PARENTS.

There has been considerable agitation of late in reference to the condition of the eyes of school children. We know that there is harm done in putting glasses on the growing boy or girl who does not absolutely need them. On the other hand, it is a serious mistake for parents to let this matter go unheeded when the need of glasses is actually indicated.

The mission of proper fitted glasses is to correct the errors of the eye, and the time to do this, so as to effect permanent relief, is while the child is growing. . . . There can then be some hope of later discarding them.

MABEL HOWARD, OF THE LYRIC.

CHAPTER VI. AS A FEEL OF THE REALM.

"There is no romance without a petticoat, my lord," he said. "And you won't leave England after all," he said in the tone of a man thinking. "Then I've had all my journey for nothing."

"Yes, I shall," replied the other. "I shall just run over to France. My yacht is here, you know. That's her out in the bay. Pretty, isn't she?"

The lawyer nodded politely, though a yacht was to him a kind of ship and nothing more.

"Yes, I shall run over to France, the Channel Islands and the outposts generally, and put off going to Canada until a more convenient opportunity. You think me changeable, of course? Well, I can't help it. Now fire away with the business."

The lawyer drew some papers from his bag and arranged them in the slow way which most clients find so aggravating.

"These will want your signature, Lord Coverdale," he said.

The young man took up a pen and scrawled his name, "Coverdale," at the spot pointed out.

"And here is the account of the estate."

Lord Coverdale laughed, not bitterly by any means, but with a touch of good-natured mockery and annoyance.

"Don't call it by that ridiculous word, Barrington," he said. "Estate! One would think it was a property with a rent roll as long as my arm instead of being a few thousands."

He leaned back as he spoke and emitted a cloud of smoke a little impatiently.

"It's a small fortune for a peer of the realm, my lord. But the best has been done with it."

"My dear Barrington," interrupted the young man, quickly and generously.

"I know that. I know you have done the very best that it was possible to do. I know that many men would have checked up the whole troublesome business and me into the bargain, and I wish you knew exactly well how grateful I am to you for all the trouble you have taken, and all the kindness you have shown to me!"

"Why, man," he went on, "do you think I have forgotten your kindness in the old times when I was an almost penniless young devil? Do you think I've forgotten the five-pound notes, and the twenties, you used to lend me? No, Mr. Barrington, I haven't forgotten, and I'm not likely to forget, I hope."

The old man was evidently affected by the frank gratitude of the young peer, and he as evidently tried to hide his emotion under a husky legal cough.

"You make too much of it, my lord," he said.

"No, I don't—but go on, Barrington. These sections are it. I don't see any looking at them; I shouldn't make head or tail of 'em if I pored over them for a week. Let us take them as read; and now how much have I got to live on?"

"A very little over nine hundred a year," said Mr. Barrington. "It is not quite a thousand."

"Nine hundred a year, nearly a thousand," he said. "Well, of course, it would have been a princely income to me when I was Mr. Henry Pryce Coverdale; but as the Earl of Coverdale it is simply—well, absurd! Look here, Barrington. I've thought the whole matter out, and as he spoke he got up, and kneeling on the chair with one knee, leaned against the table and emphasized his remarks with a pointed finger.

"A poor peer is an anomaly, an unnatural thing, a—in short, a nuisance to himself and to everybody else. Look at my poor uncle who left me this money. Look at the life he led. He was an honest man, and didn't owe anybody a penny; but he had to struggle through life in a threadbare coat and shocking bad hat, just because he was a peer, and to keep up his peerage a little bit swallowed up all his income and left him scarcely enough to buy half a dozen new shirts, when he wanted them. Oh, I know! Now, I'm not going to make the same mistake; I'm not going to figure about as an earl of the realm, and sit in the House, and shuffle about the clubs, when I haven't enough money to pay the subscriptions or tip the hall porter. No, I won't do it! Therefore, I mean to live by myself to myself! I intend living on board my yacht nearly all the year round—you've no idea how cheap you can do it on board ship. Come with me for a trip, Mr. Barrington!"

Mr. Barrington gave an unmistakable shudder.

"I'm a very bad sailor, my lord," he said, "but I thank you all the same."

A Gallant Soldier's Burial.

On October 14, during the La Bassée-Amendouville operations the British 2nd Division sustained a grievous loss in its commander, Major-General Sir Hubert Hamilton, who, while standing, conversing with the quiet nonchalance which was characteristic of him, was struck by a shrapnel bullet on the temple and killed instantaneously. The scene of his burial calls to mind the burial of General Fraser at Saratoga, in October, 1777. General Hamilton was interred after dark in the little churchyard of Laconure. Just at the moment when the chaplain was saying the last prayers, the guns began to roar again; and the group of silent officers, weary from the fighting line, who stood with bowed heads round the grave, could hardly hear his words for the whis and crack of the shells. The German attack was directed from a distance of only a few hundred yards. The moment was well chosen, for the volleys fired by the troops of the Allies in honour of the dead, gloriously fallen for the common cause, were at the same time volleys of vengeance. Cracking reports of rifles continued round the ruined church, but the voice of the priest, reciting the last words of the Requiem, lost nothing of its calm and clearness. It was a proper ending for a soldier. Major-General Sir Hubert Hamilton was one of the most skillful younger generals, a grand commander, beloved by his men, and destined, had he lived, for the highest rank.

HOW WOMEN AVOID SURGICAL OPERATIONS

Some Are Extremely Necessary, Others May Not Be

Every Woman Should Give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Trial First

Chicago, Ill.—"I was in bed with a female trouble and had four doctors but none of them did me any good. They all said I would have to have an operation. A druggist's wife told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took 22 bottles, never missing a dose and at the end of that time I was perfectly well. I have never had occasion to take it again as I have been so well. I have a six room flat and do all my work. My two sisters are taking the Compound upon my recommendation and you may publish my letter. It is the gospel truth and I will write to any one who wants a personal letter."—Mrs. E. H. BARDOCK, 634 St. Lawrence Ave., Chicago.

A Vermont woman adds her testimony to the long line of those fortunate women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations was necessary: Burlington, Vt.—"I suffered with female trouble, and had a number of doctors who said that I would never be any better until I had an operation. I was so bad I could hardly walk across the floor when I was a child. My sister-in-law induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it certainly has helped me wonderfully. I keep house and do my work and have a small child. I have recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound to a number of my friends and you may publish my testimonial."—Mrs. H. E. SIMMONS, Apple Tree Point Farm, Burlington, Vt.

In hospitals are many women who are there for surgical operations, and there is nothing a woman dreads more than the thought of an operation, and the long weary months of recovery and restoration to strength if it is successful. It is very true that female troubles may through neglect reach a stage where an operation is the only recourse, but most of the common ailments of women are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same. When disturbing ailments first appear take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious conditions. In fact, many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

Prospecting for Oil.

Geologists Return From West Coast Messrs. Weatherhead, Schofield and Templeton, of the Technical Expert staff of the Anglo-Persian Oil Co. who have been making a geological survey of the West Coast on behalf of their Company, are now in the city and will be returning to England shortly. They have been in Newfoundland since June.

Mr. Weatherhead, interviewed by the Telegram this morning, declined to make any statement as to the success or otherwise of their survey. He also refused to express any opinion on Newfoundland as an oil producing country, and said it would be impossible for him to do so as he had not yet reported to the directors of the D'Arcy Exploration Co., which is a subsidiary branch of the Anglo-Persian Oil Co. It will be remembered that the Government entered into an agreement with the D'Arcy Exploration Co. during the late session of the Legislature, whereby the Company had the right to prospect for petroleum on any unoccupied Crown Lands. The Company has to furnish reports of all surveys to the Government from time to time. If at any time petroleum is discovered in commercial quantities "the Company or any lessee or lessees to whom leases may be granted, shall proceed with all reasonable speed and continuously to work and develop same."

FFORRHEA AGAIN. Pyorrhea is so insidious that we want to repeat again and again our former warnings against it. It is not painful as a rule, and that very fact makes it all the more dangerous. Watch for those bleeding gums, they are your warnings. Do not give your body a chance to absorb poisons that come from bad teeth or diseased gums. Anything from a headache to a serious illness may result from your neglect. Pyorrhea is a dreadful disease.

BULGARIANS ON TRIAL.
SOFIA, Oct. 13. The trial of Bulgarians accused of war crimes opened here yesterday in the theatre here, which was crowded to capacity. The accused men include former Cabinet Ministers and two Generals. They are charged with high treason in favor of Germany, and misappropriation of public funds. The Public Prosecutor is demanding the death penalty for most of the defendants.

