

Flour is essential but— it is not your work!

Flour varies from time to time in baking quality. This is because wheat continually varies according to soil conditions, etc.

Therefore, if baking results are to be constantly high, baking tests are essential. It is unreasonable to expect you to make these tests at your expense.

PURITY

So from each shipment of wheat delivered at our mills we take a ten pound sample. This is ground into flour. Bread is baked from the flour. If this bread is high in quality and large in quantity, we use the shipment. Otherwise we sell it.

By simply asking for FLOUR bearing this name you can always be sure of more bread and better bread.

Worthy of the world's best music

To most of us the chance to hear human playing of good music comes infrequently. Only in the great cities are the appetites of the music-hungry satisfied. Even then one can hear but a small part of all the worth while concerts.

Fortunately for those who love the masters of the past, and who have the judgment to recognize in present day composers the masters of the future, there is the Edison Phonograph. It is worthy of Wagner, of Bach, of Puccini. The clear, sweet tone, remarkable in its purity, is simply a translation of human music into your own home. Unless you have heard the newest Edison, you have no conception of their wonderful mellow quality. You never realized that such beauty could be applied to sound.

Ask your Edison dealer to play one of the Blue Amberol Records—then you will know that the whole world of good music—past and present—is open to you.

PROTECTING THE HEALTH OF LIVE STOCK

Report of the Animals Branch of The Dominion Department of Agriculture

The Report of the Health of Animals Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture for the year ending March 31st, 1913, is out. This is the first report issued by Dr. F. Torrance, as Veterinary Director General. This Branch of the Federal service has assumed large proportions covering as it does, the control of import quarantine stations; the control of movements of animals within the Dominion with regard to contagious diseases and the inspection of meats and canned goods.

In the course of a lengthy statement regarding inspection conditions the report says:—

The necessity for a rigid inspection of meat-food animals is apparent when, in establishments under inspection, there were condemned as diseased and unfit for human food, 7,288 carcasses and 624,882 portions; yet the number slaughtered in these establishments represents only about fifty per cent of the total kill in the Dominion. The animals brought to inspection plants are selected and apparently healthy, the managements knowing well that to slaughter an animal affected with disease means its condemnation and loss, yet, in spite of the care exercised by their buyers, disease found on post-mortem were responsible for the destruction of the number of carcasses and portions above mentioned.

The conditions surrounding the slaughter, and the healthfulness of the meat obtained from the other fifty per cent of animals, slaughtered without inspection or supervision of any kind, may be imagined when it comprises animals refused by packers as suspicious, as well as those showing unmistakable ante-mortem evidences of disease, together with its quota of those, the healthfulness of which can only be decided by a careful post-mortem examination conducted by a qualified and trained veterinary meat inspector.

It is to be regretted that Boards of Health have been so long neglectful of this matter, although there are no doubt many difficulties to overcome in establishing a proper system of local and municipal meat inspection. It must come, however, but until municipal bodies bestir themselves, so long will a great percentage of the meat-eating people be served with unclean and unsound meat foods which cannot be other than a menace to health.

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it as every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases that so often follow. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures, and is pleasant to take. For sale by all dealers.

SUFFERED AGONY WITH NEURALGIA

Nothing Helped Her Until She Tried "Fruit-a-lives"

CAMPBELLVILLE, ONT., May 5th, 1913. "I cannot speak too highly of 'Fruit-a-lives'. For over thirty years, I have suffered from Chronic Neuralgia and Constipation, experiencing untold agony. I would not have my present health if it was not for 'Fruit-a-lives' and I am glad of the opportunity of giving you this letter about such a splendid remedy as 'Fruit-a-lives', for the guidance of other women who may be similarly affected."

GOLDEN WEDDING AT JACQUET RIVER

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lawlor Hold The Fiftieth Anniversary of Their Wedding

Friday evening, Feb. 6th being the 50th anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lawlor, their many friends and relatives gathered to offer them congratulations.

The aged couple received many congratulatory letters and gifts from relatives and friends abroad, among them being a beautiful remembrance from a god-child, Reverend St. Ignace of the Villa Marie, Montreal.

During the evening a beautifully worded address was read by Mrs. Paul Doyle, and a substantial purse of gold was presented by Miss Marguerite McGovern.

The worthy couple responded to the address in a few well chosen words wishing all present a similar happiness.

