PEACE DISCUSSION

Writer Approved Terms of Entente as Tending To Universal Peace

By Courier Leased Wire.

Amsterdam, July 7.—Die Zukunft of Berlin, Maximilian Harden's publication, which has again been suppressed informed its subscribers that the action was taken in consequence of its issue of June 30. This number criticized the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung's statement on the Grimm-Hoffmann affair which resulted in the resignation of Dr. Hoffmann as a Swiss Federal councillor and the expulsion of Robert Grimm, the Swiss international Socialist, from Russia after the exposure of the recent abortive peace manoeuvre. Die Zukunft ridiculed the newspaper's humanitarian pose and said early peace was only possible by Germany crushing her enemies or joining her efforts to those of the majority in the world.

"It is only this second miracle that is obtainable by human strength Die Zukunft points out and says: 'For the sake of Germany's enemies, and, fight to self government, an action court to decide who is guilty of starting the war, a bond of nations and the creation of a situation which would remove the decision of peace or war from the will of one mortal and place it in the hands of the community.'

"If," continues Die Zukunft, "Germany sees celestial signs flying over these aims then peace is obtainable to-morrow, but if a situation for which millions of people have yearned appears ignominious to her, she must continue to fight until one group conquers and the other sinks down."

Mr. and Mrs. James Edgeworth and Mrs. John Edgeworth left for Toronto this morning after spending a fortnight visiting in the country.

Another to be honored, Capt. D. D. Gunton writes Mrs. Gunton to say that Geo. W. Cook, son of Joseph R. Cook, Main street, has been mentioned in brigade orders as recommended for Military Cross. Particulars are not to hand.

EMPRESS OF AUSTRIA PRO-ALLY

Seeking To Induce Husband To Severe Alliance With Germany

By Courier Leased Wire.

London, July 7.—According to The Daily Express, a personal friend of the Empress Zita of Austria has informed certain members of the House of Commons that the empress is exerting herself strongly in the interests of France. She is credited with sufficient influence over Emperor Charles to induce him to try to withdraw from the Austro-Hungarian alliance with Germany as soon as Austria-Hungary is enabled to take such action.

Weather Bulletin

Toronto, July 7.—Fine, warm weather is general over the Dominion, but a shallow depression over Indiana is likely to cause local thunderstorms in southern Ontario. Forecasts: Moderate east and south winds becoming variable thunderstorms in some localities, but mostly fair and warm to-day and on Sunday.

Early Morning Attack on London Proves one of Greatest Air Raids of War; British Airmen and Anti-Aircraft Guns Participated in Defense, Furious Battling Ensuing

By Courier Leased Wire.

London, July 7. About twenty enemy airplanes bombarded London today, according to an official statement by the war office. The raiders were attacked by artillery and a large number of British airplanes. The results were unknown at noon.

The raid occurred at about 9.30 o'clock this morning. Thousands of persons crowded the streets, many of them women and children. The police and soldiers had difficulty in holding back the people. Many persons were seen at windows. Anti-aircraft guns throughout the city and British airplanes immediately engaged the hostile craft and for a time the sound of exploding bombs and the vicious reply of guns was deafening. Straight over the city flew the squadron of raiders, pursued by bursting shrapnel.

The sun was shining brightly, but the sky was overcast with a haze such as is so favorable to raiders. Notwithstanding the haze, however, the Germans were visible plainly to the people in the streets.

The raiders appeared most suddenly and few persons realized that a raid was in progress until the sound of bombs began to be heard. The Germans were travelling at tremendous speed. They appeared to be at a lower altitude than in the last raid when they exacted such a heavy toll of life in London.

Official Statement.

The following official account of the raid was given out:

"Lord French reports that at about 9.30 o'clock this morning hostile aircraft in considerable numbers, probably in two parties, appeared over the Isle of Thanet and the west coast of Essex. After dropping some bombs in Thanet the raiders proceeded in the direction of London. Moving roughly parallel to the north bank of the Thames, they approached London from the northeast. Then changing their course they proceeded north and west and crossed London from the northwest to the southeast. Bombs were dropped in various places in the Metropolitan area. The number of raiding airplanes is at present uncertain, but was probably about 20. They were attacked by artillery and by large numbers of our own airplanes, but reports as to the results of the engagements and as to damage and casualties have not been received."

London, July 7.—Damage was done in the heart of London by the raid, which was one of the greatest, if not the greatest, ever attempted by the Germans over the Metropolis.

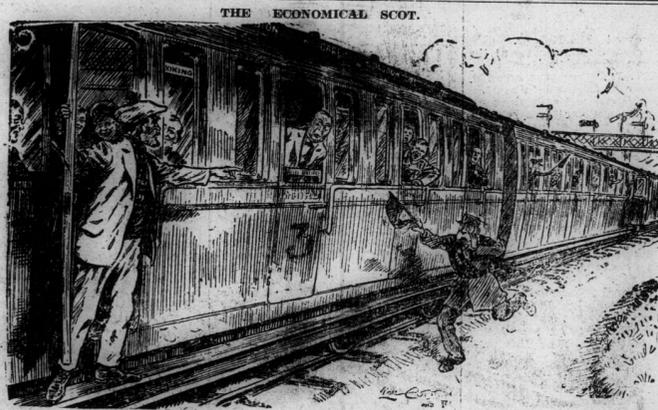

RETURNED SOLDIERS' TAG DAY

Everyone is Wearing A Maple Leaf Today, To Aid War Veterans.

The slogan, "Don't leave without a leaf," was well observed by the citizens of Brantford to-day, and the emblem of the Dominion was in evidence everywhere on the streets and in offices from an early hour this morning, when the workers first commenced to purvey their tags. The proceeds derived from the sale of Maple Leaf tags and from the grand concert that is to be held in the armories to-night, will be devoted towards financing the maintenance of club rooms for the returned soldiers of the city. The Galt Kiltie band of thirty instruments are holding an open air band concert in Victoria Park this afternoon, and will assist at the concert to-night, the other numbers on the program being: Sandbag Trio, Toronto, Sergeant Turley, Secretary of Provincial Association; Private "Jock" Hunter Bell, 2nd Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders, B.E.F.; Private Brewer, 6th C.E.F. In songs, readings, etc.; Corp. Murray, C.M.R.; violinist; Sergeant C. W. Allen, 5th Battalion, soloist; Pipe Major Dunbar, D.C.M., 1st Gordon Highlanders, late of the 19th C.E.F.; Private W. H. Hutchings, R.C.R., humorist; Petty Officer J. A. Smart, mimic. Brief address by W. P. Cockshutt, Esq., M.P., J. H. Fisher, Esq., M.P., and others.

BODY FOUND

The body of Earl Broun, the second victim of last Monday's drowning accident, was recovered by the firemen at noon to-day, in shallow water near Two Fish Island, at the bend of the river some distance below Eagle Avenue. A pedestrian upon the river road first sighted the body, and phoned the information to the police station, and a party from the central fire department visited the scene and recovered the body.

Mr. McFarlane (who has automatically stopped the express by pulling the communication cord, to excited guard): "Ah've drapt my sandwich way yonder." Passing Show, London.

BATTLE RAGING NEAR PINSK ON EAST FRONT

Furious Offensive Launched by Russian Forces on Scene of Great Austro-German Drive in Spring of 1915; Pinsk, City of 30,000, in Flames

By Courier Leased Wire.

Petrograd, July 7.—Violent fighting has begun on the Russian front west of Pinsk. The city of Pinsk is in flames, according to an announcement to-day by the semi-official news agency. The Russian artillery, the announcement says, is leveling all obstacles.

The opening of the battle of Pinsk, marks the second effort of the Russians, after the long period of quiet which followed the revolution. The point selected for this attack is about 130 miles north of the sector in East Galicia, along which the Russians made their first onslaught, resulting in the capture of about 16,000 men in two days. Pinsk is at the middle of the Russo-Galician battle line.

There has been no heavy fighting in this region since the conclusion of the great Austro-German drive, which began in the spring of 1915. During the summer the Russians were driven out of western Galicia, Poland and most of the Baltic provinces. Pinsk was captured by the Germans on September 15, at the high tide of the Austro-German invasion. Subsequently the Russians held up the Germans on the Riga front, and since that time the heaviest battles have been fought on the northern end of the line or in Galicia. Pinsk had a population of about 30,000 before the war. It lies within the great marsh and swamp region of White Russia, about on a line east of Warsaw. Naval Official. Paris, July 7.—Noon—Heavy artillery fighting occurred last night near La Roche and Pantheon on the Aisne front, and in the region south of Moronvilliers, in the Champagne, according to to-day's official announcement. British Official. London, July 7.—The British made an attack last night in Belgium east of Wytchaete. The war office announces that the British line was advanced slightly. The announcement follows: "East of Wytchaete our line has again been slightly advanced. The enemy attempted to raid our trenches in the vicinity of Achelle, but was repulsed. Elsewhere there were no events of special importance."

COBB DRAWS AVERAGE UP NEAR 400

By Courier Leased Wire.

Chicago, July 7.—Ty Cobb is nearing the 400 mark. The Detroit star pulling up 24 points in his last ten games, is batting .383, according to unofficial averages released to-day. Including Wednesday's games, he has driven out 190 hits for a total of 153 bases. Three home runs, twelve triples, and twenty doubles stand out in this remarkable batting performance.

In addition, the Georgian is showing daring speed on the bases. Overcoming a big lead, Cobb tied Weaver of Chicago for the honors in runs scored, having crossed the plate 47 times. He has stolen 20 bases. Chapman and Ruth of Cleveland continue to show the way in sacrifice hitting and base stealing, with 36 and 23, respectively. Roth has stolen home four times this season. Pipp of New York is in possession of home run honors with six. Detroit retained its lead in team batting with .251. Leading batters for half their club's games: Cobb, Detroit, .383; Speaker, Cleveland, .350; Sisler, St. Louis, .320; McInnis, Philadelphia, .320; Sloan, St. Louis, .316; Milan, Washington, .305; Chapman, Cleveland, .304; Heilmann, Detroit, .297; Jacobs, St. Louis, .288; Felsch, Chicago, .284.

The leading pitcher among those participating in 15 or more games, rated according to earned runs per game, is Cicotte of Chicago. He has taken part in 23 games, won 12 and lost 6, with an earned run average of 1.19. Cobb Take Two. Cruise of St. Louis, and Round of Cincinnati are still fighting it out for batting honors in the National League. Cruise with an average of .348, is leading by one point. Hans Wagner is batting .324 from twenty-seven games. He has made 24 hits. Carey of Pittsburgh has deposited Robertson of New York for honors in base stealing, with 18, and Doyle of Chicago took the lead in sacrifice hitting. Each has made seven. Cincinnati has displaced Philadelphia for honors in team batting with .266. Leading batters for half of their club's games: Anderson of New York is rated as the leading pitcher, having participated in 15 games, won 8, lost 5

FIGHTING CONTINUES

Battle Reported Along The Route of Peking-Mukden Railway

By Courier Leased Wire.

