THE WEEK'S WAR NEWS

Russian Troops Well Within Hungarian Territory

PETROGRAD, April 12.—Russian troops are now twenty miles within Hungarian territory, and have reached the Valley of the Ung River, South of Uzok Pass according to advices received here from the Carpathian front today.

It is asserted at the War Office that this rapid advance of the invading troops will render the positions of Austro-German forces at Uzok Pass untenable. The general Russian advance into Hungary through the Passes and over the Carpathian crests will be made over the front of 125 miles. Great masses of troops are being carried to this front, over the Galician railways.

GREAT ANXIETY FELT AT THE FRONT

LONDON, April 12.—“It is a significant fact that although a month has passed since the action of Neuve Chapelle, the enemy has made no attempt to retaliate in any quarter, but has remained inactive, while we have established ourselves securely on the ground won,” is a declaration made by the “Eye-Witness” attached to British Army Headquarters on the Continent in a communication, dated April 9.

“Looking back over the past four months, it is instructive to note the gradual weakening of the German resistance on our front. Formerly any offensive action on our part was met with an immediate counter-stroke. This is the first occasion on which the enemy has made no reply at all. This does not mean, of course, that their resistance is collapsing, but the Germans have none the less admitted that with the troops at their disposal at this front they are unable to avenge their defeat.

“Some light has been thrown on the conditions prevailing in the area behind the German lines which served to confirm the impression that the general situation is creating great anxiety.”

Referring to the condition bordering on panic which prevailed at Lille during the fighting at Neuve Chapelle, this writer goes on to say:

“Both officers and men have openly expressed their uneasiness. Apparently a marked change began to occur in the general demeanor of the German troops soon after Christmas. Till then they had been absolutely confident. But latterly this feeling has been steadily decreasing. German soldiers have told French civilians they recognize they would be overpowered by the masses of men Great Britain was going to place in the field and they tried to persuade them that the British were equally bent on ruining France and that they would grab everything for themselves.”

In conclusion the “Eye-Witness” mentions the fact that the German war levy at Lille, Roubaix and Tourcoing during March amounted to $1,000,000.

WAR BRIEFS

The Assembly of the Union of South Africa has passed a resolution by unanimous vote, removing the death penalty from all engaged in the recent rebellion.

A high authority says that the world has not enough machinery to manufacture war material as fast as it is being used during the first one hundred days of the war.

The opening of the Dardanelles will give egress to great stores of grain in Russia, but there will still be a shortage, unless Canada largely increases production and justifies her name as “The Granary of the Empire.”

The idea that an International tribunal of some sort will be established after the war, to guard weak nations and to judge between the right and the wrong in national disputes, is being advocated in many quarters.

Werner Horn, who did the damage at the Vaneboro bridge, will be tried in Boston on the charge of the illegal transportation of explosives from one State to another.

Poland has had 95 towns, 4,500 villages burnt or destroyed by the German invasion, and property losses are estimated at five hundred millions of dollars.

Up to March 22nd, 375 Canadians in France were killed wounded or missing.

A telephone connection between the Italian Foreign Office and the Quirinal was tapped by a German spy.

In Cologne the bread shops are literally besieged day by day, and the supply is soon exhausted.

The almost incredible story is told by survivors of the Falaba, that while people were struggling in the water, the crew of the submarine laughed at them.

Paris authorities found in the studio of a German sculptor, 30 busts of the Kaiser, probably intended to be placed on public monuments instead of the busts of Frenchmen, if the Kaiser reached Paris.

The Cunard line of steamers has benefited by the war. The Company has paid a ten per cent bonus, as well as a ten per cent dividend.

Lord Kitchener orders no alcoholic drink for his household, following the suggestion of the King.

That unpronounceable name, Przemysl, has been changed by order of the Czar to Permishl, to be pronounced Permishl. Seventeen Belgians, most of them young peasants were shot on March 25th, by the Germans for acting as spies in the interest of the Allies.

A French woman was shot on March 24th, for acting as a spy for the Germans, who gave her forty dollars as pay. Sir John French says the length of the war will depend upon the supply of ammunition. The more ammunition the shorter the war.

Bulgaria is reported to be seizing shipments of German artillery and ammunition in passage to Constantinople.

Newfoundland has given 1000 soldiers and 1000 sailors to the war.

Running the Blockade with the S.S. "Lusitania"

Passengers had no sooner got aboard the Lusitania on Feb. 27th than they learned from one after another that Captain Dow would no more use the American flag for protection, but would defy the German submarine blockade and run through under the protection of the Union Jack.

Not a murmur was heard against that decision, but one was boasted he would rather go down, if he had to go down, under a British flag and on a British bottom than any other. There was confidence expressed by the most serious in the ability of the commander to carry the magnificent vessel through safely once again. And the confidence was not misplaced. It did not add to the comfort of the timid ones to learn that there were in the hold several million rounds of small arms ammunition and thousands of shrapnel shells, destined for the use of the Allies in Europe.

It must have been exceedingly galling to the German owners of the Vaterland and other huge liners which were rusting in the docks at Hoboken to see the Lusitania loose from her moorings and steam out past the monument of Liberty. The Vaterland flew a large German flag. It was said she always flies that flag on such occasions in mute, helpless defiance.

Outside Sandy Hook British patrols, vigilant as ever, were cruising. As we got well on our way eastward they faded away to the south. Life on the liner settled down to normal, and passengers soon forgot that there was an element of danger and certain risks on this particular voyage.

One is struck with the wondrous magnificence of the Lusitania. She is the fastest liner in the world, possessing the record of 4 days, 11 hours, 42 minutes from Liverpool to New York in 1909. Her length is 750 feet. She has four screws, driven by turbine engines of 68,000 horse-power. Owing to that element of risk it was not possible to secure the full complement of stokers; consequently several of her boilers were idle.

In Canada one is led to believe that almost all commerce is scared from the sea. That is a delusion. There was not a day in which we did not see two or three vessels, and there is no guessing how many we passed by night. One event brought home to all the seriousness of the times—the divine service in the grand saloon on Sunday morning. Perhaps never before had crew and passengers met with such serious intent. Perhaps never before had Captain Dow read the orthodox prayers for divine protection from belligerent enemies with such earnestness as on that occasion. It was memorable indeed. An awe fitting to the occasion settled upon all, and the responses though formal, were equally fervent with the prayers.

The week passed quickly without incident. The weather was kind. The Atlantic was on her best behavior. The average per day was about 500 miles. We had sunshine and calm seas. As we drew nearer the danger zone of the Irish Sea some anxiety among crew and passengers became manifest. On Friday morning we sighted the coast of Ireland, and nervous ones were busy looking over the ocean for any sign of the dreaded submarine. The Lusitania was now put on her top speed and excitement became general throughout the ship. We did not expect to see many vessels of any description in such dangerous waters; but in two, three, and sometimes four vessels were seen at one time. At about one time three fishing vessels passed within hailing distance. Evidently Britishers were not so terrified at the threatened blockade as Germany would have liked them to be.

Towards night, as we approached the Narrows, extra precautions were taken. For with all our confidence in the British flag for protection, and with all our superior speed, one never knew when Father Neptune might cast up a modern terror within easy reach of us. Orders were accordingly issued for all lights to be extinguished. Only a few lamps in secluded places were allowed. The state-room windows were darkened, and passengers on deck grouped about nervously. Other vessels which we passed were not as cautious, however, for we saw several carrying bright lights, as though inviting the enemy's assaults.

When we were at length through the channel and entered the Mersey, naval watch-dogs gave signals from point to point, enabling our pilot to keep clear of mines. While there were constant reminders of possible lurking dangers for us there were also constant evidences of greater dangers in store for any belligerent craft venturing in those waters. Perhaps that is why Germany's blockade has entirely failed.

Monitor Belgian Relief Fund.

Let us continue to be generous. Our help is still needed. Belgium remains a bloody battlefield. Where now the farmer should be preparing to sow his seed, and plant his crops, the bomb and cannon ball and shell are cutting their deep furrows. The flooding of the productive and fertile lowlands, especially in Yser district, which was carried out as a military necessity, has been one of the great sacrifices of the heroic Belgians, and the land thus flooded will be waste and useless for a good many years.

