Redmond's Appeal

The Nationalist point of view is set forth in their appeal by Mr. Redmond, which follows: "The great crisis in the Irish struggle has arisen. The House of Lords is engaged at this moment in destroying the Irish land bill with its promise of closing the land war of centuries and completing the restoration of all the land of Ireland to her people and the banishing for ever of misery and famine from the west of Ireland. General elections are certain within the next two weeks. Jeanne of the Marshes

—BY—
E. P. OPPENHEIM

"Until she is of age," the Princess answered, "she is mine to do what I like with, body and soul. The French law is stricter than the English in this respect, you know. There may be a little trouble, of course, but I shall know how to manage her."

"She has likes and dislikes of her own," he remarked, and fairly positive ones, I believe if she had her own way, she would spend all her time with this fisherman here."

The Princess smoothed the lace upon her gown, and gazed reflectively at the turquoise upon her white fingers.

"Jeanne's father," she remarked, "was bourgeois, and her mother had little family. Race tells, of course. I have never attempted to influence her, when there is a great struggle ahead, it is as well to let her have her own way in small things. Hush! She is coming. I suppose the croquet has been a failure."

Jeanne came across to them, swinging her mallet in her hand.

"Will someone," she begged, "take our too kind host away from me? He follows me everywhere, and he is not satisfied. If I try to ride, he comes and sits by my side and talks nonsense. If I say I am going for a walk, he wants to come with me. I am tired of it."

The Princess looked at her step-daughter critically. Jeanne was dressed in white, with a great red rose stuck through her waistband. She was paler even than usual, her eyes were dark and luminous, and the curve of her scarlet lips suggested readily enough the weariness of which she spoke.

The Princess shrugged her shoulders and said, "Do what you like, my dear," she said. "I will tell Cecil to leave you alone. But remember that he is a young man, and you must be civil to him."

She strode across the lawn to where Cecil was still knocking the croquet balls about. Jeanne sank into her place, and Forrest looked at her for a few moments attentively.

"You are a strange child," he said at last.

She glanced towards him as though she found his speech an impertinence. She looked away across the old-fashioned, strangely-arranged garden, with its irregular patches of many-colored flowers, and the curve of her scarlet lips suggested readily enough the weariness of which she spoke.

OCTOBER WEDDINGS; ST. JOHN BRIDES

Coates-Roach.

A quiet wedding took place this morning at the residence of Mrs. Sarah Roach, 178 Wentworth street, when her daughter, Miss Rose Coates, formerly known as Miss Coates, was united in marriage to Mr. W. H. Coates, of the S. Hayward Co., by Rev. J. P. Coates, pastor of the Victoria street Baptist church, and at the conclusion Mr. and Mrs. Coates left for the United States and upper Canadian cities.

Both bride and groom have many friends who remembered them with beautiful and costly gifts. From the bride's former employers and fellow workers in the W. H. Hayward Co., she received a set of silver and Wedgwood china, and from the staff of the S. Hayward Co. a handsome quartered oak china cabinet, was sent to the bride's home. Flags were flying from the S. Hayward Co.'s building today in honor of the event.

A matrimonial event of an unusual nature took place at St. Bridget's church, Chapel Grove, yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. The wedding was a double one. Miss Kathleen Downey and Daniel Downey, North End, were united in marriage to Miss Jennie Dunn and Miss Gillen Dunn, and simultaneously Miss Jennie Dunn and Harding Gillen, of Millville, were united in marriage to Daniel Downey, of Whitehead. The late Bernard Downey performed the ceremony in a most dignified manner. The brides were dressed in costumes of cream Bedford cord made in the princess mode with insertion trimmings. Miss Kathleen, and Miss Annie Dunn acted in the same capacity for Miss Jennie and Miss Gillen. The brides were escorted by Mr. Downey, and Thomas F. Gillen acted in a like capacity for the bride, Harding Gillen. The ceremony was a most impressive one. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion. A choir from St. Peter's church sang the mass and Miss Julia McCarthy played the relatives of the principals were present as guests. After the ceremony a sitting dinner was served at the former home of the brides at Whitehead. Many handsome and valuable gifts, many of them in duplicate, testified to the good wishes of the young couples' many friends. DOCTORS SAID ONLY ZAM-BUK COULD CURE HER ECZEMA

