The little old gentleman stared with both eyes at this illustration of the case; but though not much of a ressoner, he had the sense in which some logicians on this particular subject do not excel—that of saying nothing, where nothing could be said. So, as he stood carefully, stroking his umbrella, and folding and patting down all the creases in it, he proceeded on with his exhortations in a general way.

"You see, Georgo, you know, now, I always have stood your friend; and whatever I've said, I've said for your good. Now, here, it seems to me, you're running an awful risk. You can't hope to carry it out. If you're taken, it will be worse with you than ever; they'll only abuse you, and half-kill you, and sell you down river."

"Mr. Wilson, I know all this," said George. "I see run a risk, but——" he threw open his overcoat, and showed two pistols and a bowie-knife. "There!" he said, "I'm ready for 'en! Down south I never sell go! No! if it comes to that, I can earn myself at least six feet of free soil—the first and last I shall ever own in Kentucky!"

"Why, George, this state of mind is awful! it's getting really desperate, George! I'm concerned. Going to break the laws of your country!"

"My country again! Mr. Wilson, you have a country; but what country have I, or any one like me, born of slave mothers! What laws are there for us! We don't make them—we don't concent to them—we have nothing to do with them; all they do for us is to crush us, and keep us down. Haven't I heard your fourth-of-July speeches! Don't you tell us all, once a-year, that governments derive their just power from the consent of the governed! Can't a fellow think, that hears such things! Can't he put this and that together, and see what it comes to!"

Mr. Wilson's mind was one of those that may not unaptly be represented by a bale of cotton—downy, soft, benevolenty fuzzy and confused. He really nited George with all his heart, and its laws I will obey. But if any man tries to stop me, let him take care, for I am desperate. I'll fight for my liberty to the last breath I breathe. Kou say your fathers did it; if it was right for them, it is right for me."

This speech, delivered partly while sitting at the table, and partly walking up, and down the room—delivered with tears, and flashing eyes, and despairing gestures—was altogether too much for the good-natured old body to whom it was addressed, who had pulled out a great vellow silk pocket-handkerehief, and was mopping up his face with great energy.

"Blast 'em all!" he suddenly broke out. "Haven't I always said so—the informal old cusses! I hope I an't swearing now. Well! go a-head, George, go a-head; but, he careful, my boy; don't shoot anybody, George, unless—well—you'd better not shoot, I reckon; at least, I wouldn't hit anybody, you know. Where is your wife, George!" he added as he nervously rose, and began walking the room.

"Gone, sir—gone, with her—child in her arms, the Lord only knows where. Gone after the north star; and when we ever meet, or whether we meet at all in this world, no creature can tell."

"Is it possible! astonishing! from such a kind family!"

"Kind families get in debt, and the laws of our country allow them to sell the child out of its mother's bosom to pay its master's debts, said George bitterly.

"Well, well," said the honest old man, fumbling in his pocket. "I s'pose, perhaps, I an't following my judgment!" he added, saddenly; "so here, George:" and taking out a roll of bills from his pocket-book, he offered them to George.

"No, my kind, good sir!" said George, "you've done a great deal for me and this of you've done a great deal for me and this

"No, my kind, good sir!" said George, "you've done a great deal for me, and this might get you into trouble. I have money enough, I hope, to take me as far as I need it."

"No; but you must, George. Money is a great help everywhere; can't have too much, if you get it honestly. Take it—do take it, now—do, my boy!"

"On condition, sir, that I may repay it at some future time, I will," said George, taking up the money.

"On condition, air, that I may repay it at some future time, I will," said George, taking up the money.

"And now, George, how long are you going to travel in this way!—not long, or far, I hope. It's well carried on, but too bold. And this black fellow, who is he!"

"A true fellow who went to Canada more than a year ago. He heard, after he got there. that his master was so angry at him for going off, that he whipped his poor old mother: and he has come all the way back to comfort her, and get a chance to get her away."

"Has he got her?"

"Not yet: he has been hanging about the place, and found no chance yet. Meanwhile he is going with me as far as Ohio, to put me among friends that helped him, and then he will come back after her."

