"It's a three-day Beard
But my Gillette 'll get 'em off"

"How Fred and Joe did give me the merry 'ha ha' the first time I got my Gillette in action on this overgrown camp beard of mine! They lolled around to see the fun—but sat up and took notice when I slipped the beard off, clean as a whip, in five minutes."

"After ten minutes stropping and fussing and cussing with his old-fashioned razor, Joe says:—'Here, let me try that contraption of yours!' In two minutes he finished, tickled to death—and Fred grabbed for the Gillette."

"Since then the Gillette Safety Razor has been standard equipment in our camp, and we've passed the good word along to dozens of other fellows."

"Of course we use the Gillette at home, too. Why shouldn't we? No other razor can touch it!"

Soft beards or waxy—a day or a week old—all look alike to the keen, adjustable Gillette. You can shave with it in solid comfort, anytime, anywhere. Don't go camping or holidaying—or don't stay home—without a Gillette Safety Razor. Compact Pocket Editions cost $5.00 to $6.00—Standard Sets $5.00—Combination or Travellers' Sets $6.50 up.

Mistress of Darracourt.

CHAPTER III.

Thought of it and said nothing! And yet it would seem to have been so easy to remark in a casual way that she was going round the stables after breakfast with Harry Herne! And when Marie turned to her with a sudden sprightliness and exclaimed: "What are you going to do with yourself this morning, Lucille?" Lucille almost blushed as she hesitated and answered evasively:

"Wander about and try to realize that I am—myself!"

Marie laughed.

"I'll come with you and—help you, dear."

"I think if you have nothing more important to engage your attention, Miss Verner," said Mrs. Dalton in her formal tone, "I will get you to assist me in going over the housekeeper's list."

Marie made a grimace, and glanced at Lucille, expecting her to say, "Oh, never mind!" but to her surprise Lucille said nothing, and Marie Verner immediately responded with a charming smile.

"Certainly, Mrs. Dalton! That will be delightful!"

"I will say 'good-by,' said Mr. Head as he opened the door for them. Then as he shut it he came back to the table with a rather curious smile on his face. "Miss Verner is a great friend of yours, Miss Darracourt?"

"I have known her ever since I was at school!" she said.

"Yes, I know," he said; "a very charming young lady. Do you think that she is quite sincere?"

"Marie Verner sincere!" she repeated. "Why, yes! Why do you ask?"

"Nothing, nothing," he responded, drumming the table with his fingers. "She is an orphan, I think?"

"Yes, like myself," said Lucille.

"She is a most charming young lady," he repeated disconnectedly. "Well, Miss Darracourt, I see, with regret, that my time is up. Good-by! You will write or telegraph to me if you need advice or my presence; both shall be forthcoming on the instant!"

Lucille wandered about the great rooms for half an hour, in a restless, unsettled mood. One moment she thought she wouldn't keep her promise, for what did a promise to a servant mean? The next she decided that she would, and at last, half ashamed of herself for making so great a matter of it, she snatched up her hat and went out on the terrace.

And the first thing she saw was the tall, lithe figure of Harry Herne lying on the grass at the foot of the steps, with his dog beside him. Indeed, he was very much like a dog himself, waiting patiently and devotedly for his mistress.

Lucille flushed slightly, and the next moment, because she had flushed, looked proud and haughty.

He sprang to his feet, and stood straight as an arrow, his hat in his hand, his handsome eyes fixed on her expectantly.

"Were you waiting for me?" said Lucille, coldly. "It was not necessary; I could have sent for you."

She spoke far more coldly and imperiously than she had yet spoken to any of the servants, but he answered with the deep, reverential respect and yet dignity which was so strange.

"Yes, miss; but it was my duty to wait."

In silence he strode beside her to the courtyard. The morning had grown hot by this time, and Lucille fanned herself with a fern leaf which she had plucked on her way.

"You have no sunshade, miss," he said. "The sun is hot in the courtyard—"

"I forgot it," she said; "it does not matter?"

He turned quietly to one of the grooms.

"Go back to the house and ask Miss Darracourt's maid for her mistress' sunshade," he said.

Now, after Lucille had said, "it does not matter," this command of his ought to have been considered as an impertinence, but the manner in which he gave it seemed somehow to atone for it, and when the groom, who dashed off like a lunatic on his mission, returned with the sunshade and handed it to Harry Herne, Lucille, who had decided not to take it, took it, and said, sweetly:

"Thank you!"

Harry Herne dismissed the groom with a nod, and opened one of the stable doors.

"The carriage horses, miss; there are eight of them."

They were beautiful looking horses, and Lucille said so.

"Beautiful looking," he assented; "but there are only four of any use; the others are—beautiful looking only. They should be sold, and four young ones—we have plenty!—broken in. It is a waste of power, and waste of power is—I beg your pardon, miss!" he broke off as Lucille stared at him. "The squire, your uncle, permitted me to speak my mind as if I were—an equal. I forgot I was talking to you."

"And you think I shall be less tolerant than my uncle," said Lucille with her rare smile; "is that what you mean?"

He looked at her for a second.

"The squire and I were old friends—had known each other for a long time, miss; to you I am only one of the servants—a new one."

Lucille turned toward the horses.

"You may sell those you think should be sold," she said, coldly.

"Very good, miss," he said, gravely. "These are the saddle horses," waving his hand toward a line of handsome hacks, all shining like satin, and looking in their scrupulously clean and polished stalls like the horses in a child's toy stable. "The squire was proud of his horses, and there are few to beat these."

Lucille stepped forward to read the name over a stall, and as she did so the horse turned back his ears and raised his head.

Harry Herne had turned aside to pick up a few stray straws at the moment, but as if he had eyes in the back of his head, he swung round, and catching Lucille by the arm, drew her out of danger, his face crimson for a second and then pale.

"I am a careless idiot!" he exclaimed, with a sudden passion of self-reproach in his voice. "I ought to have told you. There are one or two you must not go near. I—I hope I didn't hurt you," he faltered as Lucille stood silent and rather flushed, and he glanced at her arm.

"No, oh, no," she said, trying to speak carelessly and coldly, and passed on to the next stall. He had not hurt her, and yet the grasp of his strong hand still seemed to encrease her arm!

"I broke in nearly every horse here, miss," he said, his eyes ranging along the line. "Even these two ponies," and he opened another door.

Lucille uttered an exclamation of delight. The ponies were a perfectly matched pair of black, all fun and fire, and glittering like black satin in the sunlight that streamed through the open door.

"There is no pair in the kingdom to beat them," said Harry Herne. "I bought them out of a drove and gave ten pounds apiece; they were perfect little devils—demons, and the squire laughed and said I should never make anything of them, and now they are like kittens! They are worth a hundred pounds. The squire was offered eighty for them, and this morning, when I came and spoke to them, I was half mad with delight that they weren't sold."

In his new and lighter mood he talked on as if he had forgotten he was talking to his mistress and had not once used the "miss."

"Why?" said Lucille.

He turned with his handsome, tanned face a light, so it seemed, with a smile of satisfaction.

"Because you had come, and there are no ponies like them—I mean—," pulling himself up and lowering his tone, "that they are a lady's pair, and will be just the thing for you to drive, miss."

Lucille caught fire, so to speak.

"Oh, yes! I am glad they were not sold! Drive them! But—with a sudden drooping of the brows—"I can't drive."

"I will teach you," he responded eagerly; then, as if remembering himself, "perhaps you will permit me to teach you, I mean, miss."

"Yes," said Lucille, coldly. "You may do so." She stood and eyed the ponies wistfully, her heart in her eyes, her white hands fondling their soft noses. As if he understood her very thoughts, he said, quietly:

"When would you like to begin, miss?"

A Bronchial Cough, Perhaps Weak Throat
Use "Catarrhose"—Dead Sure Cure

Wonderful Success Reported in Thousands of Bad Cases.

How many thousands are there who would gladly pay any sum to be cured of bronchitis or catarrh. Many could be cured if they would just use common sense in selecting their remedy.

Bronchitis of course is an inflammation of the bronchial tubes which were made for the passage of air alone, and neither the moisture of an atomiser nor the liquid of a cough syrup can get where the trouble really is. The diseased parts can only be reached by a remedy that can force its way through all the breathing organs. Doctors who have used "Catarrhose" say it is the only rational cure for bronchitis. It cures by inhalation. You breathe in its healing balsams, inhale its soothing antiseptic vapor and relief is immediate.

