HUSBAND IS HELD AFTER WIFE'S DEAD BODY FOUND

Mrs. Lorne Bowman, Elmira.
Hacked to Death With Hatchet.

NO EYEWITNESSES

Young Woman Had Just Returned From Church Service.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Elmira, June 30.—Having returned but a few minutes from St. Theresa's Roman Catholic Church here at 9:30 o'clock this morning, where she sang with the choir at a requiem mass held for the deceased members of the church sodality, Mrs. Lorne Bowman, aged 23, daughter of the late Charles Fischer of King street, was brutally murdered and her husband arrested 15 minutes later charged with the crime. It is alleged that he hacked her neck with a small hatchet, severing the jugular vein. She bled to death in about three minutes after being struck. No motive can be found for the crime other than that the man, who is 26 years of age, has been suffering from a nervous breakdown for the past year.

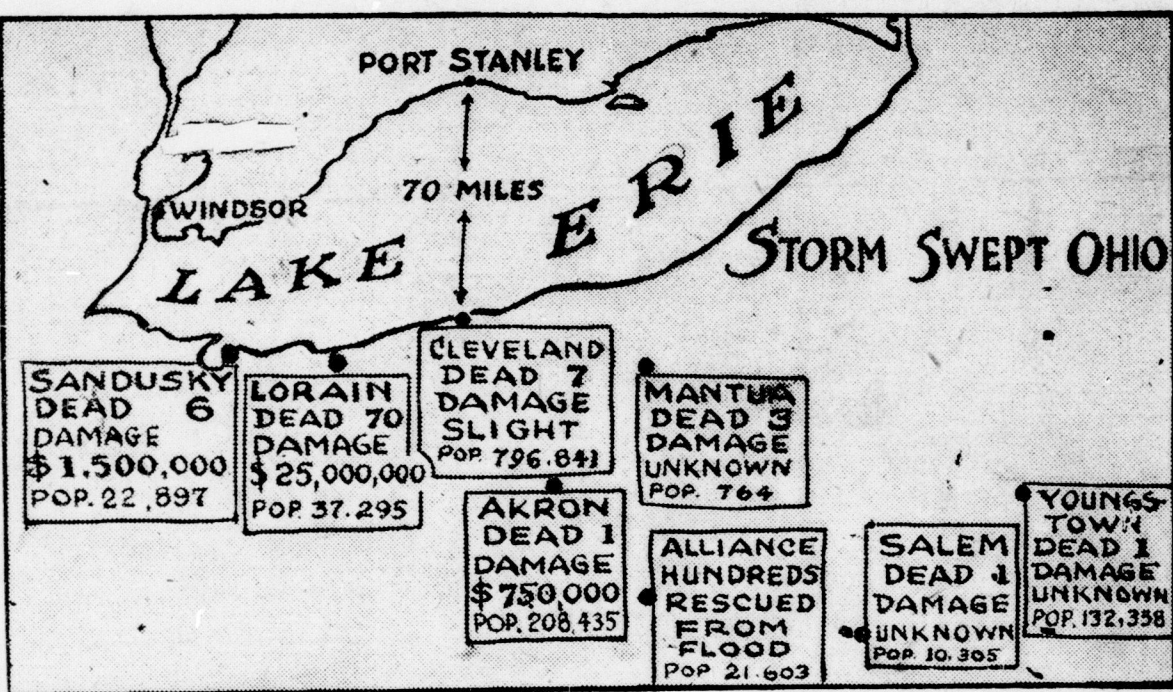

No Eyewitnesses.
There were no eyewitnesses of the deed, and it is believed from indications about the room that Bowman struck his wife with the hatchet when her back was turned. The first intimation of the tragedy came when her infant child, covered with blood, rolled down the front stairs, startling the girl's mother, who was in the hall and saw the baby fall. She rushed upstairs and found her daughter lying on the floor with the hatchet beside her. The gruesome scene shattered the woman's nerve and she collapsed shortly after giving an alarm.
Coroner's Jury Called.
The tragedy was enacted in the bedroom of Mrs. Bowman, whither she had gone shortly after returning from church. She had gone upstairs for the purpose of making the beds. It is believed she was attending to her infant baby at the time when her husband, who had been staying with his mother, Mrs. John Bowman, came to the house. After the tragedy, Bowman returned to her mother's home where he was later arrested.
A coroner's jury was called but it made an indefinite adjournment.

WHERE WIND CLAIMED LIVES AND DESTROYED PROPERTY.
Above an Advertiser staff artist shows the section of the State of Ohio where over a hundred lost their lives in the tornado on Saturday night. Millions of dollars of damage was wrought by the death-claiming gale, the city of Lorain being the center of the storm. Perhaps the most disastrous windstorm in this section of the world. Londoners escaped it by less than a hundred miles. At Port Stanley weird flashes of lightning appeared on the southern horizon and seemed checked in a swirl of gray clouds. A strong breeze and white caps on the lake were the only signs of the disturbance at this Port.

WIND'S DIRECTION SAVED LONDONERS

University Professor Outlines Cause of Tornado Which Swept Ohio.

All unconscious that a terrific storm was rampant on the other side, Londoners sat at the lakeside on Saturday night and watched white clouds scudding over to the Cleveland horizon.
But for the direction of the prevailing winds, the holiday-makers at Euclid Beach on the other side, might have been gazing out over the lake unconscious that hundreds of Canadians in this instance moved from Sandusky to Youngstown in a curve about Lake Erie.
Right Direction.
Had the curve been in a north-easterly direction rather than a south-easterly direction, it is altogether likely that London would have been directly in the path of the tornado.
To start a whirling motion in water will cause a vortex, and as long as the motion exists, this vortex will move. Once caused, the vortex of a tornado will move in precisely the same way until its force is spent. The vortex in this instance moved from Sandusky to Youngstown.
Intense heat was the cause of an area of very low pressure in the vicinity of the Ohio cities. The pressure was 29.17.

DARKNESS ADDS TO TERROR OF STORM

Associated Press Despatch.
Lorain, Ohio, June 30.—The number of dead in Lorain as the result of Saturday's tornado jumped to 70 today when early reports came from those who had been searching over night. Stories of curious tricks played by the tornado that laid a part of this town in ruins were going the rounds of the Red Cross shelters and the untouched homes, where victims were being cared for.
One woman, with a broken shoulder to tell of her experiences, was blown out of her room in a second story of her home and carried 50 feet into an adjoining yard. People found their houses minus one or two walls, with their living quarters exposed just as the occupants had left them.
The wrecked part of the town presented a spectacle such as might have been seen in the devastated regions of France.

Schools Used as Morgues.
Where only two days ago the classrooms were filled with happy, laughing youngsters at play or seriously at study, today these same rooms shelter the dead, and the desks are used as tables by the undertakers. The halls and classrooms are lined with cots holding most of the city's dead. Each is covered with a sheet, and a tag bearing their name pinned on them.
On one cot are two bodies, a mother and her 2-year-old daughter. On another is a beautiful golden-haired little girl about eight years old. One of her arms was torn off at the shoulder somehow, and she died before medical aid could save her.
Acts of stoicism and heroism were heard on all sides. A national guard officer today related how a young man had worked all night aiding the wounded. In the early morning when it became light enough to discern things, he saw an automobile lying demolished in the street. He walked over to examine it. His mother and father were in it, crushed to death.
Darkness Accentuated Terror.
"Not a tear did he shed," the officer said. "He stood silent for a moment, extricated their bodies, saw them, and continued his relief work."
The terror of Saturday night was accentuated by darkness. Darkness fell almost as soon as the storm passed, and prevented much work from being done. There was an eerie, weird confusion. Emergency ambulances clanged and hooted through streets that looked like brickyard, getting tangled in fallen wires, with tires popping as they were pierced by broken glass.

STORM SWEEP AREAS.
Associated Press Despatch.
Cleveland, June 30.—Eighty-three persons were known to be dead in Ohio today as a result of Saturday's severe wind, rain and electrical storm, which swept the coast of Lake Erie, from Sandusky to Lorain, wrecking a large portion of Lorain and parts of Sandusky.
Although the loss of life is not as great as at first believed, relief workers said today that the list of dead may grow. Several hundreds of persons were reported injured, several scores of them seriously, and the property damage was estimated at more than $30,000,000. Following is a tabulation of the Ohio storm damage as compiled by the Associated Press.
Lorain—Seventy dead, several hundred probably injured and property damage estimated at more than $25,000,000.
Sandusky—Six dead, about 100 injured. Please See Page 6, Columns 3 and 4.

POSTAL MEN TACKLE HUGE MAIL PILES AT TORONTO

First City-Wide Delivery

WINDSOR MEN BACK

Terms of Settlement Are Anxiously Awaited by the Government.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, June 30.—City-wide delivery of mail, the first for twelve days, began this morning, following the settlement of the strike of postal employees last night. Letter carriers this morning started on their rounds with heavily-laden satchels, and an announcement was made by Postmaster W. E. Lemon that operation of the general postal service would be normal by tomorrow.
Following the settlement last night, hundreds of employees immediately commenced work and the sorting of the great accumulation of letters was proceeded with rapidly.
Hon. James Murdock, minister of labor, with whom final negotiations were conducted here yesterday, left for Ottawa last night, where final adjustments in connection with the settlement will be made, and it is expected that an official statement will be issued by the Dominion Government today, setting out the actual terms of the settlement. Several hundred substitute workers were employed during the strike, and up to the present the government's intentions with regard to their future employment have not been made known. As far as can be learned, the question of pay for the employees while they were on strike has not been definitely settled, and an announcement by the government in this regard is awaited with interest.

WINDSOR MEN BACK

Canadian Press Despatch.
Windsor, June 30.—Postal employees in the Border Cities were back at work today, having been engaged in sorting and delivering immense quantities of mail which piled up here since Wednesday, June 18, when practically every one of the letter carriers, postal clerks, porters and helpers, walked out in a strike for better wages.

A telegram from G. R. Jackson, president of the Postal Federation, brought the men back.
This was received here at 3 o'clock, an hour before the walkout officially terminated, and at strike headquarters, where the news was received, the men hurriedly assembled and marched back to work. They were accompanied by their leaders, and accompanied by Mayor F. J. Mitchell of Windsor, whose efforts for the last few days have been directed towards a settlement.
Immediately twelve experienced clerks threw off their coats and commenced work.

Strike settlement terms were not divulged in President Jackson's telegram, but when the workers laid back to work they signed the report book as new employees, at a minimum scale of $5 per month. It is understood, however, that the government plans to look favorably upon their reinstatement.
The strike has seriously affected transportation. Canadian National Railways, Montreal, passed through the city this morning in his private car on his way to Detroit.

SWEET ELIMINATED

Wild Scenes Prevail as Balloting For Candidate

Associated Press Despatch.
Madison Square Gardens, New York, June 30.—The Democratic national convention found no candidate on its first ballot today. On the unofficial figures McAdoo's total on the first ballot ran up to 431½, and Smith's total on the first ballot ran up to 241. How far these figures represented maximum or minimum strength, no one could determine.
The remainder of the voting was scattered among the other candidates in the entered field of sixteen, with two added starters, Houston Thompson of Colorado, and Senator Kendrick of Wyoming.
The official total of the first ballot as announced from the platform was: Underwood, 42½; Robinson, 21; McAdoo, 431½; Sweet, 12; Brown, 17; Smith, 241; Saulsbury, 7; Silzer, 38; John F. Davis, 31; Ritchie, 22½; Harrison, 43½; Cox, 58; Bryan, 18; Ranshaw, 30; Jonathan Davis, 20; Ferris, 30; Glass, 25; Thompson, 1; Kendrick, 6.
First Ballot.
After the announcement of the first ballot, W. J. Bryan got unanimous consent to present a resolution in memory of the late President Harding. He moved its adoption, and it was done with a rising vote. Then the roll call went into the second ballot.
The Democratic session in the national convention today showed little change from the first. All the nation's "dark horses" stood solid throughout.
The only change of note was that Louisiana switched her twenty from Senator Harrison of Mississippi to Senator Robinson of Arkansas.
The unofficial totals of the first ballot on the second ballot were 421. Please See Page 6, Column 1.

Winnipeg Citizen Resigns as Director of the
C. N. R.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, June 30.—The resignation of James Stewart of Winnipeg from the board of directors of the Canadian National Railways was received on Saturday. It is understood that his resignation was due to the fact that his large private interests in the Maple Leaf Milling Company and other concerns has made it impossible for him to give the attention to the work of the Canadian National that its importance warrants.
Sir Henry Thornton recommended in his annual statement that a small executive be appointed which might be within easy call of the head office, and it is known that the present plan for a directorate, which has to be summoned from all parts of Canada when required, has proved somewhat cumbersome.

DENIES WAR PLANS

Claims Military Strength Below That of Any Other Nation.

Associated Press Despatch.
Berlin, June 30.—Germany, in her note to the inter-allied council of ambassadors on the resumption of allied military control of German armaments, accepts the allied demand for a general inspection on condition that it be final and is concluded by September 30 next.
The note declares the athletic and physical exercises of German youths are not connected with military preparations. It asserts further that no experienced military authority in the world could hold the opinion that Germany was in a position to initiate an armed conflict in Europe for the reason that her material strength in arms was less than that of the small states. Furthermore, it is declared, she is in a position of helplessness without a parallel in the history of nations.

The German people, therefore, are unable to understand how Germany can threaten the peace of Europe, the note adds, and why such fears are not rather created by the fact that the idea of general disarmament has not made noteworthy progress among the other nations.

YOUNG AUTOISTS PLACED IN JAIL

Ran Out of Funds and the Residents Became Suspicious.

Four youths from Flint, Mich., Ed. and D. Willett, Ed. Dawson and Wes. Taylor, are here to tell the world that Canadians, especially farmers, and more so, those farmers who live near Brynaston, are a suspicious lot. The four boys had been visiting friends in Collingwood, using a motor car of a popular make for transportation, and left for home Saturday with $1.90 among them. During the storm a coil became wet, and they stopped near Brynaston to get a new one, offering a motor car clock in payment. This clock business "alarmed" the farmers, and they sent a call for High Constable Wharton about midnight Saturday, and he landed the boys in jail for over the Sabbath, where they would have a place to sleep and something to eat.

Mazistrate Hawkshaw discharged them on the vacancy charge today on payment of $8 costs, which amount to the $10 which one of the gang wired for from Flint, Dawson, however, wired for $25 now, and it was expected to arrive early this afternoon.

