

The Sound of Wedding Bells

— OR —

Won After Great Perseverance!

CHAPTER XXX.

"No," she says, and her face grows pale. "The die is cast. You do not know what I mean. Perhaps some day you may. But, Hugh, I am yours now entirely, and, Hugh, I say again that I will make you happy; happier even than—Dulcie Dormimore could have done."

"Regret!" he says, with a smile. He does not start, but he looks at her with a sudden tightening of the lips.

The name, the dear, familiar name, stabs him to the heart.

He is silent for a moment, then he says gravely:

"I am not sure of that, Lucy; but why mention—her name?"

She smiles up at him.

"Because you are thinking of her. Don't deny it, Hugh; I can read your face only too plainly! Never mind! we will both forget her, will we not? Dear Hugh!" and she leans her head sleek and smooth as a serpent's, on his breast.

There is silence for a moment. For all his assurance that he will forget Dulcie, he is thinking of her now, thinking of her as she used to rest upon his breast, and look up at him with her dark eyes shining with mingled love and mischief. Oh, Heavens! even now he thinks of her! Shall he never forget her?

It is he who speaks first.

"This will be pleasant news for my mother and the girls," he says with a smile.

"Yes," she says; then she looks up at him. "But—but don't be precipitate, Hugh; let us have time to breathe."

"What do you mean?" he asks, gently.

She laughs softly.

"You men will never understand us," she says. "Don't you see that I want to tell them myself?"

"Oh, I see," he responds, smiling.

"Yes," and she smooths the flower in his coat, which her head has displaced. "That is half the pleasure we girls get out of an engagement, cackling—that's an old word of Sir Archibald's—he starts and shrinks—"cackling to one's female friends. Let me tell them to-night. May I?"

"Certainly, dear Lucy," he says, and with something like alacrity, for if there is anything Hugh dreads, it is a "family scene."

"And you will come to-night, after dinner," she says, "and receive the congratulations? No!" she says suddenly, "come to-morrow; that will leave us all this evening to talk about it."

"Very well," he assents, still gladly, and with a sense of relief, "I will come to-morrow."

"And you will go now, Hugh, dear," she goes on. "If—if you stay they will guess something. You know," with an arch smile, "you were always bad at concealment! They will guess, and our little surprise will be spoiled."

"Very well," he assents again. "I'll come to-morrow. What a little plotter you are."

"Stupid boy!" she murmurs, sinking out of his arms. "Don't you see I am doing it all on your behalf? You hate family conclaves and congratulations, and by to-morrow their surprise and excitement will have worked itself out."

He stares at her.

"You are a clever girl," he says. "Well, have it your own way. Good-bye, Lucy, dear," and he takes her in his arms and kisses her.

For the first time in her life she surrenders herself, and lies in his arms, then she starts suddenly.

"There is a ring at the bell, Hugh!" she says. "Go now, dear!" and she rises on tiptoe and kisses him.

Then, as he goes out, she leans against the table, and puts her hand to her heart.

"I was wrong—wrong to play fast and loose with him," she murmurs. "For I love him. Yes, I love him! And he has not forgotten her yet! But he shall—he shall!"

"The Duke of Gretnam, miss," says the footman.

In a moment she recovers herself, and turns to meet the great man.

In a moment her eye takes in the fact that he is dressed this morning with more than usual care. He is slightly laced up in his long frock coat, the marvelous wig has been newly curled, and the grizzled whiskers recently dyed.

Even as she goes to meet him, she notices that there is a certain nervous pre-occupation unusual with him.

"How do you do?" he says, taking the small white hand. Then he sinks into the chair she wheels forward for him, and looks nervously.

"Quite alone, I see," he says. "Indeed I knew you would be, for I have just left Misses Maud and Edie at the stores."

She smiles down at him.

"I have just met Hugh," he says, wiping his forehead carefully, so as not to disarrange the wig.

She smiles.

"Yes. Sir Hugh came to see his mother."

He nods, and smooths the one glove he carries carefully. The great Duke of Gretnam, the owner of a princely rent roll, is utterly overcome by the small, red-haired, green-eyed girl, who fascinates him.

"Fine fellow, Hugh," he says.

"Yes," she replies; "a very fine fellow—as you say."

He is silent again, staring at the pattern in the carpet.

"Have you been riding this morning?" she asks.

"No," he says, looking up at her fondly, "no, I didn't care to. Why don't you ride now? You used to."

For the life of her, such is her nature, she cannot refrain from trifling with him, though she has just plighted her troth to Hugh.

"I—I cannot ride often. Lady Falconer wants me a great deal," she says, softly.

He fidgets on his chair.

"But—but," he says, stammering, "you are not Lady Falconer's companion?"

"I am really," she says, with a little sigh. "She has been very good to me, your grace."

"Very good to you," he repeats, in

Easy to Make This Pine Cough Remedy

Thousands of families greet by its prompt results. Inexpensive, and saves about $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain granulated sugar, syrup. Nothing better, but why buy it? You can easily make it yourself in five minutes.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. This gives you 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Sufferers, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous the world over for its prompt results. Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

an injured tone. "That—that's nonsense, you know; other people can be good to you."

"I don't quite understand," she says, leading him on with a soft smile.

After all, if he is about to propose, it will be a good joke. It will be a fine thing to refuse the great Duke of Gretnam.

"I mean," he says—then he stops and looks at her—"I mean, you ought not to waste all your time on Lady Falconer or lady any one else," he goes on. "In short, Miss Fairfax, Lucy, you are too good for that!"

"Oh, no," she murmurs; "I am a mere nobody!"

"Don't say that," he says, quickly.

"You might be—Miss Fairfax—Lucy—I came here this morning to say what I have had on my lips to say for weeks, months."

He pauses and settles his scarf, and she looks at him with bated breath.

Is he going to speak the word now that it is too late?

"Miss Fairfax—Lucy—you will be surprised to hear that I have watched you for some time"—he pauses and settles his collar nervously—"that I have watched you for some time as a man does who intends to make a young lady an offer—an offer of his hand and heart."