Simple to use, delightful and pleasant—nothing compares with Catarrhose which is the cure of the day for all bronchial and throat troubles.

Mr. H. B. McLaughlan, the well-known representative of Parks and Blackwell, Toronto, says: "I have used Catarrhose for years and can honestly say it is the only remedy that relieves me from a painful attack of Bronchial Catarrh. The inhaler for Catarrhose is always in my pocket and I simply couldn't get along without it. I firmly believe Catarrhose is a wonderful remedy."

Large size sufficient for two months' use, guaranteed $1.00; small size 50c; sample or trial size 25c. Sold by dealers everywhere.

No Progress.

I have a sort of notion that David Daulton Duke will never get promotion unless it's by a fluke. He's setting traps and cages at Jim-s-o-n's jimerack store, and draws the same old wages he drew five years before. He's never known to study or read a helpful book, his mind is like a muddy and dark and turbid brook. The fellow who advances, who rises from the groove, will never sidestep chances his knowledge to improve; he'll burn the midnight candle, and to himself he'll say, "I would be a burning scandal to fool my time away." But David never ponders o'er books that brace the mind, but through the streets he wanders when's done the daily grind. A quiet game of poker now holds young David down; again, with crimson ochre he paints the sleeping town. An evening at the movies to David seems sublime; while other lads improve he's just blowing in his time. And often in the morning when he shows up for work, his head's a horrid warning, and in his mouth there lurk those tastes of pink and yellow, the consequence of cups, which tastes inform a fellow he's going to the pups. The waste of time is fateful, bad habits are a snare; the dump is dark and hateful, and David's headed there.

No Embargo on Fish Exports

(To Secretary of State. Sent 5.30 p.m. 13th August, 1914.)

Am desired by the Board of Trade to telegraph as follows:—

Information received that codfish in casks shipped from here via Liverpool on through Bill of Lading to Spain has been stopped at Liverpool by Proclamation prohibiting export of food supplies. Does it mean that exportation of Newfoundland codfish to Spain, Portugal, Italy, Brazil and other neutral places will be prohibited, or does it mean that export food supplies via Great Britain prohibited? If former case Colony will have no means of paying for food supplies from Canada and the United States or articles manufactured by Great Britain. There is a large shipment awaiting Digby for Spain via Liverpool. Of great importance in interests of trade that transhipment be allowed at once. Hitherto Newfoundland codfish has not been consumed in Great Britain to any extent, and as it is perishable article, could not be held for any length of time.

DAVIDSON.

(Telegram from Secretary of State to the Governor of Newfoundland, received 4 p.m. 21st Aug., 1914.)

With reference to your telegram of August 17th, prohibition of exportation of fish from this country is now withdrawn.

No objection to exportation of Newfoundland fish to neutral countries.

The only well-known medicine-grade baking powder made in Canada. Does not contain alum (or other aluminate salts), or sulphate of alumina, and which has all the ingredients plainly stated on the label.

E.W. GILLETT CO. LTD.
TORONTO, ONT.

At the City Hall.

The Chairman and full Board were present at last night's session of the Civic Commission.

J. P. Blackwood, solicitor on behalf of Cochrane Street Church trustees asked for payment of the award recently made re Flavin Street property, and McLoughlin's land. If not paid forthwith interest at the rate of 6 per cent will be charged.

Hon. M. P. Gibbs on behalf of Wm. Wright, asked to be heard at a special meeting in reference to the erection of a house on the Fitzpatrick property. A special meeting will be held on Tuesday night next, at which Mr. Gibbs may be present.

The Furness Witty Co. wrote asking for refund of taxes to the owners of the steamer Fairhaven, which put into port as a result of conditions created by the war. The matter was discussed at length, and it was decided that the solicitor report on the powers of the Council in the matter.

The Knitting Mills Co. asked permission to install water service to cope with fire in case of emergency. Engineer will report.

James J. Kenny asked that the Impounder's conduct be investigated. The Impounder reported on a complaint made against him, a copy of which report will be sent to Mr. Kenny with the request that he substantiate the charges made against the official.

James Cleary's application for employment was referred to the Water and Sewerage Committee.

The report of the Sanitary Supervisor, Water Inspector and Impounder were read and adopted.

The West End Road Inspector recommended repairs to Cuddihy, MacFarlane and Flower Streets. The matter was referred to the Road Committee.

The sewer will be extended to Miss Southcott's property on Allandale Rd. the guaranteed amount of $48.00 having been paid.

Permission to repair house on George Street was granted Thomas Cornell, and plans of house for John Coady, Freshwater Road, were approved.

The Solicitor reported on the claim of Miss A. Kelly for damage to her apparel, caused by the street sprinkling workers. According to the report the damage was caused by accident, and Miss Kelly will need to prove the amount of her claim. The Solicitor also reported that he had made a final demand for payment of all arrears of water and sewerage rates, and if not responded to legal action will be taken.

The Engineer submitted a sample of pipe taken from Cochrane Street. The pipe was very much corroded and emphasized the necessity of the replacing of the water mains.

The Engineer also reported that the crusher is ready for work, and it was decided that operations begin on Gower Street East.

Matters in connection with additional water service and sewerage were deferred for future consideration.

After the usual routine business, the meeting adjourned at 2.50 p.m.

Worthy of the Partnership.

(From the Daily Telegraph.)

The whole spectacle presented by the British race to-day is one to bring tears of pride to the eye of every patriot and to challenge the admiration of the world. We mean to be worthy of our partnership with France, whose all men have assumed with an unshaken spirit a burden heavier than our own. Let both nations go on as they have begun and the salvation of Western Europe is assured. For our own race throughout the world, let it be worthy of the confidence of King George, as expressed in his message to the Dominions, that "in his time of trial the Empire will stand united, calm, resolute, trusting in God."

The Six Mile Race.

The challenge race between H. Hill and J. Kavanagh at St. Bon's College grounds last night was witnessed by a large number of spectators. The contest was an interesting one, and was won by Kavanagh in 55 minutes, 35 seconds, with Hill coming in about fifteen yards behind his competitor. Kavanagh's time at the Mount Cashel race was 33 mins. 55 2/3 secs., but considering the condition of the track the time made last night was very good.

In the Mount Cashel race Hill came third, and being handicapped by the loss of a shoe challenged Kavanagh to the trial, which came off last night. From the start Hill made a good pace and held the lead for about four miles with Kavanagh close at his heels. Then for a time it was a neck to neck exhibition, until Kavanagh, when nearing the goal made a splendid spurt and before Hill could recover himself, the former had a substantial lead. The finishing line Kavanagh breasting the tape about fifteen yards ahead of Hill as before mentioned.

Kavanagh has now established his five mile and six mile records, and he has won the medal put up by Hill.

Fishery Reports.

Aug. 15th. From M. Hogan (Frappeau to Peter's River).—No traps are out but 35 dorles and skiffs with 7 boats are fishing. The total catch is 13,300 qts. and for last week 300. No bankers or schooners from the grounds have arrived. Prospects are not good. There is no squid and herring are very scarce. Dogfish are still numerous and troublesome. Codfish is reported plentiful on the different ledges but nothing can be done owing to the scarcity of bait.

Aug. 15. From M. Jenkins (Rocky Harbor to Trout River).—Prospects are fair and there is sufficient herring for local use. The prevalence of dogfish prevents good catches of cod being made as the fishermen are unable to use hand lines or trawls. The catch is 2,400 qts. and for last week 600. All the fish caught this week was with jiggers.

Magic "Nerviline" Cures Toothache, Earache.

IT RELIEVES EVERY EXTERNAL PAIN.

Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Tight Chest and Hoarseness.

It's when sickness come at night, when you are far from the druggist or the doctor, that's when you need Nerviline most. Experienced mothers are never without it. One of the children may have toothache. Without Nerviline—a sleepless night for the entire household. With Nerviline the pain is relieved quickly. It may be earache, perhaps a stiff neck, or one of the kiddies coughing with a bad chest cold. Nothing can give quicker results than vigorous rubbing with this old-time family remedy.

Nerviline is too useful, too valuable to be without. For lumbago, lame back, sciatica or neuralgia there is no liniment with half of Nerviline's power to penetrate and ease the pain.

