DELEGATES ARE IN FAVOR OF A LEAGUE OF NATIONS

PEACE ENVOYS UNANIMOUSLY DECIDE ON MOTION OF WILSON AND LLOYD GEORGE TO SET UP INTERNATIONAL ASSEMBLY

PARIS Jan. 25.—The peace conference to-day weathered its first storm and under the inspiration of a speech by President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George and skillful guidance by M. Clemenceau the chairman, unanimously adopted resolutions declaring for a league of nations. The conference also decided in favor of incorporating the league as an integral part of the general treaty of peace and admitting to the league "every civilized nation which can be relied on to promote peace and skillful direction."

Belgium, Serbia, Roumania, Portugal, Brazil, Siam, China and Czechoslovakia protested against the various countries being largely restricted to the general treaty of peace and admitting to the league "every civilized nation which can be relied on to promote peace and skillful direction."

Was Threatening

Although this was a cloud no bigger than a feather, it threatened at one time to grow into a general alignment of the small powers against the five great powers. This, however, was averted by M. Clemenceau's good temper and skillful direction.

The session has the same impressive dignity as the opening session, with a picturesque setting of Arabs and Indians in the turbans and tunics as well as the distinguished array of prime ministers and other world figures.

Although it had been intended that Premier Lloyd George would open the discussion on the league of nations, President Wilson had this honor. The president was followed by Mr. Lloyd George in a brief address and the resolution favoring the league was adopted without dissent after the proposal had been seconded by Premier Orlando for Italy, Paul Hyams for Belgium and Mr. Lu for China.

When the other resolutions were brought up and the protests of the representatives of the small powers were made M. Clemenceau made a plea for harmony and on his assurance that the supreme council would give attention to the viewpoint of the small nations all proposed amendments were withdrawn and the resolutions were adopted unanimously.

When the session opened it was addressed by President Wilson on the subject of a league of nations. The president declared the conference had solemn obligations to make a permanent settlement of the present conference and the president added could not complete its work until some further machinery of settlement could be set up.

"We are not here alone," he said "as representatives of governments but as representatives of peoples and in the settlements we make we need to satisfy not the opinions of governments, but the opinion of mankind."

President Wilson contended that a league of nations must be a vital thing and not casual or occasional. It must be a permanent thing.

"It should be the eye of nations, an eye which never slumbers," he declared. "It should be the eye which watches the people everywhere and has greeted the league as the first thing in their interest."

"Select classes of men no longer direct the business of the world," said the president, "but the fortunes of the world are now in the hands of the plain people."

The wish of the people, therefore must be heard. The war had swept away those old foundations by which small coteries had "used mankind as pawns in a game." Nothing but emancipation of the old system, he contended would accomplish real peace.

The president saw American soldiers in the street—soldiers who had come home as "recruiters in a great cause" and he added "and I like them, must be a crusader whatever it costs to accomplish that end."

After declaring that the conference was for the purpose of a settlement arising out of the war and to make peace for the world, President Wilson said:

"A league of nations seems necessary for both purposes. There are many questions which we feel cannot ultimately be worked out here, that they require subsequent consideration and subsequent alterations, even to some degree."

He described how the war burden was borne by the people as well as by the arms and said: "We are hidden by these sufferers to make peace secure for them and see to it that the strain need never be borne again."

At the conclusion of the reading of a translation of President Wilson's speech, Premier Lloyd George said:

"I rise to second this resolution after the noble speech of the American president. I feel that no observations are needed in order to commend this resolution to the conference and I should not have intervened at all had not been able during the last five years to devote as much time as they would like to its advocacy it is because their time and their energy have been absorbed in the exigencies of a terrible struggle."

"Had there been the slightest doubt in my mind as to the wisdom of this scheme it would have vanished before an irresistible appeal made to me by the spectacle I witnessed last Sunday I visited a region which but a few years ago was one of the most beautiful and exceptionally fair land. I found it in ruin and desolation. I drove for hours through a country which did not appear like the habitation of living men women and children, but like the excavation of a buried province shattered and torn. I went to one city where I witnessed a scene of devastation that no industry can ever repair—only the most beautiful things of the world disfigured and defaced beyond repair."

"And one of the cruellest features to my mind was what I could see had happened—that Franchmen who love their land almost beyond any nation, in order to establish the justice of their cause, had to see the cruel enemy in demolishing their homes, and I feel that these are the results—only part of the results."

Needs Safer Methods. "Had I been there three months ago

I would have witnessed something that I dare not describe but I saw scores of graves of the fallen and those were the results of the only methods the only organized methods that civilized nations have ever attempted or established to settle disputes amongst each other and my feeling was surely it is time that a safer plan for settling disputes between peoples ought to be established than this organized savagery."

"I don't know whether this will succeed, but if we attempt, it the attempt will be a success, and for that reason I second the proposal."

The Italian premier Vittorio Orlando, followed Mr. Lloyd George. He declared that no people were readier to accept the league of nations in its entirety than the Italian people.

Leon Bourgeois the veteran French supporter of the league of nations, spoke next, particularly urging the French to do everything "that can help to put us on the road which has been pointed out by President Wilson."

"I should like to ask," said Premier Hughes of Australia "if we are to have an opportunity to discuss this matter, I should like to see the resolution."

"Without any doubt," responded M. Clemenceau.

The Chinese delegates added the support to the resolution saying that China associated herself in the lofty ideals expressed. The Polish delegates and Camille Huysmans, head of the Belgian delegation added their strong approval.