London, July 7.—A despatch from Peking to the Times says: Danger to foreigners in the capital is not feared. Advice to The Post from Tien Tsin are that the Imperialist Foreign Minister, Hsuan Tun Yen, has notified the foreign legations that he cannot guarantee undisturbed order, and if trouble occurs, Tuan Chi Jui, commander-in-chief of the punitive expedition, will be responsible.

According to a telegram to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Tien Tsin, fighting is occurring along the Peking-Mukden Railway as well as between Peking and Tien Tsin and the Republican troops thus far have the advantage. Other despatches from China do not confirm fighting, although reports say it is imminent.

ENTENTE TROOPS

By Courier Leased Wire.

London, July 7.—A despatch to The Post from Tsin says that 300 Japanese, French, American and British troops going to Peking to reinforce the legation guards arrived at Langfang, which is not far from Peking, before the fighting between the Imperialists and Republicans began. The general in charge of the Republican forces, urged them to withdraw ten miles to the rear, owing to danger from fighting. All withdrew except two British officers and some telegraph operators. Later both belligerents agreed to allow engineers to repair the railway track at Langfang, which had been torn up, and to permit the relief troops to continue their journey.

AMNESTY TO CZECH LEADERS

Former Members of Hungarian Parliament To Be Released From Prison

By Courier Leased Wire.

Amsterdam, July 7.—According to a telegram to Dutch newspapers from Vienna, steps have been taken to grant a complete amnesty to Dr. Karl Karmay and Dr. Aloisius Kasehin, the leaders of the Czech party in the Hungarian parliament, undergoing sentence for treason. Both will be released, but will not be allowed in Vienna nor permitted to attend the summer session of the Hungarian parliament. Also they are prohibited from living in Prague.

DECISION RESERVED

By Courier Leased Wire.

New York, July 7.—Supreme Court Justice Rendick reserved decision yesterday upon the application of Jack Curley and Tom Jones for an injunction to restrain Jess Willard, heavyweight champion pugilist, from appearing anywhere except under the management of Jones. Willard's attorney explained that all he did "was to come out and show himself to the public in his own show." "That's all he did under this contract, as nearly as I understand it," remarked the judge. Attorneys for the plaintiff declared Willard is seeking freedom from a contract under which he has taken in approximately $300,000 by selling "it is illegal" in this state because it deals with pugilistic exhibitions.

The Garden Tea held on the beautiful lawn of Mrs. Gordon Duncan, vice-regent of the Brant Chapter I. O. O. E. on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, proved a great success both from an artistic and financial standpoint.

A great many people patronized the Tea Garden and all were lost in admiration of the beautiful vista of garden lawns bright with many hued blooms, the roses and peonies being in their prime this week, the weather was most favorable to which added not a little to the enjoyment of the events. Mrs. W. P. Paterson was a co-worker with Mrs. Duncan in organizing this series of teas and a great deal of credit is due these energetic members of the Brant Chapter for their talent money for the Fall Campaign. Assisting at the tea were the Misses, Sybil Duncan, Alice Brooks, Margaret Mathews, Jean Paterson. The refreshments were delicious comprising tea, sandwiches, ice cream, strawberries and homemade cakes.

Miss Doris Tipper, is visiting for a few weeks with her aunt, in Toronto.

FROM AN OLD RAILWAY MAN Buffalo, N.Y., July 5, 1917 Editor Courier: The old Buffalo and Lake Huron G.T.R. boys, who had a reunion in your city on July 1st, wish to thank you for your notice of July 3rd. Through the courtesy of Mr. Park, photographer, we enjoyed the auto ride over the city and suburbs of your beautiful city—a more appreciative party could hardly be arranged. We all knew the city when it was a small town, surrounded with swamps.

Some of the reminiscences of the old boys were startling, to say the least. It speaks well for the quickness of hand and eye, to say none of the party present was minus the full quota of fingers and thumbs, but all were qualified to give the correct grip of fraternal friendship. It used to be the fashion for nearly all to wear the "mark" of the pin and link fraternity, in the old days, but many of them got mangled up so that "marks" were indistinct, so this party of ours must be the survivors of the fittest or luckiest. But don't go off with the idea that we were a party of just has-beens, as all have had the experience, and grown up with the new appliances, viz.: air brakes, self-couplers, electric lighting, air whistles, etc., invented from 1850 to 1917.

The following original lines will show that now we are taking a rest and enjoying the simple life that we still have our troubles, but trifles don't bother us.

But his old occupation was really worth while, So at trucks and mobiles, he'd cynically smile, But they sure made him hump, And kept him on the jump To keep from getting a serious bump But he till keeps up, his snickering smile, And says: "That a miss is as good as a mile." BRANT WAS A TRUE MAKER OF CANADA

Life of Famous Indian Interesting Chapter From The Past

GAVE THIS CITY NAME
Brant Visited England Thrice, and was Presented at Court

(By Marion Wathen Fox.)
Canadians on the whole do not make much of their historic spots. Before the war came we were so proud of the present and of the great future which we believed was before us that we almost forgot Canada had any historical spots. Of course, just now we are so busy making history that we have little time or desire for looking backward. Yet, on this historical anniversary, I am sure I shall not come amiss to take a backward glance, especially as this glance may make some of our "days off" during the summer more interesting and lend an added zest to day's outings; also in view of present conditions this "leaf from the past" has an unusual interest.

I made my first visit to the little town of Burlington in company with a friend. When strolling about I asked "What street is this?" "Brant street," came the reply, and also, "This was all Brant's land at one time."

On further questioning I was told: "All the land where Burlington now is at one time belonged to Joseph Brant, the famous Mohawk chief. This street was named after him; also Brant Township and the city of Brantford."

All at once the little town began to wear an unusual interest to me. Could it be possible that only a very little over a hundred years ago this beautiful little town was entirely the abode of Indians who hunted in the wilds where now smile splendid fruit farms capable of yielding in a good average year five thousand tons of fruit; who fished in this uncivilized garb from bark canoes where now sail modern pleasure yachts and gigantic steamers?

"Why, only forty years ago a great deal of this land was a wilderness of stumps," explained my friend. "Then we went and saw the old 'Brant House,' part of which was the home of Chief Brant himself for a number of years, built probably in 1802 or 1803. Here, too, the famous warrior died when 65 years of age, in 1807. Of course, as it appears today embodied in the 'annex of the Brant Hotel' it has little semblance to the original house. Bit by bit, as I interviewed old residents and those "up in history," I learned this: That Joseph Brant ("Thayendanegea") who might in a sense be called "the founder of Burlington," had given such splendid service to Great Britain in her war with the American colonies and in maintaining the loyalty and assistance of the "Six Nations" during this war that he was rewarded by the British Government with 5,000 acres of land at the head of Lake Ontario, called then by the Indians "Big Outter." This land came to be known as "The Brant Block."

Here the famous chief built himself what was then considered a fine residence on an eminence commanding a beautiful view of the lake. While living in this house he made three visits to England in the interests of his people. On these occasions he made quite a sensation in London, and was there treated with great courtesy and distinction. The King asked the Duke of Wellington to present him at court. Previous to this introduction Brant was instructed as to the proper ceremonies that he must take—his Majesty by dropping on one knee and kissing the King's hand—he refused, saying if it was a lady it would be a pleasant and proper thing to do, but he who was a King in his own land could never do anything so servile. Brant formed a great admiration for the Duke of Wellington, seeing in him another "great warrior," so on his return when buying gun villages square near his own home he named it "Wellington Square." So Burlington came to be called "Wellington Square" in its early days. Many of the present residents live in homes built on land purchased by their families directly from Chief Brant himself.

There is an interesting fact in connection with this Indian founder of Burlington which is not generally known. It is believed that the first temple erected to the worship of God in the Province of Ontario was built through his instrumentality. He was always anxious for the civilization of his people, and arranged with General Haldimand when negotiating on behalf of the Indians for the erection of a church, which was built upon their land on the Grand River and furnished with bell and communion service brought from their former home in the valley of the Mohawk. It was beside this church that Brant was buried. A monument marks the spot. On it is inscribed this epitaph: "This tomb was erected to the memory of Thayendanegea, or Captain Joseph Brant, principal chief and warrior of the Six Nation Indians, by his fellow-subjects, admirers of his fidelity and attachment to the British Crown. Born on the banks of the Ohio River, 1742, died at Wellington Square, U.C., 1807."

Laid at Rest

Infant Emmott
The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Emmott of Brantford, Toronto, will regret to learn of the death of their little son, William Gordon, sixteen months old, which occurred July 2nd, after a lingering illness of five weeks. The funeral took place on Wednesday, July 4th to Farrington cemetery. The service, which was largely attended, was conducted by Rev. Mr. Vale, assisted by Rev. Mr. Drew.
The floral tributes were: Pillow, father and mother; sprays, Grandma and Grandpa Campbell and family; Grandpa and Grandma Emmott and family; great uncles and aunts; Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Rous, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Rous, Mrs. Fred Rous, the Burch Philathe class. The heartfelt sympathy of their many friends is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Emmott in their sad bereavement.

BRITISHERS WANTED.
By Courier Leased Wire.
Boston, July 6.—An appeal to British subjects of military age residing in New England to enlist in the British or Canadian armies, was issued last night by Lieutenant Colonel LeGrand Reid, of the 170th battalion, Canadian expeditionary force, who is in charge of recruiting British born men here. "We hope to send more than 1,000 recruits to Canada within the coming week," said Lieutenant Colonel Reid, "and perhaps a great many more of British subjects will realize that it is better to enlist voluntarily than to be drafted."

THE SITUATION

The Russians yesterday resumed smashing attacks on the Teuton positions in Galicia. Berlin claims that all failed, but the fighting was still in progress at last accounts, the Huns in all probability, as so often before, have sought to give out reassuring statements before they are in any sense warranted. The resumption of the offensive by the Muscovites constitutes clear evidence that they have reawakened to stay in the game. Russian forces are also trying to sweep into Mesopotamia, and are meeting with lively resistance from the Turks.

Complete details show that the recent victory of the French in the Champagne region was of a brilliant nature. The Crown Prince had made elaborate arrangements for a surprise onslaught, and the Huns came on in wave after wave, only to be hurled back and shattered. Hundreds of them were afterwards counted lying dead on the field.

Stories are renewed of rioting in German towns because of food shortage. Rumors are persistent in London that Germany will shortly make another peace offer. It may be taken for granted that it will be on such a basis as to call for immediate rejection.

THE CONSCRIPTION ACT

The majority for the elective conscription bill exceeded the estimates of its friends and in the first round French-Canadian defections have been offset in a most handsome manner. It is not too much to say that those Liberals who voted against Laurier's referendum and for Borden's bill, represented the feeling of their constituents, and that others who did not do so will find, when the time comes, that their course was at variance with the feelings of the majority in their ridings.

It is satisfactory to note that the Premier declared that he will not permit the main and pressing need for more men, as provided under the measure, to be halted by delaying amendments, and that he intends to see that the Act is enforced when it finally receives the signature of the Governor-General.