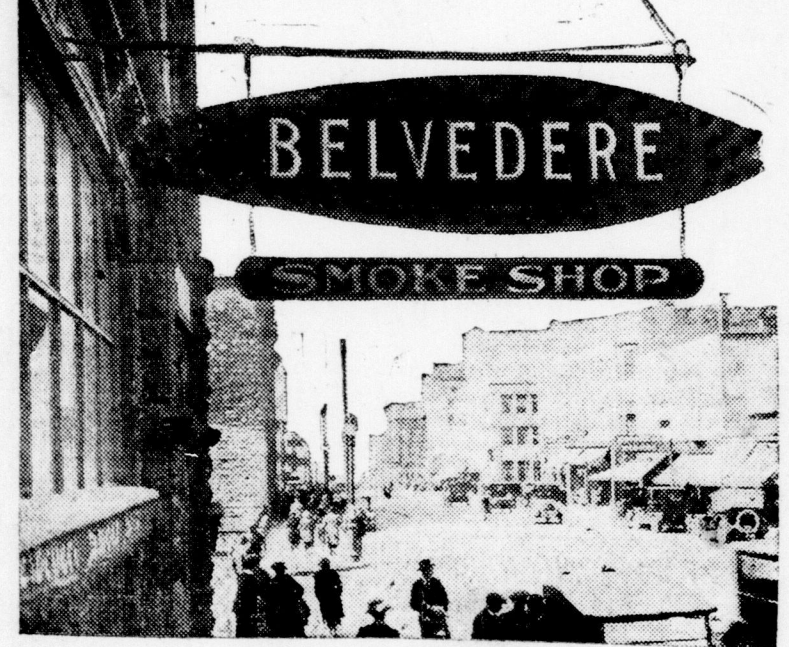

High Constable Wharton told the youthful tourists that they would drive them out to Brynaston this afternoon and see them on their way.

"Canada is a nice country, but I guess we were scared worse than those farmers Saturday night," said one of the quartet after they said good-bye to the jail. "There must have been a hundred of them hanging round our car. We were just out of luck and trying to get home after spending nearly all our money. We won't come back here without a wad that would choke an ox, and that's no apple sauce either."

FOREST CITY OWES MUCH TO PIONEER PRINCIPAL

School Service of Melmuth W. Althouse Is Envious Record.

LEAVES FOR TORONTO

Beloved London Savant Completes 34 Years in Rectory Street School.

To have taught three generations of Londoners has been the enviable and outstanding record just completed by Melmuth W. Althouse, principal of Rectory street public school, who on Saturday left to make his new home in Toronto. Teacher at the old East London institution for 34 years, Mr. Althouse was known and loved by hundreds of Londoners with whom he had come in contact, and he was admired just as much by some of their grandchildren, pupils of his school in recent years.

Nearly everybody in East London knew the popular school principal. He had been a teacher of the three R's—yes, but more than that, he had been a leader in clean sports, a lover of nature and the great out-of-doors, and a builder of good citizenship.

To be merely statistical is to miss much of the interesting part of his teaching career. Just the same his record of service, in years, is one seldom, if ever, equalled. Mr. Althouse has taught children in public schools for 40 years. He came from Strathroy, where he developed many strong friendships, including one with Major T. J. Murphy, K.C., of London, that has increased in warmth down through the years.

In the old days there were normal schools in only Ottawa and Toronto. Melmuth Althouse was a successful student at Ottawa. He taught in a country school not far from Alisa Craig for four years and was in Strathroy for two terms subsequently. When he came to London in the late nineties he taught for a year at the old Park street school, a two-roomed institution that developed later into the Chesley avenue school.

Oil Operators Are Indicted

Associated Press Despatch.
Washington, June 30.—Criminal indictments were returned by a federal grand jury here against Albert E. Fall, former secretary of the interior, Harry F. S. Sinclair, and E. L. Doherty, oil operators, and E. L. Doherty, Jun., as an outgrowth of the leasing of the United States naval oil reserves.

of the present time.

Was Senior Assistant.

Then he went to the old London East public school, in those days the center of education in the district. It later became known as Rectory street school, and after ten years as senior assistant, Mr. Althouse became principal and held that position for 25 years. Thousands of pupils he came under his jurisdiction in all these years and now many of them are scattered to all parts of the globe.

But they remember their old principal. Last week he had a surprise call from some of them, who came from Toronto, Detroit, Denver, even one from India, and another from the far west.

He is admired and respected in teaching circles. Other principals of long standing have looked to him for leadership. They regard him as sane, conservative and yet broad-minded at all times in his outlook on the profession.

Time has been, and not so long ago either, when he had the opportunity to take charge of newer and larger schools in the school system.

"No," he said, "I want to stay at Rectory street. A man can do more good in a community where he is known and respected than in a new school." In his successful experience of remaining over 34 years at one school, he was carrying out the example set by one of his own school teachers years ago.

Praises School Grounds.
"I have passed Rectory street school 13,000 times," declared Principal E. E. Gibbs of Chesley Avenue school, the other day, "and I don't believe I know any school grounds which are as well kept." The wide lawn and many flower beds have given Mr. Althouse plenty of scope in developing horticultural aims in the garden at his own home he had grown no less than 90 flowers. Principal Gibbs, who is now one of the oldest school principals here, paid a fine tribute to Mr. Althouse, naming him as safe, sane, broadminded, a man with whom the development of children could be trusted.

Not only in school life, but as a citizen in other ways has Mr. Althouse won respect. He was a devout worker in Dunder Center Methodist Church and Sunday school, and a past master of St. George's Masonic Lodge.

In the old days, Melmuth Althouse was catcher in the noted Strathroy Silver Star baseball team, which had many a hectic battle with the London Tecumsehs in the early 80's.

He proudly displayed the other day a pair of hands with swollen knuckles, the penalty many a good catcher has paid for his love of the game.

"I'm leaving school because I think I'm getting a little too old to lead the boys in sports," he said. "I wanted to get out and play with them. Sport is as important as academic training in my mind."

PLANS ARE COMPLETE FOR DOMINION DAY

Lieut.-Col. C. H. Hill Is Appointed To Take Charge of Parade.

Lieut.-Col. C. H. Hill has been appointed in charge of the Dominion Day parade at Victoria Park, according to special orders issued by General King for the celebration.

Troops of the R. C. R. will cooperate to their utmost with the Canadian Club and other local organizations in arranging a fitting celebration of Dominion Day. The public ceremonial in Victoria Park will be strictly military and featured with the marching of troops, the playing of the proper salutes and the presence of the R. C. R. Band.

General King has assigned soldiers to rope off the parade grounds in readiness for the celebration. The open space directly north of the soldiers' monument will be used for this. The entrance to the inclosure will be from the south, near the monument.

School children, Boy Scouts and Girl Guides will assemble at 10:50, followed by the 12th Battery, C. F. A. and the veterans at 11, the Royal Canadian Regiment and the permanent force details at 11:05, the standard bearers of the I. O. D. E. at 11:10. The bodies will form a hollow square about the monument during the ceremony. His Honor the Lieut.-Governor will take the general salute at 11:14 and this will be followed immediately afterward with the program prepared by the Canadian Club.

HOSPITAL CRICKET TEAM WILL MEET CITY ELEVEN

On Wednesday next the Ontario Hospital Cricket Club and officials of the hospital are entertaining a cricket eleven made up and captained by Harry T. Dickinson, organizer of St. Paul's Cathedral. Keen interest is being taken in this match, for in former years some good matches were played between teams picked from the city and the hospital eleven.

On the 16th or 17th of July the players of the hospital team will journey to Hamilton to play in an inter-hospital fixture for a cup, donated by Mrs. English and Robinson, superintendents of the Ontario hospitals at Hamilton and London, respectively.

WOMEN MEMBERS WILL PICNIC AT SPRINGBANK

The women members of the Sons of Scotland will hold their annual picnic on Saturday, July 5, at Springbank Park.

They extend a hearty welcome to all Scotch people to attend this picnic. A pipers' band has been engaged for the day. There will be dancing on the green and a prize will be given for the best couple.

The picnic will be held under the convenship of Mrs. John A. Lindsey, assisted by a committee of the following: Mrs. John Michie, Mrs. Annie Henderson, Mrs. Stanley Carter, Mrs. Leila Irvingham.

BETTER POWER POLICY IS URGED

Sir Robert Horne Addresses Power Conference at the Empire Exhibition.

BECK ATTENDS

Associated Press Despatch.
London, June 30.—Discussing the power conference attended by delegates from all parts of the world, including Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Power Commission, which was opened by the Prince of Wales at the British Empire Exhibition today, Sir Robert Horne, former chancellor of the exchequer, dwells upon the need for realization of some generally progressive policy of expansion which would bring the world's power resources more directly into the service of humanity by avoiding wastes and the development of the great potentialities of important markets.

Sir Robert declares that the process of industrialization is seen at its best in the British dominions where the national power policy has been elaborated. Examination of the reports presented by the Canadian, Australian, New Zealand, Indian and Rhodesian committees shows how far advanced is the utilization of the power of these dominions. He points out that Canada with a population equal to one-fifth that of Britain has installed generating plants totalling three-fifths capacity of the plants of Great Britain.

To do this, Canada has shouldered a charge of $77 per head of her population, whereas the equivalent British figure is in the neighborhood of $14 per head. The same conclusion emerges, he adds, when the reports of the New Zealand and Australian committees are examined. In every dominion immense schemes are being pushed forward for power development at present, particularly in Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, while the best that Britain can show is a single power station of over 80,000 kilowatts opened since 1922.

Sir Robert states that the distant past of the empire are steadily forward in the development of their resources while Britain puts up a hopeless struggle against international competition with inefficient machinery and lags behind even the poorest of the dominions. A remedy for unemployment, he says, may be found in the suggestion to bring the premier position of Britain into line with the position of Canada and Australia and raise up the whole policy of development so that the empire may show a single power unit, increasing uniformly in strength yearly, with its industrial equipment functioning at the height of its capacity.

of Toronto, has come into prominence in connection with his serum for the cure of cancer, which was formally rejected by Canadian medical officials two years ago, but is now being followed with interest in the U. S. Nobody not in the secret would ever suspect that Dr. Glover's laboratory was located in the top floor of this building, not far from the crush of traffic on Broadway.

Behind the two curtained upper windows on the left is the main product laboratory, where much of the doctor's experiments take place.

M'KAY URGES ACTION IN CITY

Would Deal With Future Unemployment Problems of London Now.

SEE GOVERNMENTS

Attention is drawn to the urgency of a situation that in the opinion of Frank McKay, London's Labor alderman, is likely to develop in the city next winter in a greatly increased number of unemployed, and he urges that some immediate action be taken by the city, asking financial aid from both the provincial and federal governments to cope with the probable situation.

London was one of the very few cities, he says, "in the province" which last winter received no aid whatsoever from either governments to deal with the unemployment issue. According to a news item of a few days ago, Toronto and Hamilton, Ontario, and practically all the larger cities in the Dominion received aid from Ottawa, and London has a right to her share of this work cannot begin to employ those who will be out of work in London this winter.

Not Fitted for Work.
"Then, too, there were many men last year who asked for work on the storm sewers whom the engineer had to refuse because he had no place to use them. They were entirely inexperienced as manual workers, let alone as sewer workers, and he was afraid to use them in deep cuts, and rightly so."

It is a monstrous position taken by the federal government, whereby they present every bona fide immigrant with $15 on entry and then refuse to help the cities to which these men go when they are out of work. Last year the two governments passed an act whereby the cities were to be the buck from one to the other, more or less all the time and in the end nothing was done.

"Without any newcomers into the city this summer from Europe there will be more unemployed than the city can properly take care of, and in my opinion, no immigrants should be allowed to come into the country this season, unless the two governments are prepared to finance their living when work is scarce and they are unemployed. The various municipalities should not be expected to bear the whole burden."

"Only the other day the English newspapers complained, editorially, of the action of the Ontario government in enticing immigrants to this province without first assuring them of work for a period longer than the first summer."

STRAWBERRIES MAY PROVE EXPENSIVE FOR YOUTHS

Strawberries may be getting cheaper, but several boys who live near Argyle Park will probably find out that they are more or less expensive when they appear before Magistrate Hawkshaw next Saturday morning on a charge of theft.

Alex. Telfer of Argyle Park laid an information against the boys before the magistrate this morning and gave the high constable their names.

Stolen fruit may taste the best, but it comes expensive if one is caught "in action."

could be retained on the farms that would meet the situation, but that seems to be impossible, at least if it is to be the case, and the majority of them fall back on the cities in the winter.

"If some action is not taken by the governments, the cities will find the expense increasing from year to year until they finally demand the exclusion of all immigrants and compel the governments to listen to their demand. The shipping companies which bring over the immigrants should be compelled to take back every individual who within a year from his entry to the country has not got a steady job, that might steady up the immigrant flood to some extent."

"The returning Canadians from the United States, who are said to be coming back looking for work, will not help the situation, and the city engineers will take care of as many men as he can in this way, but I am sure that this work cannot begin to employ those who will be out of work in London this winter."

ENTIRE FAMILY IS FOUND SLAIN

Chicago Chauffeur, Wife and Children Are Beaten to Death.

Chicago, June 30.—Beaten to death and their bodies carefully covered by sheets or blankets, Otto Eder, taxicab chauffeur, his wife, Frances, and their three sons, Roy, eleven years old, Harvey, six, and Jack, three, were found in their home late last night. There was no disorder in the house and no attempt at robbery was apparent. The police said they thought the family had been killed by a half-witted relative or a boarder filed with a lust to slay.

"It looks to me like the work of a man simply filled with a lust to kill," said Henry A. Wolf, chief of police of Elmhurst, the suburb in which the Eders had lived.

The bodies of Eder and the two youngest boys were

Judge Lennox Prohibits Haldimand County Coroner From Continuing Inquest

PUBLIC SCANDAL FEARED IN CASE

Dr. S. H. Quance Prohibited
by Judge From Continuing Inquest.

REMARKS ALLEGED

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, June 29. A public scandal shall not exist with the sanction of this court and it would be a public scandal if a biased person were to be allowed to preside at this inquest.

So commented Mr. Justice Lennox in granting an order prohibiting Dr. S. H. Quance, coroner of the County of Haldimand, from continuing his inquest into the death of George Gilbertson, who died at his home on June 22 under circumstances which suggested strychnine poisoning. The application for prohibition was made by R. S. Coulter, of Cayuga, who appeared for Mrs. Nellie Gilbertson, who is being held in connection with the death of her husband.

Mr. Coulter read affidavits by newspaper reporters to the effect that Dr. Quance had given them interviews to the effect that Mrs. Gilbertson was criminally insane. Newspapers containing these interviews were produced as exhibits.