Canada is urging a record crop this year. In spite of the war and its burdens, this will be a year of prosperity, especially for the farmers. The farmers of this Valley are probably already preparing to put in large crops, and share in the general prosperity. You want to remember as you plough and sow, that over in those war stricken lands beyond the sea, the farmer there still carries on his operations, with shot and cannon ball whistling overhead, and bomb and shell bursting around him.

It's worth something to you, isn't it, to be able to plough your fields, and sow your seed under different conditions, and in the security which you enjoy. How much is it worth? Think it over and express your gratitude in a good substantial contribution to the Belgian Relief Fund, to help the suffering Belgians

METHODIST NOTES

After attending quarterly meeting of Annapolis District at Lawrencetown, Rev. J. K. Curtis, B.A., E.L. & S.S. Field Sec., visited a number of the Circuits, delivering addresses, exhibiting lantern views and materially aiding S. S. and Young People's work. At Port Wadon on the Granville Ferry Circuit, March 9th, an Institute was held comprising two sessions. The afternoon session was well-attended and eminently helpful. In the evening every seat was occupied and a few men stood for over two hours; Rev. T. F. McWilliam, (Baptist) rendered efficient service and his people co-operated heartily.

The next night at Digby, Mr. Curtis set forth the underlying principles of the Canadian Standard Efficiency Test for lads between 13 and 20 years of age. The aim is to mould and direct the physical, intellectual social and spiritual phases of boy life. A little later Miss A. Sanford who has spent some years as W. M. S. missionary amongst the Ruthenians in Alberta, accompanied by the District Organizer, Miss M. S. Jost, toured the District. Her addresses were interesting, instructive and encouraging and were greatly enjoyed.

On the Granville Ferry Circuit the Pastor has accepted an unanimous invitation to return for a second year. At Parker's Cove a social was held which netted over $10.00 for Circuit funds. At Granville Ferry a clam supper produced over $30.00 which will insure against fire the church and parsonage.

Rev. H. E. Thomas, of Carlton Circuit, St. John N. B. and E. E. Graham, of Acadia Circuit, N. S., have been appointed Chaplains of the 55th and 25th battalions, respectively. Mr. Thomas is an ex-president of his Conference. Mr. Graham was born at Centreville, Digby Co., and saw active service in the Boer war.

Seven divinity students of Wesley College Montreal are gone to the front with No. 6 Ambulance Corps. Their homes are in British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Quebec, where Mr. Norman, halls from Newfoundland.

Up to March 27th the Belgian Relief Fund of the Methodist Church amounted to $17,150.12.

New Maritime Industry

In a period when industries seem to be slowing down, it is interesting to note that the Atlantic Sugar Refinery, whose plant is located at St. John N. B., have just commenced the manufacture of sugar. This plant, which has been two years in construction, has a daily output of one million pounds, or a yearly output of three hundred million pounds. The plant is located on the water front at St. John and is so situated as to receive the raw material by steamer and transport the finished product either by rail or boat to all parts of the country. The plant itself, which required three thousand tons of steel and seventeen thousand tons of concrete, is the latest and most up-to-date plant in the country, while the machinery installed is also of the most modern design. Some of the machines having been constructed especially for this refinery. In addition, the workmen, the chemists and all others associated with the manufacturing have been carefully selected. A special study of the requirements of the consuming public has been made with the result that the Atlantic Sugar Refineries start out on their career fully equipped to supply the requirements of the public. They have branded their goods "Lantic" Sugar, which will doubtless soon become a household word, especially throughout the Maritime Provinces.

And it was further resolved that interest at the rate of five per cent per annum shall be paid on all rates and taxes or balances thereof due from any person, firm, company, Association or Corporation and shall be collected as charges in the same manner as rates and taxes are collected and chargeable under the provision of the "Town's Incorporation Act" and amendments thereto and as though the interest was a part of the said taxes.

The matter of the support of Norman Nelly and Jennie Chute, who are at present inmates of the Nova Scotia hospital was again brought before the council at the request of N. E. Chute and Mrs. N. R. Nelly.

Resolved that under the circumstances the town assume the responsibility for the support and maintenance of the said Jennie Chute and Norman R. Nelly as long as they remain inmates of the said hospital.

It was further resolved that the said Alma G. Nelly wife of the said Norman R. Nelly and Norman E. Chute be Among the passengers landed in Halifax last week were a number of Holland farmers who came to Nova Scotia to settle as a result of Mr. Elderkirk's missionary work in Holland. The party consisted of three families and four bachelors, numbering in all 28 people, and they are to go on farms at Pugwash and Matland secured for them by the N. S. government.

TOWN COUNCIL

An emergency meeting of the Town Council, of the Town of Bridgetown was called by His Worship the Mayor and held pursuant to written notice given each member of the Council by the Clerk on Monday evening the 12th day of April, A. D. 1915 at 7.30 o'clock, in the Council Chamber for the purpose of considering the plans and estimates of the proposed sewer extension on Granville Street east as prepared by The Doane Engineering Company of Halifax, and to take some action thereon.

This Worship the Mayor was in the chair and Councillors present as follows:—E. C. Hall; Chas. R. Chipman; A. L. Beeler, J. W. Peters, A. T. Chute and J. Harry Hicks.

After carefully looking over plans and estimates and considering the estimates of cost of the proposed sewer extension it was found that the estimate of cost previously given by local parties and upon which the sum of $3000.00 had been voted by the rate-payers to construct the sewer to Pratt's hill, as then contemplated, was about $1000.00 short and that in order to complete this system an additional sum would have to be borrowed.

It was thought advisable by the Council to extend the system while they were at it as far east as Pratt's hill (so called) according to the plan and estimates submitted. If authorized by the rate-payers to do so at a further cost of $2000.00 which would mean an expenditure of $5000.00 for the whole extension.

After some further discussion the following resolution was passed:

Moved by Councillor Peters and seconded by Councillor Chipman, that a public meeting of the rate-payers of the Town of Bridgetown be called under section 143 of the Town's Incorporation Act and amendments thereto for Monday evening the 26th day of April instant, at 7.30 o'clock, in the Council Chamber to vote upon the question of a proposed expenditure of a sum not to exceed the sum of two thousand dollars, in addition to the sum of three thousand dollars previously voted for the purpose of building an extension of Granville Street east from Pratt's hill (so-called), to connect with the main outlet on Revere Street.

Minutes read and approved and Council adjourned.

The regular monthly meeting of the Town Council of the town of Bridgetown was called by His Worship the Mayor and held pursuant to written notice given to each member of the Council by the Clerk at least twenty-four hours before such meeting, in the Council Chamber on Wednesday evening the 7th day of April, A. D. 1915 at 7.30 o'clock, with Mayor Longmire in the chair and councillors present as follows:—

Chas. R. Chipman, E. C. Hall, J. W. Peters and J. Harry Hicks.

Ordered that the following bills be paid:—Crowe and Munde, Sundries $0.80, E. L. Fisher coal to Harvey Hearn on Poor acct. $3.20.

The rate book of the Town of Bridgetown for the year 1915 as approved and corrected by the Finance Committee of the Council, who were appointed at a meeting held on 24th day of March, 1915, to revise and correct the same, was laid before the Council by the Clerk, and it was thereupon resolved that the 1st day of June next be and the same is hereby fixed by this Council as the day on or before which the rates rated and set down in said rate book in respect of property and income should be payable.

And it was further resolved that any person, firm, company, association or corporation paying to the town treasurer the amount of his, her or its taxes on or before such date shall be entitled to a reduction of five per cent therefrom.

And it was further resolved that interest at the rate of five per cent per annum shall be paid on all rates and taxes or balances thereof due from any person, firm, company, Association or Corporation and shall be collected as charges in the same manner as rates and taxes are collected and chargeable under the provision of the "Town's Incorporation Act" and amendments thereto and as though the interest was a part of the said taxes.

The matter of the support of Norman Nelly and Jennie Chute, who are at present inmates of the Nova Scotia hospital was again brought before the council at the request of N. E. Chute and Mrs. N. R. Nelly.

Resolved that under the circumstances the town assume the responsibility for the support and maintenance of the said Jennie Chute and Norman R. Nelly as long as they remain inmates of the said hospital.

