English long distance riders are said to use raisins to keep up their strength during the long contests. An English rider recently expressed surprise that the American riders did not use them, and said that they were in constant use abroad. They are said to have great reviving qualities, and a prominent English physician recently wrote a long treatise on their efficiency in this respect, and strongly recommended them.

BASEBALL SUNDAY BALL

Rev. Dan F. Bradley dealt Sunday baseball one of those funny cork-screw, knock-out blows in a sermon at the Park Church, says the Grand Rapids, Mich., Press. We cried for a winning team, and because we had not one laid it to the fact that the men were put on the diamond seven days in the week. He is quoted as follows: "We have struggled for years to have a nine that people can take some pride in, but who has ever been proud of our ball nine? Have they ever won games? Have they ever distinguished our city? Why, we have made these men play during seven days in the week, and the result has been that they could not play. No team can do its best work without rest."

CANADIAN AMATEUR LEAGUE. Waterloo, April 9 .- The annual meeting of the Waterloo County Baseball its place the Canadian Amateur Baseball League was formed, to be composed of purely amateur players from Guelph, Stratford, Hespeler, Galt, Berlin and Waterloo. The following officers were elected: Honorary president, E. Seagram, M. P., Waterloo; president, Mr. Shaw, Hespeler; vice-president, P. Davey, Berlin; secretary-treasurer, Tom Cockman, Galt; executive to consist of the president and one representative of each club. The umpires appointed subject to executive approval were Bob Mitchell, Galt; J. Murphy, Hespeler; S. Dyson, Guelph; J. Rutherford, Stratford; W. Thompson, Galt; H. Rathman, Berlin. Each club must deposit $25 when joining the league, the amount to be forfeited in case they disband before the close of the season. The executive meets on or before the 22nd of April to draw up the schedule of home and home games.

scoring rules this year. In scoring base hits or errors on infield drives the new rules recommend discretion when balls are hit so sharply that fielders are unable to handle them cleanly. Rather than score errors, the rules suggest that base hits should be credited to the batsmen in such cases. Sergt. Hennessy14 nail a base stealer and the ball goes the backstop unless the runner gets to third on the play. Another point made clear is the necessity for giving assists to all players who handle the ball while running down an opponent between bases. It is also stipulated that a player who makes a palpable assist, even if the play is not completed because of an error, must receive credit for what he alone accomplishes. In no case can a base hit be scored when a base runner has been forced out by a play. This will do away with policy of some scorers in allowing a hit to a batsman who could have beaten out an infield drive which, how-number of innings each pitcher occupled the box and the number of base hits made off him must be inserted. together with his record in bases on balls, wild pitches, balks, and "hit by pitcher." The summary must be wound up with the names and positions of each umpire. It is believed by some baseball men that some day not far off the rule makers will decide to abolish the error column. There are so many players who hate to make errors that the existence of such a column in tabulated scores has often served to make them "play safe." By that is meant the ability to make easy chances look difficult to the spectators and to let hard plays go unchallenged. Because of such practices advocates of the no-error column believe that its abolishment would make all players Pte. J. Wilson..... exert themselves to their utmost ca- Pte. Freeland......34

DOCTORS CIVE HIM UP.

[From the Sherbrooke Gazette.] When a man faces what medical and regains health and strength, he is naturally grateful to the medicine that has restored him. Such a man is Mr. James Owen, one of the best known farmers in the vicinity of Johnville, Que. Mr. Owen tells his story as follows: "On the 17th of December, 1894, I was attacked with la grippe. A week later the trouble developed into monia in its worst form, and I did not leave my bed until the first of March, 1895, and then I was so weak that I was unable to walk alone. All winter my life hung in the balance. Summer came, and I was still weak and feeble, though with the warm weather I gained a little strength. I had, however, but very little power in my legs, and I could not ride a mile in a buggy, owing to the pain they caused me. My lungs also troubled me, and I raised a great deal of matter. I then consulted the best doctor we had in this section of the province. He told me candidly that I was past medical help. He said that my left lung was in a state of collapse, that that my right lung was also affected. This was in July, 1895. For the next three months every day seemed to draw me nearer and nearer the end. I was so pressed for breath at times that I could not walk any distance without stopping to regain it. In the month of November I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It was certainly a forlorn hope, and I admit I did not expect much benefit from them, but took them rather to please a friend who urged me to do so. The result is they have made a well man of me. I have not a pain about me. My breath comes as freely as it ever did, and I am strong and vigorous. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have given me a new lease of life, and I am glad to let everybody

Notwithstanding her growing weakness she persisted in attending school, until one day her teacher advised her to go home, and not to return until she felt better. At the same time the teacher, who knew the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in such cases, advised her to take them. The advice was followed, and Mrs. Sweeney told our reporter that almost from the outset there was an improvement in her daughter's condition. Her appetite became better, the color returned to her face, and the severe headaches that had made her so miserable vanished, and she is now feeling better than she has done for many months. SCIATIC RHEUMATISM.

[From the Napanee Beaver.] The life of one afflicted by rheumatism it at times almost unbearable. The sufferer is racked with pain until he thinks even death would be a relief from this painful malady. Among those who have suffered much and found relief is Mr. Samuel Sparks, a market gardener well known in Nap-

related to a reporter how he was restored to health and strength. He said: "For several years I have been a great sufferer from rheumatism in my limbs. The doctor who attended me caled it sciatic rheumatism, and the trouble was always worse in the spring than at any other season. In the spring of 1895 I had a very severe attack, and was much worse than I had ever been before. I was not able to do work even of the lightest kind. I suffered the greatest agony and could get no relief either sitting up or lying down. At times I was as helpless as a little child, for my legs felt as though they had become paralyzed. Then the trouble seemed to settle in my bowels, and the doctor said it was consumption of the bowels, and that I could not live much longer. As the doctor could do nothing for me I determined to make another fight for life and try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I felt that even if they would give me relief it would be a blessing. Great was my astonishment, however, when within fortyeight hours after beginning the use of the pills I found relief. I kept on taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, every day growing stronger and stronger, until at last I was a new man, and again able to do as hard a day's work as any man in the township. I cannot praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too much. as in my case they restored health after all other means had failed."

and Lord Aberdeen.

