"THE OTHER MAN"—A GLASS DAY BO-MANAGE.

Oh, mother, I've had a gorgeous time! I was there from eleven till ten. Such glorious fun, such a beautiful place— and, mother, such splendid men! Oh, I wish I was a student! And, mother, I saw Conspic'us!

He has grown to be perfectly lovely, and he had a still lovelier spread.

For only think, mother, as Fan and I got out of that horrid car, Cousin-Ned came up with another man; so we didn't need dear papa.

But we gave him ourshaw's and umbrellas to hold, and Ed he went off with Fan; but he introduced me—mother, why do you frown?—to his comrade, the other young man.

He was "perfectly splendid!" We went to the church, and mother dear, wasn't it fun?

I recognized lots of fellows there before the oration was done. And, mother, what are "Peelers?" I don't it a regular sin.

For the whole Freshman class to cry "Peelers!" and make such a noise coming in.

He carried me round to the spreads, mother; it was just like a matinee ball; and then he and I had a delectable in-tomantic old Howdy Hall.

He made me smoke, mother, a wee cigarette; I drank my first glass of champagne; and I filled when he spilled ice-cream on my dress—for I told him it would stain.

Then I went to the dance round the tree, mother; it was really a beautiful scene. Though the Sophomores pushed the poor Freshmen round; I thought it was terribly mean.

While the Seniors embraced one another, with such fervent affection and vim. That, mother, I really felt jealous, when I saw all his friends giggling at her.

When he got through that horrible hugging, we went to a lot of nice stags. And then we adjourned from rooms, mother, to a quiet spot under the trees.

He was splendid! He said I was lovely.— Do you think that was quite the right thing?

And, mother, he gave me a keepsake; see here it is—only a ring.

I spoke to him by his first name, mother; you really don't think that he'd care? He called me by mine, and I didn't. I gave him a lock of my hair.

Which he kissed, and then put in his watch, mother; and a watch, you know, lies next the heart.

Papa exactly came at that moment, and I alas! had to depart.

He said he would walk to the station; now mother, dear, wasn't that kind?

Ned and Fan made remarks about "spooping," and giggled, like children, he. But, mother, dear, while we were walking—how nice it was!—down to the car, he said something "perfectly splendid."

"I'll tell you to-morrow, mamma."

"I'll pick 'em up!" exclaimed the new comer—a tall and rather aristocratic youth of twenty-one with merry blue eyes, and short auburn hair curling closely under a straw hat—diving for the missing berries with ungraceful dexterity. "Yes, it is I, of course. Have you forgotten your promise to go after lilies with me this afternoon?"

"Oh, but I didn't say this afternoon, you know, only some afternoon this week!" responded Prudence, demurely.

"Well, we'll call it this afternoon, won't we?" was the persuasive rejoinder, as the straw hat was tossed on a chair.

"I can't; I've got these berries to pick over."

"But I shall have supper to get. Mother's away, and there are biscuits to make," insisted Prudence, turning her face away to hide a smile that would curve her lips.

"Never mind that," responded Mr. Abbott Wentworth, bringing a chair to her side. "Fan's at six, isn't it? and it's only half past two. We'll be back by five, without fail, and have time to get half the lilies in the river;" and he began to assort a handful of berries with much earnestness.

"We'll," assented Prudence, after a pause for consideration and a glance at the clock—"I can go for a little while. Oh, don't stain your coat Mr. Wentworth."

But Mr. Wentworth was sublimely indifferent to his coat, and worked with such good-will that the berries were soon picked over, and Prudence and himself on their way to the river. Five minutes later Prudence, with her draperies daintily bestowed around her, was seated in the stern of a little boat, which, propelled by Mr. Wentworth's practiced hands, shot swiftly down stream.

Although Mr. Wentworth said to Prudence five times within one hour that it was a lovely day, and altho' Prudence assented every time, I hardly think they appreciated the beauty a round them, for Prudence was quite absorbed with the lilies and the reflection in the water, and Mr. Wentworth looked more at his companion than at the aspects of nature. They had gathered enough lilies to satisfy them, and Prudence was leaning backward and idly trailing one hand in the water, when she suddenly uttered a little scream, and sat erect, with white cheeks, from which the color had been frightened.

"Oh, I almost lost it! How careless I am!" she exclaimed, replacing an old-fashioned ring, set with a tiny circle of rubies, on her finger.

"Did the water sweep it off your hand?"

"I suppose so. It's too large for me. I'm always losing it and finding it again. I wouldn't lose it entirely for the world, because it used to be grandmother's. She gave it to me."

"What a curious old ring it is!" said Mr. Wentworth, with interest. "May I look at it? Don't trouble yourself to take it off," he added, drawing in his oars and leaning toward his companion.

Prudence allowed her tiny brow to lie in his aristocratic white one a moment, then coquettishly withdrew it.

"Isn't it pretty?" she inquired archly.

"Very pretty. Shall I tell you how to guard against losing it in future?"

"Oh yes, if you please."

"Wear this little ring of mine to guard it; or, better yet, exchange with me. Give me yours, and take this instead," said the young man, daringly.