As a family safeguard, as something to ward off sickness and to cure the minor ills that will occur in every family, to cure pain anywhere, you can find nothing to compare with old-time Nerviline, which for forty years has been the most widely used family remedy in the Dominion. The most economical size is the large 50c. family size bottle, small trial size 25c. All dealers sell Nerviline.

The Kaiser's War Train

ARMORED PALACE ON WHEELS.
London, Aug. 17.—The German Emperor's war train is described by a refugee just escaped from Germany. The train is intended for the use of the Emperor, and his war staff and consists of dining, council and sleeping saloon cars, added to which are well fitted boxes for His Majesty's chargers and his motor car.

The train carries expert telegraphers and is preceded and followed by armored trains.

The equipment is a small, simple tent, which is to be pitched on the field whenever the Emperor deems it expedient to share the hard simple life of his troops.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Percie Johnson would provide for you this desired security and at small expense. Have your enough insurance?

SATURDAY, August 22, 1914.

The Call to Arms.

As was generally expected the difficulty in reference to the transshipment of Newfoundland fish from England has been got over. The difficulty arose from the proclamation there prohibiting the export of all foods. As a consequence fish which had been sent to Liverpool for transshipment to Spain was held up there. The despatch from the Secretary of State for the Colonies raising the embargo did not reach the Governor until 4 p.m. yesterday and it was too late to ship the fish by the S. S. Digby which was ready to send by her. The Secretary of the Colonies states further that there is "No objection to the exportation of Newfoundland fish to neutral countries." This action of the Imperial Government will tend materially to relieve the situation here. If the sea routes can be kept clear, as they are being kept clear now of the enemies' commerce destroyers, war risks should be materially lessened, and in view of the general rise in price of other food stuffs, Newfoundland should be able to market her staple at remunerative rates, and the situation may not be so bad as has been anticipated the past fortnight. This is no reason, however, for relaxing strict control over expenditure. At the best, the situation must be bad, and the only wise course will be to exercise the most careful economy. Whatever we suffer, most of the unfortunate people in Belgium are suffering much worse. Their fields are overrun with fighting men, their streets are shambles, their villages are blazing beacons of the war god, and any poor peasant taken with a gun in his hand, defending his fields and home against the invader is strung up to a branch of a tree. Brussels with its 720,000 people who surrendered without firing a shot has had imposed upon it a war tax of forty million dollars. In other words, the German invaders are demanding tribute to the extent of an increase of fifty-five dollars on every man, woman and child in Brussels. In another way, it is just as if German war vessels took possession of St. John's and demanded a war tribute from the people of St. John's of two and a quarter million dollars, and threatened to burn the town and hang or shoot any civilian who offered armed resistance. It is such outrageous tyranny as this that to-day the people of Belgium are actually suffering. It is against such a dread affliction as this, that the armed millions of France are opposing the German war legions. It is to put down this German scourge that Britain is sending expeditionary forces to the Continent. It is to protect the people of the British Isles, the people of the Colonies, the people of Newfoundland, the people of St. John's from such disasters that a mighty British fleet watches in the North Sea, that powerful British cruisers are steaming on the Atlantic. That is why our Naval Reserves are assembled in readiness for any call to take their places on the decks of our warships. That is why from every quarter of the globe British men are responding to the call to defend British institutions, British liberty, British lives. We must face hardships to win. But any hardships we may put on ourselves as free men will be infinitely less burdensome, less irksome, less galling and less honorable than the Germans would impose on us, should they get the chance. Newfoundland boys are responding to the call in Canada, England and elsewhere, and here they are ready for it. There are many George Hewitts who will say in all modesty—Newfoundland cannot do much—not yet at any rate—and it would never do for one of her sons to fall to do his share.

ANOTHER ST. JOHN'S VOLUNTEER.—James Mallard, of Quidi Vidi, is amongst the Newfoundlanders who enlisted as a volunteer in Canada. Writing to a friend here he said that he had joined a Canadian Regiment which would be leaving Ottawa on August 20th for active service.

LOOKING UP FOREIGNERS.—The police are kept busy at present rounding up prisoners of war. The authorities are doubtful over a gentleman boarder in a city hotel, who is of German extraction, and unless he produces indentures showing his disloyalty to Kaiser Billy, will be taken into custody.

POLICE COURT.—A drunk and disorderly was fined $5, or 14 days. Four motor car drivers were summoned for driving without licenses; two cases were postponed till Wednesday next, the other two defendants paid the costs. Two women for selling hop beer over-proof decided to go out of the business.

ADVENTIST CHURCH.—At the Cockstown Road Church Elder Wm. C. Young having returned to the city from his visit to the West Coast—will resume his series of studies on Capital and Labor, Sunday evening. The subject will be: "Is Socialism or Unionism the panacea for present day conditions." All seats are free.

REMOVED TO PENITENTIARY.—Owing to complaints being made that the police station was unfit to quarter prisoners of war, yesterday afternoon the two Germans and Poles that are being detained were removed from there to the Penitentiary, where they will be allowed a certain amount of liberty.

At 7.25 a.m. to-day an alarm of fire from Box 338 summoned the Central and Western Companies to the residence of Thomas Kennedy, Flower Hill, where a slight chimney fire was in progress. The soot had ignited in the chimney, and set fire to the mantle and a few boards of the ceiling. A few buckets of water was sufficient to extinguish the blaze before much damage was done.

During the present week the police visited some hop beer houses in the city and took samples, two of which, when analyzed, were found to contain a much greater percentage of alcohol than that allowed by law. The defendants were before court to-day, pleaded guilty and were given the option of withdrawing from the hop beer business or pay a fine of $50.

BRIGUS, To-day.
To J. A. CLIFT, Chairman Nominating Committee, St. John's.

At a public meeting held last night, attended by representatives from all principal settlements of the Districts at Port de Grave branch, a patriotic committee was formed. The meeting was enthusiastic. Resolutions approving and endorsing the Government's and Committee's action towards the British Empire, re volunteer regiment were unanimously adopted.

J. P. THOMPSON, Chairman.

How Canada is Raising War Money.

We are informed by the Prime Minister that the Canadian Government has introduced legislation increasing the duties on spirits, malt liquors, sugar and coffee and tobacco. The increases in the duties on liquors and tobacco are to be effective from August 7th. This is to meet the interest on the loan of $50,000,000 raised for war purposes. Further, the Government of Canada has increased the issue of Dominion notes from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000. As a precautionary measure the Government are enabled, if necessary, to apply a moratorium. The Bank of Montreal have subscribed to-day $100,000 for national patriotic purposes.
We understand the Prime Minister has also received a message from Hon. R. A. Squires, K.C., the Attorney General, to the effect that he would arrive here on August 31st accompanied by his wife.

BRUCE PASSENGERS.—The Bruce arrived at Port aux Basques at 6.25 a.m. to-day with the following passengers in saloon: Isaac Jancin, R. J. Lawrence, C. Ridout, Mrs. M. Nash, Mrs. K. Frowse, H. B. Chadbourne, H. McCormack, C. D. Murley, J. P. Chetwynd and three others, whose names the Reid Co. were unable to obtain owing to interruption of their telegraph lines.

Proclamation!

By His Excellency Sir WALTER EDWARD DAVIDSON, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Island of Newfoundland and its Dependencies.

YOUR KING AND COUNTRY NEED YOU! Will You Answer Your Country's Call?

At this very moment the Empire is engaged in the greatest War in the history of the World.

In this crisis your country calls on her young men to rally round Her Flag and enlist in the ranks of Her Army.

If every Patriotic young man answers Her Call, Great Britain and the Empire will emerge stronger and more united than ever.

Newfoundland responds to the Homeland's Call and promises to enlist, equip and despatch to England the First Newfoundland Regiment of 500 strong. We want to send our best, and we believe that Britain's Oldest Colony will gain greater honour and glory for Her Name.

If you are between 19 and 35 years old, will you answer your Country's Call? If you will, then go to the nearest Magistrate and enrol your name for service in the fighting line. If you live in St. John's go to the C. L. B. Armoury and enter your name at the Central Recruiting Office, or any evening between 8 and 10 p.m.

Tickets to St. John's will be provided by the Magistrate free of cost.

The terms of enlistment are: To serve abroad for the duration of the war, but not exceeding one year. It is intended the men shall leave within one month of their enrollment, and that in the meantime they shall receive a course of instruction and training in St. John's.