GERMANY TO-DAY.
LONDON, Oct. 13. Sir John Aldrich, General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, has returned to London after an extensive survey through France, Belgium and Germany. Interviewed to-day, Sir John told of some of the impressions he had gathered from his tour. The one outstanding fact, he said, was that everybody on the continent was working hard, and there certainly was no unemployment at the present time. In Germany the people are miserably, at any rate, being well and well dressed. Germany appears as well organized as it was before the war, and traffic on the railways and the Rhine River is handled in a thoroughly efficient manner. Germany, in fact, was living within herself, and the Canadian banker said it was impossible to think that she would become bankrupt even though the mark might sink to a figure near its practical abolition. Moreover, the Germans are producing a class of goods better than the same class can be produced in Great Britain. Germany is selling these goods to European countries and quite extensively to Russia, Mexico and South American States. From Russia Germany has obtained good foreign exchange in payment for these goods.

DETROIT, Oct. 13. A poster advertising campaign for the purpose of "selling Prosperity" to the country, has been decided on by the Poster Advertising Association in convention here. Members of the New York Rotary Club have underwritten the cost of lithographing and distributing the posters.

CANADA'S WAR PENSION LIST.
OTTAWA, Oct. 13. Canada's annual pension list in respect of the late war amounts to $30,802,608, payable to 50,287 disabled soldiers and 19,411 dependents. The figures are for June 30 of this year, just issued by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. The total amount paid out in pensions up to August 31st last was $101,414,216.

CONFLICTING ANSWERS.
LONDON, Oct. 13. Members of the British Cabinet and the Sinn Fein leaders conferring here, to-day, in an endeavor to settle the future of Ireland, adjourned at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, after having been in session only an hour and a half. Arthur Griffith, Sinn Fein head of the Irish Legation, was asked by a correspondent, "When are you coming back?" Michael Collins, Sinn Fein Minister of the Irish Republican Army, interjected, "we are not coming back." Griffith then answered, "We are coming back at eleven o'clock to-morrow." The Conference was resumed in the Cabinet Room of Premier Lloyd George's official residence in Downing Street, at noon to-day, an hour later than the time originally set for the meeting.

THE FINAL GAME.
NEW YORK, Oct. 13. The Giants whitewashed the Yankees this afternoon one to nothing, in the eighth and final game of the series. Neft pitched for the Giants and Hoyt for the Yankees. Hoyt's lack of control in the first innings, followed by an error by Pochinough, resulted in the Giant's run. The Yankees won three games of eight in the series.

Signposts of the Sea.

The ordinary magnetic compass has one great fault: its needle does not point to the North Pole, but is always some distance to one side or the other of the true north line. Further, this deviation varies from year to year, and it is seldom the same in any two parts of the world. This kind of compass, too, is liable to be upset if there are metals or magnetic substances in its neighborhood.

The latest instrument carried by all great ships is called the gyro-compass. It consists for the most part of a heavy wheel turned at very high speed by an electric motor. The axle of the wheel is so mounted that it can turn in any direction.

If its axle can swing on its mounting, a heavy wheel rotating at high speed will point always in the same direction. The gyro-compass is set while the ship is in harbour, and no matter how much the ship rolls, or what turns she makes, its wheel remains faithful to its original direction. Owing to its jointed mounting it does not follow the movements of the ship.

A Banner for Mr. Massey.

Mr. W. F. Massey, the Premier of New Zealand, was transparently delighted with his reception at the Hotel Victoria last night, says the Manchester Evening Chronicle of Sept. 24th. He made an eloquent speech and accepted with apparent emotion the banner presented to him by the Imperial Air Fleet Committee. In the absence of Lord Desborough, it fell to Lord Morris to present the blue flag with the Union Jack and stars of New Zealand and embroidered with the deeds of war-service performed by the Britannia and Nottingham squadrons.

Lord Milner stood in the group surrounding Mr. and Mrs. Massey, which included Sir Joseph Ward, the ex-Prime Minister of the Dominion, and Sir Thomas Lipton, both wearing many decorations.

The Portuguese Agreement.

Mr. Morine Exposes Its Fallacy.

The Evening Telegram, Dear Sir.—The Advocate, on Wednesday last, published the much talked of agreement between the Hon. F. Coaker, for "the Newfoundland Fisheries Department," and P. M. da Fonseca Araujo, of the International Mercantile Company, Ltd., made in Oporto, in January, 1921.

The publication was advertised by the Advocate in a front page headline declaring that "political animosity and jealousy killed the agreement," and thereby "lost nearly $5,000,000" to this Colony, and a similar statement to the editorial preceding the agreement declared that the agreement was nullified by the cancellation of the Export Regulations, and at the sale of 300,000 quintals of fish which Mr. Coaker had negotiated as thereby forfeited.

It is not fair to the electorate that such fantastic falsehoods should be allowed to circulate uncontradicted, and any innocent reader throughout the Colony, sincerely desirous of knowing the truth of this matter, and quite capable of understanding the subject, will be deluded into believing the baseless assertions made by the Advocate, unless some reply is made to them, and, therefore, I beg space in your columns for this letter, and, possibly, other letters in denial and explanation.

It is not true that $5,000,000 or any appreciable amount was lost by non-observance of the Coaker-Araujo agreement. It is not true that political animosity and jealousy killed the agreement. It is not true that Coaker negotiated the sale of 300,000 quintals of fish under the agreement.

On the other hand, there was no authority for negotiating such an agreement. If accepted, it could not have been enforced without revolutionary legislation by the Assembly. If made law, it would have handed over trade with Portugal to a monopoly controlled at this end by Coaker, and at the other end by Araujo, and would inevitably have destroyed, perhaps permanently, our trade with Portugal.

As to the first point denied as above: The agreement does not even purport to be a sale of any quantity of fish, or to fix any price for fish. Under it, no binding engagement was made on this side to sell fish, nor on the other side to buy fish. The sale, therefore, of a single quintal, and the gain or loss of a single dollar, was not based or risked upon "this" ultimately rejected proposal.

As to the second point denied as above: The Fisheries Regulations were repealed by the Government, of which Mr. Coaker is the most influential member, with his knowledge and consent. He either approved the repeal, or weakly consented, because he loved his office more than his country. If the repeal killed a profitable agreement, if loss to the fishermen has resulted, he, above all other men, is responsible for it. Yes, more, if he believes one jot or tittle of the things his organ says from day to day of the disaster which has resulted from the repeal, he is the weakest and most contemptible man in the Colony for consenting to the sacrifice.

Mr. Coaker, as Minister, signed an agreement made with "the Newfoundland Fisheries Department." There is no such department in existence. No department in existence has authority to make such an agreement. To bind this Colony, when it can be bound, the Governor-in-Council is usually the only person able to contract, and he only, in most matters, when he has been specially authorized to do so. It is, of course, not amazing that Mr. Coaker mistook himself for Governor and Legislature combined, and that he did not even know the correct name of the department over which he presided.

Pedro da Fonseca Araujo signed the agreement for the International Mercantile Marine Co., Ltd. By what authority he did so does not appear. Mr. Coaker probably does not know, or care, as the agreement was really entirely in the interest of the Company, and not likely to be rejected by it. But in view of the recent arrest of Mr. Araujo, for alleged fraud on a gigantic scale, as set forth in the London Daily Mail, of Sept. 20th last, (published elsewhere in this issue), it is not safe to conclude that he had the authority he assumed.

The Advocate says, of the agreement, that "not only did it kill consignments" but also "it gave Newfoundland the right to fix prices." Undoubtedly, it would have killed consignments, and also all trade with Portugal except through one Company. But it was not "Newfoundland" which would have fixed prices under it, but COAKER and ARAUJO—a precious combination forsooth to which to hand over the absolute control of our exports to Portugal.

The agreement says: "No Newfoundland fish shall be introduced into Portugal except through the Company." (Sec. 2) and "the Company shall acquire all its Newfoundland fish requirements through the Newfoundland Fishery Department, at prices fixed by the Department," but does not bind the Company to require any particular quantity of Newfoundland fish, or to pay any price the Company does not approve. If the Company desired a quantity of one fish, and the Department fixed a price the Company thought too high, no sale of the fish could be made in Portugal. The Company, therefore, not the Department, would dominate or really fix the price.