An affidavit by Dr. Quance declared that these reports were greatly exaggerated. He had examined Mrs. Gilbertson some years before, when she was committed to the Hamilton Insane Asylum, but he had said that she was a criminally insane person.

A. W. Rogers, for the attorney-general, stated that once a coroner had entered upon an inquest he could not withdraw without instructions from the attorney-general.

"Then he shall have such instructions," commented Mr. Justice Lennox. The order for prohibition was made, with costs to be paid by Dr. Quance.

"Thank you, my lord," said Mr. Coulter. "He has done all he could to hurt this widow."

TOURIST THINKS SIGNS MORE THAN ABUNDANCE

Says 'Distinction Is One of the Best Aims in Advertising.'

"If it pays to advertise, then someone in London is making money," said a tourist in the city yesterday as he looked at the long rows of electric signs on a Dundas street block. He counted 27 on one side of the street in one block and figured that they must have cost some money to put up.

"You've got a lot of signs for the size of the main street," he went on, "and they make the place look as if it were a city. They all say 'There are so many of them that it's hard for a stranger to tell one from another.' I should think that a stranger could win distinction by having no sign. I always thought the great thing about advertising was to be different from the other chaps and make the people look at you. That's the advantage of expensive clothes. They're uncommon in these hard times and people notice them."

He climbed into his car and moved off as a thought occurred to him. "I suppose if a fellow wore no clothes, he would get all the attention he wanted but it might be good advertising. Perhaps your storekeepers are right after all. But you must have a wealthy population round this corner."

AUDITORIUM BOOSTED AS BIG CIVIC ASSET

Mayor Urges Adequate Hall
For the Holding of Conventions.

The need for an auditorium in the city is becoming more and more of a necessity with the growth of the University of London as a convention centre. Mayor Wenige believes that the reputation of being a beautiful and attractive convention centre is one of the best means of giving the city the right kind of publicity, and to that end suggests that there should be a convention hall or large auditorium in the city that would take care of the biggest gathering which might come here.

"Such an auditorium might be included in any new city hall which the city may build some day, or it could be a separate building. But we need one badly. At present there is no large meeting place, and when we have a political gathering we have to get the Winter Garden, which is not the best place for that kind of thing. The city needs a museum and an art gallery, and a new public library, but I think it needs a roomy convention hall more than anything else. It would bring hundreds of people here who could not come now because there is no place to hold the sessions. Several conventions in the past few years have side-stepped London for this reason. London is ideally situated as a city for gatherings from all over the province, and I believe a building of this kind would be a paying proposition and sell the beauty and charm of the city as nothing else would."

FOUR RIDERS FINED.
Four citizens who rode bicycles on the sidewalk each paid over $2 and costs to the police court clerk this morning.

TWO DIG AWAY DOWN.
Two speeders dug down into their pockets for $10 and costs, which they paid to Clerk John Moule before court opened today.

FACTORY GRIND IS BETTER THAN FILM LIFE, SAYS STAR

Arther Ashley, Well Known
on Stage and Screen,
Comes to Loew's.

ABANDONS MOVIES

Union Hours Unheard Of At Studios, Stage Celebrity Declares.

If the stage could commence a leisure bureau, with several Arther Ashley's on its staff, there would be no more need of such pictures as "Hollywood." The Hollywood Chamber of Commerce would be saved several thousand dollars a year in postage and printers' expenses. The movie craze, which drives young girls and boys to California would be out of their inertia.

Mr. Ashley, whose experience on both stage and screen is extensive, does not advise the movies as a career. For himself, the star of "The Mark of the Hawk" and "Anna Christie," and other New York successes, who is appearing at Loew's in a vaudeville sketch three days this week, has completely abandoned the movies, both as an actor and director, to devote himself to the legitimate stage.

Factory Life.

For the female movie star, life is commonly supposed to consist of Paris negligees and limousines, with perhaps a divorce or two thrown in. For male stars, it consists of low-slung cars and nifty zoot togs.

"Factory life" is how Mr. Ashley, out of long experience, succinctly characterizes it.

But, according to a later explanation on the part of the star, the movies have even less of the virtues of factory life. One outstanding quality of factory life is that it gives the worker a definite idea of "enough." It usually blows him out of his mind about 5 or 6 p.m.

According to Mr. Ashley, the studio day has a disconcerting practice of commencing under the same conditions, ending in a belated fashion at 2 a.m. These are distinctly not union hours. And, barring rehearsals, the starling ring for his coffee and rolls about 11 p.m.

On the other hand, Mr. Ashley believes acting for motion pictures is less difficult than for the stage. Once the actor is successfully established in the latter, he says, there is a strong tendency to allow it to deteriorate. There is a continuous struggle to keep the pitch of perfection attained on the operating line. As the films become more and more far-fetched, this becomes more and more difficult. With the movies, the inspiration to perfect work is finally reached after long and arduous endeavor, and the next thing is the first showing in the projection room.

Mr. Ashley will again appear in New York in the play "The Man Who Came Back," a scene from which forms part of his act.

RAIL UNION OFFICIAL HOPEFUL OF SUCCESS

Thomas Kelley Returns From Wage Scale Parley in Montreal.

Thomas Kelley, 622 Queen's avenue, general secretary of the grievance committee of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, returned to the city Saturday night after an absence of five weeks in Montreal, where he was attending a joint conference in Montreal of conductors and transportation men. Mr. Kelley stated this morning that the trainmen are endeavoring to effect wages adopted in the United States, which would mean a general raise of 10 per cent. He further stated that he was hopeful of securing the raise.

James Davy, 438 Clarence street, secretary of the Order of Railway Conductors, accompanied Mr. Kelley to Montreal and returned with him on Saturday. Both men will visit the Quebec city again within the next two days before the conference is brought to a close. The question of greater co-operation of railroad companies and employees with regard to greater efficiency and elimination of waste is to come up for discussion early in July, the delegates intimated.

PHONE SESSION IS SUCCESSFUL

F. B. Stewart, Innerkip, Heads
Western Counties Telephone Association.

The 14th annual convention of the Western Counties Telephone Association, held in the Winter Garden last Friday, was in every way successful. The president, G. L. Shipley, of the Telephone Company, Denfield, presided at the meeting, which was attended by about 60 delegates from various rural communities in Western Ontario.

Discussing the subject, "What Are Adequate Rates for Rural Telephone Systems," H. Chamberlain, Arkona Telephone, Ltd., Denfield, stated that to strike a uniform rate for the rural companies was a difficult task on account of the varying conditions under which they operated. The feeling was expressed, however, among the delegates present that for an exchange with more than 200 subscribers, $18 per annum was a fair rate, though some companies were carrying on at a slightly lower rate.

G. H. Moore, representative of the Horticultural Societies Branch, Department of Agriculture, Toronto, gave an illustrated talk on "Pruning of Trees and Shrubs in the Highways." Mr. Moore illustrated the right and the wrong way of doing things, and advised that in pruning the limbs should be cut close to the trunk and the ends painted to match the bark in color.

In his speech on "Our Experience With the New Bell Long-Distance Agreement," W. R. Pollard, Southern Bell Telephone Company, Shedd, complimented the Bell Telephone Company very highly for its equitable agreement, whereby each company was provided with a revenue on long distance calls.

The secretary of the compensation board, who addressed the association, urged the delegates to support the line up and secure the full benefits of the board, since the companies which start in "The Man Who Came Back" a scene from which forms part of his act.

Delegates were entertained at luncheon at Smallman & Ingram's Friday noon as the guests of the Canadian Independent Telephone Manufacturing Company. Northern Electric and Canadian Independent companies, respectively.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows: President, Dr. W. W. Doan, Harrietsville; 1st vice-president, John M. Gowenlock, ex-M.L.A., Seaford; 2nd vice-president, Campbell, Byron; secretary-treasurer, Dr. W. W. Doan, Harrietsville.

A partial list of the delegates present included the following: Dr. W. Doan, Harrietsville; F. A. Rogers, Weyburn; J. H. Morrison, Shedd; W. R. Pollard, Iowa Station; T. W. Weyburn, Essex; J. G. ## Supposed Victim Is Sent To Call Own Ambulance

The scene is laid at the plant of the Battle Creek Tinned Corn Flakes Company on the morning of Saturday. A serious fire in the corn products annex had just broken out. An alarm of fire had been rung and workmen on the night shift were battling the flames before the city firemen arrived.

It was hot work and heavy smoke filled the air. The fire was in the annex, and the workers could keep the nozzle of the plant hose in play, and the workers took turns in working. The smoke was finally explained by the harassed fire fighters. The victim in question was not seriously affected by his experience and continued work until late in the forenoon.

PLACES NO BLAME FOR KILLING DOG

Magistrate Declares He Did Not Believe Action
Wilful.

Because he thought a Pomeranian dog owned by J. W. Soutar was mad, Lloyd Snell of Langarth street west, hit the dog with a broom and later shot it, evidence in the case at the courthouse showed this morning. The shooting took place on June 20. County Magistrate Hawkshaw ruled that the dog had not been killed wilfully and dismissed the case against Snell, although he condoned with the plaintiff over the loss of an animal that won $300 in prizes last year.

Howard Cluff, who defended the case for Snell, had a number of witnesses who testified that the dog was called to testify.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Soutar stated that the dog was subject to fits and was probably in that condition when it ran at Snell.

Snell said he thought the dog was mad and naturally he defended himself. Mrs. Soutar, a neighbor, said she saw the dog run at Snell with eyes like balls of fire. It was also frothing at the mouth. She saw Snell hit the animal several times with a broom. She certainly thought the dog was mad. Frank Stuart, a youth in short trousers, stated the dog chased him and he climbed a ladder to get away. He thought the dog was mad and took such steps as he thought necessary to keep himself and neighbors from danger. There was nothing wilful in his actions.

WILLIAMS WORKING IN CARPENTER SHOP

Melbourne Bandit Expects Freedom in Twelve Years' Time.

Henry Jack ("Slim") Williams, who received a life sentence in Kingston penitentiary for his implication in the home bank robbery at Melbourne in 1921, has written friends in London who expect him to be free in at least twelve years.

Williams is apparently in much better health since his return to Kingston, the country jail, and is working in the carpenter shop.

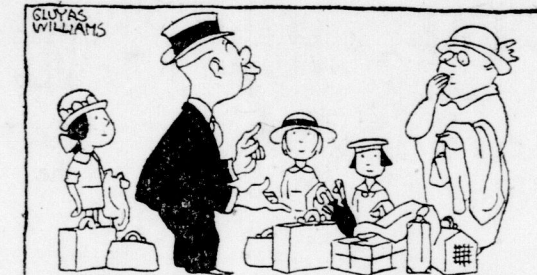

"Slim" writes that he has composed a number of new songs and when he finally is set free, intends to come back here and sing them for the people that were kind to him.

Williams possesses a splendid tenor voice, and took the lead in a number of song services held at the jail just before lock-up each night, when he was awaiting trial.

'Old Doc' Leaves Fire Hall For Last Pasture Field

The last fire horse left the central fire station this morning when "Old Doc," who has graced the stables in the hall for the last 23 years, was taken out to Alderman Anderson's farm for the summer. If he is still alive in the fall he will be brought back to the hall, but it is believed by those who know him best that he will not last out the summer.

This horse for many years has been the running mate of "Mac," and when these two were harnessed on the service truck that truck was always first to any fire. There never was a harder working horse around the hall, according to the older men, and he needed to do any dirty work he never flinched. He was attached to the truck for fifteen years, but in the last few years has not been steadily.

A case in the last few years in which he showed his usefulness and his strength was told by one of the men this morning. The service truck had become stuck while returning from a fire and a call was sent in for a horse to come out and help pull it out. Old Doc was the one sent, but by the time he arrived the tongue had been broken and there was only place for one horse. Both the other horses were worn out by this time by their efforts to extricate the truck. Old Doc was attached to the engine and in a few moments the truck was out on the road and ready to return. He was a horse of great strength, and there were few horses ever connected with the department that could ever match him when it came to a hard pull.

He was bought by the late chief of the department, Lawrence Clark, from a farmer in Lambeth in 1900 for the then large sum of $175. He has worked for the department for many years, and he will be missed by many.

TOURISTS MUST HAVE LICENSE TO FISH

Regulations Governing U. S.
Citizens in Ontario Are Announced.

American tourists, and in fact all non-residents of the province of Ontario, require a fishing license before they can legally fish in Ontario waters. Such a license can be obtained at a cost of $5.50, the license being good for the calendar year.

The license gives the holder the privilege of fishing in all provincial waters not restricted by the provincial government, such as the Ninzo Lake and river. Attached to it also is a coupon entitling the holder to take back with him to the United States a two days' lawful catch, which is set forth as 16 bass, 8 muskellunge, 24 pickerel, 10 salmon trout, 40 speckled trout, providing their weight in the aggregate less than 20 pounds and are not less than 7 inches in length.

Any person who requires a license to fish and who is found fishing without one, is liable to a fine not to exceed $1,000 and costs or in default not more than 12 months in jail, or both. Printed on the back of the license are extracts from the provincial act informing the holder as to the provisions and privileges of the act as to open seasons, etc.

The limits placed on the catch of the holder of the license are as follows: Large and small-mouthed bass, 8 per day, not less than 10 inches; muskellunge, 4 per day; pickerel, 12 per day; salmon trout, 5 per day; rainbow trout, 6 per day; other Pacific fish, 6 per day; speckled and brown trout, 10 pounds in weight, 20 in number per day, not less than 7 inches. The license also bears the following addition: "See that your camp fire is out!"

SOLUTION SOUGHT FOR NIGHT SCHOOL

Trustees Balk at High Cost
City Pays For Matriculation Classes.

MAY BE MOVED

That the city is paying too big a slice of the cost of the evening matriculation classes at the Central Collegiate Institute is the claim of trustees on the collegiate committee. Last winter classes for 117 students cost the local municipality $2,896.65, practically two-fifths of the entire cost. The balance of expense was contributed by the provincial department and through pupils' fees.

If the classes are to be continued trustees advocate a cheaper administration or that students pay a much greater share of the cost. They claim that the cost is practically the same as a shorter course of instruction. When the board meets next week a move for economy is practically certain.

The evening classes for matriculation students are no innovation here. They have grown steadily since the war, and made a big jump this last year to an enrollment of 117, the average attendance of which was 70 pupils. They are for students of many classifications, and in practically every case those who enroll seek matriculation certificates.