"Dangerous, very dangerous!" said the old man."

George drew himself up, and smiled disdain-

George drew himself up, and smiled disdainfully.

The old gentleman eyed him from head to foot, with a sort of innocent wonder.

"George, something has brought you out wonderfully. You hold up your head, and speak and move like another man," said Mr. Wilson.

"Because I'm a free man!" said George, proudly. "Yes, sir; I've said 'Mas'r for the last time to any man. I'm free!"

"Take care! You are not sure—you may be taken."

ness!" said Mr. Wilson; "to come right here to the nearest tavern!"

"Mr. Wilson, it is so bold, and this tavern is so near, that they will never think of it; they will look for me shead, and you yourself would't know me. Jim's master don't live in this county; he ian't known in these parts. Besides, he is given up; nobody is looking after him, and nobody will take me up from the advertisement, I think." ake me up from the advertissment, I think."

"That is a parting proof of Mr. Harris's regard," he said, scornfully.

"A fortsight ago he took it into his head to should try to get away one of these days. Looks interesting, doesn't it?' he said, drawing his glove on again.

"I declare, my very blood runs cold, when I think of it—your condition and your risks?' said Mr. Wilson.

"Mine has run cold a good many years, Mr. Wilson; at present, it's about up to the boiling point," said George.

"Well, my good sir," continued George, after a few moments silence, "I saw you knew me; I thought l'd just have this talk with you, lest your surprised looks should bring me out. I leave early tomorrow morning, before daylight; by to-morrow night I hope to sleep safe in Ohio. I shall travel by daylight, stop at the best hotiels, go to the dinner-tables with the lords of the land. So, good-bye, sir; if you hear that I'm taken, you may know that I'm dead I"

"George stood up like a rock, and put out his hand with the sir of a prince. The friendly little old man shook it heartly, and after a little shower of caution he took his umbrelle, and fembled his way out of the room.

"George stood thoughtfully looking at the door as the old man closed it. A thought assemed to flash across his mind. He hastily stepped to it, and opening it said—to flash across his mind. He hastily stopped to it, and opening it said—

"Mr. Wilson, one word more."

The old gentleman entered again, and George, as before, locked the door, and then stood for a few moments looking on the floor irresolutely. At last, raising his head with a sudden affort—

"Mr. Wilson, you have shown yourself a Christian in your treatment of me—I want to said one last deed of Christian kindness of you?"

"Well, George."

"Well, George."

"Well, irr, what you said was true. I dis running a dreadful risk. There isn't on earth a living soul to care if I die," he added, drawing his breath hard, and speaking with a great effort.

"I shall be kicked out and buried like a dog, and nobody "Il think of it a day atter—only my wife! Poor soul! she'll mourn and grieve; and if you'd only contrive, Mr. Wilson, to send this little pin to her. She gave it to me for a Christman present, poor child! Give it to her, and tell her I loved her to the last. Will you? Will you f? We added carnestly.

"Yes, certainly; poor fellow!" said the old gentleman, taking the pin, with water? eyes and a melancholy quiver in his voice.

"Tell her one thing," it's my last wish, if she can get to Canada, to go there. No matter how kind her mistress is—no matter how much she loves her home; beg her not to go back—for slavery always ends in misery. Tell her to bring up our boy a free man, and then he wont' suffer as I have. Tell her this, Mr. Wilson, will you?"

"Yes, George, I'll sell her; but I trust you coun't die. Take heart, you're a brave fellow. Trust in the Lord, George. I wish in my heart you were safe through, though—that's what I do."

"Is there a God to trust in?" said George, in such a tone of bitter despair as arrested the old gentleman's words. "Oh, I've seen things all my life, that have made me feel, that there can't be a God. You Christians don't know how these things look to us. There is a God for you, but is there any for us?"

"Oh, now, don't—don't, my boy!" said the old man, almost sobbing as he spoke; "don't feel things look to us. There is a God for you, but is there any for us?"