THE AUTOCRATIC POWERS OF WILSON

A good deal of favorable comment has been heard in Canada with regard to the drastic war steps taken by President Wilson, once he got started and unfriendly critics have sought to draw comparisons at the expense of Premier Borden.

As a matter of fact, the President of the Republic is to all intents and purposes an autocrat. That may seem an anomaly, but it is nevertheless the truth.

Under the constitution of our neighbors the President is head of the executive and has a veto over the legislation of Congress. If he should exercise that right, it takes a two thirds majority in each house to override his decision, something never likely to occur. Moreover he personally selects the members of his own Cabinet—called Secretaries of State—and they do not possess seats in either House and have no responsibility whatever to Congress. They are answerable alone to the occupant of the White House.

In other respects this so called Republic has oligarchical methods. Take the suppression of the pro-German element as an illustration. No individual in the States dares to openly express himself as opposed to the part which that country has now taken in the struggle. If he does, it is jail for him.

struggle. He was not sparing in his language either. Once more, Wilson is an autocrat who can do as he likes; Borden, under the British constitution, can go no further than is sanctioned by the representatives of the people in the Commons.

HANNA'S CALL

Everyone should take serious heed to the call and the warning issued by Hon. Mr. Hanna, Canada's food controller. It will not do to think that there will be enough other people responding to attain results, but the message must be taken personally home by each one of us.

Mr. Hanna has stated the facts in a forcible and cogent way, and there is no need to enlarge upon them. Food for the Allies is a need which continually presses just as much as that of ammunition, and it is largely up to the people of Canada, in conjunction with the States, to see that it is met.

There is, without any doubt, an enormous amount of waste in both countries, and in the stopping of that a direct responsibility rests upon each individual. Food watchfulness so that supplies can be conserved as much as possible is a prime duty in these days, and Mr. Hanna should receive the hearty and the unreserved support of everyone, in any step that he deems necessary.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

There would seem to be nothing but broken sets in China just now. The persistent slacker won't get any consolation out of that majority in the Dominion House.

Here's hoping that Brussloff finally makes the Teutons cheese it at Lemberg. The United States Senate has voted against the manufacture of distilled spirits during the war, against allowing their withdrawal from bond and against their import, but has opposed putting the ban on wines and beers. The beverage which made Milwaukee famous is evidently still safe over there.

The withdrawal of Miss Colter from the school teaching staff of Brantford removes from that service one who for years has given of her best on behalf of the education of the youth of this city. It has been an excellent best, too. Thoroughly competent, she has always added great tact in the discharge of her duties and exercised a beneficial influence on the lives of her pupils far beyond the limits of a mere curriculum. Hundreds of grown men and women to-day owe a vast debt to her kindly direction and example, and all will wish for her many years of happy retirement.

BURTON

Rev. Mr. Vaie conducted the service on Sunday afternoon. Mrs. James Minshall has been entertaining her sister from Hamilton. Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Wood and family, were the guests of Mr. Stephen and Miss Gladys Smith on Sunday.

Our sincere sympathy is extended to the bereaved relatives of Baby Emmott who passed away on Monday after a sickness of several months. "We laid our boy in the coffin We folded the hands so snowy As the flower that in them lies. With a heart that was almost broken We gazed on that little face. Farewell, on a brighter to-morrow We shall meet him by God's grace."

Mrs. Cephuss Hartley and her daughter Miss Mabel Hartley were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell, on Wednesday. Master Irwin McIntyre is spending the holidays with his cousin Master Clarence Minshall.

Mrs. Burges Baker has been spending a few days in Port Burwell. Quite a number from here attended the garden party at Mt. Pleasant on Monday evening. Mrs. Charles Burton has been on the sick list.

The Sunday School picnic which was held by Newport Sunday School in Mr. Kirby's woods on Friday afternoon was a decided success.

FIRE LOSS.

By Courier Leased Wire. Toronto, July 6.—The Monetary Times estimate of Canada's fire loss during June is $1,184,827, as compared with May loss of $1,183,110 and $494,567 for the corresponding month of last year. The heaviest losses of the month were caused by the destruction of the Regina Storage and Forwarding Company's plant on June 12, with a loss of $177,000 and by the fire at Sorel, Que., on June 19, in which the loss is given at $200,000. There were four other fires during the month in which the loss was $50,000 or over. Nine deaths from fire occurred during June, three of them in the burning of a house.

COLLECTION

At a joint meeting of the executive of the Thrift League and the Conservation of Waste committee held in the Public Library yesterday afternoon it was decided to discontinue the collection of waste material, not because the response of citizens has not been all that desired, but because at the present time forty-eight tons of baled paper has accumulated for which no market can be found, and the quantity in Agricultural Park will afford accommodation for no more solutions. A financial statement submitted at yesterday's meeting showing that the committee will have a nominal indebtedness of $17, but if as anticipated the paper and other assets can be disposed of at the present low price a profit of over $450 will result. The committee was not dissatisfied and will continue in office until disposition is made of the balance stock.

The members of the committee since its inception have worked earnestly and without remuneration of them being business men, constant demands on their time, who have devoted a large share of their energies in promoting this public spirited enterprise.

Further information was received by his brother in the city this morning from Ottawa that Private J. Westpherson who recently was reported wounded is now missing.

CAMPING OUT

A thoroughly good outing is being enjoyed by the members of the St. Andrew's Boys' Club, who are camping at "Welcome Inn," on the farm of Mr. John Kerr, facing the river front. The camp is in charge of the Rev. J. W. Gordon and the other members are H. Jackson, Ross Willson, Bob Coad, Roy Oswald, G. Rock, Tom Bowie, W. Wylie, E. Howard, N. Armstrong, C. Armstrong, R. Longhurst, L. Chapman, L. Wilson, and W. Pattullo.

ASSESSMENT

The assessors have completed their field work for this year, and Assessor A. G. Ludlow stated to The Courier this morning that this season had been the most agreeable in the history of the department. He states that the people of the city are evidently beginning to realize that an effort is being made to provide them with equalized assessment. It is probable that the population of the city will be greatly increased this year, as there were 1047 poll taxes issued, an increase of 175 more than any other year.

TOWNSHIP HYDRO

The third and most successful of the meetings of ratepayers of the suburban districts for the purpose of discussing the Hydro Electric question was held in the Echo Place school last evening. The Rev. J. W. Gordon, who presided, and the various speakers were on the whole heartily in favor of the introduction of this measure and answered a multitude of questions that were asked. Mr. Harry Thomas presided and the various speakers were on the whole heartily in favor of the introduction of this measure and answered a multitude of questions that were asked.

SEMI-CENTENNIAL

The statement of the finance committee was submitted last evening to a general meeting of the Semi-Centennial Association that met in the public library. It was found that a balance of slightly over $400 would result from the holiday celebration, and at last night's meeting there were many requests received from patriotic organizations asking for consideration in the disposal of the funds. The committee decided, however, not to make any apportionment of the proceeds until Friday, July 13th, when another meeting will be held. Aid. MacBride and Kelly strongly urged that a substantial part of the $400 be turned over to the Great War Veterans' Association to assist them in securing a club, and although this organization was not in existence, nor was there any application for a home for the returned soldiers when the Semi-Centennial celebration for patriotic purpose was first conceived, the committee were of the opinion that the G. W. V. should receive consideration in the division of the proceeds.

ENGINEERS REORGANIZE

Brantford Lodge No. 4 Canadian Association Stationary Engineers met last evening at their rooms, 17 George street. A large attendance being present and seventeen candidates were duly initiated.

The chief business was the election and installation of the following officers: Past President—John Lea. President—David L. Webster. Vice-President—Joseph Ogle. Recording Secretary—Harry Doringler. Financial Secretary—A. N. Matta.

Treasurer—Fred Owens. Conductor—Thomas Hurst. Doorkeeper—Wm. Powell.

The Association will no doubt have a very successful future under the guidance of the above officers. Brantford Lodge will hold weekly meetings on Thursday evening throughout the year.

This Association is purely Canadian, it has the largest membership of any engineering society in Canada, it extends from ocean to ocean and covers the entire Dominion. It does excellent work in educating its members in their chosen work and help them to secure good positions.

It is not a union, but a purely fraternal and educational organization, designed for the betterment of engineering members both theoretically and practically.

It shall at no time be used for the furtherance of strikes or in any way interfere between its members and their employers in regard to wages.

It recognizes the dignity of interests between employers and employees and shall not countenance any project or enterprise that will interfere with perfect harmony between them. Neither shall it be used for political or religious purposes.

It is a society that every employer will recognize and give their influence and assistance to. Its meetings are devoted to the promotion of education, professional and mechanical knowledge where all matters pertaining to the engineering profession are taken up, such as steam, water, gas and electricity or any other mechanics.

Safety, Reliability, economy and intelligence.

LIVELY TIME AT ROCHESTER

Rochester, N. Y., July 7.—A revised decision which resulted in calling the police to prevent the mobbing of Umpire Carpenter and Blackburn was the climax to the Toronto and Rochester series, which closed with a 2 to 1 victory for Rochester yesterday afternoon. It was a pitchers' battle all the way between Forrester, Toronto's young southpaw, and Lotz for Rochester, with all the real action confined to the final round.

The score was 1 to 1 when the Hustlers began their half of the ninth. Collins, the first man up, singled. Schepner walked. Schweitzer bunted to Forrester and Collins was forced out at third. Wendel struck out, and Young was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases.

The Momentous Ninth After fussing around with Sandberg, Forrester finally found himself in a hole with three balls and two strikes on the batsman. As Forrester was preparing to pitch Schepner started for the plate and got there just after the ball.

Umpire Carpenter called Schepner out, and the home players appealed to Umpire Blackburn to decide whether Forrester was on the pitching rubber. The field umpire decided he was, and that the pitch of the plate which should have retired Schepner was a fourth ball to Sandberg.

There was plenty of ado while the Hustlers were convincing Umpire Blackburn that it was up to him to decide that Forrester was on the rubber. Lajoie and "Lois" Blackburn stirred up more fuss than they would had the world's championship been at stake. With the Hustlers equally scrappy, it was up to the police to stop themselves.

When Things Happened. Prior to exciting ninth there were two innings when there were doings on the bases. The Hustlers got a run in the third and the Leafs tied the knot in the seventh. An infield hit by Young, his steal of second, and his advancement to third on a wild pitch all happened before two were

Waterford News

(From Our Own Correspondent) Waterford, Ont., July 5.—About forty of the girls, who are doing National Service here, have arrived at the hotel, which the Fruit Growers' Association have rented for them. More are expected any day. On Monday a sign appeared outside of the hotel saying only the girls there would be allowed in the building. Even travelers, who have been accustomed to sleeping there and having their meals when in town are not to be allowed there. It was reported that if the sign was not taken down again, the helpers at the hotel would jump their job. Nevertheless the sign is still there, and so are the helpers. A great deal of comment is being caused by the sign, and the blame seems to be on the Association. The girls seem to be having a good time. They work hard during the day, picking the strawberries, and in the evening are seen out walking. All the boys of the town seem to have a lady friend these days, and all there are some girls left for some of the men who take the girls out riding in their autos.