Provoking Prudence looked at the heavily chased gold ring he held out to her, and then looked back at the water with an innocent.

"Oh, I do not think it would fit."

"Try it," suggested her companion softly.

Prudence shook her head, but finally agreed, blushing, that "it would not do any harm to try," and slipped the ring on her forefinger.

"It's a perfect fit!" cried Mr. Wentworth, delighted. Nothing could be better. Why, Miss Prudence, you surely don't mean to give it back.

"Of course I do," was the saucy rejoinder. "Why not?"

"Because," said Mr. Wentworth, speaking very earnestly, and disregarding his oars altogether, while he tried to get a glimpse of the face hidden by the flat hat—"because I meant to ask you to wear it always for my sake. I meant to ask you—"

"Oh, Mr. Wentworth," interrupted his listener, "do see that lily on your left! Won't you get it for me?"

"I'll get you that and twenty others if you'll listen to me first. Do you care for me? Will you marry me?"

Prudence face was turned away, and her head bent lower and lower. A crimson flush stole over ear, neck and chin.

"Prudence!"

No answer. Her companion leaned over and took her hand again, venturously.

"Prudence will you wear the ring?" he questioned.

But the hand was hastily drawn away; a pair of saucy black eyes flashed into his, and Prudence's merry laugh rang over the water.

"I'd rather have grandma's, please. I ought to go home, Mr. Wentworth, for I know it's almost tea-time."

Mr. Wentworth put his ring in his pocket, and took up the oars again energetically without a word. He was fresh from College, and had held the stroke oar in many a race, but he never made better time than he made that afternoon in rowing up the river. The light boat shot along, and the rower's brows were knitted and his teeth set. Not once did he look at Prudence, who sat in half-puzzled, half-alarmed silence, now and then stealing sideways glances at the offending young Hercules from under her hat.

Mr. Wentworth drew a breath of relief when the boat at last grated on the sand, and, having assisted Prudence to land, and curly offered to carry her lilies, he shouldered the oars and marched grimly toward the house by his side. Prudence, somewhat bewildered and more angry, made no effort to break the silence, and studiously endeavored to keep from crying. When he at last left her at the door, with a "Thank you, Miss Prudence," and departed to carry the oars to the barn, it was well he did not look back, for Miss Prudence tossed the lilies aside with a petulant gesture, and had a fit of crying, with her head on the kitchen table.

When Mr. Wentworth returned from the barn half an hour later he did see a picture that comforted him a little through the hop-wreathed pantry window. It was Prudence, with her sleeves pinned up, mauling biscuits with desperate haste, while the tears fell thickly on her high calico apron. This picture so amazed Mr. Wentworth that he retreated hastily behind a lilac-bush to observe it, and lingered so long he was late at tea.

There was a model-supper table.— There was the great dish of berries with snowy cream beside, flanked by cheese and raspberry jam. There were two mountainous plates of snowy biscuits, contrasting with the golden sponge-cake and the richer gold of butter. Mr. Wentworth, who had supposed he should never have an appetite again, felt quite revived by the sight of this table and the memory of the picture. The rest of the boarders seemed to share the sensation, for the group of muslin and broadcloth was very hilarious, and the eatables disappeared rapidly.

Prudence, presiding between the tea-pots, seemed rather out of spirits; but Father Holmes attested for her silence by unusual jollity.

When the biscuits were passed a second time to Mr. Wentworth he saw that only one was left, and he would have refused decorously, but the hospitable farmer pressed it upon him.

"Don't be afraid of it. There's plenty more in the kitchen—ain't there, Prudence?"

Thus pressed, Mr. Wentworth accepted the biscuit, and Prudence disappeared to replenish the plate. Mr. Wentworth divided the biscuit, then dropped it suddenly, with an exclamation that brought every eye upon him. There, imbedded in the light white bread, lay Prudence's ruby ring!

Such a shout of laughter arose that it brought Prudence back from the kitchen in haste, just in time to see Mr. Wentworth coolly remove the ring from the biscuit, amidst the merry choruses, and drop it in his pocket, "to be kept till called for," he said, with a significant glance at her scarlet face.

Poor Prudence! there was no peace for her after that. An army of jokes quite overwhelmed her protestation and disclaimings, and she was thankful to beat a retreat to the kitchen when the meal was over.

But even there she was pursued by a laughing trio of ladies, and harassed with questions and wou'erment and merriment until the last dish was set away, and she had seized her hat, with the excuse that she must go to the village for letters. Instead of going to the village she stole along the hedge climbed the wall, and ran to the farthest end of the orchard, where she dug herself on the ground and cried as if her heart would break.

She had, perhaps, cried half an hour before a step, crashing the dry grass at her side, roused her, and the very voice she most dreaded to hear said:

"I've come to return your ring Miss Prudence."

Poor little Prudence sat up hastily, and took the unfortunate ring with a faltering "Thank you;" then immediately hid her face again.

"You needn't thank me. I should have brought it before, but I couldn't find you. I hope you're not troubled about those ridiculous jokes," he added, diffidently.

"No," responded Prudence, miserably, between her sobs. "I thought you'd think I did it on purpose."