[Special Cable Letter to The Advertiser.]

London, April 9.-The world's Easter egg, as in 1897, has a war shape, giving the holiday makers of Great Britain an unusually interesting subect to talk about. Although the reguar exodus of cabinet ministers has occurred, in view of the precarious nature of the Hispano-American relations and the threatening clouds in the far east, it has been decided not to take too great an advantage of Easter. Therefore the ministers will not go far away from the telegraph offices, and their bureaus will be open day and night.

The annual turnout of the volunteers has also taken place, about 16,000 of them having gone to the Easter maneuvers, and a pig pleasure tour has been undertaken by the automobile club and by hundreds of thousands of bicycle riders, who are enjoying the most balmy weather. EFFECTS OF WAR ON BRITISH COMMERCE. There is quite a scare here in regard to the dangers British commerce will be exposed to in the event of war, but at the admiralty and at the war office it is claimed that the fears expressed are practically groundless. It is pointed out that though the belligerents are not bound by the treaty of Paris, the belligerents' action in regard to neutrals will be determined by quite other considerations. If Spain searched British vessels for American goods, it is believed she would bring on herself something stronger than a protest. There has been considerable criticism in shipping centers on the subject of the declaration made by the attorneygeneral, Sir Richard Webster, in the House of Commons on Tuesday, shipping people holding that his legal doubts regarding the right to search or capture neutral vessels would render seizures certain, thus placing British shippers on a precarious condition. An Awful Avalanche !

Late Reports Place the Loss of Life at 50 to 100.

Many Persons Overtaken by the Snowslide-31 Dead Bodies Taken Out-Names of the Victims.

Following are fuller details of the awful disaster at Chilcoot Pass briefly referred to elsewhere: Skaguay, April 3, via Seattle, Wash., April 9.—About noon today on the Chilkoot trail, between the Scales and Stonehouse, at least 31 men met death and a large number of others were injured more or less seriously in a snow slide. The dead were crushed under an avalanche of snow and ice, which came down from the mountain side upon the left hand side of the trail at midway between the Scales and Stone-

Two of the seriously injured are Walter Chappey, of New York, and John C. Murphy, of Dixon, Dakota. Fully 50 people were overtaken by the slide and are either buried in the snow or scattered along the borders of the avalanche in a more or less injured condition. The point at which the accident occurred is some five miles above Sheep camp. The nearest telephone station is four miles distant. The telephone wires at this point were carried away by the slide. This fact makes it difficult to obtain further particulars at this time. A blinding snow storm was raging all day upon the summit, and, as a consequence, many in the vicinity were making no attempt to travel. Sebarth, Sprague and Stevenson, of Seattle, were traveling together as partners, and all were found side by side in bed. Thousands of people were encamped in the vicinity of the accident at the time, and were soon upon the scene

T. R. tracks. It was converted into the litharge works for Mr. Wilson a Privy Councilor Bansch, engineer of couple of years ago, and there were about 25 or 30 hands employed at the establishment. The alarm was sent in from box 57 at the corner of William and Bathurst streets at 20 minutes to 9 o'clock, and while No. 1 company was making the run box 513, at the chemical works, was pulled. No. 2 company was first on the scene, followed quickly by No Lines of hose were promptly laid, but the flames had such a hold on the old frame structure that all efforts to check their progress were ineffectual. For more than an hour it burned furiously, and citizens, attracted by the glare which could be seen for miles, flocked to the scene. Hamilton road and Rectory street cars were crowded. The building to which the fire was confined was owned by Mr. John Forrestal, of the London and Petrolia Barrel Company. It was about 75 feet long and 40 feet wide, and at the southwest corner was the furnace and boiler room, where the fire is supposed to have originated. In the eastern no means of fighting the flames. FOUNDER AND John Cameron.

London, Saturday, April 9, 1898.

Stand for Canada in the Yukon, The action of the Senate in reference to a highway into the Yukon country is one of the most extraordinary proceedings in the history of the Canadian Parliament. The Government came down to Parliament with a contract, which they asked Parliament to confirm, for the construction of a railway connecting the navigable waters in British Columbia with the navigable waters of the Yukon territory. The contract contemplated the ectension of the road southward to Portland Canal or Observatory Inlet; the connecting link northward between Telegraph Creek and Teslin Lake was all that the Government proposed to construct during the present year. It was as much as could be accomplished within the time mentioned, and it was all that was essential for the protection of the inhabitants against the dangers of famine and the maintenance of the authority of the Government arising from lawlessness and insurrection. The road was not to cost the public treasury a dollar. It was being undertaken by men of great railway experience and special skill in the work of construction-men in whom the public had confidence and whom everybody bewould certainly perform. We believe that the Government had not the slightest doubt that the contract would be carried through rarliament with little or no opposition, and they had before Parliament met, the approval for what they proposed of the leader of the Opposition. The Government proposition was carried through the House of Commons by a very considerable majority, and it was sent to the Senate for the pass, reported in our telegrams today, sanction of that body. At the outset proves that the work of crossing is atit appeared that there was a fair prospect of its being approved by the Senate, but the extreme party men of the Opposition in the Upper Chamber thought that this was their opportunity to defeat a Government measure, and bring about a political crisis, and they availed themselves of it to the utmost. They have produced a crisis, but not one that specially affects the Government; it is one that affects the commercial interests of the country and its political integrity.