Mr. Harold McMichael, of St. Thomas, is spending a few days with his parents. The grandfather, Mr. J. K. McMichael, is very ill and not expected to live. Mr. McMichael has lived on his farm just north of the village for a number of years.

WORKMEN'S DISTURBANCE

By Courier Leased Wire The Hague, July 7.—A crowd of workmen, led by a revolutionary Socialist, tried yesterday to start a demonstration in front of the parliament buildings in the Binnenhof, an irregular pile of buildings enclosing an open space. Mounted police and scavvy cleared the Binnenhof, which is entered by several gates, and closed the various entrances. No further disorders occurred.

EXIT THE HUNS.

By Courier Leased Wire. Washington, July 7.—All Germans, formerly suspected either with the German embassy or anyone of the many consulates in America, have been requested to leave the United States. Gas Problem Again Before Simcoe Town Council Last Night

POLICE CHIEF QUILTS Resignation of Chief Canning, Though Coming as Surprise, Accepted

(From our own Correspondent) Simcoe, July 7.—The municipal council began the work of the adjourned meeting shortly after eight o'clock. The finance committee got a small batch of accounts through, and council, for the convenience of those concerned, resolved itself into an informal court of revision to hear appeals against the poll tax assessment.

The sub-section quoted is: "This section (section 3) shall apply to the renewal or extension of an existing franchise."

He thought, however, that the worst that could happen, should the council act, might be that an attempt might be made to quash the by-law, and in that case loss by the corporation would mean only payment of court costs.

He thought that to be absolutely safe, the council might request the company to assume an undertaking to pay any such costs, should they obtain. He understood that the company was willing to give an undertaking such as mentioned.

Discussion showed that the company had for years supplied gas at less than the minimum price mentioned in the by-law, and that the prices now current, 30c and 25c, were the maximum only on condition that there is sufficient gas within the limits of the county supply is sufficient, 45c and 30c.

The only recourse the town has under the by-law is to cut out the franchise. No damages can be claimed from the company. The limit of the council's power, for example, should the company pipe gas elsewhere, would be to prohibit distribution and sale in Simcoe.

All members, except Deputy Reeve Slater and Ald. Craig, were present, and all entered into the discussion of the matter.

The by-law was put through without division, the new rates not to apply till the Lyndoch wells are connected up with Simcoe and delivering gas.

New Crossings The following new crossings were ordered to be included in the call for tenders for sidewalk building, over Colborne, on the north side of Main.

From the Club House to Ryesses' corner.

From Falls' store to Bank of Commerce, and across the foot of Lyndoch avenue.

Simcoe Take Two Chief Canning Resigns. The resignation of Chief Canning came as a surprise to the council, and even to the members of the Police Committee, who had conferred with him on Wednesday evening at the committee's meeting.

The resignation was accepted on motion of Alderman Jaques, seconded by Alderman Cropp.

Good News From Salonika Lt. A. C. Burt, V.S., has recovered from a second slight attack of malaria.

Capt. Rupert Simpson cabled under date July 4th, "All's well." The good news reached here early next morning.

These are Simcoe's only representatives in Greece.

Board of Education Meets. The regular meeting of the Board of Education was held last night, concurrently with the meeting of the town council, but the former got through after a moderate session. The council rose about an hour after midnight.

Victoria Progressive The cannery factory at Victoria, which has been under the management of three new reports have been installed—the type made in Simcoe. A 7500 gallon water tank on a forty foot steel tower is a recent addition. The whole plant was in order as a well kept kitchen. The force was working on strawberries, and the large white oolichth appears of the women and girls, added to the wholesomeness of the place. The present manager is W. T. Brazier.

Butler's new planing mill, built promptly to replace that burned last fall, is a worthy establishment. The burg is, generally speaking, alive.

Few Complainers. The number of residents who appeared to get a cancellation of poll tax, last night, was much smaller than was expected. Tuesday is the last day for payment. During last night's discussion it was evident that the rural equivalent, roadwork, is levied on every man within the age limit. Even hired help on a farm being worked out.

Odds and Ends. At the ratepayer's meeting held last night on the proposed site for the new school in the Union Section, the choice of the Trustees was unanimous with the meeting and a three acre lot will probably be acquired.

The work of contracting and preparing for building will go on at once. The only objectionable feature in the award of the arbitration board is the length of the name used to designate this section. For brevity we shall cut down the seventeen word appellation to four words and call it "The Western Suburban School."

SPLENDID VICTORY BY FRENCH TROOPS

Disagreeable Reception Is Given Crown Prince on His Surprise Party

AT THE WRONG DOOR Hundreds of Enemy Dead On Field, Still Bearing Their Packs

French Front in France, July 7.—Personal initiative, combined with a bravery and tenacity, won of the French a splendid victory when the Germans attempted last Tuesday night to retake Chemin-des-Dames by a most furious attack. The commanding general, after inspecting the entire 11-mile line where the battle occurred, declared yesterday to the Associated Press:

"The German Crown Prince had arranged a surprise party for us, in order to offset the Russian victory in Galicia, but he knocked at the wrong door and received a disagreeable reception."

Before the enemy's attack began an uncanny silence reigned along this famous road, where the hostile armies are facing each other at close quarters. Suddenly the German bombardment opened and its intensity impressed the French general as being greater than he ever before experienced on the Somme, at Verdun or in the Champagne, where he has taken part in all the battles since the beginning of hostilities.

The shell smoke was so thick and the fumes from poisonous and lacrimous shells were so heavy that it was impossible to take observations. The French general attempted to communicate with his battalion and artillery commanders, but the wires had been broken by projectiles. Then he gave the order to open fire, and his artillery colonel, suspecting that something was about to occur, had gone to the rear to attend listening post between the opposing trenches, and from this vantage point observed an unusual activity in the German lines. The colonel, therefore, ordered a curtain fire directed in front of the Germans.

Meanwhile, the French infantry in the front line swept the German front lines with rifle fire and hand grenades while the French trench mortars worked as never before. The German infantrymen, who could be seen waiting with bayonets fixed on their rifles, were ordered to leave their trenches and go over the top.

SERIOUS ASPECT IN IRELAND Constitutional Government Versus a Revolution Irish Times Takes Grave View of the Situation

Dublin, July 6.—The result of the East Clare election is likely to be a landmark in Irish politics. The issue is now set plainly between the constitutional government and revolution. The extremists have captured the south and many parts of Ireland. If East Clare shows that their policy of hatred and revolution commends itself to the middle-aged voters the outlook will be serious. If the Nationalist candidate wins we may expect a reaction against the Sinn Fein, supported by the authority of the Catholic Church, which is thoroughly alarmed. In a speech yesterday Lynch, the official candidate, said the teaching of the extremists could only result in the slaughter of the youth of Ireland by British guns. At a meeting at Valera's of his supporters, Darrig Figgis said that Ireland must obtain freedom. The problem was being thought out by a number of men, and at the proper time a full policy would be declared, meanwhile the Sinn Fein members were not idle. If the nation rallied they would see an Irish republic in two years.

The Irish Times takes a grave view of the spread of sedition and disaffection among the younger clergy of the Catholic church, and urges the Government to watch development, closely.

With the Fingers! Says Corns Lift Out Without Any Pain

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn can shortly be lifted right out with the fingers if you will apply directly upon the corn a few drops of freezons, says a Cincinnati authority. It is claimed that at small cost one can get a quarter of an ounce of freezons at any drug store, which is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain or soreness or the danger of infection. This new drug is an ether compound, and while sticky, dries the moment it is applied and does not inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue. This announcement will interest many women here, for it is said that the present high-heeled footwear is putting corns on practically every woman's feet.

Putting A Salmon River On The Map

THE map referred to is a map of some importance, for salmon is the big game of the fisherman, and brings in search of it sportsmen from all over the world with big two-handed rods and large noisy reels and (what Canada much desires) a deep purse for camps, guides and outfit. Harry Allen, President of the New Brunswick Guides Association, has known the Cains River as one of the best trout streams in the Province of New Brunswick, and salmon were frequently caught twenty miles up from the junction with the better known Mirimichi, but he believed that if the right kind of fishermen got there, they would find salmon all the length of at least eighty miles.

The investigation was made a short time ago by a party of sporting writers and editors from the United States. Maximilian Foster, a salmon fisherman of twenty years standing, who knows New Brunswick and Newfoundland like a book, and writes for the "Saturday Evening Post"; Hughie Fullerton, of the Chicago "Examiner"; Jack Lait, of the Chicago "Herald"; Grantland Rice and W. O. McGeehan, of the New York "Tribune"; and L. O. Armstrong, of the Bureau of Commercial Economics, Washington, D.C., an old campaigner who has hunted and fished in the Canadian woods for over fifty years, and A. O. Seymour, General Tourist Agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, an ardent fisherman.

When they arrived at Fredericton, all the local fishermen were pessimistic. "If there are salmon in the Cains," they said, "you have come at the wrong time. They went out with the ice and are now at sea. Better go home and come back in a month." It was cold and raining, the worst kind of weather for flyfishing, but nothing daunted, they set out.

With eight fishermen, one movie picture operator from the Essanay Company of Chicago, and nine guides, the fleet started out near the head of the Cains River, fishing the pools as they went down. The first day they struck only trout, but from the second day onwards the movie man was busy. Twice he had to choose between two fishermen who had hooked their salmon at the same time. Maximilian Foster had a basket of thirteen, ranging from seven to eighteen pounds. The largest measured forty-two-and-a-half inches, which means that if it had been taken in the fall it would have weighed forty-two-and-a-half pounds. Every member of the party had what he came for, thanks to Silver Doctor and Farmachene Belle, the two flies that the Cains River salmon seem to like. In one pool seven beauties, weighing between them sixty-eight pounds, were taken out in two hours, and it was only dark and lack of time that closed the sport. Result, eight happy fishermen, one happy movie man, and one supremely proud Harry Allen, who saw that his claims were justified and that Cains River could take its place for salmon besides the hitherto more famous waters of the Mirimichi and the Restigouche.

THE WORLD OF LABOR
Gleaned From the Exchanges and Other Sources
A Budget of News for Those Interested in Labor

After a short strike, organized dock freight handlers have raised wages 25 cents a day in Boston, Mass. The system federation of the Wash. R.R. has secured an agreement for a flat increase of 5 cents an hour and the eight-hour day. Several hundred organized barbers in Boston have suspended work to enforce a wage scale of $16 a week and half of the receipts over $21.

Tacoma, Wash., Teamsters' Union has secured a one-year contract with the Team Owners' Association. The union shop and increased wages are agreed to.

A local branch of the postal clerks' association has just been organized in St. John, N.B. Over 200 C.P.R. laborers have organized a federal labor union in Winnipeg, and another has been organized by the laborers on the C.N.R.

Shipments from Cobalt for week ending Friday, June 22nd, totalled upwards of 360,000 ounces, valued at over $280,000. The aggregate so far during the current year amounts to over $4,000,000. Shipments of silver totalled over $2,000,000. That's not so slow, eh?

