Portrait.

THE LILY.

How withered, perished seems the form
Of you obscure, unsightly root:
Yet from the blight of wintry storm
It hides secure the precious fruit.

The careless eye can find no grace,
No beauty in the scaly folds;
Nor see within the dark embrace
What latent loveliness it holds.

Yet in that bulk, those sapless scales,
The lily wraps her silver vest,
Till vernal suns and vernal gales
Shall kiss once more her fragrant breast.

Yes, hide beneath the mouldering heap,
The undecaying, sighted thing:
There in the cold earth buried deep,
In silence let it wait the spring.

O! many a stormy night shall close,
In gloom, upon the barren earth,
While silent and unmeasured repose,
Uninjured lies the future birth.

And ignorance, with sceptic eye,
Hope's patient smile shall wondering view;
Or mock her fond credulity,
As her soft tears the spot bedew.

Sweet smile of hope! delicious tear!
The sun, the summer indeed shall come;
The promised verdant shoot appear,
And Nature bid her blossoms bloom.

And thou, O virgin queen of Spring!
Shalt, from thy dark and lowly bed,
Bursting thy green sheath's silken string,
Unveil thy charms, and perfume shed.

Unfold thy robes of purest white,
Unscathed from their darkness grave;
And thy soft petals' silvery light,
In the mild breeze unfettered wave.

So Faith shall seek the lowly dust,
Where humble Sorrow loves to lie,
And bid her thus her hopes trust,
And watch with patient, cheerful eye;

And bear the long, cold wintry night,
And bear her own degraded doom,
And wait till Heaven's reviving light—
Eternal Spring!—shall burst the gloom.

Scripture Geography an Interesting Study.

In an admirable essay by Dr. Fleming of Glasgow College, prefixed to a carefully drawn up Gazetteer of the Old and New Testament, published by the Edinburgh Printing Company, the following remarks occur on a subject of peculiar interest and importance:

"The satisfaction which we feel, and the interest which we take, in becoming acquainted with the places and the countries where the events of which we read have happened, are much increased when these events are of a great and important kind—great, as displaying the power of the human mind, and the character of the human race;—great, as affecting the happiness and improvement of human society. The eloquent passage of Dr. Johnson, in vindication of such feelings and sympathies, is well known: 'Far from me and my friends be such rigid philosophy as may conduct us, indifferent and unmoved, over any ground which has been dignified by wisdom, bravery, or virtue. The man is little to be envied whose patriotism would not gain force on the plains of Marathon, or whose piety would not grow warmer among the ruins of Iona.' The passage, it is true, has reference to an actual visit to the places which have been the scenes of great events; and there can be no doubt that the traveller, who sees with his own eye and treads with his own foot such places, has greatly the advantage, in point of interest and feeling, over him who has merely a geographical acquaintance with them. It is one thing to read the Iliad at Sigwan, and on the summit of the springs of Mount Ida above, and the plains, and rivers, and Archipelago around you; and another thing to trim your taper over it in a snug library—this I know," said Lord Byron.

And next to an actual visit to the scenes of great and important events, is the knowledge which geography affords. In aid of this knowledge, every thing has been eagerly sought which may serve to excite or interest our feelings. A worn-out coin, a broken urn, a mutilated statue or a half-obliterated manuscript, is treasured up with religious care, when it can be shown to have reference to a people or a place celebrated in antiquity. And although, "with all these appliances and means to boot," it is not the "very form and pressure," but an indistinct and trembling shadow of a former age which can be gained, still that shadow is eagerly pursued. With that ardent and delighted enthusiasm does the classical scholar attempt by the light of his midnight lamp, to trace a ground-plan of the ruins of Troy, and to follow the dim and uncertain lines which mark out the many turns in the adventurous warfare of the Greeks! His pale cheek is flushed, and his thin pulse quickened, when he reads of Platea or Thermopylae. And when the sceptre had departed from Greece, and was grasped by the firm hands of the Romans, the movements of that great people have been eagerly followed. The traces which they have left of themselves, and their dominion in other countries, have been carefully examined. The walls which they built to protect their insecure conquest of Britain have been mutually surveyed; and the remains of their different encampments and stations have been visited with an enthusiasm, sufficient to provoke and to justify the ridicule of the sober-minded. The baths, and aqueducts, and amphitheatres, which they left in Gaul, are still pointed out to an admiring posterity. The interest which has been felt in their fate has extended to the movements of their barbarian adversaries.

