...testifying to the existence of a great deity.
Nature proves the existence of God."
Taking up the consideration of the modern revolutionary theory he claimed that science in that particular had advanced very slowly and even if it had advanced of that cause were able to prove their case it was only another illustration of the greatness of God.
The history of Jesus Christ as presented in the four gospels, was incontrovertible.
Many attempts had been made by the so-called "new theology" which, the speaker said, was gray-headed before it was born, but though many able men had attempted to make progress in this way they had met miserable failure.
Today at least this much was proven, that the four gospels are true in every particular and that was after all the fundamen-tamental principle of Christianity.
Dr. Torrey said that although he met
W. S. Jacoby every day he did not know W. S. Jacoby as well as he knew God.
The Power of Prayer.
He told how he had cut off all his income in one day as a result of a call which he believed came from God. He decided that God would give all that he had only asked for it in prayer, and he had proved it. When in Chicago with Mr.
Moody and they wanted to raise $7,000 for their work there, they had $1,000 and they knelt down and prayed for $6,000 more. A few hours later they received a telegram from Northfield, announcing that they had collected the sum of $8,000 for Mr. Moody's work in Chicago. He cited other instances of the wonderful power of prayer. He had always got what he asked for.
"The man who denied there was a God was the supreme fool. "What a monster what an inconceivable as is a man when he rears his intellect and tells what God ought to do." In scathing terms the speaker flayed men who stood up to say what God should do. Man was the merest atom while God was the infinite One. All men must meet God no matter what their position, and the great question was are we ready to meet that great and holy ruler of the universe.
There was only one way of meeting God and that was through the atoning blood of Jesus Christ. It was not sufficient to be a church member. One must live as Christ would have him live.
"Will you," he said in closing, "accept this Saviour tonight as your personal Saviour?"
After an earnest prayer he asked for a show of hands from those who would take a stand for the Christian life.
"Anyone who will make a stand tonight just hold up your hand." Five or six responded to the invitation and were led up to the penitential bench at the front of the rick. Then while a song was sung others were invited to come forward and after a little urging one or two others were persuaded to take the step for the Christian life.
The leaders were much gratified over this early fruitful result of their work.

COMPLAINT ABOUT BAD ROADS

REXTON, N. B., Nov. 3.—The roads here are in a "pretty middlin'" condition. In some places there is too much water in an automobile, and not enough for a motor boat. The streets here and the approaches to the bridge are quite as bad as the roads outside the village. It makes one wonder where Mr. Grimmer's "increased revenue" has gone. All that we are certain of is that none of it has reached the roads in this section. And that is the cry that comes from most parts of the province.

WILL REFUSE TO SIT WITH A THRICE CONNECTED FELON

Kentucky Democratic Congressman Will Try to Oust Caleb Powers from His Seat.
Louisville, Ky., Nov. 10.—Reports which were freely circulated today, and which were neither affirmed nor denied by Democratic leaders, are to the effect that there is a movement under way to have the nine Democratic congressmen in the Kentucky delegation make a concerted effort to have Caleb Powers ousted from his seat as representative of the eleventh Kentucky district.
Congress, it is reported, will be asked to elect Powers to the seat on the ground that he has thrice been convicted of felony and has not been acquitted by a jury.
Governor Wilson's pardon, it is contended, does not have the same effect as the pardon on the charge of complicity in the Goebel assassination.

BRIEF RESPIRE FOR CRIPPEN

London, Nov. 7.—Inspector Dew of the Scotland Yard detective who arrested Dr.
H. H. Crippen and the woman on the S. S. Montrose, has resigned his position.
No cause is made public.
Solicitor Newton, Crippen's counsel is drafting a petition to relieve Crippen.
The execution is now fixed for Nov. 23.
It is officially announced that Dr.
Hawley H. Crippen, convicted and sentenced to death for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, would not be executed tomorrow. Original arrangements for the reason that the law provides that two weeks must elapse between the dismissal of an application and the carrying out of the sentence.

Veto Conference a Failure

Premier Asquith Makes Announcement But Gives No Reasons

Radicals Now Favor Appoint- ment of But Enough Lib- eral Peers to Pass Their Legislation, But Appeal to the Country is the Likely Course.

Associated Press.
London, Nov. 10.—The conference which was organized shortly after the death of King Edward in an endeavor to reach a settlement of the acute controversy over the question of the veto power of the house of lords with reference to measures passed by the house of commons—a controversy aggravated by the refusal of the upper house to pass the budget—has dissolved without reaching an agreement.
Announcement of the failure of the leaders of the two great political parties to find a solution for the dispute which has kept British politics in a turmoil for more than a year, was made by Premier Asquith tonight after a meeting of the cabinet, which followed the earlier gathering of the conference. The official statement does not disclose the cause of the disagreement.
It simply says: "The conference which has been sitting to consider a constitutional question has come to an end, without arriving at an agreement." The statement also said that the members of the conference had decided to discuss the question of the negotiations at the earliest opportunity in the future.

OUTLOOK GOOD FOR A TRADE TREATY

Conference at Ot- tawa Over

Next Meeting in Washington Early in January—Hon. Mr. Fielding States Negotiations Are a Success So Far.

Special to The Telegraph.

Ottawa, Nov. 10.—At the conclusion of this afternoon's meeting of the Canadian and United States trade negotiators the following statement was given to the press by Hon. Mr. Fielding:
"The conference between the representatives of the United States and Canada on the subject of improved trade relations, terminated today. The conference began on Saturday, the 5th inst, and was continued on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday."
"The whole discussion was of the most frank and friendly nature. While no conclusion was reached, the ground was cleared for a further conference, which will be held in Washington, probably early in January."
"The members of the conference—Messrs.
Hoyt, Pepper and Foster, representing the United States, and Messrs. Fielding and Paterson, representing Canada—departed with the strong hope that on the resumption of the conference at Washington an arrangement can be reached that will prove acceptable to the people on both sides of the boundary line."