Carried Unanimously. "Is there any objection to the resolution?" asked M. Clemenceau. There was no response and he declared the resolution unanimously adopted.

The conference having considered the proposals for the creation of a league of nations resolved that:

"It is essential to the maintenance of the world settlement which the associated nations are now met to establish that a league of nations be created to promote international obligations and to provide safeguards against the recurrence of the wars which are an integral part of the general treaty of peace and should be open to every civilized nation which can be relied on to promote its object."

"The members of the league should periodically meet in international conference and should have a permanent organization and secretaries to carry on the business of the league in the intervals between the conferences."

"The conference therefore appoints a committee representative of the associated governments to work out the details of the constitution and the functions of the league."

Breaches of Law. "The draft of the resolutions in regard to breaches of the laws of war or presentation of the peace conference reads:

"That a commission, composed of two representatives apiece from the five great powers be appointed to inquire into and report upon the following:

"First—The responsibility of the authors of the war.

"Second—The facts as to breaches of the laws and customs of war committed by the forces of the German Empire on British allies on land, on sea and in the air during the present war."

"Third—The degree of responsibility for these offenses attaching to particular members of the enemy's forces including members of the general staffs and other individuals, however high placed."

"Fourth—The constitution and procedure of a tribunal appropriate to the trial of these offenses."

"Fifth—any other matters cognate or ancillary to the above which may arise in the course of the inquiry and which the commission finds it useful and relevant to take into consideration."

On Reparation. The following draft of a resolution in regard to reparation for presentation to the conference was given out to-day:

"That a commission be appointed which shall comprise not more than three representatives apiece from each of the five great powers and not more than two representatives apiece from Belgium, Greece, Poland and Serbia to examine and report.

"First—On the amount of reparation which the enemy countries ought to pay."

"Second—On what they are capable of paying and

"Third—On the method the form and time within which payment should be made."

On Labor. The following draft of a resolution in regard to international legislation on industrial and labor questions for presentation to the conference was made public today.

"That a commission composed of two representatives apiece from the five great powers and five representatives to be elected by the other powers represented at the peace conference, be appointed to inquire into the conditions of employment from the international aspect and to consider the international means necessary to secure common action on matter affecting conditions of employment and to recommend the form of a permanent agency to continue such inquiry and consideration in co-operation with and under the direction of the league of nations."

"The draft of another resolution to go before the conference regarding international control of ports, waterways, and railways reads:

"That a commission of two representatives apiece from the five great powers and five representatives to be appointed to inquire and report upon the international regime for ports, waterways and railways."

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

THE CANTEEN

AROLINE, KATE and Susie had a wonderful idea. It was Caroline's idea really, as you might have guessed if you had known Caroline. She was just full of ideas! "Brother George is coming home," Kate had cried in great glee. "He's been mustered out!"

"Mustered out?" Susie asked in alarm.

"It only means he's to come home and needn't go back to camp any more," explained her friend. "Isn't that fine? And he has a right to wear his uniform for three months while he is finding a new job. And he's going to bring another soldier with him. A man named Thomas Barnes, who has hospital leave. That means he's been sick or wounded and they've excused him for awhile so he can go home, but he hasn't any home, he's an orphan, so Brother George is bringing him to our house. Isn't that dandy?"

"Dandy? I should say!" cried Susie, her braids shaking with excitement.

But Caroline looked very thoughtful and said nothing.

"Well?" demanded her friend.

"I just got a idea," Caroline said, rubbing her nose thoughtfully. "Seems to me if we're going to have soldiers pigtails over her shoulder and asked: "Well, how shall we begin?"

Now Caroline not only had ideas, but she was a clever little hand at carrying them out.

"First," she said, "we've got to make aprons and caps."

"I guess Rose'll help us make 'em," Susie said. "Rose is just a dear and never slips up like some of the sisters."

So they all three went to ask Big

"Game indeed!" thought Caroline indignantly, but she said nothing, because Rose meant well.

After the aprons were finished, the "Committee," as the three girls called themselves, went to look for a suitable place for their canteen. They found an old empty shed near the station which they thought would do. It was swept and cleaned and decorated with flags. Then Caroline borrowed a bot-

"Coffee, tea, cocoa; sausages, eggs and ham; sandwiches, ice cream and cake," read Caroline from the list she had made.

"How will we make all that?" asked Kate.

"Well, they won't ask for everything," answered Caroline, "and Mother says we can take things from home if we pay for them."

Brother George and Thomas Barnes arrived the day after the canteen was opened. They were met at the station by the family and on the way home Kate led them into the canteen. It was a very cold day so they said they would like some hot coffee and cake. Kate brought out sugar, milk and spoons and the cups, then she ran home for some cake. In a very little while two steaming cups of good coffee stood before the two soldiers.

"We'll be coming in again soon!" said Brother George, paying down twenty cents.

Well, well, well! Little did they dream what was coming. It was holiday time, so the little girls went to the canteen bright and early the next day and what did they find but a great crowd of soldiers around the shed?

"Please, we're cold and hungry!" explained one of the men. "There was an accident up the track and our train won't be able to start off again for three hours. Please hurry and give us a bite!"

Kate flew like a rabbit to her home and called her mother to help. Caroline lit her stove and put on water to boil and tied up her coffee in a muslin bag. Susie was taking the orders: "Forty ham and eggs; twenty coffee; thirty sausages—dear, dear! The pigtails stood straight out with dismay. There wasn't that much food in town, she was sure!"