She does not start, but she looks at him, and then down at the heartstring.

"Miss Fairfax, if you believe me," he blunders on, "I have long thought of you as the lady who would do honor to the—the—rank and position that I hold. I am a plain man, Miss Fairfax."

She looks at him, and as she recalls the stalwart form of Hugh, she cannot even mentally contradict him.

"I cannot wrap my offer in words of eloquence, but I do offer you in simple phrase my heart and hand!" and he rises and extends his ducal hand.

She looks at him with bated breath. It has come at last. Here at her feet lies a ducal coronet; the long rent-roll of Gretnam, the magnificent family diamonds—above all, the title of "your grace."

The room seems to reel before her. All hers, and she has lost them by a quarter of an hour—by five minutes.

The duke moistens his lips, and fidgets with his glove.

"Some might say," he says, "that here is a disparity between our ages, but—but I have noticed that men of my—I will say—mature age, do not make bad husbands. We have, if you will permit me to remark, sown our wild oats, and have taken a rational view of life. I do not know whether that will influence you, but I assure you, my dear Miss Fairfax, that I have never seen another woman that I could love. Miss Fairfax, in offering you my heart, I use no merely stereotyped phrase. I come to you with a heart, notwithstanding my age, unswayed by the world. What have you to say to me?" and the ducal tone makes itself distinct in the question.

What can she say to him? She has, a quarter of an hour ago, plighted her troth to another, a simple baronet, and here is a duke imploring her to be his wife!

She cannot speak—mortification, annoyance stifles her. Before the prospect which his words have opened out to her, her "love" for Hugh grows fainter and fainter. If there was only some way of escape!—if she could but recall that unwise assent of hers!

"Well?" he says, and his face grows rather pale under the suspense, but he says the "well" gently and with knightly patience as a duke should.

Still she cannot speak; the busy, acute brain is hard at work. If there were only some scheme by which she could release herself from the ill-advised, imprudent betrothal to Hugh.

A ducal coronet at her feet, and she has bound her hands! Was ever an unfortunate girl placed in such a maddening position? Her chagrin is so great, her self-pity so deep, that actually she does for herself what she would never do for another—she sheds a tear.

It rolls down the pale cheek and drops on her hands, clasped with maiden modesty—and astute perplexity—before her, and the duke sees it.

Like most men, he has the wildest horror of tears, and he begins to blink and fumble for his eyeglass, nervously.

"Don't distress yourself, my dear young lady!" he says. "I beg you will not—not—agitate yourself. I should never forgive myself if I were the cause, however unintentionally, of ringing tears to those eyes."

She lifts those eyes to his face and sighs deeply. The words, "It is too late!" trembles on her lips, then a sudden thought flashes across her brain, and a gleam—light, treacherous as the bar of gold across a tiger's eyes—comes for a moment into the green orbs. A desperate idea has leapt her; but desperate cases warrant desperate measures.

"Your grace," she says; then she gasps, really trembling.

"Well," he says, encouragingly, "you intend to refuse me and fear to say so? Is that it? If it is I am very sorry!" He smiles rather ruefully.

"They say that old—that men of mature age can bear disappointment better than young ones, but I do not feel as if that were the case now. Well, 'all me my fate, young lady,' and he puts his hand gently on her shoulder.

As if the caress—for it is a caress—had given her courage, she says in a low, hurried voice:

"Duke, your kindness tempts me to open my heart to you, and yet—"

"Do so," he rejoins; "do so, I beg of you. Why should you hesitate? Confide in me, but tell the plain, unvarnished truth."

"Even at the risk of losing your good opinion? even at the risk of your misunderstanding me, your grace?"

He inclines his head emphatically.

"Even at that risk. But my opinion of you is too deeply rooted to be easily shaken, and I do not think I shall misunderstand you. Come!"

Mr. Samuel Parker, fruit grower, Grimsby, Ont., has made the following declaration before Mr. W. W. Kidd, Notary Public of the same place: "I do solemnly declare that I was troubled with bleeding piles and was advised to go to the hospital to have an operation performed. My wife said 'No, get a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment.' I did so and have used it according to directions while living in Manitoba and obtained a complete cure. For I have never been troubled with piles since. I am now seventy years of age and want to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and there are no others so good. A New Thrill For Blase Motorists

Driving a Willys-Knight is a greater enjoyment than the novelty of your first motor car.

It registers an altogether new and different motoring experience.

While many engines perform well when new, the Willys-Knight retains its maximum efficiency, in fact grows better with use.

Can you conceive of a greater boon? It explains why the passive tolerance of many motorists has been changed into active enthusiasm by the Willys-Knight.

One veteran motorist says his car glides as smoothly and evenly as though there were a vacuum in front of the radiator instead of the powerful and faithful Willys-Knight engine back of it.

Begin now to enjoy the engine advantages obtainable from this engine that makes beneficial use of carbon; that thrives on carbon; that for thousands of miles grows stronger, and more flexible through carbon; that never needs carbon cleaning and valve grinding to "set it up."

Many parents make a great mistake in not stimulating the imagination of their children. A child will play for a whole day with a railroad train made of chairs because imagination enters into the game. The armchair is an engine, the sofa is the sleeping car and another armchair is the baggage car.

But, if you give him a perfect representation of an engine and train of cars, his imagination is left out in the cold. There is no part for it to take in the game, there is nothing to be done with the mechanical model except to break it open and see how it works.

That is why the train of chairs on the rough grotesque toy train, will always give more real pleasure than the most elaborate machinery that could be conceived. That is why the rag doll by the woolly lamb will always lie nearer baby's affection than the most wonderfully equipped and elaborately clothed French doll.

ITALIAN VICTORY.

Italian Headquarters in N. Italy, Sunday, Nov. 18.—The men who forced their way across Piave River above Zenson have thrown into the river, drowned, or netted, killed or captured not an enemy remains on the bank at that most threatened. A Great Soldier.