In the Senate, the leader of the Government, Hon. David Mills, compared the conduct of the majority to those Greek politicians who joined Phillipe in betraying the interests of by the fatality, and ought to be cared Greece, and we do not think a more for till it is possible for them to regain apposite illustration could be produced. That they should do so is Canada in a month as we now have in what we might expect, but that the Senate, a majority of whom have been loudly proclaiming their loyalty ever since that chamber came into existence, would have been loyal to Canadian interests, that they would have subordinated the feeling of partisanship to the public good is what we looked for, but we confess ourselves disappointed Fire-eaters in the neighboring republic will be extremely chagrined should President McKinley postpone sending to Congress his long-promised message on Monday next. The Late Tragedy.

There are a few foolish or malicious people in London, as there are in every community. We have heard that they profess to believe that the large mass of the citizens of London, who are against the hasty use of the revolver as a means of resenting a blow by the fist of another, are necessarily antagonistic to the innocent sufferers by the recent tragedy in this city. Speaking for ourselves, and we know for many others in the community, we have commended the case of Mrs. Emerson and her child to the generosity of the people of London. The woman and her child are certainly innocent sufferers ordinary means of support. We all sympathize with the unfortunate, and with the adoption of legitimate means to aid them in their distress. It is, the public welfare at heart, while not in any way prejudging the case of the ten years.

The sad calamity in the Chilcoot Pass leading to the Yukon gold territory ought to make the Dominion Opposition Senators very much ashamed of themselves. They burked the measure to insure a comparatively safe, expeditious, all-Canadian route.

Blenheim town is booming. Its population has gone up from 1,534 last year to 1,750 this year, and its assessable value from $399,134 to $426,980.

The recent row in the council chamber of this city, when two aldermen engaged in personal combat and strong language, and fists and chairs figured as arguments to elinch a debate, emphasizes the wisdom of making it unlawful and unpopular for men to carry around with them loaded revolvers, as they do in the less civilized country to the south of us. The aldermen who took part in the heated warfare are ordinarily not very belligerent, but on Thursday night their ire towards each other was at fever point, and it is just under such conditions that men who carry murderous weapons with them are invariably tempted to turn them to account.

Suicide's Pocket-Book Found.

Robert Hewson's Sad End Recalled by Another Evidence That He Committed Suicide.

Wm. H. Simmons, an employe of Joshua Garratt, yesterday handed a pocketbook to the police which he had found hidden in the grass at the side of the fence near the C. P. R. track between Adelaide and William streets. It proved to be the property of the late Robert Hewson, whose mangled body was found on the C. P. R. between these streets on Feb. 26, 1894. The pocketbook is in a good state of preservation, and contained an indelible lead pencil and a letter and telegram from Hon. Dr. Montague, relative to Hewson's discharge from the military school here. At the time Hewson was killed many people suspected foul play, but the police attributed the man's death to suicide. This latter theory was confirmed about one year after Hewson's death, when his cane was found under a bridge a short disance from where the body was discovered. The finding of the purse leaves no doubt that Hewson commit-

Among the Killed.

Valuable Salt-An Instructive Incident in an Italian City.

Cairo, April 9.—The Anglo-Egyptian forces, under the sirdar, General Sir Herbert Kitchener, attacked the dervish position at 7:45 yesterday morning and rushed Mahmoud's zareba, the center of his fortifications, without check. The attack was entirely successful, and the dervishes lost very heavily. The Anglo-Egyptian force, after a night's march, arrived at dawn before the enemy's camp. When the trenches of the dervishes had been bombarded, the whole Anglo-Egyptian force made The Doctor Took More Than Was So a brilliant rush for the zareba and the trenches. The dervishes stood their ground bravely, and reserved their fire until the attacking force was quite close to them. Mahmoud, the dervish general, was among the prisoners captured. 19,000 DERVISHES IN THE FIGHT. Another account says: The sirdar's Corce numbered 13,000 men, with 24 guns, under Colonel Long, and 12 Maxims. The enemy left Shendy with 19,000 men, but they have suffered a good deal from desertion. We left camp at 6 p.m. and bivouack-

Capt. Beauchamp Colclough Urquhart was appointed aide-de-camp to the governor-general of Canada on Oct. 30, 1893, but a little over a year ago left Ottawa to rejoin his regiment. He was 38 years of age, and the eldest son of B. C. Urquhart, of Meldrum and Blyth, Aberdeenshire, Scotland. Tall and commanding in appearance, every inch a soldier, Capt. Urquhart was a prime favorite in Ottawa. Capt. Urquhart served with the Cameron Highlanders in the Egyptian war of 1882, from the landing at Ismalia, and was present at the battle of Tel-el-Kebir, for which he received a medal and clasp and the Khedive's star. VALUE OF SALT IN ITALY. London, April 9 .- A correspondent of the Morning Post, writing from Rome, relates a striking incident to show the effect of the heavy tax upon salt upon the poorer classes of Italy. He saw in a by-street a small boy carrying upon his head an open basket filled with salt. It began to rain heavily, but the boy went on his way unconcernedly until he felt water trickling over his face and down his neck. Lifting the basket from his head, he found that his precious burden was rapidly melting away, and immediately set up such a howl of misery that he was quickly surrounded by a crowd of loafers and curious women. Had the salt been the personal possession of every individual member of the crowd, the boy could not possibly have fared worse at their tongues. They were all of the very poorest class, to whom salt is a luxury, and one woman declared that anybody capable of such carelessness was only fit for an asylum or a prison. The salt, still uncovered, was quickly disappearing, when a man, saying that it was a pity it should be wasted, took a handful of the sodden stuff and ran off down the street, his example being followed by others, until Dodd's Kidney Pills Creating Happiness in London.