Many are school teachers who hold second-class certificates. They want to further their high school education so as to be able to get first-class teaching papers. Some are students who have middle school certificates, and want to get matriculation standing for the equivalent to a year in university, or else to take honor courses in schools of higher education.

There are stenographers, bank clerks and office clerks enrolled. They have had a year or two or perhaps more in high school, but find their special business studies not sufficient to land them the best positions in the commercial world. Some are mechanics and want to get towards matriculation to take up engineering courses in university. Another class is made up of girls who want to enter nursing schools, and have completed training of from one to three years is necessary. There are a few who wish the training merely as cultural study.

All these diversified types were arranged last winter so that each student might take three subjects during the term without a conflict of classes. Students have to study a night, taking two subjects in that time. The term commenced in October and lasted until the end of March. A student at a night school spends about 120 hours on the same subject that day students covers in 200 hours.

Efficiency Discussed.
There are fourteen regular teachers giving instruction, two nights each week and five substitutes. The whole matter is being discussed just now in the light of more efficiency and possibilities if cost were reduced.

Principal E. A. Miller, who has had charge of the evening school, states no general opinion on making the classes to the Technical School, where lighting and heating costs would be reduced. He has made a plea, however, against any move which would cut the efficiency of the instruction either by reducing the teaching staff or shortening the course.

Results have been even, he pointed out to The Advertiser. Last year practically every evening class student writing departmental examinations was successful. This year 35 of the students of writing departmental examinations. The present system of class work is highly efficacious, Mr. Miller believes, and progress among students is much faster. He has suggested himself that the fees might be doubled, but wants a longer term, if possible.

THIRTY-SEVEN BIKES STOLEN THIS YEAR

Police Report Twenty-Two Have Been Recovered
to Date.

Since January 1, 37 bicycles have been reported to the local police department as being stolen, and of this number 22 have been recovered and handed over to their owners. A bicycle-inspector Nickle stated today.

Clarence Ryan, 768 York street, reported his bicycle as stolen from the vicinity of the Police Station on Saturday night. It is a new Perfect, No. D2064, blue enamel.

"It's a shame the way these bicycles are stolen," declared Inspector Nickle. "A lot of these boys depend on their bicycles to make a living. A bicycle thief is one of the meanest of the lot. A lot of youngsters come in here crying about their wheels being taken. Most of them are little messengers, boys who are out of a job when they haven't got bikes."

Thinks This Fairy-God-
Mother Gift
Over-rated

Cheer Up, You Women Who Do Not Possess
the Fatal Gift of Beauty—You're Not So Much
Out of Luck as You Think—Remember That Classical Beauties Don't Make Best Marriages.

A Follies girl has just collected $100,000 damages from a gilded youth who, reckless driving resulted in an automobile accident that ruined her beauty. At first blush, it seems that $100,000 is a pretty high valuation to put on any set of features, however ever classically moulded, however harmoniously assembled, however artistically tinted.

But things are worth what they will fetch in the market, and if beauty was for sale over the counter there would be no lack of homely old millionaires who would not only pay $100,000, but ten times that sum for the pulchritude that would qualify them for places as above girls.

Moreover, in this particular case the loss of her good looks not only deprived the young woman of her means of livelihood, but of her chance of making a matrimonial killing that would land her permanently on Easy street.

But this incident raises the interesting question: What is beauty worth to a woman? Is a girl's face in reality her fortune? A chorus of feminine voices will answer "Yes." Women will say that the first question a man ever asks about a woman concerns her looks. He never inquires if a strange woman is intelligent, or good, or interesting, or amiable. He asks: "Is she pretty?"

Women will also call attention to the fact that the beauty has everything presented to her on a silver salver. At home she gets the best clothes because the living picture has to have a suitable frame. She is spared from the hard work because her lily white hands must not be roughened and hardened by labor. She is mother's and father's pride and joy, and is spoiled and pampered, while homely little Cinderella does the kitchen work and wears the cast-off clothes.

Abroad the pretty girl gets all the cakes and ale. Hostesses like to have her ornament their parties. Men enjoy being seen out with a woman who makes everybody rubber. She never has to stand in a crowded street car and porters and bellhops fly to do her bidding. So it is no wonder that women consider beauty their one best bet and say, to their fairly good brothers: "Give me a peaches-and-cream complexion, and a willowy figure, and cow-like eyes, and I will get the balance myself."

But is beauty, after all, as much of an asset as women think it is? The kind of good looks that makes a woman easy on the eyes and which is merely a matter of good grooming, careful dressing and an intelligent and pleasant expression of face, of course, invaluable. A woman must have that, or else have tremendous force and genius, to make any sort of success in life. But that sort of good looks is far away from real beauty.

I believe myself that the value of beauty is greatly overrated, even where it is supposed to be most potent, and that in securing a woman a husband. Of course, every now and then we hear of some elderly plain, or a duke marrying a peach, out of the chorus, and also, of course, beauty does secure a girl lots of attention from men.

But it is notorious that beauties seldom make good matches. All of us know many old maids whose good looks made them the toast of their day. Men are content to worship beauty abstractly, without showing any signs of wanting to possess it for their own pleasure.

Look about you and you will see that the girls who make the best matches are never the best looking. You will also observe that the cherished wives are not those who would receive even honorable mention in a beauty contest. Nor are beauties often popular with either sex.

There are many reasons why this should be the case. Nature does not play favorites nearly so much as we accuse her of doing, and when she is particularly lavish on the gifts she bestows on the outside of a woman's head she is mighty apt to scrimp on the inside furnishings.

Many a golden tress grows on a dome of solid ivory. Many a Cupid's bow mouth utters only stupidities. Many a mean and sordid soul looks out of a beautiful eye.

Furthermore, if beauty is nearly always self-centered, interested only in herself and convinced that the world exists only for her pleasure, and that she has a divine commission to the best of everything.

Therefore, men are content to burn a few punk sticks before a beauty's shrine and pass on to the merely good-looking girl, who, knowing that she is not particularly pretty, is aware that she has to make herself agreeable, and who is willing to admire a man some and jolly him instead of expecting him to be on his knees before her.

I would back a real jolly, human girl, who was bright, and good natured, and intelligent, even if she did have a snub nose and carry hair, to win out over a classical beauty in any catch-as-catch-can marrying contest.

Certainly, in business, beauty is a hindrance instead of a help. A woman must be good-looking to get and hold a good job—that is, she must be pleasant-looking. But no man would dare hire a living picture for his secretary, nor, except as mannequins, are beauties at a premium in trade. Men flirt with the beauty instead of buying from her, and fellow employees hang over her desk and waste their time and hers. Also beauty does not inspire confidence in the financial ability of its possessor.

So, taking it by and large, the women who are not dowered with the fatal gift of beauty are not as much out of luck as they think they are. But there isn't a woman living who wouldn't rather be beautiful but dumb than the greatest genius that ever lived!

ALPHABET ANNIVERSARY MARKED IN BULGARIA

Monks Who Promulgated Letters Honored on "Name Day."

Associated Press Despatch.
Sofia, June 29.—The Bulgarian people celebrated a unique holiday on May 24 when throughout the country was observed the "name day" of the Slavic, or Cyrillic, alphabet and of its creators, the monks Cyril and his brother Methodius. It was in the ninth century and from the city of Salonica that these holy men promulgated their alphabet which was designed to propagate the Christian faith among Slavic peoples.

One of the notable observances took place at the Monastery of St. Ivan of Rila, in the mountains above Samokov, where the Bulgarian letters created by the apostles from Latin, Greek and Hebrew material, were preserved from extinction during the Turkish domination of five centuries.

The celebration of the day is also marked by the Orthodox Church to recall the introduction of Christianity among the Bulgarian people, and its spread to the other Slavic peoples by the followers of Sts. Cyril and Methodius.

MEXICAN LAND LAW DRIVES AWAY PEONS

Allotment Plan Has Opposite Effect Than That Desired by Government.

Associated Press Despatch.
Mexico City, June 29.—Paradoxical as it seems, the first effect of the national agrarian program, intended to provide a bit of land for each of Mexico's long-trodden peons, is to swell the tide of emigrants to the United States, according to Cesar Cordoba, general secretary of the National Agrarian commission.

This emigration, says Mr. Cordoba, results from the fact that wealthy landowners, when they learn that the national government for land, conspire with venal local authorities to invade the rights of the poor, and against the petitioners. Without money or work the peons are unable to remain until the rape involving a division of lands is unwound, and are forced to migrate.

Mr. Cordoba maintains, however, that data from the files of the commission shows that the real cause of Mexican emigration is lack of land, and that there is virtually no emigration from the regions where the good effects of the agrarian laws have been felt.

THE ISLAND OF DEATH

A Weird Tragedy of a Man Who Called Himself "Monsieur the Devil."

By H. BEDFORD JONES.

INSTALLMENT VII.

THE LEADING CHARACTERS:

J. HUDSON SMITH, an American and alleged fugitive from justice in French Indo-China, who joins the outlaw band of Monsieur the Devil.

PAUL LEBRUN, known as Monsieur the Devil, a king among cut-throats and thieves, who had been imprisoned for life. Escaping, he swears vengeance on the man responsible for his imprisonment.

LE MORPION and CUREL, co-throats of Monsieur the Devil.

FELICE BONNARD, another accomplice of Lebrun and maid to BERANGERE DES GACHONS.

JEAN DES GACHONS, the target of Lebrun's vengeance, whose South Sea Island retreat is the goal of the bloodthirsty bandits. The latter effect a landing and Des Gachons, not recognizing Lebrun, bids them welcome. Smith is weak from a wound and joins the gang.

CHAPTER XIII.
Des Gachons Learns.
"You see, one visits the pool, which is fed by springs; then one comes out here beneath the trees with a book, perhaps, and sits on the cliff and watches the sea. I must set about building the little summer house which I have planned to perch just here on the edge of the cliff," Des Gachons said.

He indicated the spot. The two men stood there at the verge, and gazed on the sparkling waters, beneath the sparkling waters, beneath the trees with a book, perhaps, and sits on the cliff and watches the sea. I must set about building the little summer house which I have planned to perch just here on the edge of the cliff," Des Gachons said.

"One does not miss the city here," said Des Gachons, "I remember your pronged beard and looking vastly complacent. It was work, of course, building all this; vessels and laborers and architects and engineers. But now it is a paradise!"

"It is, indeed," said Lebrun in a low voice. But do not forget, my friend, that into the earthly paradise came Satan!"

Des Gachons regarded him with a smile.

"What do you mean, then?" Lebrun took a cheroot from his pocket and lighted it, leisurely.

"I have some knowledge of which you are ignorant," he said. "Do you remember having passed upon the sentence of a criminal who was called M. le Diable?"

"Yes," said Lebrun, "I remember. He was a Frenchman, considered, and at length uttered an exclamation. 'Ah, yes! Tron de l'air!' Like the import of Tartarin, this fat man was also the south. 'M. le Diable! Of course, the man was a hardened criminal, a degenerate bit of humanity, who was caught by our people in Shanghai. He had committed atrocious murders in the province. He was said to be at the head of a band of Apaches, and I remember with satisfaction to be rid of such a person—he was sent to Noumea for life. One does not live long in Noumea, you comprehend?"

"Exactly," said Lebrun in a dry tone.

"It was most unfortunate," reflected Des Gachons, "that this man alone was taken, and not all the members of his gang. I remember recommending most urgently to my successor that no pains be spared to hunt down and root out every branch of this evil tree! But, my friend, what caused you to bring this criminal to memory?"

"Because," said Lebrun, "I heard recently that he had escaped from Noumea."

Des Gachons started. His ruddy countenance blanched slightly.

"Impossible! No man can escape from Noumea; one dies there, but escape—never!"

"No man, perhaps," said Lebrun calmly. "But Monsieur the Devil—that is another matter entirely. However, there are two versions of the story. One that he escaped; another, that he died in Noumea and came to life elsewhere. Are you interested in hearing them?"

Des Gachons stared at him. "But—but—you are saying incredible things!"

"Incredible? A Nothing is incredible, when one believes in a personal devil," returned Lebrun. His smile was, as the French say, "sourd"—a coldly disdainful inexpressible smile. "One story goes that he escaped by sea, and that the sea brought him to this island."

Des Gachons started again, this time more violently. From his pallid lips was wrung a low cry.

"This—this is some jest, monsieur!"

"On the contrary, unfortunately," said Lebrun. "The story says this criminal came here, stole one of your boats, and departed."

"The whaleboat!" cried Des Gachons.

Smith sank back upon his bed, his head clunked his pillow, the covers of Des Gachons—dead! The thing was incredible, fearful beyond words! There had been no chance to give warning.

"M. American," said Lebrun, standing beside the bed and regarding Smith attentively, "you appear overpowered by this tale. Well, he has fled! But as he had neither the wings of Daedalus nor the faith of St. Peter, he could neither remain in the air nor upon the sea. In fact, the devil flew away with him!"

Lebrun turned. "Le Morpion, there is one whom you must handle, the garden he has benched to cover the garden. He does not eat in the middle of the day; hence, I assign him to you!"

Le Morpion nodded and rose. He made a curt gesture and strode from the room.

Smith sank back upon his bed, his head clunked his pillow, the covers of Des Gachons—dead! The thing was incredible, fearful beyond words! There had been no chance to give warning.

"Yes," he drawled. "May I be pardoned a touch of curiosity, then?" Lebrun chuckled. "I have decided to give you a wife."

"Ah! There is an Eve in this Garden of Eden?"

"There will be," said Lebrun, "by tonight, or so," he calculated. Curel should arrive tonight beyond question. You shall have a wife; one virgin charming, and you shall console her for the loss of her father. This will, of course, be besides the division of the spoils."

He made a gesture, and turned away.

Smith lay with his eyes closed, not daring to speak, lest he disclose a more agile brain than Lebrun gave him credit for. He perceived clearly that he had been picked to reap the brunt of this entire adventure. Lebrun, perhaps, did not wish the death of Berangere des Gachons; he cannot bestow this human spoil upon Smith, whom he already knew to be badly wanted by the authorities. Then he would see to it that Smith was apprehended—a scape-goat.

It was an excellent plan. The only flaw in it was that Smith was not exactly the person whom Lebrun supposed him to be.

The door opened. One of the native

chons. "The whaleboat that was missing!"

"Exactly. This M. le Diable took your boat and departed. He went to the mainland, found the remnants of his old gang, and planned a razzia upon your island. Probably he did not regard you with any feeling of gratitude."

Des Gachons staggered, his face pale as the dead. "Incredible! This—this is some frightful illusion!"