Mr. Arthur Culligan, M. L. A., was then called upon and in a very appropriate speech he referred to the many estimable qualities of the couple who were respected by the whole community for their genial and lovable dispositions. After the assembled company sang "Put on your Old Grey Bonnet" and "Silver Threads among the Gold".

During the evening, dancing was indulged in and a beautiful repast was served.

Melanson, Mr. and Mrs. John Culligan, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Salter, Mr. and Mrs. John Lawlor, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Ullman, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Ullman, Mr. and Mrs. John McGovern, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Culligan, Misses Annis and Lizzie Ullman, Ethel and Josephine Doyle, Annie Lawlor, Marguerite and Gladys McGovern, Florence, Edna, Mabel, Sue and Clare Culligan, Pray Devereaux, Anna, Lila and May Killoran, Messrs. ### GIVE THAT PUNY CHILD THIS GUARANTEED REMEDY

If your child is under-weight, listless, languid, unable to get clean, easily it needs a medicine to build its weight and strength. For this purpose there is nothing else we know of that we can so strongly endorse as Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. The remarkable success of this splendid medicine is due to the fact that it contains ingredients that fine the nerves, enrich the blood and furnish to the entire system the strength, weight and health-building substances it needs. And it does all this without injuring the stomach. In fact, Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is not only pleasant to take, but even the most sensitive stomach is benefited by it, and the digestion improved. On the other hand, it contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs, which most parents object to giving their children. It does its good work by taking hold of the weakness and builds the body up to its natural strength, at the same time making it strong to resist disease.

If Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion doesn't build your child up, feed the stunted, puny muscles, and make the little lively, strong, well, and full of the animal spirits children are meant by nature to have, come back and tell us and get your money back. We don't want you to lose a cent. We think this is no more than fair, and it leaves you no cause to hesitate. For old people who are nervous, tired-out, run-down, and feel that the same medicine will build them up, too, Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is the same guarantee. Entire satisfaction or money back. Sold only at the 7,000

WOULD BURN BOOKS ON BOSTON COMMON

Rev. Dr. Van Allen Severe in His Denunciation of Present-Day Fiction

(Boston Advertiser).
The club was celebrating the 102nd anniversary of the birth of Charles Dickens. Dr. Van Allen's topic was "Dickens and Human Sympathy."

He declared that the art of to-day was inferior to the art of the Renaissance, or the 13th century. Buildings built in that time, he said, are still standing, and to-day people still made long pilgrimages to see the wonderful works of art.

"Imagine people making pilgrimages to see our American buildings 700 years from now," said he. "Most of the buildings of to-day will be in ashes 300 years from now."

Speaking of Dickens' work, he declared: "It isn't art, it is the real thing, life. The characters he pictures are living flesh and blood. This is the supreme test in story writing."

Dr. David Studholm, in sharp contrast to the statement of Rev. Dr. Van Allen, declared that the modern novel and short story are now the most vital art we have.

Rev. Edward A. Horton classed modern day writings, for the greater part, as divided in three bad kinds which came upon the people like an avalanche. The three kinds are Incoherent, or effervescent writing, introspective labyrinthine metriculous and contagious.

SEVERE COLD ON LUNGS AND CHEST QUICKLY RELIEVED

by Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne
Mr. J. Seward, Bromptonville, Que., writes:

"Two weeks ago I took a severe cold which settled on my lungs and my chest was very sore, breathing tight and severe hacking cough. I was feeling miserable. I bought a bottle of Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne and after a few doses I felt great relief and I went into a sound sleep, a thing I was not able to do for some nights. Next day I was able to be around again, and before completing the bottle, felt as well as ever. It is a fine cough and cold cure."

Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne relieves the irritation and "stuffed-up" feeling in the air passages, soothes the tickling which makes you cough, loosens the phlegm and drives out the cold before it gets troublesome.

In 25c and 50c bottles, at your Druggist's National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited.

DEBT OF CANADA INCREASED LAST MONTH

Revenue in January Shows a Decline While Expenditures is Not Curtailed

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—The debt of Canada increased last month almost eleven million dollars, the exact figures, according to the statement of the Finance Department being $10,821,765. This brings the net debt to the handsome figure of $314,883,870. While the debt is swelling, the revenue is shrinking. Last month it amounted to only $11,529,753, while in January, the year before, the revenue was $13,442,378, the falling off in revenue for the month, therefore, amounting to almost two million dollars. Expenditure for the month is given at $17,100,446, an increase of about a million and a half.