London, April 8.-M. L. Buffy, of 236 Talbot street, is one of the few thoroughly happy men in this city. He literally fulfils the injunction to "Laugh and grow fat," and he says he doesn't know what care, worry or pain means. There is a reason for this, and it is revealed in the following letter:

"Dodd's Medicine Co.,-Gentlemen,-For five years I endured the gonies of Lumbago, and often during that period, have I wondered whether life were really worth living. My urinary system was much deranged, and occasioned me intense suffering. My pain was indescribable. It was continual. "I tried every remedy recommended to me, in my endeavors to get well, and though my money kept flowing out no relief came. "One day I heard a neighbor speak very warmly in praise of Dodd's Kidney Pilis. I inquired regarding them and ended by buying a box. I say "ended" advisedly, for that box of Dodd's Kidney Pills ended Lumbago for me.

This, then, is why Mr. Buffy is happy. Because he was sick and is now well, because he was weak and is now strong, because, while he once was diseased he is now healthy. There are thousands today like Mr. Buffy was some time ago. Dodd's Kid-Pills cured him. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure them. They can be strong, healthy, happy if they choose. They are sold by all druggists, at 50 cents a box, six boxes $2 50, or will be sent, on receipt of price, by The Dodds Medicine Company, Limited, Toronto.

Cuba and the Millennium-An Alliance of America, England and Judah.

A New Haven, Conn., correspondent writes: "Have the present political situation and the impending embroglio age?" said C. A. L. Totten, lately professor of military science at Yale University, more recently a lieutenant in the United States army, author of "Our | Race," and prophet of the millennium. "Well, I should say so! I don't pretend to tell specifically what is going to happen; I only know that we are on the verge of the millennium, and that the disaster to the Maine and the present the world, and pestilence is one of the war scare are among the incidents foreshadowed by the prophet Daniel, leading up to that event. To be more exact, we have only another year to wait for, according to my interpretations made public six years ago, the second coming of Christ was to fall in March, 1899, which is the 6,000th year of the world, according to the only true Jewish chronology. No wonder that there are wars and rumors of war."

Mr. Totten has not been so conspicuous recently as he was, but ke has by no means desisted from his labors; neither has he lost his enthusiasm for his cause. As Mr. Price Hughes said last Sunday afternoon in a brief sketch of Miss Willard's life, one of its most characteristic features was her intense belief in what she called "Gospel politics," namely, the absolute necessity that Christian men and Christian women also should interest themselves in the affairs of their town and of their country. Mr. Price Hughes will make that doctrine of Miss Willard the subject of his address at the Conference next Sunday afternoon, and will point out that it is an essential part of Scriptural Christianity that Christians should take an active share in both municipal and imperial politics .-London Methodist Times.

Pins and Needles: a Love Story. Emery Hill was located in Elsie's workbasket, and was inhabited by needles of all kinds and sizes. I know these needles never went to sleep. How do I know that? Because they never shut their eyes, and how could they go to sleep without shutting their eyes? And I know, too, that all I am going to tell you about them happened in the night. It did not happen in the daytime, so of course it must have happened at night-some moonlight night, when the needles looked very bewitching in their steel-gray costumes, and when their golden eyes sparkled as they told the Cambric Needle of their adventures during the day. It was always the Cambric Needle in whom they confided, for she was the only one who was not proud of what she could do, and who would listen kindly to their long stories. She had reason to be proud, too, for she could hem more beautifully than any of the others, and do it very rapidly. Basting Needle, however, would not grant this. She felt that rapidity was her specialty. She was a nineteenth century affair, and knew how to do effective work without wasting any time over it. The ladylike Cambric Needle would not dispute the question with her, even granting that her stitches were more showy; but in spite of that she clung to her own way of working, and was thorough and patient in all that she did.

The Shoe Needle felt that she was superior to everyone because of her strength, for she could be pushed right through leather and not break. None of the others were equal to that! The Zephyr Needle felt that strength was not the thing to be proud of, for she had a large eye and was able to do artistic work. She also felt her bluntness to be another trait that helped her prove her superiority. But the other Zephyr Needles disputed this, for they felt they were a point ahead of her because of their sharpness.

The Darning Needle was proud of her usefulness; no wasting of time over fancy work for her! Number Eight could do at least eight different kinds of sewing. How the Cambric Needle did wish she had been called Number Eight, for then perhaps she could have done more than one kind; and she thought quite sadly that if a Pin ever should come again to visit Emery Hill he would never look at her, she was so clear voice was still in the air, she

Now it happened that this very even-ing a Pin did arrive at the Hill, a fine Brass Pin with a large, bright head. "Of course he will admire strength more than anything else, he is so big nimself," murmured the Shoe Needle. 'Not at all," whispered the Darning Needle. "Usefulness will appeal to him most, for he is evidently bright." "You are both wrong," whispered the Basting Needle quite audibly, "for any Pin with such a well-developed head must be able to appreciate my aspirations and advanced ideas." "Dear me," thought the sweet little Cambric Needle, "I do hope he'll not overlook Number Eight, for she is so And so it was very exciting, and grew more so as it became evident that the Brass Pin was growing more and more devoted to the Cambric Needle. "He has taken her to walk in the moonlight three times," said one needle. "And I heard him say Will you marry me?" said another. And sure enough it was the Cambric Needle he married, and they lived happily on top of Emery Hill ever afterward, and were noted for their polished manners.