But in a few minutes in bustled Kate with the three mothers, Rose and all the other girls and ladies in town. Thank goodness, they all brought something. Three hours later every soldier was gone—filled up and happy.

"My word!" cried Caroline. "Isn't it a good thing we had a canteen here?"

And everyone, even the sturdiest mothers, agreed that it was.

SOLDIERS WELCOME!

(She had to ask Rose how to spell "Canteen" and "Soldiers," and it did her good to learn how, because she never said "soldiers" again.) Then they hung up the board in front of their canteen.

For tables they used old barrels basted and hemmed and bustled about, doing all they could to help.

"What are you doing, dears?" asked Susie's mother peeping in the door of the sewing room.

"We're making caps and aprons," Rose answered. "The girls have invented a lovely new game!"

The Youth of a Great Man

OWARD the end of the fifteenth century in a certain hilly country in Italy, two little boys could be seen herding swine. Every now and then they would cross over to each other and talk in whispers in a very serious way. Their master was a strict man and when he caught the boys shirking their duties, threatened them with punishment and bade them remain out longer. In fact, in the dark, but no sooner was the master's back turned than they drove the cattle into the barn and cropt softly to their attic room. Whispering all the while, they packed their scant belongings into a little bundle and cropt softly out in the world. The world to them was Rome, and thither they went to look for work. Peter soon was employed as a cook's assistant in a Cardinal's house, but the other, Michael by name, was not so fortunate. He wandered from one place to another but always came back in the evening to share Peter's room, hopeless and sad. Michael used to enter many churches in his walks about Rome and the wonderful paintings on the walls fascinated him beyond expression. For hours he would stand in front of a decorated wall until he knew every line of the painting by heart.

One evening after Peter let him secretly into his room, Michael, who had found some bits of charcoal, began to draw odd pictures on the white-washed walls. This form of amusement was his nightly occupation, even after he had been employed to assist the cook in that very Cardinal's house. One day the Cardinal, while roaming through his house, chanced to enter Peter's and Michael's room and he was startled by the wonderful drawing on the wall. He sent for the two boys and said "Who's work is this?"

"I did them, Master, but if you won't punish me I will try to rub them out."

"Be not afraid of me," answered the Cardinal. "I like your work and I mean to send you to a man who can teach you the art of painting." Turning to Peter he said, "You, too, have been a good servant and I will advance you."

Have you guessed who the Michael was who began his great life's work in this humble, patient way? Yes, you are correct, it was no other than the world's greatest painter and sculptor, Michael Angelo.

While Michael Angelo was sculpturing his great statue of Moses, you know the one with the horns representing the rays of light radiating from his countenance, a friend who thought himself an art critic was watching him and he said: "I think your statue very fine, and I like it very much; but I think the nose too big. If I were you I would chop off a little of it."

Michael Angelo raised his chisel and mallet and off came a piece of marble and fell to the floor.

"How do you like it now?" asked the artist.

"Now it is fine, and I wouldn't touch it again."

"Have no fear," said Michael, "and be assured that I didn't touch the nose before. I had a piece of marble in my hand and I let it fall to test your critical ability. I, too, know when a work is right and I didn't propose spoiling this statue that has cost me so much time, and effort, for a whim of yours."

After that the critic wisely held his peace, and the Moses statue is still one of the world's masterpieces in marble.

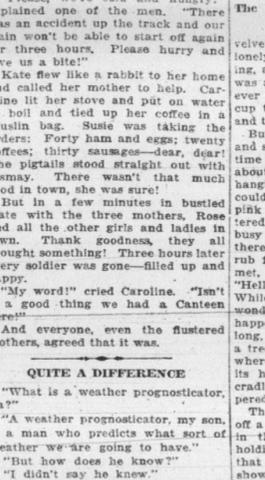

THE ACORN THAT THE SQUIRREL FORGOT

ONCE upon a time, a little brown acorn away up in the top of an oak got to wriggling around in the cup where it lived, until it got right loose, and one day when a wind came by and shook the branches, it tumbled out and fell down and down through the leaves to the ground below. It struck a rock and bounced up in the air like a rubber ball, and then went rolling down the hillside and finally came to a stop on a bed of there wasn't any mushroom left, and then he wiped his mouth with his paw, because squirrels do not have napkins, you know, and then he noticed the poor little undressed acorn trying to hide in the moss. Taking it up in his paws and turning it over and over, he sat up just as he did when he ate the little mushroom children's mother, and the acorn thought its time had come. But as the acorn was such a fine one, so smooth, and fat and juicy, and as he wasn't very hungry anyway, he decided that the acorn would taste mighty good some day in winter when food was hard to find, and when the ground was covered over with snow. So holding it tight in his teeth, he went to some place under a bunch of wood violets and there he dug up a little hole as you ever saw puffed the acorn down in it, covered it all up, and then patted the earth so smooth that no one would ever have dreamed that an acorn lay buried there.

