BOARD OF TRADE MEETING

Takes Important Action In Behalf of Better Train and Mail Service, and Adopts the Advocate's Suggestion Re Town Clock.

After a lapse of four months Newcastle Board of Trade resumed its meetings last night. Pres. P. Hennessy in chair, E. A. McCurdy secretary.

Following were admitted to membership: W. J. Jardine of the Bank of N. S. Eugene Connolly, LeRoy Morrison and Perley Russell. Twenty members were in attendance, including Rev. Father Murdoch of Renous and R. A. Murdoch.

The Board resolved to co-operate with Moncton Board of Trade in pressing upon the immediate attention of the Postmaster General (1) the necessity of having the English mails, between the opening of St. Lawrence navigation and the putting on of the Ocean Limited train, forwarded from Rimouski to the maritime provinces by closely connecting special train, thus avoiding the delay of previous seasons; (2) the necessity of having maritime mail on said train assorted at once and delivered along the way instead of having it sent in bulk to St. John and Halifax and then sent back along the line; (3) the necessity of having a mail car on train for St. John that makes close connection at Moncton with maritime express from the north, as it appears that at present letters mailed here on maritime are held over at Moncton till the accommodation and do not reach St. John in time to be answered next day. On the other hand St. John has an early mail service going east so that letters sent out from St. John can be answered the same day.

On motion of Rev. Father Dixon and Hon. D. Morrison, it was resolved to ask Dominion Public Works department to put in and maintain a town clock in the post office building. It was evidently the intention of the architect to have one put in, as the niche is there for it. Bathurst post office and others have illuminated clocks and so should Newcastle.

It was resolved to ask the railway authorities to improve the miserable suburban service between here and Blackville by putting on a swift passenger train, and also to have that train start from Doaktown instead of Blackville. Newcastle and Chatham should have as good a chance as Fredericton for the trade along the Canada Eastern at least as far as Doaktown, which is half way between Chatham Jct. and Fredericton. It appears that original charter provided for building railway from Doaktown each way to Fredericton and Newcastle. A petition will be prepared to be signed by all villages between here and Doaktown.

It was resolved to memorialize the post office authorities to have suburban mail service to Doaktown extended a mile and a half further to Ferryville to connect with daily mail from Ferryville to down river points. Now mail from here for down river goes to Chatham first and lies there a whole day before it crosses to Ferryville and proceeds down the north side of the river.

FOOT-BALLER'S BAD KNEE HEALED

Zam-Buk Once Again the Only Cure!

Mr. H. Allison, of 457 King Street, London, Ont., says: "While a member of the East Kent Division Football Team, and during a rough and exciting game of foot-ball, I fell on the hard gravel, sustaining a badly lacerated knee. This required prompt medical attendance, as sand and gravel filled the open wound, which was very painful and sore.

"For several weeks the doctor treated my injury, and it was thought to be well healed over; but no sooner had I begun to move about than the skin broke, and I suffered more than at first. For seven long weeks I was actually laid up. It then developed into a runningsore, and I was alarmed for fear the result might be a permanently stiff knee. The doctor's treatment failed to heal the wound, so I procured a supply of Zam-Buk.

"It was almost magical in its effect on the sore. The discharging soon ceased. The soreness and pain were banished and perseverance with Zam-Buk made the badly lacerated knee as good and firm as ever. Zam-Buk has no equal in clearing and healing open wounds, and I recommend it to all athletes and sportsmen."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, eczema, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ring-worm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores at 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. You are warned against harmful imitations and substitutes. See the registered name "Zam-Buk" on every package before buying.

POOR CO

The Man From Brodney's

[CONT.]

The enemy plucked the mint in its bed of chipped ice. "The sagacity that Taswell Skaggs displayed in erecting an ice plant and cold storage house here is equaled only by John Wyckholme's foresightedness in maintaining a contemporaneous mint bed. I imagine that you, gentlemen, are hoping to prove the old codgers insane. Between the three of us, and man to man, how can you have the heart to propose anything so unkind when we look, as we now do, upon the result of their extreme soundness of mind? Here's how!"

Selm passed the straws, and the three men took a long and simultaneous "pull" at the refreshing julep. Mr. Saunders felt something melt as he drew the subsequent long and satisfying breath. It was the outer rim of his cautious reserve.

"I think we'll take you up on that proposition to trade mint for cigarettes," said Mr. Britt. "Mr. Browne, my client, for one, will sanction the deal. How about your client, Saunders?"

"I can't say as to Lady Deppingham, but I'm quite sure his lordship will make no objection."

"Then we'll consider the deal closed. I'll send one of my boys over tomorrow with a bunch of mint. Telephone up to the bungalow when you need more. By the way," dropping into a curiously reflective air, "may I ask why Lady Deppingham is permitted to ride alone through the unfrequented and perilous parts of the island?" The question was directed to her solicitor.

"Perilous? What do you mean?"

"Just this, Mr. Saunders," said the enemy, leaning forward earnestly. "I'm not responsible for the acts of these islanders. There are men among them who would not hesitate to dispose of one or both of the heirs if they could do it without danger to their interests. What could be more simple, Mr. Saunders, than the death of Lady Deppingham if her horse should stumble and precipitate her to the bottom of one of those deep ravines? She wouldn't be alive to tell how it really happened."

"My word!" was all that Saunders could say, forgetting his julep in contemplation of the catastrophe.

"He's right," said Britt promptly. "I'll keep my own client on the straight and public path. He's liable to tip over too."

"Deuce take your Browne," said Saunders, with mild asperity. "He never rides alone."

"I've noticed that," said the enemy coolly. "He's usually with Lady Deppingham. It's lucky that Japat is free from pox, gentlemen."

"Oh, I say," said Saunders, "none of that talk, you know."

"There's another thing I want to speak of," said the enemy, arising to prepare the second round of juleps. "I hear that your clients and their partners for life are in the habit of gambling like fury up there."

"Gambling?" said Britt. "What rot!"

"The servants say that they play bridge every night for vast piles of rubies and turn the wheel daily for sapphires uncountable. Oh, I get it straight."