In view of the numerous cures which Zam-Buk has worked when all else has failed, there is little wonder that the end doctor attending Mrs. J. P. St. Denis, of 395, Thompson Street, Winnipeg, should tell her there was nothing but Zam-Buk could cure her. The result showed the farseeing wisdom of this practitioner, and having been completely cured by Zam-Buk, Mrs. St. Denis gives her experience for the benefit of other sufferers.

She says: "Eczema started on one side of my face and nose. At first it was only a sore, similar to what one feels when having a bad cold, but it soon became a thing that would not pass away. One day one of the disease developed pimples and turned a purplish red. It was a part of the cheek on the left side of my face. As the disease developed pimples and ulcers broke out, then the skin cracked in places and peeled off in scales, leaving my face and nose raw and sore. This condition reached my general health, and I became very ill. I could get no sleep at night because of the irritation and the pain, and my face was in such a shocking condition that for two months I did not go out of the house. I applied remedies which were supposed to be good for skin diseases, but in vain.

"My doctor also treated me, but without effect until one day he said that the only thing which would now be likely to cure me was Zam-Buk.

"Acting on his advice, I procured a supply and found that even the first few applications had a soothing effect on the sores. I left off everything else, and used only this balm, and applied it liberally every day to affected parts. In a remarkably short time, considering the obstinate nature of my case, the sore traces of improvement, which encouraged us to persevere with the Zam-Buk treatment. Zam-Buk relieved the inflammation, the hard swelling began to show traces of leaving, the sores seemed less angry, and in about three weeks' time most of the sores were healing nicely. To cut a long story short, I continued with the Zam-Buk treatment until my face was cleared completely of all traces of the troublesome and painful eczema."

Such was the experience of Mrs. St. Denis, and scores of other sufferers could tell of similar experiences. Zam-Buk is Nature's own healer, being composed of pure herbal healing essences, and free from all traces of harmful animal fat or mineral poison. It is a sure cure for cuts, lacerations, burns, eczema, ringworm, poisoned wounds, festering sores, bad legs, and all skin injuries, and diseases. SIR WILFRED LAURIER ON EDUCATIONAL MATTERS

Timely Thoughts in Address By Prime Minister at Laying of Corner Stone of Montreal Technical School—Large Representation of Catholic and Protestant Clergy There

The laying of the corner stone of the Montreal Technical School, which is being constructed by the Quebec government in Montreal, brought out a large and distinguished body of citizens.

The presence of the prime ministers of the dominion and the province of Quebec, the Lord Bishop of Montreal and a large representation of the Catholic and Protestant clergy, gave more than accustomed eclat to the function.

Sir Wilfred Laurier paid a tribute of praise to all those, whether near or far, who had been connected with this enterprise of a technical school for Montreal.

Sir Wilfred said that the chief merit of those who had succeeded in bringing this enterprise to its present advanced stage was in having awakened the people from their indifference.

After mentioning Mr. de Serres and Mr. White as well as the other members of the corporation the prime minister referred to the fact that some people had perhaps been apprehensive of the aims and objects of the technical school. Such apprehension did not have its raison d'être, for as a matter of fact this technical school was but the complement of the present excellent system. The prime minister declared that the system had the base and the crowning stone, but it was the intermediate that was at fault, and which the promoters of the Montreal Technical School had decided to supply.

Sir Wilfred said he would not change the method of the present classical system of the province, yet the status or level might be improved. If there was any approach to make it was in the fact that the status of classical education was not quite so high as when he was a young man, say forty years ago. Not that the speaker would suppress the study of Latin and Greek. He would maintain the system, but he would endeavor to improve it.