The news of General Maude's sudden death comes as a great shock to the British world. A curt hint that he was sick, then word that he had passed, perhaps the most brilliant, certainly the most successful, of the British commanders produced by the war. The loss is a tragic one but not irreparable: the hardest part of his truly great work has been done. He took Bagdad, redeemed the British arms and wiped off a bitter disgrace; he did not die before he had made secure the fruits of his fine achievement. Bagdad will be the greater. The taking of Bagdad part of the brilliant campaign was the greater. The taking of Bagdad might have been accomplished by any leader of ordinary talent, for Britain had thoroughly learned her lesson and the army that went up the Tigris the second time was equal to every demand the venture imposed. Even so that advance was a model of tactics, and Bagdad was the culmination of a series of operations unmarred by a single mistake. It was afterwards, however, when the torrid heat of the Mesopotamian summer had abated and fighting was again possible, that Maude showed his real ability and proved himself a military genius. Russia had collapsed, nothing more could be expected from her and nothing worth while has come. Turkey and Germany were set on getting Bagdad again, and it was known that they had prepared a great army. They made a bad mistake. They sent its vanguard down the Euphrates instead of the Tigris. Maude went to meet it and crumpled it up at Ramadiah in a battle which would have warmed Napoleon's heart. In fact, there is something very Napoleonic in the whole of this short, swift campaign that has so completely shattered the enemy's hopes. The victory was followed up with admirable speed, and at Telrit the Turks were again badly beaten and the greater part of their ammunition and stores, which they had amassed for the attack on Bagdad, was captured or destroyed. There was nothing to be gained by a further advance and Maude fell back again, having saved Bagdad and dealt Turkey a staggering blow. His death is a calamity: we can only be thankful that it did not come earlier. Whatever he may have done later and it may be in other places, he had at least his greatest work finished. He died in harness and Britain lost a second Wolfe.

Unified Control.

We can safely assume that Lloyd George has triumphed over his critics. He had done so before he defended himself in the Commons. His critics themselves were confined to politics-ridden England. France received his bluntness with applause. Still stronger support came from America, the distinct statement from Washington and the clear instructions to Colonel House leaving no room for doubt as to the States' attitude on the question. Indeed the mere entry of the States and the great part she will have to assume in the field next year would alone point the necessity of the very unity of action and counsel, exercised and controlled by a supreme Council such as that now appointed, that the Prime Minister has had to defend. It is likely that opposition to the plan will now cease entirely, though there may easily be a political aftermath in England, and there is no need to pursue the subject; but the Prime Minister himself indirectly, through one little instance that he gives, seems to us to give a more convincing reason for this change of policy than columns of theoretical argument would supply. He says, "I have only twice this year acted against the advice of the soldiers. The first time was with regard to the big gun programme. They thought I was manufacturing too much and they would be unable to man them. Is there a soldier to-day who would not say 'I was right'?" For the sake of the intelligence of the British soldier, we sincerely hope not. But for his own statement we would find it hard to believe that there were any fools at all for him to overcome in this way. Italy has suffered disaster because she had not enough supplies: not enough coal, not enough food, most of all, not enough big guns. Apparently it never occurred to the men of whom the Premier speaks that if there were more guns than the British army needed or could man, the same was not true of Italy, that she needed just such help and needed it badly. Yet these men were soldiers and soldiers of high rank. In the light of such incidents and of all that has lately happened, it is idle to contend that Britain has no responsibility for the Italian reverses. It is a favourite speculation when exactly the war will end. We are tempted to think that that desirable date will at least be brought appreciably nearer when they succeed, if they ever do, in finding some brains at the British War Office.

Landlord Sued

In the Central District Court today a landlord was sued by a tenant, for compensation for damage done to plaintiff's furniture and effects by plastering knocked down on them deliberately by a family living upstairs, who were repeatedly complained of to the landlord, who took no notice of it. Judgment was reserved in the case pending a proper assessment being made of the damage done.

New Model Not to Compete

With Present Overland Output. There have been a great many rumors lately concerning the future plans of The Willys-Overland Company as they relate to the building of a new model.

It is true that for a year past this Company has been working on a new model car, but, according to officials of the Company, it will be a type that will not in any way interfere or compete with its present line of vehicles. "This new model is a small car, designed to be produced in quantities and to meet an entirely different demand from anything we have in the line to-day," says John N. Willys, President of The Willys-Overland Company. "It will have a short wheel base, two-speed transmission, and the front tires will be 30 x 3 inches and the rear tires, 30 x 3 1/2."

"We hope to be able to get this car into production by the summer of 1918 but this is a particularly difficult period in which to engineer a production of this description, on account of the complications in getting material and machinery with which to go into this contemplated program."

"The tests of this new model have proved to us that the car has more than lived up to our expectations, and we believe that we will be able to produce results of a more or less startling nature."

"We hope by the summer of 1918 to have some of these cars in the hands of customers,"—adv.

Butler, 45; W. P. Walsh, 35; M. O'Rourke, 32; P. O'Brien, 26. Messrs. Coady, Veitch, Harding, Wall and Penny were declared duly elected as the Board for Holyrood, and the declaration of the poll was received with rousing cheers for the successful candidates. Whilst politics are eliminated from these elections a significant feature of the result is the election of three Liberal-Unionists, and if they possess sufficient energy and aggressiveness to cause the enforcement of the beneficent provisions of the "Local Affairs Act" they will prove themselves worthy of the confidence the voters have placed in them.

Killed While Guiding Battalion

Mrs. LeGrow, of 56 Spencer Street, has received the following letter from Asst. Adjutant C. B. Dicks, describing the manner in which her son Walter met his death while gallantly performing his duties.

B. E. F.,
Sept. 3rd, 1917.
Dear Mrs. LeGrow,—I regret very much that it should fall to my lot to write this letter to you. I am sure that like all mothers you will be most anxious for any word that can be had of a loved one who has given his life for the cause. As the officer who had most to do with him during the last few weeks it seems to be my duty to write you regarding Walter's death.

