Kite to Carry A Man. $5,000,000. New York, Jan. 1 .- A despatch to New York, Jan. 1.—A despatch to the Herald from Washington quotes Prof. Bell as saying of his experiments toward a flying machine: "I am not ready to tell what I have discovered. Mr. Alexander said that he was not at liberty to say anything of the conference. "There is no question in my mind." he added, "that Mr. Bell's experiments will prove of benefit to the scientific world. Dr. Bell's kite is of a serviceable form that is perfectly competent for carrying out that for which it is intended."

L. Rotch, of the Blue Hill Observatory, near Boston, said: "My opining regarding the solution of aerial navigation is practically the same as that of Dr. Bell and Professor Langley. Some form of aeroplane and not a machine supported by a gas bag, is the idea. It seems to me that what Dr. Bell is doing is going to solve the problem. I have demonstrated that kites can be flown from steamships in calm weather, using the former motion of the vessel to create artificial wind and raise the kites to a height that would obtain in favorable natural wind. In this way I obtained metacorological observations on a voyage across the Atlantic in August, 1591, My hope now is to secure a vessel with which to cruise in the tropical ocean and by means of kites ascertain the circulation of air above the trade with which to cruise in the tropical ocean and by means of kites ascertain the circulation of air above the trade with

During the year the town's splendid water system has been extended to Carleton's Corner for the benefit of the residents on the south side of the river, who are thus jurnished with an available supply for domestic purposes and a protection against fire. Some difficulty was at first experienced in making the connection, the first attempt by carrying the pipe across the river bed being frustrated by the heavy pressure of the current which damaged the pipe. At the suggestion of Councillor Marsh the pipe was carried along the side of the bridge, encased and packed to prevent freezing, and since the recent cold snap failed to damage it, the arrangement may be considered successful.

The beginning of the operations on the M. & V. B. Railway took place in July. Though progress has not been very rapid it is expected a large force will be put on to push forward its completion next year, when Bridgetown will have the benefit of two railroads. These improvements have cost the town something. The railway damages will foot up perhaps $8000. The cost of extending the water system was $3000 and the school house will probably cost $10,000. Miss E. Fraser Tupper is friends at Weymouth.

Mrs. Graves had been in poor health for a long time but her sufferings were always bravely borne with great cheerfulness. She was a kind neighbor and devoted wife and mother. Her maiden name was Harriet Bishop and her early married life was spent at Paradise and Port Lorne, from which place they moved about 30 years ago to Granville. The children who survive are Mrs. Geo. Gaskill, of Hampton, and three sons, Joseph H. and David, of Boston, and Minard, of Granville, at whose home she spent her last days. The interment took place in the Chesley burial ground, Rev. E. E. Daley officiating.

When the Crops Are In.

(By Frank H. Sweet.)
There's a kind of happy feelin' down in a feller when is up there somewhere still.

What a purty sight the wheat is as it's piled up in the bin?
Oh, it's good to be a farmer when the crops are in!

It's lively in the city and it's very quiet here;
There the hurry and the racket keep agoin' all the year;
There most every day's excitin', and they keep it up at night,
Every way a person gazes there is some uncommon sight.
And I s'pose it's never lonesome livin round the haunts of sin;
But the city people never have their crops all in.

There's many a day of toilin', and there's lots and lots of frettin.
And there's lots and lots of frettin, at the dryness or the rain,
There's the weeds and worms and insects that the farmer has to fight,
But the good Lord doesn't fail to pull 'em through all right;
And the sweetest satisfaction that a mortal man can win
Sort of hovers round the farmer when the crops are in.

"We may build a dry, sunny, warm hen house, feed well-balanced rations, and be kind, faithful masters, yet defeat ourselves in poultry culture by allowing everything to pour through the fowls into nasty parasites around and on them.

"Letters from a Self-made Merchant to his Son," by George Horace Loringer, (Briggs), is a book that has had an early popularity in the United States. Its sound common sense is expressed with a good deal of acuteness in the dry. American colloquial. The young man's expenses at college, his social ambitions, his mistakes as a clerk and his choice of a wife are successively commented on in a kindly lowing everything to pour through the fowls into nasty parasites around and on them.

Besides some minor pests there are two great classes of poultry parasites, lice and mites. The latter have no thorax, only a proboscis, head and abdomen. They belong to the arachnidae or spider kind, and are nearly all blood suckers. Some of the lice, all blood suckers, but most of them are blood suckers, but most of the minor principles of business man ought to keep more entirely to himself than his dislikes, untirely to himself than but preventive and remedial measures do not differ so much.

While some lice breed in filth, others lay nits or eggs upon the birds. If possible the manure should daily be removed, and the perches scraped. This not only takes away breeding places for certain parasites, but gives fowls a better air and gets the fertilizer on the land or in a compost before its valuable ammonia has escaped, in the last particular fully realizing what Lord Palmerston said of dirt as only matter in the wrong place.

A little sulphur or lime, not enough to cause sore eyes, I frequently add. If fowls are very infested, I have found I can clean 25 birds in 15 minutes, by a puff box or little bellows of Persian insect powder. I do not get personally acquainted with each individual parasite, but apply my powder to top of head, under beak, wings and vent. This is done in the evening when fowls are drowsy, or when I set a hen, and several times during her incubating. Sifted coa ashes wilk answer well. The Persian insect powder is volatile, and should be kept tightly covered when not used, and is of no use in nest-boxes, unless mixed and held with oil. Amid the Singing Pines Away from Frost and Cold.

Just now a number of our readers are planing where they will go for the winter and no doubt the majority of them will do as they have done in the past, buy round-trip excursion tickets, good for six months, to Southern Pines, N. C., and those who want to make side trips of a few weeks to cattle, causing great annoyance, but do not lay nits on them; while mites are cosmopolitan. They will bite all alike, even unto thy man-servant and thy maid-servant.

They do not bite the skin but punctive first the points they desire to visit at the most favorable rates and thus save unnecessary expenses. Southern (By Frank H. Sweet.)

THOUGHTS FOR THE NEW YEAR.

(A sermon by Rev. George Hepworth.) My Father worketh hitherto, and I work.—St. John, v., 17.

I was looking over some plans with an architect the other day. He was so eccentric in some of his ideas that many people thought him mildly insane, but I discovered that he was simply religious. simply religious.

"I am just as truly bound to be hon-est in building a house," he said, "as you are to be sincere in your prayers. If I can show when the time of reck-oning comes that I have put my soul into my work I have no doubt about the welfare of that soul. I must look to my foundation to see that it has sustaining power, to my roof that it will not leak, to the arrangement of rooms and closets, to make everyrooms and closets, to make every-thing convenient and comfortable rather than inconvenient and irritatrather than inconvenient and irritating, and I must do all this in the name of humanity and God."

He struck the bedrock truth of the religious life. If I could extend the principle which governed my architect to every department of activity and industry I should convert the world to the theory of the New Testament, change its complexion and make it. change its complexion and make it a far better place to live in than it right the rest of the covers.

In making a bed for an invalid two things must be observed; the patient must be moved as little as possible, and must be uncovered not at all. It will be necessary therefore, before the patient is disturbed, to have everything in readiness, the fresh pillow and extra cover at hand, so that the whole process may be completed as quickly as possible. Beft, rapid, noiseless treatment is absolutely essential in treating the ill, and most especially is this the case in changing the red.