"Why, man, it's all a joke. They use gun wads and simply play that they are rubies."

"My word," said Saunders, "there isn't a ruby or sapphire in the party."

"That's all right," said the enemy, standing before them with a bunch of mint in one hand and the bowl of ice in the other. "Every man in Japat thinks that your people are gambling with jewels that belong to the corporation. They think there's something crooked, d'ye see? My advice to you is. Stop that sort of joking."

"By Jove," said Saunders, taking a straw and at the same time staring in open mouthed wonder at the tall host. "you appall me! It's most extraordinary."

"This is all offered in a kindly spirit, you understand," said the magnanimous enemy. "We might as well live comfortably as to die unseasonably here. Another little suggestion, Mr. Saunders. Please tell Lord Deppingham that if he persists in snooping about the ravines in search of rubies he'll get an unmanageable bullet in the back of his head some day soon. He has no right to a single ruby, even if he should see one and know what it was. Just tell him that, please, Mr. Saunders."

"I shall, confound him," exploded Saunders, smiting the table mightily. "He's too uppish anyhow. He needs taking down."

"Ah, Selm," interrupted the enemy as the native boy entered, "no talk, eh?"

"No, excellency, the ship is not due to arrive for two weeks."

"Ah, but, Selm, you forget that I am expecting a letter from Von Blitz's wives. They promised to let me know how soon he is able to resume work at the mines."

"I hear you polished him off neatly," said Britt, with a grin.

"Just the rough edges, Mr. Britt. He is now a gem of purest ray serene. By the way, I hope you'll not take my mild suggestions amiss."

"There's nothing I object to except your power to call strikes among our servants. That seems to me to be rather high handed," said Britt good naturedly.

"No doubt you're right," agreed the other, "but you must remember that I needed the cigarettes."

"My word!" muttered Saunders admiringly.

"Look here, old man," said Britt, his cheeks glowing; "it's mighty good of you to take this trouble for—"

"Don't mention it. I'd only ask in return that we three be a little more sociable hereafter. We're not here to cut each other's throat, you know, and we've got a deadly half year ahead of us. What say?"

For answer the two lawyers arose and shook hands with the excellent enemy. When they started for the chateau at 7 o'clock, each with six mint juleps about his person, they were too mellow for analysis. The enemy, who had drunk but little, took an arm of each and piloted them sturdily through the town.

CHAPTER X. THE SLOUGH OF TRANQUILLITY. THREE months stole by with tantalizing slowness. The autumn passed on into winter without a change of expression in the benign face of nature. Christmas day was as hot as if it had come in mid-summer; the natives were as naked, the trees as fully clad. The six months were passing away in spite of themselves. Ten weeks were left before the worn but determined heirs could cast off their bonds and rush away to other climes. It mattered little whether they went away rich or poor. They went to go! Go! That was the thing that the future held out to them.

True, they rode and played and swam and romped without restraint, but beneath all of their abandon there lurked the ever present pathos of the jail, the asylum, the detention ward.

Not until the end of January was there a sign of revolt against the ever growing, insidious condition of melancholy. As they turned into the last third of their exile they found heart to rejoice in the thought that release was coming nearer and nearer. The end of March—eight weeks off! Soon there would be but seven weeks, then six: And all this time the islanders toiled as they had toiled for years. They reckoned in years, while the strangers cast up time's account in weeks and called them years. Each day the brown men worked in the mines piling gems into the vaults with a resolute-ness that never faltered.

From London came disquieting news for all sides to the controversy. The struggle promised to be drawn out for years, perhaps. The lonely legates, mooned in the far south sea, began to realize that even after they had spent their six months of probation they would still have months, even years, of waiting before they could touch the fortune they laid claim to. The islanders also were vaguely awake to the fact that everything might be tied up for years despite the provisions of the will. A restless, stubborn feeling of alarm spread among them. This feeling gradually developed itself into bitter resentment. Hatred for the people who were causing this delay was growing deeper and fiercer.

Their counselor, the complacent enemy, held himself aloof from the mad and women that his charges were fighting. He met the two lawyers often, but nothing passed between them that could have been regarded as the slightest breach of trust. He lived like a rajah in his shady bungalow, surrounded by the luxuries of one to whom all things are brought invisible. If he had any longing for the society of women of his own race and kind, he carefully concealed it. His indifference to the subtle though unmistakable appeals of the two gentlemen in the chateau was irritating in the extreme. When he deliberately, though politely, declined their invitation to tea one afternoon their humiliation knew no bounds.

Lady Deppingham and Mrs. Browne should not be misunderstood by the reader. They loved their husbands—I am quite sure of that—but they were tired of seeing no one else, tired of talking to no one else. Moreover, in support of this one-sided assertion, they experienced from time to time the most melancholy attacks of jealousy. If Mrs. Browne in plain despair went off for a day's ride with Lord Deppingham, that gentleman's wife was sick with jealousy. If Lady Agnes strolled in the moonlit gardens with Mr. Browne, the former Miss Blate of Boston could scarcely control her emotions. They shed many tears of anguish over the faithfulness of husbands, tears of hatred over the viciousness of temptresses. Their quarrels were fierce, their upbraidings characteristic, but in the end they cried and kissed and "made up."

They did not know, of course, that the wily Britt, despite his own depression, was all the while accumulating the most astounding lot of evidence to show that a decided streak of insanity existed in the two heirs.

"If they could only be married in some way," said Britt, "my lament to Saunders from time to time when despair overcame confidence."

"I've got a ripping idea," Saunders said one day.

"Let's have it. You've always got 'em. Why not divide with me?"

"Can't do it just yet. I've been looking up a little matter. I'll spring it soon."

"How long have you been working on the idea?"

"Nearly four months," said Saunders, yawning.

"Gad, this climate is enervating!" was Britt's caustic comment. "Saunders was heels over head in love with Miss Pelham at this time, so it is not surprising that he had some sort of an idea about marriage, no matter whom it concerned."