He was attached to Battalion Headquarters as a Runner and was sent on the night of August 15th, with another Runner, to guide up a Battalion who were coming in for the attack. For a day or two we had no word of them and then we found that our two Runners and an Officer and man of the other Battalion were missing. Later on second Runner was reported at a Field Ambulance badly wounded and there he died of wounds. On the 28th August a message was received from the Commanding Officer of the other Battalion saying that they had found the bodies of his Officer and man and Walter in a shell hole between the post they left and the front line. He was sending up a burial party and one of Walter's pals—a Runner of Headquarters also went up and helped to bury him and place a cross to mark his grave.

In offering you and yours my sincerest sympathy I am expressing the feelings of the whole Battalion Headquarters, with whom Walter was a general favorite and one who did his duty faithfully and well.

Believe me, yours very sincerely,
C. B. DICKS,
Asst. Adjt.

Salt and Pickled Herring

In the absence of stocks of split and round herring operators in New York have been at their wits' ends to take care of the trade that is demanding stocks. The fact is that practically the entire pack in Newfoundland has been sold already and there are few offerings from any source at present. Those who have placed orders for split herring are waiting patiently for the arrival of their orders. Those who have stocks on the spot are offering only in a small way and in all cases they are holding strictly to quotations. The market may be said to be $11@12 per barrel for split herring regardless of size, but poor quality, of course is not bringing these prices. Round herring is held firmly at about the same quotations and there is a more liberal supply to be had. Fair lots were received this week on a Newfoundland steamer, but for the most part they had been sold before arrival. Further shipments of this cure are yet to come to New York. There is a good demand in evidence for all grades of salt and bulk herring. Alaska Scotch cured stocks continue to top the market so far as prices are concerned, holders asking as high as $33 for large fish and $24 for small fish counting up to 1,300 to the barrel. British Columbia herring Scotch cured is bringing up to $25 for what remains and American pack Scotch cured herring is variously held from $18 to $23 per barrel, according to the quality and size of the fish. Some new lots of Alaska herring roused in salt are offering from Seattle on the basis of $8 per barrel f. o. b shipping point. These fish are of excellent quality and compare favorably with the Alaska herring which came into this market Scotch cured earlier in the season. The fish is fancy, but the color is not as good as that of the Scotch cured stocks which have been commanding high prices in this market.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette, Nov. 10.

Nfld. Scotch Cured Herring

With stocks of Newfoundland Scotch cured herring gradually being exhausted on the spot, operators in this market are bending their efforts to procure lots of new goods in the fall pack. It is reported this week that the entire stock in first hands in New York is now less than 2,000 barrels in all hands. Aside from this, however, there are fair lots in the hands of jobbers, but as the consumption demand is still maintained another month will probably see a clean up in old fish here. Buyers representing New York houses are reported to be purchasing liberally in Newfoundland this fall. Advice during the week are to the effect that the average price is about $14 per barrel for new pack herring and in some cases, it is said, buyers are paying up to $15. As there is plenty of competition in Newfoundland just at this time, it may be expected that higher prices will be paid. There has been but a small run of herring along the coasts of the island up to this time, but at most of the packing stations goods is being put up. It is estimated at this time that about 1,500 barrels have been packed throughout the entire island. There is a fair demand locally for Newfoundland Scotch cured herring and the ruling prices of a week ago continue to rule. Goods is priced at $22@24 per barrel, according to the quality and size of the fish, and some are holding for higher prices. The

Bullets of Gold

The recent recovery of a silver bullet from the leg of a Frenchman at Verdun recalls the days when thousands of Sardinians and Austrians were sent to their death by similar missiles fashioned from the altar-silver taken by Napoleon's soldiers from Italian churches.

Bullets of solid gold, too, have been used with deadly effect. It is said that thousands of lives have been taken by them in the Mexican wars, and the favourite bullet of the Kashmir warrior was for long a garnet enclosed in lead, which he regarded as a certain messenger of death! There are, indeed, few materials from which bullets have not been fashioned, from iron and aluminium to copper and brass. They have been steeped in deadly poisons, filled with explosives and acids, and have been made heavy with mercury. In the Crimea many a soldier, when his bullet pouch was empty, fired his ramrod as a parting salute to the enemy; and in the Peninsular War one of our most gallant colonels was found dead with a silver pencil-case embedded in his heart.—Tit-Bits.

Canadian Contest

TORONTO, Nov. 19. Sir Robert Borden's Union Government will go to the polls on Dec. 17 with fully ninety per cent. of the 235 constituencies in the nine provinces of the Dominion represented by candidates. With the list of nominations complete, with the exception of some outlying constituencies, it is indicated that the supporters of Laurier or some other section of the opposition have found a standard bearer in nearly every riding. The seats which go by acclamation are very few, and they include eight in Quebec province, all Liberal or Independent Liberals, presumably giving support to Laurier and the anti-conscriptionist programme. On the other hand Shelburne-Queens, Nova Scotia, sends Hon. W. S. Fielding, former Finance Minister in the Laurier government to the Commons without a contest, as a Liberal-Unionist supporter of the Borden government. Early reports indicate that Saskatchewan has returned four members by acclamation, all Liberal Unionists and government supporters. In all their own constituencies the members of the Government will be opposed though in many cases the candidates nominated against them are obviously put up merely to make a contest. Labor Candidates, some of them strong enough to make a good showing, were nominated in several cities; and the promised "soldiers" nominees are in the list. Triangular and four-cornered contests are made in several instances and the whole aspect of the nominations promises a month of warm election campaign.

ROBERTS—McLAUGHLIN. At the Cathedral on Nov. 15th, a very pretty wedding ceremony was solemnized, when Mr. James Roberts, of Fortune Harbor, N.D.B., led to the altar Miss Sadie McLaughlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. McLaughlin, of this city. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Dr. Greene, and the bride who looked charming in a handsome costume of sage blue silk, was attended by her sister, Miss Mary McLaughlin, while the groom was attended by a returned wounded veteran of Gallipoli and France, in the person of Mr. Stephen Wiseman. A reception and wedding breakfast was held after the ceremony, at the residence of the bride's parents, Lime Street, at which the health of the happy pair was duly honoured. The bride, who was employed for some time at the Royal Stores, received many handsome presents, and the groom also received some kind reminders of this happy event in his life from his many friends. The young couple entrained on the express at 12.30 p.m. to spend their honeymoon at Lewisporte before proceeding to their future home in Fortune Harbour.