The passage of Hannibal across the Alps, and the scenes of Cannae, have been anxiously explored. A similar, but far higher feeling, should lead us to take a like interest in the geography of Scripture. The events which Scripture history records or refers to, are greatly more interesting than those of any other history. The labors of Hercules, the expedition of Jason, the wanderings of Ulysses, and the woeful of Penelope, are subjects which cannot repay the study and investigation which they have prompted. But the events which the Scripture history records are of the most deeply interesting and important kind, not only to one portion of the human family, but to the whole; and the interest and importance of them attach not to a few fleeting generations, but are commensurate with the existence of the human race. To him who traverses the field of Scripture geography, it may be said, almost at every step.

"Stop! for thy tread is on an empire's dust,
An earthquake's spelt is sepulchred below."

Then the Garden of Eden, the resting-place of the ark, the second cradle of the human family, the journey to the Plains of Shinar, the division of the earth, the site of the first great empire, the descent of the Israelites into Egypt, their triumphant exodus, their wanderings in the Wilderness, their settlement in the land of Canaan, the different cities which crowned its rocks, or sought shelter in its valleys, the palaces of their kings, and the retreats of their prophets—these are the scenes and subjects which should be deeply interesting. The glory which has gathered round the territories of Greece and Rome, is dim to that which still lingers on the banks of the Jordan and the land of Judea. "I have seen," says Chateaubriand (Itineraire de Paris a Jerusalem, tom. ii. p. 184), "the great rivers of America, with the pleasure which nature and solitude inspire. I have visited the Tiber with enthusiasm, and have examined with similar interest the Eurotas and the Cephus; but I cannot tell what I experienced on seeing the Jordan. Not only did the river recall to me a famous antiquity, and one of the fairest names which the most beautiful poetry has introduced to the memory of man, but its streams presented me with the scenes of the miracles of my religion. Judea is the only country of the earth which recalls to the traveller the recollection of things human and things divine, and which causes to spring up in the bottom of the soul, by this blending, thoughts and feelings which no other place can inspire." In another passage, the same writer remarks: "That when you travel in Judea, the heart is at first filled with profound melancholy. But when, passing from solitude to solitude, boundless space opens before you, this feeling wears off by degrees, and you experience a secret awe, which so far from depressing the soul, imparts life and elevates the genius. Extraordinary appearances every where proclaim a land teeming with miracles. God himself hath spoken in these regions, dried up rivers, rent the rocks, and opened the grave. The desert still appears mute with terror; and you would imagine that it had never presumed to interrupt the silence since it heard the awful voice of the Eternal."

As you go up to Jerusalem, that city which was once the joy of the whole earth, the interest increases. Its splendid temple, and its gold-paved streets, even in the days of its brightest prosperity, were but shadows of a higher glory which belongs to it. That temple was hallowed by visible tokens of the divine favour; and those streets were trodden, not merely by saints and prophets, but by

—Those blessed feet
Which eighteen hundred years ago were used,
For our advantage, to the latter cross.

The brook Cedron, the garden of Gethsemane, and the hill of Calvary, possess an interest which is shared by no other scene. "We ran over," says Chateaubriand, (Itineraire, tom. ii. p. 230.) "the different situations to the summit of Calvary. In all antiquity you find nothing so touching, nothing so marvellous as the last scenes of the Gospel. You find not there the eccentric adventures of a divinity who was a stranger to human nature; it is the most pathetic history—a history which not only makes us shed tears by its beauty, but the consequences of which have changed the face of the earth. I have been to visit the monuments of Greece, and have been filled with grandeur; but they were far from inspiring me with the feelings which I experienced on seeing the holy places."

Indian Wolfe Boy.

There is now at Sultunpoor a boy who was found alive in a wolf's den, near Chandour, about ten miles from Sultunpoor, about two years and a half ago. A trooper sent by the native governor of the district to Chandour, to demand payment of some revenue, was passing along the bank of the river near Chandour, about noon, when he saw a large female wolf leave her den, followed by three whelps and a little boy. The boy went on all fours, and seemed to be on the best possible terms with the old dame and the three whelps, and the mother seemed to guard all four with equal care. They all went down to the river and drank, without perceiving the trooper, who sat upon his horse watching them. As soon as they were about to turn back, the trooper pushed on to cut off and secure the boy; but he ran as fast as the whelps could, and kept up with the old one. The ground was uneven, and the trooper's horse could not overtake them. They all entered the den, and the trooper assembled some people from Chandour with pickaxes and dug into the den. When they had dug in about six or eight feet, the old wolf boited with her three whelps and the boy. The trooper mounted and pursued, followed by the fleetest young men of the party; and as the ground over which they had to fly was more even he headed them, and turned the whelps and boy back upon the men on foot, who secured the boy, and let the old dam and her three cubs go on their way.