"Right after night the Deppinghams and Brownes gave dinner, balls, masques, 'bridges,' masks and theater suppers at the chateau. First one would invite the other to a great ball, then the other would respond by giving a sumptuous dinner."

One morning during the first week in February the steamer from Adam brought stacks of mail—the customary newspapers, magazines, novels, telegrams and letters. It was noticed that her ladyship had several hundred letters, many bearing crests or coats of arms.

At last she came to a letter of many pages covered with a scrawl that looked preposterously fashionable. Lady Agnes gave a sudden shriek and, leaping to her feet, performed a dance that set her husband and Bobby Browne to gasping.

"She's coming!" she cried ecstatically, repeating herself a dozen times. "Who's coming, AEGY?" roared her husband for the sixth time.

"The princess! Deppy, I'm going to squeeze you! I must squeeze somebody! Isn't it glorious? Now—now—now life will be worth living in this beastly place."

Her dearest friend, the princess, had written to say that she was coming to spend a month with her.

"In her uncle's yacht, Deppy—the big one that came to Cowes last year, don't you know? Of course you do. Don't look so dazed. He's—erising for a couple of months and is to set her down here until the yacht returns from Borneo and the Philippines. She says she hopes it will be quiet here. Quiet! She hopes it will be quiet!"

"I say, Deppingham, you can take her out walking and pick up a crownful of fresh rubies every day or so," said Browne.

"Hark! Hark! Hark! I'm afraid to pluck a violet these days. Every time I stoop over I feel that somebody's going to take a shot at me. I wonder why the beggars select me to shoot at. They're not always popping away at you, Browne. Why is it?"

"It's all right so long as they don't kill you," was Browne's consoling remark. "By Jove!" said Deppingham, starting up with a look of horror in his eyes, sudden comprehension rushing down upon him. "I wonder if they think I am you, Browne! Horrible!"

The enemy's office hours were from 3 to 5 in the afternoon. Twice a week Miss Pelham came down from the chateau in a gayly bedecked jirikisha to sit opposite to him in his stuffy corner of the banking house, his desk between them, her notebook trembling with propriety. Mr. Britt generously lent the pert lady to the enemy in exchange for what he catalogued as "happy days."

Miss Pelham made it a point to look as fascinating as possible on the occasion of these interesting trips into the enemy's territory.

The enemy, doing his duty by his clients with a determination that seemed incontestable, was the last to realize that an intrigue was shaping itself to combat his endeavors. Von Blitz, openly his friend and ally, despite their sad encounter, was the thorn which pricked the native into a state of uneasiness and doubt as to their agent's sincerity.

They began to believe that no good could come out of the daily meetings of the three lawyers.

It was Von Blitz who told the leading men of the island that their wives—the Persians, the Circassians, the Egyptians and the Turkish hours—were in love with the tall stranger. It was he who advised them to observe the actions, to study the moods of their women.

The German knew the condition of affairs in his own household. His overthrow at the hands of the American had cost him more than physical ignominy; his wives openly expressed an admiration for their champion.

Every eye in Japat was upon him; every hand was turning against him.

It was Miss Pelham who finally took it upon herself to warn the lonely American. The look of surprise and disgust that came into his face brought her up sharply.

"Miss Pelham," he said coldly, "will you be kind enough to carry my condolences to the ladies at court and say that I recommend reading as an antidote for the poison which idleness produces. Neither my home nor my barroom is open to ladies. If you don't mind we'll go on with this report."

Miss Pelham flushed and looked very uncomfortable.

"You're wrong about Lady Deppingham and Mrs. Browne," she began hurriedly. "They've never said anything mean about you. It was just my miserable way of putting it. The talk comes from the islanders. Mr. Bowles has told Mr. Britt and Mr. Saunders. He thinks Von Blitz is working against you, and he is sure that all of the men are furiously jealous."

"Perhaps there is something in what you say. I'm grateful to you for preparing me." It had suddenly come to mind that the night before he had seen a man skulking in the vicinity of the bungalow.

"I just thought I'd tell you," murmured Miss Pelham nervously. "I—we don't want to see you get into trouble—none of us."

"Thank you." After a long pause he went on, lowering his voice. "Miss Pelham, I have had a hard time here in more ways than I care to speak of. It may interest you to know that I had decided to resign next month and go home. I'm a living man, and a living man objects to a living death. But I've changed my mind. You stick my time out. I've got three months longer to stay, and I'll stay. If Von Blitz thinks he can drive me out, he's mistaken. I'll be here after you and your friends up there have sailed away, Miss Pelham—God bless you, you're all white—and I'll be here when Von Blitz and his wives are dancing to the tunes I play. Now let's get back to work. If Von Blitz is working in the dark, I'll compel him to show his hand. And, Miss Pelham," he concluded very slowly, "I'll promise to use a club, if necessary, to drive the Persian ladies away. So please rest easy on my account."

The next morning the town bustled with a new excitement. A trim, beautiful yacht, flying strange colors, steamed into the little harbor of Ararat. Every one knew that the yacht brought the princess who was to visit her ladyship.

The enemy came down from his bungalow, attracted by the unusual and inspiring spectacle of a ship at anchor. A line of anxiety marked his brow. Two figures had watched his windows all night long, sinister shadows that always met his eye when it penetrated the gloom of the moonlit forest.

Lord and Lady Deppingham were on the pier before him. Excitement and joy illumined her face. Her eyes were sparkling with anticipation. He could almost see that she trembled in her eagerness. He came quite close to them before they saw him. Exhibition of no doubt was responsible for the very agreeable smile of recognition that she bestowed upon him. The enemy could do no less than to go to them with his pleasant acknowledgment. His rugged face relaxed into a most charming, winsome smile, half defiant, half assured.

He passed among the wives of his clients without so much as a sign of recognition, coolly indifferent to the

Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It Makes Weak Women Strong. It Makes Sick Women Well. Honest druggists do not offer substitutes, and urge them upon you as "just as good." Accept no secret nostrum in place of this non-secret remedy. It contains not a drop of alcohol and not a grain of habit-forming or injurious drugs. Is a pure glyceric extract of healing, native American roots.