He would also like to see a greater interest displayed in the study of the modern languages. How much more profitable he thought it would be if less time were given to Virgil and to Socrates and more to Shakespeare, to Gibbons and to Macaulay. In a word, the prime minister moved to see education in this country march hand in hand with the spirit of the age. The speaker went on to tell his listeners what the future held in store for this province, especially in the matter of electricity. This school would teach the young men of this province many of the mysteries that we at present ignore, besides placing them on the same intellectual level with those of other countries more advanced in technical education than ourselves.

Speaking of the industrial features, he said that it was fashionable in certain quarters to throw a great deal of blame upon industrial science, but he thought that this was wrong criticism, and not justified by the light of current events in the world.

Sir Wilfred said the time was not far distant when there were two callings open for the young men of the country and he named the medical and legal professions, but what a change there is today, and how much wider the field would be opened in this finished school of Montreal, place so many avenues open to the artisans of our land. He urged, in the strongest language at his command, for the young men, to avail themselves of the splendid advantages which would soon be placed at their disposition. He regretted that there was a probability of a night school being opened in connection with this technical establishment, and he regretted that the arrangements were not such that it could be opened simultaneously with the new enterprise.

The late Honoré Mercier conceived this noble idea, but it died with that great patriot, although it had been given to others to revive and carry out, this splendidly patriotic idea of technical education. He then told of some great men who made themselves famous the world over even without the assistance of schools, colleges and universities, mentioning Alexander Mackenzie, here in Canada, Abraham Lincoln on the other side of the line, consequently, if men would become great and beloved by their fellow countrymen without the school then how much greater could we become if provided with such adjuncts as the present technical school. Sir Wilfred was loudly cheered at the close of his address.

HOW FIREMAN SMITH ESCAPED IN WRECK

Moncton, N. B., Oct. 6.—Tonight Fireman Cook of the maritime express was on Wednesday's wreck, in suffering much, and his life is in the balance. Fireman Smith, of the freight special, who saved his life by jumping, returned to Moncton this afternoon. He gave a striking statement about his escape.

Before leaving Charlott station, he had looked at his watch, and said to Driver Whalen, "Bob, do you think we can make it?"

"I think so," was the response of Driver Whalen. So they started, and were running about twenty miles an hour when the other train was sighted.

"My God! 33 is on us!" cried out Fireman Smith, and he leaped from the engine into the ditch. Only a few seconds did he remain there, and then hurried to where the two trains had collided. He found the engine of one of the brakemen and together the two started to help to find the injured.

"As I was going through the air," said Smith, "I heard the two engines meet. It was an awful crash and I knew there would be a frightful ending."

Driver Whalen was immediately surrounded by many curious persons. He was not very seriously, and was able to walk to his home. The three survivors of the wreck who had less fortunate experiences than those of Fireman Smith, were Driver Whalen, John Murray, of this city, who was badly hurt in the smash, and Mail Clerk Sullivan and Keith, en route to their homes in Halifax. They were also seriously injured.

Mail Clerk Sullivan could scarcely walk and was encased in bandages. He was badly cut about the head and face as a result of contact with the baggage car door, his hand was badly battered and torn, also his arm, and he was injured about the body.

Mail Clerk Sullivan and Keith were taken to their homes in Halifax. Sullivan had an arm broken and was painfully cut about the chest and body while Keith was injured about the head. Both were glad to have escaped with their lives.

Dr. L. N. Bourque, of this city, was a passenger on the east-bound Maritime express, and was at the scene of the disaster a very few minutes after the wreck occurred, being thus able to render valuable aid to the injured.

He said Driver Morton and Driver Whalen were each buried under the ruins of the locomotive and crushed to death, in all probability being instantly killed. It was only after hard work, Dr. Bourque said, that Fireman Cook was extricated from his position under the ruins of the locomotive. The unfortunate man was crushed down beneath a great mass of twisted iron and steel, and Dr. Bourque worked his way beneath and did what he could for him. Cook in the meantime was suffering terrible agony, and continually moaned: "For God's sake get me out of this. The unfortunate man was covered with burns and scalds and one foot was crushed off. Cook was wedged close to the firebox and a great sheet of steel crushed him down. There was no jolt with which to remove this weight until the relief train arrived from Campbellton.