A number of girls and women workers employed in the Canadian Explosive Works, located at Department Bay, B.C., have demanded an advance in wages, and upon one company refusing to pay the scale asked for quit, and say they are out to win, and will not return to work until the company is willing to meet their demands.

The Longshoremen's Unions on the British Columbia coast are after a general increase in wages and have opened up negotiations with the shipping interests. The demand for deep-water work is a schedule of 69 cents an hour, with 90 cents for overtime. For dock work performed in connection with deep-water vessels, 60 cents per hour and 75 cents for overtime.

The Brandon Trades and Labor Council has applied to the Provincial Government of Manitoba for an investigation into the low rate of wages paid to girls employed in business houses in that city. It is claimed that the minimum rates now paid are so pitiful that a girl cannot live and clothe herself respectably out of the lean pay envelopes handed over to them.

Dr. T. R. Adams, of the Conservation Commission, Ottawa, after a recent public health session of the Canadian Medical Association Convention, held in Montreal, made the statement that the commission had found that conditions in the majority of Canadian cities were no worse than in many of the rural districts, which he claimed was due largely to speculation in land.

SECRET TREATY
BETWEEN THE CZAR
AND THE KAISER

Incriminating Letter Establishes Duplicity and Treason of Nicholas

Tumors that Nicholas Romanoff, formerly Czar of Russia, was on the point of concluding a separate peace with Germany have been current ever since the revolution that hurled him from his throne, but no tangible evidence in the past has been forthcoming to support the charge. When there came to light a deeply incriminating letter. Following this discovery came the announcement that Nicholas will be placed on trial, and a request that a conference be held with representatives of the Entente Powers in order to find out just what treaties exist between the nations and Russia. It is not necessary to infer that the object of examining the treaties is to denounce Nicholas, but to see that the content of the present Russian Government purely desire to know how far Russia is pledged and with whom. It is known that it was the custom of the former Czar to make secret treaties with other crowned heads and to give no information to their content even to his own Ministers.

It was a statement in the Russkole Slovo concerning a former secret treaty between the Czar and the Kaiser that furnished the evidence that will be used against Nicholas when he is put on trial. The statement was from Boris Glinka, editor of the Moscow Review, "Messenger of History," and included a facsimile copy of a letter written to him by his friend, the late Count Witte. This letter was written by the Russian statesman, to be used only after his death which took place a couple of years ago, and in case of any real national emergency. It is greatly to the credit of Glinka, who has a national reputation in Russia as a journalist, that he resisted many previous temptations to publish the letter, but it might be well that he had not done so before, since an attack upon the Czar would well have led to his imprisonment or execution if Nicholas were still in a position to punish his enemies.

Witte as a Peacemaker. It appears that when Count Witte was on his way home after having represented Russia in concluding the treaty of peace with Japan at Portsmouth, N.H., he found it necessary to stay off in Paris for the purpose of negotiating a loan for Russia. Affairs in Russia at that time were in a state, the Moroccan question being acute. The Russian statesman was informed that if matters grew serious, it would be utterly impossible for France to lend any money to Russia. Witte then went to Berlin and had an interview with the Kaiser, who was not being "ready for a war, the difficulties in the way of restoring nominal friendly relations between France and Germany were too great, and since Witte told the Kaiser that unless Germany made concessions Russia would be unable to get the money so urgently required, he was able to bring about a modification of the German attitude. Subsequently France made the loan.

Czar Made Secret Treaty. In the course of their conversation the Kaiser remarked casually that he was more willing to do Russia a friendly turn in view of what had taken place between the Czar and himself on the occasion of a recent meeting. Witte asked for details, but the Kaiser laughingly told him he would have to question the Czar, as it would be improper for him to furnish the particulars. Much disturbed, Witte returned to Petrograd and began an investigation. He closely examined all the members of the Czar's entourage who had attended him at the Bjorka meeting, and what he learned convinced him that some form of treaty had been signed. Witte, who had a masterful grasp of the Czar than of any other man, immediately sought an interview with his sovereign and challenged him to produce his copy of the treaty. Reluctantly Nicholas confessed that he had signed on behalf of Russia an offensive and defensive treaty with Germany. It was not countersigned by any responsible Russian Minister, and no Russian knew its provisions except the Czar.

Witte Forced Repudiation. Then Witte declared that if the Czar did not make steps to end the agreement he would inform France of the incident. France would then refuse the needed Russian loan, and since Russia without the loan would have been obliged to suspend payment of interest on its bonds at home and abroad, thus becoming bankrupt and disgraced, the Czar was obliged to yield to his masterful Minister. Naturally the Czar never forgave Witte, and took the earliest opportunity of retiring him, and to the day of his death in 1915 the Russian statesman had to contend with the bitter hostility of the Kaiser. It is said that Nicholas was not only under the influence of his wife, but also under the influence of the Kaiser and the Grand Duke of Hesse, the brother of the former Czarina, and this is far worse than being permanently under the influence of vodka. When over the two sovereigns got together, Russian ministers were in constant fear of some secret agreement being signed. It is extremely improbable that any secret treaty between the Kaiser and the Czar is in existence. Otherwise Russia would not have entered the war, or else would have dropped out of it long ago.

AS SPEEDILY AS POSSIBLE
The Conscription Act Will Be Made Law
Premier Borden Announces that the Bill Will Be Put in Force

Ottawa, July 7.—The unexpected large majority by which the motion for the second reading of the Military Service Bill was adopted in the Commons is a source of great satisfaction to all supporters here of the principle of compulsory enlistment for overseas service on a selective basis. It is taken to augur well for the progress of the measure through Parliament and also for its reception by the people when it is law and is enforced. Members who voted for the second reading, it is felt, were able, after the lapse of seven weeks, to voice accurately their constituents' views of the Government's policy. Therefore, the vote on the second reading of the bill is considered to indicate that the great majority of the Canadian people are in favor of conscription, and are prepared to submit to its enforcement.

to indicate that the great majority of the Canadian people are in favor of conscription, and are prepared to submit to its enforcement. The military service bill is now before the committee of the whole in the Commons, and will probably be completed at the stage of its progress through the House in the course of a week or thereabouts. Certain opponents of the bill have intimated that they may utilize all the constitutional power possible to delay the advancement of the bill toward the status of a law. On the other hand, twenty-six Liberals have voted for the second reading, and may be expected to respond to the invitation of the Prime Minister to assist in producing a law which will meet the requirements of the country both at the front and at home. They may be counted upon to facilitate the passage of the bill through the committee stage. Following the third reading in the Commons the bill will go to the Senate, where it is not expected the debate will be long protracted.

In the course of a few weeks, therefore, the Military Service Act should be ready for the gubernatorial assent which will make it law. Moreover, its enforcement will not likely be long delayed. That much was indicated by the speech of the Prime Minister upon the Cops amendment yesterday morning. Sir Robert Borden then said: "The Government does not approve that any such dilatory amendment shall stand in the way of the second reading of this bill, and in order to relieve my honor, friend's mind I may also assure him that the bill will be put in force."

Sporting Comment

The New York Giants were playing in St. Louis. A husky looking young man whose makeup would stamp him in the eyes of a Broadway dancing mah as a "Rube" dropped into the Buckingham hotel and asked if Jeff Tesreau was about. Jeff was out in the adjoining park somewhere breathing the atmosphere, so an idle newspaper reporter asked the visitor what he wanted of Mr. Tesreau.

"Oh, I just came up from Fredericktown to look him over and talk over old times," said the stranger. "My name's Ashbury and I'm Jeff's old catcher. Him and I used to make up Fredericktown's battery back in 1907. See those busted fingers? Got them catching Jeff. Sorry he's not around, but understand he's going to pitch to-day, so I'll go out to the park and see him work."

Later Herb Ashbury was found seated in the grandstand at the Cardinal park, his legs crossed, a sack of peanuts in his gnarled fingers and enjoying things immensely as Tesreau set the Cardinal batters down in order.

"Well how does Jeff look to you now?" was the question asked him. "It's the same old Jeff," chortled Herb. "Looks just the same as he did the first time I saw him back in 1907 and seems to have as good stuff as ever. Think his control's a little better now."

"Well I remember the first game I caught him, and it was the first time I'd ever seen him, too, thought he had a reputation even then. Fredericktown needed a catcher and they sent for me to come alongside the depot when Jeff drove up. He had drove in from his farm out near Mine La Motte. He had a good looking girl with him. There was no railroad fare for him and the $3 he was to get for pitching was all sugar. I was to get $2.50 for catching him and my railroad fare was $1.50. My dinner cost me 50 cents, so I only stood to get 50 cents for all the fingers Jeff was to bust on me."

"The manager introduced us, and Jeff said: 'So you're the fellow that's going to catch me. Well, I won't be responsible for no busted fingers.' "That wasn't very comforting, and it's luck for him I didn't claim no damages," added Ashbury, as he held up his gnarled and twisted digits with a laugh. Then he added as he got up to go the game ended with Tesreau a winner.

"Jeff's got more respects for signs now than he has when I caught him. But he hasn't got any more stuff. First time I've seen him pitch in a couple of years. Tell him you saw me. Guess I'll have to ride the old Iron Mountain back to-night as I won't have time to say hello to him."

"Neither batted for Prendergast and was out, Stock to Luderous." That sentence was one of many in the description of a Cub game at Philadelphia recently, when pitcher Grover Alexander won another of his impressive victories. Readers, probably, passed it by with scarcely a thought. Neither had gone in as a pinch hitter—that was all. The sentence is a common, everyday affair.

To Ruether that incident, small as it may have been, formed a red-letter day in his life. That trip to the plate marked the culmination of an ambition cherished since his youth. The slender southpaw twirler of the Cubs, who has gained fame as a pinch hitter and as an all-round player, told briefly of his experience after the battle was finished and the Cubes sat in the hotel at Philly.

"Years ago, when the baseball fever was just getting hold of me, I used to study the box scores carefully," he said. "I always kept looking for the games where Alexander pitched. He was early my idol and hero."

"I never failed to read about him when ever the papers printed stories of his life and career. I used to think that if I could ever bat against him just once I'd be happy for the rest of my life."

"This afternoon I actually faced the great Alexander. I didn't get a hit, but my boyhood ambition was realized."

An unidentified player replaced Larry Doyle at second base during the progress of a game between Cubs and Giants in Chicago recently. "It isn't Wortham," said one press box expert. "Must be Wolfe. He's the only other insider Mitchell has." There was considerable astonishment when the announcer yelled: "Driscoll now playing second base!" "Driscoll, who is he?" was the question that flashed through the press stand.

"They haven't signed up anybody by that name," remarked an eminent writer.

Way out in the bleachers sat a fan who was wise to the situation. His voice, raised to a yell, could just be heard.

"Come on, Northwestern!" he shouted.

"Driscoll—Northwestern," mused all the experts in chorus. Then to their active minds the thing came clear. It was the captain of the Northwestern university baseball team, who had been wearing a Cub uniform for a week or less, but none of the hard working baseball reporters, drawing fancy salaries to give the fans the dope, had been able to get the news—probably because they had been too busy to ask for it.