"How could I have thought so? It was a mere accident my getting that particular biscuit. I'm very sorry you've been so annoyed in my way. I'm going away to-morrow, Miss Prudence."

The sobs partially ceased, and Prudence said, surprised, "Are you?"

"Won't you bid me good-by?" Prudence said, "Yes," unsteadily, but did not raise her head.

"You will shake hands, won't you, Miss Prudence?"

No answer.

"I can't go away while you are offended with me. Won't you at least tell me why you are crying?"

"Because I—I lost my grandmother's ring," sobbed Prudence, making a great effort for composure.

Mr. Wentworth laughed in spite of himself.

"Why, it's safe on your finger, and not a whit the worse for its baking. Is there no other reason?"

"No."

"But there is. I shall never have another happy moment if I've offended you," said Mr. Wentworth tragically. "I was a brute to treat you as I did this afternoon; but I'm going away, and I shan't annoy you again. Won't you forgive me now, and shake hands?"

Another long silence. Mr. Wentworth turned away in despair, but was detained by a faltering voice: "I—I'll forgive you, if—"

"Well?" was the breathless interposition.

"You—won't—go—away."

ment. To use the words of one of the boarders, "That tells the whole story."

Gathering of the Howe Family.

Creation of the Hon. Joseph Howe, C. B.

The concluding passages of Mr. Howe's oration before the Howe Family, at Farmington, Mass., a few days since, is inserted below. Half a century ago he could hold a Nova-Scottian a silence enraptured by the magic of his eloquence; and to-day he is the 90-old man eloquent," with scarcely an abatement of the fire of his youth:

At the close of the Revolutionary War the British Empire was assumed to be on the decline. Thirteen noble provinces had just been lost. She had been humiliated by land and sea. Her power on the American continent had been shaken to its foundations. Her great rival had defeated and triumphed over her; and, with her capital imperilled by mobs, and her treasury loaded down with debt, she had but a grim outlook for the future.

But the people found the old homestead were not discouraged. The brain power was not exhausted nor the physical forces spent. They went on thinking, working and fighting, as though like Achilles, they gathered strength from their fall; and now, at the end of four-fifths of a century, let us see what they have accomplished.

On this continent, profiting by the lessons of the past, and learning the science of colonial government, they have planted and fostered great provinces as populous as those they lost.

They have explored and planted Australia and New Zealand, conquered an empire in the east, taken Singapore, the Mauritius, British Guiana and Hong Kong, and now, instead of the few feeble colonies left them in 1783, when this country broke away, they have nearly seventy great provinces and dependencies, scattered all over the world, to whom Webster's drum beat is familiar; of millions, and secure to the mother islands an abounding commerce, independent of all the rest of the world; but which they throw open to free competition, with a scanty of civil-war's confidence in their own resources.

"Of the men produced in these modern days, why should I weary you with a bead-roll? Nelson and Wellington, Clive and Napier, stand in the front of a noble array of warriors, who have carried the Red Cross Flag by land and sea; and under its ample folds great states have risen, their laws, enlarged the franchise, limited the prerogative, and laid the foundation of civil and religious liberty broad and deep. Nor have the Mother Islands lung their harps upon the willows; while their engineers have covered the ocean with lines of steamers, and their architects have embellished the scenery with noble structures, their great writers have remodelled history, and the melodious strains of Scott and Byron, of He-man and Campbell, have been heard above the din of workshops, that never tire the ebb and flow of capital enlarging with each pulsation, and the gradual unfolding of that marvellous web and woof of finance whose meshes envelop the world.

"I have but little more to say. It is he wise to gather the Howe together, and renew old family ties, how much more important it will be to bring together the great branches of the British family, and unite them in a common policy, as indestructible as their language, as enduring as the literature they cannot divide.

"Out of such a union would flow the blessings of perpetual peace, for no foreign power would venture to assault us, and we would be sufficiently strong to be magnanimous when international difficulties arose. Ships enough to keep the peace of the sea would be all that we should require. With a landwehr of millions in reserve, our standing armies might be reduced to the minimum of cost.— Capital would ebb and flow freely over the whole confederacy on transport, instead of carrying war material, might carry the surplus population to the regions where labor was wanting and the land was cheap; ocean telegrams would come down to a penny rate; and our national debts would disappear by the gradual increase of the population and growth of the general prosperity. May the great father of mercies, our prayers, and so avert our national calamities that we may come to be one people, living under different forms of government it may be, but knit together by a common policy, based upon an enlightened appreciation of each other's strength, and on a sentiment of mutual esteem."

A MAN named John Neal, a coal cutter of Sydney Mines, was recently killed by Robert Wyssan, of Little Bras d'Or, in a fight on the Bar road on Saturday last. But one blow was struck. Both parties were under the influence of liquor at the time.

MORMONISM IN DANGER.—We learn from the New York papers that the Mormon community has been scandalized by the filing of a suit by a wife against her husband for adultery. This is the first instance in which the peculiar institution of Utah has led to legal proceedings before an American court by an aggrieved wife, and great interest is felt in the result of the case. It is believed that if the plaintiff is successful others will follow her example.