While digging near the depot at Plymouth, James M. Barrett unearthed an Indian stone hatchet. The hatchet is well preserved, weighs 11 pounds and measures 13 1/2 by 16 inches.

BREEZY TIME IN SYNOD

Judges Confirm Liberal in Seat—Remarkably Clean Election, Says Chief Justice.

Charlottetown, P. E. I., Oct. 6.—(Special)—The Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Fitzgerald today delivered judgment in the election petition presented by L. P. Tanton of the city against L. E. Prowse, M. P., Liberal, one of the members for Queens County. The chief justice dismissed the petition with costs and declared the respondent elected. In concluding his judgment, his lordship said: "In all other respects we are of the opinion that the conduct of the election was singularly free from any violation of the law. The conduct of the respondent was entirely blameless. There is no evidence that any acts had been committed with the respondent's knowledge or consent."

A LOST OPPORTUNITY Premier Hazen delivered an address at the opening of the agricultural exhibition at Sackville yesterday. The Standard this morning prints an extended report of his remarks, and those of Hon. Dr. Landry.

The farmers of Sackville district must have been a good deal disappointed by these speeches. They doubtless hoped to hear something about the agricultural policy of the Hazen government, which was to perform wonders in development.

A SUGGESTION Two American railroads have set an example which shows they recognize that it pays them to have the territory along their lines peopled and cultivated, and that they have taken practical steps to encourage this result and develop more business for themselves.

The great budget fight in the British parliament goes over until Nov. 19th, by which time a compromise may be agreed to, with an understanding as to the general elections, which it is thought may be brought on in January. King Edward has six weeks in which to labor as a peacemaker.

horticultural societies are enthusiastic supporters of the project. Would it not pay the province of New Brunswick to develop experimental farms in sections where crown lands are available for settlement, so that intending settlers could learn from photos and descriptive articles the capabilities of any given section? If it pays railroads, it should pay a province whose greatest need is a large farming population.

GERMAN EXPANSION The Victoria Colonist is not at all impressed by Lord Northcliffe's war talk, and remarks that he does not know any more about what is in the minds of statesmen of Europe than anyone else does.

The petition against the election of Mr. L. E. Prowse, a Liberal member for Queens county, P. E. Island, has been dismissed with costs. The judge described the election, as shown by the evidence, as a remarkably clean contest.

The protest against beer shop licenses in Carleton will doubtless be heard by the authorities. Unless the licenses are in the hands of very carefully selected persons there is a practical certainty that those seeking strong beer will find it in such places.

One of the speakers at the Presbyterian Synod yesterday emphasized the value of playgrounds as a moral force among the children. St. John is still behind other cities in the matter of playgrounds.

The American contestant has won the international balloon race, and the eagle once more flaps his wings.

The correlation between dirt and disease was never more clearly shown than in the present outbreak of typhoid at Cobalt town and in the neighboring camps. In Cobalt itself there is no system of drainage, and the people have been careless about their scavenging and other disease-bearing conditions.

SUPERIOR PAINLESS DENTISTRY!

"There is a world wide cry against the dentists that they torture their patients. Those of strong physique submit and endure the agony. With a second class this is simply impossible, and thousands of teeth are neglected and lost even though the patients may be able to pay for our most skillful services. Then there is a third class who, after months of mental torture in anticipation, finally come into our hands, and, with nerves strung to a hurtful point, pass through the ordeal, but at what a cost! We do not sufficiently consider the consequences of shock in the dental chair, yet undoubtedly many suffer for months and even years from injuries to the nervous system received whilst in our hands.

The greatest duty of our profession today is to discover and adopt a mode of painlessly performing our operations."