A complete outfit will be provided. Each private will receive pay at the rate of $1.00 per day and free rations, from the date of enrollment to the date of return, a portion of which will be paid to dependents left behind, or it will be allowed to accumulate for their personal benefit until termination of service.

Volunteers from the outports will be given free passage to St. John's.

Any applicant for service, forwarded by the proper authorities and not accepted after arrival at Headquarters, will be provided with a free passage and maintenance back to his home.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

Given under my Hand and Seal at the Government House, St. John's, this 21st day of August, A.D. 1914.

By His Excellency's Command,
JOHN R. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary.

Baseball Championship

The Shamrocks and Wanderers will meet on Monday morning to decide the winners of the League Championship for 1914. The Wanderers, who have not lost a game since the inception of the League, and who won out last season, are ahead, in points, and if they defeat the Shamrocks will again become the holders of the Allen Cup, while on the other hand if the Shamrocks win, another play off will be necessary. The players will be:—

SHAMROCKS.—Batteries: Rossiter, Power; Bob Callahan, Wm. Callahan, Angus Lannon, Kesner, R. Callahan, Ellis, Waterfield.

WANDERERS.—Batteries: Brown, Ford; Hartnett, O'Flaherty, Pritchard, McLeod, Hooker, Britt, McCrindle.

In the afternoon the Cubs and B.I.S. will clash to determine who will be the wooden spoon holders for 1914.

The Imperial Year Book for Canada.

This Annual has just made its bow to the public. Three years have been spent in its preparation, many expectations have been aroused by its promised appearance, and the complete work is now before us.

The preface and table of contents suggest that The Imperial Year Book will supply a felt want. Not overlapping more than is unavoidable the work of the Canadian Annuals already in existence, nor overburdened with the universal information furnished in the more pretentious books of reference, it deals with Canadian affairs in a new and comprehensive way and is probably the first Canadian publication of the kind to treat of the Empire as a whole.

To Canada itself are devoted over 400 of the 576 pages. Starting with a sketch of Confederation and finishing with recent statistics of the North West Territories.

The true Canadian is essentially a sportsman, and the 10 pages or so filled with Dominion Championships and Records in Sport and Athletics will make a wide appeal.

The Empire section occupies over 100 pages, opening with a descriptive introduction. Copious information about the Navy and Army is given, and each part of the Empire has a separate section, on the same plan as the Provinces of Canada. The system of government, the character of its people, its trade with Canada and the rest of the world, as well as a brief historical outline, are given for each unit of the Empire, and the Empire of India has a special section of great interest assigned to it.

The Imperial Year Book, with its mass of election statistics, is a mine of information for political workers, while its non-partisan character is manifested by the insertion of portraits of both Sir R. L. Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The work has been brought up to date by the inclusion of the final figures of Dominion Finances for the past fiscal year, the recent general elections in Ontario and Manitoba, the names of Canadian recipients of King's Birthday Honors, the winner of the Canadian Men's Golf Championship, and the administrative changes in far-away Nigeria.

Eat Whatever You Relish!

Sometimes the digestive machinery gets away off. No kind of food looks good to you. You need Stafford's Prescription "A". It is a temporary artificial digestive process to do the work until the stomach recovers normal conditions.

Many people think Pepsin is the thing to take. Four times out of five they are wrong.

Pepsin will digest eggs, meat, etc., but has no effect on starchy foods like bread, potatoes, cake, pudding—in fact, most of the eatables that cause the trouble.

Prescription "A" is the thing. It contains all the active ingredients for the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis, nervous dyspepsia, etc.

Eat what you like. Stafford's Prescription "A" will do the rest.

Ten French Cruisers

To Join British to Keep Atlantic Routes Open—Admiral Craddock and his Ships Highly Praised by Admiralty Official.

London, Aug. 18.—The official announcement by the Government War News Bureau that the French fleet would comb the Atlantic for five German cruisers known to be chasing merchant ships, caused no little surprise here.

The Admiralty is determined to keep the Atlantic trade routes open and has secured the co-operation of the French. What is meant by the "French fleet" is not known, for all information on this point is refused by the Admiralty, but it is creditably reported in naval circles that ten fast cruisers have been detached from the Mediterranean fleet, and will divide the work of sweeping the Atlantic of German warships and merchant vessels with nine British cruisers already available.

France's cruisers are peculiarly adapted for scouting work, being fast and free of heavy deck works. Admiral Craddock, who has been prominent in the Mexican trouble, will be in supreme command, it is expected. He is a second Jellicoe, a man of few words, a martinet, but adored by his men. It is believed here that the combined fleet will operate in double lines, one sweeping the recognized merchant sea-lanes and the other covering the sea paths not usually followed.

The work of the British warships under Admiral Craddock, has called for the highest praise from responsible Admiralty officials, who declare that the scouting of the Essex, the Suffolk and their sister ships mark a new record for expedition in British annals.

Decisive Battles.

In the European regions in which war is now being waged the following decisive battles were fought:—

Austerlitz—Dec. 2nd 1805. The French (65,000) under Napoleon defeated the Austrians and Russians (82,000) under Kutusoff. Resulted in peace of Presburg.

Leipzig—Oct. 16-19, 1813. The Prussians, Russians, Austrians and Swedes (300,000) under Schwarzenberg defeated the French (180,000) under Napoleon. Killed and wounded Allies (54,000) for French (40,000). Secured liberation of Germany and the first abdication of Napoleon. Called the "Battle of the Nations."

Waterloo—Jun 18 1815. The British, Dutch and Germans (57,000) under Wellington and later the Prussians (50,000) under Blucher defeated the French (72,000) under Napoleon. The end of the Napoleonic wars and a reversion to feudalism in Europe.

Sébastopol—Sept. 8, 1854. The French and English under Pelissier took the Russian fort designed by Tolben and commanded by Gortchakoff. In the siege the Russians lost 102,670 and the Allies a larger number and temporarily destroyed Russia's Mediterranean power.

Sedan—Sept. 1, 1870. The Germans (250,000) under William I defeated the French (84,000) under Napoleon III and Marshal MacMahon. Decided Franco-Prussian War. Led to the overthrow of the French Empire and the establishment of the third republic.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office—its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modernly and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland. —ap17,14

Reprehensible Greed.

On the declaration of war by Great Britain, last week, a rumour became current that an attempt was being made by dealers in Halifax to unwarrantably advance the prices of foodstuffs. The Secretary of the S. P. C. made investigation and found that in the case of one dealer as much as $12 per barrel was being asked for flour. The prices of other necessities of life fantastically advance the prices of food. People were laying in large stores in anticipation of still higher prices. The situation was taken hold of by the women's Household League, recently formed in this city, with a view of checking undue inflation of prices. Arrangements were made to secure a list of dealers who had not taken advantage of the present crisis to make exorbitant profits on their stock, and members of the Household League are requested to deal only with these merchants. "A strict watch will be kept on the markets and dealers who attempt to force prices up unduly may expect to encounter the antagonism of the women. It is recognized that prices must inevitably rise in a time of war; but as yet there is nothing to warrant famine prices for food in Canada. We are far away from the scene of strife. There is abundance of food in the country and bountiful crops almost ready to gather. In an emergency Parliament might very well consider the desirability of a temporary withdrawal of the tariff on certain foodstuffs from the United States. It is the poor who suffer most when such times come and the cost of living goes up. To take advantage of a time of hardship and need, to make inordinate gain at the expense of the poor, is most reprehensible, and the dealers who are guilty of such conduct need not be surprised if they lose the patronage of the public.—Presbyterian Record.

Germany's Chance is One in Ten.

INVENTOR BELIEVES KAISER IS ANXIOUS FOR WAR AND HE GETS IT.

London, Aug. 16.—I have seen this coming for a long time. Four great continental powers have been straining every nerve to see how large an army they could raise and equip. They had these armies and, like a boy with a plaything, they wanted to use them.

It appears to me that the Kaiser was anxious for war. He was of the opinion that he had the strongest army the world had ever known. He deemed this a favorable time to strike as he believed England was so absorbed in the Irish troubles that she wouldn't support her friends. The Kaiser fully expected no opposition would be offered to the march of a large portion of his army through Belgium in order to attack France.

French and Belgians are very much alike: they have the same system of fortifications. A great deal has been done in the last twenty years to make the eastern frontier of France impregnable.