Outlook Good, Says Mr. Pepper.

Mr. Pepper, speaking for the American members of the conference, said: "We leave Ottawa feeling that the outlook is good for a successful issue of the negotiations, when they are resumed at Washington. We have appreciated very much the friendly spirit in which the Canadian negotiators have met us. However, we cannot make a statement as to any conclusions which have been reached, because there have been none."
Mr. Pepper explained that there had been a general discussion of the situation and that the ground had been thoroughly cleared of preliminaries so that the January meeting would find that much of the pioneer work had been done.
It is understood that the commissioners of both countries separate confident that the January meeting will result in an agreement being reached.
The feeling at Ottawa is that natural products from Canada will be given easier access to the United States, and that some American manufactures will be given freer admission to Canada. There are a good many lines of Canadian goods which could admit on easier terms without disturbance any vested interest. Among them are watches and clocks, instruments, and many other lines of refined manufactures.

Had His Spine Broken in Wanderers-Dalhousie Foot- ball Game Twelve Days Ago.

Halifax, Nov. 10.—(Special)—The first fatality at football in the history of the game in Halifax occurred today as the result of an accident in the Dalhousie-Wanderers match twelve days ago.
R. W. MacLellan, the victim of the accident, died at the Victoria General Hospital today. He was playing half-back for the Wanderers, and was running for the ball when a Dalhousie man tackled him.
The ground was slippery and MacLellan fell with great violence on the back of his head, dislocating the vertebrae at the base of the neck and injuring the spinal cord. The whole body was paralyzed and so remained till death.
MacLellan was born in Winnipeg and was the son of W. E. MacLellan, a well-known fraser for Nova Scotia. He had been admitted to the bar of Nova Scotia and was a very bright young man. He was a graduate in arts of Dalhousie, 1907, and in law of the same university, 1909, and was a universal favorite in college circles.

Net Increase for Past Year 172— Officers Elected—Grand Scribe Saunders Defeated.

Special to The Telegraph.
Picton, N. S., Nov. 10.—The sixty-third annual session of the Grand Division of Nova Scotia, Sons of Temperance, closed its session today. There is a net gain in membership of 143, making a total membership in the province of 10,866. There is one working division less than the year before, the number of divisions being 152.
During the past year 3,271 members were added and 3,128 dropped. Of twenty-two districts, in which the province is divided, Barrington is the largest with 1,238 members, and Antigonish the smallest, with 96 members. The election of new officers resulted as follows:
G. W. P., Rev. D. Stiles Fraser, New Glasgow; G. W. A., Mrs. Laura M. Powell, Halifax; C. S., Isaac Grant, Pictou; G. T., W. Thornton, Halifax; G. patron, Mary Fraser, Glace Bay; C. conductor, J. B.
Hills, Halifax; G. sentinel, E. M. Mac-Donald, Pictou; G. chaplain, Rev. J. Astbury.
The surprise of the election was the defeat of W. S. Saunders, for twenty years grand scribe of Nova Scotia, which will entail the removal of the office of the order from Halifax, where it has been for sixty years. On a motion of Pictou county he was elected to the office of grand scribe for the year 1911. Mrs. Carter, who had been dependent on ill health, left her home yesterday morning and had not been seen since. Her husband found her handing floating in the reservoir early today and notified the police.

SOMERVILLE WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN TUFTS' RESERVOIR

Medford, Mass., Nov. 10.—The body of Mrs. Antoinette C. Carter, aged 28, of Somerville, was found in Tufts' reservoir here late today by the police, who had been dragging the pond. Mrs. Carter, who had been dependent on ill health, left her home yesterday morning and had not been seen since. Her husband found her handing floating in the reservoir early today and notified the police.

Melbourne, Nov. 10.—Australia has an immigration scandal similar to that which was recently reported from Vancouver, Chinese in this case also being concerned.
A regular traffic in admission of orientals has been brought to light here. It was found that Chinese gain entrance to the commonwealth by paying the agents $600 and upwards. The customs have exercised the keenest watch on steamers arriving from the Orient, even going so far as to have them, thoroughly searched, and in many cases fumigated.
Notwithstanding all these precautions, Chinamen still have been pouring in. An investigation set on foot has disclosed that the method adopted is to corrupt agents by money payments. The investigation continues.
The labor unions of New South Wales have fixed the wages of harvesters at nine shillings ($2.25) per day. This means an increase for farmers will over the country of a million sterling a year. Consensus it does, on top of the new land tax, this action of the labor unions is causing farmers to regard the future with something approaching dismay.
The project for the establishment of a penny postage between the states of the commonwealth has passed the house of representatives and now goes to the senate, where its passage is not likely to be difficult.
The South African cricketers defeated the South Australians by 258 runs. The result of the match is a surprise to cricket experts. Great interest has been aroused over the tour, which is now certain to be a success.

USED CORPSES TO WIN VOTES FOR PROHIBITION

Two Placed Upright in Coffins

Window With Labels: "He Died of Drink"—The "Wets" Won.
Seattle, Wash., Nov. 10.—Corpses of two men who died from alcoholism were placed on exhibition in the windows of the undertaking establishment of the deputy coroner at Auburn, twenty miles south of Seattle, in an effort to win votes for the "drys"
in the local option election held here Tuesday, but without apparent effect, for the town voted "wet."
Both factions were making a hard fight and the prohibitionists appeared to be in the lead until late in the afternoon. Then the tide began to turn. In a frantic effort the anti-saloon leaders appealed to Deputy Coroner Connell, an ardent prohibitionist, for aid. He hurried to his establishment where the bodies of the two men lay.
Bolstering them into upright position in their coffins he placed them in the front windows. Above the heads of each a sign read: "He died of drink." As voters hurried by the anti-saloon men directed their attention to the exhibition.
There was no desecration of the dead,
in an effort to win votes for the "drys" friends and their bodies might as well have been put to some good use.