DO YOU KNOW

that 90% of the telephones used by Canadian farmers have been manufactured by us? We are proud of this fact, for we think you will agree with us that it is a guarantee that our telephones give satisfaction to the farmer; it was to satisfy the farmer that we spent $10,000 in designing and developing our 1317 type Telephone Set, which contains the most up-to-date features of any telephone intended to meet the requirements of rural service.

"How to Build Rural Telephone Lines" is the title of a most interesting and instructive book which we have just published, and which we will be pleased to send you FREE. It not only contains a full description of our telephones, but it also tells the complete story of the organization and construction of a Rural Telephone Company from the time the first post hole is dug until the last telephone is installed. With this book you have something definite to work on, and can go among your neighbors and organize a community-owned system in your own locality. The book costs nothing—write and ask for Bulletin No. 789, and we will send it FREE.

TAINTED LARD POISONED NORTH SHORE FAMILY.

Dalhousie, N. B., Oct. 30—As a result, it is believed, of the use of tainted lard compound in the preparation of fish for dinner on Friday last, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Barthe and two of their children were made quite ill. The members of the family who ate the fish were stricken so suddenly that Dr. A. G. Ferguson had to be hurriedly called and while they are out of danger are still ill.

He was ably assisted however, by Mr. Thompson the importer, and an expert young man to handle the animals, hold up their chins, shake out their wool and answer Mr. Thompson's questions as to prize winners &c., and supply such other encouragement to bidders as the exigencies of the case seemed to require.

THE ONE FLAG FOR SAFETY.

A detailed story of the Portuguese rebellion, published in European newspapers just a hand, shows better than could any patriotic sermon, the feeling of Europe towards the British Empire.

The revolutionists, once the revolution was accomplished, devoted their entire diplomacy to having Britain acknowledge the new republic, knowing that nothing would be secure until that happened; and that once such recognition was agreed upon other European nations would follow suit.

The fugitive king and royal family took refuge under the British flag at Gibraltar, and have now landed in England, the only country in Europe that could give them shelter in their exile, without risking a disturbance among its people.

The American consul at Lisbon, when the bombardment was at its hottest, abandoned his consulate and took refuge on a British ship, under the British flag.

In Lisbon, during the bombardment, a large monastery of Portuguese, Spanish and Italian monks, in order to save their property, hoisted the British flag on their buildings—and the republicans even in the first flush of their victory respected everything beneath its folds.

In time of trouble, when ordinary support and safety fails, the Union Jack seems to be a mighty good banner under which to take a stand. The fact that men of half a dozen different world powers preferred it to their own flag, when trouble arose in Lisbon, is about as flattering and convincing a proof as the most skeptical would require.—Ottawa Journal.

The "Chemics" of Bread

LET us look a bit into the chemistry of bread. For we want our bread not only to seem good but we want it to actually be good. And as bread is a question of flour and flour a question of wheat we see that wheat is where we have to begin.

Gluten, starch, water and phosphates, are the principal component qualities of wheat. And in proportion as these qualities are more or less present is the wheat more or less valuable so far as nutrition is concerned.

The nutritive and bread-making qualities of wheat are the things that make it more valuable than rye or oats or barley or corn as human food.

The quality of nutrition, too, is what makes one brand of flour more valuable than another.

If it were not for nutrition and bread-making qualities any flour would be as good as any other. We wouldn't have to care whether it was made from good wheat or poor wheat, from Spring wheat or Winter, from all wheat or part other cereals.

A chemist will tell you that ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is richer in high quality gluten than flour made from low grades of wheat. And that reason it is better for food, hence more valuable than ordinary flour.

And actual tests in your kitchen will tell you that it produces more and larger loaves to the barrel than ordinary soft wheat or blended flour, the reason being that flour made from hard Red Fife wheat is more expansive and more absorbent.

It is plain, common-sense that flour made from the finest hard wheat in the world and scientifically milled must produce the finest bread in the world. And it does. Try it. Prove it.

THE I. C. R. CONFERENCE

The Fredericton Gleaner on Friday last contained the "exclusive" announcement that a conference would take place at Montreal between representatives of the Intercolonial Railway trainmen and the members of the Railway Commission, and that conductor Crookshank would leave at once for that city to attend the conference on behalf of the men. Our contemporary followed this up on Saturday with the statement that their previous announcement had "created quite a sensation and came as a great surprise even to the trainmen who didn't know that their plans were known." No such conditions prevailed at this end of the section, where the plans for attending the conference were the subject of popular comment early in the week and the authority of Deputy Minister Campbell's attitude in requiring a score or more of men to make the journey to Montreal at a cost of some hundreds of dollars when he might meet them at Moncton at no expense whatever, was much discussed. Even before the Gleaner's article appeared in print, it was known here that Mr. Campbell had consented to come down to Moncton for the conference and so save the large expense to the men. Evidently "sensations" are easily arranged at the Capital.

SHEEP SALE

Newcastle has had its first government sheep sale. 36 of the innocent creatures were disposed of at auction in an improvised arena at James Falconer's grounds on the 27th ult. George Stables, Newcastle's popular auctioneer who never fails to get the best prices obtainable, officiated. He was ably assisted however, by Mr. Thompson the importer, and an expert young man to handle the animals, hold up their chins, shake out their wool and answer Mr. Thompson's questions as to prize winners etc., and supply such other encouragement to bidders as the exigencies of the case seemed to require.

The genial face of the Minister of Agriculture lent encouragement, while the camera of the Secretary preserved the appearance of the woolly beauties for future generations, while another gentleman—the sixth—recorded the purchases.

As we watched the performance we recalled a scene witnessed by us some years ago in a thrifty farmhouse, when a sleek dry goods man was making presents of linen and silk to the farmer's wife and daughters, and selling at a give-away price several pieces of cloth to the honest and thrifty farmer and detailing a fascinating story of old country tailors who were to make up the wares at less than half the local cost. Eventually he walked out with $31.00 of the former's hard earnings but left him happy beyond description. It took about three weeks to learn that the tailors existed only in fable and about another to learn that the presents were paid for and a considerable sum thrown in for talk.