They took the boy to the village, but had to tie him for he was very restive, and struggled hard to rush into every hole or den they came near. They tried to make him speak, but could get nothing from him but an angry growl or snarl. He was kept for several days at the village, and a large crowd assembled every day to see him. When a grown-up person came near him he became alarmed, and tried to steal away; but when a child came near him he rushed at it with a fierce snarl like that of a dog, and tried to bite it. When any cooked meat was put before him, he rejected it with disgust; but when any raw meat was offered he seized it with avidity, put it on the ground under his paw like a dog, and ate it with evident pleasure. He would not let any one come near him while he was eating, but he made no objections to a dog, coming and sharing his food with him. The trooper remained with him four or five days, and then returned to the governor, leaving the boy in charge of the Rajah of Hasunpoor. He related all that he had seen, and the boy was soon after sent to the European officer commanding the first regiment at Oude Local Infantry at Sultunpoor, Captain Nicholets, by order of the Rajah of Hasunpoor, who was at Chandour, and saw the boy when the trooper first brought him to that village. This account is taken from the Rajah's own report of what had taken place.

To cold, heat, and rain, he appeared to be indifferent; and he seemed to care for nothing but eating. He was very quiet, and required no kind of restraint after being brought to Captain Nicholets. He had lived with Captain Nicholets' servants about two years, and was never heard to speak till within a few minutes of his death, when he put his hands to his head, and said 'it aches,' and asked for water; he drank it, and died.

The "Yamaska" Murder.

The sudden disappearance of the pedlar Thomas from on board of the steamer has at last been unravelled. Yesterday afternoon two witnesses were brought before Mr. Coursol. Unexpectedly, one of them, named Laporte, turned Queen's evidence, and confessed everything. He said that on Wednesday night last a man named Goulin, second mate of the steamer, who is named Lauchebauche, saw that Thomas, the deceased, had money about his person. When asleep they took the money from the man's pocket and the second mate stamped, with the heel of his boot, crushingly on the temple of the sleeping man. They then pushed him through the railing of the bulwarks, and sank to rise no more. Upon this information, the Magistrate immediately confined Laporte and the witness who had been summoned with him; the second mate, Lauchebauche. The magistrate then despatched officers to arrest the third party implicated—Goulin who lives beyond Sorel. Mr. Coursol deserves the highest credit for the results of this investigation; for to the caution he exercised may be attributed the discovery of the murderers, who seemed, from the nature of the case first investigated, to be far, if not for ever, out of reach of arrest. One of the prisoners, as will be seen above turned Queen's evidence yesterday, was this morning brought to examination. He then denied the contents of the deposition he made yesterday, and has made a new one contradicting everything he then swore to. A man named Thomas M'Ginnis, a fellow prisoner, was, then confronted with him, who stated in a plain clear and straightforward manner that the other was in the same cell with him last night, when asked what he was in gaol for confessed his complicity in the murder. Indeed the statement made by M'Ginnis was about a copy of the deposition made yesterday. Constable Simard and a friend of the missing man returned about noon, but without any further traces of the body. It is, however, expected to be recovered to-day.—Montreal Pilot, June 16.

Draining Slops from Houses.

As all matters relating to domestic economy that have a bearing on the health of our families, are exceedingly important, I may be indulged in a few remarks in reference to the drainage from the wash-house and kitchen, which is variously disposed of in our country places according to the taste, or the absolute absence of taste of the proprietors.

I shall, without attempting to disparage the judgement, or the practice of others, proceed to describe the plan which I have adopted, in order to avoid on the one hand the unsightly and inconvenient accumulation of ice near the kitchen door in the winter; and on the other, the still more offensive effluvia from the sink gutter in the summer. The water is conducted from the wash-trough into a drain beneath, through a 2 inch lead pipe some 2 1/2 feet long and so curved as to allow a portion of it always to stand full of water, which is, of course, displaced by each successive deposit; thus forbidding the ingress of cold air, or the return of noxious gases from the cesspool below. It will be observed that to secure the advantages of this arrangement, the drain must be carefully closed around the insertion of the pipe. The drain is made of brick with a fall of nearly an inch to the foot, and sufficiently deep under ground to render it secure from freezing; it terminates at a suitable distance from the house in a pit 4 by 6 feet, and 5 feet deep, walled up to the surface of the ground and securely covered. As there is considerable amount of waste water from the wash-house and kitchen, where there are several in family, this depository will occasionally require to be pumped out. I have therefore provided it with a cheap pump, so primitive and simple in its construction as to have cost less than two dollars; and yet so efficacious in its performance as to discharge, with ease to the operator, a hogshead of water per minute. It is made of pine boards about 5 inches square, with a stationary valve near the bottom, and a moveable one attached to the piston rod as in the common pump—the piston is worked without a lever.