"Well." said the Zephyr Needle, who was noted for her blunt remarks, "she was certainly better tempered than any of the rest of us. and perhaps that was reason he admired her most."-Youths' Companion.

S > Rover's Part in It. [By Annie H. Donnell].

"I won't speak to you again today, Sydney Tripp!" "Nor I won't speak to you either!" retorted angry Sydney.

They stood opposite each other; and their cheeks-well, it would be hard to tell which were reddest. Elsie's were a little rounder and plumper, so there may have been the least bit more room for red on hers. They both shut their mouths grimly and tight, and walked away from each other backwards. You would hardly have known they were the little Tripp twins-and Uncle Jack called them "The Inseparables!" They were separating fast enough now. Never mind what began the quarrel. What does it matter as long as it was a quarrel, and put out the sun for a whole afternoon in the pleasant little Tripp yard? Elsie wandered about among the playhouses, pretending to be perfectly happy, and being all the while perfectly miserable. It was such poor fun keeping house without Sydney to be husband, or doctor, or baker to bring round the mud pies. And Sydney sat on the turned-over

Rover was used to it. How many times he had been talked to like this, and had gone from one twin to the other, wagging his wistful little tail, and trying to carry the messages. "Oh, ain't it hot out here, Rover! Don't you wish you could play tent under the big umbrella?" Elsie said to him, with a little quiver of repentance in her voice.

"I guess I shall lie awake all night," she thought, plaintively. But when the echo of the cuckoo-bird's sweet, dropped to sleep. Fifteen minutes later she woke up again out of a dreadful dream about a fairy that sewed up her lips and Sydney's and bit off the thread with a twitch. Oh! Elsie thought it must be morning, almost; anyway, it was tomorrow. She crept out of bed and pattered into Sydney's room.

"Sydney! Sydney!" she cried, softly. "It's tomorrow now, and I can speak to you. I love you. Syd-ney, listen! An' I'm sorry clear to my boots; so there!" Elsie's boots were in her room on a chair, so it was a good long "sorry." Her little bare feet twitched with egerness, and her little rumpled head tucked down on the pillow beside Syd-

If You Would Have Health? Never sit down to the table with an anxious or disturbed mind; make it a point to lay aside all worry for the time being, and indulge in all the gaiety and pleasantry possible during meal time. There was good philosophy in the oldtime custom of having a buffoon or music at the dinner table. Never sit down to a meal immediately after an intense mental effort, for physical and mental misery are inevitable. Never go to a full table during bodily exhaustion—designated by some as being used up, over-done, worn-out, tired to death and the like. The wisest thing to be done under such circumstances is to take a cracker and a cup of warm tea, and no more. In ten minutes you will feel a degree of refreshment that will be pleasantly surprising to younot of the transient kind which a glass of liquor affords, but permanent. The tea gives present stimulation and little strength, and before it subsides, nutriment begins to draw from the sugar and cream and cracker, thus allowing the body gradually and by safe degrees to regain its usual vigor. A little later a full meal may be taken with benefit instead of injury.

Shall We Live on Fruit.

The advice of those modern dietetic reformers who tell us to subsist largely starchy foods, which, when digested, on fruits does not commend itself to The Alienist and Neurologist (St. afford either brain or muscle power to Louis), which has the following to say any extent." on the subject:

"The fruit-eating craze is possibly the most degenerate of the many recent fads. The fruit-eating and pot-bellied natives of the tropics and their next lower relatives, the apes, are truly inspiring objects of imitation by civilized man; not even their out-door and arboreal lives save them from the consequences of a meager and irritating beef, fish of all kinds, especially dried regimen. It is truly pitiful to see the codfish, cereals of all kinds-particulararmy of neurasthenics, dyspeptics, ly wheat, corn and oats—eggs, cheese, rheumatics, starving their tissues and gelatine and milk. acidulating their blood at the beck of No one pretends that these foods ed enthusiasts. It is fair to suppose teacher into a Horace Mann, or push that a troop of rickety children will the stupidest boy to the head of the

"The fact with regard to fruit is, that although it contains little nourishment it agrees well with many people endowed with a vigorous gastric mucosa and fairly alkaline blood. To them it brings looseness and joy. In many dyspeptics state it is the first food stuff to disagree, and to the illnourished neurasthenic it is a miserable substitute for the better tissuebuilders.

"An appeal to the facts of evolution gives little comfort to the cranks of one dietary idea. Primitive man has as hunter and herdsman thriven on an animal dietary. Nuts and fruit have served his turn as well, and encouraged him to the cultivation of the cereals. There is no evidence to show that the people of any nation have become longer-lived or shorter-lived on account of an exclusively vegetable dietary, or that any association of cranks has increased the longevity of its members by any exclusive system whatever." S. 35 His Earliest Recollection. What could be nearer than Frederick Locker's little skit on the terrible infant and his earliest recollection: I recollect a nurse called Ann Who carried me about the grass, And one fine day a fine young man Came up and kissed the pretty lass; She did not make the least objection! Thinks I, "A ha! When I can talk I'll tell Mamma."

And that's my earliest recollection. P. P.