The North Shore farmers are some seven or eight hundred dollars shorter in circulating medium and some thirty-six sheep richer in wool and mutton producers. Some sheep raisers in Ontario have been made happy, and no doubt Mr. Thomson will not have to ask the Government to make good his loss in the deal, and the North Shore farmers are happy beyond measure with their great Government-promoted bargain. We sincerely hope there will be no sad realizations such as their brother had after the visit of the dry goods man.

THE TOWN CLOCK

The Board of Trade is to be commended for so promptly adopting the recent suggestion of the UNION ADVOCATE concerning the urgent need of a Town Clock. With the Board's assistance we feel sure that the niche in the post office, evidently intended to hold a clock, will be occupied by an up-to-date time piece, properly illuminated at night.

MAIL AND TRAIN SERVICE

As shown again and again, our postal service to outside districts is in several ways far from being what it should. The Board of Trade has taken hold of the matter, and we trust that the unnecessary holding up of mails between here and St. John and between here and down river districts will be rectified.

Another thing Newcastle and the up river districts urgently need a quick passenger train service both ways each day between here and Doaktown. The present Blackville-Newcastle service is only a miserable second-class freight affair. The I. R. C. management should have it improved at once.

GOOD HEALTH

FOR YOUNG GIRLS

What is Needed is the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make.

Perhaps you have already noticed that your daughter in her "teens" has developed a fidgety temper, is restless and excitable. In that case remember that the march of years is leading her on to womanhood, and at this time a great responsibility rests upon you as parents. If your daughter is pale, complains of weakness and depression, feels "all tired out" after a little exertion; if she tells of headaches, or backaches, or pain in the side, do not disregard these warnings. Your daughter needs help for she is most probably anemic—that is, bloodless.

Should you notice any of these signs, lose no time, but procure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for her unhealthy girlhood is bound to lead to unhealthy womanhood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enrich impoverished blood and by doing so they repair waste and prevent disease. They give to sickly, drooping girls, health, brightness and charm, with color in the cheeks, bright eyes, a lightness of step and high spirits. A case typical of thousands cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is that of Miss Grace Cunningham, Winnipeg, Man., who says: "I really cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they have made me feel like a new girl. I was pale and almost bloodless and think that on an average I missed at least three school sessions a week, because I felt like a broken down person, and too weak to do anything. The doctor's medicine I took did little more than keep me in hope; it certainly did not cure me. Then I was advised to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and they soon made me feel like a new person. Day by day I gained strength and color, and I have your medicine to thank for it."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

The engagement has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Slocum, St. John, of their daughter, Miss Gertrude Slocum, to Mr. W. Herbert Adams of New York City. Mr. Adams is the son of Mr. Samuel Adams of New York and is a graduate of Columbia College.

TROLLEY CAR PATENT

Walter Howard, station agent at Kent Junction, Bruce Brown and Wm. Murray, of the K. N. R. LENA MCKENZIE

The death of Miss Lena McKenzie, second daughter of A. G. McKenzie, occurred at her home in Dalhousie Thursday evening, after an illness of six months, aged twenty-two years. Deceased entered the Jeffrey Hale Hospital, Quebec, in October 1909, to train as a nurse and became a victim of typhoid fever, which developed into consumption. Miss McKenzie was a promising girl, and great sympathy is felt for her relatives in their sad bereavement.

The death occurred on Thursday of Mr. Ephraim A. Strang of Chatham, one of the best known business men of the town. Mr. Strang was born in P. E. I. in 1875, married Miss Annie D. Stapleton of Chatham in 1861, and in 1862 began a grocery business of his own, which grew and proved successful. Mr. Strang was a member of the Methodist Quarterly Board. He leaves a widow and two sons, H. E. and L. Wilmot Strang.

RUSSIAN OPPRESSION

The Finnish Diet was dissolved last month, and new elections in January ordered. The dissolution of the Diet by imperial decree has appeared inevitable since September 23, when President Svinhufvud declined to submit two imperial bills on the ground that they were the direct proposals of the Russian Ministerial Council instead of the Emperor. The measures concerned the rights of Russian subjects in Finland and the establishment of a tax in lieu of personal military service.

DERBY CHURCH REOPENED

The Presbyterian church at Derby was reopened on the 30th ult; after having been thoroughly remodelled and renovated. Rev. D. Henderson, of Chatham, preached morning, afternoon and evening. The repairs cost $1,700, of which $650 has already been raised. The first minister in the Derby church was Rev. Thomas G. Johnston who labored for 44 years among his flock before passing to his reward. He was succeeded by Rev. Thomas Corbett and the latter by Rev. J. G. A. Colquhoun. On Mr. Colquhoun's withdrawal from the charge, Rev. Alex. Retcoe, the present incumbent, was installed as pastor.

SMELT FISHING

Smelt fishermen are making preparations and plans for the expected harvest of the little fish. It is stated by those directly interested that there will be more nets set this year than ever before on the Miramichi. Smelt are plentiful in the river now. Price of nets and twine is slightly lower than last year. It is said by smelt fishermen that fishing conditions have changed. The best hauls are made nowadays when the ice is forming and when the setting and hauling of nets is a hazardous business. As soon as the ice forms so that it will bear men and horses the greater part of the fish leave this section of the river and the fishermen must follow them toward the bay in order to get really "big hauls." This migration, it is said, is due to the extreme timidity of the fish which become frightened by the noise of traffic on the ice above.

DIVORCE GRANTED

At Fredericton, on Wednesday, Mrs. Ida C. Robinson, formerly Miss Warwick of St. John, was granted divorce from her husband, Frank L. Robinson, formerly of Marysville, now of Ontario. The parties were married in 1903 and separated in 1904. In the case of Herbert E. Smith, of Johnston, Queens county, for divorce from his wife, Alice M. Smith, witnesses gave evidence showing that Mrs. Smith eloped last July with Walter Kincaid. Judge McKeown will deliver judgment on November 29.