The agreement contained a provision (Sec. 5) that—(a) should the quantity of Newfoundland fish consumed in Portugal not exceed a monthly average of 25,000 quintals, or (b) should the quantity of codfish from other origins received by the Company in Oporto exceed a monthly average of 3,000 quintals, the Fishery Department would be entitled to cancel the agreement. What is meant by "Consumed in Portugal?" Commercially, imported goods are frequently spoken of as going into consumption when customs duty thereon is paid, but strictly "consumption" means "eaten," and, therefore, how much was consumed could practically never be proven. What is meant by a "Monthly average?" Over how long a period would the average have to be calculated? Again, why limit the Company's average monthly importations into "Oporto," and leave it free to import into all other parts of Portugal? What is meant by "fish of other origins," when no particular origin of any fish is provided for?

The agreement was as full of holes as a sieve, and in its construction as well as in its principles was discreditable to the intelligence of a representative of this Colony.

The Fisheries Regulations contemplated Board control of fish sold abroad by the merchant owners thereof, licensed by the Governor-in-Council. They did not authorize the purchase or sale of fish by the Department of Marine and Fisheries, or the Codfish Exportation Board. There was, therefore, no power in the so-called "Fishery Department" to agree to prohibit exportation to Portugal by any licensed person except through the Company, or to make any such agreement as Mr. Coaker entered into. He assumed an authority he did not possess, and which no sane legislature would ever confer upon him.

Nakedly, what he assumed to do was nothing less, in reality, than this: that he, Coaker, here, and Araujo, in Oporto, should arrange the sale at prices agreed upon by them, of all the fish exported by this Colony to Portugal. Coaker could and would sell his own fish first, and he could and would refuse to permit a sale by those whom he disliked or objected to. Araujo, in Oporto, was to be the only primary seller of Newfoundland fish in Portugal, bought at prices arranged with Coaker, and sold at such prices to the Portuguese as limited competition of fish from other origins might permit, and Araujo agreed to. What a splendid opportunity for "graft" would thus be presented. The holder of fish here might be made to pay homage to Mr. Coaker for permission to sell through the Fishery Department, and the buyer in Portugal to Mr. Araujo for permission to buy, and the two could divide the proceeds. Mind you, I do not say these worthy gentlemen would "graft," but that they could. Those who know Mr. Coaker, and who read of Mr. Araujo, will decide for themselves whether it would be wise to place them in a position of such temptation.

For the fish sold to the Company, 90 per cent. was to be paid for by draft on the Company, and 10 per cent. was to be kept back for possible depreciation. If reclamations exceeded 10 per cent. the Department became responsible to pay. Claims for depreciation were to be "adjusted" by the Newfoundland Trade Commissioner for Portugal, a Mr. Smith, I believe, at the time the agreement was made. No matter how improper or reckless the adjustment was, the Department would have to pay it, and recover if it could from the shipper. The Commissioner could also "graft" to the limit, so long as Mr. Coaker maintained him in office, and the victimized shipper would have to pay, if possible, or if he were unable, the taxpayers of the Colony would pay. What profitable opportunities were thus offered by this agreement, to Coaker, Araujo and Smith. Coaker could, of course, change an unfavorable one for a favorable Commissioner whom he desired to do so.

When the Exporters met to consider this precious agreement, the simple question before them was this, essentially, shall we hand ourselves over bound hand and foot to Messrs. Coaker, Araujo and Smith? If they had answered except by disapproving the trap prepared for them, they would have been qualified candidates for the Lunatic Asylum. Coaker was to sell their fish. Araujo was to buy it. Smith was to adjust. They were to have what was left—less 5%. As for the dealers in fish in Portugal, other than Araujo, they were to be permitted to buy through Coaker and Araujo—if they paid Araujo 2 1/2% commission, thus giving Araujo 2 1/2% advantage in price over them. Besides, Araujo was to have 5% commission from the shippers of the fish. What a gold mine—7 1/2% on all sold by others, 5% on all sold by himself. And besides that, all the graft which could be grafted. Of course, every other dealer in Portugal would have been made an enemy to this Colony.

With your permission, I shall further discuss the provisions of this extraordinary bill.

department of Marine and Fisheries, or the Codfish Exportation Board. There was, therefore, no power in the so-called "Fishery Department" to agree to prohibit exportation to Portugal by any licensed person except through the Company, or to make any such agreement as Mr. Coaker entered into. He assumed an authority he did not possess, and which no sane legislature would ever confer upon him.

Nakedly, what he assumed to do was nothing less, in reality, than this: that he, Coaker, here, and Araujo, in Oporto, should arrange the sale at prices agreed upon by them, of all the fish exported by this Colony to Portugal. Coaker could and would sell his own fish first, and he could and would refuse to permit a sale by those whom he disliked or objected to. Araujo, in Oporto, was to be the only primary seller of Newfoundland fish in Portugal, bought at prices arranged with Coaker, and sold at such prices to the Portuguese as limited competition of fish from other origins might permit, and Araujo agreed to. What a splendid opportunity for "graft" would thus be presented. The holder of fish here might be made to pay homage to Mr. Coaker for permission to sell through the Fishery Department, and the buyer in Portugal to Mr. Araujo for permission to buy, and the two could divide the proceeds. Mind you, I do not say these worthy gentlemen would "graft," but that they could. Those who know Mr. Coaker, and who read of Mr. Araujo, will decide for themselves whether it would be wise to place them in a position of such temptation.

SWEET, PURE MILK—always on hand when you want it!

If you have never used Libby's Evaporated Milk, you will be amazed to find how good, how convenient and economical it is. Many women who first tried it in some emergency now use it always—and it gives such satisfactory results.

There's no waiting for the milkman—you can always keep several cans on the shelf and in summer there's no bothering with ice, and in winter the milk wagon can get stuck in a heavy drift of snow as often as it wants to!

And there's less waste—a can of Libby's Evaporated Milk will keep indefinitely before being opened—and after you have opened a can you can use just what you need; the rest, put in a cool place, will keep several days.

Libby's Milk comes from the finest dairying section of America and is processed in our own sanitary condensaries—it is not the "distributed" product of an unknown and nameless plant.

Order a tin from your grocer to-day.

Three Bankers Arrested

STORY OF A GREAT LOAN HOAX.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Lisbon, Sunday.—A well-known and wealthy Oporto banker, Pedro de Araujo, was arrested yesterday after a police enquiry on a charge of huge exchange speculations. The charge is in connection with a recent credit of 50,000,000 dollars ($125,000,000) which the Portuguese Government was to obtain from a group of American financiers. The credit, it is alleged, was a hoax and the group of financiers non-existent.

The banker's arrest follows a motion passed by the Portuguese Parliament authorizing criminal proceedings against all the persons involved, who, it is alleged, knowing that the proposition was a hoax, took advantage of the rise in the subsequent fall in the exchange to buy and sell gold at Oporto and Lisbon markets to the extent of more than $23,000,000. Two other bankers were arrested to-day. —Daily Mail, Sept. 20.

At the City Hall.

The regular weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held last evening. Mayor Morris presided, and Councillors Vincombe, Jackman, Peet and Hallett were present. After confirming the minutes of previous meetings, the following matters were given consideration.

A letter was read from the Collishaw Mills, Ltd., stating that they were prepared to immediately proceed with the erection of twenty houses, under the same conditions and inducements as are offered by many municipalities in both the United States and Canada. It was decided that the matter be taken up at a special meeting.

J. St. George, Manager West End Lumber Co. asked permission to install an electric motor for the purpose of driving machinery. His application was referred to the City Engineer for report.

Messrs. Martin and John Cole applied for extension of water and sewerage to Quill Vidi Road. The Council is unable, at present, to undertake the said extension; consideration was therefore, deferred to a later date.

An application was received from R. Brazil for position as Collector; application ordered filed.

Joseph Judge applied for water and sewerage, Golf Avenue; request cannot be acceded to at the present time.

Thomas Sweeney offered to supply spalls, none required at present.

R. J. Thompson called attention to condition of drains, Bondifody St.; the Road Inspector will be directed to give his attention to this matter.

H. J. Taylor will be given permission to lay concrete sidewalk, Barter's Hill. The Council will pay proportion of cost for this improvement.

Attention was called to the numbering of Garrison Hill; the Engineer is directed to attend to this matter. The following plans were passed, subject to the approval of the City Engineer: J. Robinson (extension), Cummins Street; A. Walker (dwelling), LeMarchant Road, and J. F. Newman (dwelling), Mt. Royal Avenue, must pay proportion of cost towards water and sewerage extension to those localities.

