What An Extended Bloor Street Means to Toronto It Will Galvanize Life Into Entire North End of City

The World again directs the attention of the citizens of Toronto at large to the question of the congested condition of its street traffic in the centre of the town. The street railway company is seeking the right to build more loop lines in the centre of the city on streets at present unoccupied by their rails. They say they cannot handle the business as now

The World's plan for reducing this congested condition at the centre of the city is to distribute the pressure and we have several times pointed out how this may be done. We have not enough of thru cross town streets in Toronto and we have not enough of cross town street car lines. The greatest immediate relief, a plan that would distribute traffic and even up values, is to use Bloor-street in the same way that Queen-street is now used as a great thru cross town line from Scarboro Township in the east to the Humber in the west. Queen-street is an old concession line and so is Bloor-street, a mile and a quarter apart; but Bloor-street has the advantage of running much further both east and west than street, of being more central and has the advantage, if properly laid out of intercepting a lot of traffic that is at the present time unnecessarily forced down to Queen-street, namely, all the traffic that or sinates northeast of the city and northwest. Bloor-street ought to be the highway between Dundas-street, Toronto Junction, at the west, and the York and Scarboro town line, East Toronto and the Kingston-road to the east, touching as it will all the Grand Trunk trains coming from or going to the east at East Toronto Station and all the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific trains to the west in West Toronto (with the single exception of the Hami branch) at Bloor-street West. All the express and local passenger trains ould stop under the subways or the viaduct or at East Toronto (Little York) or at Toronto Junction, allowing passengers to go or come by street car to any point on Bloor-street (and connecting lines) in a few minutes. The only break in this great natural and central east and west thorofar is the piece of road on Bloor-street from Dundas-street to where the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific lines cross Bloor-street in the west. It is still a sandy road and there are three or four dangerous level railway crossings. What ought to be done is to build a first-class subway under these tracks and to pave the road from its present paved end to Dui:das-street and to lay a street car track on that portion connecting with Dundas-street lines and the present Bloor-street terminal. The other break in this great east and west line is the Don ravine, which ought to have a high level viaduct from Bloor-street at the corner of Sherbourne-street right across to Castle Frank and then across the Don Val ley to the end of Danforth-avenue, which is the eastern name of the Bloorstreet concession line When this bridge is built it will be very easy to run a street car track right into East Toronto Town and on to the King

The advantages of these improvements are many:
In the first place it would be the longest and only absolutely straight line across the centre of the town, seven or eight miles long.
It would let people going from and coming into Toronto get on or off the trains at Bloor-street West near Dundas-street or at East Toronto in East Toronto Town or under the viaduct over the Don and get to their homes or from their homes in the northern parts of the city and save half an hour's time. It would give an impetus to the whole northern portion of the to

It would help all the city over the Don. It would make the corner of Youge and Bloor a great centre; it would make the corner of Bathurst and Bloor and Spadina and Bloor still more important centres than they are to-day, and it would make important centres of the corner of Sherbeurne and Bloor and Broadview and Bloor; it would give the people of East Toronto and West Toronto access to Yonge-street from Queen up and practically improve the business possibilities of Yonge-street north and south of Bloor-street for a mile.

It would lead to factories being built on the line of the Canadian Pacific north of Bloor-street and would probably lead to the Canadian Pacific, making a local suburban service along its northern city line, delivering and receiving passengers and express goods at the crossing at Cottingham-street. If these factories were built along the C. P. R. their factory population would have easy access to them by this Bloor-street cross town street car line. This new Bloor-street would be the main or central street of Toronto in a short time. It would double the value of all the property immediate to it in a year and give the city increased revenue sufficient to pay five times over for the subway, the viaduct and the

Dur contention is that no other portion of the city would be damaged by moving this pressure from the older and southern portion of the city, and that all would be benefited and that the abnormal values put upon a few blocks in the centre of the city would be distributed in many direc-

We do not know of any city improvement that would do so m Toronto at so small a cost and add to the value of so much real estate as those two comparatively small propositions. They might cost half a million dollars, but we do not think so large a sum would be required. The increase in assessment that would follow would pay for the improvements over and over again, and the public would be immensely convenienced. What it wants is some enterprising alderman to take up the question and have a report made on it.

Fourteen police boxes were burned, 37 policemen in pured and two civilians severely hurt. Many arrests were made.

The police say that the meeting was the private speculation of a professional agitator, who charged an admission fee. The promise that there would be popular speakers was unauthorized, according to the police, and the disappointed audience denounced the swindle and demanded the return of their money. The trouble finally developed luto rowdyism outside the theatre. If the Canadian Power Company, which has charter rights to develop 100,000 horse power, instals electrical machinery capable of generating 50,000 horse power, the company must deliver to Canadian consumers at least 25,000 horse power if there is such a demand. Nothing Like the Wheat Fields and New Mines Found Are the Best Ever.