DUNCAN McDONALD

The death of Duncan McDonald, of Dundee, occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Thompson, of Dalhousie Junction, on Wednesday last. He was one of the oldest and most respected farmers in Restigouche, being 95 years of age at his death. He was a native of Scotland and came to Restigouche when a boy. His funeral took place to St. John's Presbyterian cemetery, Dalhousie. The services at the house and grave were conducted by Rev. M. Kirk.

LUMBER NEWS

The sawing season at the Miramichi mills is about closed. Buckley's mill, at the French Fort Cove closed a few days ago, after a successful season. Ritchie's and Hickson's mills have been down for several weeks, and the Crandall portable mill conclude operations in a short time. Lumbermen are optimistic over the prospects. The season has been of the average length. The markets for most of the principal lines have been quiet, and the winter's cut of logs promises to be somewhat curtailed in consequence. Another element in this curtailment will be the high prices of supplies and the high wages asked by woodsmen. Geo. Burchill & Sons' mill at Nelson, closed on Oct. 18; Sheriff O'Brien's mill a few days earlier, the two roasting mills owned by the Miramichi Lumber Company closed about the latter date and their Douglstown saw mill will cease sawing about Nov. 10. A. R. Loggie's saw mill, at Loggieville, closed down three weeks ago. The firm's box mill will be kept going until Nov. 20. The J. B. Snowball Co.'s "lower" mill closed on the 29th, their upper mill some days earlier. C. E. Oak, manager of the New Brunswick Railway Company's lands is at the Queen Hotel. He says that there will be an average cut of about 55 million feet of lumber on the company's lands this winter but the Miramichi Lumber Company will make a small cut of pulp wood as the mills of the international Paper Co. are over-stocked.—Gleaner.

MOTHER'S LITTLE TREASURE

What mother does not look upon her baby as a little treasure. What mother would not rather suffer herself than see her precious little one suffer. The well child brings joy to the home—the sick child brings misery, despair and care. But, mothers, there is no need for your baby to be cross and ailing; even during the much dreaded teething time. What baby needs to keep him well is an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets cure all stomach and bowel troubles; destroy worms; make teething easy. Mrs. Pierre M. Gormier, New Richmond Centre, Que., writes:—"Baby's Own Tablets have been of great benefit to my little one and now he sleeps well and eats well and is happy all the time." The Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers at 25 cents a box or direct from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GREATEST CURE FOR RHEUMATISM IS "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

"I Honestly Believe It," says Mr. Mills
Knowlton, P.Q., Oct. 12th, 1909.
For many years I suffered from severe Rheumatism and the attacks were very distressing and prevented me from doing my ordinary work. I tried many remedies and physicians' treatments but nothing seemed to do me much good, and I was becoming very anxious for fear I would become a permanent cripple from Rheumatism. I tried "Fruit-a-tives" and this medicine has entirely cured me, and I honestly believe that "Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest Rheumatism Cure in the world.

E. E. MILLS, Asst. P.M., Knowlton, Que.
"Fruit-a-tives" not only strengthens and heals the kidneys—but also regulates the bowels, improves the action of the skin—and thus keeps the blood pure and rich and free from uric acid which causes Rheumatism.

"Fruit-a-tives"—the great fruit medicine—is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c; or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

DOMINION GOVERNMENT MAKES AMENDMENT

Ottawa, Nov. 1.—It is understood the government will shortly deal with Campbellton's application for aid.
Campbellton asked for the government to undertake for a number of years the payment of interest on some $200,000 of municipal debt.
It is understood that the dominion government is willing to extend aid, in view of the unusual nature of the catastrophe, but prefers to do so finally this year.
Therefore, instead of assuming the interest on the municipal debt for a number of years, the government will ask parliament to vote a lump sum for the relief of Campbellton. Probably $80,000 will be the figure.

REV. S. BARKER WILL GO TO KOREA

Chatham, Nov. 2.—A most successful and well attended Thanksgiving service was held Monday night at St. Andrew's Hall, Rev. A. F. Robb was the speaker and told of the nature of the Presbyterian mission work in Korea.

The feature of the evening was the announcement that Rev. S. Barker, Presbyterian clergyman at Escuminac, P. Q., would shortly be appointed to go to Korea to join the mission workers at that place. Rev. Mr. Barker is well known in this section, having married a daughter of Robert Watson, formerly of Douglstown. At the close of Rev. Mr. Robb's address a vote of thanks moved by W. S. Leggie, M. P., and seconded by Rev. D. Henderson was tendered the speaker. The collection amounted to $24.00. It will be given to the Mission Band. Rev. Mr. Barker will probably leave for the far east early in December.

THREE MEN WERE HURLED TO DEATH

Weston, Ont., Nov. 4.—Last evening Dr. Charlton, coroner, opened an inquest over the bodies of three men who fell eighty feet to their death yesterday upon the flooring of the standpipe for Weston's new water works.

The men James McVey, the foreman; Robert McGregor, a Scotchman recently arrived, and Luie Smith, a Macedonian, were working within the sixty foot circle of iron when their support gave way. Down through the scaffolding they tumbled but against the supports in their fall. They were likely battered to death before they reached the ground.

WIFE BEATER KILLS HIMSELF

Rochester, N. H., Nov. 4.—George Clark, of Sanbornville, N. H., aged about 50, became jealous of his wife and beat her. Fearing that he had inflicted fatal injuries he committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a shotgun, when a physician was being summoned by his son, Frank Clark. The young man had proceeded on his way but a short distance when he heard a report from a gun at his home. Returning he found his father dead.
Mr. Clark was employed as a wiper in the B. & M. roundhouse in Sanbornville and the family lived near the depot. Jealousy is assigned as the cause of the assault and suicide. Mrs. Clark's condition is very serious, but it is thought that she will recover.

admiring glances that sought his face. The dark, languorous eyes that flashed eager admiration a moment before now turned sullen with disappointment. He had ignored their owners.