Oxygen as Food. Breathing pure air always. In the lungs a most important physiological process occurs. It is from here that the blood laden with oxygen is sent to all parts of the body, giving off along its course its oxygen, and taking up carbonic acid gas, which it brings at last to the lungs, when it is cast out in expiration. More oxygen is taken in by inspiration and the same process is repeated. So let your breathing be full and deep, going to the very bottom of the lungs in order that all of the blood in them may receive its full amount of oxygen before again starting upon a tour of distribution through body, writes What to Eat. Can one use any more forcible argument in favor of loose clothing than this? is absolutely impossible to secure plenty of oxygen if the clothing is worn at all tight, and oxygen is a food which the body must have always in abundance to keep well. The air leaving the lungs is laden with that deadly poison, carponic acid gas, which, if given off in a close room when no provision is made for its escape and the entrance of pure air, soon renders the air utterly unfit to breathe. Perhaps some night you find yourself unable to sleep, tumble restlessly about in bed. When this occurs go to an open window and inhale the fresh air, breathing slowly and deeply. A few minutes of this and you can return to bed and probably will soon be sleeping quietly What has happened? By this restlessness the the body was asserting its need of more oxygen. Now you have given it what it so emphatically asked for, and it is quiet. We get as much uneasiness and disturbance from the want of this food as when we do "Well," stammered the private, 'b-b- not eat enough, only the symptoms but I may be taken and run through are not so well understood nor recognized so quickly. Always keep your mouth closed and breathe through the nose. Then the air is warmed, slightly moistened and largely freed from particles of dust, so that when it enters the lungs it does not irritate them. Then, in order to enforce the proposition, the mother called upon her daughter to spell froze.

"F-r-o-e-s," said the child.

"No, you're wrong again. This time skin clear, while and healthy. Its patient is pale, lifeless looking, tired and generally used up, often without being able to tell distinctly how she does feel. Sometimes these patients say that they have not enough blood. It is really only an element of the my life." A condition often met with by phy-

blood which is wanting, but that is a very important one, viz., the red blood corpuscle. When you know that it is only those corpuscles which have the power to take up and carry oxygen, you see at once how important it is that the blood should not be lacking in them. Good wholesome food, plenty of it, and well digested, will give you the corpuscles; furnish to them the oxygen and the body will have an important element towards health.

The Stomach and the Brain. To tell a conscientious and generous father that his children fail to "get ahead" in school because they are starved at home is a commission few persons would care to undertake; yet Prof. O'Shea, of the University of Wisconsin, has not hesitated to declare that the reason many school children are dull and restless is that they do not have enough to eat.

Enough, that is to say, of the proper kinds of food; for the brain-worker cannot healthfully live upon the food that nourishes the laborer—a fact that Prof. O'Shea declares, the school teachers themselves are slow to learn. At an "institute" recently held in a prosperous town, this venturesome scientist asked the teachers what they had for breakfast. The favorite bill of fare seemed to comprise fried potatoes, white bread, coffee and cookies, to which, in several instances, fried pork was added. It proved that not one of the teachers had eaten a thoroughly nutritious breakfast; in other words, that none was capable of the mental exertion possible to one properly nourished. "I have found," the professor adds, "that perhaps 75 per cent of the dietaries of teachers and school children alike are made up almost wholly of are converted into carbohydrates, and furnish heat to the body, but do not The foods demanded in these cases are those that are rich in albumen. Careful analyses, made under the direction of the department of agriculture, have shown what these are, and the precise nutritive value of each. Broadly speaking, it may be said that the ideal dietary for the brain-worker would be made up, in a large measure, later rise up and call them anything but blessed, a fate from which the ape sense diet would strengthen the pursaves himself by abundant potations of pose and increase the ability of many young persons who now find it hard to study .- Youths' Companion. 35 SE

the Dervish Position Near Atbara.

Mahmoud's Army Almost Annihilated -The Dervishes Lose 2,000 Killed and 4,000 Prisoners.

Atbara Camp, Nubia, April 9.—The British and Egyptian troops cheered each other until late last night over the capture of the dervish position. The river bed and the thick bush down to the river are full or dervish dead. Late on Thursday night the sirdar issued orders saying that he was sure every man of the force would do his duty, but he hoped they would all remember

The dervish fire was very heavy, but too high, and the British loss was mostly before reaching the zareba. Col. Muray had his horse shot under him. and was wounded in the arm. The enemy certainly behaved with the greatest bravery. The prisoners say they lost heavily by the bombardment before the advance. Some of the enemy tried to break across the river at an early but were beaten back by the dervish horsemen. The rockets, under Capt. Beatty, set the enemy's camp aftre in many places. The enemy were in deep trenches in rows behind the Bishari Redi fell at the head of his men. Ten guns were captured. The prisoners say Osman Digna fled early luring the bombardment. The authorities call yesterday's battle the most brilliant ever fought in the Soudan, everything having been carried straight through without a hitch or check. While the position was shelled by the Maxims, Nordenfeldts and shrap-nels, the dervishes hardly attempted a reply. Nothing was visible in front of the position except a solitary wabbling camel, but in the trenches the large number of mangled donkeys and els proved the terrific effect of the British fire. Inside the zareba there was an astonishing labyrinth of earthworks, every goat seemingly having had its own shelter and trench. The correspondent says: "I have been all over the dervish position, and estimate their dead at more than 2,000." "The night's march was as weird as that of Tel-el-Kebir. Our troops observed a funereal silence on nearing the enemy's zareba at Makheiba. smoking was permitted. Egyptians, Soudanese and British strove to be the first in the glorious race, and to be first in the attack. As usual, several brigades claim the honor.

"The enemy opened with such a terrific fire that our men were dropping on all sides. It was as venemous a fusillade as troops were ever called upon

"Mahmoud's army is practically wiped out. Four thousand of his followers have been taken prisoners, and he himself has been caught hiding in a hole under a bed. He is a tall, dignified, sensuous-looking black Baggara, about 35 years old, with a shaved head. When taken he was dressed in a richly-embroidered robe."