Now this squirrel had buried so many acorns for his winter use, that he was just obliged to forget about some of them were hidden, and so it was with the acorn of this story—he forgot to come back for it. All winter long it lay there, just as " snug as a bug in a rug," and did not even know when the snow came and covered the ground inches deep with a great white blanket. The next spring the sun warmed the earth and the rain drops soaked down and kept the acorn and moist. Then a very strange thing happened: the little acorn had a queer feeling as if something inside was trying to get out, and while it was wondering what was the matter, its shell cracked open, and a very pale and a very tender little sprout began to push it way upwards, while a baby root started down in the earth to see what it could find to eat. By this time the sprout had reached the surface, and elbowing the grains of sand out of its way peeped out on a wonderful world of growing green things. Once out in the glorious sunshine, the little leaves that had been folded up like a fair umbrella, began to open, and very soon two little newly born oak leaves were turning green as they drank the sap the rootlet was sending up. Now all the baby oak had to do was to stay in one place and grow, and some day it would be a great spreading tree with wagon loads of leaves, thousand of acorns, and many places where the branches where birds could build their nests.

And all because the squirrel forgot where he buried an acorn.

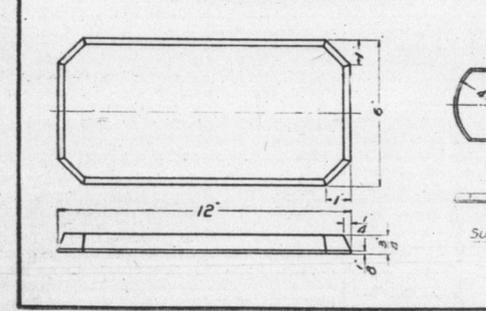

TOYS AND USEFUL ARTICLES THAT A BOY CAN MAKE. BY FRANK I. SOLAR

INSTRUCTOR, DEPT. OF MANUAL TRAINING, PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF DETROIT

BREAD BOARD

PAINT EDGE BLACK, AND DECORATE WITH NATURAL COLORS.

NEVER HAS there been such a call upon people to save food-stuffs as there is now. Our country will have to supply food for many people across the water for some time yet, and to be able to do so, we must save very carefully of what we have for our own use.

Bread has often been called the staff of life. It certainly is now. Mr. Hoover has asked that people make use of the bread board. Where bread is cut in the kitchen and brought to the table, it is difficult to tell how much to cut, with the result that often there are several slices left over. These dry out quickly and are usually thrown away, as no one wishes to eat dry bread. If the bread is placed directly on the dining table, it can be cut as needed up with a circular or an oval shape if desired. Those shown have proven very satisfactory, as they conform to the shape of the average leaf of bread. Of course, there are no hard and fast rules governing these. The dimensions may also be changed to suit, the most important part being that you observe the suggestions regarding the decoration—proper space allowance, etc.

Whatever design is selected, be very careful that you have your work accurate. For instance, in the design having the corners cut off, be sure the chamfers meet uniformly all around. Note that the chamfer is made quite deep with reference to the thickness of the board. A small chamfer would allow but a small decorative space and the result would not be effective. This is important to remember if you decide to use different designs than the ones presented.

APPLE HONEY

Save the peelings and the perfect cores from twelve apples. Wash and put on to cook with one pint of water. Cook slowly till the water seems to be about half boiled away. This will take at least 25 minutes, slow cooking may be longer. Strain through a fine sieve. Press gently with a broad spoon so be sure to get all the juice.

THE JUNIOR COOK

Measure the juice. There should be a cupful or more. Put the juice into a saucepan and add three-quarters as much sugar as you have juice. Stir till sugar is dissolved. Put over the fire and cook till the juice drips like syrup from under a spoon. Pour at once into a jelly glass. This is delicious for sandwiches, or eat on bread after school.

CONSTRUCTION OF MARKET ROADS

One of the things done at the County Council's inaugural meeting was to instruct the road superintendent to prepare an estimate of the cost of roads during 1919 and submit the same to the Department of Provincial Highways.

Since this municipality is a partner of the county in the market roads project, it will be permissible for us to make a suggestion regarding expenditures upon them.

There was a two-fold reason for enlisting the aid of urban municipalities in the construction of market roads: the one to make it easier for farmers to bring their produce to market and the other to have city folks, who nowadays freely use interurban roads, contribute towards their construction and upkeep. In addition it may have been conceived that urban communities, which usually have better roads, would encourage the building of a good class of highways.

In 1917, this city contributed $1000 to the improvement of the Bridgeport road. It was coated with gravel and rolled but before winter showed signs of wear and already stands in need of further improvement.

The point the Record wishes to make is that only permanent improvements should hereafter be made on suburban roads. When the city expends $1000 on a market road, the county spends another $1000 and the province $500. In every case where the three appropriations are expended on a given stretch the outlay is $2500, for which we contend value cannot be received from gravel or even macadam.

These kinds of road will simply not withstand the traffic. Motor driven vehicles have so multiplied and bear so heavily upon roads, that after twelve months' use they are again in a worn condition and ready for further tinkering.

Experiments made should convince observers that gravel and macadam roads are nowadays the most expensive roads municipalities can construct. A better class of highway material is needed. Otherwise the interested municipalities will be obliged to be continually improving them and not get anywhere.

Admittedly, concrete, for example, costs more at the outset. Twice or three times as much as gravel or macadam. But when completed, you have a permanent highway, which will not call for any expenditure for maintenance for the next fifteen or twenty years, whereas the older kinds are one or two-year roads, upon which upkeep begins at the end of the first twelvemonth and after two years again stand in need of improvement.

Taking the Bridgeport road, were the county and city to decide that they could not afford to construct a concrete roadway over its entire length in one year, let them spread it over two or three years. They would thus receive something worth while for the outlays. On the other hand, the provision of employment may render it necessary to build this and other roadways in one year.