It was further resolved that the said Alma G. Nelly wife of the said Norman R. Nelly and Norman E. Chute be

HYMENEAL

LAKE-FELLOWS

Providence Methodist Church was the scene of a pretty wedding this morning when Miss Annie Keziah, elder daughter of Mrs. Edgar P. Fellows, of Granville became the wife of Mr. George Murray Lake, of Newcastle. The church was artistically decorated for the occasion with green and white interspersed with dainty pink daisies. The bride was becomingly attired in a travelling suit of Belgian blue with hat to match, and was given away by her uncle Mr. Fletcher Parker of Belleisle.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. R. Reynolds, pastor of the Church assisted by Rev. C. Jost, D. D. Mrs. A. R. Bishop presided at the organ, and the ushers were Messrs Ross Bishop and Laurie Palfrey.

After the ceremony the bride and groom were driven to the station in Mr. O. P. Covert's gaily decorated auto for a short trip to St. John, after which they will make their home in Newcastle, N. B.

The groom who is a nephew of Mr. I. B. Freeman of this town was formerly engaged in business here.

Mr. Robert Irwin of Shelburne, introduced a Bill providing for the taking of a vote in Halifax at the time of the next general elections in the Province, whether the city will be "wet" or "dry." This Bill asks for a vote on the direct fact, whether or not it will be prohibition for the city and does not seek a plebiscite later.

The soup kitchen in Brussels is now the largest in the world. Nearly 50,000 people entirely destitute wait in the "bread lines" every day, and over 6,000 gallons of soup and 4,000 kilograms of bread are daily distributed to them.

More than 100 peoples are engaged in this work. Among them are former chefs of some of the leading hotels of Brussels, who give directions as to the kind and quality of the soup its ingredients and their proportions.

County Asylums

The following are a few extracts from the public charities report, for 1914.

It is perhaps not to be expected that the county asylums should equal in equipment and efficiency the provincial institution, but some of the counties possess asylums which are very comfortably appointed and which give evidence of careful and efficient administration.

"I feel that those in charge of our County Asylums are generally to be commended for the work which they are doing; work which, considering the handicap, is being done well, though under many difficulties, at much sacrifice, and for little remuneration.

"The Annapolis County Hospital is of brick, and possesses many admirable features. In my visits to this institution, I have found it comfortable, well kept, clean, and tidy. The patients look well nourished and seem contented.

"A very comfortable and nicely appointed recreation hall, in a separate building, constitutes an attractive feature of this institution. This was constructed by the superintendent, with financial assistance from private individuals.

Great Cities of the World

"THE HAGUE"

Ever since the present war began the newspapers have had frequent references to "The Hague" especially in dealing with points of international law. The Germans have more than once been charged with violating "the Hague Convention." What does it all mean?

The Hague is the capital of Holland, and has been selected as the meeting-place for the various governments of the world to consider questions of mutual interest and to decide upon the principles and laws which shall be generally recognized especially in time of war. Here Mr. Carnegie has erected a noble building, the Peace Palace, at a cost of a million and a half, which it was hoped would be the scene of friendly arbitrations between the great powers with a view to forever ending armed conflict. Unhappily this expectation has not been realized for the gates of the palace are now closed and the building is guarded by the soldiers of Holland. The reason for choosing the Hague as an international meeting-place was the fact that Holland is such a small country that it was not likely to become involved in international troubles, because it is not strong enough to compete with its neighbors.

The name of "Hague" does not appear on all maps of Holland, for to the Dutch their capital is known as "S Gravenhage," which means "The Count's Enclosure." Long before there was any city here one of the Counts of Holland built a hunting lodge on the bank of the lake and put a hedge around it to keep out the wild beasts. About 1250 Count William II. tore down the lodge and built a palace on its site and this was afterwards enlarged and rebuilt until it grew into the present pile of buildings known as the Binnenhof. Maurice of Nassau, son of William the Silent, chose this as his residence, so that it became the capital of the country and grew into a large and elegant city, but it has always kept the name taken from that first little hunting lodge, "The Count's Enclosure." Instead of using the full name Gravenhage, it is generally referred to as The Hague.

The Hague is a most charming and beautiful city, with broad straight streets, lined with trees, handsome shops, fine parks ornamented with lakes, the whole place having more of a French appearance than Dutch, with an air of wealth, ease and comfort everywhere.

As everybody knows, the Dutch people are noted for their cleanliness, and many evidences of this are to be seen at The Hague. There are miles upon miles of new streets, which look as if they had been freshly scrubbed in the same thorough way as the Dutch housewife scrubs her floors. Even the walls and roofs of the houses have the same look. Saturday is always a great cleaning day, because it will not be possible to clean things again until Monday; and Monday is also a great cleaning day, because, of course, nothing has been cleaned since Saturday. Water is splashed over the house fronts and dashed over the pavements. Water is everywhere trickling down the house fronts, running out of the doors, rushing over the sidewalks.

Wooden shoes are used by the people quite generally. They are never worn in the house; even leather ones send a thrill of horror to the heart of the cleanly housewife. Wooden shoes are slipped off just outside the door with a movement incredibly quick, and the family goes about indoors in its stocking feet, which must be trying in winter, for the floor is usually of tile. Cloth slippers are, however, worn by many of the better class. One can always tell how many people are inside a house by the number of shoes before the door. It looks very quaint to see these big and little shoes standing there all pointed toward the door just as they were stepped out of. This is always the back door, and not the front door. The latter is open only for marriages and funerals and such important ceremonies. The family makes its exit and entries at the back door, and callers always knock there.

It does not take long to go from one part of Holland to another. The Hague can be reached in about an hour from either Rotterdam or Amsterdam. For that reason a large percentage of the population caters to the whims and fancies as well as to the wants of tourists. They are courteous and obliging and aim to make the visitors' stay one of pleasure and profit. It would seem to the tourists that a large percentage of the people of Holland are self-constituted guides for it is almost impossible for one to stand a moment in any public place without some one addressing him in English and offering to take him to a place of interest. They scarcely ever fail to distinguish between an American and an Englishman. It is very easy indeed for a stranger to get about in The Hague, or in any other Dutch city for that matter as the majority of the people have at least a slight knowledge of English.

Holland is a most delightful little country to visit the scenery is so unlike that of any other country, the travelling so comfortable, the houses, roads, canals customs so strikingly different but always full of charms. And of course, the historic associations are wonderfully interesting. If young people want a book which will hold their attention let them read Motley's "Rise of the Dutch Republic." They will be thrilled with the heroism of this noble people, who fought against most overwhelming odds and defied the powers of Imperial Spain with its horrible Inquisition. No wonder the statue of William the Silent adorns the squares of so many of the cities to-day.

Some one has remarked that the Dutchman has three enemies, his lakes, his rivers and the ocean. The lakes have been drained, the rivers imprisoned and the ocean driven back. The whole country is a fortress, surrounded by fortifications in the shape of dykes, manned by an army of engineers, waging a ceaseless war against an enemy that never sleeps. The first thing that strikes one in travelling through Holland is the canals that intersect the country in every direction. They are wide and picturesque and serve a three-fold purpose, for traffic, for drains, for fences and hedges. Every road and every canal is bordered by an avenue of trees. If the trees are along the canal their roots serve to strengthen the banks; if along the road, they offer a most grateful shade during the heat of summer, and, of course, add not a little to the picturesque of the country.

In every direction windmills are seen and are kept swinging their great arms pumping up the water. "The landscape teems with life. The pastures are dotted with black and white cows and snowy sheep, the ditches are alive with ducks and swans, along the roads the queer little carts of the peddlers are always passing, drawn by dogs, or perhaps it is a milk cart, its cans pushed by a white-capped girl. The rivers and larger canals are full of boats—boats of every kind and size and shape, boats with red sails, or propelled by steam, or drawn by a man and a dog. There is perhaps, no other country in Europe which, in the life of its fields, and roads and rivers, offers so much of interest."

Foreign travellers in Holland are greatly impressed by the care which everyone takes to make sure that they are going the right way. On English and Canadian railways the traveller is left to look after himself to a surprising extent but in Holland all is changed. At every stop a guard appears and looks at your ticket and punches it. As soon as he finds you are a stranger in the country he takes care to inform you that this is not your station and you are to keep your seat. If you attempt to alight you are pushed back into the carriage gently and firmly. Every employee of the company seems to know your destination and to be determined to see that you reach it safely.