Austria has a very large army, but the Austrians will have all they can do and a great deal more to keep them out of Germany.

It will be necessary for Germany to send a large force to the east to aid Austria, and in all probability the Alliance will not last a great deal longer than the war. The English army, it is true, isn't very large, but England can certainly send 200,000 men to the front.

If I was to look at it from a purely mathematical standpoint, I should say the chances against Germany are fully 10 to 1. Nothing but a very unfortunate mistake on the part of the English and French will enable the Germans to reach Paris.

This particular war is not like the war in South Africa or any other uncivilized country. Troops can and will be moved with great rapidity.

There are no better sea-fighters in the world than the English. If they had to deal with Germany alone there would be little chance, but that the German fleet would be wiped off the sea. But when you consider the French and Russian fleets are added, I should say the Germans don't stand one chance in a hundred.

Money is the great factor in war. Leaving the United States out of the question, England is the richest country in the world, France is second, Russia third and Germany fourth.

France is extremely rich; her people are quite as patriotic as any. The war of 1866 between Prussia and Austria lasted only six weeks.

HIRAM S. MAXIM.

Our Duty to Our Neighbour.

"Now that the war is upon us, let us consider our duty towards our neighbor," says the Pall Mall Gazette. "At no time is it more incumbent upon us to do so. Henceforth, till peace return, there is no longer Tory or Liberal, capitalist or workman, gentle or simple. There is only 'an old and haughty nation, proud in arms,' facing as one man a conflict which is not of its seeking. Our brothers, by the hundred thousand, must face death. What can we do, from age or other reasons, are out of the fighting line, do to prove ourselves worthy of them and to aid in the accomplishment of their task?"

An End to Selfishness.

"Let us writing the last drop of selfishness from our hearts. Let us each and all resolve that no action of ours shall add to the perplexities of others, called upon to face an unwanted situation. If food is rising in price, let not those who are well-to-do and can best afford to pay the higher price seek to lay in stores, for by so doing they will make things harder for the little people who have to buy by the pennyworth. We must help to make their pennies go as far as possible.

"If we have banking accounts, do not let us embarrass our bankers by panic-stricken drawing, in order that we may have cash in the stocking. If our credit is good, we shall be able to obtain the things necessary to our existence, and the need of ready money will be lessened if we are content to remain quietly at home. Again if any be our debtor, let us not choose this moment to press him for the settlement of his debt. It is 'easy to break a man by pressing him in a moment of difficulty, while forbearance may enable him to weather the storm, and, in the long run, prove of profit to the creditor, who, to his legal rights, adds the security of an honorable obligation.

"We have no doubt that we shall shortly hear that emergency committees have been formed in every district to look after the most helpless of the population. May we remind our readers of the duty of personal service—not fussy, but discriminating and disciplined, subordinated to the direction of those who have their fingers on the pulse of misery. It will be well at this time if we all have something to do, women as well as men. There is a temptation to spend the days in vain discussion of news and rumors which pass as news. To take on some definite work for others will prove the best nerve tonic which we can take.

"Above all, let those who claim to be leaders of the nation, in virtue of position, education, and wealth, prove their title to lead. If there is dry rot anywhere in the national life, now is the opportunity to extirpate itself. Have classes drifted apart? Now is the time to come together. Has duty been sacrificed to pleasure? Now is the time to show that the watchword of Nelson's life is that of the people for whom it laid it down. And the example must come from the top.

All Must Co-operate.

"Let all of those to whom the lives and destinies of others have been entrusted gather their humble friends around them, think for them, plan for them, hearten them, direct them.

The Chinch Bug.

By GEORGE FITCH
Author of "At Good Old Stiwash"

The Chinch Bug is the greatest obstacle to the spread of religion in the wheat raising districts.

The world has had many deep thinkers and ready writers but none of these has been able to think up anything good to say about the chinch bug. It is a small insect with a large, terrifying odor, and is distinguished for two things—fecundity and appetite.

The chinch bug multiplies at a rate that makes the Belgian hare look like the poorest scholar in the class. In a year, two chinch bugs can accumulate a family reunion which will fill a seventy acre wheat field, leaving only room for the mortgage which covers it. If cattle were only one-tenth as fine mathematicians as chinch bugs, porterhouse steak would sell at a penny a pound.

The sole objects of the chinch bug are to eat and leave descendants. What is his favorite diet but when the wheat harvest is over he cheerfully gorges himself on corn—which shows that he is not of English ancestry.

When the climate has been favorable for the chinch bug population the wheat crop shrinks until the harvest is a holiday and the administration at Washington has no supporter at all. When the wheat harvest is over and the wheat stubble dries up, the chinch bug gets up and walks over into the neighboring corn field where he eats until he bursts. Nothing is more terrifying than the sight of several billion chinch bugs advancing upon a corn field—unless it is the sight of several million office seekers marching on Washington, armed only with certificates of unquenchable democracy.

The chinch bug can be discouraged by oil or creosote in his path or digging a dust furrow and letting him fall in and smother. But too many farmers prefer to come into town and cuss Providence instead of buying crude oil.

INVENTOR BELIEVES KAISER IS ANXIOUS FOR WAR AND HE GETS IT.

London, Aug. 16.—I have seen this coming for a long time. Four great continental powers have been straining every nerve to see how large an army they could raise and equip. They had these armies and, like a boy with a plaything, they wanted to use them.

It appears to me that the Kaiser was anxious for war. He was of the opinion that he had the strongest army the world had ever known. He deemed this a favorable time to strike as he believed England was so absorbed in the Irish troubles that she wouldn't support her friends. The Kaiser fully expected no opposition would be offered to the march of a large portion of his army through Belgium in order to attack France.

French and Belgians are very much alike: they have the same system of fortifications. A great deal has been done in the last twenty years to make the eastern frontier of France impregnable.

Austria has a very large army, but the Austrians will have all they can do and a great deal more to keep them out of Germany.

It will be necessary for Germany to send a large force to the east to aid Austria, and in all probability the Alliance will not last a great deal longer than the war. The English army, it is true, isn't very large, but England can certainly send 200,000 men to the front.

If I was to look at it from a purely mathematical standpoint, I should say the chances against Germany are fully 10 to 1. Nothing but a very unfortunate mistake on the part of the English and French will enable the Germans to reach Paris.

This particular war is not like the war in South Africa or any other uncivilized country. Troops can and will be moved with great rapidity.

There are no better sea-fighters in the world than the English. If they had to deal with Germany alone there would be little chance, but that the German fleet would be wiped off the sea. But when you consider the French and Russian fleets are added, I should say the Germans don't stand one chance in a hundred.

Money is the great factor in war. Leaving the United States out of the question, England is the richest country in the world, France is second, Russia third and Germany fourth.

France is extremely rich; her people are quite as patriotic as any. The war of 1866 between Prussia and Austria lasted only six weeks.

Our Duty to Our Neighbour.

"Now that the war is upon us, let us consider our duty towards our neighbor," says the Pall Mall Gazette. "At no time is it more incumbent upon us to do so. Henceforth, till peace return, there is no longer Tory or Liberal, capitalist or workman, gentle or simple. There is only 'an old and haughty nation, proud in arms,' facing as one man a conflict which is not of its seeking. Our brothers, by the hundred thousand, must face death. What can we do, from age or other reasons, are out of the fighting line, do to prove ourselves worthy of them and to aid in the accomplishment of their task?"

An End to Selfishness.

"Let us writing the last drop of selfishness from our hearts. Let us each and all resolve that no action of ours shall add to the perplexities of others, called upon to face an unwanted situation. If food is rising in price, let not those who are well-to-do and can best afford to pay the higher price seek to lay in stores, for by so doing they will make things harder for the little people who have to buy by the pennyworth. We must help to make their pennies go as far as possible.

"If we have banking accounts, do not let us embarrass our bankers by panic-stricken drawing, in order that we may have cash in the stocking. If our credit is good, we shall be able to obtain the things necessary to our existence, and the need of ready money will be lessened if we are content to remain quietly at home. Again if any be our debtor, let us not choose this moment to press him for the settlement of his debt. It is 'easy to break a man by pressing him in a moment of difficulty, while forbearance may enable him to weather the storm, and, in the long run, prove of profit to the creditor, who, to his legal rights, adds the security of an honorable obligation.