BASKET BALL.

Two teams of London basketball players went to Petrolla yesterday and in Woodstock. were defeated twice by the Petrolia boys. The first game was a walkover for Petrolia, they winning by a score of 18 to 6. Messrs. Evans, Pratt, Bridgmann (capt.), Millman and Wilson composed the team of this game. The second game was much faster and more scientific than the former. Petrolia again won by 9 to 8. Petrolia played two fast outsiders, which handicapped the London boys. The visitors were right royally entertained to supper after play was finished. This was not an association match, and after a return game it is thought advisable to play no more games outside of the association. The following team will play in West Toronto on Monday night: Messrs. Cooper, Woollatt, McBride, Tambling and Benson. FOOTBALL A party consisting of Messrs. H. Robinson, R. Robertson, E. Moule, C. Harwood, W. Parnell, J. Robinson and E. C. Efner visited Ingersoll yesterday place against St. Thomas. Ingersoll

THE TURE. A WOMAN'S POOL-ROOM RAIDED. A pool-room in the open board of trade building in Chicago, which is patronized exclusively by women bettors, was raided by the police, and 20 women, who were betting on the races, were arrested. Most of the women were richly dressed, and two of them had babies in their arms. All were released on bail later in the day.

Mabin shook her head. "If it's an insult," answered she, "it is one that I'm used to." Measure your rooms carefully. Call and saying anything complimentary to you as of giving you what you call insules." "One is almost as much afraid of saying anything complimentary to you he began, cautiously. "Otherwise I would tell you that I like 'odd' people, people who don't always say and do the right thing, that is."

"Then you ought to appreciate me," retorted Mabin, quickly, "for everybody says I always do and say the Wrong "I do appreciate you." Mabin laughed and blushed.

"I only said that in fun," she said, awkwardly. "Well, I said what I did in earnest." "Mrs. Dale will be wondering what has become of us," said Mabin. She was not at all anxious to go in; but the pleasure she felt in this talk with Rudolph had grown rather alarming to her reserve. She began to fear that she would spoil it all by one of her far-famed blunders of speech. And so she chose to cut short the enjoyment while it could remain a recollection of unalloyed delight.

Rudolph, on his side, was in no hurry to go in, although he took a step obediently towards the portico. From a feeling of perversity which she could not have accounted for, Mato talk about Mrs. Dale as they went slowly towards the "I have been longing to see her ever since my accident," she said. "But although I have been always hovering about the place, wishing she would come out, today is the very first time I have caught sight of her." at is exactly my own experi-said Rudolph. "She seems to "That is have given up driving about the place, and to have shut herself up in this dreary old house just like a nun."

"Oh!" said Mabin, feeling quite relieved to hear that he had not, as she had supposed, been in the society of the beautiful widow constantly since the day of the accident.

"Yes," he went on, "I was passing by only half an hour ago, when I glanced up at the windows, and Mrs.
Dale stopped me to ask if I heard how you were. And then she asked me in saying she felt lonely. And so should so would anyone, in that mouldy old house all alone. "Poor lady! I am so sorry for her," said Mabin.

Rudolph looked at her quickly. "Do you feel like that about her, too?" said he, earnestly. "All the other people one meets are either jealous of her beauty, or envious of her handsome turn-out, or angry with her for not wanting to make their acquaintance." "I am very sorry for her," answered

"Why, yes, her husband's death," suggested Rudolph. "Oh, yes," that of course," assented Mabin, surprised to find that the universal doubts whether Mrs. Dale was really a widow had infected her also. But something even more than that, I should think. I have an idea that there is something tragic in her story, if one only knew it." Rudolph said nothing to this, but he looked at his companion with a quick glance of surprise, as if he himself shared her opinion, and was astonished to find his own thought echoed. They were under the portico now, and as their footsteps sounded on the stone, they saw through the open door into the dark hall, and heard Mrs. Dale's soft voice calling to them. "It takes ever so much longer to get a thing done than to do it oneself!" she exclaimed, brightly, with a sigh, as she came out of the room on the left, and invited them to go in. "I could have brought Miss Rose in in half the time, even if she had fought to get away. "Did she fight?" went on Mrs. Dale, with arch innocence. They were in the room by this time. and Mabin, coming in out of the glare of the sun, stood for a few seconds without seeing anything. Then her hands were gently taken, and she found herself pushed into a low chair.

Washington, April 9.—Good Friday passed in Washington with not a ripple on the surface, either at the White House or the Capitol, to show that the United States is on the brink of war. Both Houses of Congress had adjourned until Monday, and at the executive mansion there was a Sunday quiet atmosphere. The cabinet held its usual Friday session, but its meeting brought no change in the Spanish situation.

New York, April 9.-Joseph Pauell Gibbons, the electrician who supplied submarine mines to the Spanish Goverment, cables from London to the World:

"The only submarine mines which have been supplied to the Spanish Government since 1886-7 were manufactured under my own patents. I suppiled them with 56 ground mines, 25 buoyant mines, each with a charge of boo pounds or gun cotton, and la electro-contact mines, exploded either on contact or by observation from shore, each containing a charge of 100 pounds or gun cotton. The names sent to havana would still retain full effective service. They will last under water for an indefinite period.

"In 1896-7 the Spanish Government ordered a fresh supply of my patent mines. One of the mines supplied in 1886 is still fully capable of causing the destruction of the Maine. In fact, I am convinced from all surrounding circumstances that no other agency could have caused it.