It was decided the St. John's Gas Company be informed that one month after the Council will not hold itself responsible for the upkeep of gas lamps in the city limits.

The matter of applications for lights was reconsidered, and it was decided that lights be installed at the following places: Warbury St., Macklin Place, Springdale St. and Golf Avenue.

It was decided the Solicitor be notified to take the necessary steps to have the outhouse, erected by J. Burmeister, Springdale St., without permission of the Council, immediately removed.

Commissioner Jackman gave notice that, at the next regular meeting he would move that the Government be petitioned (1) to introduce an amendment to the St. John's Municipal Act, 1921, empowering the City of St. John's to raise money by the issue of debentures, the money to be borrowed to be expended for civic improvements by the Council, acting in conjunction with and subject to the approval of a Commission of three to be appointed by the Governor-in-Council for that purpose; (2) to introduce an amendment to the St. John's Municipal Act, 1921, raising the remuneration paid to the members of the Council from four thousand to eight thousand dollars, of which the Mayor shall receive two thousand and the remaining six to be divided between the members of the Council in accordance with the present Act.

It was ordered that a cheque be forwarded the Minister of Finance, for the sum of $7,000, being the contribution towards the upkeep of the Fire Department for the year 1921.

The City Engineer's report for the week, dealing with the work done in the various departments under his control, was read.

The report of the City Health Officer showed four cases of diphtheria in the city.

Reports of other departments were read; the pay rolls and bills presented were ordered paid, after which the meeting adjourned.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

THE GREAT KIDNEY PILLS

PREPARED BY DR. J. C. DODD, 23 THE PRINCE

Evening Telegram

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor
C. T. JAMES, Editor

Friday, October 14, 1921.

AN EXPOSURE.

The attention of every reader of the Telegram in the Colony, whether fisherman, trader, dealer, laborer or artisan, is called to the letter of Mr. A. B. Morine, K.C., beginning on the fifth page. In it Mr. Morine discusses the vaunted agreement made between Hon. W. F. Coaker and Senhor P. M. de Fonseca Araujo, which was published in the Advocate of Wednesday, accompanied by an editorial flourish of trumpets, in order to make the precious document look as though its acceptance meant the absolute and ultimate salvation of Newfoundland, and its rejection the utter and everlasting ruin of the people. The endeavor to "pull the wool" over the eyes of the fishermen has been exposed by Mr. Morine, who shows up the pernicious effect such an agreement would have had. Its fallacy is also discussed, and arguments that the whole thing was a frame up between the contracting parties to secure control of the Portuguese market, are given with convincing force and incontrovertible logic. That this conspiracy happened to be nipped in the bud is the very best thing that could have occurred, for had it been completed Newfoundland would have been in the toils to a far greater extent than she is at present. We recommend the article of Mr. Morine to all thinking people and ask them to give careful thought to his statements.

The Cost of Living.

It is an unfortunate fact that whilst salaries have fallen to almost pre-war level, the cost of necessities has not been reduced to any appreciable extent. This is a most serious matter, for it is manifestly impossible to eke out an existence under such conditions if one is to live within one's income. It is therefore evident that things cannot go on as they are and that if we are to continue to live in moderate comfort, the prices of all goods must be reduced to meet the reductions in earnings. None know better than dealers themselves that in a great many cases the prices of necessities could be reduced and yet permit of a substantial profit being made. This is a well known fact, but although shopkeepers alter their prices to replacement values when the market rises, they seldom reduce them when replacement values are lower. And that is one of the causes of the present high price of nearly all commodities. But there is an even more important factor in keeping up the high cost of living, and that is the enormous burden of taxation under which we are at present living. Practically all our taxes are obtained by ad valorem duties on goods imported into the colony, and the sur-super-sales tax, whilst possibly a necessity, nevertheless bears heavily on rich and poor alike. Frequently duty on imported goods amounts to over one hundred and twenty per cent. above cost, and even more, and to attempt to live under such circumstances, is a difficult proposition. With the coming spring it is possible that our economic situation may brighten to the extent of permitting a reduction in taxation, and in the meantime, steps should be taken to see that no extortionate profits are made at the expense of the public.

Winding Up Estates.

In reply to a correspondent from a central point on the South West Coast signed "West Coast Enquirer," with regard to the winding up of an estate (or business) in liquidation, let it be understood that it does not make any difference whatever regarding the official status of the person or persons so appointed. All parties concerned may make application to the Supreme Court for the appointment of a liquidator, and are entitled to a nomination, but the Court has unlimited discretion from amongst rival nominations, consequently in the particular case to which our esteemed correspondent refers, the liquidator appointed being a Justice of the Peace, has absolute right under his commission of appointment as liquidator to do whatsoever he pleases, having always regard to his instructions, to wind up the estate, or business, of which he has legal control, in a manner best suited to returning value to all the creditors involved. That the said liquidator should happen to be an officer of the customs makes no difference whatever to his appointment, the Supreme Court reserving to itself the right to confirm or nullify any action taken with regard to the position of its nominee in the interests of all concerned.

Adrift in Motor Boat.

Mr. Mark Crane, a city fisherman, had a very trying experience yesterday when his motor boat ran out of gasoline on the local fishing grounds, and he was left helpless in Fresh-water Bay with an off-shore wind blowing. Not to be beaten, however, he rigged a small sail in an endeavor to reach land, but this was blown away and it was only after a desperate human struggle at the oars that he managed to propel the boat into calm water near Blackhead. He was picked up at 11.30 p.m. by the tug Hero which had been sent to look for him.

The Nfld. Quarterly.

The Autumn Number of the Nfld. Quarterly is well up to the standard of previous editions of that excellent periodical. It contains articles, poems and illustrations in profusion and is a credit to its publishers. The Quarterly would not be complete without articles from the facile pens of Mr. M. J. Ryan and A. A. Parsons, Esq., and those in the present Number are well worthy of their gifted authors. The article by A. J. Bayly, Esq., on "Agricultural Education" is timely and should prove of value. All the other contents of the journal are well worth a close perusal.

FOOTBALL—R. M. S. Digby vs. G. W. V. A., St. George's Field, Saturday, Oct. 15th, 4 p.m. sharp (subject to the arrival of the Digby). Gate 10c. Grand Stand 10c. extra.—Oct. 14.

No Word From Tow.

No further messages have been received from the S.S. Canadian Trooper, which is towing the disabled Norwegian steamer Otis to this port. On Tuesday night the ships were 500 miles east of here, but during the past two days the weather has been unfavorable for towing and no doubt the steamers are making poor progress.

Ping Pong Tournament.

The final in the series of Ping Pong Tournaments between the officers of the C.L.B. and the C.E.L. was won by the latter last night by a fairly wide margin of points. The various sets were closely contested but the efforts of the C.L.B. who greatly missed the aid of Major Raker, were unavailing against their opponents quick returns and steady play. Next Thursday, a team of old countrymen will come up to the C.L.B. Armory to play the home side. The players last night were:—C.L.B.—Col. Goodridge, Capt. Henry Lisets, H. C. Hayward, P. B. Rendell, F. Reid and A. B. Perlin. C.E.L.—Messrs. Farrdall, Godden, Edwards, Willis, Knight and Hooker.

NOTICE.—A Special Meeting of the Star of the Sea Association will be held in the Armory of the T. A. Hall on Sunday, at 2.30 p.m., for the purpose of nominating candidates for office for ensuing year. By order, W. F. GRAHAM, Secy. Oct. 14.

Important Conference.

R. C. MORGAN TEMPORARY ADVISOR.

R. C. Morgan, whose presence here is causing a considerable amount of interest and curiosity, is, so the Prime Minister informed the Telegram this morning, at present acting as advisor to the Government in railway matters. It is not yet known whether he will remain permanently. An important conference was held this morning between the Prime Minister, Mr. Morgan, Mr. T. A. Hall, Government Engineer, and Mr. F. C. Bertaux, Auditor General. The conference was a lengthy one but the results have not yet been made known. Rumor has been rife with Mr. Morgan's name since his return to the city, after his departure following his sensational resignation, and authoritative news of his final decision in connection with the propositions that must have been made to him, will be awaited with interest.

McMurdo's Store News.