Umpires, league presidents and those of the sob squad who think the game is going to the dogs unless there are more restrictions put on the spirit to win, doubtless will approve of this incident reported from Fort Smith. In a recent game between Fort Smith and Oklahoma City a small boy grabbed a foul ball and ran. Two policemen took after him and nearly stampeded the crowd in attendance by firing their revolvers at the fleeing lad. The boy was so frightened that he ran headlong into the river that bounds the ball park on one side, but fortunately he could swim and was rescued still clutching the ball.

The strangest part of this story is that neither of the two policemen

LABOR TROUBLE

By Courier Leased Wire.
Amsterdam, July 6.—Another outbreak of labor troubles in Germany is reported by The Handelsblad, which says a collision occurred at Hamburg last night between strikers and workers from the government munitions plants. Soldiers fired repeatedly on the demonstrators, one man being killed and eleven wounded.

SIDELIGHTS OF THE STAGE AND SCREEN

"BROADWAY JONES." The widely heralded motion picture debut of George M. Cohan takes place at the Brant theatre Monday. "Broadway Jones," his greatest stage success affords him his initial screen vehicle in which he is supported by an excellent cast including such well known film favorites as Marguerite Snow, of "The Millionaire" fame, Russell Bassett, the veteran character actor of many screen successes, Crawford Kent and Ida Darling.

The story tells of a small town youth who secures a goodly inheritance and journeys to the Great White Way to "burn it up." After various exciting experiences he finds that his money has dwindled to nothing and learns that there are many unpaid bills to be met. After complications involving a rich widow whom he asks to marry, he turns back to his home town and starts life anew, taking over his father's business, where new exciting experiences await him. Sparkling with a continuous series of humorous situations, offset by various dramatic scenes, this subject under the direction of Joseph Keenan, presents a breezy story of rapid action and human interest, a typical George M. Cohan production.

When produced at the George M. Cohan theatre, on Broadway some three years ago, "Broadway Jones" immediately proved itself the greatest popular success in which Mr. Cohan ever appeared, as well as the hit of the entire theatrical season. Frequently shown by motion picture producers without success, this story presents an admirable screen subject, and with George M. Cohan in the original character, should more than duplicate its stage popularity among patrons of high class theatres.

"THE MEDIATOR"

A brand-new view of the West is furnished the public in William Fox's new photoplay for George Walsh, "The Mediator," to be seen at the Rex theatre the last of next week. It's a Western drama that is different, one full of rapid action and quiet humor, with its central character a man who loves peace so much that he is willing to fight for it. Incidentally, he finds it necessary to do so.

The man is Lish Henley (George Walsh), a prospector who lives in an Arizona town, and who has adopted the nickname of "The Mediator," because it describes his character. He begins the story by shooting and wounding the village bully, Bill Higgins (Lee Willard), who gets insulted when Lish orders a sody-pop, instead of the straight stuff. Then Lish is so sorry at what he has done that he sends flowers to Bill in the hospital.

Bill, grateful, tells Lish that he is going to start a new life when he gets well. He is going to seek out his wife, Martha (Pearl Elmore), from whom he has been estranged, and who is now living in Peaceful Hill, Cal.

"Peaceful Hill Must Be Peaceful." The name of the place attracts Lish. He decides that Peaceful Hill is the place for him, so he sells his mine and starts out for the California town with his burly as company. His first stop is Keswick, a mining town in which there is a strike. Lish, with his haird for fighting, finds the leader (James Marcus) and knocks him senseless. After that the strike is stopped.

Arriving at Peaceful Hill, Lish immediately enquires for Martha Higgins and finds that she is the cook at the hotel. He tells her that Bill has mended his ways and tries to arouse her interest in her husband.

Trouble Finds Lish Again. He is just beginning to believe that Peaceful Hill is worthy of its name when he learns that the bully he had knocked senseless at Keswick, calls Peaceful Hill his home. The bully arrives with his gang and upon seeing Lish decides to pay him back for old scores. They frame up a way to get Lish and are overheard by Maggie (Juanita Hansen), the waitress at the hotel. She bears an old grudge against the bully, warns Lish to look out for him, and slips him a revolver under a napkin. A fight follows and Lish is again victorious over the bully and his gang.

This is the beginning of a love affair between Maggie and Lish. Learning that he is a prospector, she asks him to help work a claim that had been left her by her father. They decide to go into partnership.

The bully, enraged at having been twice licked by Lish, makes another effort to get even with him and to get him out of the way so that a shipment of rich ore from a neighboring mine may be stolen. The bully and his strong-arm crew take Lish up into the mountains to kill him, but he escapes and gets back to his camp by a flume just in time to thwart the robbery plans. In the fight that follows he is wounded. Maggie nurses him back to health; and his old friend Bill Higgins, now reformed, comes to Peaceful Hill and is reconciled with Martha.

The bully's gang is rounded up and The Mediator and his bride remain at peace with the world at Peaceful Hill.

"FRECKLES." The two charming young stars, Louise Huff and Jack Pickford, will be seen at the Brant on Thursday, Friday and Saturday in Marian Fairfax's photo dramatization of Gene Stratton Porter's celebrated novel "Freckles."

The story is probably one of the most familiar in the English language. As a novel, it had a great circulation, and later was dramatized and played on the stage. The story is exactly suited to these clever young people who, as co-stars, recently scored such a success in

"Great Expectations" and "Seventeen." Jack Pickford recently increased his already enviable popularity as the star in "The Dummy," and later as the young college boy with Vivian Martin in "The Girl at Home."

Louise Huff, who is also one of the most popular of the young screen stars, was recently seen with House Peters in the Dallas-Paramount production "The Lonesome Chap."

Immediately upon the completion of "Freckles," the two stars began work on another photo drama in which they will appear shortly.

The story of "Freckles" has to do with the adventures of an orphan with a withered arm. He runs away from the orphanage and finally secures a position as watchman in the Lumberlost, a valuable timber swamp.

How he meets the "Angel," saves his employer's life at the risk of his own, and later nearly loses his own life to save the "Angel," is presented in a most graphic and beautiful manner.

The scenes of this production were filmed in the famous lumber camp district of California and the swamp scenes are identical with the famous Lumberlost described in the story.

The production was made for the Lasky Company under the direction of Marshall Neilan and included in the cast besides Miss Huff and Mr. Pickford are such prominent players as Hobart Bosworth, Lillian Leighton, Billy Elmer and Guy Oliver.

"THE GIRL FROM OUT YONDER." An extraordinary drama, a play of the seacoast, and fisherman, will be presented at the Grand Opera House on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, nights. This play is "The Girl from Out Yonder." Brantford has never had this play, Brantford will like it and will never forget it as a beautiful wholesome story of kind-hearted people.

The Roma Reade players have been here a week now and like Brantford audiences have received them at every performance, so far it is plain that Brantford is going to give them their support and keep them at the Grand Opera House for some time. The prices will not be raised for the production of "The Girl From Out Yonder," but will remain the same and twenty-five cents is the highest price for any seat in the house. A matinee will be given on Saturday afternoons and any seat can be had at ten cents.

Miss Roma Reade as Flostata, the sea-coast girl will appear at her best and has some thrilling scenes in the highhouse. Here she saves the life of the man she loves how she takes her father's place and runs the light in the storm are all depicted with thrilling realism.

Edward Keane the leading man of the company will have a very good part of the lover, Miss Baker, Mr. Goodhand, Miss Leeman and Mr. Stainwood also the other members of the company will have wonderfully strong and trying roles. Thursday, Friday and Saturday "The Third Degree," will be given.

"UNCONQUERED." Fannie Ward, the brilliant Lasky-Paramount star, who with each appearance on the screen adds fresh thousands to her list of admirers, will be seen at the Rex theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in "Unconquered," a thrilling drama of modern society life written especially for her by Beatrice C. De Mille and Leighton Osmun.

In her recent production, "The School for Husbands," Miss Ward is seen as a young wife who teaches her rather wayward husband that his attention and interest should be centered in his home. In "Unconquered" she is seen as the wife of a relentless millionaire, who devotes all her time to her little son, Billy.

The husband becomes infatuated with another woman and tricks the wife into a compromising situation, secures a divorce and the child, and how the child is finally won back by the mother's offering to sacrifice her own life to a half-crazed negro, is presented in a most graphic and unusual manner.

As the young wife of the millionaire, Miss Ward has an opportunity to display many of the most beautiful scenes from her wonderful wardrobe.

Many of the scenes of the production are laid in a fashionable house in the wealthy districts of Florida, and the photo drama is filled with beautiful exterior scenes.

The cast supporting Miss Ward is one of unusual excellence, including such prominent artists as Jack Dean, Hobart Bosworth, Tully Marshall, Mabel Van Buren and Little Billy Jacobs.

Hobart Bosworth as the husband, infatuated with another woman, a role splendidly played by Mabel Van Buren, gives one of his customary finished performances. Tully Marshall, who will be remembered for his successful performances in many Lasky productions, gives an unusual characterization of Jake, the half-crazed negro whose heart is filled with fear of the Voodoo woman. Little Billy Jacobs plays the role of the little son in his usual clever manner. The production was made for Lasky-Paramount under the direction of Frank Reicher.

12 Good Reasons and True

- Power—almost unlimited. The Gray-Dort will carry you anywhere. Hills—mud—sand—hold no terror for her. Etienne Planché who evolved the Peugeot, has built his masterpiece in the Gray-Dort. Here is an efficient economical motor of great speed and great power.
- Perfect Cooling—obtained by exceptionally large jackets around every cylinder individually and around every valve cage. Friction of moving parts is reduced to a minimum, giving extra power all the time.
- Absence of Vibration—the bane of most light cars. An extra heavy crank shaft with long and large bearings and perfect balance and adjustment of all working parts makes this the smoothest, evenest motor at less than double the Gray-Dort price.
- Quick Get-Away—She responds to the throttle at once. The light motor moves quickly—fires surely—and you are in high in a moment.
- Absence of Back Pressure—The Gray-Dort has a dual exhaust—rare on four-cylinder cars. As a result all gases are carried away at once. The result is a cooler, more efficient motor—and more power.
- Fool-Proof Carburetor—This important and delicate part of the motor is wonderfully efficient in the Gray-Dort. Adjust it as you will, the motor still runs sweetly and powerfully.
- Easy Driving—Irreversible worm and nut type steering gear which takes the jolts out of driving and gives added safety. Easy gear-shift, sure brakes, handy control.
- Long Life—Strength and honesty of construction have characterized every product for which this great manufacturing organization has stood sponsor during sixty years of practical experience. The Gray-Dort is our latest and finest effort.
- Accessability—You can reach the "vitals" of the Gray-Dort easily. This makes cleaning and adjustments easy. Repairs can be made quickly. Time and money are saved.
- Complete—You buy the Gray-Dort complete: Westinghouse starting and lighting, one-man top, speedometer, ammeter, dashlight, demountable rims, non-skid tires in rear, electric horn, tools, everything.
- Comfort—Long springs, full cantilever in the rear; deep upholstery; lots of seat room lots of leg room; absolute absence of fatigue.
- Price—Only $945 for a completely equipped 5 passenger touring car or 3 passenger roadster of outstanding quality—value far in excess of the price asked.