The contents of the cesspool are made to subsolve a valuable purpose both as a renovator of the soil, and also for irrigation. In the latter relation it is exceedingly useful to the garden; for in a few minutes a man will throw up enough water to thoroughly irrigate every part of it—thus carrying both moisture and nourishment to the plants at a time when they most need it.

I have been thus explicit, because I believe this arrangement has many palpable advantages over every plan of conducting the drainage away on the surface; and because I have thought that a lack of perspicuity in a communication on so very common place a subject would detract from the little merit it might otherwise possess.—C.

AN ATROCIOUS PROCLAMATION.

If any Piedmontese or French detachments or any patrols, scouts, or agents of the two armies, whether in uniform or in disguise, shall appear, under any pretext whatsoever, in any part of the territory occupied by the United States, and every individual inhabitant of every commune is required under a severe penalty, immediately to inform the commandant of the station and if the particular district should not be actually occupied by the imperial and royal troops, then the chief of the nearest military post.

Every commune within which any detachment, or single soldier belonging to the Austrian army, may find any patrol or agent of the enemy, will suffer without remission the severest penalties provided by martial law. In every such case, the commune will be sentenced to pay a war contribution, under no less a penalty than being delivered up to pillage: towns compromised will be burnt and individuals will be shot without mercy. The communes are ordered to cause this proclamation to be read in all the churches by the clergy from the pulpit, and to be made public in every other possible manner.

Confidence.

"You say you have confidence in the plaintiff, Mr. Smith."
"Yes, sir."
"State to the court, if you please, what caused this confidence."
"Why, you see, sir, there's allers reports about extin' house men, an' I used to think—"
"Never mind what you though,—tells us what you know."
"Well, sir, one day I goes down to Cookem's shop, and sez to the waiter, sez I, give us a weal pie."
"Well, sir, proceed."
"Well, just then, Mr. Cookem comes up, and sez he, 'how da, Smith, wot ye goin' to be?'"
"Weal pie, sez I."
"Good sez he, 'I'll take one tu; 'so he sets down and eats one of his own weal pies, right afore me."
"Did that cause your confidence in him?"
"Yes, indeed, sir; when an eaten' house keeper sets down afore his customers, an' deliberately eats one of his own weal pies, no man refuses to feel confidence—it shows him to be an honest man."

The News by the Persia.

The Queen's speech on the opening of Parliament is as follows:—
'My Lords and Gentlemen—I avail myself with satisfaction in the present anxious state of public affairs, of the advice of my Parliament, which I have summoned to meet with the least possible delay. I have directed that papers shall be laid before you from which you will learn how serious and unceasing have been my endeavours to preserve the peace of Europe.

Those endeavours have unhappily failed, and war has been declared between France and Austria on one side, and Austria on the other. Receiving assurances of friendship from both the contending parties, I intend to maintain between them a strict and impartial neutrality, and I hope, with God's assistance, to preserve to my people the blessing of continued peace. Considering, however, the present state of Europe, I deemed it necessary to the security of my dominions and the honor of my crown, to increase my naval forces to an amount exceeding that which has been sanctioned by Parliament. I rely with confidence on your cordial concurrence in this precautionary measure of defensive policy.

The King of the Two Sicilies having announced to me the death of King, his father, and his own accession, I have thought fit to renew my diplomatic intercourse with the Court of Naples, which had been suspended during the late reign. All my other foreign relations continue on a perfectly satisfactory footing.
The rest of the speech is devoted to matters of local interest. Attention is directed to the Bill to carry out the recommendation of the Commissioners in regard to the best mode of manning the Navy; and in respect to the Reform question the Queen simply says that she shall have pleasure in giving her sanction to any well considered measure and that, should matters of more urgency, relating to the defence and financial condition of the country, necessitate a postponement, she hopes the question will have attention at the commencement of the next Session.

The speech concludes by expressing a hope that the deliberations of Parliament will tend to secure to the country the continuance of peace abroad, and a progressive improvement at home.

THE WAR.
Gen. Gyula's official report of the battle of Magenta:—
VIENNA, Wednesday.—The Austrians have lost in killed and wounded 3000 to 5000 men. The loss of the enemy is at least half as much again. Every line of the report proved the heroic pluck of the Austrians to withstand the attacks of the enemy.