"Possibly," Lebrun made a calm gesture of assent. "The other story runs that he died in Noumea. Well, he died, and he came to life again here. You understand?"

"You hardly die, my dear monsieur; at least, the life after death of M. le Diable would be most fascinating to contemplate, from the standpoint of science, is it not? Still, in either case we arrive at the same conclusion; namely, that he would come to interview you—"

"Devil fly away with me!" ejaculated the other, thickly.

"Precisely," Lebrun bowed. "I am M. le Diable at your service. Let us fly, by all means!"

Smith and Le Morpion were alone in the room, shortly after noon, when Lebrun joined them. M. le Diable took a chair beside the bed and inquired with solicitude after the patient.

"I'm all right," said Smith. "A bit weak, naturally."

Lebrun nodded. "Very good! You are hungry?"

"Nothing. I have just come from the kitchen, and I assure you that an excellent meal is waiting. A very excellent meal, in fact."

The trifling detail that Lebrun had just come from the kitchen, quite escaped the attention of J. Hudson Smith at the instant. Before he could respond, the figure of one of the secretaries appeared in the doorway.

"Ah, M. Lebrun! Your pardon—the chief told me that you had returned—"

He bowed, and pointed to the secretary who was in the doorway.

"You inform us where M. des Gachons has vanished to?"

CHAPTER XIV.
Death.

Lebrun smiled. "I can, monsieur. He is at this moment located near the cliff beyond the swimming pool, and is contemplating a serious poem upon immortality, after the manner of M. Ronsard. He requests that luncheon go forward without awaiting his coming; as for myself, I shall remain here, waiting the condition of my patient, if you will be good enough to send me something on a tray. Le Morpion, do you wish to be introduced?"

Lebrun turned as he asked the question. Perhaps he made an imperceptible sign; at all events, Le Morpion shook his head.

"I remain also," he said.

"Very well, messieurs," said the secretary respectfully, and vanished. Lebrun bowed mockingly toward it, and turned, a thin smile upon his lips.

"This poem upon which your host is working," he said, "will be a famous thing. I assure you. The only trouble is that it will never be finished."

Le Morpion looked up suddenly, a queer gleam in his eyes.

"Cre nom!" he ejaculated. "Then—you have struck?"

"I have struck," said Lebrun, his voice somber. "I have struck—from top to bottom!"

A peculiar exultation appeared in his broad, powerful features; a singular look of mingled satisfaction and triumph shone in his eyes. Smith half raised himself upon one elbow.

"You—" He paused, wetting his lips. "You mean—"

"I am avenged," said Monsieur the Devil. "Des Gachons, standing at the verge of a cliff, became ambitious to emulate Daedalus in flight. Well, he flew! But as he had neither the wings of Daedalus nor the faith of St. Peter, he could neither remain in the air nor upon the sea. In fact, the devil flew away with him!"

Lebrun turned. "Le Morpion, there is one whom you must handle, the garden he has benched to cover the garden. He does not eat in the middle of the day; hence, I assign him to you!"

Le Morpion nodded and rose. He made a curt gesture and strode from the room.

PROOFS OF AGE TO BE REQUIRED

New Rules Made in Boys' and Girls' Dancing at Highland Games.

All boys and girls who enter the dancing competitions this year at the Highland Games, will be required to produce proof of age. The Highland Games Society, who are going to dance in the under ten and under twelve classes, must bring their birth certificates with them to show the judges.

This is a new regulation instituted by the chairman of the Highland Games, Mr. MacDonald of London, and Mr. MacPherson of St. Thomas, in order to insure the proper age of the entrants in both the under ten and under twelve classes. There was some discussion last year after the dancing was finished, over the ages of some of the dancers. In the open dances, of course, no certificates are necessary.

A change that was very much needed will take place in the judging of the best dressed boy or girl in Highland costume. This year the judges will be required to judge the costumes in a registered clan tartan and must wear the crest of the tartan in their bonnets.

Last year many of the boys and girls who entered the best-dressed competition were in a motley garb of tartans and kilts. The judges, who did not do justice to the Scottish costume. This is limited so far to residents of Elgin and Midlothian Counties, but the judges will be established before the date of the games.

A medal representing the provincial championship has been offered by T. Y. Straton for the best dressed boy in this competition and by Mrs. Straton for the best dressed girl.

All entries for the dancing from Elgin and Midlothian must reach either Mr. MacPherson or Mr. MacDonald by the evening of July 22. Outdoors will register on arrival at the grounds.

The dances will include the highland fling, the sword dance, and the Kean Trews for the boys, and the twelve classes and the sailor's hornpipe and the Irish jig for the over twelve class. There are four championship medals for the two reserved classes.

DIRECTION OF WIND SAVES CONDOMERS

Tendency of the heated air is to rise, and as the air rises in a sort of inverted funnel, it leaves below an air vacuum, similar to that caused in an area of water which is set in a swirling motion. Wind blowing from high pressure areas on to this low pressure area to fill the vacuum were the cause of the tornado.

A number of persons at Port Stanley on Saturday night saw a group of small clouds whirling into one another and then whirling across the lake. Winds were rushing from all directions into the vortex of the tornado. The prevailing winds in this region are north-westerly. Had they been south-westerly, clouds from the other side of the lake might have been scudding in this direction.

According to information received from a professor at the university this morning, the vortex of a tornado will move in whichever direction the wind is blowing at the time it is caused. In this instance Ohio cities bore the brunt of the damage, rather than Canadian regions, which might easily have been the case.

McADOO WELL IN LEAD AS DEMOCRATS' CHOICE

Concluded From Page 1.

For McAdoo, a loss of one-half vote, 2514 for Smith, a gain of eleven votes for the New York governor.

Sweet Is Eliminated.

The fractions of votes are re-presented in the totals in the balloting at the national Democratic convention arise through the practice of districts entitled to a few votes in the convention electing a large number of delegates.

As an instance of this one Maine district, entitled to two votes, elected ten delegates. Thus each delegate cast 1-5 of a vote.

The vote on the third ballot in the Democratic national convention today showed little change from the first and second ballots. The vote was too scattered for a nomination.

The first change came when Colorado deserted Governor Sweet for Governor Smith. The last native son was thereby eliminated.

The count for the third ballot was as follows: Underwood, 42; McAdoo, 48; Robinson, 41; John W. Davis, 34; Smith, 2514; Brown, 129; Salsbury, 6; Cox, 60; Bryan, 19; Ritchie, 22; Harrison, 23; Glass, 29; Walsh, 1; Ralston, 30; Jonathan Davis, 20; Ferris, 30; Silzer, 28; Thompson, 1; Kendrick, 6; Total, 1,088.

The clerk began the fourth ballot. Delegates were caucusing on the floor and milling about in the aisles. There was no nomination on the fourth ballot in the Democratic national convention today. The vote was as on the previous counts, failed to materially alter the relative position of the two leaders, McAdoo and Smith. The fourth ballot, however, removed another name from the race, that of the late Senator Charles McNamara from the field. He was Senator Kendrick of Wyoming, whose votes were divided between McAdoo and Smith. The third ballot had removed Governor Sweet of Colorado from the field.

HUMANE INSPECTOR HAS BUSY MORNING

Humane Inspector Tustin had eighteen calls between 7 and 12 o'clock today. Most of them are minor cases where dogs have gone into back yards and have acted viciously when the owners made an attempt to put them out.

All animals found by the inspector are seized and taken to the shelter where they are kept till a proper owner can be found for them.

Yesterday was one of the best days for animals. There were only three calls to make. None of these were

DEATH AND DESOLATION LEFT IN STORM'S WAKE

Concluded From Page 1.

Hit Sandusky First.

Akron—One dead and property damage estimated at between $500,000 and $1,000,000.

Salem—One dead.

French Creek—Three killed, 12 houses demolished or badly damaged.

Near Weymouth—Two children drowned.

Youngstown—One dead.

Alliance—No casualties, but 100 reported rescued by police from flooded homes.

The storm first struck Sandusky, doing most of its damage in eastern part of the city, and then jumped almost 25 miles to Lorain, where the greatest loss of lives occurred.

At Lorain, where approximately twelve city blocks were destroyed, the greatest loss of life occurred in the State Theatre, a motion picture show, which collapsed, crushing many of the spectators.

Medical aid for the injured, burial of the dead, and housing of the homeless had the attention of doctors, nurses, and Red Cross workers today.

Wind Reached 85 Miles Hour.

Several days will be required, according to best estimates, to clear away the wreckage at places where the storm hit the hardest. Rescue workers said today they believed the death list probably had been reached at Lorain, but for the fact that most of the factories and shops torn down there had been emptied at the noon hour for the usual Saturday half-holiday.

Several large boats, for which fears had been entertained, were reported safe.

The wind reached a velocity of 85 miles an hour at Lorain. Scientific observers were unable to agree today as to whether the storm was a genuine cyclone, a cyclonic tornado, a plain tornado, or merely a super-thunderstorm, or a super-cyclone.

STORM TAKES 10 LIVES.

Cleveland, June 29.—When a tornado wrecked on Saturday a large portion of Lorain, a city of about 10,000, the death toll was reported to be 10. Other Ohio cities, probably 100 persons lost their lives. Almost simultaneously disaster struck the Mississippi Valley, taking a heavy toll of lives.

The greatest loss of life was at Lorain, where 10 were killed and 118 injured, a score of them suffering severe hurts. The property loss was upwards of $300,000. Twelve city blocks having been demolished.

At Sandusky, six persons were killed, 100 were injured, and property valued at $2,000,000 was destroyed. Seven fatalities in Cleveland, although the property damage was small.

Pittsburgh reported five persons killed, while Nantua, Ohio, reported three deaths and Akron one.

The death toll in Iowa and Illinois was small, but reports of casualties, especially from the rural districts, have not been received.

The toll property damage, when reports from the rural regions are complete, will probably aggregate $50,000,000.

Rescue Work Begins.

Despite the devastation at Lorain where the tornado tore down more than quarter of the city, organized rescue work went forward smoothly and state troops kept order among the inhabitants, thousands of whom were thrown out of their homes and were sheltered in tents and with friends.

The greatest loss of life at Lorain occurred in the State Theatre, a four-story building, which partly collapsed and crushed many spectators at a motion picture show. As soon as rescue workers organized, they began a survey of the situation with a view to the deduction that many scores had been killed, for buildings had been whipped down over the heads of several fairly large assemblies.

At a bathing beach house, the structure was torn to pieces, and the debris scattered about. Investigation today, when light permitted a search of the ruins, showed that probably everyone at the beach had escaped with their lives.

The fact that the tornado struck both Sandusky and Lorain, while factories were emptied on account of the Saturday afternoon holiday probably reduced the death toll by hundreds, for a number of manufacturers were closed and many thousands of employees had left their work.

Vessels Are Safe.

Fears were entertained during the night for the safety of several steamers on Lake Erie and in Sandusky Bay, but the calm sunlight of Sunday showed that all steamers had safely ridden the storm. The only vessel which was damaged was the tugboat "Hawkeye," which had been crushed against a barge. The thirty-five persons on board this launch scrambled from the wreckage to the barge and escaped injury.

Housing of the homeless and attention to the injured occupied the attention of scores of doctors and nurses, and the Red Cross workers who had been rushed to the scene during the night as quickly as trains could be piloted into Lorain under unimpaired tracks and flooded automobile roads. The police and fire departments aided by the first arrival of state troops began clearing away the wreckage that blocked many of the streets and continued by daylight the haphazard search started last night for the bodies of those who had been killed and for any injured persons who might not have been able to release themselves from the fallen buildings.

IS BEYOND REPAIR.

Associated Press Despatch.

Lorain, Ohio, June 29.—Due to the confusion and darkness after the storm last night, many wild rumors were circulated as to the number of dead and injured. As near as could be checked today the above figures are authentic. The tolling of the dead and injured, however, is still a story, and many of the small structures were demolished.

The 85-miles-an-hour wind hurled about cars from their tracks, turned over and hurled automobiles to the curb, bent and twisted around telegraph poles like wire, snapped off wooden poles at the ground and buried them across the street and onto building roofs.

Some idea of the havoc wrought by the storm was apparently expressed by a local contractor, who said, "The best thing for us to do is to take everything away from the wrecked sections and build from the ground up again. What is left is really beyond repair."

VIOLIN'S MUSIC IS AESTHETIC

Noted Musician Plays at Side of Woman While Operation Performed.

COMING TO LONDON

One of the most unique and interesting experiences in the life of Jan Rubini, violin virtuoso, who is appearing at Levee's at the end of this week, occurred when he was called upon to give a concert, not for entertainment, but for humanitarian purposes.

Dr. Schiereson, plastic surgery specialist, performed a delicate operation for malignant edema of the eye. The patient, Mrs. Irene Venzell, of 128 North Hamilton avenue, Chicago, was unable to stand any type of anesthetic, and it was inadvisable to administer any locally because such would tend to dilate the pupil of the eye. The operation is extremely painful as the eyelid, one of the most sensitive parts of the anatomy, has to be opened up.

So Dr. Schiereson decided to experiment in musical therapeutics. His patient was laid on the operating table and young Rubini was summoned.

The nurses and attendants took their places at the operating table. The doctor reached for his violin and Rubini began to play. The surgeon dabbed a bit of iodine on his patient's eye and a bit of water. Rubini began the Kreutzer Sonata, that far-famed human story of life and love.

A slash of the scalpel. "Any pain?" questioned the surgeon. "No," was the faint reply. "Let him keep playing."

The scalpel went deeper—and Rubini, increasing his tempo, swung into D'Ala's "Serenade," the Spanish Symphony, and finally the colorful, lilting strains of Kreisler's "Caprice Viennois."

Finally the sac was removed; the nurse with a ball of absorbent cotton was cleaning away the blood, and stitches were made, and Rubini, finishing the last strains of his own "Serenade."

The operation, which had lasted half an hour, was over. Mrs. Venzell was lying in her hands and the doctor elated at this his first attempt to use music as an anesthetic.

Rubini, a bit ashamed and embarrassed by the fervor of both, stammered a farewell apology and hastened to his hotel to prepare for his evening performance.

WEEKLY MAIL SERVICE NOW GIVEN ALASKA

Schedule in Force For First Time Since Great Gold Rush of '98.

Associated Press Despatch.

Anchorage, Alaska, June 30.—Residents of the Yukon River are receiving a weekly mail service for the first time since 1898, during the great gold rush of the Yukon. The Alaska Railroad has made this possible.