"We have no doubt that we shall shortly hear that emergency committees have been formed in every district to look after the most helpless of the population. May we remind our readers of the duty of personal service—not fussy, but discriminating and disciplined, subordinated to the direction of those who have their fingers on the pulse of misery. It will be well at this time if we all have something to do, women as well as men. There is a temptation to spend the days in vain discussion of news and rumors which pass as news. To take on some definite work for others will prove the best nerve tonic which we can take.

"Above all, let those who claim to be leaders of the nation, in virtue of position, education, and wealth, prove their title to lead. If there is dry rot anywhere in the national life, now is the opportunity to extirpate itself. Have classes drifted apart? Now is the time to come together. Has duty been sacrificed to pleasure? Now is the time to show that the watchword of Nelson's life is that of the people for whom it laid it down. And the example must come from the top.

All Must Co-operate.

"Let all of those to whom the lives and destinies of others have been entrusted gather their humble friends around them, think for them, plan for them, hearten them, direct them.

The Chinch Bug.

By GEORGE FITCH
Author of "At Good Old Stiwash"

The Chinch Bug is the greatest obstacle to the spread of religion in the wheat raising districts.

The world has had many deep thinkers and ready writers but none of these has been able to think up anything good to say about the chinch bug. It is a small insect with a large, terrifying odor, and is distinguished for two things—fecundity and appetite.

The chinch bug multiplies at a rate that makes the Belgian hare look like the poorest scholar in the class. In a year, two chinch bugs can accumulate a family reunion which will fill a seventy acre wheat field, leaving only room for the mortgage which covers it. If cattle were only one-tenth as fine mathematicians as chinch bugs, porterhouse steak would sell at a penny a pound.

The sole objects of the chinch bug are to eat and leave descendants. What is his favorite diet but when the wheat harvest is over he cheerfully gorges himself on corn—which shows that he is not of English ancestry.

When the climate has been favorable for the chinch bug population the wheat crop shrinks until the harvest is a holiday and the administration at Washington has no supporter at all. When the wheat harvest is over and the wheat stubble dries up, the chinch bug gets up and walks over into the neighboring corn field where he eats until he bursts. Nothing is more terrifying than the sight of several billion chinch bugs advancing upon a corn field—unless it is the sight of several million office seekers marching on Washington, armed only with certificates of unquenchable democracy.

The chinch bug can be discouraged by oil or creosote in his path or digging a dust furrow and letting him fall in and smother. But too many farmers prefer to come into town and cuss Providence instead of buying crude oil.

War News.

GRAIN FOR SWITZERLAND.
Special to Evening Telegram.
DAYS OF INTERMISSION.
LONDON, Aug. 21.
St. Paul's Cathedral, which is situated in the heart of London, was crowded all to-day and to-night by sorrowful worshippers, downcast because of the war. The church was filled to capacity by citizens begging intercession for soldiers and sailors who are engaged in the conflict. The service began at 7 in the morning and continued throughout the day. The sign bearing the words: "Church Full," was posted outside the gates of the churchyard, and thousands of people gathered in the street awaiting the opportunity to enter. Many soldiers in uniforms were among the worshippers. To-night the Lord Mayor of London attended the service with a large detachment of soldiers.

FRIENDLY WARSHIPS IN THE PACIFIC.
VANCOUVER, Aug. 22.
Seattle papers to-day publish the story of the arrival on the Pacific Coast of the British cruiser Newcastle and French cruiser Montcalm, which are being coaled at Esquimault Station, and are cruising up and down the coast. There is therefore no longer any need to keep from the Canadian public the news that their Pacific littoral and harbors are well protected from any invasion by the two German cruisers Leipzig and Nürnberg, which were operating in these waters, but which are now supposed to have fled to Samoa to take refuge in the German fortified naval station of Apia.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.
More than a million bushels of American wheat are on their way to Switzerland, shipments of three cargoes having been arranged by Dr. Hilscher, the Charge d'Affaires at the Swiss Legation here. Arrangements have been made to allow passage through France and Italy of foodstuffs intended for Switzerland. The Legation has little fear that these cargoes will be taken by Britain, although such could be done, provided payment was made. At the British Embassy it was said that England did not need more food stuffs than she was procuring.

GERMAN MOVEMENTS IN BELGIUM.
PARIS, Aug. 21.
An official statement issued to-night says: "Namur is partially invested. Heavy artillery opened fire towards noon. The westward movement of the German columns continues on both banks of the Meuse."
Outside the range of action at Namur, German cavalry forces passed through Belgium to-day going westward. They were followed later by an army corps.
A war-tax of forty million dollars has been levied on the City of Brussels by the German General.
The retreat of the Belgians continued to-day without incident.

CHARGED WITH LOOTING.
PARIS, Aug. 21.
Eight German prisoners, accused of robbing the dead on the field of battle, arrived to-day at Clermont Ferrand, capital of the department of Sny de Dome, where the police had great difficulty in restraining the population from attacking them. When arrested at Muehausen many jewels and a number of wedding rings and large sums of money were found on the Germans. It is alleged these valuables were stolen from the bodies of officers and soldiers.

A GERMAN DEFEAT.
LONDON, Aug. 21.
A Central News despatch has been received from Paris, saying that the French forces defeated a detachment of German cavalry coming from Leopoldshoehe and Huenyven in an engagement near Basel. The Germans retired in the direction of St. Louis, leaving five hundred dead and wounded on the field. They lost most of their horses.

GENEROUS LOAN TO BELGIUM.
LONDON, Aug. 21.
Great Britain has decided to make a loan to Belgium of fifty million dollars, the money to be raised by Treasury bills for which tenders were called to-day.

TRANSPORTING GERMAN PRISONERS.
LONDON, Aug. 21.
A despatch from Bruges says, 18 German officers and 432 men, prisoners of war, have been sent away from that city, via Dunkirk, for England.

The Kaiser and Public Opinion.
(The World, New York.)
If there is any truth in the report from Berlin that the Kaiser counted on the sympathy of the American people in the war into which he has plunged Europe, it goes to show how impossible it is for a war lord to appreciate or understand public opinion.
Public opinion has never been tolerated by German autocracy. In spite of the great intellectual freedom of the German people, freedom of speech and of the press have not been permitted, and without these agencies there can be no public opinion. Having no first-hand knowledge of public opinion, and being an unyielding opponent of such opinion, the Kaiser was no more able to gauge the feelings of the American people than of the British, Belgian and Italian people.
But anybody who knew the United States could have told the Kaiser that American sentiment would be practically unanimous against such a war for such a purpose. Anybody who knew Great Britain could have told him that the minute the Empire was threatened, political differences at home would end, the Irish question would disappear, and English, Irish, Scotch, Australians, Canadians, South Africans and New Zealanders would be united under the flag against the common enemy. Likewise, anybody who knew Italy, could have told him that the Italian people would never consent to be drawn into a war of aggression against France and England for the benefit of Austria and Germany.
A military despot and autocrat may despise public opinion, but there are times when the inability to understand it is practical suicide.

Prospero Reports Improvement in Fishery.

The S. S. Prospero, Capt. A. Kean, returned from the Northward last evening, after an excellent round trip bringing the following passengers:—
W. J. Martin, M. G. Martin, D. Thistle, A. Hiscock, L. Griffin, Master Griffin (2), Taylor, J. Evans, J. O'Neill, J. Calwell, A. W. Calwell, J. Davis, Dr. Martin, N. Sinnott, S. Wells, A. Moore, G. Hodder, Goss, Rev. Dr. Fenwick, Hann, Rev. Parsons, M. Devine, Maidment, Belbin, M. J. O'Neill, A. Moore, J. Avery, J. Milroy, Mesdames Good, Hiscoc, Howell, Scott, Devine, Butler, Belbin, Misses Carman, Stott, Burnite, Rogers, Ellsworth, Decker, Moores, Noble, Scott, Anthony, Perry, Dempster, Noonan, Gear, Maunder, Skinner, Griffin, Lindsay, Hancock, Fowlow, Sister Mary Bridg' and 41 second class.

Capt. Kean reports an improvement in the codfishery and that the prospects of an average voyage are promising. From Engage to Cape Norman good fishing is being had. At Twillingate all the traps are not yet taken out of the water and fishermen get good fares daily. Capt. Kean was speaking to the Capt. of the Balaine at Battle Harbour. The latter reported a change on the Labrador Coast. Good work is being done in Cape Long Island and Winsor's Harbour, covering a coast of 250 miles. When the Balaine was at Macovick a fortnight ago one man, named Dunn had 600 quintals landed.