FRIDAY, Oct. 14. McMurdo's Analgesic Balm will do well in cases of rheumatism or neuralgic pains, and in some forms of neuritis, relieving the pain, stimulating the circulation acting as an anodyne and counter-irritant. Analgesic Balm is suitable as an external application in all kinds of pain which is not too deep seated. Handy tubes 40c. Acme Complexion Soap is a good one to use in the autumn, when the weather is turning cold, and its regular use will help to put the skin in condition to stand the cold weather of later fall and winter. Price 30c. a cake; box of three cakes 80c.

Post Mortem Held.

A post mortem examination of the body of John Valentine was held at the morgue last night by Drs. Anderson and Carnell. The findings has not yet been made public. There is, however, a very strong opinion that deceased was not hit by the car, but merely collapsed from fright, as no marks were found on the body except slight scratches on each elbow supposed to be received from falling to the pavement. The report as published yesterday as to Mr. Valentine being extricated from underneath the car, is, we find, not correct.

Successful Card Party.

St. Andrew's Society held the first of their winter series of card tournaments last night, and over 150 people were present, all thoroughly enjoying themselves. An informal dance was held afterwards. Snapper was served during the evening by Mrs. Crawford. These tournaments will be held fortnightly during the fall and winter seasons.

Spoiling the Market.

A prominent fish exporter of the city has received a cable from his agents at Patras stating that the Nystrand's cargo of last year's fish, unsuitable for the market, is being sold at little more than the cost of freight. This is having a bad effect on the whole Greek market, and is practically ruining it. The message adds. Another shipper who is interested in the Greek and Italian markets, discussing this Government fish sale, that by dumping it on the market at any price has lessened the value of this year's catch by about $500,000. In other words, but for it, snapper would be worth $1 more per quintal than it is at present. How much the Government will lose directly by the sale is not known, but it is stated that had the fish been dried for the West India market, the loss would not have been so heavy.

A Dangerous Corner.

This morning two motor cars collided at the junction of Circular and Montserrat Roads, and but for the promptness of the drivers in putting on their brakes a nasty accident would have occurred. As it was, both cars were slightly damaged. Owing to the hill at this point and also a high picket fence, drivers of cars coming in opposite directions have no chance of avoiding one another. The Council, and particularly Mayor Morris, it is certain will give this place their attention when their notice has been drawn to it.

Digby vs. G. W. V. A.

Should the Digby arrive time tomorrow, the proposed game of football between the ship's team and the G.W.V.A. will be played at 3.30 p.m. immediately after the college game. Don't Pay $50 for a suit. I don't doubt but that $50 suits would be worn all you pay for them. Most merchants are giving keen values now since I started the big run in January. But—take it from me—won't want to pay $50 unless you see what I can show you a peach of an American on-the-spot suit, you'll Pay Me $32.50 and be glad. They'll know that at once. GRAND LODGE OFFICERS AT NORTH SYDNEY.

(Special to the Sydney Record.)
North Sydney, Oct. 4.—Grand Officers of the United Fishermen of Newfoundland, Right Worthy Grand Master Bro. J. Curnew, Deputy Grand Master Bro. C. T. James, Grand Chief Officer Bro. James Rendell, Grand Secretary Bro. A. E. Withycombe and J. L. Oke, P.M., Buckland Lodge, after Grace, arrived on the Kyle this morning and are proceeding to Sydney to organize a Lodge at White Bay. This will be the first lodge to be organized outside of Newfoundland. It has been thought best to establish lodges outside the original jurisdiction to help keep alive old associations and to secure for those who have left Newfoundland the advantages and pleasures of the Order which are enjoyed at home, and the outside lodge will have such an organization will be able to extend the right of fellowship to their fellow countrymen when they leave their native land.

The installation of officers will take place at 7 o'clock this evening at the R.W.G.M. Bro. J. Curnew will open Grand Lodge, and installation of officers will be completed in the new branch, which will be known as Maple Leaf Lodge, No. 77, and will open in the Red Deer. After installation there will be speeches from officers and others following in the first degree, degree, exology, and the "Maple Leaf".

Prof. Fred Bartlett and T. Peers met the Grand Officers here and will go to Sydney with them. It is hoped that a lodge may also be established in North Sydney as it is considered that there is an excellent opening here. The charter members of the Sydney organization are John Kingsbury, Joseph Milten, Theodore Peers, Jas. Warren, Louis Warren, Albert Kingsbury, Alfred Ryan, Abel Dean, Cecil Ryan, George Collins. The charter was signed on Sept. 24th.

The "United Fishermen" is a body distinct and apart from the Fishermen's Protective Union, which is to a considerable extent a political organization. It was organized in 1873 by the Fishermen's Club, and was really an outgrowth of the Fishermen's Club, formed some time earlier. It has at present fifty lodges in good standing all over Newfoundland and is a fraternal and benefit organization giving aid and monetary benefits. It has no political affiliations and the membership is not restricted to actual fishermen, as it has on its roll men from a variety of callings and professions. The total membership at present is 1000. The largest lodge is Bonaville, No. 9, with 352 members, followed by St. Andrew's, Pogo, with 220, and then with varying numbers from all over the province. It is in a flourishing condition and doing good work in Newfoundland, which, it is expected, will be duplicated in Cape Breton.

The Grand officers in conversation with a Record correspondent, expressed their pleasure and satisfaction with the publicity given and the hearty references made to the Order by the press of Cape Breton.

The Horseless Carriage.

(A weekly column devoted to the interests of the Motoring Public.)
 "They say Jim Mackenzie, he ain't got no style.
 He's style all the while; he's style all the while.
 They say Jim Mackenzie, he ain't got no style.
 He's style all the while, all the while."

The second annual dinner of the Motor Association last week, was the jolliest dinner we ever attended, and we fully believe that everyone present enjoyed the evening. Ninety per cent. of the success of the evening was due to Jim Mackenzie's musical programme, which put "pep" into the show right from the start. The Association is deeply appreciative of the splendid report each of the papers, especially the Telegram, gave of the affair.

There were, however, several details the newspaper accounts tacitly omitted and we are going to touch upon them now, in hopes that by drawing attention to them they may be improved upon next year.

First, the Secretary of the Association registers a "kick." He says some people cannot know the meaning of the letters "R.S.V.P." at the end of an invitation or else the mails must be going very much astray these days. These allegations of the gentleman who assisted on the Musical Programme (who like the good sports they are, accepted promptly and turned up), the Association issued individual invitations to twenty-four guests comprising the Road Commission, the Editors of the daily and weekly papers and some other prominent gentlemen. Out of these twenty-four invitations, replies were received from eight persons only, some accepting and some declining, but the balance treated the invitation card with silent contempt. It is considered only common courtesy to answer a dinner invitation, even if one does not intend attending, and not to reply entails considerable trouble and expense, as it is impossible to know how many to cater for. It is somewhat embarrassing to be obliged to ring up your guests on the day of the affair and ask them if they intend to honour you with their attendance or otherwise. It would appear that in this town politeness is becoming a fast dying virtue.

The Menu was punk. Three slices of assorted cold meat, together with a little winter salad, may comprise a very good lunch for a hot summer day, but it is decidedly not our idea of a banquet. As for the sweet course, the least said about it the better. A small "vase" of fruit jelly (about enough for two persons) every eight seats, may make a very pretty table decoration, but (again) our idea of dessert consists of individual helpings of the sweet individually served, and not this course left for the person, who happens to be sitting opposite the "vase," to be good enough to dole the contents out into eight equal portions if he can manage it. Then again, the cup of tea does not as a rule come during the meat course, but with the dessert, though, perhaps, in this instance, it was served with the meat because the Dining Hall was like a cold storage plant. In justice to the caterer, she feels as badly about the menu as we do, as she says it was not a good advertisement for the house. She claims, however, that she supplied what was ordered, and at the price at which she was asked to estimate, it was impossible to provide any better service. She claims that for seventy-five cents per head extra she could have provided a hot dinner nicely served. It looks as if the Dinner Committee will have to give more consideration to the matter of the Menu next year, though, when all is said and done, we don't believe the majority present noticed what they were eating, as the Mackenzie Vocal Troupe made them "pack all their troubles in their little kit bags and smile, smile, smile."