NOTE.—The above is an abstract from a paper read by an eminent dentist of New York City before a society of dentists in Philadelphia. The famous Hale Method of painless dentistry, for which we are sole agents for Canada is the best Method on earth.

LEG CAUGHT IN WHEEL, BOY BADLY HURT

Little Percy Rogers aged seven, son of William Rogers of 9 Paradise Row, met with a frightful accident a little after noon today and may lose his right leg. The misadventure was similar to that which befell little Ronald Campbell a short time ago. He and others were on their way home from school and when near Dorchester street extension, he jumped on the rear of a rapidly moving trolley.

His right leg became caught in the spokes of one of the wheels and he was fearfully mangled and his comrades soon attracted attention and the cart was stopped. The boy was extricated from his awful predicament and carried into a house near by and the ambulance summoned.

He was taken to the hospital where it was found that his injuries were serious. It has not been decided definitely, but it is probable that he will have to have the leg amputated.

The club will elect officers this evening and deal with any other matters which may arise. A good attendance is hoped for and anyone interested in dogs is invited to be present. The work of the club in this city should be greatly appreciated as it is doing much towards the improvement of the class of dogs here.

SATURDAY'S SPORTS

There are three entries from Charlottetown for the great bicycle race at the Every Day Club sports on Saturday afternoon. Perhaps the greatest interest in these sports, for many people, lies in the ten mile race in which Striving and Cameron are competitors. But the events will be very exciting. As stated yesterday, ladies will be admitted free to the grounds.

WRECK OF A LIFE OF PROMISE; END A NAMELESS GRAVE

W. R. Geldert, Recounts Tale Full of Pathos With Lower Province Man, Drink Victim, the Principal

A story of singular pathos and heart interest was told by W. R. Geldert at the temperance meeting in Granite Rock Division hall in Carleton on Tuesday evening. It left with his listeners a mental picture of a lonely and nameless grave in the far west, and a moral the significance of which could not be misunderstood.

In the early eighties when Regina, which last year had 10,200 inhabitants was a village of tents and an occasional wooden shack, and when Nicholas Flood Davis was first publishing the Leader and living in a tent, the incident occurred.

Into a tent where Mr. Geldert with others lived, there entered three young men with a bottle of brandy. They invited him to drink, but he refused, for he had abstained for several months and knew that if he drank that evening he would forget his resolutions and before twenty-four hours would probably hit the trail between Winnipeg and a prolonged spree.

One of the young men, well educated and with bright prospects, was 25 years old, and a splendid specimen of manhood, weighing 210 pounds. He was a native of the lower provinces and of good family. The young men emptied the bottle, and went out, and in some way secured some pedler's whiskey, which they also drank.

Mr. Geldert was away from the tent for a time, and when he returned he found that the young man specially referred to had been carried in, unable to walk.

Mr. Geldert looked down upon him, and from the nature of his breathing felt that a doctor should be summoned. The others objected, on the ground that the mounted police would hear of it and jail them if they did not tell where they got the whiskey.

A little later, however, Mr. Geldert insisted upon getting a doctor, and the latter was found and brought to the tent. But even at the moment of his arrival the young man's life went out. The liquor had been the cause of his death.

It was Mr. Geldert's sad duty to wire the news to the young man's relatives. Just back of Regina, on a slope where the first white man's grave, that of a native of New Brunswick, had been opened but a short time before, the body of this young man had been laid to rest. With his own hands Mr. Geldert erected a small wooden cross around the two graves, to protect them from the tramping of the cattle.

That fence has long since disappeared, and the graves have been levelled with the surface of the ground. They are unmarked.

"Some day," said Mr. Geldert, "as Regina spreads itself over the surrounding area, a workman digging may unearth those bones, and wonder whose they were and what his fate. I could tell them of the untimely end of a splendid specimen of manhood, in whose heart beat hopes as high as heathen idols, and in whose young man in your city today. He lies in a nameless grave, the victim of that which has destroyed so many in the very tower of their millinery."