At St. Jacobs, the county road superintendent supervised the building of a concrete street. It proved so desirable that another road has since been similarly improved. Eating has proved the concrete pudding to be good.

Cities which are contributing to suburban roads, believing that some of their money is being frittered away, have applied to the legislature for an amendment which would prevent their contributions being spent on cutting weeds and more or less on unwise repairs.

The kernel of the situation is that gravel and macadam are, as far as interurban and market roads are concerned, obsolete. It does not pay to lay them down and their maintenance costs too much. What is worth doing at all is worth doing well.

The matter of furnishing work for the unemployed during 1919 may or may not become a problem in the county. Should the necessity arise, a permanent roadway from Elmira to the Wentworth boundary may offer one opening. Building this highway would have the merit of being its usefulness. It is more necessary than some of the work schemes tentatively advanced.

AN EXHIBITION BUILDING

Good cheer is to be found in the announcement that Mr. Jacob Kaufman plans to erect an eight or ten story office building as soon as conditions warrant and that he is prepared to provide therein space which can be utilized as exhibition quarters.

Building costs, and having certain factory iron in the fire, will prevent it being erected during 1919 but should the furniture men evince an interest in the matter, there is a possibility of its being proceeded with in 1920.

Given an assurance that it would, after being constructed, be generally used, there is no question of its being made right and ample for the purposes to which it would be put. Mr. Kaufman whenever he undertakes anything, does things up to the hilt. In this case he can be relied upon to supply the best class of exhibition space, providing the furniture men will agree to utilize it.

They have long desired such a building. Its cost, in view of being brought into use once or perchance twice a year, has deterred the furniture men from making the outlay entailed. A building used only for furniture exhibitions, would eat its head off. Mr. Kaufman's plan to combine it with an office building offers a practical solution.

Once a suitable exhibition building is obtained, may the footwear interests of these two communities not find it advantageous to take a leaf from the furniture men's book and hold annual or semi-annual exhibits? American shoe manufacturers have found exhibitions to be profitable.

Proceeding a step farther, other lines may decide that a permanent industrial exhibit a business bringer.

The most important consideration is presently that Mr. Kaufman will be, in the near future, prepared to erect a block wherein ample space can be secured for the furniture industries and other lines of manufacture, providing they will confer as to the amount of space required and agree to use it.

The custom of lifting the hat had its origin when knights never appeared in public except in full armor, but upon entering an assembly of friends the knight removed his helmet, the act signifying, "I am safe in the presence of my friends."

The world's most famous pictures are those dealing with the birth and episodes in the life of Christ. The reason for this is that the Madonna and the Holy Child was the most popular subject among the world famous painters of the middle ages.

The little island of St. Kilda, the most remote of the Hebrides—attacked by a German submarine last May—is one of the healthiest of all the British Isles. It is only when the supply ship arrives there, that it does two or three times in the summer, that anything happens. Then the whole population catch cold, and are ill for about four days.

History records surrenders that have been little less glorious than victories. When, for example, Osman Pasha, after holding the village of Plevna for five months with a handful of troops against a quarter of a million of Russia's picked soldiers, was at last compelled to hoist the white flag, he was greeted by Cza Alexander with this well-earned tribute to his valor: "Sir, I congratulate you on your fine defence. It was one of the most splendid feats in the history of war."

Fiction fails to provide such remarkable stories of strange meetings as some brought about by the war. Twelve years ago the eldest son of an English doctor quarrelled with his father and emigrated to Canada. He held no communication with his family, and when the war broke out, joined up. Last summer, near the close of the great conflict, he was badly wounded, and the doctor who attended to him at the casualty clearing station proved to be his own father, the meeting resulting in a happy reconciliation.

"Rock Island Yard Master Testifies"

Wife Gains Twenty Pounds Taking "Without It" He Says

Stiff another widely known and popular railroad man comes forward with his unqualified endorsement for Tanlac. This time it is J. D. Blatherwick, yard master for the C.P. & P. in Kansas City, Kansas, who resides at 341 South 11th Street that city. "My wife has actually gained twenty pounds in weight since she began taking Tanlac," said Mr. Blatherwick, in an interview recently "and has benefited so much in every way that I am glad to make this statement, which I hope will be the cause of others who may be suffering as she did getting relief."

"She has been in such a nervous, run-down condition for the past two years that she was confined to her bed a great deal of the time. She was subject to frequent attacks of sick headaches and often had spells of dizziness. She also suffered intense pain from the gas on her stomach, pains in her back and what seemed to be a complete nervous breakdown. She also had a severe attack of influenza, which left her so weak she could hardly stand up."

"She has been wonderfully benefited by Tanlac. In fact I consider it remarkable the way she has been built up, for she is almost like a different person. She has been relieved entirely of stomach trouble, headache and backache. I am delighted more than I can tell with what Tanlac has done for her and we would not be without it now for anything. It is by far the best medicine she has ever taken. Tanlac is sold in Kitchener by E.O. Ritz & Co., in Galt by R.W. Meikleham, in Hespeler by Jno. R. Phin, in New Hamburg by W.B. Bouillon, in Milbank by R.B. Hamilton, in West Montrose by A.E. Richert & Co., in Preston by H.L. Erick, in Waterloo by A.B. Learn, in Doon by L.C. Bullock.

Notes From The Collegiate Halls

We are sorry to have to report the indisposition of Sergt.-Major Phillips. He has applied for, and has been granted leave of absence for a few weeks, to attend a military hospital.