"Oh, now, don't—don't, my boy!" said the old man, almost sobbing as he spoke; "don't feel so. There is—there is; clouds and darkness are round about Him, but rightscusness and judgment are the habitation of His throne. There's a God, George—believe it; trust in Him, and I'm sure He'll help you. Everything will be set right—if not in this life, in another."

The real piety and benevolence of the simple old man invested him with a temporary dignity and authority as he spoke. George stopped his distracted walk up and down the room, stood thoughtfully a moment, and then said quietly—

"Thank you for saying that, my good friend; I'll think of that."

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.

Hon. Mr. Coles's Bill to enable to Government to purchase the Township Lands.

Thursday, March 3.

Hon. Mr. Coles rose to move the first reading of his Bill initialed "An Act to enable the Government to purchase the Township Lands." In doing so, the hon. gentleman gave a very full and clear statement of the manner in which it was proposed to earry out the grand object of the Bill—the converting of lease-holders er tenants into freeholders. It was six years, he said, since he first introduced a Bill for the accomplishment of the great object which he had so much at heart, the elevating of the tenant-farmers of this Colony to the independent position of yeomen or free-holders. With respect to that Bill, the House had ordered it to be printed, and agreed that the further consideration of it should be allowed to stand over. At that time, the Debt of the Colony, as compared with its Revenue, seemed to interpose a very serious obstacle to the carrying out of the provisions of the Bill; and, until now, with the Colonial Debt reduced to a very insignificant amount, and the Revenue increased to an amount so great as could scarcely have been hoped for a few years ago, he had not, he confessed, so clearly seen his way for the accomplishment of the desired measure, as he could have wished to do. Another massare, ostensibly for the same object, had, it was true, been afterwards introduced; but it was of so sweeping and compalsory a character,—so compulsory, in fact, both as it respected proprietors and tenants,—that he really could not persuade himself that they who brought it forward had entertained any intention or expectation that it would pass the Legislature, They who introduced it being in the majority in the Assembly, it passed that House; but it was rejected by the Legislative Council. With respect to his own measures, however, he could conceintiously declare, that his intentions had been and were most aincere; and nothing could afford him more pleasure, in his public capacity, than to see them f

PROSPECTUS Charlottetown Gas Company. PROVISIONAL COMMITTEE

THE superiority and advantages of Gasover every L. other method yet discovered for lighting Towns are so self-evident and so universally acknowledged,
that it would be superfluous to dilate on the subject;
and it is only surprising that, while every Town and considerable Village in Great Britain, as also many Towns in the neighboaring Provinces, are lighted by Gas, this, the Capital of Frince Edward Island, should be still in darkness.

To supply this desideratum, it is now proposed to form a Joint Stock Company—to be Incorporated by an Act of the Legislature—with a subscribed Capital of £6000, in 1200 Shares, of £6 ench, to be managed by a body of Directors, annually chosen by the Shareholders.

An many of the jobabitants of Charlottetown may of £6000, in 1200 Shares, of £5 enen, to be managed by a body of Directors, annually chosen by the Shareholders.

As many of the inhabitants of Charlottetown may be comparatively unacquainted with the practical results of Gas Companies, it may be proper to observe, that a Joint Stock Company for the purpose of lighting the Town with Gas, can hardly be called a speculation; because it is now ascertained, by reference to the annual Reports and Dividends of the Gas Companies of Great Britain, and some of the neighbouring Colonies, that wherever they have been managed with ordinary produces and economy, they have yielded a certain and steady return of annual interest on the capital invested.

Previous to bringing the scheme before the public, the Provisional Committee had been in correspondence with competent parties, both in the neighboring Provinces and in Great Britain, and from the information thus obtained, and the estimates they have received, they are of opinion that the Land, Buildings, Apparatus, Machinery and Pipes requisite to enable the Company to go fully into operation, may be acquired and completed for and with the proposed capital.

To enable the Company to commence operations at once, and on the most advantageous terms, it has been resolved that a deposit of £1 5a. per siner be paid on the allocation of shares, and that no further call be made, till the Act of Incorporation be obtained; and that such further calls shall be payable by such instalments, and at such intervals, as the Directors may judge most convenient for the Shareholders and the requirements of the Company.