The royal palace at The Hague, in which Queen Wilhelmina resides, is not a very imposing building. It is a place that gives the impression of having been built for comfort rather than for ostentation. What appears like great marble columns are only plaster very cleverly painted. In some of the other decorations there is likewise more pretentious grandeur than real grandeur. In the centre of the old town is a group of new buildings, called the Binnenhof, to which reference has already been made. One enters the court through a vaulted gateway and is at once on the scene of some of the greatest tragedies of Dutch history. Here the stadholders live in the palaces which were built around the open court, and tried to break up the many plots which were formed for their extermination. Here also lived many counts and other nobles. Life was rather uncertain with many of these during the Middle Ages and later, as plots and intrigues were constantly going on. There is not a building surrounding this square which could not tell the tale of a tragedy if it could speak. It has today a most mediæval appearance.

The Hague is the home of art. Many of the works of the best European painters will be found in the galleries of this city—masterpieces of Rubens, Van Dyke, Rembrandt, Jan Steen, as well as those of other nationalities, are here in great numbers. It is, of course, an education to see these famous pictures.

Audacious Wounded Gunner Under the Mistletoe

Amusing little stories of the cheerfulness of the wounded in France are related by Mme Alice O'Brien, the operatic singer of Convent Garden and the Opera Comique, Paris, who is serving as a French Red Cross nurse in a hospital in Paris, in the following letter to her sister in the south of England:

"The other day I sang for about 100 English. At my departure they gave me three cheers, and by chance I stopped to thank them and say 'Good-night' just underneath a bunch of mistletoe. Near me was a huge artilleryman and not far off a Yorkshire lad, who said to the other: 'Why don't you kiss her, mon—she's under the mistletoe?'"

"The R. A. promptly did, much to my confusion and the joy of the British hundred. After this I departed quickly for fear the 99 might follow suit! It was at this concert that a boy with one arm amputated and with one arm paralysed, asked me to hold his healthy arm while he sang 'Your King and Country Want You.' It was splendid and pathetic at the same time.

I also sang at one of the biggest French hospitals. As I was going off a great Tirailleur Senegalais, as black as one's shoe, solemnly presented me with two flowers, afterwards declaring that he wouldn't mind buying me for his wife and even paying as much as 250 fr. £10 for that luxury!"

The value of codfish caught in Newfoundland waters last season was $7,897,000.

How to Care for Your Complexion

There is no truer saying than that "beauty is only skin deep." Good features lose their charm under a sallow or blotchy skin and poor features are glorified by a beautiful complexion. A very useful toilet booklet entitled "Your Complexion" has just been issued by Nyal's and contains many helpful hints and beauty hints, including proper methods of massage. It can be had for the asking at the Nyal Agency Drug Store and you should call or telephone for it. Among other things it points out that diet, sleep, ventilation, and a thousand other things we cannot escape are continually warring against our complexions. Get a 25c or 50c jar of Nyal's Face Cream and convince yourself of its cleansing and refreshing and beautifying qualities. It is greaseless, oxygenated and quickly absorbed by the skin, leaves no shine, and gives a pleasant, smooth, cool sensation, quickly removing the irritation produced by wind and weather.

All Nyal's preparations are justly famous and none more so than Nyal's Face Cream which we unhesitatingly recommend. Call or telephone us for your copy of this book which contains most valuable information.

Report Medical Health Officer of the Town of Bridgetown

To the Mayor and Town Council: Bridgetown N. S.

Gentlemen:—In presenting you my report for the past year I am very glad to be able to say that we have been very free of contagious diseases the past year. Outside of two cases of mild Diphtheria there has been nothing in this class of diseases. We have also been free of typhoid.

On the whole I think we have been as clear of what is commonly described as preventable diseases as any community of an equal size could expect.

The sanitary condition during the past year has received considerable attention and open drains that remained until this year have been covered. While these were not in places where they were near residences or on the streets yet it is well that they have been closed and even possible menaces of this character corrected.

The matter of improved sewerage accommodation of a sanitary type for the eastern section of Granville street has been a long felt want by property holders and residents in that part of the town, and as you are aware the rate payers have voted authority to your Honorable body to do this necessary work and no doubt it will be completed as soon as possible.

The dairies from which our milk supply is received are in a good sanitary condition and I believe that every attention is paid to giving our citizens a wholesome and clean milk and cream. The same can be said of our butcher shops and slaughter houses.

During the past several complaints have been made regarding manure piles and pig pens near the street, and that they have not only been offensive to the sense of smell, but also have been brooding generators for millions of flies is but common knowledge. With little trouble and care on behalf of the part of the owners of these places they could be made much more wholesome and any danger from them or even unpleasantness avoided, and I believe that we should see to it that these places are kept in subjection by throwing fresh dirt over them or by frequent removals of the contents to greater distance from the street.

The important place of the common house fly is the carrying of infection from the muck and dirt of the barnyard anywhere is now fully recognized. He passes from the pig sty to the dining room without wiping his feet, and from the expectorations of the careless tubercular patient to our food as if nothing had happened, while in reality he has placed on our bread and butter thousands of germs of this or other communicable diseases that may find a proper soil for their growth and development and cause very serious trouble. I believe a campaign of education along this line would be of benefit to our town and as there are many posters supplied by health authorities today, setting forth these facts we could possibly not do better than incur the very small expense necessary to get a supply.

I believe it would also be well for our Board of Health to appoint a general clean up day for the town, when all rubbish and waste should be removed and closets and yards cleaned and made sanitary and that a general brightening of premises be made with whitewash or paint.

In this way our town could be much improved and I believe a united effort in this respect would well repay the trouble taken.

In this move I would include the whitewashing of the buildings along our whole water front which is the side of the town that is most exposed to public view and while this is not necessary to the sanitary cleanliness of other parts, it will say to all comers and goers that as we are on the outside, so we are on the inside. While at present if visitors were to judge us by what they can see from the railroad as they go by in the trains they would think we were much in need of paint. However this last suggestion is hardly within the bounds of my office, but it is suggested in this connection in hopes that it may meet with the approval of this council in the interest of a better and prettier town that even which we are all interested in having and in which we all take a deep and abiding interest.

Faithfully and humbly submitted,
M. E. ARMSTRONG
Medical Health Officer

The Weekly Monitor ESTABLISHED 1873 -AND- WESTERN ANnapolis SENTINEL Published Every Wednesday BRIDGETOWN, ANnapolis CO

Address all matters of business and make all money orders payable to The Monitor Publishing Co., Ltd. PROPRIETORS AND PUBLISHERS.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 14, 1915

The Monitor celebrates this week its forty-third anniversary by the installation of a new Mergenthaler Linotype. For some time past we have been suffering occasionally from what Mrs Gammage called "the contrariness of matter." Things would go wrong to the inconvenience of our readers, and advertisers, and to the great annoyance of our entire staff. But, now with our new instrument, a marvel of mechanical ingenuity, we hope to be up to the dot with our weekly issue and other work of the office. We will be glad to have our patrons come in and look upon us, and we hope to merit a continuance of the patronage which has been extended to us in the days now gone by.

Reports have reached this side of the Atlantic that army contractors in Hungary have laid themselves open to charges very similar to those which are urged against Canadian contractors. They have supplied boots to the army which have "simply melted away," some of them having had paper soles, which stood ten days in dry weather and two days in wet weather. It was also discovered that contractors have bribed inspectors to permit inferior food supplies to be served to the army. The discovery resulted in the arrest and imprisonment of these defrauders, some of them being men of wealth and influence, who drove up to the police station in private cars. Influential Hungarian papers are demanding that these guilty men be hanged. We have not heard, nor do we wish to hear that this extreme penalty is recommended for guilty Canadians. But, there should surely be some penalty attached to such daring and unpatriotic conduct. There is no doubt that a measure of the sickness which shortened the lives of Canadians on Salisbury Plains was occasioned by this dishonesty. While thousands of Canadians have with much self denial been endeavoring to mitigate the poverty and sorrow occasioned by this war, these men have been selfishly and unrighteously aggravating the misery with a view to the filling of their own purses. It is a pleasure to observe the leading Canadian newspapers, irrespective of party, have been exposing the rascality and the punishment of the criminals. Parliament will not fulfill its duty unless this scandal is fully investigated and an example made of these offenders, which will deter them and any others who are like-minded from any such dishonesty in the future.