A BROKER'S NERVE

Labouchere's grandfather, Pierre Caesar, was one of Napoleon's brokers. On one occasion Pierre Caesar was sent by John Hope (his employer) to England, to see Sir Francis Baring on some business and fell in love with Sir Francis' third daughter, Dorothy. Before leaving England he asked Sir Francis to permit him to become engaged to his daughter. Sir Francis refused. Pierre Caesar then said, "Would it make any difference to your decision if you knew that Mr. Hope is about to take me into partnership?" Sir Francis hesitatingly admitted that it would.

Pierre Caesar then went back to Holland and suggested to Mr. Hope that he might be taken into partnership. On Mr. Hope's discouraging the idea, he said: "Would it make any difference to your decision if you knew I was engaged to the daughter of Sir Francis Baring?" Mr. Hope replied, "Certainly." Whereupon the wily clerk said: "Well, I am engaged to M<sup>rs</sup> Dorothy Baring." That very day he was able to write to Sir Francis announcing the news of his admission to partnership at the house of Hope, and the same letter he delivered the hand of his bride.

THE AGRICULTURAL GAZETTE OF CANADA

With the coming of the New Year, there has appeared in the field of Canadian journalism a new agricultural magazine which promises to serve a most useful purpose. At no time in the history of the world has the cause of agriculture been accorded the support it now receives from legislative bodies, and in no country has the industry been more wisely or generously helped than in Canada. The Dominion and provincial governments exercise the utmost diligence and concern in their efforts to solve the problems that confront the farmer; to this work increased impetus has been given by the coming into force of the Agricultural Instruction Act, which serves as a medium for co-operative effort.

With a view to bringing together information concerning the work of the federal and provincial Departments of Agriculture there has been commenced the publication of the Agricultural Gazette of Canada, the first number of which has just made its appearance.

While this magazine is edited and published at Ottawa its value is greatly increased by the co-operation of the officials of the Provincial Departments. The January number is evidently preparatory for what is to follow, as it is devoted chiefly to accounts of the organization and development of the several departments of Agriculture in Canada and statements of appropriations by which they are enabled to carry on their work. It contains also the full text of the Agricultural Instruction Act, the agreement with each of the provinces and a statement of the appropriations under the Act for the present year and the work made possible thereby.

In his "Foreword," the Honourable Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, points out that the magazine is not to enter into general circulation, but is to supply the press and those engaged in official agricultural work with facts and information relating to the educational and scientific side of agriculture. To these it is supplied free. For others a small additional number of copies will be printed from month to month, for which ten cents per copy or one dollar per year will be charged.

The magazine, which is clothed in a dignified cover, presents a very attractive appearance, being printed on high class, coated paper, which does full credit to the photo engravings of the Dominion and Provincial Ministers of Agriculture that appear in the first number.

"Tis but a man, retorted the goat, as it went at it in a business way."

The Sable Lorcha

By Horace J. Ashton.

A touch upon my shoulder aroused me to realization of my surroundings, and informed me that I was not alone. Startled as one awakened abruptly from a dream, I turned, and turning, there came a revulsion. Every surcharging emotion that had held and bound me gave way instantly to a violent self-reproach, excited by the pathos of Evelyn's sad, questioning eyes and sadder, quivering mouth.

My impulse was to take her in my arms, and pacifying, to plead pardon for what must have seemed to her an inexcusable churlishness. But the conditions which so recently she had set upon me forbidding the coveted embrace, I compromised on a hand-clasp.

"My dear child," I began, earnestly, "I'm sorry. But then you must know how what we just saw and heard distressed me. I think I have been mad since we left that room. I hardly know what I have been doing. To see him so unstrung, demented, raving. To hear him—"

But she would not allow me to finish.

"Philip!" she cried, passionately. "Oh, Philip! Can't you see? Don't you understand? It is a mistake, an awful nightmare of a mistake. That creature over there is not my uncle. I am convinced that he is not my Uncle Robert."

CHAPTER XX

An Enigma and Its Solution.

To my amazement I found that Evelyn meant more than I fancied. My interpretation of her words was that Cameron was not in his right mind—that he was not her Uncle Robert, as she had known him. But in a very brief moment she disabused me.