FIRE IN FILMS

By Courier Leased Wire.
Bordeaux, July 6.—A fire broke out to-day among some moving picture films in the forward part of a steamship in dock. The flames badly damaged the upper structure of the ship and spread to the merchandise on the wharf. The conflagration was extinguished after considerable loss. An official inquiry has been opened into the causes of the fire.

THE PATRONNE

(By Patrick McGill.)

The morning was beautifully clear. The sun rising over the Eastward firing line lit up wood and field, river and pond. Here in the farmyard a mist rose from the reeking midden where the noisy hens were scripping with their claws in the dung. On the post of the pump, a little bird with salmon pink breast, white tipped tail and crimson head, was preening its feathers in the sunshine. In the shade, where our barn filled and the byre formed an angle, a stout roald was scribbling words in milk pails. The horse-lines to rear of the yard were full of movement. Horses strained at their tethers eager to break away from the captivity of the rope while the grooms were busy brushing the animals' legs and flanks and a slight dust rose into the air as the work was carried on.

It was good to be there, lying prone on the straw near the barn door. I had learned to love the farm-house. Bazin and Davidet must have known it, Balzac and Marie Claire must have peeped it. The good Pere with his long pipe, the diligent housewife, the Millet Servant girls and types which abound in French fiction. All were busy at work though the day was Sunday. Even the Sabbath has little rest for France at war.

Over the red-brick houses of the village the church stood high, and from my barn I could see the spire sharply defined against the blue of the sky. Up by the church shells were bursting and their smoke rose over the houses.

The door of the Cafe across the road opened and the patronne, a merry-faced woman, came across to the farm house. She purchased some newly-laid eggs for breakfast and entered into a conversation with a few of our men who were now washing their faces at the pump. The men knew a little French and asked the patronne about her son in the trenches. She had heard from him the day before, she told them. He was quite well and hoped to come home on leave shortly, when he would spend a fortnight with his own people. She looked forward to his coming, for he had been away from her for ever so long, eight whole months. What happiness would be hers when she had him back again.

She waved her hand to the men as she went off, walking lightly across the roadway and disappearing into the cafe. She would go to church presently; it was Holy Week when the Virgin listened to special intercessors, and the patronne prayed hourly for the safety of her soldier boy.

At ten o'clock we went to Chapel, marching down the crooked village streets, our Irish pipers in front. We entered the church and knelt down in prayer. The soldiers occupied the larger part of the building, only three able-bodied male civilians were in attendance. The youth of the country were out in the trenches. Even here in the quiet little Chapel, with its crucifixes, images and pictures, there was the suggestion of war in the collection boxes for wounded soldiers, in the crepe worn by women, many of whom were in mourning, and above all, in the general air of resignation which showed on the faces of the worshippers from the village. The whole place breathed of war, not as it is shown in the splendid rush of men maddened by the enthusiasm of battle but in silent yearning, heartfelt sorrow and great bravery, the bravery of women who remain at home.

Opposite us sat the lady of the cafe, her head low down on her breast and her rosary slipping sin- glerly, raise her voice she would stir on the right of the High Altar. I move her lips in prayer; then she finite her rosary.

As far as I could tell, singing in church was nearly the privilege of the choir alone, and none of the congregation joined in the hymns. But one-day the church had new worshippers, the soldiers from England, the men who sat in the trenches, in the billet, on the march, the men who long in song on the last lap of a long killing journey in full march- ing order. A hymn well known and loved, the solemn call of the Faith, was started by the choir, and as one man the soldiers joined in the sing- ing, their happy voices raised above the building. The civilians looked after another, they began to sing in a moment, and everybody joined in the noise was aiding the choir. The organ still sang in prayer she mind was full of the singers, her Only a mother thinking of her loved son could so wholly lose herself from the world. And as I looked at her I started tears in her eyes.

When the service was concluded through them their nation, and that was being done to help France in the war. Prayers were said for still alive as well as those who had fallen on their lives for their coun- try's sake. At the end of the service priest, choir and congregation all joined in the hymn, "Save the King."

With our minds glowing in front of an admiring crowd of how fat- igit. On the march a note was off parade in the morning. "Saw the woman of the cafe in Church?" he asked me. "Saw her crying?" "I thought she looked unhappy." "Just after you went away the news came," my mate told me "Her son has been killed, she is awfully upset about it and no wonder. She was always talking about her pet son and he was to be home on leave very soon."

But now, somewhere 'out there' where the guns were incessantly booming, a hastily dug grave held the man's body. Next Sunday another mourner would join with the many in the village church and pray to the Virgin Mother for the soul of her beloved boy.

Rippling Rhymes

W. H. Mason

I'm hoping I may serve the state, before the mighty scrap is done; I'm trying to reduce my weight, so I'll be fit to pack a gun. I've cut out fat-producing fats, forsaken all the gourmet's ways; I'm living now on pickled beets, and lose an ounce in seven days. I trot all day around the town by exercise some weight we lose; I hope to cut my waistline down so I can see my shapely shoes. It gives my soul a bitter wrench, that I am not allowed to call for France, to fight in meat and trench, because I break the village scale; and I look forward to the day (may heaven speed he happy morn!) when, slim and debonair and gay, I tread on Kaiser William's corn. I cannot understand the chaps who skulk when they are called to fight, who'd shun the greatest of all scraps, though knowing that the cause is right. Oh, it is good to go, I say, (even though some day one may return, with legs and larynx shot away) a nation's gratitude to earn. And so, to shake my weight of lead, I live on beets, and noddled hay, and do gymnastics in the yard, and weigh myself nine times a day.

KEEP WORKING

I like to break his shoulder-plate, regardless of his screaming. I do my work from day to day, I hustle like the chickens. I give the horse harness, all kinds, work the churns and wringers. I teach my engine Anks to swim, and give the bees new singers. I am so busy cutting I haven't time to sew the slip or mone around and nutter. Well whip the foe, without a doubt, our arms will be the victor, and I defeat the trenchy scout—I do, doggone his pictur.

END OF WAR NOT YET IN SIGHT

Interesting Sidelights Upon Situation in England Are Given in Letter

Mr. A. L. Cutmore, 11 Elizabeth street is in receipt of the following interesting letter from Sergt. Bowtle, now convalescing in England, after being gassed.

Shorncliffe, Eng., June 17, 1917.

Dear Gus:—Your of the 27th of May, just received this evening. Evidently with the aid of the U. S. A. Navy, the mail is coming along faster, as most of the letters have taken a month to get here, also, I received a letter with cuttings from the local paper from my life. It was a great surprise to me to hear of poor Len Mears and his brother. Gee! Gus war is certainly hell. Brantford is beginning to feel what people in England have felt since 1914. Earl Pitcher too, has gone "West"—and Gus, the "End" is not yet in sight, how many more will go "Under," yet it's hard to say, one can only wonder "Who" will "Return Home." Your Cousin I read was wounded well Gus when "wounded" that you are satisfied of knowing that you are "Safe" for a time at least I too, sincerely hope he will come through he. I've wondered if he stayed with the Battery, he would of escaped, but we can only say, "Thy Will be Done Oh Lord." By now, you will know that I've met "Bert O'Heron," and I sincerely hope Bert gets marked for Canada, he certainly isn't fit for France again. So I really think that "One" of the "Old Carriers" will return to Brantford, and of course I hope the others will too.

I volunteered for France some three weeks ago, but as N. Co. O's are short here, why they are at present holding on to us, but I guess one of these days we will get warned, however, I am quite confident of eventually returning Home, that I do not worry. Fritz though with his Air Raids on England, makes times unpleasant for us all, but we fellows, of course, have to be prepared to give our lives, what hurts us most, is the loss of the women and children in these raids, three times in the last two days, have we had to stand to. All our boys have to go to stables and stand by the horses, as for me, being Orderly Sergt. this week I've to go around, and see that everyone keeps under cover in the raid. Glad and I were in the raid, but this London Raid has been much worse, any way regarding loss of life. Now Reprisals are demanded so the Hun can be prepared to sample his own "Medicine," he will sure get it strong too. This last victory in the Ypres Salient is splendid knowing as I do, what a treacherous place it was to work in, I am jolly glad Fritz got "walloped," but our casualties are heavy and have to be made good. Personally I think there are lots of dians most decidedly should be ready to fill the gaps in the Canadian ranks an Army on the line, I hope they "make good."

B rant Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

"Conscription" I think is going to cause a lot of trouble in Canada, especially in Quebec they don't desire the name of Frenchmen. Huns would be a better term for them. I was pleased to see a Returned Soldier get the Jailers' position, its only fair.

You will know by now, that Glad and I are near each other, and have spent some fine times together, but this week, I've had to stay in Camp all the time, as I've been Orderly Sergt, but hope to see Glad tomorrow again some time.

I think, if you could get a view of England now, you'd just stand and stare, for its lots under cultivation everywhere and laws too, in fact in Folkestone I saw, "Swell Houses" with potatoes in front instead of the lawn, and everywhere looks splendid. The crops are fine and prospects of a good food supply are splendid. With regard to "Our Food here," well it might be more plentiful and better, but a slice of White Bread would look good. Gus, ours now is almost in "Mourning" sometimes, and we live plainly and so do the civilians, no fancy cakes now, Looks rather different now to the time last year Gus, but we're not "Starving" and we're not Downhearted either and if the Slackers in Canada won't come over and help us, why we who have had a taste in France, however, small will go and bite again if wanted.

Tommy at the front on 24 hours a day, seven days a week at $1.10, note the difference, we have on duty from 5 a.m. until 5.30 p.m. and then guards and pickets this week, I've been on duty seven days from 5 a.m. until 11.30 and midnight some nights no joke, but we can't go on strike there's no lying in bed on Sunday. After we return from church, our boys clean harness until noon, and then all are not free for the afternoon.

Well, I must now go, its 9 p.m., we water and feed the horses now. All feed 9.45 p.m., have to go around with the Orderly Officer at 10.15 p.m. Lights out this job often creates a little fun, as we often surprise the picket, of course they are all young boys so I usually advise them and tell them of what might happen if a strange Officer came on the job. Really its hard to break these kids in, many should be in school yet. This morn, I just feel homesick Gus, you know a longing for a real Sunday at Home a good breakfast such as only can be gotten at Home and then a good sleep in the afternoon. Outside my window now, there are some boys who may this time to-morrow or Tuesday be in France, Gus.

Guess I'll have to go now to breakfast and then clean up for the next parade, this is some life, one parade after the other. It sometimes does get a fellow sore, you often get five minutes notice to do something that should have been done before, but what's the use of worrying, one might as well Smile, Smile, Smile, etc.

Sunday morn 9.30 now to continue, this morning at 6 a.m., I was bathing in the sea, rather cold, but very enjoyable. The church parade is away now, so I am free for an hour, I have to act as Orderly Sergt. until the return of the regular or rather the Sergt. whose turn comes next.