Byron, it was, who said "Germans and Soda Water the day after." Then, why in the name of all that is holy was a bottle of plain "Club Soda" served everyone half way through the dinner. Everybody did not have a bottle on the hip. Personally, we think it would be much better to serve a moderate amount of wine, etc., openly at the next dinner. Nobody wants to get "stopped" at a Motor Association dinner, but a moderate quantity of "liquid nourishment" always makes a dinner go, and it is much more pleasant to have it served openly than obliging those who wanted a drink, and had the foresight to bring it with them, to have to lean down "to tie up their boot-laces" every now and again. Everyone, who is kidding himself that this is a "dry" town, is either a hypocrite or an imbecile, and as there are, presumably, neither hypocrites nor imbeciles in the Newfoundland Motor Association, surely it is not necessary to act like children playing the game of "make believe" when it comes to the proposition of getting the necessary liquids for a public dinner. The only difference now between 1916 and 1921, is that in 1916 the liquor business of the town was divided among a number of families who made their living thereby, and in 1921 the business is a Government monopoly, and a grafting monopoly at that. It is only necessary to look at the prices of Spirits "for Export in Bond" in any English price list to know that the Government is making a net profit of nearly Three dollars (2.92 to be exact) on every bottle of "booze" sold for $4 at the Controller's Department. And yet their battle cry was "The Grafters must go!"

The fourth "kick" comes from the Reporters, who are "sore as a boll" over the matter of the reply to the "Press" Toast. Now, let me say, at first, that Mr. O'Neill deserves nothing but credit, as he obliged by responding to this toast on practically no notice and did the very best he knew how. The paper boys, however, claim that one of the daily paper men should have been asked to respond. It is the usual custom to ask the Editor of the senior paper to respond to the "Press" Toast. It was known, however, that the Editor of the Telegram would not be present at the dinner, and thought improbable that the Editor of the News would attend, and therefore Dr. Mossell of the Star was asked to do the necessary. Dr. Mossell, however, did not show up at the dinner, and it was then understood that Mr. Galway, as the senior (in years) newspaper man present, would be asked, and it was further understood that this would be agreeable to the press representatives. However, Mr. O'Neill was asked to respond and obliged. In the same way, that to Mr. White (who was in charge of the Toast List) belongs the credit for the general excellence of the Toast List, so must Mr. White shoulder the criticism in this matter from the newspaper representatives. We would, however, say that the Executive deeply regret that anything should have occurred to displease the representatives of the press, as the Association appreciates the many favors it is continually receiving from the press as a whole.

And with these remarks, the second annual dinner passes into oblivion. Congratulations to Messrs. O'Neill

Rochester Woman On Her Recovery Tells Experience

Mrs. Lehman Had Suffered Ten Years From Indigestion—In Splendid Health Now.

"I suffered for ten years from nervous indigestion. I had no appetite and always felt miserable. When in such a serious condition I thought my time for this world was getting short. My food didn't seem to nourish me at all and I only weighed 85 pounds."
 "After taking Tanlac, I now weigh 108 and am gaining every day. Oh! there is such a wonderful change now. Tanlac relieved my troubles so quickly it surprised me. My appetite is splendid. I have plenty of strength and feel better than I have in years. I wouldn't take one thousand dollars for what Tanlac did for me."
 The above statement was made by Mrs. Clara Lehman, Bristol Hope, Rochester, N.Y.
 Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

and Coody on the excellent expedient of stationing a cop outside their theatre to keep an eye on the motor cars of their patrons. Now, Mr. Kelly, as a member of the Motor Association, that is an excellent example for you to follow, both as regards the Nickel and the Casino, during the forthcoming theatrical engagement, and it will certainly merit the utmost approval of your motorist patrons.

A good member of the Motor Association is using quite a lot of newspaper space, proclaiming the fact that he will clothe you from the hide outward for the modest sum of sixty bucks. The only thing we want to know is what does one do when the one suit of underclothes included in the outfit is at the wash or should it be sewn on for the winter? And we regret to see, George, that a pair of silk pyjamas is not included with the outfit!

The "Naval gentleman" we referred to a couple of columns ago says that he is no gentleman. At least, he says, an officer in His Majesty's Navy should be referred to as "an officer" or "a naval man," but it is an understood thing that "an officer is a gentleman." Golly, what with our "immoral stories" being criticized, and now our use of the English language, we are rather relieved that we are going to have a "let up" from this column for a few months!

Harold Mitchell says that the next time he asks Hughie Anderson to give him a tow, he is going to rig up a telephone between the two cars. They started out in good style, but down at the foot of Rennie's Mill Road the tow line parted company and Hughie continued on to Silverlock's garage, before he discovered the loss of the car behind!

If you want a real good yarn ask the man on the Executive of the Motor Association who got the Fox taxes reduced, for his latest. No, Dave, we couldn't possibly even give you a hint of it in this column.

Mr. Thos. Kennedy asks us to state that Car Number 2345, which in the List of Registered Cars lately published and circulated by the Motor Association, is put down as being owned by the Furness Withy Company, is done so incorrectly. Car No. 2345 is registered in the name of Mr. Thos. Kennedy. Will the holders of the list please note this correction?

We had intended to wind up this column for the season this week, but we are just in receipt of a communication full of practical and helpful suggestions to motorists and others, from a motorist who desires his name withheld. The column will, therefore, be devoted to the publishing of this article next Friday, and it is well worthy of pursuit by every motorist. As this is the last time for the season that "Mr. Dunlop" will personally hold forth, he takes the opportunity of expressing his thanks to the Evening Telegram for the space it has placed at his disposal throughout the season, his thanks to the Editor for not obliterating several "good" paragraphs with his blue pencil, his appreciation of the views of some members of the Executive of the Motor Association who gave him "beans" over some of the items that have appeared, his thanks to the correspondent referred to above, and also to Mr. White for several interesting clippings. (No, Dave, he didn't supply those ones!), his deep appreciation to the motorists (and others) who have read the column and said kind things, and also of the motorist who told the President of the Motor Association that this column was "no damn good!" (Guess we trod on his corns, but perhaps he's right.) And, now, with a final prayer to the Beard of Works that they won't forget Manuel's Bridge, we declare the motoring season of 1921 officially at an end, though we won't insist on your putting away your car away if you're putting away your car for a run!

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHY WE GO A-PICNICING.

On a certain lovely Autumn day I played hookey from my work and went a-picnicking. We ate, our feet under the trees on the shores of a lovely little pond, and refreshed our minds with the charming vista while we refreshed our bodies with food.

Comments on the views were as they are comments on the "good reason why you want to come here!"

"Just because this isn't home," said his interlocutor.

"Exactly," said the Authorman with the air of having triumphed by bringing out the folly of our love for picnicking.

But did he triumph? I don't think so. I think the reason was an absolutely natural and an absolutely legitimate one.

One of the charms of There will always be that it is not Here.

Even if One Lived in the Loveliest Spot of All.

One might live in the very loveliest spot in all the world and still find more pleasure sometimes in going to less lovely spots.

The wish to see Not Here is as old as the first savage who broke a path through the jungle into the unknown to find "something lost behind the bushes," and as new as to-day's four year old who leaves his beautiful home garden to search out the unknown in the dusty streets of the tenement district around the corner.

Perhaps it is because I have such a large share of the love of the Not Here that I defend it so passionately. I never see a train leaving the station for some far distant point without wishing I might step on and go too.

Maybe Some Day We Shall Voyage To Our Heart's Content.

I even love to read the names of distant roads on the freight cars when I pass through a freight yard, because they give me a sense of distance and adventure. And as for ships, I can hardly bear to watch the sailing of a vessel bound for distant ports, because I feel as if it tore the heart out of my side and carried it away.

I suppose there are some to whom this is a confession of folly. But I feel sure there are others who will understand. Courage comrades, you who are forever curious about the There and forever bound by bonds of love or duty or custom to the Here—perhaps in our next incarnation we shall fulfill that longing.

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT—The new English Goods just in at BOWRING'S are the BEST VALUE we have seen since 1914. Their WOOL PLAID SKIRTINGS and COSTUME TWEEDS are not only great value but very choice in shades and designs.

THE AUTO TRIP.

When starting on an auto trip, be sure your tires are good, and see that all your spark plugs zip, with pep, beneath the hood. Have ample small change in your pouch, a basketful of lunch; and oh, be doubly sure no grouch is going with the bunch. Be sure the crankcase has its oil, the best that you can buy; it's wrong to make a motor toil with all its bearings dry; your extra tire should be supplied with eighty pounds of air, and if a sorehead wants a ride, say, "No—the walking's fair." You may be fixed for every chance that motoring can bring; be fixed to ride in circumstance, as happy as a king; but if a grouch is in the crowd, your glee will fade away, your weary head will soon be bowed in trouble and dismay. For if a puncture stops your bus, as punctures sometimes do, the grouch will make a mighty fuss, and many rags he'll chew. And if perchance you lose your way, when sight is coming on, the grouch will wring his hands and bray, and keep it up till dawn. And if the rain begins to fall from black clouds overhead, the spineless grouch will whine and bawl until you wish him dead. You and your manly friends might smile when divers things go wrong, enjoying every outdoor mile, if Grouch were not along; you take him at a frightful cost when on a trip you go, for he is like the bitter frost that blights all things that grow.