A BAND of 300 men entered the jail at Morgantown, Ky., on Saturday night, took out a white man and a negro, confined with outraging a woman near Covesville, on Tuesday night, and using them on a tree a mile from the town.

SIR DENISON GRANT told the British Association at its late meeting of an enormous woman, Carolina Heenan, now exhibiting in London, age 22 years, weighing 560 lbs., 7 feet round the body, 22 inches round the arm, and 3 feet 6 inches across the shoulder. Still, it appears that this large lady is not so much fat as muscle, and unlike most fat people, she is able to sustain great physical exercise. She is also "handsome and pleasing," and "highly intelligent," not in the least "howdy," nor is her face "fat and greasy." Miss Heenan is expected to grow greater as she grows older.

ANOTHER BRAWL CASE.—Some two weeks ago a woman calling herself Mrs. Allison, lodged a complaint in the Police Court concerning her husband, who she alleged, had married another woman, knowing that she (Mrs. Allison) his first wife was living. It appears that some two years ago, on account of some difficulty between her and her husband, she determined to leave him, and with three of her children, she went to the States. There she succeeded very well, and having got her children into a situation, she returned to this country to effect a reconciliation with her husband. When she arrived here, she found he was married to a woman by the name of Bartlett. She immediately took out a summons against him, on 11 he was arrested last night. He had been employed for the last twelve months by the Nova Scotia Railway Company as an ornamental painter of the cars—Halifax Paper.

HAD HER DIBB.—It is very often the case that parents and children do not agree on a question of marriage. This peculiarity (if it be one) was illustrated a few days since in one of our uptown families. The young lady was resolving the affairs of a gentleman much above her father's inclination. He stormed and swore incessantly; but it did no good.— The swain still came a wooing, and the preparations for the marriage went steadily on. In the excess of his impatience the father exclaimed:—

"I can't imagine what you silly women want to marry for."

"My mother got married," replied the daughter, archly.

"The more fool she," blurted out the intemperate parent.

"I believe!"

"You know how it is yourself, sir," replied the lady sweetly.

"Yes, and you'll find out," was the concluding rejoinder.—Nova Scotia Post.

USEFUL ITEMS.

Borax is said to be a grand remedy for cockroaches. Powdered borax, half a pound or so scattered about will so effectively clear the house that the appearance of one cockroach a month will be a wonder. Moreover the borax is perfectly safe.

Mr. F. Ransome of London, proposes to make the stone and brick walls waterproof by coating them with a solution of Silicate of Soda, which is superficially decomposed by the application of Chloride of Calcium. The result is Silicate of lime, which is perfectly insoluble, while it does not alter the appearance of the wall.

MEYER declares that neither man nor dog can be fed economically upon bread alone. A persistence in the bread diet causes the tissues of the body to become more watery, and the entire organization less capable of resisting injurious influences. A small percentage of meat added makes a much less total weight of food answer the desired object.

FROCKLES MAY, so a "Moravian Chemist" says, be removed by the use of the following compound:—Two parts of sulphur, carbonate of zinc, twenty-five parts of distilled glycerine, twenty-five parts of rose-water and five parts of scented alcohol; to be applied twice daily for half an hour to an hour; then washed off with cold water. The Chemist considers frockles to be caused by the growth of a local parasitical fungus under the skin, which extends and opens its pores in the warm season.

Chiquetto Post.

SACKVILLE, N. B., SEP. 14, 1871.
New Magistrate.

So, the County of Westmorland has additional Magistrates and Coroners. Twenty-three Magistrates for this County, in addition to the 91 we had before, makes a nice little batch of 117, who are entitled to be addressed as Esquire and authorized to sign J. P. after their names. We doubt if the County appreciates the honors so lavishly heaped upon it. It must however, be gratifying to know that our Government in Council, who are sworn trustees for the public good, in the words of the commission "expressing full trust and confidence in the learning ability and integrity" of one hundred and seventeen residents of the County, can conscientiously appoint these Justices. It is not our intention at present to announce upon the action of the Government following the example of former unscrupulous Governments, nor shall we write any thing to disparage personally these gentlemen who have been honored by Her Majesty's Commissioners, but we would be wanting in our duty if we did not protest against this wholesale prostitution of the functions of the Executive, so injurious to the country and degrading to the honorable and important office of Justice of the Peace. The powers and duties of a Justice of the Peace, both by common law and statute, are very extensive, and require gentlemen of learning ability and integrity to perform the duties imposed upon them. They have judicial powers in civil causes, as well as in many criminal matters, having powers to adjudge, to convict, fine and imprison, and being in ignorance, stupidity, and carelessness, they throw a shield around them, protecting them from any case, even as well as nearer home. The machinery is driven by water power obtained by damming the River Phillip. For the machinery in the new building a 25 horse power steam engine has been purchased from W. H. Davis & Sons, Picton, N. S., one of the oldest manufacturers of steam engines in the Province. The old factory contains 12 looms, 2 spinners, washing, picking, warping, napping, pressing, shearing and fulling machines. It also has a reeler, five looms and a dye house. Wool when received goes first through the pick-machine, which prepares it for carding. It then passes through the 1st and 2nd breakers, and thence to the finisher (carding machines). It is then passed to the spooler, and after being made in spools it is ready for the warping bars, from whence it issues in webs. From the warper it goes to the loom where it is woven. Some of it is then filled and dressed and some is only cleaned. The whole operation is very interesting and is well worthy of a visit. Quite a lively little town has started up about the factory—two or three places of worship, several stores, an hotel, and a woolenware factory, of which we propose to give a description in a future number. There is no reason why the example set by the proprietors of the Oxford Mtg Co., should not be emulated in many other parts of the country in other articles of goods. Markets exist, labor and the price of living is far less than in any of the manufacturing towns of the United States; we are not yet overburdened with state, county, township, and school taxes; we possess abundance of water power, and in raw materials we are far more highly favored by nature than any of the great manufacturing States of the Union.