"I have heard that you expect a visitor," said the enemy in his most agreeable manner.

"Won't you go aboard with us?" asked Deppingham, at a loss for anything better to say. The enemy shook his head and smiled.

"You are very good, but I believe my place is here."

"The princess is to be with me for a month. We expect more sunshine than ever at the chateau," ventured her ladyship.

"I sincerely hope you may be disappointed," said he, commiseratingly, fanning himself with his hat. She laughed and understood, but Deppingham was halfway out to the yacht before it became clear to him that the enemy hoped literally, not figuratively. The enemy sauntered back to the American bar, lonelier than ever before in his life. He now knew what it was that he had missed more than all else—a woman.

Britt and Saunders were waiting for him under the awning outside.

"Hello!" called Britt. "We saw you down there, but couldn't get near. By ginger, old man, I had no idea your Persians were so beautiful. They are oriental gems of—"

"My Persians? What the devil do you mean, Britt? Come in and sit down; I want to talk to you fellows. See here, this talk about these women has got to be stopped. It's dangerous for you, and it's dangerous for me. It is so full of peril that I don't care to look at them, handsome as you say they are. Do you know what I was thinking of as I came over here after leaving one of the most charming of women—your Lady Deppingham? I was thinking what a wretched famine there is in women. I'm speaking of women like Lady Deppingham and Mrs. Brown, neither of whom I know, and yet I've known them all my life—the kind of women we love, not the kind we despise or pity. Don't you see? I'm hungry for the very sight of a woman."

"You see Miss Pelham often enough," said Saunders snidely. The enemy was making a pitcher of lemonade.

"My dear Saunders, you are quite right. I do see Miss Pelham often enough. In my present frame of mind I'd fall desperately in love with her if I saw her often." Saunders blinked and glared at him, through his pale eyes.

"My word!" he said. Then he got up abruptly and stalked out of the room. Britt laughed immoderately.

"He's a lucky dog," reflected the enemy. "He's a lucky dog, he loves her, Britt—he loves little Miss Pelham. Do you know what that means? It means everything is worth while. Hello! Here he is back! Come in, Saunders. Here's your lemon!"

Saunders was excited. He stepped in the doorway, but looked over his shoulder into the street.

"Come along!" he exclaimed. "They are going up to the chateau—the princess and her party. My word, she's ripping!"

At the corner they stopped to await the procession of palanquins and jinrikishas which had started from the pier. The smart English victoria from the chateau, drawn by Wyckholme's thoroughbreds, was coming on in advance of the foot brigade. In the rear seat of the victoria sat Lady Deppingham ham and one who evidently was the princess. Opposite to them sat two others, but no less smart looking women.

"A gala day in Ararat," observed the stabby Mr. Britt. "We are to have the whole party overnight up at the chateau. Hello! By thunder, old man, she's—she's speaking to you!" He turned in astonishment to look at his companion's face.

The enemy was staring, transfixed, at the young woman in white who sat beside Lady Deppingham. He seemed paralyzed for the moment. Then his helmet came off with a rush, a dazed smile of recognition lighted his face. The very pretty young woman in the wide hat was leaning forward and smiling at him, a startled, uncertain look in her eyes. Lady Deppingham was glancing open mouthed from one to the other.

"I must be dreaming," murmured the enemy.

Britt took him by the arm. "Do you know her?" he asked. The enemy turned upon him with a radiant gleam in his once somber, discomfited eyes.

"Do you think I'd be grinning at her like a fool if I didn't? Why the dickens didn't you tell me that it was the Princess Genevra of Rapp-Thorberg who was coming?"

CHAPTER XI

CHASE PREPARES A MESSAGE.

HOLLINGSWORTH CHASE now felt that he was on neutral ground with the Princess Genevra. His strange connection with the Skaggs will case is easily explained. After leaving Thorberg he went directly to Paris; thence, after ten days, to London, where he hoped to get on as a staff correspondent for one of the big dailies. One day at the Savage club he listened to a recital of the amazing conditions which attended the execution of Skaggs' will. He had shot wild game in South Africa with Sir John Brodney, chief counselor for the islanders, and when Sir John suddenly proposed that he go out to Japan as the firm's representative he leaped at the chance.

In truth Rasula was more than glad to have the services of an American. He had heard Wyckholme talk of the manner in which civil causes were tried in the United States, and he felt that one Yankee on the scene was worth ten Englishmen at home.

The good looking Mr. Chase, writing under the dread of exposure as an international jackass, welcomed the opportunity to get as far away from civilization as possible. He knew that the Prince Karl story would not be dormant, but he could not banish the fair face of the Princess Genevra from his thoughts during the long voyage, nor would it be stretching the point to say that his day dreams were of her as he sat and smoked in his bungalow porch.

Before Chase left London Sir John Brodney bluntly cautioned him against the dangers that lurked in Lady Deppingham's eyes.

"She won't leave you a peg to stand on, Chase, if you seek an encounter," he said. "She's pretty and she's clever, and she's made fools of better men than you, my boy. I don't say she's a bad lot, because she's too smart for that. Remember, my boy, you are going out there to offset, not to beset, Lady Deppingham."

Chase was not in love with the proud Princess Genevra. He denied that to himself a hundred times a day as he sat in his bungalow and smoked the situation over.

He had proved to himself quite beyond a doubt that he was not in love, when, like a bolt from a clear sky, she stepped out of the oblivion into which he had cast her to smile upon him without warning. It was most unfair. Her smile had been one of the most difficult obstacles to overcome in the effort to return a fair and final verdict.

Could anything be more miraculous than that she should come to the unheard of island of Japat, unless, possibly, that she should be there when she came? She was there for him to look upon and love and lose, just as he had dreamed all these months. It mattered little that she was now the wife of Prince Karl of Brabets. To him she was still the Princess Genevra of Rapp-Thorberg.

In his leather pocketbook lay the ever present reminder that she could be no more than a dream to him. It was the clipping from a Paris newspaper announcing that the Princess Genevra was to wed Prince Karl during the Christmas holidays.