The services of Private Elvey, whose home is in Kitchener, have been secured by the Public School and Collegiate Boards to carry on the work of the boys' physical culture instructor.

Our aviators are coming home to roost, so to speak. Three of our boys, who have made names for themselves in the service of the Royal Air Corps, are back to their classes in the collegiate. The latest arrival is Roy Connor, who paid Kitchener a 'flying' visit last Decoration Day.

The Literary Society held a very interesting meeting last week, the feature of which was the first debate of the season for the Society's shield.

The subject debated was, "Resolved that the sailor endured greater hardships during the Great War than did the soldier." The affirmative was upheld by Miss McKellar and David Grigg, of Form 1B, while the argument for the soldier was presented by Miss Milhansen and Miss McFadyen, of Form 1A.

The judges, Miss Dunham, Mr. Pugley and Mr. Brown, decided in favour of the affirmative.

Other numbers on the programme were an address by Miss B.M. Dunham, of the public library, a piano solo by Miss Anna Hymmen, and an interesting number of the Grumbler, read by Miss Ruth Beechler.

The Literary Executive has organized a canvass for funds for the Patriotic Fund. The students are noted for their liberal giving, and will no doubt be able, at the close of the three months' campaign, to make quite a substantial grant to each of the local branches.

The girls of the collegiate are nothing if not athletic. They reorganized recently for the season by electing the following officers:

Hon. Pres.—Miss S. Jones.
 Hon. Vice-Pres.—Miss B. Mallory.
 President—Lillian Snider.
 Vice-Pres.—Jessie Cochrane.
 Secretary—Margaret Green.
 Treasurer—Ruth Beechler.
 Coach—Florence Mueller.
 Rooter Extraordinary—Hildah Meritt.

For the present basketball is to be the game, and a team was chosen to challenge for the Whyte Cup. Practices are being conducted at St. Mary's hall, and it would appear that a strong team will be entered in the League.

Boys' sports are languishing just at present, owing to the scarcity of good ice. Last Saturday we should have played Galt here and today we should have been at Paris. Possibly we may have good ice in April. Later in the season the boys will take on Guelph and Galt for a few games to basketball.

The afternoon train yesterday carried away a hopeful jubilant crew of girls, who had heard of a girls' basketball club in Stratford that had aspirations for Whyte Cup honours. Our girls have aspirations also, hence the argument. By the time this appears in print the result of the argument will be known. The girls and their supporters are being accompanied by Miss Jones and Mr. Erb, both of whom have helped considerably to make the team a formidable one. The members are the Misses Winnie and Lillian Snider, Miss Eileen Clark, Miss Jessie Cochrane, Miss Lorene Bender and Miss Florence Mueller.

"When a Child Droops"

Hurry, mother! Relieve the little stomach, liver and bowels of souring food, bile and poisons. Look at the tongue! Children love to take harmless "Cascarets" because Cascarets taste like candy—only 10 cents!

Children droop and wither like tender flowers if you permit bile, sour fermentations and constipation poison to be absorbed into the system. When a child's tongue is white, breath feverish, stomach sour, you can always depend upon good, safe "Cascarets" to gently but thoroughly clean the clogged-up places. Children love to take Cascarets, the candy cathartic which never gripes, never injures, never disappoints. Each 10 cent box contains directions and dose for children aged one year old and upwards.

Theft Charges Disposed Of. Two charges of theft and one of shop-breaking and theft were disposed of in the Police Court today. Several charges of receiving stolen goods were also disposed of.

Stanley Federook who last week was found guilty in the Waterloo Police Court of shop-breaking and the theft of cloth which he sold to a local party, was sentenced to three years in the Reformatory at Kingston.

In the out case, Albert Stricker, who had previously pleaded guilty to a charge of the theft of oats in Seagram's barn, Waterloo, was sentenced to one month in the county goal and was fined $25, and in case this is not paid an additional one month would have to be served.

The counsel for the defendant, Mr. H. J. Sims, pointed out that the defendant had a good record and he pleaded for leniency.

Harold Randall, who had pleaded guilty to the charge of taking some sugar from Messrs. Dunke & Co. and selling it was fined $20 with an alternative of one month in jail until the fine is paid.

The defendant is only seventeen years of age and the court considered this fact and also that of his previous good record.

The charges against David Busch and Reuben Hilker, who were with Randall, when the sugar was delivered, were dismissed, the evidence not showing that they were implicated or that they knew anything about it.

In the matter of the soap charges, fines of $25 with an alternative of one month in jail were imposed on George Trussler and Reuben Hilker.

When the former paid the fine he asked whether this would prevent his appealing the case and he was told it would not.

The counsel for the last named, Mr. E. W. Clement, in reviewing the charges against them of receiving stolen goods, considered the evidence by the three boys as such to warrant recognition of the fact that there had been no activity on the part of the two defendants after the boys had left the soap with them. A considerable part of the youth's evidence was denied by the defendants. If the court should accept the fact that there was only neglect on the part of the defendants and nothing which made their act serious.

In all cases the crown was represented by Mr. D. S. Bowly, the Crown Attorney.

Power Interruption. Hydro power was off for several minutes shortly after eight o'clock this morning.

FAIRCHILD LADIES' QUARTETTE

What promises to be one of the really enjoyable musical events of the season is the visit to the city, this week, of the Fairchild Ladies' Quartet—a musical organization made up of four talented members of one family.