"All You Need is a Horse"

Interesting are the trousers or tights of the poorest class of gauchos, who live in a very primitive state in the Southern Argentine pampas. When they need a pair of pants they kill an old mare and strip off the hide of the fore legs as one would draw off a glove. These are drawn, soft, and pliable, hairy side in, over feet and legs up to the hips when they adjust themselves like tights. They are worn continuously, day and night, for weeks, until the owner feels the necessity of a new pair of pants. They are then cut loose, another old mare is killed, and the operation is repeated.

CONSCRIPTION!

Why Is There So Much Misunderstanding?

Selective Conscription Proposed Only Means the Selection of 500 to 1000 Men From Those Who are Least Wanted or Those Best Able to go.

Are Our Members of Parliament Slackers? If Not, Why do They not do Their Duty? Will our Members of Parliament Through Cowardice, Pro-Germanism or Short-Sightedness, Allow Our Glorious Regiment to go Down and Newfoundland and all of us to be Disgraced, After all the Sacrifices That Have Been Made, and When we are Possibly on the Last Lap? Immediate Action Called for from Every Newfoundland That Has the Interests of His Country and Those of Civilization at Heart!

The recruiting returns which are coming in are not encouraging. To those of us to whom it is a habit to think ahead, they are alarming. Our Regiment is losing more men in killed, but mostly through wounds which unfit them for active service, for good, or for a long while, than there are men being added to it. Anybody can see the result of that, and if our Regiment's losses are more than its gains it cannot stay in business. If it stays as it is now staying, to the utmost, it is having a harder pull than is fair to the glorious fellows in it, and which may be therefore to the disgrace of Newfoundland. And further, my God, it would be an everlasting disgrace to every one of us, who would permit such a condition to exist, without doing something very drastic, if it is seen to be necessary.

There is no use citizens saying "let the Government attend to the matter," because it looks as if they would not, unless their eyes are opened to their present folly, or they are forced to act. To some of us it looks as if it would be too late unless they act immediately and as if dynamite may be necessary to arouse them. Of course a Government is usually merely the echo of the majority of the people of any country. If the majority of the people are wholly self-interested then you may have a Government in which the bulk of the members are looking after their own interests. Now it looks to some of us as if at present we have a Government, the majority of whose members are fearful for their own interests and who may even sacrifice the interests of our country and of our Glorious Regiment to their own interests. If you Mr. Elector, who cannot be anything else but a backer of the Regiment, don't rise up and shout to them what has to be done. If you are not able to go yourself to the front, this is one of your duties, at this time when every man is to be tried, and if you are careless of your duty and every other elector is a result of his, what can be the result?

I do not wish it to be considered as merely politically inspired or an attack upon the Government. We have never had the habit of expecting too much from our Governments, but in a crisis like this in the history of our country and of the world, we expect the majority of them to measure up like men, as have those of Britain, Canada, the United States, etc. As you are aware the present acting Government is a composition of all parties and there are a few men in it who have the courage of their convictions, and who will tell you that this country should most certainly have a form of Selective Conscription. There are unfortunately a lot of members, who, understanding that their districts are against conscription, as was spent on doctors' bills, without any benefit, as was spent in Zam-Buk, which effected a complete cure!" says Mrs. Fred Gervais of 128 Bleury St., Montreal.

"A rash broke out on my baby's skin, and she became very fretful and lost weight. I took her to a doctor, who gave me some lotion to apply, but it did not do baby any good. I then took her to another doctor, but with the same result.

"Then a friend, who saw the condition baby was in, brought me some Zam-Buk, which she so highly recommended that I commenced using it. In one week's time baby looked much better, and before a month had elapsed she was quite well again.

"Baby is now the picture of health, and I think it wonderful that $2 worth of Zam-Buk brought about this cure when $30 spent in doctors' treatments did no good whatever! I certainly advise other mothers not to experiment with useless remedies, but to save their little ones unnecessary suffering and themselves needless anxiety and expense by using Zam-Buk in the first place."

Zam-Buk is also best for eczema, ringworm, scalp sores, boils, ulcers, abscesses, bad legs, blood-poisoning, piles, cuts, burns and scalds. All dealers or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

THE CANADIAN SALT CO. LIMITED

fearful about are those whose sons have gone forth and made the great sacrifice, or are now doing double duty in the trenches, because of these self-same politicians. And they can also be fearful of the soldiers who are returning and who will return, and will be here when these politicians are looking for the plums of politics again. These men and their families, their friends and their relatives will never forgive the politicians if they betray them, and will cross the path of these politicians and their supporters at every turn and consider they are serving the best interests of the country by downing them wherever possible. But those politicians, who stand up now and do the right thing and in from their constituents what is right, they cease to be politicians perhaps, but will for ever be statesmen.

Whatever the Patriotic Committee were forced to decide upon, some time ago, on the recommendation of the Government regarding the contrivance of efforts for voluntary enlistments should not be considered binding, considering late happenings. The withdrawal of the Russian Army from the fray, the catastrophe which has overtaken the Italian Army, the danger which threatens the Roumanian Army next spring, or even now, on account of the defection of the Russians, has changed entirely the military situation from what it was some time ago. But still our politicians have not yet seen fit to change their plans and be prepared. It is apparent to everybody that if the Government is sincere when it threatened Conscription (which is doubted by a lot of people), the Registration of Men should be started at once, or really should have been done some time ago. The Registration of Men in the meantime might only mean reporting of single men from 18 to 25 years as previously suggested. Even the mere registration of these men would help the recruiting movement. I believe more than anything else.