A train leaves Seward, on the Gulf of Alaska, of the Pacific Ocean, and winds its way to Nenana, 400 miles north of Anchorage. At Nenana the mail is transferred to government steamers which run on a weekly schedule down the Tanana River to Igloo, Gilson on the Yukon River. From there the boats ply the Yukon to Holy Cross, 400 miles from the river's mouth.

At Igloo, the Northern Commercial Company operates a fleet of launches to Nome and St. Michael on the Behring Sea coast, and Igloo and Iditarod, and Iditarod and Iditarod.

Gas Price War For Kitchener

Special to The Advertiser.

Kitchener, June 29.—Gasoline sales stations have started a gas war with prices constant on the Michigan road. The first cut was to 27 cents. This was followed by a cut to 25 cents by another station, and to 22 cents by a third station. It is expected other stations will promptly enter the slashing contest.

OFFICIALS SATISFIED WITH NEW TRAFFIC PLAN

The straight ahead drive at the Dundas and Richmond intersection, which was put into operation for the first time on Saturday, entirely satisfied the police and the members of the traffic committee. There was much less confusion than usual at this corner, and the lives of the pedestrians were considerably safer. They could cross the street whenever the traffic officer's sign showed "go," without having to look both ways and watch for right-hand turning cars. Both Ald. Towse, chairman of the traffic committee, and Chief Birrell are satisfied with the change, which will now become permanent.

Associated Press Despatch.

YOU FEEL YOU WANT TO BUY IT

A while ago there was a wide difference in price between ordinary teas and the best—and you naturally hesitated to buy the best. Now the once-cheap teas are double what they were, while the best—RED ROSE ORANGE PEKOE TEA—is still only the a 1-2 package, only 7c more than the other package teas. It's strong, too, it does much farther. You really save money by using it.

Bill Marunuk Scales High Wall at Picton To Gain Liberty.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Picton, June 30.—When Bill Marunuk broke jail here yesterday he showed a zeal and an ingenuity worthy of a better cause. Getting free from the clutches of George Nelson, also of Windsor, for $332.01, the amount of two promissory notes and goods sold and delivered.

PRISONER STEALS AUTO TO MAKE GOOD ESCAPE

Associated Press Despatch.

St. Louis, Mo., June 30.—A prisoner who had escaped from the St. Louis penitentiary, stole a car and drove to the house of John Hefferman, who was at work in his garden. Marunuk broke into his bedroom, changed his prison garb for another suit he found there, and quite forgot to return the $3 and gold watch he found in the vest pocket. Helping himself to a hat of Mr. Hefferman's he calmly walked away.

Later in the evening a limousine parked in front of a doctor's office disappeared, and it is conjectured Marunuk borrowed the car to help him on his way.

He was in jail awaiting sentence on the charge of stealing two automobiles.

FOUR ROAMERS FARE WELL IN LONDON POLICE COURT

Members of Party Pool Their Resources and All Take Trains Home.

MONEY IS WAITING

Were Caught Using a C. N. "Sidedoor Pullman" as a Boudoir.

Four young men, caught using a C. N. R. freight car as a boudoir, and whose homes are widely scattered, are all pretty good scoundrels, in the opinion of Chief Birrell, and "there's a reason."

Two of them had more than enough money to take them out of town and into the city, which meant that the train for Windsor carried two of them back to the boudoir, while the second "two-some" went steaming off for Hamilton at noon.

William Dunn, Hamilton, the oldest of the group, appearing in court this morning on a charge of trespass, said they had all been sleeping in a car. He had come from Wallaceburg and left Hamilton last March. He had worked up north, and had been in the United States recently with $80 and some broke looking for work.

"You might be charged with vagrancy and sent to jail for six months," informed the magistrate. "There's money at the jail for Hawes," declared Chief Birrell, impugning a bit of good news for the youth of 20.

"I didn't know about it," smiled Hawes, who said he was an American citizen and had only been in Canada three months. "If you can get back to the States I'll let you go," promised the court. "You other men better communicate with your friends."

Had Enough Money.

Maurice Green said he had enough money to get back to Toronto. Last week he went to Detroit with $30, but work was scarce there owing to the U. S. election. He had slept in the car because he needed his $4 to get back home.

"I'll let you go," said Mr. Graydon. "Dunn said he had paid the $5 American head tax and should be able to get back to his job." "I'll let you go," said Mr. Graydon. "Dunn said he had paid the $5 American head tax and should be able to get back to his job."

PIONEER TOOK WRONG WAY AND TOWN IS FOUNDED

Associated Press Despatch.

Seattle, June 29.—The founding of Fairbanks, Alaska, in 1902, was due to a mistake in taking a water route by Captain John Barnette, according to relatives here.

Captain Barnette sailed up the Yukon river to investigate the Tanana river. Furnished with some of the inaccurate maps of the period, he mistook the Chena Slough for the Tanana River and sailed to the present site of Fairbanks, before discovering his error. He was forced to cover his mistake. The slough was a part of his cargo of trade goods to lighten the boat in maneuvering it back to the main stream. When he discovered the possibilities of the place, he built a log store.

ROTARY FROLIC PLANS ARE MADE

Two Hundred Boys Will Be Feted at Second Picnic On Saturday.

Plans for the Rotary Club picnic on Friday and Saturday were made at the club luncheon today. Friday will be a day for members only, and on Saturday some 200 boys will be entertained at a special outing. Visiting Rotarians were present today from Fort William and Windsor.

President Dr. Grant brought up the request of the Women's Auxiliary of Victoria Hospital for the donation of books to the patients' library there. Members were urged to attend the Dominion Day celebration at Victoria Park. Rotarians W. G. Germain, E. V. Buchanan, George Wesley and George Copeland spoke on picnic matters.

Roy Cunningham gave a short report on the Hobby Fair. Exhibits have been placed by one out of every four children of "hobby" ages in London, and $500 had been paid for prizes. The fair was a big success and affiliation with the Western Fair board was being seriously considered. Rotarians W. Manning, Bill McPherson, Bert Spittal, Chas. Jones and Bill Martin gave sport reports on the International Rotary convention in Toronto this month. They reported much inspiration from the big gathering, and expected the big gathering, and expected the big gathering, and expected the big gathering.

Chairman Grant announced possibilities of the annual conference of the 18th Rotary district being held in London this year.

border business conditions, since it caused an almost complete tie-up of the mail services. For the past eleven days limited quantities of first-class mail only have left the postoffices, and no street deliveries or collections of mail have been made. In fact, the entire local postal system has been completely demoralized.

Carriers, loaded with sacks of mail, were out early this morning prior to the strike. It is not yet known how soon conditions will be back to normal, but the workers, who held a mass meeting last night in the Windsor city hall, pledged themselves to bring the service back to normal in the quickest possible span of time.

Nearly 125 men were out during the strike. Over 1,300 have returned to work, and the number together with those who were on sick leave and holidays, those who had previously returned and those who had remained when the strike was called, means that practically the entire force prior to the calling of the strike is back at work.

Cost Toronto a Million.

"Are you willing to give me good and loyal service now?" asked a query made by Postmaster Lemon this morning, and when the reply was in the affirmative, the postmaster's instructions were all right then to back to your old job."

That the strikers are not being paid for the time lost during the strike was made clear by the postmaster. He said that the government would not have to pay for the time lost during the strike, but that the strikers would have to pay for the time lost during the strike.

NOT TAKEN BACK YET.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, June 30.—Postmaster Victor Gaudet said this morning that he had received no instructions to take back striking postal employees, and that he would not do so until such instructions they would not be taken back.

Of the 616 men on strike, it was stated that 100 were on strike, that all but fifty had applied for reinstatement. Seventeen men who had overstayed the time allowed for employees to return to work, have been taken back because of special circumstances governing their cases.

Postmaster Gaudet said he would make an official statement later in the day.

OFF WITHOUT PAY.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, June 30.—Toronto and Windsor postal strikers returned to work under the terms offered by the government, according to a statement by Hon. Charles Stewart, acting postmaster-general, this morning. They resumed duty unconditionally as postal helpers, says the statement, and will get no pay for the time they were on strike. When postal service is normal, arrangements will be made to adjust the staff to the number of positions available.

Mr. Stewart's statement reads: "On Sunday afternoon the striking employees at Toronto and Windsor were permitted to return, each individually signing under the terms offered by the government. The statement signed was as follows: 'I agree to resume duty unconditionally as postal helper on the postoffice staff.'

"No payment will be made to employees for the time they were out on strike. 'So that there shall be no misunderstanding, it is desired that no special order be made in regard to a sub-committee, as reported in some of the newspapers. The only offer made by the government, and which referred to employment actually on duty, was contained in a letter from the Hon. Mr. Stewart, acting postmaster-general, dated June 18, 1924, to Mr. Archer, secretary of the Canadian Federation of Postal Employees, reading as follows: 'When the civil service commission has submitted its report upon the salaries of postal employees, an opportunity will be given to the representatives of the employees in the postal department, or in other departments of the government, who have objections to file against the salary revision proposed by the government and to discuss such matters of difference as fully as may be necessary and it is hoped a final and satisfactory agreement on the points in dispute.'

Mr. Stewart's statement does not touch on the point, but the intention, it is understood, is not to pay overtime for handling accumulated mail.

INFLATED MONEY FREES GERMAN MORTGAGES

C. of C. Official Says Ninety Per Cent of All Mortgages Were Cleared Off.

Associated Press Despatch.

Berlin, June 30.—There is probably no country in the world with real estate less burdened with mortgages than Germany today, says Manfred Wronker-Platzow, legal adviser of the American Consulate in Berlin, writing in a trade publication of that organization. He estimates that more than 90 per cent of all German mortgages have been cleared off on releases given for payment in paper marks in the inflation days.

"All this has been achieved," asserts the writer, "as the expenses of those who formerly looked upon a mortgage as the most secure form of investment, and whose faith has been rewarded by under-impoverished real estate, in Germany by foreigners, especially Americans, after the November 1918, revolution, when owners were compelled to sell at great sacrifices in order to avoid being ruined because of legislation designed to protect the tenants."

KOREAN REBELS GROW, JAPANESE DECLARE

Gendarmerie Will Be Strengthened To Avert Danger.

Associated Press Despatch.

Seoul, June 30.—Unrest is increasing in Korea and rebellion elements are growing in strength, according to a statement issued recently, by the Korean government-general here.

The statement says the Japanese authorities in Korea have good reason to fear insurgency and bolshevism will develop into a serious danger within the next few years and have decided to reinforce the gendarmerie in the peninsula and the guards along the northern frontier.

"In this connection, the statement declares, has been a move to unify numerous local bodies, ostensibly labor or religious organizations, or bolshevist ideas. The Japanese authorities have listed 171 such organizations, and ordered the dissolution of the majority of these."

The Indignant Guss.

E. Guss Porter of West Hastings is going to carry his charges against Hon. James Murdock back to the electors at home.

He has resigned, and of course there will have to be an election to fill the seat. Mr. Porter does not allow the people at home to say who shall be the candidate. He has decided that for them, and intimates that the favorite son, E. Guss, shall have his name on the ballot paper.

Reports say the Conservatives cheered when Mr. Porter announced his resignation and vanished through the heavy velvet curtains to be seen no more this session. He may have been handed an election handbook on "Canadianism vs. Annexation" for use in his campaign, but Guss has gone. The Progressives were silent, but some of the Liberals laughed out loud. The spectacle of Mr. Porter going out to plunge in election waters in July did not draw one sympathetic sigh.

Mr. Guss is certainly a courageous man, but he does like a fuss. Graven on his coat-of-arms are the words:

"One crowded hour of glorious life
Is worth an age without a name."

Thus he bravely shakes the dust of Ottawa from his sandals and goes back to a seat that in 14 contests since the time of Confederation has returned a Liberal only once, and that away back in 1878.

In a few short days West Hastings will rock with the flow of oratory; the banners will be painted, "Me vs. Murdock," and Guss will be where he likes to be, right in the center of the stage, with the lights turned on full, telling the folks that the vote of parliament, 149 to 39, means nothing at all to him.

Selling At 12½c: Paying 27½c.

Tillsonburg is the latest center to report a gasoline war, and it is recorded that the price there went down to as low as 12½ cents per gallon.

These wars are no doubt very interesting to the consumer of gas, and the idea of driving off with a ten-gallon tank full for $1.25 is very pleasing.

From the standpoint of the dealers it is rank nonsense. Looking over some of the bills at London gas stations it is found that even buying in large lots they are paying 27½ cents for gasoline, and there is not a very large margin at 31 cents, considering the outlay involved and the time of a man attending to sales.

It may be that these wars come from too many people going into the gas tank business. If the rate war is one method of elimination it means that some of the stations stand to lose money. Consumers may say "On with the war," but apart from that it is the rankest kind of business nonsense.

Ideals In Journalism.

T. H. Preston, publisher of the Brantford Expositor, addressed the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association in its session at Vancouver on "Ideals in Journalism." Mr. Preston believes a paper is more than a commercial institution; it must have ideas, ideals and convictions which it must not surrender under any stress.

He sets his face against the use of scriptural quotations in a flippant manner, and holds that a paper must be fair to both sides of a public question, giving the facts from reliable sources of information, and reserving comment for the editorial columns of the paper.

A paper, Mr. Preston believes, must stand behind the forces of law and justly constituted authority, must not abet the demagogue or incite the ignorant. If a paper makes an error and causes injury it should be quick to make full, prompt and graceful amends for the injury done. In brief Mr. Preston wants to run his paper so that when he has written his "30" to his life's work, he can account for his stewardship and have it said of him, "He tried his best to run a decent newspaper."

It is a clean, wholesome outlook on a vocation that is entrusted with a large measure of public confidence. T. H. Preston has a right to speak of ideals and of cleanliness of the printed page, for his performance has been of as good a quality as his pronouncement.

Caring for Rural Cemeteries.

At the meeting of the Historical Society at Kitchener several speakers made reference to the condition of many of the cemeteries in the rural sections of Ontario, where lie the remains of men and women who were pioneers of this part of Canada.

Some of these resting places are in a sad state of repair. The reason is that in many cases the families have moved away, and made no provision for the upkeep of the plots where their forefathers were laid to rest.

That may provide a reason for a condition, but it does not give sufficient explanation for a continuance of the condition. A cemetery should be a beautiful place, a well-kept place, a spot on which the countryside could bestow its care and its labor in an effort to show veneration and respect for those who lived and played their part in the community.

In a community not far from London the council each year named a cemetery committee; the appointment was not regarded nearly as important as being put on finance or board of works, and it had become somewhat of a negative appointment because the committee's work was nothing at all.