Jolly glad to hear all the boys are working again Gus, give my kindest regards to them all, often think of you all, and long to be back with you. May the best of health attend all the boys. From this morning's paper, I gather London had a terrific thunderstorm yesterday, I only wish we would get one here, for the heat is terrific lately, seems to affect one more, one reason I think, is that we have to wear the same clothes all the time. Last night, I heard that I had been recommended for "Permanent Duty" with this Battery, the authorities are making a new establishment. Of course it may mean staying here for some time and again it may not, as one never knows what's what here but the prospects look rosy, although its best never to count your chickens as Army life is too uncertain.

think that something should be done to bring about "Peace" for the rising generation of England will be a "Nervous" one, for these air raids test the nerves of even the best and again, what is to become of the tremendous surplus of women to my mind its a very serious question.

Write to me when you have time Gus, and address me at my Mother's, in case I get a shunt to France.

Kindest thoughts to Mrs. C., yourself and the children.
As Ever,
ALF.

Wanted 500 Men

Three months ago—when Famine and World Hunger became a possibility we said to Ontario Farmers
You Must Produce More Food
The farmers have produced more food—and we now call upon town and city men to help them harvest it. Five hundred men are wanted now. More men will be needed later.
But we must have five hundred men at once for from two to six weeks. Good wages paid.
Consequently we urge employers to release men temporarily for this work, and keep their jobs open for them. And we call upon all men, who can, to help gather the harvest.
The food crops must be taken off the ground. You need them as much as our own Soldiers and Allies in Europe. Men will Volunteer to do it instead of taking a vacation this year—will you? If so, offer yourself now. Register in person or by mail at the Bureau—they will give you all particulars.

YOU should be one of them

"You are right," she admitted, "was I."
He remained silent. She was twisting her slim, delicate fingers in knots, and went on: "I did write asking him to see me. It wasn't pleasant. I asked him to do something for my brother. It was after I had made my final appeal to him that he promised to think over it. It was a week or two before his death that he sent, under cover, to me a packet addressed to my brother. It contained the forged checks and a curt note that that was all he might ever expect."
"I thought so," said Menzies. "This explains how Ling got those dead checks. There was an abusive letter written by Errol to your father, of which we found the charred remains in the grate. Whether through that letter or some other letter or threats made to the person of the old man went in fear of his life."
Peggy shivered.

"By all the laws of probability Errol was the murderer. Even on the line of reasoning I have indicated, he was the most likely man. Mind you, even yet I am not sure. The motive of the crime is clear enough, and any one of the gang may have tired of waiting."

"It is possible—and a likely thing, considering the characters of the persons concerned—that his sense of grievance was deliberately worked upon to fan into flame the fierce hatred he nourished against his father. I'll own I held that theory strongly for a while. Later I abandoned it. He may have been an accessory, but may even have been in the house at the time that the murder took place, he certainly knew who was the murderer."

The tense look on Peggy's features was relaxed. She drew a long breath of relief. Menzies paused to refill his pipe.

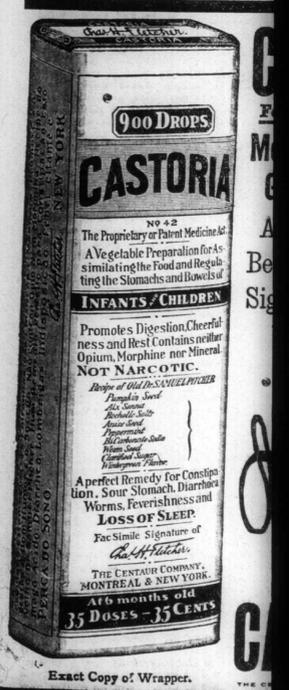

"That is my opinion," resumed the detective, "and I'll tell you why. Mr. Hallett's call at Limestone Terrace Gardens could not have been foreseen. He was admitted and knocked out. Likely enough if the man who had hit him had had all his wits about him he would have finished the job. Anyway, subsequent events showed that the gang believed that he had caught a glimpse of the murderer's features and that as an awkward witness he must be intimidated or kept out of the way."

"Remember that Errol was only a tool in this conspiracy—a stool-pigeon. The rest of the gang would have been pleased to see him out of the way, so long as they were successful themselves. If I know anything of Gwennie Lyne and Ling, they would easily have arranged that if he had killed Grey-Stratton he should have been the scapegoat."

"That is to say," put in Hallett, who had been listening with an eagerness no less intense than the girl's, "that if it had been Errol who opened the door to me they would not have worried whether I should recognize him again or not? They would have let him take his own risk?"

"You get it," said Menzies. "One of the master brains was concerned. It certainly wasn't Gwennie Lyne—the person you saw was a man. Of the known folk mixed up in this business that leaves Ling and Dago Sam. Sam we'll put aside for the moment. Who was the person who was most concerned in the successful carrying out of the original coup—whose safety or danger affected the pockets of the rest?"

He half closed his eyes, as though he were weary of laying down the course of the case, and went on drowsily: "That singles out the

ON TRUTH AND THE CANON

ON TIME TO MEALS.
Keeping a Dinner Hot or a Maid Pleasant
And how I used to pity his wife in her efforts to keep the maid pacified! It is hard enough to keep a dinner hot and palatable for three-quarters of an hour, but on the whole I think I would rather try to do it than have to breathe the atmosphere of resentment a cross maid can give off.
Then I've known other men who always waited until a meal was served to do some little thing, wash up, attend to some small errand, anything to make them five minutes late. They knew perfectly well when the meal was going to be served but they simply would wait until the last moment.
Justifiable Lateness and Selfish Latenesses
Of course there are justifiable latenesses and there are women who are ridiculously fussy about having every meal just on time. There is a golden mean about this as about everything.
I think men are right in believing that their lives shouldn't be dominated, their pleasures tainted and their engagements measured by the inalienable necessity of eating at a certain moment.
On the other hand the just man will try not to be carelessly or selfishly late.

Good Night Stories

By Blanche Stewart

BERTHA AND THE WATER FAIRY
"Bertha, will you wash the dishes and straighten up the house real nice for me while I do some errands down town?" asked Bertha's mother. Bertha nodded, but didn't move.
"Lay aside your book until you have finished the work, for maybe Aunt Bess will come with me," said mother.
Bertha closed her book and kissed her mother good-by. She piled the dishes in the sink and turned on the water.
"I'll just read a wee bit more, then I'll clean everything," said Bertha to herself, and taking her book she ran down to the edge of the brooklet. It was such a lovely place to read.
Bertha was so interested in her story that time flew by very fast. Suddenly a tiny brown shoe stepped on the page she was reading and Bertha looked up into the face of a Brownie.
"My, you're a smart little maid to have finished your work and be reading at this early hour of the morning!" said the brownie in greeting.
Bertha's face flushed, she had forgotten all about her promise to her mother.
"Well, you see, my work really isn't done, but mother won't be home for some time, so it's all right," laughed Bertha.
"Dear me; is that the way you look at things? Just because mother won't be home to see the dirt, you stop to read. What do you think of that?" asked the brownie of a little Water Fairy, who sat on a pebble near them.
"I think it's dreadful! What would happen if I'd stop to play among the rocks and weeds awhile?" asked Water Fairy. Bertha shook her head.
"I don't know," she answered.
"Why, simply this! If I stopped flowing, the miller's wheel wouldn't turn. If the wheel stopped how would the miller grind his wheat. The baker would have no flour to bake with and you little girls wouldn't have any bread. That's what would happen if I stopped, so I must go on and on. Some day, maybe, I'll have time to play," said Water Fairy as she went dancing on her way to the mill wheel.
"Funny I never thought of that," said Bertha as she closed her book and ran home.
The sink had overflowed and the kitchen floor was covered with water. Bertha mopped it up and before long had the house in apple-pie order. Then mother and Aunt Bess came home.
"I am so proud of Bertha," she heard her mother say, "things were in a dreadful state when I left, and now look how nicely she has cleaned everything!"
Bertha's face flushed and she told her mother and aunt what she had heard the Water Fairy say.
"It always seemed such a small thing to do to run over the pebbles all day long. I never stopped to think what would happen if the brooklet ever stopped to play," said Bertha, and mother kissed her.
From that day on Bertha never had to be told to put down her book for she finished her work first, then she was free to read. Mother was indeed very proud of Bertha then.

Peggy, more for the sake of covering a certain confusion than from any curiosity. Jimmie's face grew hotter as he remembered the hand-cuffs.
"There was a little academic discussion this morning on a point of professional ethics," said Menzies.
"Hardly academic," laughed Jimmie. "I should call it a practical demonstration."
"We differed, anyhow. But I'm being switched off my line. I'm just making clear, Miss Greave-Stratton, that you've got no family ties now to prevent you speaking out. I want you to tell me straightforwardly everything you know. Will you really mean to me as I wish you?"
The brief wave of happiness that had come to her with the knowledge she was not tied to Ling was followed by a return of depression.
"I am willing enough to tell you anything I can now," she said slowly. "But won't it do when all this horrible business is over? I am tired, so tired."
"Come, Menzies," urged Jimmie with a gentleness that he had not always shown in his remonstrances to the detective. "You can see how it is. Another day won't hurt. You don't think Miss Greave-Stratton's made of iron."
Menzies took out his watch. "If it hadn't been for your fellow, my lad," he said, "you'd still be playing piquet with Royal at the hotel. In half an hour I've got to be digging Mr. Ling out, and I guess this young lady can stand a quiet talk. Now, Miss Greave-Stratton, please. Tell me everything your own way and if any question occurs to me I'll ask it."
His manner, suave though his voice was, admitted of no further dispute. Even if Jimmie had been inclined to argue the question, Peggy stopped him.
"I'm unreasonable, Mr. Menzies," she said. "I can see you're quite right."
"Go on," he said, and lit a fresh pipe.
He smoked quietly while she told him her story, occasionally interjecting a question as some point became obscure. An ejaculation of appreciation escaped him as she told how she had refused to be wife in anything but name to Ling.
"Good for you, Miss Greave-Stratton."
Her vivid face ebbed and flowed with color as she went on. When she had concluded he scribbled a few Greek notes on the back of an envelope.
"That bears out things as I placed them," he commented. "There's a point that's puzzling me, however. Your brother had a knife wound,

GIRLS' DRESS.
By Anabel Worthington.
It is no robbery for this little maid to copy the modes of the grown-ups when such a charming and practical little frock is the result. The chief claim for attention to No. 8313 is the big shawl collar which extends down as far as the belt. The little vest has a broad tuck at the shoulders in front, and the dress is a short distance and then pressed in position the rest of the way. The skirt is a straight one piece model, plaited at the front and gathered at the sides and back. A belt covers the joining of waist and skirt, and the design of the dress is nicely balanced by the tail effect which buttons onto the belt.
Materials that are best suited to this type of dress are zingham, chambray, percale, washable crepe, Scotch plaids, shepherd checks, poplin or serge.
The dress pattern, No. 8313, is cut in sizes 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. The 8 year size requires 3½ yards 27 inch material, 2½ yards 36 inch, with ¾ yard 36 inch contrasting goods.
To obtain this pattern send ten cents to the office of this publication.