The Fifty-first Annual Report of "The Fruit Growers' Association" of Nova Scotia has recently been published by order of the Government. It is a pamphlet of two hundred and four pages. The annual meeting was held in Middleton on the 20th, 21st and 22nd of January 1915. The report opens with the address of the President, F. W. Bishop. It contains papers of Specialists on a large variety of matters connected with the objects of the Association, with remarks made upon them, and questions asked and answered; the value of which to all engaged in the fruit business cannot be overestimated. The Government wisely seeks to aid and stimulate the farmers in their endeavors to keep abreast with the increasing experience and research in all matters directly and indirectly connected with their occupation.

Current Cartoons present very interesting and true pictures of passing events. One in the Amsterdam Telegraph represents the Kaiser and one of his War Lords sitting down in very earnest thought. Another war lord stands before a bulletin on which are written Paris, London, Belgrade, Calais, Suez. He has crossed out these and other names, and then he asks "What shall we try now?" Another cartoon from the French "Le Journal," represents the Kaiser scattering iron crosses lavishly as he proceeds, while all around him are countless white crosses which mark the graves of the men whose lives have been sacrificed to his ambition.

A cartoon from "Life" represents a German with spiked helmet holding his mailed fist before the face of President Wilson, and saying threateningly, "Don't you forget that big German vote." The President stands apparently unafraid, and the American Eagle behind looks on enquiringly. But is the President really afraid of the German vote?

A cartoon from Uik, a German comic paper, presents little Japan leading a large blind man over a dangerous path, and at the same time putting one hand into the blind man's pocket. The blind man is, of course, England. This cartoon evidently expresses a wish rather than a fact.

The Weekly Edition of the London Times believes Germany to have been obliged to draw upon its secret war chests. It remarks: "Germany despite the cheerful statements of her financial experts as to the adequacy of her gold reserves, has apparently been compelled to open the secret war chest—the hoard of gold kept for any warlike emergency in the strong rooms of the fortress of Spandau near Berlin. Originally the war chest contained £6,000,000 which was reserved from the indemnity paid by France in 1872 after the Franco-Prussian War. When that sum was placed in the Julius tower at Spandau it comprised a considerable proportion of gold in English sovereigns. A considerable number of these coins have now found their way back to one of the big joint banks in London, showing that the hoard which for 43 years had lain untouched has now been drawn upon.

The bankers who received the gold by way of Scandinavia—a fact which might suggest that it was used to pay for imports other than armament—were at once struck by the fact that they had received a number of new, unworn sovereigns, bearing the date 1872. But the presumption that the money came from the treasure-house was strengthened by the surprising fact that the original Bank of England labels of 1872 were found on some of the bags containing the coins. Apparently this consignment of English gold had lain unopened at Spandau since that year. The sovereigns are of the "shield" pattern with the head of Queen Victoria on one side and a shield on the other.

Bankers on Wednesday expressed some surprise that no effort had been made to conceal the place of origin of the gold by removal of the old Bank of England labels, as the knowledge that the war chest is being drawn upon might readily when it became public be construed as symptomatic of Germany's position in regard to gold supplies.

A German paper, the Vorwarts speaks approvingly of a pamphlet published in Vienna by Dr. George Landauer. It says: "Against the unproved allegations that English diplomacy desired a world war and had systematically worked whole series of crises threatening war which arose under the last three ministers terminated peacefully owing to English efforts.

The Vorwarts then quotes Dr. Landauer textually: "Every one moderately acquainted with England must admit that a hostile feeling among the English people towards the German right up to the last days before the outbreak of war cannot be said to have existed. The English people indeed at times feared an Anglo-German war, but never desired it, least of all at the moment when it broke out, just when the fear of a German attack had diminished."

Dr. Landauer continues: "Whoever has made the acquaintance of this people in the intimacy of his homes and observed how in work and in pleasures it knows how to preserve order as its own policeman, whoever is convinced of the dignity which this people displays in bearing national adversity such a one can never possibly believe that this people has become criminal against itself and the human race.—Reuter."

The 'Old boys' that is the boys sent out to Canada by "Mr. Fegan's Homes," Incorporated, London, have not forgotten the help they there received in the endeavor to make a good start in life. They have been accustomed year by year to remember the "Homes" by New Year Thank Offerings. Beginning in 1889 with one hundred and eighty pounds, Sterling, their offerings have increased, until this year, 1915, they reached the splendid sum of one thousand two hundred pounds, Sterling. Mr. Fegan says, "A surprise indeed," and adds: "I am often asked why these 'Old Boys' show this remarkable gratitude. I have only one explanation to give. The influence of the spiritual training they have received and the Gospel they have heard in the Homes, and the love of God in the hearts of His people they have experienced while with us, for they know it is the praying, believing children of God that have sent us the wherewithal to shelter them in their hour of dire need in His Name, who thought He was rich, yet for our sakes became poor, that we through His poverty might be made rich."

community, found it hard to believe death could be so near. But at last, wearied and worn with suffering, she longed for rest in the Heavenly Home. With calm confidence in the promises of God she peacefully passed away with the sure and certain hope of eternal life in that home where suffering and death never enter. The funeral services were held in the home on Thursday, April 8th, conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. D. McLeod, assisted by Rev. A. M. McNinch, a former pastor. She leaves to mourn their loss, her father, mother, two sisters, Flossie and Pearl, one brother, Victor, besides many other relatives and friends.

CHARLES L. BROWN At Swampscott, Mass., March 26th, 1915, Charles L. Brown died at the home of his son, Robbie Brown, 133 William Ave., where he had been staying for the past few weeks. His death had been afflicting for several years, and his condition had been considered serious since early in the fall of 1914. His beloved wife passed away in February, 1915, only a month before, thus making a double sorrow for the children.

Mr. Brown was born at Mt. Hanley, Annapolis County, N. S., sixty-one years ago. Having been converted in early youth, he was baptised by Rev. Mr. Murray, and received into the membership of the Pine Grove Baptist Church, where he always esteemed it a great privilege to take up his cross and show himself on the Lord's side. He had been a resident of Lynn, Mass., for over two scores of years. He was employed in the wholesale grocery business in Lynn, until finally obliged to give up work. He is survived by two sons, Robbie and Roscoe of Lynn, two daughters, Emma and Ethel of Swampscott, Mass. also five sisters, and two brothers: Mrs. Caleb Miller, Mrs. J. S. Miller, Mrs. Zebulon Elliott, Mt. Hanley; Mrs. C. Rood, Springfield, N. S. Mrs. Almira Sampson, Mass., Mr. Elijah Brown, Winthrop, Mass., and Mr. Kinsman Brown, Aylesford, Kings Co. N. S., besides a host of friends to mourn the loss. He was the son of the late Benjamin Brown of Mt. Hanley. (Kings County papers please copy.)

OBITUARY

MISS A. M. CHUTE Clarence, April 6th, 1915, Adalein Melissa, second and dearly loved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Chute, entered peacefully into her eternal rest at the early age of twenty-two years. When only thirteen years of age, our sister made a public profession of her faith in Jesus and was baptised by the Rev. H. H. Saunders. Blessed with a cheerful, happy disposition, she was the life of the home and beloved in the community by old and young alike. To know her was to love her. Life with all its promise was before her, and not until many days of weariness and nights of suffering had been hers, did she give up the hope of restoration to health and strength. The many friends who visited her in the last months of her illness, finding her always cheerful, always interested in the affairs of the church and

The amendments to the Game Act as passed by the House of Assembly committee are not of a very sweeping nature. The moose season is extended one month, or until the 1st of December. The protection of cow moose and deer is extended for three years. Some changes are made in the list of protected birds.

Don't forget that beginning tomorrow the 15th inst., all letters and post cards mailed must have, in addition to the regular stamps, a one-cent war stamp attached. Without this stamp they will be sent to the Dead Letter Office. So govern yourself accordingly. The ordinary postage does not take the place of the War Stamp.

Annapolis Spectator: The County Jail at Annapolis is being well patronized. There are no less than nine boarders there at the present time. Two of them are serving sentences, and the remaining seven are awaiting trial. Unfortunately two of the number are women. The cases which will come up before the Court within a few weeks are unusual in the County and no doubt will prove of exceptional interest to the public, as four of the prisoners are charged with bigamy.

SIR GEORGE TURNER.

A Victim to Leprosy Research.

The death has occurred at Colyton, Devon, at the age of 79, of Sir George Turner, M.B.M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P.