After following, successfully, concert work with other organizations, these young ladies have been organized as a quartet and are appearing under the Redpath Bureau auspices, which of itself is a sufficient guarantee of its excellence.

The program includes a pleasing variety of vocal solos and duets, trios and quartet numbers, interspersed with readings and monologues by Miss Lela Fairchild. The charming personality of these young ladies also at once wins their audience and the concerts they have given thus far this season throughout Ontario, are praised by the press and people in very high terms.

Among the press notices is the following from the Logansport, Indiana, Reporter: "Each member of the organization is an artist of stellar ability. In solo and ensemble numbers alike were the members altogether delightful, and the succession of musical numbers, both instrumental and vocal, in solo and combination ran the gamut of classical and popular numbers, pleasing the tastes of all. Interspersed with these numbers were readings and whistling numbers that lent spice and flavor to the whole program. Encores came thick and fast and the members of the musical organization responded in a manner that only added to their popularity and whetted the appetite of the audience for more. At the Roma next Wednesday night. Seat plan now open.

Growing Potatoes in Winter. An illustration of how potatoes may be grown in the soil without stalks, as is the case in some European countries, was seen by the Record on Saturday afternoon, when a Wellington street resident had in his possession the parent potato and the potatoes grown from it in his cellar soil. The potato grown in 1917, was planted in October 1918 and by this month ten or more little potatoes had grown from it. One disadvantage under which the potatoes were was the fact that the cellar is not warm; otherwise the potatoes would have attained a larger size.

In speaking about this method of raising tubers the citizen stated that it is essential that the potatoes should not sprout before they are planted. In connection with the idea of growing potatoes in this way the informant expressed himself pleased with the value of the local library. The suggestion which he tried out was found in a volume at the institution.

A feature of the services at the New Jerusalem Church yesterday was a sermon in the evening on "The Mission of Emmanuel Swedenborg (1688-1772). The Servant and Revelator of the Lord Jesus Christ in His second coming." The pastor ably expounded the subject which was very interesting and helpful.

In the morning a Young Peoples' Service was held, also conducted by the pastor.

The men's society of St. Peter's Church, celebrating its third anniversary attended the morning service in a body. The regular services were held, the pastor, Rev. Dr. H. Sperling, conducting the same both morning and evening.

At St. Mary's Church the usual services were held morning and evening. At St. Matthew's Church, Rev. C. C. J. Maass, city, occupied the pulpit at the morning service. In the evening,

OUR OLD FRIENDS, W.A.A.C.'S, STILL IN BUSINESS.—No Christmas time that is on record was ever celebrated in Britain with so much real festive spirit as that of 1918. For the first time four years' family and friendly reunions took place without fear of terrible partings in immediate prospect. Boys and girls "on leave" were the centre of countless home gatherings. The photograph shows had girls arriving home for the holiday in London.

SKATE JUICE

By Dan

"A good team in condition beat a better team not in condition," said Manager Harry Wismer in summing up the game against Newman Hall in Toronto on Saturday night.

"They beat us 6 to 2 and celebrated, but our turn is coming, and when we meet them again if we don't reverse the score, I'll eat my hockey stick," said one of the players.

In the first period the Champs broke through the La Flamme Woodcock defense five times, but through being over anxious failed to register.

In the second and third frame condition told its tale, and our boys began to fade.

Had there been ice at the local rink so that the team could practice the Newmans would have had less chance than the proverbial snowball.

"Snoozer" was the star for the Champs, and started many brilliant rushes. Once he went through and registered, Hiller, a few minutes later, added the other tally for the Champs.

George Hainsworth played a great game and handled the Newman's barrage in the second and third periods in a manner that aroused the admiration even of the Toronto fans.

On Wednesday night the Champs meet the Saint Patricks in Toronto, and the Saints are due for the surprise of their lives for they are due for a defeat.

The boys stopped over in Toronto for a practice yesterday, and to-day between 11 o'clock and noon they were out on the local ice.

Arrangements have been made for a G.P.&H. car to meet the C.P.R. train from Toronto at Galt to bring the fans home after the game Wednesday night. No doubt this convenience will be taken advantage of by several hundred fans who will go to Toronto to encourage the boys in the big battle.

With his visit to Brantford yesterday "Knotty" Lee has completed his trip in Western Ontario in the interests of the Canadian League. He finds everywhere enthusiastic for baseball wherever he visits. His opinion is that the game was never so certain of success on an organized basis in Brantford, Hamilton, Guelph, London, Kitchener, St. Thomas and elsewhere as this year.

HE IS NOT WELCOME Few spectators will congratulate Jess Willard on getting $100,000 win, lose or draw, in his July bout for the championship. Willard refused to box for the United States soldiers, for the Salvation Army Fund, for the Red Cross or for the sportsmen's contribution to the United War Work Campaign.

Kitchener Lose To Newman Hall 6-2

TORONTO OPINION OF THE GAME Newman Hall sprang a great surprise when they defeated Kitchener on Saturday night by the score of 6 to 2. After having shown against St. Patrick's it was freely predicted that Brennan's team would make the Allan Cup holders hustle, but it is doubtful if any of their supporters expected them to win so easily. Led by Jerry Laflamme, the garnet and grey carried the attack to their opponents from the outset and showed a marked superiority that was nothing short of remarkable. The winners still have a chance to win the group honors, and they will prove a hard team to defeat in all future contests. The game, which attracted a crowd of nearly 5,000 spectators, proved decidedly interesting. Kitchener, it is true, did not play up to form, and were unable to keep up with the terrific pace set by their opponents. In the initial period they made their strongest bid, but thereafter the locals clearly outplayed them. Newman Hall have shown wonderful improvement in the past few weeks, and they are now a formidable aggregation. The acquisition of Kilpatrick has materially strengthened them in centre ice.