Now, politicians, what are you going to do about it? Are you going to give us a form of Selective Conscription that will immediately give us 500 to 1000 slackers that the best interests of the country demand should be turned into men to help Our Glorious Regiment, or are you going to adopt the policy of laisser faire or worse, and so really head for your everlasting political destruction?

The question is, are you afraid of what injury one thousand slackers (who may be reformed) will do to your political careers, or do you not fear what ten thousand voluntary soldiers, sailors and recruits and their relatives and friends may do to your careers if you are false to them, the Regiment and the Country? These latter people represent now and will represent the biggest force in the country as they can exert most influence, and will be listened to, being men of honour.

Electors of the country I ask you to call upon your Representatives for the Registration of One Thousand Slackers. That is all the Conscription that has been asked for. This is not much is it? But this means saving the Honour of Our Regiment and Country.

Will you fail in doing your duty? THE SENTINEL.

The Returned Soldiers.

ARE THEY FAIRLY TREATED?

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—The people of this district or at least of certain parts of it, are as patriotic as any in the land. They have given of their best and in some cases their all in reply to the call for volunteers for the Army and Navy. Their contributions to the different funds started and collections taken up for patriotic purposes compare favourably with those from wealthier sections of the country. Recruiting agencies have always found them strong supporters. The recruitments and welcome they have accorded the returned soldier or sailor, whether wounded or otherwise, show the respect and admiration they feel for the brave fellows who have in obedience to duty's call taken their lives in their hands in the defence of the Empire. In a word they have acquitted themselves as becometh Christian men and loyal subjects of the State. But the State has certain obligations to its subjects and has it fulfilled these in the case of those who have shown such a noble conception of what they believed to be their obligations to the Commonwealth as contrasted with those who have hitherto failed of measuring up to Nelson's standard of what is expected of every British subject in this critical time of the Empire's history.

While there may have been no specified contract binding the Government of this country to provide employment for any of its honourably discharged soldiers who are still able to work, still the obligation was admitted and the principle perhaps acted upon in some special cases, that everything else being equal an honourably discharged soldier or sailor would have the refusal of any vacancy occurring in the Government service which he may be competent to fill, but such has not been the rule in this District, or in parts of it at any rate, nor have those who have made every sacrifice to show an example of loyalty and patriotism received that consideration which would induce others to follow their lead.

Yours truly,
FAIR PLAY.

Juice of Lemons!
How to Make Skin
White and Beautiful

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as sallowness, freckles and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is so wonderful to smoothen rough, red hands.

Seal Flesh in Norway.

While on the subject of food it is interesting that women lecturers have recently been engaged by the Norwegian Government to instruct housewives in the art of preparing seal flesh for the table. This, however, is by no means a new departure. At one time seal was regularly eaten by the Cornish folk, and even to-day the older inhabitants will tell you that it is by no means unpalatable. Stephen Hawker, the man who has done so much to immortalize Cornish scenery, tells a story how when he and a brother cleric called "The Ship," Boscastle, for dinner, the landlady said she had "Meat—meat and tattie," but refused to give details of the joint. Hawker sat down to the dish and, as he says, found seal "wonderfully good."—Dundee Advertiser.

AVIATION REPORT.
LONDON, To-day.
A British official communication on aviation issued last evening says:—"On Sunday some successful artillery work was carried out by us in air-observation. A few ground targets were engaged by our airplanes with machine gun fire and a few bombs were dropped on the enemy's lines. In the air fighting two hostile machines were downed and one was driven out of control and another shot down by fire from the ground. One of our machines is missing."

NOT SURPRISING.
BERNE, To-day.
The project for the so called League for a Lasting Peace to hold conference here with delegates from Allied countries has practically failed.

RUSSIA NOW FACING FAMINE.
LONDON, To-day.
The food problem in Russia suddenly has become more pressing than the question of revolution or counter revolution, not only in Petrograd and Moscow but also at the front, according to a series of telegrams which reached London yesterday. From Petrograd to Moscow and Odessa, the spectre of famine appears to have become more than the force of arms to bring about quiet. At many places the Bolsheviks and Bourgeoisie, the Pacifists and the military cadets and Kerensky's and Lenin's have joined forces against the common enemy hunger in a concentrated effort to stave off the disaster which seems almost inevitable, in view of the disorganized state of transportation and widespread destruction of stores and supplies. The political situation, roughly speaking, is that Bolsheviki have been victorious everywhere.

LLOYD GEORGE'S TRIBUTE TO MAUDE.

LONDON, To-day.
Premier Lloyd George in announcing General Maude's death to Commons characterized him as "A great leader of men and a Commander of first rank." The Premier briefly reviewed General Maude's career and told of the difficulties he overcame which resulted in the capture of Baghdad and other successes in Mesopotamia. "Now in the hour of triumph," said the Premier, "he is stricken down by a fell disease. The country mourns the loss of one of its most valiant sons."

MUNITIONS CONFERENCE.

PARIS, To-day.
Winston Spencer Churchill, Louis Loucheur and General Daillois, the British, French and Italian Ministers of Munitions held a conference yesterday at the Ministry of Munitions here.

GERMANS ATTACKING IN NORTH.

Italian Headquarters in Northern Italy, Monday.—The enemy is concentrating his attack on the north and very severe fighting is in progress south of Guero, where large enemy masses are attacking the Italian positions on Monte Tenera and Monte Tomba.

LLOYD GEORGE'S TRIUMPH.

LONDON, To-day.
The reception of Premier Lloyd George's speech in the Commons by the morning newspapers justifies the assumption that the storm which lately threatened a crisis has passed, not only without damaging the Premier's hold on the country but perhaps even having strengthened it. It is conceded even by his opponents that the speech was in the Premier's best manner and was a parliamentary triumph. Editorial columns flow freely from his supporters, while the comments of hostile critics lack the fierceness of the previous denunciations.

KERENSKY'S MOVEMENTS.

PETROGRAD, To-day.
Two army corps loyal to the Committee for the salvation of the Revolution, stationed at Luga, report that Premier Kerensky is with them. There is no confirmation.

POET MAY BE CAPTURED.