Sir George Turner entered the Civil Service of Cape Colony as Medical Officer of Health in 1895. In the year after his arrival in the Cape Colony the rinderpest broke out. Dr. Koch was then at work to discover a cure. He had already invented a system of inoculation against the disease, but he was recalled early in the following year before his work was complete. Dr. Turner, appointed to succeed him with only three weeks' collaboration before he left, finished the inoculation work, and produced a curative and preventive serum. This he achieved but in a form which only gave immunity for three weeks. He accordingly renewed his researches, and before long hit upon the simultaneous inoculation of virus and serum. This was within six months of his appointment to succeed Dr. Koch within a year rinderpest in Cape Colony was absolutely stamped out. The Cape Colony Government then decided to close Dr. Turner's station, but the serum produced there was so urgently required in Rhodesia and Egypt that Cecil Rhodes carried it on for another four months at his own expense.

Dr. Turner's great capacity was soon required in a different field. It was not long to the outbreak of the war, and his services were volunteered, but twice refused. Later when the ravages from typhoid had become appallingly severe, he was sent for by Lord Roberts and asked to supervise the military hospitals and afterwards the concentration camps. In 1901 the rinderpest broke out again and Lord Kitchener asked for Dr. Turner's help. Amid much difficulty a station was started at Pretoria with some of the serum made at Dr. Turner's old station in 1897, and serum was again sold to Egypt and to Natal. In 12 months the rinderpest had been once more stamped out.

The Pretoria Leper Asylum. It was in the midst of these activities that Dr. Turner devoted himself first to the noblest work of his life. There was then a leper asylum at Pretoria with about 50 Dutch and 40 native patients. He gave up all his spare time to work among the lepers, doing all he could to alleviate their lot, and prosecuting a tireless research into the nature of the disease. For three years he laboured at this work without extra pay of any sort.

On reaching the age limit, 12 years after his first arrival in South Africa, Dr. Turner retired, to pursue his studies into the bacteriological side of leprosy in the laboratories of this country. Suddenly, after several years' work, his eye was attracted by certain marks on his hand while he was shaving, and he recognized them at once as the stamp of the disease which he had set himself to fight. From that time he worked unswervingly amid the pain and beneath the shadow of a leper's lot.

War Tax on Letters

A war tax of one cent has been imposed on each letter and postcard mailed in Canada for delivery in Canada, and on each letter mailed in Canada for delivery in the United Kingdom and British Possessions generally, and wherever the two cent rate applies, to become effective on and from the 15th April, 1915.

This War Tax is to be prepaid by the senders by means of a War Stamp for sale by Postmasters and other postage stamp vendors.

Wherever possible, stamps on which the word "War Tax" have been printed should be used for prepayment of the War Tax, but should ordinary postage stamps be used for this purpose, they will be accepted. This War Stamp or additional Stamp for war purposes should be affixed to the upper right hand portion of the address side of the envelope or post card, close to the regular postage so that it may be readily cancelled at the same time as the postage.

In the event of failure on the part of the sender through oversight or negligence to prepay the war tax on each letter or postcard above specified, such a letter or postcard will be sent immediately to the nearest Branch Dead Letter Office.

It is essential that postage on all classes of mail matter should be prepaid by means of ordinary postage stamps. The War Tax stamp will not be accepted in any case for the prepayment of postage.

The farmers of the Dominion will be glad to hear the decision of the Government that fertilizers are not subject to the war duty. This announcement has come from Ottawa.

A HUNDRED MILLION

A hundred million dollars is too much for the mind to grasp, and yet that is what the people of Canada paid for intoxicating liquors in 1914. A hundred million dollars. Politicians have spent months of time and thousands of dollars squabbling over the expenditure of a little over a third of that sum to build a navy to defend our country. A hundred million why that would probably finance Canada's share in the great war. We talk about being hard up. Money is being borrowed in large sums to develop our resources and the national debt keeps piling up, and the money spent in drink would save all that and leave a balance to pay our debts. And that immense sum is spent for what even a liquor journal calls an "extravagance and a luxury."

But a hundred million is only one half of the cost of drink. Wise men who have made a study of finance tell us that every dollar spent in drink causes a dollar's worth of loss and waste and damage to life and property. So the cost of the liquor traffic to Canada in 1914 was near two hundred million. This immense drain on the finances of the country accounts for a good many things that are hard to understand.

What does the country get from the expenditure of that immense sum of money and the degradation and ruin of thousands every year? The aggregate Dominion, Provincial and Municipal revenues from this traffic is less than twenty million. That is to gain one dollar we spend ten and do untold damage to the people. No wonder Russia can finance this great war without great distress to her people.

The fact is that nearly every one is poorer than he would otherwise be because of this traffic. I am quite satisfied that our taxes could be lowered from 30 to 50 per cent if we were rid of this immense tax maker. I can give the names of a large number of towns and cities that have lowered their tax rate after prohibition. Kansas City saved three hundred thousand dollars a year by closing the drinking places.

AGRICULTURAL BULLETINS.

So great has been the demand for Bulletins, Pamphlets, Records and Reports upon the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa as a result of the Patriotism and Production Movement, that it has been found impossible to comply with the applications as promptly as could be desired. Of some of the Bulletins the supply has been exhausted and no time has been afforded for reprinting, while of others the quantity asked for individually has been such that instant compliance would mean many applicants might have to go without. This has meant extra correspondence and consequent delay. The situation is of course, satisfactory as indicating the success of the campaign, and the widespread interest created, but the inability to respond on the instant with the multitude of applications is greatly regretted. At the same time it is impossible that the size of the demand could have been foreseen. As fast as possible the requests will be attended to, but in the meantime there will have to be reprinting and in cases revising. In such circumstances patience appears to be a desirable and necessary quality.

A LONGUE TWISTER

Mr. Jack Norworth succeeded in inducing an audience at a London music-hall to join in the following tongue twister:
Mother's sitting knitting little mitten, for the Navy,
Bertha's busy bathing baby Belgian refugees,
Sarah's shaming shirkers mapping guernseys for the Gurkas,
Oh what busy bees, all sewing, oh so busy,
Maggie, Moll and Maud are making mufflers for the Marines,
While Winnie winds the wool when they begin,
Sister Cissie's knitting socks and Sissie's sewing shirts for soldiers,
Still poor Papa props his pants up with a pin.

SPRING CLEANING

Yes, clean yer house, an' clean yer shed,
An clean yer barn in every part,
But brush the cobwebs from yer head,
An sweep the snowbank from yer heart,
Jes' we'en Spring cleanin' comes aroun',
Bring forth the duster an' the broom
But rake yer foggy notions down
An sweep yer dusty soul of gloom

Sweep off ideas out with the dust
An dress yer soul in newer style,
Scrape from yer min' its worn out crust
An dump it in the rubbish pile,
Sweep out the hates that burr an smart
Bring in new loves serene an' pure
Aroun' the hearthstone of the heart
Place modern style of furniture.

Clean out yer morri cubby holes,
Sweep out the dirt, scrape off the scum!
'Tis cleaning time for healthy souls,
Git up and dust! The Spring has come!
Clean out the corners of the brain,
Bear down with scrubbin'—brush and soap,
An 'dump ol' Fear into the rain,
An dust a cosy chair for Hope.

Clean out the brain's deep rubish hole,
Soak every cranny great an' small
An in the front room of the soul
Hang pootlers pictures on the wall,
Scrub up the winders of the mind,
Clean up, an' let the Spring begin;
Swing open wide the dusty blind,
An' let the April sunshine in.

Plant flowers in the soul's front yard,
Set out new shade and blossom trees
An' let the soul once froze and hard
Sprout crocuses and new ideas,
Yes, clean yer house an' clean yer shed
An clean yer barn in ev'ry part,
But brush the cobwebs from ev'ry part
An sweep the snowbanks from yer heart!

More-Naval Letters

Rev. Walter Rigby has received the following letters from his son "Ted." H. M. S. Inconstant, Jan 23-15
On Bay of Biscay, in a big blow, bound for Portland, England.