Jerry Laflamme was the outstanding star on Saturday night. It is safe to say that never since the days when St. Michael's were in their prime has the veteran shown to such good advantage. He checked, and blocked in telling style and his rushes were irresistible. Laflamme scored two goals, assisted in another couple and only ill-fortune robbed him of several more. He was given a great hand by the crowd.

Ingoldby Plays Well Ingoldby of last season's De la Salle juniors, was also prominent. He played his position well and was always on hand to take a pass. He worried Hainsworth with his bullet-like shots, and in the final period scored two well-earned goals. Dopy also showed good form, and his clever work when on the offensive proved an effective factor in his team's success. Woodcock, Kilpatrick and Collett turned in useful games, the last named making many spectacular saves.

Both teams had two substitutes in uniform, but very seldom used them. Merrick and Masters were on the Kitchener bench, but the latter was not used at any stage. Merrick played the defence and played clever hockey while he was on, but for some unexplained reason he was kept in reserve in the final period when his services were most needed. Kitchener at no time showed the grand form that carried them through to the top last season. All of the players, with the exception of Trushinski, tired badly and in the final period Parkes in particular, appeared on the verge of collapse. When Karges was given a penalty near the close of the contest, Parkes left the ice voluntarily and sent Merrick in to replace him, but his respite was short-lived, because when Karges returned the leg-weary Kitchener captain came on again.

Hiller made many determined efforts to get his team mates going, but without success. The erstwhile Kitchener star was closely checked all evening, and was unable to bulge the twice behind Collett. Trushinski stood up well under the fast pace, and played the most useful game for the visitors. His work both offensively and defensively, was up to the mark and he never gave up trying from beginning to end.

Karges is Clever Stick-Handler Karges did some clever stick-handling, but his failure to pass the puck cost his team many opportunities to tally. Hillman has been in the initial period he attempted to body-check Woodcock and as a result got a bad toss which did not help him any.

Play was very even in the first ten minutes with both teams having several opportunities to tally. Newman Hall forced the play for the balance of the period and the Kitchener players began to show signs of distress. However, good work by Hainsworth prevented the locals from scoring.

Newman Hall out out a terrific pace in the second session. On an end-to-end rush Laflamme scored the first goal of the match. Five minutes later he went down again and passed to Dopy, and the latter drove the disc past Hainsworth. The applause that greeted this achievement had hardly subsided when Woodcock added another, making the score at the end of the second period 3 to 0 in favor of Newman Hall.

Newman Hall continued their good work in the concluding session and outscored the Allan Cup holders 3 to 2. Laflamme and Ingoldby tallied for Newman Hall, while Trushinski and Hillman did the trick for the losers. The Newman Hall goal, Collett; defence, Woodcock and Laflamme; right wing, Ingoldby; left wing, Dopy; centre, Kilpatrick. Substitutes, Doyle and Quain.

WARM PRAISE FOR THE ARMY Returned Soldiers in Hospita as Salvationists Were Ever Ready To Help

Testimony as to the good work the Salvation Army is doing for returned soldiers and has done for the men at the Toronto General Hospital who are still suffering from the effects of wounds. One of the military police who has been doing duty in Toronto since 1916 is John Thornton of the 19th Battalion. "I always direct the boys to the Salvation Army Hostel," he says, "because I know that the Salvationists would put them up if they didn't have a cent and very often they didn't. I know the Salvation Army has done a great deal for our returned boys. In England if a chap had only sixpence he could go into an Army hostel or hut and get fried eggs and coffee."

Lance-Corporal John Booth of the 20th Battalion has been home since June 1916. Speaking of the service rendered by the Salvation Army in England he says that frequently at West Sandling Camp he got two eggs with bacon bread and butter tea and pie for ninepence. At any of the regular eating houses at Hythe nearby the price was two and sixpence and if you went in and did not have the price the Army would tell you that you could pay when you got it. It was wonderful he said what the Army did for the boys in the front line—free socks free coffee and many little extras were always being handed out and it was good to see the Salvationists.

Private J. Wemyss who went over seas with the 124th Battalion states that the Salvation Army is doing wonderful work among the boys in the various hospitals. Private Wemyss is suffering from a lame foot the result of a wound received at the front. He says the Salvation Army places a limousine at the disposal of the soldiers in the General Hospital and this act is very much appreciated. He describes the work of Captain McElheney (Chaplain) who is a Salvationist as "Great."

Gunner S. Heller of the R.C.H.A. who returned to Canada on Nov 23rd, and is a patient in the military ward of the General Hospital relates that when in France for six or seven months he had received no mail from home. A tremendous effort he finally went to the Salvation Army Chaplain at Etaples who sent a cable to the Army in Toronto and in a very short time a return cable was received giving full information. The Army would not accept a cent for this service and a follow-up letter from Commissioner Richards himself giving further particulars came in due course. Heller who is a Jew is warm in his praise of the Salvation Army in France "I have seen fellows go to the Salvation Army hostel when they were broke and they would be always cheerfully received and given whatever they needed."