He had seen the Christmas holidays come and go with the certain knowledge in his heart that they had given her to Brabets as the most glorious present that man had ever received.

Now she was come to the island, and, so far as he had been able to see, there was no sign of the Prince Brabets in attendance. Her uncle by marriage, an English nobleman of high degree, in gathering his friends for the long cruise evidently had left the prince out of his party, for what reason Chase could not imagine. To say that the omission was gratifying to the tall American would be too simple a statement. There is no telling to what heights his thoughts might have carried him on that sultry afternoon if they had not been harshly checked by the arrival of a messenger from the chateau. His blood leaped with anticipation.

Could it be possible? But, no, she would not be writing to him. What a ridiculous thought! His hopes fell flat as the note was put into his eager hand. It was from Britt.

Still he broke the seal with considerable eagerness. As he perceived the somewhat warty by message his disappointment gave way to a new and more certain form of excitement. With his confusion he was on his feet, his eyes gleaming with enthusiasm.

"George!" he exclaimed. "What are things coming my way with you? I'll do it this very night, I'll do it, Britt. And I must not forget to write. Ah, what a consolation it is to know that there are Americans who are good. Selim! Selim!" He was standing as straight as a corporal and his eyes were glistening with the fire of battle when Selim came up and forgot to salute, so great was his wonder at the transformation.

"Get word to the men that I want every mother's son of 'em to attend a meeting in the market place tonight at 9. Very important, tell 'em. Tell Von Blitz that he's got to be there. I'm going to show him and my picturesque friend, Rasula, that I am here to stay. And Selim, tell that messenger to wait. There's an answer."

Long before 9 o'clock the men of Japat began to gather in the market and trading place. Hollingsworth Chase, attended by Selim, came down from his mountain retreat. He heard the abilliant hiss of the scorned Persians as he passed among them on the outskirts of the crowd. He observed the threatening attitude of the men who waited and watched. He saw the white, ugly face of Von Blitz quivering with triumph. He felt the breath of disaster upon his cheek. And yet he walked among them without fear, his head erect, his eyes defiant.

The market place was a large open tract in the extreme west end of the town, some distance removed from the business street and the pier. Through a break in the foothills the chateau was plainly discernible, the sea being obscured from view by the dense forest that crowned the cliffs.

Chase made his way boldly to the nearest platform, exchanging bows with the surprised Von Blitz and the asturnine Rasula, who stood quite near. The men of Japat slowly drew close in as he mounted the platform. From where he stood looking over those bronze faces he could pick out the scowling husbands who hated him because their wives hated them. Afar off stood the group of women who had inspired this hatred and distrust. Behind them, despised and uncountenanced by the oriental elect, were crowded the native women, who down in their hearts loathed the usurpers.

It was Chase's hope that the husbands of these simple women would ultimately stand at his side in the fight for supremacy, and they were vastly in the majority. If he could convince these men that his dealings with them were honest, Von Blitz could go hang.

He faced the crowd, knowing that all there were against him. "Von Blitz!" he called suddenly. The German started and stepped back involuntarily, as if he had been reprimanded.

"I've called this meeting in order to give you a chance to say to my face some of the things you are saying behind my back. Thank God, all of you men understand English. I want you to hear what Von Blitz has to say in public, and then I want you to hear what I say to him. Von Blitz and Rasula and others, I hear, have undertaken to discredit my motives as the agent of your London advisers. Let me say right here that the man who says that I have played you false in the slightest degree is a liar—a liar, if you prefer it that way. You have been told that I am selling you out to the lawyers for the opposition. That is lie No. 1. You have been led to believe that I make false reports to your London solicitors. Lie No. 2. You have been poisoned with the story that I covet certain women in this town, too numerous to mention, I believe. That is lie No. 3. They are all beautiful, my friends, but I wouldn't have one of 'em as a gift.

"For the past few nights my home has been watched. I want to announce to you that if I see anybody hanging around the bungalow after to-day I'm going to put a bullet through him, just as I would through a dog. Now, to come down to Von Blitz. You can't drive me out of this island, old man. You have lied about me ever since I beat you up that night. You are sacrificing the best interests of these people in order to gratify a personal spite, in order to wreak a personal vengeance. You!"

Von Blitz, foaming with rage, broke in: "I suppose you will call out del warships! We are not fools! You can fool some of—"

"Now, see here, Von Blitz, I'll show whether I can call out a warship when ever I need one. I have never intended to ask naval help except in case of an attack by our enemies up at the chateau. You can't believe that I seek to turn those big guns against my own clients—the clients I came out here to serve with my life's blood if necessary. But, hear me, you Dutch lobster, I can have a British man-of-war here in ten hours to take you off this island and hang you from a yardarm on the charge of conspiracy against the crown."

Von Blitz and Rasula laughed scornfully and turned to the crowd. The latter began to harangue his fellows.

"This man is a—" he began.

"A bluff!" prompted Von Blitz, glaring at his tall accuser.

"A bluff," went on Rasula. "He can do none of these things. Nor can the Americans at the chateau. I know that they are liars. They!"

"I'll make you pay for that, Rasula. Your time is short. Men of Japat, I don't want to serve you unless you trust me!"

A dozen voices cried: "We don't trust you, dog of a Christian, son of a punk!" Von Blitz glowed with satisfaction.

MISS WILSON PASSED AWAY

Nelson Resident and Daughter of a Miramichi Pioneer.

Eliza Wilson of Nelson, aged 80 years, died on Friday at the residence of her nephew, Ernest Flett.

Miss Wilson was the daughter of the late John Wilson, of Wilson's Point, one of the earliest pioneers of the Miramichi. He was engaged in farming and stockeeping, and for years ran a horse ferry between Nelson and the Point and from the Point to a place a short distance below Sinclair's on the Newcastle side. This was in the days before the bridges were built over the branches of the Miramichi.

Miss Wilson is survived by a sister Jessie, of Brooklyn. Another sister was the wife of the late Enoch Flett of Nelson.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 2.30 from her nephew's residence and was largely attended.