A resident of the community, newly elected, was given the humble position of chairman of the cemetery committee. He saw in the appointment not a place where he had been shelved, but an opportunity to do something that for years had been neglected. He did it, and his committee was the outstanding success of the year's work.

In rural sections it is a work in which community effort can be well employed. In no way can a community better show its spirit than by careful and loving attention to the condition of the city of the dead.

An Element of Truth In This

A lot of sayings have been attributed to colored preachers that they have probably never uttered. Yet here is one that anyone might be willing to claim as his own:

"Folks make me tired representin' Satan as runnin' after dem to tempt dem. De truth is, my friend, dere is so many people pullin' at de debil's cottails dat he ain't got much time to chase anybody."

A homely sort of an illustration, no doubt. It's one of those varieties that could not get down and walk on all fours, but, allowing for all the defects, it has an element of truth that is large and pungent.

It may be that the devil is a persistent and a wily person, fond of pursuing people, and telling them they can't possibly slip on the banana skins he throws out on the road.

Yet there are a lot of people who do not need much urging on the part of the devil. They are out looking for trouble.

If they spent half the time dodging the devil that they do in looking around to see where he's gone, and wondering when he's coming back, they would get along a whole lot better.

The Henpecked Club.

People in England have one organization that has not spread to Canada—that is, not openly. At Halifax (the English Halifax) there was a convention of the "Henpecked Club."

These men come in the open to be photographed; they give the names and pictures of their officers, and then they return to the quiet seclusion of the council room to talk over the troubles of the year.

These men are good, model husbands. They admit it themselves. One speaker said he wanted a room papered yellow and his wife wanted it done in brown, so they compromised and had it done in brown. That is the spirit of these men, and no doubt that is what has made and kept England great.

The president of the Henpecked Club is shown with a chain around his neck. He wears it easily, as though finding the visible emblem of office no more irksome than the invisible one he carries the other 364 days of the year.

The convention lasts only one day. The words engraved on the official mace are "I Serve," surely an admission of servitude for these doughty Britons. The idea will never spread to Canada, because so few people in this new land would care to come forward and admit that they were eligible for membership.

Note and Comment.

The cynic rises to remark that politics is the ability to guess just what the people will stand for.

The man touring the country in a car can have a cheap trip, because he gets air, water and information for nothing.

One London street has been paved with rubber. It will be an excellent place for Winston Churchill to fall when he hears the result next election night.

Toronto strike sympathizers threw tomatoes at a strike-breaker delivering mail. At 30 cents a pound it's hard to know whether it was an assault or a compliment.

These gas wars that knock the price down to 15 cents per gallon will increase the number of people who have no place to go but seem in an awful hurry to get there.

The Chatham News says petting parties, of which farmers complain, started with the old horse and buggy. Yes, and the old nag generally ended up at the minister's door.

One expert at Washington is trying to find out why underwear shrinks; and it has been suggested that he include in his investigations the politicians who seem to do the same thing.

A Minnesota grower got 40 cents a bushel for potatoes which were sold for $1.60 in a town eight miles away. There's something wrong with that farmer or with the people in the town.

The mayor figures that if London had a new city hall, library, fire hall, etc., it would cost $2,500,000. Still a man who figures how fine it would be to have ten suits of clothes finds he can get along with one by pressing the trousers on Saturday night.

Chief Aitken claims he is having a hard time finding a freeman who can run a typewriter. Newspaper offices are full of young men who never ran a typewriter until they had one placed in front of them and were told to proceed. And it's a caution how with one finger working on each hand they can reel off columns of thought, sport and scandal.

Bowlers at the Thistle Club, during their tournament, were ordered to remove their cars from government ground belonging to military headquarters, which they have been using as parking space. Such actions only cause friction and serve no good purpose. If there were good reasons for not having cars parked there the matter should have been taken up with the Thistle Club in the proper way.

Dr. Frank Crane

WHAT IS TO BECOME OF THIS WORLD?

Statesmen and political spokesmen are given more these days to viewing with alarm than to pointing with pride.

The ponderous editor vies with the excited soap-box orator, showing us we are on the verge, on the verge.

Preachers and literary folk demonstrate that ruin is just ahead.

In fact, a good part of the energy of our instructors and entertainers seems to be devoted to scaring the daylight out of us.

Meanwhile the world goes lumbering on. The ocean heeds the apostrophe of W. S. Gilbert:

"Never you mind—roll on!"

Little children are playing marbles in the street, the cook is busy peeling potatoes, the young lady and her June-spice are holding hands in the park, for a busy selling nails at the hardware store and Grandma is knitting on the front porch.

Only here and there one of us gets heated up in our mind and feels the world is wobbling.

What of it? Suppose we bang into a comet tomorrow? Suppose the Bolsheviks blow us up and the Japanese grab the pieces, and the truisms and the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse come looping over the hill, and there's a panic, and the end of the world comes the fifteenth of next month and the devil flies away with it?

What are you going to do about it? In spite of our fits of despair the world is getting better all the time. The poorest among us have comforts and luxuries that even kings did not have a few years ago.

God is attending to the universe. And even if you don't believe in God, you must admit that you are not running it.

Time stalks on. Evolution continues to evolve. Destiny has its own plans, and it is mighty close mouthed about them.

All our life is an adventure. Nobody, outside of the graveyard, is safe. Sin was in the world long before little Johnny began to cry over it, and will probably still be on hand long after he has wiped his eyes and gone to bed.

All we can do is each, in his small corner, to play his part and be as happy as he can. We'd be well to be happy. Why not? For whether we be glad or sad, the universe rolls on, as aforesaid.

The Creator made the world. It's His, not ours. And neither the little boy at school nor grown-ups who ought to know better accomplish anything but their own undoing when they play God.

Giving Degrees

There seems to be an awful rush to hand degrees out left and right, the colleges they stop a spell while time is hustlin' in its flight, and say unto this man, Come here, we're goin' to give you a degree, you are a noble soul and great, we'll make of you a B.V.D.

The schools they seem to be a-lookin' round for folks to hang these titles to, they pick the mighty folks out first, forgettin' ones like me and you.

Why should there not be some degree to paste upon the humble man, who plugs along each workin' day and does the very best he can?

There's lots of men I know about who trod along their starless way, who turn their feet toward their home when they have pulled their weekly pay.

And round the hut wherein they dwell they never rant around nor roar, but dry the dishes when they're told and swish the crumbs from off the floor.

They never have a chance at all to bask before the public eye, and hear the cheers what's raised for them go mountin' upward sweet and high. Nor do they ever make a speech, a-tellin' what things should be done, and have the folks suspectin' that his brain must weigh a half a ton.

They're like the plants out in the yard what bloom and scent and do their best, they're shadowed when some new bulb comes and grows up higher than the rest, and all the folks go flockin' by to see the new thing what's come out, it's took a root and beat the rest from livin' near the water spout.

Let's have these schools of ours turn from the high spots in the land, and stick a medal now and then on folks that they have always canned—get some degree carved out at once and use a ribbon white and tan, and pin it on the man who pays the grocer and the butcher man.—ARK.

Room For Courtesy

(From the Smith's Falls News Record.)

With the great increase in the number of cars on our roads, and the corresponding increase in the necessity for careful driving, old-fashioned motor courtesy has pretty well disappeared. Some men do things as motorists they dare not do as pedestrians; we do not ram people as we pass them on the sidewalks, neither do we cut a man off as he crosses the street, yet we see these things done quite frequently by car drivers.

The capacity of our streets has not been reached; they will accommodate many more automobiles without any trouble if we are a little more considerate of the other fellow and he is a little more considerate of us. Courtesy makes safety with car drivers as well as with everyone else.

LINES TO A TIN LIZZIE.

By George S. Chappell.

Darling, you are growing old
And you wear the scars of battle;
Something in your manifold
Sounds like life's expiring rattle.
Your ignition spits and halts,
But I hasten, dear, to tell you
That with all your many faults
I shall never, never sell you.
No, when your last spark is gone
And your busy days are ended,
You shall stand upon my lawn,
Filled with blossoms, gently tended.

"They're English cigarettes, Pat," said the donor, "but I hope you'll enjoy them in spite of that."
"Sure, that's all right, sorr," answered Pat. "O! see they have cork tips."

We'll waive the subject and trimmed. And made a fool the more.

You Can Eat Anything You Like And Not Have HEARTBURN

In all cases of heartburn there is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach attended by a disturbed appetite, as when too much food is taken into the stomach it is liable to ferment and become extremely sour, vomiting occurs, and what is thrown up is generally sour and bitter. ## PICNICKERS DEFEAT SATURDAY'S RAIN

Three Out of Six Scheduled Outings Staged At Springbank Park.

INDOOR SPORTS

Saturday afternoon's rain blighted, or perhaps drowned would be a more appropriate word, the hopes of thousands of children and hundreds of grownups too, since there were at least six large picnics scheduled for Springbank Park. They were: Croydon Memorial Church Sunday School, St. Paul's Anglican Church, Talbot Street Baptist Church Sunday School, John Petherborough employees, Gorman-Eckert Company employees, and the employees of the Canadian National Railways.

Three of these were carried out with fair success despite the heavy downpour of rain throughout the greater part of the afternoon, though the weather cleared somewhat around 5 o'clock. It was the second postponement for the Talbot Street Sunday School picnic. The supplies, provided for the children consisting of about 1,000 sandwiches, were very wisely and very generously distributed among various orphanages and child institutions in the city. Today, "It is an ill wind that blows nobody any good."

The C. N. R. crowd, 500 strong, had just got nicely started at an interesting softball game during a brief intermission between showers about 2:15, when they were driven to the friendly shelter of the pavilion, where to hang out, drinking pop and eating ice cream cones, waiting in vain for the rain to stop, until 4 o'clock, when the decision was made to call it off and await some other fairer day upon which to hold the sports program.

Make Best of It. Despite adverse circumstances a goodly number of employees of the Gorman-Eckert Co., Limited, took their courage in both hands and determined to make the best of it. A special car conveyed them to the grounds, where, after looking over the situation, they located themselves in the building, presided over by genial Mr. Robinson. Inside all was warmth and comfort, while merriment flowed in rippling streams. Soon the truckload of good things was unpacked, mountains of ice cream disappeared, as if by magic. The tables were decked with a snowy white covering and laden with dainties of all kinds. J. A. Jones led in the singing of "Grace." All did ample justice to the good things provided, and in the end presented all the earmarks of a flat failure, wound up in a practical demonstration of the value of being optimistic, and hearing in the maxim: "The man worth while is the man who can smile when everything goes wrong."

The John Petherborough picnickers, by outwitting the rain until about 5 o'clock, succeeded in running off their complete sports program. Prior to this time though the crowd was kept in the best of spirits largely through the efforts of J. Willis, chairman of the refreshment committee, out for whom the afternoon would have been a complete failure.

Race Results.

The races resulted as follows: Boys, 5 years and under, L. Baldwin, C. Delmadge, C. Herbert; Girls, under 7 years, E. Vandy, E. Waide, D. Ireland; Boys, under 7 years, E. Delmadge, C. ## "OUR FLAG" FORMS BASIS OF POWERFUL DISCOURSES

Approach of Dominion Day Is Inspiration For Services.

FLOWER SUNDAY

Special Music An Interesting Part of Several Programs.

Patriotic, floral and children's services were featured by various churches of London yesterday. The proximity of the national holiday of July 1, the conclusion of the year or organized Sunday school sessions, and the midst of a season of blossoms and flowers, proved the inspiration for many fine addresses and musical services.

At First Presbyterian Church last evening, Col. the Rev. Dr. Beattie gave a brief address on "Our Flag," a talk which had special bearing on Dominion Day. Special musical numbers were offered by the choir. In the morning Dr. Beattie's subject also took patriotic lines, his subject being "Some Things That Make a Great Nation."

Extra emphasis is being laid upon the nursery in the Sunday school here. Here infants may be left in good care while parents worship at service. "No infant is too young," notices say, and it is expected no parent need stay away from worship because care of their children is necessary.

ST. MATTHEW'S ANGLICAN. An appeal for the interest and assistance of the diocese in better equipping Huron College was made at St. Matthew's Anglican Church last evening by the Ven. Archdeacon G. B. Sage of St. George's.

Archdeacon Sage was in charge of the evening service and drew from his treasury a host of the "prophets," as mentioned in the third verse of Chapter II of the second book of Kings, the thought that organized education had really been founded by the church.

Samuel, Elijah, Elisha, all had been great prophets who had brought on others to teach Christianity. The prophets had been among the first educationists. Later, when the early universities were built, it was churchmen who were the organizers. Diocesan colleges in Canada had been among the first universities. Bishop Croyn had started Huron College because he believed an educational center in Western Ontario was necessary. The art and medical schools of the university, which had now seen over 50 years of growth, had their roots in the theological college, and the city had been called in to take over the university.

Huron College had remained to carry on good work in its old quarters, and now some financial strain was noticed. Old equipment needed replacing and a new heat system was wanted, expense of which would amount to $15,000. When the art students no longer used lecture rooms at Huron College, $2,000 rental was cut off each year. It was now planned to take in Church of England young men, studying arts and medicines, into the dormitories to help keep up the college.

Parishioners were urged to come to the assistance of the College. No special campaign was to be made within the church, however, though members of the congregation would be called on at an early date.

RIDOUT STREET METHODIST. Arches of flowers in the front of the church formed the basis for a stirring address to children by A. D. Hone, M.A., at the Sunday morning service in Ridout Street Methodist Church. It was Flower Sunday and the special services were in charge of officers and scholars of the Sunday school.

The children marched into the body of the church and placed beautiful flowers near the pulpit where a design of three arches was formed. Mr. Hone, in addressing the children, referred to the design as representative of the Trinity—the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost. Flowers showed the care of the Holy Father, the unity of Christ and the perfection of the Spirit.

C. M. Trace, assistant superintendent of the Sunday School, presided. Rev. J. A. Agnew, the pastor, and Superintendent Deacon of the senior division also took part in the service. Musical numbers were given by the children's choir, and two choruses were also offered by the little girls of the Sunday School. Miss Sadie Scott was in charge of the decorations and Miss Effie Brown supervised the arranging of the floral arches at the beginning of service. There was a splendid attendance.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL. "The Lord God is a sun to all that walk uprightly" was the text from the 84th Psalm, from which Rev. Dr. McRae preached at his morning service yesterday in First Congregational Church. Speaking of the teachings of the Old Testament, Dr. McRae said: "If we would give more time to the study of these histories, the Bible to us would be a known book instead of an 'unknown book,' as we find it today in many places."