ing that confidence and respect that we ought to have to those in authority over us.

Homo Factorios.

THE CARRIAGE SHOP.
Mr. George Bishop, Dorchester, ranks amongst the most complete and successful in the country. The work shop is 40x20 and has blacksmith and 11 paint shops attached. The latter is managed by Mr. T. E. Brownell, who has gained a local reputation in his line of business; the two former shops are under the charge of Mr. Bishop's sons. The machinery comprises turning lathes, boring machines, gang saws for fellows, gig and circular saws, emery belt, etc. At present only horse power is used, but if Mr. Bishop's business increases as it has lately, he will be compelled to introduce steam power. This season forty wagons have been turned off already, and twenty-five sleighs are now in progress for the winter. The wood used is of the very best quality and a large portion of it is imported from Portland, Me. The business worked up by Mr. Bishop shows that this country, poor as its detractors would make us believe, affords an undoubted success to skilled and persevering labor.

THE OXFORD MANUFACTURING CO.
of River Phillip, N. S., was projected in 1865 by Messrs. Thomas Thompson, John Robb, William Osley, George D. Hewson, and John G. Wells. The capital stock was $12,000. A building 70x35 and two stories high was erected and operations commenced in that year. The enterprise promising to become a success the capital was afterwards increased to $25,000, and Mr. Amos and Hewson added to the stockholders. As is always the case with new schemes great opposition was at first experienced; our people have so little confidence in the capabilities of native enterprises. The proprietors, however, worked along steadily in spite of the obstacles thrown in their way until the present time, and such has been their success that they have this year had to put up a new building, 80x27 and four stories high, to accommodate their increasing business. They employed about 20 hands, hereafter 40 will be the minimum number. About 25,000 yds. of hempenus, flannels and blankets are annually manufactured. The goods are of a first class quality, and command a ready sale in St. John and Halifax, as well as nearer home. The machinery is driven by water power obtained by damming the River Phillip. For the machinery in the new building a 25 horse power steam engine has been purchased from W. H. Davis & Sons, Picton, N. S., one of the oldest manufacturers of steam engines in the Province. SKETCHES FROM THE SOUTH.—Next week we will publish the first of a series of descriptive articles from the pen of our talented friend, Albert J. Hickman, Esq., Barrister.
HARRIS'S WEEKLY contains this week a full page engraving of the late boat race scene in Halifax harbor, from a sketch by J. W. Gray, Esq., of this place. Last week it contained a similar sketch of the Kempeceasis.

Nomination Day.

Thursday last at Dorchester passed off very quietly. About 200 persons only were present at the Court House and very little interest appeared to be taken. After the proclamation, Mr. Hanington was nominated by Gideon Palmer, Esq., and seconded by R. A. Chapman, Esq. Mr. Robt. Kay by Mr. Win. Lawrence, Mr. Chas. Ward by Edward Kinnear, Esq., and Kay filed a protest against the nomination of Hanington, he being ineligible, having been turned out by Judge Allan for bribery and treating. Mr. Hanington made a speech of about one hour's length, and was followed by Messrs. Kay and Ward. We have a full report of the speeches, but as they are of little interest now we will give but a brief summary.

Mr. Hanington at first referred to the late election and scrutiny. A purer election was never run. No one was bribed; there was no undue influence. There was some little resentment given by some friends, through over zeal, who did not intend to break the law. The statements circulated that there was a wholesale system of bribery and corruption was as false as the hearts of those who made it. He was naturally in all honor bound to pay Mr. Win. Turner, and he complained that the case in England quoted where a party was turned out for indemnifying another, each party had to pay their own costs. Mr. Kay's offering was not unexpected. Who wrote "The Telegraph" is a heavy weight, and how many hundreds of pounds have been spent in Westmorland, and yet for one $20 he was homeless. In this new scrutiny he thought they would be disappointed. Some members of the King Govt. furnished the money to run the scrutiny and now they run their candidate—Mr. Kay. The "Telegraph" is a heavy weight, and he has a large circulation. At the scrutiny trial Smith, the "Telegraph" reporter, told him to his face they would write him down yet and they have ever since circulated slanders against him. It is their business; they are hired to do so. He was first charged with breaking his pledge to Mr. King. I deny I ever broke any pledge. Nothing was ever said against him but what was perfectly fair and honorable. The dirt was with Hatheway and Stevenson. As to the arrangement that a majority of the opposition was to vote in the New Government was perfectly fair, and was done in 1851. The Government tried me and nearly every man in the Opposition, and when Hatheway and Stevenson turned traitors a Government was founded on tricks, ruse, and retribution will yet overtake them.

