptuous repast was partaken of at the home of the happy couple, which was enjoyed by all present. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis wish them many years of wedded bliss.

ARMOUR STOCK OFFERING.

Comprises 750,000 Shares of Class A Common.

N.Y.—A syndicate headed by Blair & Co., Inc., is offering at $23 a share 750,000 shares of Class A participating common stock of Armour & Co. of Illinois.

In connection with this offering it is announced that purchasers will have the privilege of subscribing for class B shares of the company at $14 a share.

This is the first public offering of any common stock of Armour & Co. Both classes of stock are listed on Chicago Stock Exchange and New York Curb market. The offering represents part of stock already outstanding, and is not new financing by Armour & Co.

N.Y.—Books will open for subscription to Armour a common stock at 10 a.m. Thursday.

N.Y.—Armour & Co. declared two quarterly dividends of 50 cents on Class A common, one payable as of Jan. 2 to stock of record on that date and the other payable April 1 to stock of record March 14; also regular quarterly dividend of 1 1/2% on preferred of Armour & Co. of Illinois, Armour & Co. of Delaware and North American Provision Co., all payable April 1 to stock of record March 14. This is first dividend on Class A since January, 1921.

N.Y.—Pres. White of Armour says: "Inasmuch as the company's net profits in 1924 were $18,300,000, of which $9,000,000 was applicable to common, and as 1925 earnings left some $5,400,000 for common, directors deemed it proper to resume common dividends.

"This indicates extent of company's recovery from depression of 1922. Additional volume secured through purchase of Morris & Co. lessened unit costs, and made possible other economies which run into millions annually. Results are apparent in our improved financial condition."

ARMOUR & CO.
 $800,000,000 Gross in 1924—Satisfactory Outlook for 1925.

Boston—In connection with the offering of 750,000 shares of Armour & Co. Class A participating common stock (voting trust certificates) at $22 per share Pres. F. Edson White writes Blair & Co., Inc. that 1924 sales were in excess of $800,000,000, or about the same as in 1923.

In 1924 net earnings after taxes, charges and preferred dividends were $3,016,249, equal to $4.59 on the 2,000,000 Class A shares or $2.25 per share on the combined 2,000,000 Class A and 2,000,000 Class B shares.

Mr. White says: "While the earnings for 1924 greatly exceeded those of the preceding year they do not, in my opinion, reflect the probable earning power of the business. Operations in the fertilizer and leather lines have been below normal for several years past, whereas these lines ordinarily are good profit makers and will, I feel sure, again become so. The facilities of the company and its subsidiaries are capable of handling even a larger volume of business and with a constantly growing domestic market due to increased population, we should get a fair share of new and profitable business annually."

"It is interesting to note that Armour & Co. and subsidiaries have some 80,500 stockholders and further that some 23,700 employees out of a total of 60,000 Armour employees have purchased approximately $7,000,000 preferred stock."

"The offering of the Class A common stock voting trust certificates represents a part of the issue of Class A stock already outstanding and is not new financing by the company."

"The year 1925 opened under favorable circumstances. Our plants are all in good operating condition. Our inventories are normal in amount and are conservatively priced. The consumption of our products continues in large volume and all present conditions point to a continued satisfactory business."

Consolidated balance sheet as of Dec. 27, 1924, of Armour & Co., and subsidiaries shows current assets of $205,732,531. These current assets include cash of $15,265,571 and marketable securities of $10,444,046. Current liabilities total $61,709,758, of which notes payable represent $37,267,536. Net working capital was therefore $144,073,843.

From university men, from young business men, both employer and employee, and bring them together not to 'work for men' in a patronizing way, but to 'work with men.' Its basis should be a wide outlook, an unselfishness in conduct and definite jobs of service undertaken voluntarily as part of brother work, hospital and prison work—all kinds."

The lamp, symbol and award of the society, two of which he brought with him, were explained thus by "Padre" Clayton:

"The lamp is not for exhibition purposes. It is our symbol. These two have been brought along have been won by two of our houses—one in Australia, the other in the Federated Malay States, to which we are carrying them. They have been won by these bodies of men who have attained 'branch' status. They are taken from the design of the old Greek catacomb lamps."

The Society of Toc H sets forth in its aims for men and its attitude toward them that:

"They are not asked to give up their political convictions, to forswear those opinions, to desert their class; they are only expected to do their little bit in helping the world along by self sacrifice, by unselfish humor, and by widening outlook."

"It is the first intention of Toc H to establish one great house in each great city, in which a number of youngsters can live in one happy brotherhood. Each house has its chaplain, who may be of any Christian denomination. Each room commemorates an elder brother who fell in the war. The honorary warden has at his hand the branch 'job master' who finds jobs of service for members volunteering and sees that they do them."

The work in our Toc H's two principal 'branches' will include after their New York visit, Boston, Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, then New Zealand, Australia, Singapore and India.

The tunic is generally worn with a skirt, hung from a yoke, with gathered front fullness. For sports, we note jumpers, blouses and plain and pleated skirts of a boyish character.

As to important trimmings—there are beads, paillettes, buttons and narrow string belts.

It Gives You Just What You Have Long Wanted

The unparalleled success of the Chrysler Six in its very first year can be attributed in brief, to the fact that it more than made good on its promise—

The promise to deliver results never before achieved. These results proved to be of the broadest nature, covering every phase of performance and ownership.

The public found in the Chrysler Six qualities which the American sense of the fitness of things admires and desires.

It brought a new alertness and aliveness to the motor car—a flashing acceleration that is a pure delight. As never before it joined roominess and conservation of space. As never before it gave to a car of the Chrysler weight and dimensions, riding qualities and roadability heretofore found only in two-ton cars.

It is hardly to be wondered at that in less than 12 months the public invested more than $50,000,000 in this superior type of motor car. And when you have seen the Chrysler Six we venture to say that you will be equally eager to become a Chrysler owner.

The Chrysler Six Phaeton is now being shown in our Showroom in the OKE BUILDING, Prescott and Duckworth Streets. Call and see this wonderful car.