PARIS, To-day.
Nothing has been heard of Gabriele D'Annunzio, the Italian poet and nationalist for nine days and it is feared he has fallen into the hands of the enemy, according to reports in the Italian newspapers received by Figaro.

ANGLO-AMERICAN CONFERENCE.

LONDON, To-day.
None of the numerous Allies' War Councils which have occurred in the past three years have occasioned the same interest as to-day's historic meeting of the British War Cabinet and American War Mission for tightening the links that chain the Anglo-American war efforts.

Henderson; Secretary, Mrs. MacIntosh; Treasurer, Mrs. McNell; Committee—Mesdames Freebairn, Martin, MacFarlane, R. G. Ross, Forbes, Taylor, Nell and A. Ross. They made arrangements for St. Andrew's night celebration. Mr. A. G. Gibb has arranged the musical programme and secured the services of a well known lecturer.

McMurdo's Store News

TUESDAY, Nov. 20th, 1917.
Sunset Soap Dyes continue to increase in popularity. The reason is evident to all users, and to those to whom they describe the easy simple way in which these dyes are to be used, the fact that they will dye all kinds of fabrics, cotton, wool, silk, linen, or a mixture of any of these, the fact that no washing or boiling of the goods is necessary, and that the dyes do not stain the utensils and are not messy in use. A good variety of colors. Price 15c. a cake.

Milady's Boudoir.

BEAUTY OF THE EYEBROWS.
I have used for years the following French tonic for eyebrows and certainly can answer for its efficiency. One ounce of yellow vaseline and eight drops each of oil of lavender and rosemary. After washing the face the eyebrows should be brushed carefully with an eyebrow brush upon which a drop of the tonic has been placed. For scanty, thin and uneven eyebrows the above tonic is recommended to be used for massage treatment. Apply a little to the finger tips and rub them along the line of the brows. Be careful to keep in the line as the vaseline will grow hairs and, of course, you want only a fine, thin line.
If your eyebrows are so blonde or so invisible that the face is given a peculiar appearance or that you are made conspicuous, I see no harm in resorting to the use of an eyebrow pencil for temporary purposes. But remember, if you are a blonde you must tint your brows with a light brown not with a black pencil. The black must be used only when the hair is black or dark brown. I do not approve of dyes and stains for the eyebrows.
The eyebrows are in too close proximity to the eyes to use dyes and stains without risk to them. A burnt clove is a substitute that may be used for an eyebrow pencil.
One thing you may overlook, perhaps, is the importance of keeping the eyebrows free from dandruff. You cannot make any improvement in your brows until you have rid yourself of this condition. We are all rather apt to think that when we wash our face sufficient attention has been given to the cleanliness of the eyebrow. But this is not so. The presence of dandruff proves this statement. For dandruff, whether we wish to believe it or not, is the result of a lack of cleanliness.
Add breadcrumbs to the scrambled eggs to increase the quantity. Better vegetables keep their color, green if boiled rapidly and covered.
In pickling chickens remove the little black pinfeathers with a knife.
Shoes will last much longer if rubbed with vasoline when they are new.

Twenty Cents and Twenty Five Cents

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—At the last session of Parliament when the Currency Bill was before the Legislative Council, a good deal of discussion arose in connection with the minting of the new twenty-five cent silver coin which is now in circulation. The decimal system of the Colony called for a coin of this kind. By its introduction there should be no further use for the twenty cent piece, which the Government should call in through the Banks without delay. They are a nuisance to the trade, and I should imagine, a weariness to the flesh of the Deposit and Paying tellers of the Banks, and much valuable time is wasted in examining them to see whether they are twenty or twenty-five cent pieces.
I have no doubt that the price of silver, like all other commodities of the world, has considerably advanced in price. No loss will be made in reminting on account of the enhanced value of silver to-day.
The circulating medium of any country, especially copper and silver coins, should be clear, distinct and divergent. When the Currency Bill was before the last session of the Legislature, the attention of the Government was called, that all the twenty-cent coins and defaced fifty cents should be called in to have them melted and reminted into twenty-five or fifty cent pieces.
Now, what are the facts: Take the 20c. King George, of 1912, weight 73 grains, is a facsimile of the 25c. King George of 1917, with this difference—it weighs 90½ grains. Then, again, take the 20c. piece of the late King Edward of 1904. It is only different in this way—the head looks to the right instead of the left as in the case of King George, and weighs 72 grains. Here you have three coins, all much alike. There may be more—one worth twenty-five cents face value, the other two twenty cents face value. Having called the attention of the Government to this matter, I hope something will be done to have them called in at once. They only lead to confusion which is worse confounded.
The following are sections Four and Seven of the Currency Act:
Section 4.—"All gold, silver, copper and bronze coins heretofore imported into this Colony by the Governor in Council shall continue to pass current and be legal tender under this Act, subject, as hereinafter specified, at the rates expressed on the face of the said coins respectively.
I hope my friend, the Hon. Minister of Finance, will see the wisdom of having the twenty cent pieces called in at once.
Yours truly,
JOHN ANDERSON.

The best safeguard against throat and chest troubles is provided in a handy box of Peps.

As a Peps tablet is dissolved in the mouth, powerful medicinal ingredients are released in the form of fumes, which are inhaled with the breath and come into direct contact with the bronchial tubes and lungs in a way that medicine swallowed into the stomach could possibly do.

By this direct action Peps not only strengthens and protects any weak spot in the chest but gives immediate relief to the chronic bronchitis sufferer. Being germicidal, they also provide the throat and chest with a perfect defence against the germs which spread coughs, colds, sore throat, "laryngitis," and even lung trouble.

Mr. Davies' Lecture on David Lloyd George

The members of the Epworth League were treated to an interesting account of the life of Mr. David Lloyd George, Prime Minister of England, by Mr. D. James Davies, B.Sc., F.R.S., at the Lecture Room, Gower Street Church, last night. He outlined the childhood of Lloyd George and the training he received from his uncle, a shoemaker, by whom he was adopted. Intended for Holy Orders, he became attracted to law, and while studying at Port Maddoc won a reputation as a debater. When still very young he entered politics, and since then his career has been a succession of victories. From the humblest circumstances David Lloyd George has risen to be Prime Minister of Great Britain and his career should be an inspiration to the young men of the Empire.