CERTAINTIES.
There is so much that I am sure of, And certain that I now possess, That all the doubt men talk about Cannot disturb my happiness; I know that all the days go by The morning sun shall light my way, And underneath a lovely sky My children shall in safety play.

When men with sad and gloomy faces Picture the miseries of life, And wonder why, since they must die, They came into this vale of strife, I count the splendors that are mine— The beauty of my youngster's smile, The happy hours with friendship fine, And say the care is all worth while.

"Is it of use," the cynic mutters "To live a few brief years, and then Pass out from care, to none knows where, Or shall he ever live again?" With love and laughter all about, And beauty of the field and wood, In spite of every dread and doubt, And every pain to live is good.

Fashions and Fads.

Filmy scarfs of black net are worn with sleeveless evening gowns. Dance frocks show full, bouffant skirts, transparent about the ankles. A dress of taupe crepe de chine is trimmed with strips of taupe velours.

Velours and felt hats are trimmed with feathers, flowers, cire and fur. "Point de Venise" is a lace being revived for afternoon frocks of heavy materials.

Pyjamas of coral voile are embroidered in silver and girdled in black satin.

Velvet and duvetyns and crepes in frost and snow weaves are Autumn favourites.

The short hatpin, double-headed and brilliant with jewels, appears on the newest hats.

A wrap of talless ermine has lattice straps of the ermine over sealskin at the hem.

For street frocks, black, Bordeaux red and maroon brown are the fashionable colors.

Autumn frocks show the French touch of red in flowers, jewels or narrow bands of red hannel. A bouffant dance frock of pale rose tulle, is corded and trimmed with black velvet ribbons.

Arrangements are being made by the owners of the "Heart's Delight" (Trinity Bay) cement properties to start work in the spring of 1922. The formation of a company is being carried out and a successful conclusion is being reached. HALIFAX, Oct. 13.
Arrived here to-day, Jacobs accompanying us. Bell had a three mile workout over course this afternoon. He is absolutely in the pink and loses no sleep. We feel very confident that Vera Nova emerge victorious from the cluster of 157 competitors. Am taking every precaution. The road is in good shape and officials feel that new record will be established. Watch our speed. Cherish and keep cool.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN ALSO ENDORES ATHLETIC MOVEMENT.
When the representative of the National Sports Committee called on Sir Michael Cashin this morning he was received most graciously, and was assured by Sir Michael that the new athletic movement had his hearty endorsement and support. There are still a few left, which can be had from members of the Committee or at any of the stores along Water Street. The prize is $500.00, with two consolation on either side of $250.00 each.

JACK BELL.

Who He Is and What He Is.
(By Peesee.)

When Lieutenant-Governor Grant of Nova Scotia, cracks his pistol to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock in front of the Y.M.C.A. on Barrington Street in Halifax, 120 runners will start off on the Halifax Herald Modified Marathon, which has now become the Eastern classic in road events. Never was there a larger or more brilliant card of starters, and among them will be the veteran Alfie Rodgers, who has won the event for the past two years; McAulay, the noted Windsor long-distance man who holds the Nova Scotia record for 10 miles; and our own Newfoundland champion, John Bell. They are the three favourites, and according to the Halifax papers one of them must be regarded as the logical winner. The betting gives them long odds over the other competitors, though it must be remembered that in 1914, when McAulay established the record for this distance he was unknown and was not even considered.

Twelve years ago when long distance running became the craze of the athletic world—when such men as Dorando, Shrub, and Tommy Hayes hung up new laurel wreaths for their respective countries—the whole North American continent became interested, and road events from the 5 mile up to the full distance 24 mile marathon became the order of the day. It was then that the happy thought was conceived in the brain of the proprietor of the Halifax Herald, the late Senator William Dennis, to donate a massive silver trophy for a 10 mile road race to be run annually at Halifax; the conditions being that it must be won for three years (not necessarily in succession) before becoming the absolute property of any one contestant. In addition there are 25 gold and silver medals presented each year.

It is difficult indeed to compute the direct moral and physical result of Senator Dennis's action. It has meant each year that from seventy to one hundred men have been doing their best for three years in preparation for the event, and they furnish to the growing generation each season a glowing example of pure, wholesome living and physical development. Fred Cameron, who won it one year, afterwards became a successful professional, as did Hans Holmer. In 1919 and 1920 we see a comparatively old man, ("Old" as we regard it in the field of athletics) Alf Rogers, at thirty-seven years of age, carry it off twice in succession, and now making a bold attempt this year for the absolute possession of the coveted trophy.

Last year witnessed Newfoundland's first entry into the fray when Mr. Jack Tobin (the well known hockeyist and oarsman) with two or three friends started a subscription list for the purpose of sending our acknowledged champion—John Bell—to Halifax to compete. The public were enthusiastic, and a week later saw Bell and his manager, Mr. J. I. Wainwright, start off. Unfortunately, Bell contracted a severe stomach cold en route, and despite the best medical attention that Halifax could give, was in no fit condition to enter the gruelling event. However, nothing would deter him from starting, but he had the veteran Alfie Rodgers, who has won the event for the past two years; McAulay, the noted Windsor long-distance man who holds the Nova Scotia record for 10 miles; and our own Newfoundland champion, John Bell. They are the three favourites, and according to the Halifax papers one of them must be regarded as the logical winner. The betting gives them long odds over the other competitors, though it must be remembered that in 1914, when McAulay established the record for this distance he was unknown and was not even considered.

The Latest Tribute to Newfoundland Heroism.

Our Countrymen Saved Canada.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

(Concluded.)
Here was the situation. A garrison of 100 soldiers, with a still unorganized militia, the whole country in the hands of the enemy, the Governor in flight, and Quebec, the only place still under the British flag. Talk of surrender was perditionally cropping up, when on Saturday, November 4th, Heon's schooner hove in sight off Quebec. She anchored and from her landed forty sturdy Newfoundland recruits, who briskly marched up to the barracks and signed the muster-roll of the Royal Emigrants. Next day Captain Littleworth's "General Thomas" came up forcing the place under every foot of canvas—Ninety volunteers, including fifty-eight recruits and thirty-two artificers, disembarked and ascended Mountain Hill Street.

One hundred and thirty recruits in Canada's most terrible hour of distress—such was the splendid help extended to us by Newfoundland.

Accustomed as we now are to enormous effectives, we must, to appreciate its value, place this event in its contemporaneous setting and remember how small were the troops engaged in the conflict. True appreciation must always be in relation to the circumstances involved. Newfoundland's contingent doubled the Regular garrison and its importance looms greater when one remembers that at a critical time it arrived, and also that it came from a colony of 5,000 souls which had to provide for its own defence.

Numerically and morally was the secure precious. It was also timely, for the next day (November 5th) Arnold's first men appeared at Point Levi, across the river, opposite Quebec. Without the added strength of these 130 fighters (they all were so to a man) the town might have capitulated—for an active movement was on foot advocating friendship with the Americans. On the 12th, at a meeting of British citizens, "somebody" went so far as to recommend surrendering to the enemy. Fortunately at that moment Lieut-Col. McLean burst into the room of the Royal Emigrants, having just arrived from below with a small detachment of soldiers. He broke up the meeting, declaring that he and his soldiers would fight to the last ditch and the last man. Next day Arnold crossed the St. Lawrence during the night, and on November 14th lined his detachment, about 500 men, before the walls and fired three volleys at the city and then retired to Point-aux-Trembles, eighteen miles up the river, unwilling to attack before Montgomery's army came up.

With feverish activity measures were taken to reinforce Quebec. Walls were strengthened, embrasures pierced, platforms erected, guns mounted. Barriers were put up between the Upper and Lower Town, and two posts established at Pres-de-Ville and Sault au Mouton, the two entrances to the Lower Town. On the 16th, a Council of War was held by Lieut-Governor Gramahne, and the facts of the situation examined. With both militia, English and French, and the crews of the ships, the garrison had been raised to 1,126 men. There were 5,000 inhabitants within the walls. Provisions, consisting of flour, pork, rice, biscuits, peas and butter could last only a few months. Unanimously the decision of the Council was "to defend the town to the last extremity."