HEAD QUARTERS, BELGIOIOSO, June 5, via Berlin, 6h.—A combat has taken place in Bosnia, between the Turkish troops and the insurgents, Hollemech and Frebique. Gyula has, it is said, been destroyed.
Details of the battle of Magenta are slowly received, and do not change the first complexion. The losses were undoubtedly severe on both sides. The Austrian official account only acknowledges 4000 to 5000 killed and wounded, and says the enemy lost fully half as much again.

It is reported, but not confirmed, that Gyula has been dismissed and Hess appointed Commander-in-Chief.
The Austrians have retreated beyond the river Adia. The headquarters were near Cremona.
They were expelled from Marignan by Baraguay d'Hilliers, who took 1200 prisoners.
Pavia was evacuated, and the King of Sardinia entered Milan on the 8th, and remained. He was enthusiastically received.
Latest accounts say the allies were advancing from Milan, and that Prussia showed signs of aiding Austria.

It is also reported that Prussia is negotiating for the passage of troops through Germany.
The Austrians are at Lodi, upon which place the Allies are advancing.
Garibaldi was between the Austrian forces and Brescia.
500 Zouaves were killed and wounded at Marignano. The Austrians lost 1500 killed and 1200 made prisoners. The battle lasted nine hours.
The armies were preparing for another general engagement.
The official Austrian Correspondents of the 10th state that the Austrian army was continuing its retreat beyond the Adia, and that its head quarters were at Cavatogozzi, before Cremona.
A special despatch to the Times says that on the 8th the 24 Austrian army had their head quarters at Cadagno, on the Adia.
It turns out that Canrobert was not wounded at Magenta.
All accounts give the great glory of the day to McMahon. He had no orders to proceed to Magenta, but heard the roar of battle, rushed on and saved the army.
The Paris Monitor of the 10th contains the following details:—
The concentrating of our troops on the Po deceived the enemy into the belief that we intended to cross the river. On the morning of the 4th, 125,000 Austrians were in position opposite the Emperor, and the grenadier division of the Imperial Guard was obliged to fight this disproportionate odds. All our generals displayed great energy. French General Wimpfen was wounded;

Desme and Mandhart, commanders of the Grenadiers, were killed.

The Bulletin describes the operations of McMahon, who lost 1500 men, but put 10,000 Austrians horse de combat, and made 5000 prisoners. The Austrians had on their side four corps d'armee.

The Bulletin sums up the results: Five days after our departure from Alessandria our army had three combats, and gained one battle; freed Piedmont from the Austrians who since Mantebell had 25,000 killed and wounded, 10,000 prisoners, and 17 canons.
The defeat of the Austrians at Magenta is said to have produced an immense sensation in Germany.
A correspondent of the Daily News gives the following details:—
In less than two hours the allied monarchs had deployed 60,000 men against the Austrians, whose force was 80,000, with powerful artillery. They were compelled to move on a most disadvantageous ground. Their left was soon turned by Canrobert's corps, supported by Pail's division. The Austrians were obliged to fall on their centre at Cavatogozzi. The Austrian centre, thus swelled by routed columns, their left wing was soon in disorder, and thousands fell crushed by the French artillery. McMahon had now reached the scene, and seeing at the moment the disordered centre of the Austrians, charged with an impetuosity seldom witnessed, supported by Durand's division, which stood in reserve, moving slowly behind him. The shock was terrible; dead and wounded were falling by thousands. The Austrians were routed and the victory won.

The writer says 20 Austrian guns were taken. The Zouaves had 700 killed and wounded. The brigade of Canrobert's corps was almost destroyed in the last charge. The Emperor and King were always in the thickest of the fight.
Military men are unanimous in their praise of the strategic combinations of the Emperor.

At Marignano the Austrians were entrenched. D'Hilliers was sent to dislodge them, and took the village with little loss. No details. Benedier commanded the Austrians, 1200 of whom were made prisoners. Urban is said to have effected a retreat by Cassano.

The Austrians evacuated Laveno, abandoning all materials of war, and taking shelter in vessels in Swiss waters.
The Emperor and King attended mass at the cathedral in Milan on the 9th, where a Te Deum was sung. Subsequently they rode through the city. The enthusiasm of the people was indescribable.

The King issued a proclamation to the Lombards, saying "independence having been secured a regiment both liberal and durable will be established," enjoining Napoleon and calling upon the Lombards to join them on the battle field.