Dear Folks,—I am going to scratch a few lines in hope of letting you know how things are going with me over here. I have forgotten just where my last letter left off, but will start at Portsmouth, R. N. B. I was doing a trade-test on the Fiscard when I last wrote. I passed my trade test with "very good." Out of fifty marks I received forty-two. This was Dec. 14th. From then till Dec. 27th I was in barracks doing swimming and physical drill and attending lectures on oil-fuel turbines and general navy routine. I applied to Mr. Price, the chief engineer officer, for a berth on one of the latest ships. He laughed and said, "How would you like one of the new fast cruisers? I agreed that would be fine. Well the upshot of it was that I applied through his office for service on the Inconstant, being completed at Beardmore yards, Dalmuir, twenty miles down from New Glasgow, on the Clyde.

On Dec. 27th (Sunday) we were mustered on the parade ground, bag and hammock, and were paraded into a train of English side-door passenger cars lying inside the barracks yards with all gates shut and locked. No one was allowed to know where we were going, but in reality everyone did. At 5 p. m. just at dark, the little locomotive, no bigger than a teapot, pulled out the size of horse cars, with 250 men aboard. English trains are very light and small, but they can certainly glide along.

Among the towns passed through were Oxford, Crewe, Birmingham, Shields, etc. Entered Scotland on the Caledonian, passing through the original Grtrea Green. We arrived in Glasgow 6.30 a. m. The union depot is typically Yankee in every way. No one can imagine how exceedingly un-English and convenient it all is. I was astonished. Glasgow, as far as I saw it, is as up-to-date as any city I've ever seen. The lieutenant in charge gave us breakfast, and at 7.30 we were again entrained for our ride down the river to Dalmuir.

It was snowing in Glasgow, and at Dalmuir all was white. The Inconstant was lying with stern up. She is very fast. When we go into action my station is on the after-deck between the aerial gun and the big turret in charge of the flooding valves. Under me is the magazine. The flooding valves are for putting out fires by immersion. We stayed around Dalmuir for two days, then went down the river for a trial of speed. She developed 31,000 horse-power without opening her out to her capacity; this is remarkable, considering the fact that she only carries eight boilers. The fuel is crude oil with the best taken out, and turbines alone are used for propulsion. She has eight of them four on each side. The machinery is packed in so you have to crawl on your hands and knees to get between the condensers and the turbine castings. There is no passage way in the engine-room where you can pass a man without edging or squeezing; a shell into the mess of pipes spells death to every man in that engine-room. There is a duplicate set of everything, with one or two exceptions. After a few days of trials on the Clyde the nights of which we spent in mid-stream off Greenock, we left on the night of "Hogmanay" (New Year's Eve) at a thirty-knots clip for no one knew where. On New Year's Day we were off Wales, and the following day we were in the Bay of Biscay, headed for Gibraltar. On Jan. 30th, at day-break, we were running up the "Cut" into the Bay of Gibraltar. I was on watch in the after engine-room and was on the throttle of the port turbine when we manoeuvred up to the dock-yard wall. As soon as we docked there was a horde of dockyard "mates" ready to go to work on the hundred and one jobs that were to be done.

The Inconstant was accepted a month before she should have been so as to get her into shape and train a crew at the same time.
We had target practice of all kinds, as well as torpedo practice, and at night defence with searchlights and targets that had been sent adrift hours before. Every Saturday and Sunday "shore leave" was piped. The first Sunday I climbed Europa point of the "Rock" or "pebble" as they sometimes call it aboard. No one but a British subject, and a man at that, can go beyond the first line of defence guns. I was up to the first line of defence guns. The "Rock" is no "bluff," I can assure you. They have the bay so plotted that you can simply be found on point number so-and-so, wherever you may be. No range finding; just look and see, and put a shell just where you want it, like putting a letter in a box.
Gibraltar is a wonderful spot. There are all kinds of flowers blooming in January, as well as fruit on the trees; will send some postcards soon. For many reasons no cards were sent from Gibraltar—at least none through the ship's censor. The "Rock" rises sheer out of the water on the Catlin Bay side. On the harbor side it is about one-eighth of a mile back from the shore. The roads around the "Rock" are very white and hard, and are lined with well-made cut stone walls. The water is caught in immense concrete basins made on the side of the rock. This is their only water supply. Outside the town is the neutral ground over which no unformed person can pass. The gates are locked at sundown every night by the sergeant of the guard, who carries a key about four feet long over half a mile, to do the job. He is guarded by over a hundred men with fixed bayonets, and is proceeded by a band. The architecture of Gibraltar is most peculiar, half "Moorish" Spanish and half English. Stone is the only building material. The streets are as clean as scrubbing can make them, and fountains play at many points. Alameda Park is a wonder spot for beauty. On the rocks about it are Barbary apes, tailless ones. I counted nine in one group. Spanish is spoken everywhere, and here and there you see a Moor in his native costume of brown cloth, blue neck-piece, yellow sandals, and red fez. There are plenty in business on the "Rock." The English call the natives of the "Rock" "Rock Scorpions." Cigars and tobacco are the main items of interest to the sailors; a ten-cent cigar sells for a penny on the "Rock." There is no duty on imports of the weed, as in England. At prayers this morning the skipper, Captain Thiesinger, told us he was not going to get into Portland in the morning, but would get there in the evening. I am fairly comfortable in my hammock at night, though we are much crowded, and we swing together with a bump as she rolls. The "grub" is rough and coarse, but there is plenty of tea, bread and butter. The meat has been fresh so far, but pretty tough. Everything slides into your lap at times, but that is only "all in a day's work." I have lots of work in oil field equipment, including, sprayers, filters etc., sometimes you are drenched. The constant is going to be awful! all the time in bad weather, and everyone who goes forward will have to float along the life-line or be washed over the rail. She has only eight feet of free board and rolls like a log. The life-line is strung along the upper works wall about five feet high. I have been souped repeatedly by big waves; it smashes you up against things when it hits; they come at racehorse speed, and make an awful boom when they break. You can tell, when below, every big one that hits the ship. I expect to be in the North Sea in a week or ten days. It will be pretty tough, but it is what we signed up for. The weather is the worst feature of the whole thing. For days you are obliged to stay below. It means if you go forward you have to stay there until you get to a quiet place again. There is no way to get from the stokehold to the engine-rooms. There are dozens of things I could write about, but I have not the time at present. I am back on watch four hours, then four off then four on and eight off, with an occasional two-hour watch, so as to rotate things. The short ones are called dog watches. They all look on me as an oddity here except one, a Scotchman, named Ewing, who has his first paper out in the United States. I go by the name of "Yank" because I have so many Yankee expressions. I am always being asked questions about the United States.

The Penelope, a sister ship to us, was with us, and we did gun trials together each day. When in the North Sea I will be unable to let you know a thing. There are lots of things going on over here I don't even care to write about yet; I will later.

SHEEP HUSBANDRY

Under the title of "The Great Neglect in Sheep Husbandry," which constitutes Pamphlet No. 9 of the sheep and Goat Division of the Dominion Department, of Agriculture Messrs T. Reg Arkell and Norman Stanfield, two well-recognized authorities, explain the necessity for the early castration of ram lambs intended for slaughter and the value of docking in the maintenance of health. They consider that both these operations are practised and cannot see that while they are practised in other animals, there should be any hesitancy in performing them on sheep. Ram lambs treated develop in flesh and command a price in the market, while female lambs being docked escape disease and insect pests by reason of increased cleanliness. Illustrations are given of the methods employed and advice furnished of the desirable age and the advantages that accrue. Farmers would be serving their own interest by sending to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, for the Pamphlet.

New Book on the Kaiser by an English Woman

Prince's Children, Taught by Count Zeppelin to Destroy a Toy London.

Returning from Berlin three months after the war, an English governess to a princely family related to the Kaiser gives a striking account in her book, just published, of her meeting with the Kaiser and Bernhardt, and of how the prince's children were being taught by Count Zeppelin to destroy a toy London with toy Zeppelin bombs.

The happy accident of possessing a grandfather in the United States Navy, coupled with the polite interest of Prince Henry of Prussia in this "brother sailor," that so-distinguished American, seems to have helped her to secure a post as governess in the household of "a prince distantly related to the German Emperor, and not entirely unconnected with the German General Staff." The English governess does not give the name of this prince nor that of his wife. "I feel I owe them loyalty," she remarks, "and where they come into this narrative I am bound to sacrifice realism."

"In October I arrived safely in London with my diary and very little else except five years' memories," she says. These memories, which close with her escape after an unpleasant period of interment in her employer's castle as a suspected spy, include conversations with the Kaiser and meetings with the Crown Prince, Count Zeppelin, the Krupp family, General von Bernhardt, Herr Dernburg, and many other members of the German militarist party.