I did not vote against the School Bill to gain the Catholic vote as I considered their claims just.
What is the Catholic claim? Is it to interfere with, or take away the rights of the Protestants? No! Since 1870 the Bible has been in their schools, and they believe that purely secular education is not beneficial, schools in which the Bible, the only true source of religion, is denied a place, are wrong. He was not going to say the Catholics were correct or not. They conscientiously believe in religious instruction and they ask that where there is a school, composed of purely Catholic elements, that there the Bible may be taught. They do not ask it where there may be only one Protestant child, but in cases where all the children are Catholics. They do not claim exemption from Government inspection nor any other rights except the Bible. Since 1870 the Bible has been in their schools, and they believe that purely secular education is not beneficial, schools in which the Bible, the only true source of religion, is denied a place, are wrong. Mr. Hanington then passed some very severe strictures upon the "Telegraph." Then Mr. H. attempted to save the Province over $200 per annum out of the members' pay and expenses, for the bye-road money, the "Telegraph" hoped that Westmorland intelligence would not be deceived by Hanington's lunkum. Two days afterward the "Telegraph" said that a great outrage is being perpetrated upon the people in the members' travelling expenses. Montgomerie and Phillips both belong to the same town. The former drew for 412 miles travel, the latter 775. The former opposed it, the Government the latter supported it. (a voice that a member). What Hanington said has been known. What the "Telegraph" said was a great truth! So in the discussion on the Board of Agriculture before the House by him, was a fair report given? Gough and others spoke, but Hanington never said a word. He asked them who owned the "Telegraph"? The Government; it was paid to write him down, and the adverse public opinion to him was based upon the fraud and deception of the press, and the Government exists by the prejudice of the people; but retribution will yet overtake them.
Mr. Kay said he was not brought forward by the Government; he was brought out by the northern parishes, who considered that they in all justice ought to have a member.
Mr. Ward came out strongly in favor of free schools, of extending the jurisdiction of magistrates, of abolishing the Legislative Council, and of closer trade connections with the States.

The Late Rev. John Snowball.

This venerable Minister died suddenly at his residence in this village, yesterday, shortly after one o'clock. He was a native of England, and had just about completed his seventy-seventh year. In early manhood he emigrated to this country, and in the year 1819 entered the Ministry of the Wesleyan Methodist Church. Until the last few years, when infirmity rendered his retirement from the full duties of the pastorate necessary, he labored with indefatigable industry, and with much success in various parts of this Province, of Nova Scotia, P. E. Island, and Newfoundland. Lately he fixed his abode in Sackville, and, so long as strength would permit, gladly assisted in the public services of his church here. For his work's sake he was held in high esteem. But he was known and honored far beyond the circle of his own denomination. His very appearance commanded respect, and to those who knew him this was greatly heightened by the inflexible rectitude of his principle, the sagacity of his counsels, and unaffected simplicity and kindness of his heart. Long and widely will be remembered as a beautiful specimen of green old age. For some time past he seemed to be failing; but his illness only commenced a week ago, and since Sabbath last he appeared to be gradually getting better. Until within a few minutes of his decease he walked in and exhibited a return to his usual vivacity, but was suddenly called away from the midst of his family and friends. We tender to the sorrowing widow and relatives our sincerest sympathy in this deep affliction.

WEDDING MARRIAGES.—I have used a No. 2 Weed Machine, and have had it for four years steadily. For heavy work I believe it is unsurpassed by any machine in the market. ABNER SMITH, Propr. Sackville Boot & Shoe Factory, sep7-14.

MR. JONAS COMPTON, of the Halifax "Express" died on Tuesday evening.

Business continues brisk in Westmorland. Mr. Wm. Hickman is about to commence the construction of a bark of about 600 tons.

An Indian named Larong Nacotee was obliged to have both his legs amputated on Saturday last, the limbs having been smashed by a train of iron passing over them at Shediac.

ACCIDENT.—A plaster train ran off the track at Windsor on Tuesday at noon, killing the fireman and wounding the conductor, brakeman, Senator Churchill, and Mr. Dimock, and badly scalding a son of the latter.

CAREFUL TO PURCHASERS OF THE Peruvian Syrup (a protected solution of the protoside of iron). Beware of being deceived by any of the preparations of Peruvian Bark, or Bark and Iron, which may be offered to you. Every bottle of genuine has Peruvian Syrup (not Peruvian Bark) blown in the glass. Examine the bottle before purchasing.

NEW GUNS.—Thos. Henestiss, keeper of the Cow Light House, P. E. I., has invented a gun surpassing the French Mitrailleuse in destructive power. It loads and discharges by the movement of a lever, and with 20 barrels could discharge 12,000 balls per minute. The inventor intends exhibiting before the War Department in London.