REV. A. T. DYKEMAN ACCEPTS CALL TO HALIFAX CHURCH

Halifax, Nov. 10.—(Special)—Rev. A. T.
Dykeman, at present at West Roxbury (Mass.), has accepted the call to the West End Baptist church, Halifax, in succession to Rev. G. A. Lawson, who will go to Moncton.
Mr. Dykeman has had pastorate at New Glasgow, Digby and Middleton, and went from the latter place to West Roxbury.
He is a native of New Brunswick and is an M. A. graduate of Acadia College.

ONTARIO HUNTER BURIED ALIVE

Embankment Caved in When He Was Trying to Dig a Fox Out of Its Hole.
Owen Sound, Ont., Nov. 10.—Arthur Dargarvel, a young man of twenty-four years, was buried alive by an embankment of gravel falling in on him in Sullivan township.
With two others, Dargarvel was on a fox hunt. Their dogs followed the fox to its hole at the bottom of an embankment and the hunters with spades worked for nearly an hour when a large section of gravel and sand caved in, completely burying Dargarvel. He was dug out within ten minutes, but life was extinct.
Deceased was a son of Robert Dargarvel, mill owner, of Dornoch (Ont.).

Providence, R. I., Nov. 10.—The L'Union St. Jean Baptist is one of the largest French-Canadian associations in the country, and does a large insurance business in many states. Recently it was severely endangered by the insurance commissioners of New York and Massachusetts, who ordered a meeting to be held and reforms made.
The meeting ordered was to have been held at Woonsocket today, and the officers who came from Massachusetts, New York, Maine, Connecticut, New Hampshire and Vermont, found the temporary receiver in charge of the national headquarters there, and under the law no meeting could legally be held. In compliance with the order of the insurance commissioners, the weekly publication of the society, L'Union, has been discontinued, probably permanently. The organization is incorporated in Rhode Island.

NATURE WILL CURE YOU

Of Kidney Disease, Aided by Father Morrissy's No. 7. Kidney trouble is one of the most distressing ailments of mankind, and leads to backache and rheumatism. This is because of the importance of the work done by the kidneys,—work which must proceed normally to insure good health. A very large proportion of civilized people have some form of kidney trouble, sometimes without knowing that their malady is of that nature. Many obscure cases can often be traced to diseased kidneys.

These organs are the filters of the body. Their function is to strain out of the blood and eliminate through the bladder the waste out-issues and other impurities gathered by the blood in its course. When the kidneys become congested and sluggish, these impurities, including the irritating and poisonous uric acid, are not entirely removed from the blood. The result is that the uric acid is deposited in the joints and tissues, causing the agonies of rheumatism and frequently about the liver and other organs.

His famous prescription, No. 7, assists the kidneys to work vigorously and eliminates the harmful uric acid from the blood system. In the form of tablets, No. 7 is easy to take, and will effect cures where other remedies have failed. Do not trifle with kidney disease, but take No. 7 Tablets, the treatment that has proved so successful with other cases.

DEMOCRATS WILL HAVE 30 MAJORITY IN NEXT CONGRESS

Republicans, However, Control the United States Senate by a Margin of Ten—Taft and Cabinet Plan to Carry Out Much Legislation During Short Life of Present House—Further Details of Tuesday's Election.

DEMOCRATS HAVE 29 MAJORITY IN NEXT CONGRESS

Chicago, Nov. 9.—Sixty-second congress. Democrats elected 225. Republicans elected, 164. Socialist elected, 1. Doubtful district, 1. Total, 391. Democratic majority in house, 29. Complete returns on the election of representatives in congress indicate that the Democrats will have a working majority of 29 in the next house. The number of Democrats elected to congress, according to the latest unofficial returns, is 225. The Republican representation will be 164 or 165, or eight seats less than the Democrats have in the 61st congress.

New York, Nov. 9.—The political upheaval of Tuesday was followed today by a general survey of the field which disclosed with greater detail and precision just what results were accomplished.

Latest calculations on the national house of representatives, based on complete but unofficial returns, show that the Democrats will have a safe working majority of thirty.

The outcome of the United States senate is now definitely settled. The Republicans are assured of sixteen new senators, which with thirty-four holdovers senators, gives them a total of fifty and a majority. The Democrats are assured of fifteen new senators which, with twenty-five holdovers, gives them a total of forty. Two senatorships are in doubt, namely the succession of the late Mr. Dolliver in Iowa, and of Mr. Carter in Montana, where there is a prospect of a tie.

The governorships in two states are not yet reported as being beyond doubt, namely, Colorado and Idaho.

Republicans to Make Hay While the Sun Shines. Washington, Nov. 9.—The election and its lessons are pressing forward the administration legislative programme so as to get it out of the way before the Democratic control congress next year.

The discussion of the election results brought out the individual opinions of the president and those of some of his official family.

It was pointed out among other things, that it was in the east that the most harm to the Republican party was done, much of the outcome in the west having been discounted in the primaries.

Some comfort was found in the relative smallness of the Democratic pluralities as compared with the figures rolled up in the past when Democratic primacy was attained. New York's apparently less than 70,000 plurality was cited in this connection.

The expressed view of some of the members was that the defeat of the party in these state elections may readily work for good. President Taft realizes the necessity for getting through all needed administration legislation in the three months session beginning next month. He called on members of the cabinet today for a statement of the situation in their respective departments and the matter will be taken up in detail on the president's return from Panama.

New Republican Champion in Massachusetts. Boston, Nov. 9.—Undismayed by the decisive defeat of the Republican candidate for governor yesterday, there has arisen a new champion in Massachusetts with aspirations to lead the party to victory a year hence, in Joseph Walker, of Brookline, speaker of the house of representatives, who announced tonight that he would be a candidate for the nomination for governor next fall. Speaker Walker's statement was as follows:

"I have been elected to the legislature of 1911. I am a candidate for speaker of the house of representatives. I shall not accept another nomination or election to the house, but shall run for governor of the commonwealth next fall. I believe that the greatest evil in politics today is the executive use of money. Unless the nomination of my party comes to me without the use of money, directly or indirectly, I do not wish it."