At the Crescent To-day

FOUR FEATURES.
The week end performance at the Crescent Picture Palace delighted large audiences again last night. The head liner of four feature subjects was "The Leper's Coat," a splendid interesting production that called for much favourable comment. "By Fate's Decree" another excellent drama with many stirring situations. "Out of His Class" is also a story full of emotion, illustrating the kindness and bravery of a gambler who gave up his life under most trying circumstances. The comedy was a side-splitter by star performers. Miss Alice Clark, the popular songstress, presented a very attractive song, "Daddy Did a Wonderful Thing." The prima donna was handsomely costumed and her appearance in the spot light was very much admired by the various audiences who applauded successfully for an encore.
To-day at the matinee and evening performances the same show will again be presented.

THE HOLIDAY BILL
On Monday.
As Monday is a general holiday a special feature programme is arranged that will please every lover of motion pictures and good music. The feature is a two reel, Bison drama, "The Fish of Fate," with Wm. Clifford in the leading role, a remarkable tale. Miss Alice Clark will sing the famous waltz song, "Hi Bacio," all music lovers are familiar with this brilliant composition which was made famous by Madame Patti. Afternoon and evening.

Urgent Demand on Boston Salt Fish.

Boston fish merchants received a hurried call to ship salt fish of all varieties to European countries, because of the sharp rise in the price of all meat foods in European nations. Immediately efforts were made to consign a large shipment to London for the people who cannot afford to pay the high price for meat. Fishermen from England and other European nations engaged in the war have ceased to put to sea for fear of capture by foreign warships, and fishing is at a standstill.
The dealers at the new fish pier are elated over the conditions, and predict that this season will rank as the best in the fishing industry of New England. Gloucester has been asked by Boston dealers to contribute their quota of fish for the European markets.

WHALE PRODUCTS.—The schr. Skandia has left St. John's for Glasgow, taking 250 casks of whale oil and 4 1/2 tons of gill bones.

Splendid Films at Rossley's.

The crowd of tourists at Rossley's last night were very much pleased with the pictures, and several said they were the best pictures they had seen in a good while. There were some very fine subjects by the first class firms. On Monday will be seen one of the most wonderful prize fight pictures ever filmed, named "The Sporting Chance." Among the new shipment are many beautiful two and three reel features by the Vitagraph Co. "The French Spy," "Adam and Eve," "Drifts of Firewood," "Zuma, the Gypsy," "Dr. Jeckel and Hyde," in three reels, all new and features.

Some People Say: What is that "Medicina Brandy Sanator"?

WHY SANATOR? WHY MEDICINAL?
The answer is indeed easy: Sanator (a Latin word) means: that cures. Medicinal means that the Brandy although being not a properly so-called "medicine" is composed with the best known growths for their tonic, digestive properties and of course can be used for medicinal purpose in the family like the Hospitals.

When you taste it, it is quite a revelation and people are accustomed to say: "I have never tasted so fine, so rich Brandy."
When you are sick, weak, suffering with a cold or with bad digestion, try the medicinal Brandy "Sanator" and you will be surprised of its good effects.

That can happen at every moment: ask to-day from your dealer a bottle of Medicinal Brandy "Sanator": it is prudent to have it always on hand.

Divorced Life

More Masculine Loneliness

"We shall be leaving for Boston next week," said Barker.
Marian thought she detected a wistful note in the other's words. They had met by accident on the subway on their way up-town.
"It will seem good to be getting back home, I presume," replied Marian.
"You ought to know better than to presume anything like that," he returned. "Haven't you observed how we've enjoyed being here?"
"But one always likes to go back home."
"One may be lonely even at home."
"With a couple of charming and clever sisters?"
"Maybe. You know what I mean, Miss Winthrop. I'm an old fellow, ancient enough to be your father, so I'm going to be perfectly frank. You don't know how I've enjoyed knowing you and being with you occasionally here in New York. I think it's a beastly shame that I've got to get back to business in Boston. That's the way I feel whether you're glad to have me go or not."
"Glad to have you go?" echoed Marian. "No such thing. I'm awfully sorry."
"It's good of you to say so, Miss Winthrop," said Barker. "Do you ever get to Boston?"
"I never have yet, much to my sorrow. But I may sometime—who knows?"
"Wouldn't it be bully? If you ever do come, I'd love to show you the town."
"I'd like to have you," said Marian earnestly.
Barker's inconsequential sallies and

Marian's retorts flowed on. Marian was a trifle amused at the other's frankly expressed desire to see more of her. What woman is not a little amused when a man whom she has known on the basis of mere casual friendship suddenly betrays a wistful sort of interest in her? Instinctively she laughs at him and pities him.
She sees the sentimental checker-board being set for another game. At once she sees the man as a gamster, an opponent. She wonders if it will be worth her while to play. She strews her endeavours to take his measure. Will the game amuse or bore her? Shall she allow it to proceed?
These were the thoughts that sprang through Marian's mind, provoked by Barker's innocent sentences. She had seen enough of men to be able to read them up to a certain point. Every woman is an avid student of masculine nature. She loves to see what different men will do under sentimental stress. The desire is part and parcel of her. It consumes much of her time and attention. The instinct has been handed down to her from innumerable ancestresses.
In Bert Barker she saw a man worthy of let-us say—study. He was of that refined, cultured, somewhat timid type that had always interested Marian, by virtue of its contrast with the rough and impertinent class of fellow with which her fortunes had thrust her into not entirely pleasant contact.
"My sisters have deserted me for this evening," said Barker as the train paused at their station. "Won't you take dinner with me—say at the Edge-wood Club?"
Monday—In Chinatown.

WOMAN IN BAD CONDITION

Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Montpelier, Vt. — "We have great faith in your remedies. I was very irregular and was tired and sleepy all the time, would have cold chills, and my hands and feet would blot. My stomach bothered me, I had pain in my side and a bad headache most of the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me lots of good and I now feel fine. I am regular, my stomach is better and my pains have all left me. You can use my name if you like. I am proud of what your remedies have done for me." — Mrs. MARY GAUTHIER, 21 Ridge St., Montpelier, Vt.

An Honest Dependable Medicine
It must be admitted by every fair-minded, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for nearly forty years, and to-day hold a record for thousands upon thousands of actual cures, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, without possessing great virtue and actual worth. Such medicines must be looked upon and termed both standard and dependable by every thinking person.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Pop Geers.

The Silent Man from Tennessee is what they call Pop Geers, and he is certainly a clam. The racin' men from coast to coast all dub this demon of the post the "stillest man what am."
While rostin' or behind a steed, a long, fat, heavy smokin' weed is always in his face. Perhaps he fears that 'baccy stalk would lose position if he'd talk and fall. (No, not from grace.)

But when Pop gets astride the tail of any nag the old John kale is pretty sure to drop. It may be first, or place, or show—it's somethin', though that brings the dough "most every time for Pop. For every hair in ol' Pop's head, he's copped in heats where his nag led a medal or a cup. An' records? Why, an expert clerk would find he had a good day's work to count what he's hung up.
What's that you ask? How long has Geers been drivin' Darn near thirty years—an' winnin' all o' those. His ol' tan face don't tell no lies. He's old alright, 'cause round his eyes there's feet-marks 'just like crows'. They call horse-racin' 'sport of kings' an' every horseflesh owner brings his finest to its 'courts.' If 'sport of kings' is right at all it seems to me we oughta call Pop Geers the King of Sports.

Embroidered muslin in white, cream and all the pale shades is very popular.

The Election Of a Pope.

CEREMONIAL OF THE CONCLAVE.

The prescribed form for electing a successor to the Chair of St. Peter, made vacant by the death of a Pope, is by a Conclave. By a conclave is meant a closed room or hall specially set aside and prepared for the Cardinals when electing a Pope; it is also used to designate the assembly of the Cardinals for the canonical execution of this purpose.

The conclave in its present form dates from the end of the thirteenth century. Immediately upon the death of a Pope the cardinal camerlengo, who, as representative of the Sacred College, takes charge of the papal household, verifies by a judicial act the death of the Pontiff. After this ceremony, which is a very impressive one, a notary draws up the act which is the legal evidence of the Pope's death.