It is impossible to form any conception of the west without having seen it, he observed in discussing the wheat yield. The most one learns in the press is the fact that barely five per cent, of the arable land is under cultivation, and this comparatively small area is proregarded as an exclusively ranching country, produces two million bushels. The best answer to Prof. Mayor is the testimony of torty-five heads of agri-cultural colleges from the States who toured the Northwest, that the soil of this yast domain is the richest in America and capable of supporting millions of people. It was a fact, said Mr. Bristol, that the immigrants from the United States are becoming good Canadian citizens, but, unfortunately, one knocker such as Prof. Mayor in England could do more injury than many one knocker such as Prof. Mayor in England could do more injury than many statements in praise of the country. Mr. Bristol remarked facetiously that the members of the Dominion parliament should be compelled to pend their extra $1000 indemnity in going to the coast and getting some idea of what the resources of the country are. FALL COATS

There are some exclusive styles this year in ladies' fall coats. Principally they are made in superior quality of whipcord cloth, of light fawn colors. The prevailing designs come in very broad shoulders and small tight fitting waists. The back is a coachman's effect, with two rows of cloth-covered buttons on back of skirt. This is one of back of skirt. This is one of the smartest effects in ladies' coats produced recently.

Something About the Latest in Styles and the Coming Season's Popular Conceptions.

ed the fall opening at Murray's yester-day afternoon. It was a display well calculated to delight as well as to show fully the season's tendencies and new The showing in the millinery depart ment, naturally the most popular, argues a season of smaller hats, at least in toques. The profuse use of feathers this year by all the big New York houses will, of course, make the big hat popular, for only a large hat will carry the large amount of feathers which is decreed by the elect of the fashion centures. Another of the year's most notable tendencies is the one color hat. In all the popular shades, the clarets, the wires, the amethysts, the blues, indiabove all the greys, hats are being made carrying one tone thruout. For example, Murray's are showing a magnificent chinchilla set of fur toque, stole and muff, trimmed with shirred chiffon of a delicate light grey. It is an exquisite creation and the delicate shading of the greys from dark almost to a cream, produces an effect that cannot be described. The same rule of one color hats running the whole gamut of the shades, is to be seen in all the other colors.

Cleveland, Sept. 13.—Capt, Thomas Post of the fishing tug Bertha M. Cockrell, owned by A. Booth & Co., has arrived, and made an official report regarding the confiscation of the boat by the Canadian cruiser Vigilant yesterday on the charge of poaching. The tug carried a crew of six men, and is valued at about $7000. She had on board 5000 pounds of herring and 100 nets. The members of the crew were released, and the tug turned over to the Canadian customs authorities.

The tug attempted to escape and led the cruiser a lively chase for half an hour. Finally, however, the Vigilant fired two shots over the fleeting tug. and Capt, Fost decided to surrender.

A Keen Appetite in toques. The profuse use of feathers other colors.

Turbans Are Favorites.

Turbans Are Favorites.

Turbans will run a close second to the toques in popularity and the picture hats will also figure. These are chiefly of the ceurt style, the Marie Louiss, the Louis XV., the Napoleon and the continental. The correct colors are alice blue, moss and serpent green, silver and gunmetal grey, burnt wood, from brown to coffee, and black and white, too solid a combination ever to pass.

The outing hats have not been overlooked, and Murray's show a large assortment of sailors and beavers, in all shades. They are trimmed with feathers or with flowers.

The Johnnie Copes hat is a new one The Johnnie Jones hat is a new one, direct from New York, and the Kate Barry, named after the diminutive comedienne, promises to make a hit.

About Mantles.

The mantle department proved immensely popular yesterday. Coats this year will be three-quarter and full length, both full and close-fitting. The colors will be plain and the lookout is for a big run on plum, green, dark bluand rich browns. The carriage and opera wraps are particularly beautiful and the empire effect is prevalent. Of course, the yoke is not always present, but the flare of the empire is seen in all the most stylish wraps. A feature all the most stylish wraps. A feature this year is the accordeon pleated silk linings. Suits come in all the rich dark inings. Suits come in all the rich dark shades and the pleated skirt in all varieties is very much in evidence.

In the dress goods department there is a galaxy of new features. Chiffon velvets are very popular, and there seems to be a revival coming for the heavy satin brocades. Taffetas with all sorts of Dresden effects are shown, and in many varieties the delicate flowers. in many varieties the delicate flowers are embroidered in silk.