Republican Rout in New York. Albany, N. Y., Nov. 9.—On July 2 next when Governor Hoar, White hands over the reins of governor to John A. Dix, New York state will have what it has not had since the election of Roswell P. Flower in 1891, a Democratic governor. The new executive will have a legislature safely Democratic in both branches and Democratic associates in the various elective state offices.

One of the first and most important duties of the next legislature will be to elect a successor to U. S. Senator Chauncey M. Depew, whose term will expire on March 3 next. Walter B. Parker, ex-chief justice of the court appeals, who stamped the state in behalf of the Democratic ticket, Edward M. Shepard, Thomas M. Osborne, chairman of the Democratic League, and John B. Stanchfield, are among those suggested as possible candidates.

According to returns at present available the senate will have thirty Democrats, twenty Republicans, and one independent and Republican, twenty-six votes being necessary to control. The last senate had thirty-five Republicans and sixteen Democrats.

Seventy-six members are needed to control the assembly. The Democrats elected eighty-seven and the Republicans sixty-three. The last assembly numbered ninety-four Republicans, fifty-four Democrats one United Citizens League member and one elected by the Independence League.

Thomas F. Conway, as lieutenant governor will preside over the senate with indications pointing to the election of

BETTER THAN SPANKING. Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this. Write to M. Summers, Box 70, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment with full instructions. Send no money but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

Foss Plurality 32,987.

Boston, Nov. 9.—Revised returns for governor from the entire state area—Eugene H. Foss, Dem., 239,148; Eben S. Draper, Republican, 157,161; Foss, plurality, 32,987.

The next legislature will stand as follows:—senate, republican, 25; democrats, 15; house, republicans, 128; democrats, 111; Socialists, 1.

In joint session the republicans will have 153 to 126 votes for the democrats to re-elect Senator Lodge. Congressman elected one: republican, 9; democrat, 5.

Socialist Gains in New York. New York, Nov. 9.—Marked gains in the Socialist vote throughout the state are shown in the returns from yesterday's election. Figures available tonight indicate a total vote of 100,000. Russell, nominee for governor, of 65,000, which is nearly double the 33,984 vote of 1908. In New York city Russell received 27,230. Most significant, however, are increases up-ward.

Big Democratic Gains in Ohio. Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 9.—Final unofficial figures on the Ohio election show that the Democrats have fifteen out of twenty-one congressmen.

Oregon Democratic and "Wet." Portland, Ore., Nov. 9.—Returns from many sections of the state today tend to confirm the early estimates giving Oswald West (Dem.) the governorship of Oregon over Jay Bowerman (Rep.). That Oregon voted "wet" seems certain.

Chancellor Day Whacks Roosevelt. Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 9.—Chancellor James R. Day commented on election results as follows: "I am resigned to the defeat of Mr. Stimson because I believe that it is the beginning of the end of that infamous demagogic slander of our country which has paralyzed business and humiliated us before the civilized world for the last half dozen years.

"The people have declared that the old nationalism is good enough for them. It is not a democratic victory. Tens of thousands of Republicans have turned to the Democratic party for refuge from the deluge of revolutionary insurgency championed by Roosevelt which threatened the old foundations of our glorious republic."

Settling Bets in New York. New York, Nov. 9.—This was the day for cashing in on election bets and one Tammany election captain hired an express wagon—a union express wagon—to do it. When he had made the rounds he had a full load of new hats and boxes of cigars. Down town in the financial district along the curb, on change, and up town in the hotel corridors it is estimated that fully $1,000,000 worth of bets were cashed. Fred Brooks, the old time betting commissioner, says he placed $250,000. Another broker made $5,000 in commissions and $20,000 in betting his own judgment. Oddly enough the best individual loss reported betfell a man who bet on Dix, but placed his plurality at 75,000 or better.

FOUR THOUSAND CASES OF MEASLES IN MONTREAL

Montreal, Nov. 8.—That measles are spreading at an alarming rate in the city, especially in the new wards, was made known in a report to the board of control by Dr. J. E. Laberge this morning. Asked about the prevalence of the disease, Dr. Laberge said: "It is very serious, indeed. Last week 163 cases were reported, but this does not represent one-twentieth of the number of cases in the city, and suburbs. The people in the newly-annexed wards do not take sufficient precautions, and the doctors do not report the cases, since where one child had measles, all the others in the house would have to remain away from school. To avoid this and please the parents the doctors neglect to report many cases. In this they are breaking the law, but it is very hard to reach them."

Dr. Laberge's report shows that there are 800 cases of measles already on hand, and their number is increasing every day. Several more schools will probably be closed in a day or two in St. Henri and in Cote des Neiges, but so far only two have been closed.

THREE CHILDREN PERISH BY FIRE IN SASKATCHEWAN

Buchanan, Sask., Nov. 8.—Word has reached here of the death by suffocation of three children of A. Todd during the absence of their parents.

The fire started in the wood box and when the mother came in from milking she found her six-month-old baby dead under the bed in the main room, where it had been carried by a child only three or four years old, the eldest of the family. The second child died five hours later, and the distracted mother ran to two or three neighboring houses imploring some one to go for a doctor, but no one responded.

Word reached town the following day and a doctor went out, but was unable to save the life of the eldest child.

MR. LIKELY'S BIG PURCHASE OF PROPERTY

A deal has been closed whereby Joseph A. Likely secures possession of a block of land on the Marsh creek, for the purpose of establishing a sawmill and lumber pond. The land was secured from the Gilbert estate and the deeds were signed and the transfer made.

The land secured comprised 75 feet on each side of the Every Day Club grounds and 300 feet to the eastward. It appears that some years ago, the athletic grounds were enlarged by adding two strips, one on each side, seventy-five feet wide, or 150 feet in all. This part has now been sold to Mr. Likely, and it is understood that he has an option from the Barker estate for the balance of the athletic grounds. The additional 500 feet commences from the east fence of the grounds, and goes out toward the One-Mile house, back of the store occupied by Ira B. Kierstead, and comes to the Marsh road for a frontage of about 300 feet.