Garibaldi's Proclamation to the Lombards.
The following proclamation was issued by Garibaldi on entering the Lombard territory:—
"Lombards: You are called to a new life, and you will respond to the appeal as your fathers did of yore at Ponsida and Legnago. The enemy is the same as ever—pitiless, a black assassin, and a robber. Your brethren of every province have sworn to conquer or die with you. It is our task to avenge the insults, the outrages, and the servitude of twenty generations; it is for us to leave to our children a patrimony freed from the pollution of a foreign domination. Victor Emmanuel, chosen by the national will for our supreme chief, sends me to organize you for this patriotic fight. I deeply feel the sanctity of this mission, and I am proud to command you. To Arms! Then bondage must cease. He who can seize an arm and does not is a traitor. Italy with her children united, freed from foreign domination, will know how to reconquer the rank which Providence has assigned her among nations."

Russian Officers for the Allied Army.—In a letter dated "from the Baltic," the Augsburg Gazette states that numbers of Russian officers, who had fought in the Crimea, had received leave to join the allied armies, for professional study, and that their active service in the field would be winked at by the Czar. This is but the beginning of what the petty German courts, will draw on themselves by thwarting Prussia, and attempting a mad war on the Rhine, for which France is quite prepared.

PARCEL POST.—We learn from the Halifax Chronicle that the Postmaster General of Nova Scotia has given notice of an arrangement for the conveyance of light parcels in that Province, similar to that introduced in this colony a few months ago by the hon. Mr. Connell.

We have merely room to express the high gratification we experience, in stating that the Rev. Dr. Gray will be presented this day with a purse of one hundred pounds, contributed by a few of his admirers, to mark their approval of his labors in preparing his very able reply to Mr. Maturin's pamphlet. We hope the Rev. gentleman may soon be restored to his wonted health and vigour, and that he may be long spared to sustain and promulgate the incontrovertible truths of the Bible among an enquiring and intelligent people.—[Courier.]

IN THE SUPREME COURT.—Trinity Term 22nd Vicaria.—Thomas B. Wilson, Esq.,

W. CARMAN.

Some depression exists at present—owing to the return of a few miners from Fraser river, some of whom are on their way to California. In this we can see no good reason to suppose the mines are giving out, or that they are not extensive and rich. On the contrary we have full confidence, based on undoubted evidence, that they are more extensive than supposed last spring, and that more gold per hand can to-day be taken out there in California. In proof of the latter the lowest sum named by any mine as the produce of a day's racking, is three to five dollars, for nearly two hundred miles along Fraser river. The real causes of miners returning from the upper country and not many have returned are the obstacles imposed by nature, and the lamentable inactivity of the government towards making good roads, so that provisions can be carried cheaply into the upper country. Give the miners provisions at ten dollars a week—double the California rate—and we will hear no more tales about leaving the upper country. The government hitherto has been too tardy in its movements. It is obstructive. It is afraid to act.—[British Colonist V.]

The traffic on the Railway between this City and Hampton, is said to be very great—much greater, indeed, than was anticipated. We are glad to hear this, and we are also glad to hear that the road will be open November next.
The Aroostook Railway bill has just been submitted to the vote of the people of the State of Maine, and the Portland Argus says that it has undoubtedly been defeated. It was regarded as a land jobbing measure. The St. Andrews and Quebec Railway company should now make a strenuous effort to proceed with their line.—[Church Witness.]

FIRE IN CALAIS.—On Sunday morning 10th inst. at about one o'clock the building occupied by Mr. Samuel Withersed as a boot shoe and hat store, was discovered to be on fire. The fire caught about the first story, and was not extinguished until the roof and second story were entirely burnt. The stock of goods was badly injured by the water and rough handling. The building was not insured. The goods were insured in the Maine Insurance office.

The Standard.

ST. ANDREWS, JUNE 29, 1859.

European News.
In our columns to-day we have given details of the battles fought between Allied troops and the Austrians; the accounts given by previous advices of severe fighting are confirmed by intelligence brought by the Steamship Persia. The Austrians suffered severely at Palestro and Magenta, taking their accounts, which no doubt is with in bounds as to their loss. The Emperor of the French is admitted to have employed superior strategic combinations. The conflict has commenced in earnest, but when it will end, is a matter for the future to reveal. From what has already transpired it is generally believed that the Allies will be "the victors," and to them "belongs the spoils."

The Queen's Speech is decidedly pacific notwithstanding it has been deemed necessary to increase the naval forces for the security of the nation. Nothing was known of the change of Ministry. Money plenty, and Consols closed at 93 3/4. Breadstuffs declining.