The obsequies of a Pope last nine days during which time the Cardinals have been notified of the impending election, those in Rome awaiting the arrival of their absent brethren, and in the meantime assisting at the functions for the deceased Pontiff.

All Cardinals, and these alone, have the right to vote in the conclave, they must, however, be legitimately appointed, have the use of reason, and be present in person. During the period of the obsequies all Cardinals appear with uncovered rochets, just as all have canopies over their seats at the conclave to show that the supreme authority is in the hands of the whole College.

The Cardinal camerlengo is assisted by the heads of the cardinal orders, known as the "Capitulum Ordinum," and representative of cardinal bishops, cardinal priests, and cardinal deacons. These four cardinals have frequent meetings or "congregations" to attend to the details of the obsequies of the Pope, and to make preparations for the conclave.

In the first of these congregations the various constitutions which govern the conclave are read, and the cardinals take an oath to observe them. Then in the following days the various officers of the conclave, the conclavists, confessors, and physicians, servants of various kinds are examined or appointed by a special commission. Each cardinal has a right to take into the conclave a secretary and a servant, the secretary being usually an ecclesiastic.

All are sworn to secrecy, and also not to hinder the election. After the conclave, certain honorary distinctions and pecuniary emoluments are awarded to the conclavists.
In the meantime a room has been prepared as a conclave, which is divided into apartments each with three or four small cells, in each of which are a crucifix, a bed, a table, and a few chairs. Access to the conclave is free by one door only, locked from without by the Marshal of the Conclave, and from within by the Cardinal Camerlengo. There are openings for the passing of food and other necessities, but these are guarded from without and within. Once the conclave begins the door is not opened until the election is announced, except to admit a cardinal who may be late in arriving. In fine all communication with the outside is strictly forbidden, and a cardinal may not be permitted to leave the conclave, in case of sickness which must be certified on oath by a physician.

OPENING OF THE CONCLAVE.

The conclave usually opens officially on the evening of the tenth day after the Pope's death, unless another day has been assigned. Papal legislation has forbidden the cardinals to discuss the papal succession among themselves during the Pope's lifetime, but the Pope may however treat of the matter with the cardinals.

All cardinals enter the conclave but only those with deacon's orders may vote, unless they have received a special indulgence from the Pope. Including the cardinals, prelates, and conclavists there are about two hundred and fifty persons in the conclave. On the morning of the eleventh day the cardinals assemble in the Pauline Chapel, and assist at the Mass of the cardinal dean. They receive Communion from the hands of the celebrant, and listen to a Latin allocution on their obligations to select the most worthy person for the Chair of Peter. After Mass they retire for a few moments and then assemble in the Sistine Chapel where the actual voting takes place. The Chapel has been prepared for the election, and the Papal Throne is removed. After prayers are said, the ballots are distributed after which all the conclavists, except the cardinals are excluded from the Chapel. One of the latter bolting the door.

There are four possible forms of election, but the usual form is that of scrutinium, or secret ballot, where the successful candidate requires a two-thirds vote exclusive of his own. The ballots are distinguished by a text of scripture on the outside fold of each, so that in the case of a close vote, they are opened to make sure that a candidate did not vote for himself.
When the cardinals are depositing their votes in the Chalice on the altar each takes the prescribed oath, calling God to witness, that he is electing the one, whom, according to God he thinks should be elected. The votes are then scrutinized closely, and counted. When the two-thirds vote is not secured by any candidate, the ballots are consumed in a stove, whose chimney extends through a window of the Sistine Chapel. Straw is mixed with the ballots, when there is no election, and those outside are informed of the fact by the volume of thick smoke.
Should a candidate be elected, the cardinal asks him if he will accept the election, and by what name he wishes to be known. When the election is over the canopies of all the cardinals' chairs are lowered, except that of the Pope-elect who retires from the room to be clothed in the Papal garments. The coronation usually takes place on the Sunday following the election.

OVERRUNNING NORTHERN BELGIUM.
LONDON, This Afternoon.
The Daily Mail's Ostend correspondent telegraphs on Friday evening, says the Germans are overrunning Northern Belgium. They are now believed to be within striking distance of Ostend.

GERMANS NEARING OSTEND.
LONDON, This Afternoon.
The Daily Mail prints from Ostend following:—Germans are a few miles off Ostend on English Channel. Forty thousand Germans who marched through Brussels are now at Ghent. English Consul at Ostend has advised all English to leave this place.

CANADIAN REGIMENT READY.
OTTAWA, This Afternoon.
The first Canadian regiment to leave for the front will be Princess Patricia's Light Infantry. They will go direct from Ottawa and sail next week. The Royal Canadian Horse Artillery will likely leave at the same time. "The Princess" Pets as the regiment is called, is now fully recruited and being rapidly drilled into shape. The regiment is ready for fighting at this very moment, as two-thirds of the men are soldiers and the remainder are men from Canadian regiments.

BELGIAN SPIRIT UNBROKEN.
LONDON, This Afternoon.
A document found on German prisoner at Liege shows the Germans planned to occupy Brussels seventeen days ago. The interval has enabled the allies to occupy their chosen positions, meanwhile the German position in Alsace and on the Eastern frontier looks precarious. The Russians are already deeper into the German territory than the Germans are in French. Those who know the Belgian spirit declare that the Belgian army will not bring Belgians to their knees until the occupation of Moscow in 1912 brought the Russians to their decision rests with the armies in field and there is no reason to lessen confidence in the ultimate victory of allies.

GERMAN ARTILLERY LOSSES.
LONDON, This Afternoon.
In a despatch from Paris, the Exchange Telegraph correspondent sends the following summary:—Alleged German losses as printed in the Paris Matin as twenty four cannon taken by the Belgians from the third to the fifth August at Liege; three cannon taken by the French at Margueuse, August 11th, six cannon taken by the Belgians from the third to the fifth August at Liege; twelve cannon taken by the French near Schirme, Alsace, August 14th, twenty-four cannon taken by the Belgians at Stalupoenen, East Prussia, August 17th, twelve cannon taken by the Russians at Dumbinnen, East Prussia, August 17th. The total of 81 pieces of field artillery, besides which were captured a number of pieces of heavy artillery and rapid fire guns, aeroplanes and 19 motor waggons.

SANGUINARY BATTLE.
LONDON, This Afternoon.
Worton Teason writes that the actual disposition of the four main armies, numbering in all more than two million men in Belgium, is hidden by the impenetrable curtain of censorship. No one is allowed to enter or leave the immediate theatre of war; no information is allowed to percolate out from within. All that is known positively is that the main French army have been engaged, that the British force from the front are larger than the Duke of Wellington commanded at Waterloo, that only four of Germany's 18 full army corps in Belgium have been mentioned in the accounts of severe and sporadic scattered battles fought this week. Where are the rest? We know that the Belgian army which retired from Brussels without firing a shot is still undefeated, that it is not resting quietly in its impenetrable defences near Antwerp, but is still harassing the German front. An official despatch from Belgium army headquarters sent to-day says a sanguinary battle occurred at Aerschot. The Germans advanced in close columns as at Liege and suffered heavy losses. Aerschot is between Brussels and Antwerp. The latest bulletin from the French War Department says officially: "The Liege forts still hold out. Those at Namur have not been attacked. In their forward march, the German armies will be caught between Namur and Antwerp, which are only 38 miles apart in direct lines." What does this portend? A week ago we watched contending of cavalry scenes. This week we have been watching encounters between advance guards of the main armies. Now the issue has passed into the hands of the main armies themselves. Commanders are committed to certain lines of advance, they have found, as they believe, weak spots in opposing lines and on that they will hurl their masses to force decisive results. The Germans, it appears, have decided to make their main attempt through the plains of central Belgium, where natural resources offer no great obstacle.

THE GREAT MASTERS

The motor car could have gotten along without DUNLOP TRACTION TREAD—but not so well.
If DUNLOP TRACTION TREADS had not come into being, motorists would still be looking for protection from skidding; a tire that would never rim-cut; and that would adapt itself to every car, every load, because it had sixty-six cubic inches greater air capacity.
In the generality of causes, DUNLOP TRACTION TREAD has sold more cars than any other single source. Tires make or mar the pleasure of driving. A standardized safety-ensuring tire like DUNLOP TRACTION TREAD means auto prospects can be made to forget their anticipated fears about skidding, punctures, rim-cutting, and go ahead and buy the car.