It is understood that the Likely firm will expend about $45,000 for a new mill and timber pond, and it is expected also that a bridge will be built across the creek from the I.O.R. to the property so that cars of timber can be shunted directly to the property. It is suggested that the cars could be dumped on the bridge and the timber taken directly into the creek which would form the pond for the timber.

It is stated that there are several other projects for the development of the land in that vicinity and announcements of interest may be expected soon.

C. E. Macmillan, one of the executors of the Barker estate, said when asked about the matter that no option had been given, but they had told Mr. Likely that before they sold they would give him an opportunity to bid on the property.

Previous to that time he was with the Missoula Mercantile company.

Mr. McKeown is a brother of Hon. H. A. McKeown, supreme court judge.

JORDAN SUMMER HOME OFFERED AS A SANITARIUM. Hon. C. W. Robinson Will Sell to Province on Generous Terms. Moncton, N. B., Nov. 8.—(Special)—It is true that Mrs. J. C. Jordan has offered her beautiful summer residence at the Glades to the provincial government for a tuberculosis sanitarium, said Hon. C. W. Robinson today. Mr. Robinson said: "I communicated Mrs. Jordan's offer to the prime minister a short time ago and he has been active in looking into the matter. Already two members of the tuberculosis commission, Dr. Botsford of Moncton, and Dr. McAveney of St. John, have visited the place and reported on Saturday Hon. Mr. Hazen visited the Glades, accompanied by F. W. Sumner of Moncton. It is also understood that a full meeting of the members of the tuberculosis commission will be held at the Glades in the near future.

"Mrs. Jordan's magnificent offer includes the greater part of her lands at River Glade, consisting of several hundred acres, a palatial residence and stables, together with all furniture, except a few personal effects, pictures, etc. Mrs. Jordan reserves for herself only the cottage as a home when she may visit the home land."

Mr. Robinson says the location is a good one. Mrs. Jordan expects to be in New Brunswick in December to look after the property.

What Aviators Risk Their Necks For. Paris, Nov. 8.—Frank Reuchel, a sporting expert, has just compiled a list of prizes won by aviators since the Rheims meeting a year ago, when the new science made its brilliant debut at a money-making profession. According to these official figures men have risked their necks for big sums, the prizes amounting to $12,655.

Paulhan, the largest individual winner, is credited with $82,033, which includes the $50,000 London-Manchester prize.

Morane is close behind with $32,000. Rogier, who is fourth in the list absent, oneed flying after a fall from causes he could not determine.

The prizes listed are a list of American prize winners with $16,000 won by Brooks next.

THE EXTREMISTS

Since the election in Drummond-Arthabaska several Canadian newspapers have indulged in statements calculated to produce the impression that the writers were either very much excited about something or were trying to convince their public that such was the case.

Meantime it has been suddenly discovered in London that Canada is about to read the Empire in pieces through its trade negotiations with the United States. This discovery has been made by the London Standard, which, if memory serves, was recently sold by Mr. C. Arthur Pearson to some other gentlemen ever more committed to centralization and reactionary tendencies than himself.

The Standard says: "Let us be perfectly frank. Commercial arrangements between Canada and the United States must and can only be the thin end of the wedge of political union."

The "evil eye" is also responsible for many afflictions that befall. Mohammed believed in the evil eye. Because of this notion men should never admire, praise or encourage those who are rich, successful or lucky.

It is not strange that the notion of good and bad luck had such power among primitive peoples, but it is strange that the thought persists today in spite of our reason and knowledge of cause and effect.

The London Standard may possibly have in mind the idea that Canada is about to embrace free trade, or that it is about to ask Washington for certain trade favors, and that these negotiations represent some attempt on the part of a portion of the people of this country to make an alliance with the Republic such as would be injurious to the Empire.

Fortunately, the men who govern the United Kingdom today, and the chief figures in the Unionist party as well, are by no means impressed or deceived by any such statements as those which the Standard makes.

GOOD AND BAD LUCK There is an old story of a king, who finding that an honest miller in his domain had an overmastering desire to grow rich, ordered a large cake to be made, filled with silver coins and then sent to the miller.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses.

FAMOUS GEMS OF PROSE

GOD IS A PERSON WHO THINKS AND LOVES By Rev. J. J. Spaulding, D. D. Bishop of Peoria, Ill

THE objection of Mr. Spencer, Matthew Arnold and other agnostics, that personality is limitation, and consequently that it is a delusion to suppose that "God is a person who thinks and loves," and that the most we can say is that He is "the unknowable power behind phenomena," or "the stream of tendency by which all things fulfill the law of their being," or "the eternal not-selves which makes for righteousness," seems indeed to be formidable.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

BURNING DAYLIGHT, Elam Harnish, is introduced to the reader as he enters a Circle City dance hall, saloon and gambling house like the whirlwind that he is.

Possessed of a tidy fortune and sure of making a vast one, Burning Daylight proceeds to stir up the life of the gambling house. The men and women all admire him, for he is of the type that dominates.

Essentially a man's man, Burning Daylight resents, or rather fears, the wiles of the women who frequent the dance hall. But he is afraid to be even civil to a woman, because he dreads the idea of being mastered by anybody or anything, and to surrender to a woman means, in his mind, that he is conquered.

Drink leads to boasting, and in the turmoil that follows Burning Daylight shows his amazing muscular strength. He wins all the tests and downes all the giants that come before him.

Then comes a poker game—the greatest ever played in the Klondike. Burning Daylight's luck deserts him at the end, and he rises from the table penniless—worse than "broke."

Then the indomitable courage of this master among men shows itself. He declares himself in readiness to accomplish an impossible task—to run the mail to Dyea and back with a dog team and an Indian.

