CHIGNECTO POST AND BORDERER
SACKVILLE N. B., OCT. 26, 1893.

CONTEMPT.

The law of libel is practically the same at Westminster, Washington, Ottawa and Fredericton; it is derived from the same sources and supported by the same line of decisions. There is, therefore no ambiguity or uncertainty as to the law, except in the minds of a lot of newspaper writers, who, without possessing any education or training in the principles of the law, pronounce judgment and condemn the Supreme Court, on facts that do not exist and for offenses that have not been committed. Sir John A. Macdonald a few years ago, referring to the rights of the judiciary, stated that judges must learn they are neither infallible nor immortal. They are not hedged around with any privileges or powers that exempt them from the criticism to which they are subject. If a judge commits any immoral or criminal act or misconduct himself in a way to offend the public, he is liable to the same public comment as other men.

There, a judge's judicial acts are subject to criticism in the press; the soundness of his law, the correctness of his logic, the character of his facts, the appropriateness of his precedents are all recognized as fair subjects for public discussion. But when the critic goes beyond these points and assails a judge's honor and says to him: "You are a corrupt man and are acting corruptly," (which was Mr. Ellis' offense) he is going beyond legitimate criticism, and is endeavoring to bring the judiciary into public contempt, and in such cases the judiciary is clothed with power to protect itself. The most dire confusion would result, if the law did not step in and protect a judge from insult and contumely in the discharge of his judicial functions. The judiciary would assume a start, and judges, if judges were obliged to go into the Courts and defend before juries, their judicial acts against every disappointed suitor that nursed a grievance. This is practically the stand taken by those who defend Mr. Ellis' attack on the public contempt, and in such cases the judiciary is clothed with power to protect itself. The most dire confusion would result, if the law did not step in and protect a judge from insult and contumely in the discharge of his judicial functions. The judiciary would assume a start, and judges, if judges were obliged to go into the Courts and defend before juries, their judicial acts against every disappointed suitor that nursed a grievance. This is practically the stand taken by those who defend Mr. Ellis' attack on the public contempt, and in such cases the judiciary is clothed with power to protect itself.

The Transcript quotes the decision of the Privy Council reversing the decision of the Nassau case, where Mr. Mosley an editor was imprisoned because he would not give up the name of a correspondent who had sharply criticised Chief Justice Tuck. The Transcript suppresses the fact that the Chief Justice was criticised not in his judicial capacity; but for his publicly expressed views in a public question outside of his business as judge and on this ground the Privy Council held there was no contempt of court.

The Transcript referring to the Post's statement that Mr. Ellis ought either to have been prepared with proof and justified or else retracted states that Mr. Ellis did not allow to produce proof or justify and— "It is characteristic of our contemporary's brilliancy to blame Mr. Ellis for not doing what he would have been allowed."

We are sorry to have to convict our contemporary for being as mendacious as he is reckless. He then submitted a number of interrogations to be answered by Mr. Ellis. Was Mr. Ellis in his replies found to be "very glad" of the opportunity afforded to acknowledge and justify his article. Let us see.

Fifth interrogatory. Do not the expressions in said article, "Judge Tuck," "Tuck," "partisan judge" and "prostitution of judicial authority" refer to, and were they not intended by the writer, to refer to his Honor Mr. Justice Tuck and to the granting of said order nisi for writ of prohibition?

Mr. Ellis first refused to answer the question then he said he couldn't answer it. The court then intervened and on the exceptions decided that he must answer the question. This was no answer. Mr. Ellis then swore that he could not make any other or better answer. The examiner said that he must answer.

Mr. Ellis then swore that the terms had no special reference to the order nisi for prohibition. Objection was again taken, whereupon Mr. Ellis swears he can make no other answer.

Counsel for the prosecution thereupon move the court that Mr. Ellis stand committed until he answer.

As the motion was about being made Ellis fainted and the matter was adjourned over for a couple of days.

On July 4th, 1893, counsel for the prosecution moved on the report of the examiner for Ellis' commitment for contempt for not answering the fifth interrogatory.

Mr. McLean for Mr. Ellis says cause against the motion to commit. Allon C. J. delivers the judgement of the court that the interrogatory has not been answered and that defendant stands committed until he answer.

Ellis here asks for a few minutes to answer, which was allowed him. Whereupon, notwithstanding his former refusal to the contrary, he swears as follows: "In using the expression 'partisan judges' and 'prostitution of judicial authority' in the article of March 11, 1893, I did not refer to, and did not intend to refer to Mr. Justice Tuck and to the granting of the order nisi for the writ of prohibition."

Thus it will be seen Ellis, so far from being "very glad" to justify, actually denied under oath his article referred to Justice Tuck at all. Will the Transcript now retract its statement that Mr. Ellis would have been very glad to justify? It will not.

When that paper lies it sticks to it manfully.