The Right Rev. Dr. Bygness, Bishop of Maine, visited St. Andrews, on Thursday last. He was met at Eastport by the Rector of this Parish, and accompanied by the Rev. G. W. Durell, of Calais, and the Rev. W. T. Chadwell of Eastport; both of whom assisted at Divine Service held in All Saints Church, the same evening. The Bishop preached from Psalm 122, verse 9; there was a large congregation, who listened with deep attention, to a most interesting and eloquent sermon. The Bishop's manner in the pulpit is peculiarly solemn and impressive; and those who had the pleasure to converse with him, can readily understand the feeling of affection and respect with which he is so universally regarded in his own Diocese. The intercourse with the Episcopal Church in the United States, must be, and no doubt is very gratifying to the members of the same communion here, and will be productive of the best feelings among all parties. The Bishop left in the Steamer on Friday morning, on his way to Eastport and Calais. We understand that he preached at the latter place on Sunday last.

The semi-annual examination of the C. C. Grammar School takes place to-morrow Thursday. We trust that the parents and friends of this valuable institution, will be present. The examination commences at 10 o'clock.

BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE.—The reprint of this celebrated magazine has been received from the American publishers, Messrs L. Scott, & Co., of New York. The number before us is an exceedingly interesting one, containing as it does such an amount of information respecting the present war in Europe, the contents are:—
Fleets and Navies—France Part I; Lord Macaulay and Marlborough; The Luck of Lady'smede—Part IV; War Speculations; The Siege of Plymouth; The New Parliament and its Work; Review of a Review; Lines to a Political Friend; Our Relations with the Continent; Index.

Literary Notice.
THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN.—The publishers of this widely circulated and popular illustrated weekly journal of mechanics and science, announce that it will be enlarged on the first of July, and otherwise greatly improved, containing sixteen pages instead of eight, the present size, which will make it the largest and cheapest scientific journal in the world; it is the only journal of its class that has ever succeeded in this country, and maintains a character for authority in all matters of mechanics, science and the arts, which is not excelled by any other journal published in this country or in Europe. Although the publishers will incur an increased expense of $8,000 a year, by this enlargement, they have determined not to raise the price of subscription, relying upon their friends to indemnify them in this increased expenditure, by a corresponding increase of subscribers. Terms $2 a year, or 10 copies for $15. Specimen copies of the paper, with a pamphlet of information to inventors, furnished gratis, by mail, on application to the publishers,
MUNN & Co. No 27 Park Row, N. Y.

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY for July has been received; the articles are instructive and interesting, and are as follows:—
Thomas Paine's second Appearance in the United States; Of Books and the Reading thereof; After the Ball; Rock, Tree, and Man; Ship Dartmouth; Seen and Unseen; Percival; Zelma's Vow; William Shakespeare, Attorney and Solicitor; The Minister's Woe; The Professor at the Breakfast Table; Art; Reviews and Literary Notices, &c. Published by Phillips Sampson & Co., Boston. Price $3 per annum.

NEW STORE.—Every man who knows his true interest, will be wise enough to let the public know what he has to sell through some newspaper. An advertisement of Messrs. Mason & Rainsford's new and extensive stock of Goods will be found in to-day's paper; and we respectfully recommend them to public patronage; their place of business is at the Railway Terminus, Hatch's Wharf.

A copy of the Pamphlet published by the Nova Scotia Telegraph Company has been received—containing correspondence relating to the late difficulty with the American Telegraph Company.

SEIZURE OF AMERICAN SLAVERS.—The bark Orion, which arrived at New York on Tuesday evening, sailed from New York Jan. 21, and arrived at Shark's Point, Calais, River April 10, where she was seized by the English steamer Triton, and subsequently transferred to Commander Brent of Marston, who, on examination, became convinced that she was a slave-trader. He accordingly put a prize crew on board and ordered her home. A few days before the Orion sailed, the barques Ardenness and Emma Lincoln were also seized at Shark's Point by Commander Brent, and they would probably be sent home.

A Word for those who cannot speak for Themselves.
We sincerely wish we could stand by the side of every mother who has a child suffering from teething, and tell her what we know of the benefits and blessings to be derived from Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for her suffering child. We would tell her of the calm repose and refreshing sleep it would give the little sufferer—the magic change it would produce in regulating the bowels, especially at this season of the year when dysentery and diarrhoea, so common an attendant of the process of teething, are surely and steadily exhausting the vital energies of her child—that in it she would find a certain and never-failing relief and cure.

How earnestly would we plead for that little sufferer who cannot speak for itself! But as we cannot do this, we cannot forbear speaking to every mother through our little Visitor, and we now say to you: Take our word for it, we state that we do no and testify of what we have seen of the benefits of this invaluable prescription of an old and experienced nurse. Go then at once, and procure Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for your suffering child, and our word for it, you will thank us for this advice.—[Ladies' Visitor, N. Y.]