And so Burning Daylight goes forth, over the frozen, trackless wastes, while behind him bets are made and taken on the chances of his returning inside of sixty days.

As the indomitable man goes on his way the difficulties that come to him seem too vast to be overcome, and his hardy Indian companion and his dogs are remorselessly prodded on by this man from the Southland, who by all the odds, should be the softer and should succumb first. At last the Indian breaks. He is lashed to the sled, and, thus handicapped, Daylight gets to Dyea.

For the return the indomitable man gets a fresh Indian and new dogs, and the terrific journey is repeated. At Selkirk Daylight is two days late, but he gets a new dog team, and the rest is easy. He reaches Circle City and plunges into the "rival," winning his victory and the acclaim of the crowd that had seen him depart on his heartbreaking journey.

Then, without rest, this amazing man makes a wild night of it. He outdances men and women, too; wins at roulette, and then, still scorching slumber or any respiration, start at daybreak, with three partners and a dog team, for the newest gold strike in the upper country along the Stewart.

Then comes the battle for gold. Strike after strike is explored. Daylight sees himself the dominant figure along the Yukon and in the golden Dawson. Discouraged frequently, he refuses to allow life's loaded dice to beat him, and in the end comes victory and millions. He is at length a great mine owner, and the slanting big pile he had sworn to own in the Circle City dance hall days is his.

And so Daylight leaves the Yukon behind for new fields of endeavor. His departure is an event of great importance, and as the vessel swings clear this all conquering man weeps a little. He tears off his cap and waves it. "Goodby, you—all!" he called. "Goodby, you—all!"

CHAPTER XIV.

No blaze of glory did Burning Daylight descend upon San Francisco. Not only had he been forgotten, but the Klondike along with him. The world was interested in other things, and the Alaskan adventure, like the Spanish War, was an old story. Many things had happened since then, exciting things were happening every day, and the sensation space of newspapers was limited. The effect of being ignored, however, was an exhilaration. Big man as he had been in the Arctic game, it merely showed how much bigger was this new game, when a man worth eleven millions and with a history such as his passed unnoticed.

He settled down in the St. Francis Hotel, was interviewed by the cub reporters on the hotel run, and received brief paragraphs of notice for twenty-four hours. He grinned to himself and began to look around and get acquainted with the new order of things and things. He was very awkward and very self-possessed. In addition to the stiffening afforded his backbone by the conscious ownership of eleven millions, he possessed an enormous certitude. Nothing abashed him, nor was he appalled by the display and culture and power around him. It was another kind of wilderness, that was all, and it was for him to learn the ways of it, the signs and trails and water holes, where good hunting lay and the bad stretches of field and food to be avoided.

As usual, he fought shy of the women. He was still too badly scared to come to close quarters with the dashing and resplendent creatures his own millions made accessible. They looked and looked, but he concealed his timidity that he had a sense of something moving boldly among them. Nor was it his wealth alone that attracted them. He was too much a man and too much an unusual type of man. Young yet, barely thirty-six, eminently handsome, magnificently strong, almost bursting with a splendid virility, his free trail stride, never learned on pavements, and his black eyes, hinting of great spaces and unwearied with the close perspective of the city dweller, drew many a curious and wayward feminine glance. He saw, grinned knowingly to himself, and faced them as so many dangers, with a cool demeanor that was a far greater personal achievement than had they been famine, frost or food.

He had come down to the States to play the man's game, not the woman's game, and the men he had not yet learned. They struck him as soft—soft physically, yet he divined them hard in their dealings, but hard under an exterior of supple softness. It struck him that there was something catlike about them. He met them in the clubs and wondered how real was the good fellowship they displayed and how quickly they would unseat their claws and gouge and rend. "That's the proposition," he repeated to himself. "What will they all do when the play is close and down to brass tacks?" He felt unwarrantably suspicious of them. "They're sure sick," was his secret judgment, and from bits of gossip dropped now and again he felt his judgment well buttressed. On the other hand, they radiated an atmosphere of manliness and the fair play that goes with manliness. They might gouge and rend in a fight—which was no more than natural—but he felt, somehow, that they would gouge and rend according to rule. This was the impression he got of them—a generalization tempered by knowledge that there was bound to be a certain percentage of scoundrels among them.

Several months passed in San Francisco, during which time he studied the game and its rules and prepared himself to take a hand. He even took private instruction in English and succeeded in eliminating his worst faults, though in moments of excitement he was prone to lapse into "you-all," "knowed," "sure" and similar solecisms. He learned to eat and dress and generally comport himself after the manner of civilized man; but through it all he remained himself, not unduly reverential nor considerate and never hesitating to stride roughshod over any soft faced convention if it got in his way and the provocation were great enough. Also—and unlike the average run of weaker men coming from back countries and far places—he failed to reverence the particular tin gods worshipped variously by the civilized tribes of men. He had seen totems before and knew them for what they were.

Tiring of being merely an onlooker, he ran up to Nevada, where the new gold mining boom was fairly started—just to try a flutter," as he phrased it to himself. The flutter on the Tonopah Stock Exchange lasted just ten days, during which time his smashing, wild bull game played ducks and drakes with the more stereotyped gamblers, and at the end of which time, having gathered Florida into his flat, he let go for a net profit of half a million. Whereupon, smacking his lips, he departed for San Francisco and the St. Francis Hotel. It tasted good and his hunger for the game became more acute.

And once more the papers sensationalized him. Burning Daylight was a big letter headline again. Interviewers flocked about him. Old files of magazines and newspapers were searched through and the romantic and historic Elam Harnish, Adventurer of the Frost, King of the Klondike and Father of the Sourdoughs, strode upon the breakfast table of a million homes along with the toast and breakfast foods. Even before his elected time he was forcibly launched into the game. Financiers and promoters and all the fetsam and jetsam of the sea of speculation surged upon the shores of his eleven millions. In self-defence he was compelled to open offices. He had made them sit up and take notice, and now, willy-nilly, they were dealing him hands and clamoring for him to play. Well, play he would; he'd show 'em, even despite the elated prophecies made of how swiftly he would be trimmed—prophecies coupled with descriptions of the buccolic game he would play and of his wild and woolly appearance.