We had no intention of belittling Mr. Hawke's martyrdom to secure the freedom of the press from the base oppression of a tyrannical judiciary, and we do not accept the Transcript's statement that it endured nearly seventy instead of forty days. This happened years ago, but such is the power of the judiciary that no effort has been made to reform the flagrant wrong either at Westminster, Washington, Ottawa or Fredericton. The Fredericton jail where the martyr was immolated appeals in vain to the hangings of England. The wave of indignation that nearly swept Dorchester Corner off its feet, when Hawke's defence was made known swept around the capital at Washington without notice. And even Blair—our own devoted Blair—never introduced a bill in the House of Assembly of New Brunswick to remedy the gigantic evil, even if he had gone to the Legislature Council to kill it. Such is the cruelty of fate. Such is the gratitude of the populace. Such is the martyr's crown.

PART STRUGGLES—PRESENT PROSPERITY—AND FUTURE PROSPECTS.

ENCOURAGING EXHIBITS AND A FULL PRIZE LIST.

The Port and Westmorland Agricultural Society has not always enjoyed its present prosperity. The struggle for existence in the past has been at times severe, but present prospects promise a useful and creditable future under the energetic control of such men as the present officers. BUSINESS MEETING.—On Tuesday evening next a general business meeting of the Sackville Baptist Church will be held in the new vestry at the hour of seven o'clock. A full attendance of the members of the church and congregation, including ladies, is earnestly requested.

TRAMWAY BELONG.—The work on Tramway covered bridge is progressing rapidly and Mr. Killam believes the job will be completed within a month. The bridge will be 50 feet long at the bottom and running up above the high water mark are being placed on both piers. One of these girders is completed, one about half done and a third was launched Tuesday. These will be sheathed with hard wood. After the girders are in place the bridge will be raised and straightened. Fifteen men apart from workmen are employed.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.—The residence of W. W. Wells M. P., at Port Elgin, was destroyed by fire Monday morning. The fire caught from the cook stove. Nearly all the furniture was saved. There was even time to tear up the floor and remove the furnace a new one of the Crossman & Laws make which has just been put in. The insurance amounts to about $800 but the loss will be $1000. The house was built about ten years ago.

A SUCCESSFUL YEAR.—Port Elgin wooden mills have had a very busy season. Since their destruction by fire three years ago the business has righted grown up and increased.

Eighteen hands are now employed and twelve, including, hobs, yards, etc. manufactured. The country embracing from Tatamagouche to Shediac along the shore, the parish of Botsford and as far as Miramichi produces an abundance of wool. 40,000 lbs were manufactured last season. The market is largely local but not infrequently sales are made in St. John and Montreal.

FISHERY ITEMS.—Overseer Robert Goodwin, of Baie Verte, was at Wood Point recently investigating the case of certain fish caught in the Bay of Fundy, to discover whether they were some of the 8000 salmon fry which with the North Lakes at the head of Tantramar river were stocked this summer. About five hundred beautiful fish of four or five pounds each were captured, and it was proved beyond all reasonable doubt that they came from the North Lakes. An effort will be made to have an increased number of fry placed in the lakes and the success of the last attempt as well as the uniform success which attends such matters on the Miramichi would seem to warrant the trial. There is not a doubt now left on the Tidnish river matter will be resolved.

Base fishing this year has been scarcely so good as usual.

MR. ALLISON CONSERVATORY.—Next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock the director of the conservatory, Mr. Landon, will give a lecture on "Music and Women."

At Cape Tormentine.—Messrs. Rhodes, Curry & Co. of Amherst, have been awarded the contract to build the ice boat and life boat house at Cape Tormentine. The structure is to be thirty feet square, two stories, and will be erected near the new pier at that point. In the future passengers to the island by the ice-boat will be saved the two mile drive to Cape Jourdain to take the boats but will embark as soon as they arrive by the train and will shorten the journey by at least an hour. For summer traffic a freight shed is to be built at the slip on the pier and a fence or guard 100 feet long and 4 feet high along the exposed side of the pier will protect passengers who are landing on the other side from the water.

PAID AT RIVER HERBERT.—Early Sunday morning Collingwood Pugsley's new store near the railway station at River Herbert caught fire and was burned with its contents. There was no wind and the great exertions of the few men present and of the two Misses Corme, saved the station, Corme's hotel and other buildings. The freight shed was a victim and had caught fire but water was procured and the flames extinguished.

Ms. LIZZIE A. KNOWLTON, LIBERTY, ME.

She is the wife of a well known

Spring Hill manufacturer, W. A. Knowlton, who has been deceased to try "Grosvenor's" the knows that cured him of a bad attack of dyspepsia.

She says: "GENTLEMEN—

For several years I have been afflicted with dyspepsia and liver trouble. The least food I ate would distress me terribly and fill my stomach with gas. I was unable to do my work, and I was troubled with distressing headaches and neuralgia. My appetite was poor, and I had in fact my whole system seemed to be affected. I was unable to attend to my household duties. My physician and medical men gave me no relief, and I had just lost all faith in the ability of the request of my physician to cure me.

Respectfully,