"It is not he, at all," she declared, with emphasis. "There is a resemblance, yes. But the man you found in the street is not Robert Cameron; I am sure of that."

The idea that I had brought there, not my friend, but my friend's double, seemed to me too preposterous for a moment's entertainment. I fear I suspected, just then, that Evelyn's reason had been warped a trifle by the racking scene of which we had been witnesses.

"I would to God, my dear child," I said, sympathetically, "that you were right. But there can be no question as to the identity of the sick man. Every one who has seen him recognized him at once—Checkabeedy, Louis, Stephen, Dr. Massey, No, No, Evelyn, you must not be misled by his ravings."

And at this point there occurred to me a tentative explanation—one in which I did not in the least believe, but which, at all events, was worth trying. One which, indeed, I prayed would serve.

"Cameron, you must remember, has been with his Chinese captors for four weeks. In that time he must have picked up something of their language. It is only natural that he should. So, you see, to hear him use a few words of pidgin-English in his insane babbling is not so remarkable, after all. And as for that spirited denial just before he dropped off to sleep, it is very evident, that they accused him of something with which he had no connection, though quite cognizant of the facts."

But the girl would have none of it. Tolerantly she listened, and tolerantly she smiled when I had finished.

"No, no, Philip," she insisted, "I see it all quite clearly. Whatever crime was committed, the creature lying there committed it. But he is not my uncle. Others mistook the resemblance for identity, just as you did. Only the situation was reversed."

It was an ingenious notion, but of course it was not possible. However, I saw that it would be idle to continue to dispute with her.

"What would you suggest, then?" I asked, in pretended seriousness.

She very sagely she shook her head.

"Oh, no," she returned. "We must keep him. He is very valuable to us. Perhaps we can do as contending armies do—arrange an exchange of prisoners."

In spite of my wretchedness, I suppressed a smile. It was all very amusing; and yet the fear that she was suffering aberration due to hysteria, tempered pitifully the humor of it.

When, later in the afternoon, Dr. Massey called, I told him everything, including this hallucination of Evelyn's.

"You did perfectly right," he said, in tone of cordial approval. "The malady with which Cameron is afflicted has a tendency to distort certain lineaments, especially at times of excitement his face changes, so that Miss Evelyn is justified in fancying that this is not her uncle."

He noticed the dissimilarity myself, but it is due, of course, entirely to distorted expression. In a couple of days, at most, he will be fully restored, and then he himself will be the best one to rectify her error. Meanwhile, if I were you, I would not dispute her. She has gone through a great deal, and gone through it bravely; indeed with a courage that is quite phenomenal, and she is entitled to a little leniency in her beliefs that she chooses to entertain. And then, as if such advice were not wholly superfluous, he added: "I kind to her, Clyde be good to her. She is a wonderful young woman."

Whereat I grasped his hand, and promised him, lifting him a notch in my estimation because of his perceptivity. And all the while a lump rose in my throat and threatening my tear ducts.

On the following day I heard nothing from Miss Clement, which surprised me, though she had told me that her prospective informant were likely to take their own time. Early, on the second morning, however, I had a note from her, the enigmatic character of which impelled me to speculation.

"Dear Mr. Clyde," she wrote, "I hope you can make it convenient to visit me this evening, at the Mission. I was to talk with Ling Fo, an exceptionally well-educated young Chinaman, who tells me that his people are much mystified over a recent event; and, I what he says be true—and I never knew him to lie—a new complexion is placed upon the whole case. Can about nine-thirty, after our service is over."

well-ventilated and brightly-lighted office, or parlor, jutting off at the rear. It was situated at number five, Ilya, she gave no sign. She welcomed us both with the smiling cordiality of a life-long friend. But abruptly her smile died.

"I tried to get you on the telephone an hour ago," she explained, "but there was some trouble with the wire. I hoped to save you this journey for nothing."

"Your protegee couldn't come?" I queried.

"Unfortunately, no," she returned, with a little quaver in her voice. "My protegee will never come again. He was shot to death. Poor, poor Ling Fo!"

"Shot to death!" I cried, while Evelyn, with cheeks suddenly pale and eyes wide, held her underling fast between her teeth, and gripped hard on the arms of the rocking chair in which Miss Clement had placed her.