He dabbled in little things at first—"stalling for time," as he explained it to Holdsworth, a friend he had made at the Alta-Pacific Club. Daylight himself was a member of the club and Holdsworth had proposed him. And it was well that Daylight played closely at first, for he was astounded by the multitude of sharks—"ground sharks," he called them—that stocked about him. He saw through their schemes readily enough and even marvelled that such numbers of them could find sufficient prey to keep them going. Their rascality and general dubiousness was so transparent that he could not understand how any one could be taken in by them.

And then he found that there were sharks and sharks. Holdsworth treated him more like a brother than a mere fellow clubman, watching over him, advising him, and introducing him to the magnates of the local financial world. Holdsworth's family lived in a delightful bungalow near Memo Park, and here Daylight spent a number of weekends, seeing a fineness and kindness of home life of which he had never dreamed. Holdsworth was an enthusiast over flowers and a half lunatic over raising prize poultry, and these engrossing madnesses were a source of perpetual joy to Daylight, who looked on in tolerant good humor. Such amiable weaknesses tokened the healthfulness of the man and drew Daylight closer to him. A prosperous, successful business man without great ambition, was Daylight's estimate of him—a man too easily satisfied with the small stakes of the game ever to launch out in big play.

On one such week end visit Holdsworth let him in on a good thing, a good little thing, a brickyard at Glen Ellen. Daylight listened closely to the other's description of the situation. It was a most reasonable venture, and Daylight's one objection was that it was so small a matter and so far out of his line; and he went into it only as a matter of friendship. Holdsworth explaining that he was himself already in a bit, and that, while it was a good thing, he would be compelled to make sacrifices in other directions to develop it. Daylight advanced the capital, $50,000, and, as he laughingly explained afterward, "I was stung, all right, but it wasn't Holdsworth that did it half so much as those blasted chickens and fruit trees of his."

It was a good lesson, however; for he learned that there were new faiths in the business world, and that even the simple, homely faith of breaking bread and eating salt counted for little in the face of a worthless brickyard and fifty thousand dollars in cash. But the sharks and sharks of various orders and degrees, he concluded, were on the surface. Deep down, he divined, were the integrities and the stabilities. These big captains of industry and masters of finance, he decided, were the men to work with. By the very nature of their huge deals and enterprises they had to play fair. No room there for little sharpers' tricks and bunco games. It was to be expected that little men should salt gold mines with a shotgun and work off their worthless brickyards on their friends, but in high finance such methods were not worth while. There the men were engaged in developing the country, organizing its railroads, opening up its mines, making accessible its vast natural resources. Their play was bound to be big and stable. "They sure can't afford tin-horn tactics" was his summing up.

So it was that he resolved to leave the little men, to play, alone; and, while he met them in good fellowship, he chummed with none and formed no deep friendships. He did not dislike the little men, the men of the Alta-Pacific, for instance. He merely did not elect to choose them for partners in the big game in which he intended to play. What that big game was, even he did not know. He was waiting to find it. And in the meantime he played small hands, investing in several arid land reclamation projects and keeping his eyes open for the big chance when it should come along.

And then he met John Dowsett, the great John Dowsett. The whole thing was fortuitous. This cannot be doubted. As Daylight knew himself, it was by the merest chance, when in Los Angeles, that he heard the tuna were running strong at Santa Catalina and went over himself instead of returning directly to San Francisco as he had planned. There he met John Dowsett, resting off for several days in the middle of a fly-bug Western trip. Dowsett had, of course, heard of the spectacular Klondike King and his rumored thirty millions, and he certainly found himself interested by the man in the acquaintance that was formed. Somewhere along in this acquaintanceship the idea must have popped into his brain. But he did not broach it, preferring to mature it carefully. So he talked in large general ways and did his best to be agreeable and win Daylight's friendship.

It was the first big magnate Daylight had met face to face, and he was pleased and charmed. There was such a kindly humanness about the man, such a genial democraticness, that Daylight found it hard to realize that this was the John Dowsett, reputed of a string of banks, insurance manipulator, president of the lieutenants of vast fortunes and known ally of the Hammersmiths. Nor did his looks belie his reputation and his manner.

Physically, he guaranteed all that Daylight knew of him. Despite his sixty years and snow white hair, his handshake was firmly hearty, and he showed no signs of decrepitude, walking with a quick, snappy step, making all movements definitely and decisively. His skin was a healthy pink, and his thin, clean lips knew the way to writhe heartily over a joke. He had honest eyes of palest blue; they looked out at one keenly and frankly from under shaggy grey brows. His mind showed itself disciplined and orderly, and his workings struck Daylight as having all the certitude of a steel trap. He was a man who knew and who never decorated his knowledge with foolish frills of sentiment or emotion. That he was accustomed to command was patent, and every word and gesture tinged with power. Combined with this were his sympathy and tact, and Daylight could note easily enough all the earmarks that distinguished him from a little man of the Holdsworth calibre. Daylight knew also his history, the prime old American stock from which he had descended, his own war record, the John Dowsett before him who had been one of the banking buttresses of the cause of the Union, the Commodore Dowsett of the War of 1812, the General Dowsett of Revolutionary fame, and that first far Dowsett, owner of lands and slaves in early New England.

"He's sure the real thing," he told one of his fellow clubmen afterward in the smoking room of the Alta-Pacific. "I tell you, Gallion, he was a genuine surprise to me. I knew the big ones had to be like that, but I had to see him to really know it. He's one of the fellows that does things. You can see it sticking out all over him. He's one in a thousand, that's straight, and his workings struck Daylight as having all the certitude of a steel trap. and placing mining and maybe in purchasing a mining canoe. And maybe I stand a better chance to learn the game he's been playing all his life than he would stand of learning the game I played up north."