THE "AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST" for September has arrived. The articles of the season—hints about work on the farm, in the orchard, garden, etc.—are as interesting as usual. The book is both novel and humorous; country roads and bridges; more labor and manure and less land; an egg farm; sea weed for manure; walls and talks on the farm; lime and lime kilns; cheap green houses; and a multitude of small articles, comprise the contents of this admirable magazine for the current month.

The National Division of the Sons Temperance met at Boston on the 18th inst. 169 members were present representing 189 jurisdictions, 48 were from Nova Scotia. There was a splendid reception on Wednesday evening. Reports show the Order to be on the increase. The Session will meet next session on Saturday.

FAMOUS WINDING.—The Brunswick street Wesleyan Chapel on this morning crowded to repletion with the usual fashionable assemblage of wedding-guests, to witness the solemnization of the nuptials of Alfred A. Stockton, Esq., Barrister, of St. John, N. B., to the daughter of Rev. Humphrey Pickard, of the Wesleyan Book Room of this city. [See the Recorder, September 25.]

PART AND TAYLOR CREWS.—On Saturday last, Elliot, the New York crew, build r, telegraphed to St. John that they would challenge the Taylor crew to row at Springfield. A reply was immediately sent that the Taylor crew would row Oct. 4th. Articles and stakes same as 23rd Oct., each crew to pay their own expenses. Elliot replied, accepting the challenge with the exception of "play or pay—no postponement—rough or smooth water." The Paris crew rowed.

"Won't accept any such terms.—Authorize you to challenge the Taylor crew, Renforth crew, or combination of both crews, at Springfield, 4th October. Articles same as Kennebec crew. Stakes one to three thousand dollars a side—No humbugging—Must decide immediately.—We mean business."

To this no reply has been vouchsafed. Probably the defeat of the Taylor-Winship crew at Saratoga will not tend to hasten a match.

The sensation record of the week has been as full as one would want to be. It is impossible to say we were slow or a sleepy people, for we do not have accidents. McDonald and Ellis, who could swim and drown lamentably, and Capt. McDonald, who could not swim, saved an immersion and struggle of forty minutes; John Young, a own mysteriously, while sober and while hearing of his comrades in the water; Allison, accused of Bigamy; the crew of the 61st, accused of a criminal assault on a little girl 6 years old, the daughter of a Sergeant; Angus McDonald's leg smashed at Sanford's building; George Boutillier, blasted severely, almost fatally at St. Margaret's Bay; a passenger of the "Alexandra" went ashore and got drunk and was coming on board his vessel again—his remains were not recovered; and lastly, a sailor on board the same ship fell into the hold and nearly killed himself. These form quite a lively week's work. We are getting along, getting "Americanized," if the Dartmouth Boat would only blow up and smash a dozen or two of people we should feel that we were advancing rapidly in civilization.—Halifax Express.

IS BRIEF.—Dexter is no longer the king of trotting horses. His famous tunc 2 17 1-4 has been beaten by Goldsmith Maid, by a quarter of a second. The Maid is owned by H. A. Smith, New York.—Hayti has got into trouble by detaining an English merchant vessel.—Mexicans have been committing piracy on American vessels in the Gulf. One vessel has been captured, another one attacked, who repulsed the pirates.—The Allison Bigamy Case in Halifax, noticed on first page, has been compromised.—Newfoundland wants to beat the Province in an aquatic contest.—Ch'town, P. E. I., proposes a race for the championship of the world, and would pay expenses of Paris Crew. It was declined.—Mr. Collingwood Shreiber's tender, $2,845 per mile, for the P. E. I. Ry., has been accepted.—Hamilton, Ont., wants to get up a regatta.—The Halifax papers have resumed firing away at Dr. Tupper's "Spring Hill Frauds," the power furnished by the backdown of the Paris Crew having been all discharged.—The Halifax "Express" pitched into Col. Laurie for insolence at the distribution of prizes won at the recent competition, in ordering Col. McKinlay to close the door in the face of the public, and with bayonets if necessary.—The recent Catholic Bazaar at Halifax realized $11,000.—8,000 pairs of skates have been sent to England from Halifax.—An injunction has been granted against the Mayor and Council of New York to prevent their expending public money. The enormous sum they have been stealing has at last aroused the citizens to a state of rebellion. What Boss Tweed, Hall, and Connelly will resort to now that they are deprived of their unholly spoils remains to be seen.—The list of the Coronor's Inquest on R. B. Smith's remains, "that he came to his death from congestion of the lungs, which may have been caused by over exertion in the International Boat Race, etc.," is severely criticized in Halifax and elsewhere as an attempt to establish that the Paris Crew would have won anyhow. The evidence given that no poison could be detected in the remains of Renforth is received with general satisfaction.—Peter Hays, engineer of the steamer "New Era," fell from one of the paddles and was drowned on the 8th inst., at Newcastle.—St. Andrews is to have a Grand New Hotel.

Phoenix Mutual

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,

HARTFORD, CONN.