"In direct contradiction to the assertions of the secretary of the Spanish legation at Washington, and of Gen. Weyler that there are no submarine mines in Havana harbor, I absolutely anum that I snipped the above mines for Havana and Ferrol on a Spanish ship, the property of the Spanish Government, and officered by spanish naval omcers, with two captains, at the West India dock, London. My mines are in electrical connection with the shore, and it is quite impossible that they could be exploded except by design.

"I am convinced also that the explosion of the mine which destroyed the maine was the work of one or two men. I have not the slightest hesitation in saying that the Maine was deliberately destroyed with a 500-pound ground mine, as invented and supplied by me. I am prepared to satisfy by demonstration any jury of reasonable men that this is a true explanation of the destruction of the Maine."

Assurance Company. A Most Successful Year. INCREASED EARNINGS.

The annual meeting of the Canada Life Assurance Company was held on Wednesday. The following is a synopsis of the report and financial statements: In presenting to the shareholders their fifty-first annual report, the directors are gratified in announcing that Prosperous the company has fairly shared in the somewhat improved condition of the business of the country, as will be seen by the statements and accounts now submitted. By these it will be observed that the company has transacted a larger business than during the previous year, and has increased its clear surplus by no less than $497,-093 05. The applications for new assurances during 1897 numbered 3,066, for the sum of $6,185,996, of which, however, 266 for $521,000 were declined, the lives not appearing up to that standard which it is in the interests of the company's other assurers should be maintained, and as 191 applications for $373,360 were not carried out, the issue of the year was for $5,291,636, under 2,608 policies, exceeding 1896 by 573 policies for $798,980. The total business in force at the close of 1897 was $72,719,555 29 of assurances, under 33,407 policies, upon 24,469 lives. The claims by deaths paid during 1897 amounted to $77 ... 168 45, and endowment policies for $128,846 92 having matured, these sums, as well as $218,481 29 for profits, $145,. 411 18 for surrenders, and an annuity of $400,000, making in all $1,263,307 84, were paid to policy holders during the year.

The income receipts of the year were $2,953,272 83, and deducting therefrom all payments to policyholders for claims in Assets by death, for profits and for matured endowment policies, as well as all other outlay, including expenses of management, there was left the sum of $1,272,486 05, which increased the company's assets to

The President's Address.

The President, Mr. A. G. Ramsay, in moving the adoption of the re-

The directors' report and the annual accounts and statements have for some days been in your hands, and have now been taken as read. While the report is brief, it contains, I think, along with the various published accounts, all that is required to enable those interested in the company to judge of its progress and success in the past year. The addition during 1897 of nearly half a million dollars to the surplus or profit fund is a large and satisfactory one, and without invidiously comparing it with the figures of any other particular company, I may say that it was more than was attained by all the other Canadian companies combined. The new business of the year was, you will observe, of satisfactory and gratifying amount, and in excess of the previous year, and you will be pleased to know that it is of that desirable class which will result more to the profit of the company of that desirable class which will result more to the profit than would a larger amount obtained at heavier expense, or from less desirable regions than the healthful clim ate of Canada, and the four northern States to which we have thus far dee med it judicious to confine the operations of the company. The existing assu rances are $72,719,555, or nearly twice as much as they were twelve years ago. The death claims of the year continued of very favorable amount, and being well within what was calculated upon, that fact testifies to the care observed in the selection of the lives and to the judicious limitation of the business to the healthful climates al-

The recent lamentable failures of some of the companies doing business on the assessment system, and the an xiety felt as to the others which are based upon the same fallacious principles, lead me to point out that these occurrences are only the inevitable results which were from the first predicted by those whose knowledge and experience enabled them to judge of what the future of companies of this k ind must be. At our meeting in 1887, when concerns of the kind were making strenuous efforts to establish themselves in Canada, I alluded to the mis erable failures they had been in England and in America, and I said that their "ephemeral existence indicates how useless the assessment system of assurance is as a family provision. It can only offer the uncertain hope of a cheap assurance for a few years, till the company breaks down. It cannot afford a guarantee that a definite amount of assurance will certainly be paid to a widow or children after an assurer's death, whether that occurs at an early day or a distant one, and without such a guarantee as that, which our own and other sound companies offer, life assurance must be a fraud and a delusion." I added that "I was aware that agents and managers of companies of the kind pointed to the names of prominent business and professional men, who have foined them, or who act as their directors, but as some of them at all events allowed their names to be employed in that way simply because policies have been gratuitiously given to them, one can judge how little weight should attach to the names of the gentlemen thus used to decoy others to join such companies." One cannot envy the feelings of the prominent gentlemen alluded to who induced persons to take policies in companies of the kind. from which they are now driven out by their failure, or by the levy of such high payments as they are unable to meet."

As the accounts show, the year's in come was within a trifle of three million dollars, and the assets of the company were increased to the very considerable amount of nearly nineteen million dollars, and yielding, after deducting liabilities of every kind, a net surplus or profit of $1,564,082 for allocation at the end of next year, along with whatever addition there may be made to it between now and that time; and as the management and other expenses by which the profits of policy holders are very largely influenced continue to be of a more moderate percentage than that of any other Canadian or American company, the prospects for our assurers are of a favor-

It is anticipated that legislation will be introduced by the government modifying the present 41/2 per cent rate of interest prescribed by law as the basis for life assurance reserves, and adopting the new mortality tables based upon the observations and large experience of the British insurance companies, in course of compilation by the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain, and I may say on behalf of this board, in reference to the amend ment to the charter, alluded to in the directors' report of last year, that the directors purpose to avail themselves of the occasion of that legislation to seek such amendments to the law as may meet the board's requirements.