Although certain spirited individuals were pre-

Shareholders and the requirements of the Company, Although certain spirited individuals were prepared to subscribe the whole of the requisite Capital, it is deemed but fair to give the public an opportunity of participating in the advantages of the undertaking; and for this purpose the Subscription List will remain open at the Office of Mr.
Lawson, Interim Secretary to the Committee,— more than one-half of the Shares being already subscribed.

In addition to its greater economy, Gas Light may also be pronounced safer than any other ordinary Light. It produces no sparks—it cannot be carelessly placed in contact with bed curtains, or substances easily ignited, and it requires scarcely any attention. It may be turned down in an instant to the most minute speck of flame, ready to be restored to full brilliancy when necessary, by the simple terning of the stop cock; and even when it escapes by the carelessness of an attendant, or a defect in the fittings, it at once indicates the accident to the whole household, by the disagreeable smell which it occasions.

From the large quantity which must be mixed with atmosphere air before it becomes explosive, it is earroely possible that this accident should occur, in any ordinary apartment, even if the Gawere allowed to escape for the purpose. And as its smell so instantly indicates its presence in cels lars, or other confined situations, where it may have escaped in quantity indicates its presence in cels lars, or other confined situations, where it may have escaped in quantity from the accidental breaking, or leakage of a pipe, it is only by the greatest carelessness, or ignorance, that a light will be approached to it, before it has been allowe? To escape by the free admission of air. There is no such thing as the bursting of a pipe, or the blowing up of a Gasometer.

Relative Expense.—The relative cost of Gas has been generally considered not to exceed one-of a Gasometer.

Relative Expense.—The relative cost of Gas has been generally considered not to exceed onethird to one-half the cost of tallow candles.

Price, 25 cents per bottle.

We have sold very large quantities of Mrs. Wimbow's Soothing Syrup during the past six pears, several thousand-the last year. We believe, it the best medicine is the world for children teuthing or for the cure of Dysentry and Diarrhea in Children, whether it arises from teething or any other causes. It gives universal actification—never never heard a complaint from any one using it, never sold a medicine so universally successful in relieving pain and effecting caras—relief in a bsolutely sure.

CURTIS & PERKINS,

Gravel Cura of five years standing.

Messre. Curtis & Perkirus, Bangor, Me.

Gentlemen,—I have been entirely cured of the Gravel, by the us of your Cramp and Pain Killer. I commenced taking the Gramp and Pain Killer in the Spring of 1847. I had been a great sufferer for ten years previous; some four or five years of the time I suffered beyond all my powers to describe.

During this time, I have had medical aid, and tried various specifics, but found very little relief until I obtained your Cramp and Pain Killer. In one month after I commenced using it, I began to grow better. I continued to use it for a year, all the time improving until I was entirely cured.

"Please send me half a gallon of your Gramp and Pain Killer—it is the best medicine to cure what it is represented to, that I everused."

The Doctor first made use of it in his own case, for a severe sprain in the shoulder, caused by the upsetting of a stage, and found immediate relief, and soup seu used it in his practice.

Rade the following. It speaks for itself.

RHEUMATISM CURED.

I certify, that I was afflicted with a violent Rheumatic pain in the amall of my back, which entirely disabled me, so that I could not get up without the greatest pain and effort; nor could I walk without a cane, and but very little with. I applied Doctor Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, or Liquid Opodeddoe, indeserval other remedies, without any relief. After suffering in this way about a week, I purchased a bottle of Cramp and Pais Killer, prepared by Curxus & Perrer 1 also cured a friend of mine, who had been suffering for a long time with a lame side, with the same bottle. I believe it the best medicine in the world, and am happy to add my testimony in its favor Olivera Towns.

Our past course is before the public. We have no regrest to express, nor apologies to make. Our motion shall be, "the prosperity of our native land;" and, profiting by a year's experience, we shall be enabled to improve the INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL, so as to increase its importance both to the American and Colonial reader. A wider space will be given to Colonial writers. Commercial, literary and social, will be watchfully fostered.