ASSETS, Securely Invested, $6,000,000.12
SURPLUS, Free of all Liabilities, 1,761,147.88
RATIO of Assets to Liabilities, larger than that of any other Company of equal size.
Dividends, paid to Policy Holders, $1,021,217.89
INCOME in 1870, 2,827,038.12

The Progress of the Company for the last Five Years has been as follows:

Assets at end of year.	Income for the year.
1866	$ 61,477,311.95	$ 818,097.71
1867	2,218,344.22	1,170,044.22
1868	3,614,000.28	1,920,535.64
1869	5,081,073.50	2,432,879.00
1870	6,990,502.13	2,827,038.12

Within the past five years the Assets of the Company have increased more than Five Million Dollars, notwithstanding nearly a Million Dollars have been returned to Policy-holders in Dividends, and One and a Quarter Million Dollars paid in losses by Death during that period.

That this is a progressive Company is demonstrated by the following Comparative Statement of Business in 1867 and 1870, respectively.

No. Pals. Issued.	Sum Assured.	Income.	Assets.
1865 4,302	$8,779,424	$96,881.00	$902,284.71
1870 9,005	19,466,761	2,827,038.12	6,990,502.13

That the business of this Company is managed with the strictest economy, is indicated by the fact that notwithstanding the large increase in business, the expenses have been in inverse proportion, as will be seen by the following table:

No.	1869	1867
Ratio of expense to Premium Receipts, 17.39	19.27	19.67
Ratio of expense to Gross Receipts, 15.41	17.20	18.07

As evidence of the special care taken by the Company in the selection of risks, it is sufficient to state that its Ratio of Losses paid to amount at risk, is smaller than that of any other Company of equal age, namely, 0.91.

Since the commencement of its business the Company has issued more than 52,000 POLICIES, and has paid in Losses One and Three Quarter Million Dollars to the families of those who have deceased while members of the Company.

GLEANINGS.
COLORADO whiskey is reinforced with a tincture of oak and butternut. The effect is said to be electric.

There is a painful rumor that one of the surveying parties on the Pacific railroad has perished in some fires in the woods.

At a printers' festival the following sentiment was proposed: "Woman, second only to the Press in the dissemination of news."

Two colored men of Philadelphia practised on each other's countenances with razors, without using lather, and one was terribly gashed.

The favorite hymn of New Orleans colored churches has the touching refrain, "I'm going to Heaven in a ham basket." They evidently intend to make suitable provision for their future happiness.

Is giving some suggestions about butter-making, the "American Agriculturist" says: "Never let sour milk stand unnecessarily in any dairy vessel, and never let anything stand in a wooden churn—except sunshine and fresh air."

OAT-MEAL is a valuable article of diet. It contains a great deal of phosphorus, and almost twice as much gluten and three times as much fat as fine wheat flour. It makes children healthy and well nourished, and men and women strong, muscular, able to do much work, and to support great fatigue.

Boston has taken a stand against insult and imposition. The other day a Bostonian was roughly accosted in the street by a stranger with "Here, I want to go to the Tremont House."

The deliberate reply was, "Well, you can go, if you won't be gone long."

A "new theory of the cause of consumption" has just been advanced by a physician of Belfast, Ireland. The general idea is that tubercular deposits are the inevitable result of imperfect nutrition, imperfect respiratory function, and rebreathed air. This theory is supported by analysis and facts. The medical profession consider the matter worthy of thorough investigation. If the theory be sound, consumption may always be prevented, and often cured.

The "how to do it" of the Western pioneer is illustrated in the life and adventures of Eli Stillson, of Omskesh, Wisconsin, who marched into the bowels of the land twenty-four years ago with $200, and started a little farm in a wilderness. He now has 1100 acres of fine land as the eye can rest upon, worth $100,000. His house is small and neat; but his barn—bless you! it is 600 feet long, and he keeps adding to it. He runs 1500 sheep, and cows, and oxen innumerable; and is allowed to be about the best farmer in Wisconsin.

Some of the English journals have taken advantage of the recent excitement concerning the increased expenditures of royalty, and the popular annoyance at the seclusion of the Queen, to urge the propriety of an application in favor of the Prince of Wales. It is believed that the retirement in which Queen Victoria lives is in a great measure rendered imperative by her health. The nervous difficulties from which she suffers might easily assume a serious character under the constant excitement of more public life. Considering hereditary predispositions, her physicians are undoubtedly wise in recommending a quiet life and frequent change of air.

There is a story of a woman bold who took extraordinary measures to produce extraordinary results. She and her mother—perhaps not better—half were recruiting amidst Long Branch scenes and surf. This husband paid nightly visits to a certain fashionable gambling saloon; the wife, anxious and troubled, knew by experience that certain lectures were useless. She adopted a more effective means of reform. Attiring herself in her husband's best broadcloth and tightest pair of dress boots, this "woman who dared" followed her dissipated lord to his evening haunt, and when he was anxiously awaiting the turn of the cards after coppering the ace, blew a cloud of smoke across the table into his face to attract his attention, and calmly put ten dollars on the king. The story concludes with the rapid and terrified exit of the husband, followed by his successful wife, and the extraction of a promise on the way home, of future abstinence from the green table.