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, to be appreciated, must be used, and after it has been used it is sure to be appreciated.

An Irish Female Tenant.
'I'll trouble you for my month's rent, madam," said a landlord, last Monday, to one of his tenants. "Is it yer rent ye ax me for now?" "Yes, mam, two rooms, at seven-fifty cents per week, each." "Ah now, can't ye wait a little time?" "Sure the likes of ye must have a plenty of money," replied the woman looking at his thin bent form with great contempt. "But my dear woman, the money is due, and—" "Oh, murder! it is dearing me ye ax; an honest married woman and blissful mother of seven boys, each big enough to lick the life out of ye. Out o' me house, ye munster, and leave off trying the varse of a good woman," and unable to give vent to her indignation in words, she seized his coat collar and fairly threw him into the street. The owner intends to let an agent collect the rent of that house in future.

Manufacturers, Mechanics & Inventors.
The Scientific American is enlarged! A new volume—new series, to commence on July 24, 1859. Instead of 416 pages, the Yearly Volume, Enlarged Series, will contain eight hundred and thirty-two pages of valuable reading matter, useful and instructive to all classes.

The Scientific American is published weekly in quarto form, suitable for binding, and the numbers for a single year contains information in regard to New Inventions, Machinery, all branches of Agriculture, Engineering, Midwifery, Iron Manufacture, Chemistry; in fact, almost every industrial pursuit receives more or less attention in its columns.

All Patent Claims officially published every week, as reported from the Patent Office; and for Inventors and Patentees it contains information not to be obtained elsewhere, and which no mechanic, inventor or patentee can well do without.

As a Family Journal it has no superior for real practical utility, since its columns will be found useful practical receipts.

Careful attention will be given, from time to time, to reports of the Metal, Lumber, and other Markets.

Every number will contain sixteen pages and forty-eight columns of matter, with several illustrations of patented machines and other engravings, comprising in a single year almost six hundred original engravings.

With the enlarged series is presented an opportunity to subscribers not likely to occur again for many years. It will be like commencing a new work—Vol. I, No. 1, New Series.

Send in your subscriptions without delay, so as to begin the new volume—July 24 next.

Terms $2 a year—One dollar for six months—Southern, Western and Canadian money or Post Office stamps taken in part for subscriptions. Canadian subscribers will please to remit twenty-six cents extra on each year's subscription, to pre-pay postage. A liberal discount to clubs. A prospectus giving full particulars of the improvements for clubs, with specimen copies of the paper, and a pamphlet of information concerning the procuring of Patents may be had gratis, by addressing MUNN & CO., Publishers of the Scientific American, 37 Park Row, New York.

The Great European Remedy for Nervousness, Relaxation and Exhaustion.

Protected by Royal Letters Patent of England, and granted by all the great Continental Colleges of Medicine.

DR. DE ROOS' GUTTE VITE, or LIFE DROPS, are the great remedy for Spina Torches, Exhaustion, Nervousness, Debility, Astenia and Incapacity for Society, Stuttering, Shaking of the Hands and Limbs, Indigestion, Flatulence, Shortness of Breath, Asthma, Consumptive Habits, Dimness of Sight, Dizziness, Pains in the Head, Eruptions, and Inflammation of the Bowels, and all those diseases for which mercury, strychnine, &c. are so often employed, to the utter destruction of health. Their almost marvellous powers may be felt to be believed. Hundreds of apparently hopeless cases have been cured, and thousands almost miraculously relieved, when every thing else had failed; and they must sooner or later supersede all these questionable remedies which have hitherto been the sole reliance of English medical men.

Price II, and four times the quantity at 33s per bottle, of the Agents below. The 15 packages containing twelve 1/2 quantities, (by which 2 1/2 are saved.) will be sent from the Establishment only on receipt of the amount per draft on a London house or otherwise.

CAUTION—agents must guard against the recommendation of spurious or other medicines by unprincipled vendors, who thereby obtain a larger profit. The words 'MALTER DE ROOS, LONDON,' are printed in White letters on the Stamp affixed to the above, by order of His MAJESTY'S HONOURABLE COMMISSIONERS, to protect the public against fraud:—without this name can be genuine, and to imitate which is a crime.

A new, speedier, and most successful mode of treating Spina Torches, Nervous Debility, Stuttering, Shaking of the Hands and Limbs, Indigestion, Flatulence, Shortness of Breath, Asthma, Consumptive Habits, Dimness of Sight, Dizziness, Pains in the Head, Eruptions, and Inflammation of the Bowels, and all those diseases for which mercury, strychnine, &c. are so often employed, to the utter destruction of health.