"Yes," And this strong, sweet-faced, gray-haired woman in gray, her momentary loss of composure quite uncovered, laid a quivering hand softly over Evelyn's tensed cloth. "Yes. That sort of thing is not unusual down here, you know. There is always more or less blood between the tongue. But it was most unfortunate, just at this time, because I feel sure he could have told you something worth learning. I'm glad he was a good boy. He was one of the few converts that are really sincere."

"I suppose he knew too much," I suggested.

But Miss Clement made no comment. I fancy it was out of consideration for Evelyn that she refrained from endorsing my conclusion; while I reproached myself for being less thoughtful. I was all the more convinced that I had voiced the motive for the shooting.

As Evelyn did not ask for particulars, I profited by the lesson thus taught and curbed my curiosity. But I was in no mood to drop the subject. From Miss Clement's note it was clear that Ling Fo had already communicated to her some of the more important facts in this connection, and of these I hoped to possess myself.

"At least," Miss Clement ventured, sharpening my wedge, "Chinatown is mystified; I understand."

She was seated, now, by her little desk, and for a moment had been turning up, searchingly, one paper after another, from a open drawer. As my observation, she paused and raised her glance, a folded sheet of note also in her hand; for a heart-beat her eyes held mine.

"Yes," she said at length. "Chinatown is all at sea, so to speak."

"Over what?" I pressed.

Slowly she unfolded the scrap of writing she held, and before replying she read it through, slowly and deliberately.

"If you don't mind," she proposed, "I would prefer not to talk about it. I am in a peculiar position here, Mr. Clyde, as you can well understand, and I can't afford to play false to those who trust me. At the same time I do not always know whom among these people to trust. Some one who knew them very well wrote, once upon a time, something like this: 'You can take a Chinaman away from his home, from his lotteries, addles and bones; you can give him the quack to the barber; but you can't get down to the roots that From the yellow base of his yellow soul.'"

And it's very true. There are those here who pretend to adore me, who would think nothing of treating me as they treated poor Ling Fo, if they suspected I knew anything and gave information."

"I don't want you to think I'm a coward, Miss Grayson," she went on, turning to Evelyn. "I think I've proved to you that I want to help you and mean to, but I'm rather upset tonight, and I'm so afraid we shall have to let matters rest a little longer. There is one thing, though, that you can do for me, if you will."

The last sentence was addressed to me, and I made haste to assure her that she had only to command me.

As she had spoken, she had been folding and refolding the paper in her hand, until it was now a tiny, one-inch square.

"Take this," she said, handing it to me, her voice a low murmur, "and after you have read it, destroy it. I shouldn't want it found in my possession."

"I understand, Miss Clement," I returned, and the folded square went into my waistcoat pocket.

"It may mean more to you," she added, in a whisper, "than anything I could say."

When once more in the brougham, speeding northward, Evelyn, who had been unusually taciturn throughout the interview, asked me a question.

"Did you mean what you said, Philip?"

"What did I say?" I queried.

"That you understood."

"I understood that it might not be well for her to have this letter of Ling Fo's about."

"But the rest? Her refusal to talk? Her uneasiness? Her fear of possible traitors?" she persisted.

"Once more she had gone straight to the heart of the situation. I had been as puzzled as she by the missionary's attitude of constraint, which I could not attribute wholly to the tragedy she had told us of; and I admitted so much to Evelyn."

A. E. ALEXANDER & SON,

GREAT LUMBER MILL IS NOW COMPLETE

Plant of Mr. A. E. Hammond is One of the Largest in Maine—Very Large Capacity

The Bangor Commercial says: An important development in the lumber manufacturing industry of Maine has just taken place in Van Buren in the completion of the large mill by A. E. Hammond, who was formerly at the head of the Van Buren Lumber Co. Mr. Hammond sold his holdings in that company to the Stetson, Cutler Co., which owns and operates large mills in St. John, N. B., Van Buren and Ashland and began last season on the erection of the plant which is now completed.

The new mill is located at Allandale, a mile and a half from the Van Buren post office on Violette stream, a tributary to the St. John river. The stream was dammed at a point just below the mill site, making a wide pond which extends about four miles up stream and affords a large storage for logs.

The main mill is 210 feet long by 50 feet wide, and the engine room is 25 feet by 60 feet. There is a boiler house that is 45 feet wide and 55 feet deep, and a small detached pump-house that is 12 feet square. A well equipped machine shop has been built, this building being 25 by 50 feet.

The shingle shed is 200 feet long and there is a storehouse 80 feet wide. The loading platform is 300 feet long and 50 feet wide.