"Destroying London"

The first time she saw the children who were to be under her care she found that they were playing a new game which Count Zeppelin had invented and had ordered to be made for them, "to teach them a warlike spirit." Under the direction of their military governor they were piloting airships over a large plan of a town, and as they pulled little strings a shower of white pills fell from the cars, breaking into powder on the buildings beneath. "They have begged to finish destroying London before supper," she was told.

Rags, Bones and Bottles

A peep into the yard of one of the rags, bones and bottles' men who live in the Ward will reveal some strange sights. Here one may see heaps upon heaps of what we might call worthless articles, but the meanness of which spells money to the collector.

At all hours of the day one may see the little push-carts full of overflowing being emptied and sorted. Fastened on each cart is a peddler's license, for the rag man may not ply his business until he has first asked permission and received a license, for which he pays a small fee.

His expenses are nil, as he has no horse to feed or care for. He is his own horse, and as he pushes his cart up and down the busy streets he must often be footsore and weary.

When in response to his unmelodious cry of "Rags, bones, bottles," you hail him and try to sell some old clothes, you are rather chagrined at the small amount of money he offers you, and you decide to keep them until you find some poor person who could use them.

The push-cart man looks forward to the time when he will be able to have a horse and wagon of his own. That the Jewish ragman does make money out of scraps is well known for one of the fine, big buildings in our city is owned by a man who not so many years ago, went around calling "Rags, bones, bottles."

As soon as a load arrives and is emptied many helpers reduce the pile to order. The bottles are arranged as to size and placed in one corner to be resold when opportunity offers. Even the sealing-wax which still adheres to the necks of some bottles is carefully removed, melted down and sold.

Old rubbers, old tyres from bicycles or automobiles, bring good money, and are sold to be melted down and appear in another form.

Wheels of all sizes and descriptions may be seen, from the one that was once on a child's express cart to the big, heavy wheel of the dray or lorry.

But what about the bones? Are they of any use? Yes, indeed. They are sold again to be ground into powder and used as fertilizers.

As to the rags that are gathered, they are emptied from the wagons on to the floor of a shed in the yard. Here men and women sort them out and put them into different sacks. Most of them are dirty, but that does not matter, for they are all good for something once they reach the rag merchant's yard. Packed in big sacks, the rags are all ready to go on their travels. One sack will be filled with bits of woolen cloth, flannel or old stockings. Another is filled with cotton rags, and still another with old linen rags, and each kind will be used for a special purpose.

The woollen rags are often shipped to England, where they are sent to a mill called a shoddy mill, to be made into shoddy cloth.

First of all, the rags must be cleaned, so as to make them fit to be handled. They are placed in immense boxes with sharp spikes on the inside. Within this box is a huge drum, also covered with spikes, that is kept constantly revolving by steam. This causes the spikes to tear the woollen rags into shreds or flock and it is the fibres of this flock which are spun into new cloth. All the cheap tweeds and mixtures which are used to make jackets or suits for the poorer classes are made of this shoddy cloth.

The cotton rags are sent from the rag collector's yard to a paper mill to be made into paper. A great deal of paper is now made from wood pulp, but writing paper is still made from linen rags.

First of all, the rags must be freed from the dry dust that is on them. They are thrown into a dusting machine, which has a wire gauze bottom. Spikes are fastened on the inside and on the revolving drum, as in the cleaning of the woollen rags. As they are tossed about the dust drops out through the wire gauze.

The rags are then cut up into pieces about three or four inches across and put into boxes according to their color and quality.

They are next boiled with lime and soda, to remove the dirt and coloring matter. The rags are then taken to the rag-engine. In this they are made to pass between revolving knives, which cut them into the thinnest shreds. The action of the water and the knives changes them into a pulp, which makes the paper. It requires to be bleached and then beaten up till the pulp is perfectly smooth.

A mold of wire cloth is dipped into the pulp. The water drains through the wires, leaving a thin film of the pulp behind. It is then turned over on a sheet of felt. When the sheets are all dry the felts are removed and one may see the sheets of real paper. Each sheet is dipped in a solution of size, then dried, to make it ready to be written upon.

So now we see how our waste materials can be put to good use and how certain people can make a living and in time have a bank account by re-selling our old rags, bones and bottles.

The Forlorn Hope

In older warfare, when the gates of a fortress were to be blown up, volunteers were asked for what was called a forlorn hope. This is very much the errand on which the Allied fleets were sent to the Dardanelles, which had always been regarded as impregnable and especially since it has been retortified under German supervision. The first task was to assault the mighty fortress at the outer gate. That was only a question of finding where the shore guns were, and of getting large enough guns to out-match them. It has always been accounted a settled maxim that fleets could not out-match shore guns. But after long waiting this was what was done, and those outer bastions were not silenced, but razed. That was done from the open sea. It was a very different thing when it came to the second portal at the Narrows, as not only did the whole shore bristle with guns perched on frowning heights but the sea was sown thick with mines, which were certain death to any ship that tried to sail through them. The first thing to do was to sweep the strait of these waterlilies which had to be done by a fleet of British trawler that is, deep sea fishermen, enlisted for this dangerous service. It was very much like a forlorn hope when the "Amethyst," preceded by trawlers, sailed up through the Narrows and cut the cable there. The feat cost one trawler and crew from a mine, and some damage from shore guns with loss of men on the "Amethyst," which however, with the remaining trawlers got out safe.

We heard ten days ago that the forts at the Narrows had been silenced. This was Greek information. It was only on Thursday that the tremendous Allied fleet, with the super-dreadnought, "Queen Elizabeth," probably the greatest ship afloat, in the lead, dared to sail up the strait. It is all very well to have cleared the strait of anchored mines; but there was no protection against loose mines set afloat in the currents, which are strong and cross-struck. Anyway one French ship struck a mine and then blew up and sank in two minutes; two British ships of the best pre-dreadnought type were also sunk by mines, but their crews were rescued. The battle with the shore forts was probably in weight of metal and the extent of destruction, the greatest sea fight in history. It is not known what scathe was done to the shore fortress as the fatalities to the ships led to early retirement but it is thought to have been very great, while the mischief done by their guns was of a minor sort. We must suppose that the danger of loose mines was foreseen, and as well provided against as could be. What is to be done next is the puzzle; but the fleet announces its purposes to make another assault. The strength lost in the sunk and disabled ships is being immediately made up.

First Dose Ends Indigestion, Heartburn, Or Gas On Stomach

The question as to how long you are going to continue suffering from indigestion, dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking Tonoline Tabs. People with weak stomachs should take Tonoline Tablets occasionally, and there will be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, sour risings, gas on stomach, or belching of undigested food, headaches, dizziness or sick stomach; and besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison you, breath with nauseous odors. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes after taking Tonoline Tablets.
Go to your drugist and get a $1. box of Tonoline Tablets and you will go to the table with a hearty appetite, what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. Tonoline tabs freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.
Tonoline Tablets cost $1.00 for a 50 days' treatment. At drugists or mailed by American Proprietary Co., Boston, Mass.

"Wedding bells" are in the air and ere the next issue of Monitor, Granville will have reluctantly bade adieu to Miss Annie R. Follows, one of our most highly esteemed and estimable young ladies. While possessing many choice gifts, none stand out more prominently than a sweet responsive nature which will insure for herself and worthy partner future bliss in their new sphere of life, with the blending of joy and sorrow which ever go hand in hand while journeying here below. That much joy may attend them in their wedded life is the sincere wish of many friends who bid them "bon voyage" o'er the matrimonial sea.
Band of Hope Juveniles gave quite a creditable entertainment in Chesley School house on Thursday Evening 8th inst. Miss Tosh (Teacher) leading as accompanist on the organ, with solos, which with a number of recitations, old time favorite songs, with a character "School days," made up the programme. Considerable talent was manifested and the unconscious simplicity of childhood to do and dare is ever a pleasing feature. A Sunflower exercise in costume with song by twelve young maidens would bring no discredit to town or city. For fear of rivalry special stars cannot be named but we expect to hear from these young people again and doubtless several may arrive at the top of the ladder. Over six dollars was realized, two-thirds of which will be donated to the "Belgian Relief Fund."
The total number of prisoners at Halifax detention camp is one hundred and fifty-six.