An embargo was laid on all shipping and the services of all seamen requisitioned. More men were drafted into the militia, and soon the garrison totalled 1,248 men.

But things were happening. On the 13th, three days before the Council, Montreal fell into Montgomery's hands, and on the 19th, Carleton's little fleet surrendered at Sorel to the American Colonel, Easton. But Carleton had left it, escaping in a ship's boat. Thanks to the daring of two French-Canadians, Lanardiere, his A.D.C. and Captain Laforce, the party eluded the enemy's sentries and posts by rowing at night with muffled oars and at times with their hands. They reached Quebec on October 19th amidst the cheers of the citizens and "the unspeakable joy of the garrison."

Carleton pushed vigorously the fortifying of the city and its provisioning. He ordered out of town all the suspicious pro-rebels and those who were unwilling to enlist in the militia. All 61 men were drafted and at the end of the month the garrison had swelled to 1,800 men.

Furious at Carleton's escape, Montgomery rushed to Quebec with his army. In the first week of December, having joined Arnold, he invested the last British town in Canada. His plan was to hammer it with his artillery and after thoroughly battering it and distressing the garrison to storm and take the city with a victorious assault. December was spent in intermittent duels between the opposing artillery. Better supplied and better manned, the British guns easily kept the enemy at bay, while the small American shells proved very ineffective. Meanwhile Montgomery was impatient for an assault, but could not inspire his army with any enthusiasm for the idea. He finally promised his soldiers the plunder of the city and fixed the attack for the 20th night.

On December 20th, the night was very dark. It was snowing with a strong northeast wind. The order went out for the attack. About four o'clock in the morning Capt. Malcolm Fraser, of the Royal Emigrants, was visiting the posts when he noticed several fires rising in the darkness and the sentries told him of rows of lanterns set up on poles at regular intervals.

A combined assault against both ends of the lower town had been planned, the two detachments then to meet for the final rush against the upper town, while a feint would be made on the other side of the city. At once Capt. Fraser gave the alarm. The guards turned out lining the walls, the drums beat, the bells rang, and in a few minutes with soldiers rushing out of barracks and militia men running from every street, the whole garrison under arms was on parade groups with Carleton and McLean at their heads.

American guns roared on the Plains, and screeching shells began falling into the city. Shelly firing was heard at Cape Diamond Bastion and a fusillade battered the walls between St. John's and St. Lewis gates. This was the feint attack.

Meanwhile the force assigned to the taking of Sault-au-Mouton in the lower town was on the march, 700 strong, all picked men under Arnold. To reach their objective they had to pass along the ramparts at Palaces Gate, where they were subjected to a galling rifle fire. Some fell, others were wounded, and Arnold himself stumbled in the snow, a ball through his leg. Capt. Morgan assumed command, and rushing his men stormed and took a battery and a little breastwork which a few French Canadians stubbornly defended.

With paper slips marked "Death or Liberty" fixed to their caps, the Americans attacked and carried the first barrier—left undefended by the officer in charge. They at once dashed up the street to the second and last barrier. Here a party of peppered them with shots and kept them at bay. The assailants then tried to scale the position and put up the ladders they had brought with them. But some were pulled over by the defenders and others pushed down. Under the rifle fire from the barrier the Americans retreated to the first houses, in which they lodged themselves. Firing through the upper windows, they encircled the position and street.

Then arrived a detachment of Royal Emigrants under Capt. Nairn, soon followed by Major Caldwell with a dash the Emigrants and the militia rushed to the nearest house, entering it through the windows. It was a short struggle. British Bayonets flashed in the air and the house was theirs with several prisoners. But firing continued between the Emigrants and the other Americans sheltered in and behind other houses.

Finding that he had no other attack to deal with, Carleton quickly grasped the situation and sent another detachment of Royal Emigrants under Capt. Laws by Palaces Gate to take the enemy in the rear. The Emigrants were eager for the fray and were soon right on top of the enemy. They opened a brisk fire, forcing the enemy from house to house, who soon found themselves hemmed between the on-coming Emigrants and the composite force at the barrier. Resistance became useless and Morgan and the whole American force surrendered to Nairn and his Emigrants.

About the same time Montgomery and his detachment of fifty men, who had a long distance to cover, were plodding their way through heavy snow towards Pres-de-Ville, at the other extremity of the lower town marked for the second attack. They were now following a narrow road cut on the face of the cliff, at the end of which stood a small block-house with four small cannon and a guard of fifty men. Representing the composite make-up of the garrison, it comprised thirty French-Canadians under Capt. Chabot and Lieut. Picard, fifteen seamen under Capt. Barnsare and four artillery men under Sergt. McQuarters. Roused by the gun-firing they were on the look-out for the long-expected assault. Presently in the dark snowy night they spied in the tense silence the enemy approaching. At their head was Montgomery, sword in hand. Everyone took his battle-stance and the seamen stood to the guns. Barnsare gave the word to fire.

And the guns and the forty-two muskets loosed their deadly missiles. The terrific noise subsided and the cries and groans were heard. Montgomery lay dead, with two officers and a number of men around him in the snow. The rest of the enemy retreated and disappeared. The British casualties were only six killed and thirteen wounded, while the Americans had thirty killed, forty-two wounded, with 389 prisoners, losing about one-third of the besieging force.

It was a grave crisis passed, a great triumph, and Canada was that day saved for the Empire. The Royal Emigrants were in the thickest of the fight, and almost half of them were Newfoundlanders. So that the 31st of December, 1775, should be written down in glory in the history of the island.

For the rest of the winter the siege dragged on with no event of any importance, except that the Americans got a new commander, General Thomas, and some reinforcements bringing their army to about 3,400 men.

About six o'clock in the morning of March 5th, a ship appeared in sight off Quebec, and soon one could see at her mast the British Standard. At once the guns boomed and the whole town ran to the ramparts "to feast their eyes with the sight of a ship of war displaying the Union flag." It was history repeating itself, as when the Isis appeared in April, 1760, to relieve General Murray besieged by the French. For the second time the Navy saved the day!

The welcomed ship was the Surprise with troops on board. In her wake, also arrived the Isis and the Martin. Two hundred men were landed by ten o'clock. At once Governor Carleton ordered a sortie. At noon, in fighting equipment, 800 men marched out of the town to the historic Plains of Abraham. Led by Carleton the first detachment filed out of St. Louis Gate, while Col. McLean led the other one at St. John Gate. Flying their standard, blue with a red border the Royal Emigrants took the place of honor and danger, forming the advance guard under Capt. Nairn.

Deploying they advanced towards the enemy. A few shots were exchanged, but as soon as the field-pieces began to play the whole American Army broke its ranks, and scampered away to a man in such a panic that they left their guns loaded, with matches lighted and forgot their books and private letters. It was more than a retreat. It was a rout. Quebec was delivered.

Such was the siege of Quebec in which the Newfoundlanders took so prominent a part. Of the regiment of which they formed nearly one-half, Carleton could write:

"They have gone through service all the winter with a steadiness and a resolution which could hardly have been expected from raw, undisciplined troops, and for which they cannot be too much commended."

And with a kind paternal pride Col. McLean could add:

"No troops could have behaved better than my young men."

Canada has never forgotten Newfoundland's generous help during her hour of need. Canadian histories mention it and it is fully appreciated. And when in June, 1846, an awful conflagration swept over St. John's, destroying half the city, Canada was the first to send provisions and money for the sufferers. Between the two sister-colonies, who have so much in common, it was one more link in the chain of imperial friendship and relations, the first link of which had been forged in the fire of battle fanned by patriotism.

Rings of Death.

The employment of rings for criminal purposes was common in olden days.

Hannibal, we are told, from a fear of being delivered up to the Romans, swallowed poison, which, to be prepared for the worst, he carried with him in the hollow of a ring.

In those days hollow rings were put together with a degree of skill far beyond that of modern jewellers. Sometimes the poison was concealed beneath the stone, which opened with a spring. It required but a small space for the violent poisons which were concocted by Italian chemists in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

The signet ring of Caesar Borgia was exhibited some years ago. It is of gold, slightly enamelled, and has a motto around the inside. A box is dropped into the front, having on it "Borgia" in letters reversed. At the back is a slide, within which, it is related, he carried the poison he was in the habit of dropping into the wine of his unsuspecting guests.