The entire equipment of the plant is new and modern in every particular, and was selected after thorough investigation in some of the largest plants of the country to determine the best to be used for the purpose. The boilers at the plant, which is run by steam are of 600 horse-power capacity and the engines at 550 h. p.

An intimation of the size and importance of this plant on the northern boundary of the state of Maine may be had from the figures which give the annual capacity in product of the mill. These figures were furnished by Mr. Hammond. It will turn out annually 15,000,000 feet of long lumber, 20,000,000 shingles, 7,500,000 laths and 1,000,000 clap-boards.

Average	35.5

It will be seen from the above that the average consumption per head in America is between three and four times what it is in Europe. This tremendous difference can only be accounted for by assuming that the greater portion of the water consumed in New World cities is simply wasted. A consumption of 50 gallons per head per day ought to be ample for all purposes, and would still be about 43 per cent greater than the European average. Taking the American average as 150 gallons, we see that cities on this side of the Atlantic are using 100 gallons per head per day more than is necessary.

F. E. Neale Has Returned From England After Completing New Arrangements

Mr. F. E. Neale returned on Friday after his trip to England in connection with the deal shipping business formerly carried on by the firm of Frank Harrison & Co.

It is understood that Mr. Neale has been successful in completing arrangements whereby he will act as the North Shore representative of large British timber houses and will continue as before his shipments of lumber to the Old Country. This will be good news to the Miramichi lumber producers and longshoremen generally.

This Old Gentleman Cured of Rheumatism

By One Box of GIN PILLS
YARMOUTH, N.S.
"I have been bothered with Rheumatism for the past year and have taken a good many different kinds of medicine and found no relief for it. One day a friend advised me to try GIN PILLS, and after taking one box of them, I felt like a new man. I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know how thankful I am for the relief they gave me, and would advise all sufferers from Rheumatism to try GIN PILLS."

Don't bother with liniments and so-called "blood purifiers." They won't help your kidneys—and Rheumatism is caused by weak, strained or irritated kidneys. The only possible way to cure Rheumatism is to cure the kidneys. GIN PILLS will do this as nothing else will. Take GIN PILLS NOW and be free from Rheumatism this winter. See a box—6 for $2.50—and money promptly refunded if you are not satisfied. Order from us if your dealer does not handle GIN PILLS. Sample box sent free. In producing this work, the Publishers have been influenced by a desire to add to the Reference Section of "Everyman's Library" a work which shall be specially adapted for the use of these readers, particular attention having been paid to literary subjects and historical data. All new and recent developments in Science, Arts, and Industries, together with those of Politics and all other branches of thought and action, are fully described in its pages.

The work will be published in Twelve Volumes, of about 640 pages each. The type has been specially arranged so that each page will contain about 900 words, and yet be clear and legible.

The format is uniform with that of "EVERYMAN'S LIBRARY," but the paper is especially opaque, and of a pure colour, which will have the effect of making the comparatively small type unusually clear.

This fine Encyclopaedia is just off the press, and is not a cheap reprint American edition as offered by other papers, but a genuine up-to-date work from the well known English publishing house of J. M. Dent & Co., London. We are offering a limited number to paid in advance Graphic subscribers at

DWELLING BURNED

AT BLACK RIVER, N. B.

James McLean and Nephew Barely Escape With Their Lives From the Burning Building.

Chatham, N. B., Feb. 11.—On Sunday night, during the heavy gale the house of James McLean, Black River, was burned to the ground with all its contents. Mr. McLean and his little nephew, retired for the night about 10 o'clock and were sleeping soundly when they were awakened about 12 by the sound of something falling. In an instant it was found that the house was in a mass of flames and the two inmates barely escaped with their lives.

Some neighbors who saw the fire, hurried to the scene, but could do nothing to save the house, and it burned to the ground. The barns were saved. It is only about six years ago that Mr. McLean lost his barn and stock through fire; a short time later death claimed his mother and sister.

He is a son of Mr. Edward McInerney, of Richibucto, and leaves this morning for his home.

BEFORE ITS TOO LATE

Many prosperous citizens have lost their valued possessions over night. Then they kicked themselves because an outlay of a few dollars on every thousand of valuation every few years would have left them protected and prosperous. Don't be foolish. Few things are as cheap as fire insurance in the beginning, and nothing may prove more costly in the end than its lack.