CHAPTER XV.

IT was not long afterward that Daylight came on to New York. A letter from John Dowsett was the cause—a simple little typewritten letter of several lines. But Daylight had thrilled as he read it. He remembered the thrill that was his, a callow youth of fifteen, when, in Tampa Bay, through lack of a fourth man, Tom Galsworthy, the gambler, had said, "Get in, kid; take a hand." That thrill was his now. The bald, typewritten sentences of light attenuated cheer, and not a private motor seemed gorged with mystery. "Our Mr. Howison will call upon you at your hotel. He is to be trusted. We must not be seen together. You will understand after we have had our talk." Daylight combed the words over and over. That was it. The big game had arrived, and it looked as if he were being invited to sit in and take a hand. Surely for no other reason would one man so preemptively invite another man to make a journey across the continent. He met, thanks to "our" Mr. Howison, up the Hudson, in a snugly cozy room, a private motor car which had been furnished him. Whose car it was he did not know any more than did he know the owner of the house, with its generous rolling, tree studded lawn. Dowsett was already there, and another man whom Daylight recognized had just been introduced. Daylight had seen his face a score of times in the magazines and newspapers and read about his standing in the financial world. He likewise struck Dowsett as a man of power, though he was puzzled in that he could find no likeness to Dowsett. Except in the matter of cleanliness, a cleanliness that seemed to go down to the deepest fibres of him, Nathaniel Letton was unlike the other in every particular. This to Daylight, he seemed a cold flame of a man, a man of a mysterious chemistry, a sort of flame, who under a glacierlike exterior conveyed the impression of the ardent heat of a thousand suns. His large gray eyes were mainly responsible for this feeling, and they blazed out feverishly from what was almost a deathly dead, skin that was the face, the skin of which was a ghastly, dull, dead white, more than fifty, looked several times the age of Dowsett. Yet Nathaniel Letton possessed control; Daylight could see that plainly. He was a thin faced ascetic, living in a state of abject poverty, a broken plant under a translucent ice sheet. He had all the seeming of having been purged by fire. Daylight had the feeling that a healthy man on earth would be a deadly offence to his ears, a sacrilege and a blasphemy.

They drank; that is, Nathaniel Letton took mineral water served by the smoothly operating machine of a lackey who inhabited the place, while Dowsett took Scotch and soda and Daylight a cocktail. Nobody seemed to notice the unusualness of the party that night, though Daylight looked sharply for the very thing, for he had long since learned that Martinis and their strictly appointed times and places. But he liked Martinis, and, being a natural man, he chose deliberately to drink when he could. He had noticed this peculiar habit of his, but not so Dowsett and Letton; and Daylight's secret thought was—"They sure wouldn't bat an eye if I called for a glass of corrosive sublimate."

Echoes! Daylight could not escape the shock of the phrase. Echoes had cut down to them of the feat into which he had flung all his strength and the strength of his Klondike millions. The Hammersmiths sure must go some when a fight of that dimension was no more than a skirmish of which they declined to hear echoes. "They sure play an almighty big game down here," was his conclusion, accompanied by a corresponding elation that it was just precisely that almighty big game in which he was about to be invited to play a hand. For the moment he poignantly regretted that rumor was not true and that his eleven millions were not in reality thirty millions. Well, that much he would be frank about; he would let them know exactly how many stacks of chips he could buy.

John Hammersmith was young and cat. Not a day more than thirty, his face, save for the admirably put backs under the eyes, was as smooth and lineless as a boy's. He, too, gave the impression of cleanliness. He showed in the pink of health; the unblemished, smooth shaven skin of the face shouted advertisement of his splendid physical condition. In the face of that perfect skin, his very fineness and mature rotund paunch could be nothing other than normal. He was constituted to be prone to fatness, that was all.

The talk soon centred down to business, though Hammersmith had first to say his say about the forthcoming international yacht race and about his own palatial steam yacht, the Electra, whose recent engines were already antiquated. Dowsett broached the plan, aided by an occasional remark from the other two, while Daylight asked questions. Whatever the proposition was, he was going into it with his eyes open. And they filled his eyes with the practical vision of what they had in mind.

FIGURES THAT TELL STORIES
TOWN AND COUNTRY
IN Canada, as in every other country, the condition shown in the picture is one of the greatest worries of those who have an eye for the future-the tendency of population to leave the country and heap up in cities. The figures are based upon a table in the last census showing growth of population in all towns and cities in the Dominion which in 1901, had over 5,000 people. These only are here counted as town dwellers, and all the rest as country dwellers. The figures show that whereas at the time of the first census the country dwellers were eight times as numerous as the town dwellers, at the last census they were only three times as numerous. Or, to look at the figures in another way, while the rural population increased only 25 per cent., the urban population has increased 300 per cent. And there is every indication that when the census is taken next year, the condition that when the census is taken next year, the condition will be found "exactly the same, only more so," and this notwithstanding the fact that we have millions of acres of virgin land and are spending millions of dollars to people that land with immigrant farmers. Dwellers in any city can observe the tendency of population by contrasting the growth of their city with the comparative-perhaps even absolute-stagnation of the country round about, and can judge what the census of 1911 is likely to reveal in this respect. In the decade preceding 1901 Toronto increased by 27,000; it grows that much every year nowadays. Winnipeg increased 17,000 in ten years before the last census. What would Winnipeg be now? An increase of less than 2,000 a year now! Vancouver grew from nothing to 13,000 between 1881 and 1891 and then doubled to 26,000 in the next decade. Does anybody suppose it has only maintained this rate of growth since then? There were only 19,000 people in all British Columbia in 1901, of whom 50,000, or about one in three, were in the two big cities of Vancouver and Victoria. Knowing what we do of the growth of these cities, to say nothing of the other railway, mining and fruit-handling centres that have developed, can we hope that, even in that new country, rural growth has kept pace with urban? At the rate at which we are going the cry will soon be raised in Canada which has been raised elsewhere, "back to the land!"