A vote of thanks proposed by Mr. A. Soper and seconded by Mr. Hearder was accorded Mr. Davies.

Ship Building Plant at Harbour Grace.

At present there is more than ordinary activity going on in the construction of the Newfoundland Ship-building Plant at Harbor Grace. The staff of workmen have been greatly increased of late and there are now not less than two hundred and sixty employees on the pay roll, exclusive of the regular officials of the Company. The work of laying concrete beds for two breakwaters, as safeguards against ice conditions during the winter and spring, is being carried on and bases for huge derricks are under construction. From people who have just reached town from Hr. Grace, we hear that matters are booming well at the scene of the shipbuilding yard and there is every outlook that big possibilities are in store for the second city. Operations for the construction of a siding are well in hand, the Reid Company having a staff of men engaged for some time doing the grading work, which is now practically finished. The railway ties and irons are expected along shortly to be laid.

Pte. Gus Hearn

KILLED IN ACTION.

Private Augustine Hearn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hearn, Signal Hill Road, reported missing in the battle of Monchy, April 14th, is now believed to have been killed in action on that date. Gus, as he was known to his friends, left here a mere boy with D Company, on March 20th, 1915. He spent a considerable while in the firing line and was wounded in July last, putting him in hospital for three months. On recovering he rejoined his Regiment in France and spent all last winter in the trenches. General and sincere sympathy will be expressed for the bereaved parents whose grief will be assuaged somewhat by the knowledge that their gallant son laid down his life on the altar of righteousness and justice that others might live.

Fresh Cod.

There were quite a few boats on the local fishing grounds yesterday and this morning. The water being so severely cold, operations could not be continued for longer than a couple of hours. However, fishermen got an average of two hundred-weight each. The catches were quickly bought up in the city coves.

Here and There.

When you want Sausages, why-get ELLIS'; they're the best.

FOREIGN FISH MARKET.—At Oporto the prices of codfish are unchanged since last report and the demand is moderate.

When you want something in a hurry for tea, go to ELLIS'—Head Cheese, Ox Tongue, Boiled Ham, Cooker Corned Beef, Bologna Sausage.

SEALING STEAMERS.—The sealing steamers will engage in the coal trade until the end of the year when they will get ready for the seal-fishing.

TO WED.—We understand a well-known master mariner, who is a widower for the second time, is shortly to abandon the lonely life, and sail once more over the seas of matrimonial happiness. Congratulations.

Coming!

From far away over the ocean in a land across the sea. Our friends and comrades keep calling even for you and me. To come along and play our part in the fight for the Old Country. Their numbers are sadly lessened by the war's steady claim. But their name is one of Honour in the Regiment of Fame. Peggling away in Flanders only some hundreds left.

Looking across the ocean, waiting, waiting for you. Will you guess the thoughts they are thinking? Will you look yourself square in the face? Accept the lead they have given you, get into the game, fill their place. Let it not be said in the future Newfoundland went back on its sons who had won it a name of deathless Fame at the mouths of German guns.

So now will ye take up the challenge that Fate has laid at your door? Solve the problem of future existence or come back wounded and sore. And what after all will it matter if we didn't join up with the rest. When we still have a chance to show them we can die and fight with the best.

For the tocsin of duty has sounded, sounded loud and clear. And it's up to us to play our part though it costs us all that's dear. Far and wide throughout the Empire in the homes of both rich and poor.

Many hearts are longing and yearning for that day when the war shall be o'er; So ye who are strong and healthy, well able to go with the boys, Don't you feel in those that pass by you the scorn that gleams in their eyes? Have ye reckoned the cost of staying, have ye totted up the score? Balanced life's future offerings, discounted what Honour stands for? Then know that the World sets a standard much higher than ever before.

On those whose worth and manhood has been tried in the furnace of war. So get ye up and be doing ye, who are able and fit. Have done with every day duties and prove you can do your "OTAC."

Try "Cascarets" for Liver and Bowels if Sick or Bilious

Tonight! Clean your bowels and stop headache, colds, sour stomach.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and bad colds—turn them out to-night and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels, or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour, fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken.

Airman's 500 Pounds a Week.

Big fortunes have been made by the airmen who test new aeroplanes. There have been instances where a single aviator has drawn a cheque for £500 for a week's work.

It is seldom that these highly-trained men get less than £100 a week, for they usually receive £25 for every trial trip they make. They are retained and paid by private firms on Government contracts, and from the nature of the risks they run their reward is not extravagant.

Every time they go up in a new machine—even though it has passed the severe factory tests—the expert fliers take their lives in their hands, and more than one has come to grief owing to some structural defect in the machine that could not be detected until the strain of flying brought it to light.—Tit-Bits.

INSECT ADVENTURES.
(By J. HENRI FABRE.)
Translated by Alexander Teixeira de Mattos and Adapted for Young People by Louise S. Hasbrouck.

Could any child fall to be interested in nature subjects if he had a chance to learn about them from Fabre, a scientist unequalled in his chosen field of insect life, and a master of the art of appealing to the youthful imagination? His profound knowledge is imparted in terms of fascinating adventure. The caddis worm "pirates," "the insect submarines," the spider's telegraph wires are introduced to the child reader. The life stories of the bee, the wasp, the spider, the fly are told with that whimsical imagery and fanciful twist which make them read like a fairy tale. The charm of the book is completed by the fascinating, quaint sketches, very French in style, which are profusely scattered through it. Illustrated, $2.00.

"The Mystery of the Hasty Arrow," illustrated, cloth $1.50. Anna Katherine Green's new book.

"Songs from a Young Man's Land," $1.50, by Sir Clive Phillips-Wolley. These "Songs" and "The Spirit of the New Spirit of Unity and Solidarity" that is vibrant throughout the flagging Empire to-day.