God had been a great sun to the life of David, who had walked in the Light, but a strange contrast was seen in the life of Saul, who went in the darkness of hate, jealousy and isolation, and knew not that he was walking in darkness. The same contrast was noticeable in modern times. Those who "walked in darkness" feared everything. "Walk on the sunny side of life," urged Dr. McRae. "Keep in the light of God's sunshine and there will always be light enough to set home at last. At eventide there shall be light."

Dr. McRae spoke at the evening services along lines which brought to a conclusion his appeal at the morning service.

ST. JOHN THE EVANGELIST. Flower Sunday in the Anglican Church of St. John the Evangelist yesterday marked the closing of the organized classes of the church school for the year, and a beautiful appropriate service was observed in the morning.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, and members of the school marched behind the choir. Each of the children carried flowers, and these were placed on the chancel steps or massed against the pulpit.

GEN. DEGOUTTE.

commander of the Franco-Belgian forces occupying the Ruhr, who is lecturing at the DeForest Theatre in connection with the Phonofilm in connection with its development in the United States.

When the idea was first thought of by Thomas Edison to have voice reproduction in conjunction with motion pictures, it was all right while it lasted. His idea was to have a phonograph in back of the screen with a record of all the words spoken in the picture. This worked smoothly until the record had run out and then before it could be changed and picture had gone on and the voice was again behind the picture.

The DeForest invention is commercially perfect, and there is a meeting in New York today between the representatives of the Phonofilm and the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. Arrangements will be made to equip the motion picture houses, owned by this company, with the machines to reproduce voices. This company owns three hundred playhouses throughout the United States that play first-class attractions, and if they believe that the invention is perfect, then it is a great step forward for Dr. DeForest.

The greatest value of this invention is its educational aspect. Presented through the medium of the screen it may be perfect with the picture, but explaining the operations being performed. For example, when a surgeon performs an operation everyone can see how he does it, and can see him talking, but not hear him. If the watchers were able to be listeners, then how much more benefit could be derived from the picture. With the DeForest Phonofilm this is possible, and many schools of learning have applied for the rights to make these films.

Mr. Merkle pointed out an instance of the speed with which this film can be made and how soon it can be shown. After the film, Governor Al Smith, of New York State made a speech in one of the suburbs near New York City. The picture was taken while the Governor was talking and three hours later was developed and was being shown on the screen at the Rivoli Theatre.

Many operatic stars and classical dancers have made application to have pictures taken so that the public can see them dancing on the screen and hear the music at the same time.

Whole-hearted regret at the departure of Rev. Mr. Morris and his family was expressed, and a beautiful illuminated address and a purse of gold were presented to Mr. Morris at the conclusion of the morning service. Dr. J. W. Reynolds presented the address, and H. Kilbourne made the presentation. It was a pleasing surprise to the retiring pastor, and he was deeply thankful for the good wishes.

Sincere Expressions. The beautifully-lettered artwork of the address was strengthened by the deeply sincere expressions from the congregation contained therein. It read: "To the Rev. J. T. C. Morris: The members and adherents of Asklin Street Methodist Church, both off-church and through their board and individually, wish to express to you and your family, at the end of your long associations with them as pastor, their love and appreciation, and the hope the future may hold for you all health and happiness, and the same measure of success that has attended your ministrations at Asklin Street Church."

"Your six years in the pastorate has been a time of continued growth and interest in our church. During that time your enthusiasm and energy have been unflagging and you have not spared yourself when the church needed your services. The pulpit and the pastoral side of the work, as well as the social interest of the work, have all been kept at a uniformly high level. Especially has your work among the young people been appreciated. The various forms of activity, spiritual, social and athletic, have developed largely under your fostering care, and have culminated in the church extension and gymnasium. Your kindly Christian character and genial disposition has won the love of your people and you will always have a warm place in their hearts."

Present Welcome. "We shall miss you and your family from the life of Asklin Street Church, but we know you will fill the same place in the life of your new pastorate. There will always be a welcome for you amongst the Asklin Street people. We will always have an interest in the Morris family wherever Divine Providence may place them, and hope that your associations with us may always remain green in your memory."

Upon the departure of Mr. Morris, the Rev. J. E. J. Millard, of Central Church, Sarnia, will take up the pastorate at Asklin Church, now a congregation of over 1,300 members. Hartley Upshall, the new boys' mayor, of London, and Councillor Orchard, members of the church, were introduced to the congregation last night by Mr. Morris. In the afternoon the young men of the church bade their pastor farewell and offered many expressions of regret.

INVENTOR MEET MANY OBSTACLES

Personal Representative Gives Lecture On Wonders of Talking Pictures.

The personal representative of Dr. DeForest, Mr. Merkle of New York, lectured at the Majestic Theatre in connection with the Phonofilm. Mr. Merkle dwelt upon the history of the Phonofilm in connection with its development in the United States.

DISTRICT LODGES DECORATE GRAVES

Annual Event Held At Woodland Cemetery by Sons of England.

Members of lodges of Ingersoll and Stratford were included when the annual decoration of graves by the Sons of England was observed yesterday afternoon at Woodland Cemetery. There were some 100 lodgemen present, including about 25 from outside points.

Lodges represented were Chelsea, Beresford and British Lion of the Sons of England, Princess of Wales of the Daughters of England, and Nelson juvenile lodge.

The parade from the lodge rooms was led by the Salvation Army Band. At Woodland some 62 graves were decorated. On each grave was placed a Union Jack, with ribbon attached, bearing the letters S. O. E., and also red and white roses. Mr. Moore, F. F. Chappelle and A. O. Totten were the officers in charge of the arrangements. Mr. Totten, a past president, conducted the memorial services at the cemetery.

LEE BUSY AT HOME. Lee Fong, charged with riding a bicycle at night without lamps, failed to show up when his name was called in police court Saturday morning.

He's probably busy with his washing, declared Chief Birrell. "All right," quoth the court. "He will show up some time."

CHARGED WITH AUTO THEFT. MAN BREAKS JAIL AT PICTON. Belleville, Ont., June 28.—A jail-break at Picton stirred provincial police centers here into action today.

William Maniak, a Rumanian, held in Picton on a charge of theft of two motor cars, one there and one here, took French leave at 8 o'clock this morning. Picton, Belleville, and provincial men are on the out-look for him.

Maniak is a handsome lad of 19 or 20, five feet, eight inches in height. In trying to dodge the police last Saturday prior to his arrest, he jumped into the bay and swam, only to be caught.

CHURCH SURVIVES BLAZE IN CHINA

Divine Intervention Believed To Have Saved Methodist Structure.

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, June 30.—Because an old Chinese woman smoked opium in bed in Fowchow, West China, a Canadian doctor is exultant at the great witness set up by the survival of a Methodist Church when all the adjoining temples and houses were burned. In a letter just received by the Methodist Missionary Society office here, Dr. E. Kyle Simpson describes vividly the conflagration in Fowchow.

"Behold how great a fire an old woman smoking opium on a straw bed may kindle," writes Dr. Simpson. "The fire leaped over the city walls in the morning and before night-fall it had burned about one-third of the area inside and about one-sixth of the city without the wall. Probably about 5,000 people are homeless. In the west end, in an area of one-third of Fowchow proper, the only building standing is our church. The temple next door, where we hold our dispensary, is gone. Our evangelists' school is also burned, but the church, old, ramshackle that it is, stands."

"The Chinese say: 'That is God's protection,' or 'The fire god fears the foreigner.' One post on the corner of the 'heavenly wall' took fire and went out, but was not put out by human hands. For eight hours the fire raged round it on all sides, first on one side and then on another. Temples, fine homes, poor homes and shacks burned down, but some were spared and the church would be spared and be a witness to God's protection, and it did not burn."

RAIN POSTPONES LAKESIDE PICNICS

Downpour Meets Merry-makers At Port Stanley Saturday.

Picnics at Port Stanley on Saturday were foredoomed to failure, determined to enjoy themselves in spite of the weather. A continuous down-pour morning and afternoon effectually put an end to the elaborate sports program arranged. Picnickers sufficed themselves with what indoor amusement they could find. This in many cases seemed to be quite successful.

Four picnics were scheduled for the day at the lakeside: Beatty Bros., the Sherlock-Manning Piano Company, the Sunday school of St. John's Church and the choir of First Methodist Church.

For the Sherlock-Manning people, the rain spoiled an enviable record. The company is celebrating its 21st anniversary this year, and Saturday was the first occasion in which the annual outing was spoiled by ill-favored weather. The sky was sufficiently clear at noon to allow the members of the firm and the employees to enjoy a picnic lunch to-gether, under the shelter of the trees. The afternoon was spent in the tearoom with an impromptu program of games, which satisfied, at least, the younger members of the company for the disappointment in outdoor sports.

Employees of the Beatty Bros. firm were another disappointed body, who salvaged what they could out of the day in the same manner as other picnickers. Plans were discussed among them for holding a second picnic next Saturday at Springbank.

CHURCH SERVICES TO OPEN REUNION

Senior Pastors Return To Pulpits—Hundreds "Old Boys" Home.

SIX DAYS PLANNED

Special to The Advertiser.
Chatham, June 29. — While the hundreds of old boys and girls are expected to arrive until Monday, hundreds reached the Maple City, and by the majority of them attended special services in city churches.
W. J. Spence of Toronto preached at Holy Trinity, Rev. E. F.
Strong of Toronto at the Victoria avenue Methodist and Rev. William Pearson of Walkerville at the Park street Methodist. The preachers formerly had charge of the respective churches.

Chatham has donned its gala attire, and hardly a store in the downtown section of the city is without patriotic decorations. Strings of electric lights and welcome signs hang across the streets, with clusters of flags of all nations hanging from all the ornamental street lights.

Big Days Arranged.
There is a fun city in Tecumseh
Park, while a carnival will be conducted by the Daughters of the Empire and the Kent Battalion in the local Armories. There will be baseball, soccer and lacrosse contests almost every day in the week, and some of the fastest horses in the province

SING THEIR PRAISES

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 29.—The postal strike which has tied up the service at Toronto, Montreal and Windsor for eleven days is over.
The strikers in this city voted unanimously today to return to work.

The vote was taken at the Labor Temple and immediately afterwards the strikers marched to the terminal station and signed on.

According to the agreement they signed, they are all taken back unconditionally as postal helpers, but with a promise from Hon. James Murdock, minister of labor, that a committee of the House will be appointed to investigate their grievance. They will start work at once.

While the strikers, both men and women, formally sign to go back as postal helpers, it is understood that they would soon get their old positions with former salaries and bonuses as in effect prior to April 1. They are also to be paid for the time lost through the strike.

Men Represented.

It is understood that the committee of the House of Commons to investigate their grievances and revise the salary schedules will include one or more members recommended by the Federation of Postal Employees.
This consummation resulted from the negotiations between the federation officers, Hon. Jas. Murdock, minister of labor, and Dr. J. H. Cas-caden, president of the Toronto Liberal Association, that had been going on for several days and which culminated about 2 o'clock this afternoon. The final conference was held in the office of Postmaster Lemon, when the labor minister gave the positive assurance that the government would agree to the settlement on the understanding that the employees went back as helpers. The officials of the men at first demurred, but when it was pointed out to them that other respects they were obtaining what they asked for, they also agreed to abide by the understanding reached. Further, they promised to submit the terms to the strikers at a meeting in the Labor Temple and to recommend their acceptance.

Urge Return To Work.

The federation officials proceeded to the Labor Temple, and one after another explained the terms of settlement, urging the rank and file to accept. The officials also offered to stand aside and allow all other workers to return to their jobs, as a guarantee that there would be no unfair discrimination should the strike have been called off. They declared that while the settlement agreement was not in writing, the government would stand behind it, and all the terms and conditions would be faithfully observed.
The propositions were discussed for nearly three hours before the vote was taken, but when Chairman Hull put the question everyone voted to return to work.

Montreal, Windsor and Moncton

employees were warmly eulogized for their loyalty in standing by their union comrades. Mutual congratulations on the "fair and honorable settlement" were exchanged.
Politicians and labor leaders voiced the same sentiments. Then came a tense moment. The noise and hubbub ceased, a tall figure advanced to the front of the platform and a dumb employee, by means of his fingers, gave assent to the agreement. In behalf of colleagues afflicted as himself. Scarcely had this man finished speaking when the voice of a woman was heard above the din. She said: "Let us sing the Doxology to express our thankfulness that the strike is over."
In a moment, the whole audience rose and sang lustily "Praise
God From Whom All Blessings Flow," and followed with the National Anthem.

MOTHER OF TWIN BOYS

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved
Her of Inflammation and Great Weakness

West St. John, N. B.—"I was in a general run-down condition following the birth of my twin boys. I had a great deal of inflammation, with pains and weakness. Finally my doctor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. He said your medicine would be the only thing that would build me up. I am sure he is right, for I am feeling much better and am gaining in weight, having gone down to ninety-three pounds. I was in bed for over a month, but am up again
now. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to my friends and give you permission to use my letter."

Mrs. ELMER A. RITCHIE, 82 Rodney
St., West St. John, N. B.

There are many women who find their household duties almost unbearable owing to some weakness or de-angement. The trouble may be slight, yet cause such annoying symptoms as dragging pains, weakness and a run-down feeling.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for such conditions. It has in many cases relieved those symptoms by removing the cause of them.

Irish Isle "King" Gets Jail Term

Associated Press Despatch.

Dublin, June 29.—Innismurray, an historic island in the Atlantic off the coast of Sligo, and described as "the next parish to America" has been the scene of a struggle between the police and the active home of the trade in illicit whiskey. The civic guards raided it and found eight barrels of poteen and large quantities of material with the necessary stills.
The island, like some others off the Irish coast, has a "king," in the person of Michael Waters. He was sentenced to three months imprisonment with hard labor and a fine of $250. Two of his associates got the same jail sentences with fines of $125.

Three Year Old Emerson
Thomson Instantly Killed
by Live Wire.

Special to The Advertiser.

Aylmer, June 29.—Emerson Jack Thomson, three-year-old son of Mr.
and Mrs. Emerson Thomson, was electrocuted under tragic circumstances this afternoon.

With his parents he had been on a visit to the home of his Uncle George. A heavy windstorm had broken a hydro wire from its fastenings and an employee of the local system had been sent to make repairs, when the little lad was carried by his father to a waiting automobile in preparation for the return home.
While the father went back to the house for the mother and a baby sister, the little fellow reached from the car and touched the swinging wire. Death was instantaneous.
Coroner Dr. C. Sinclair decided that an inquest was not necessary.

Our National Birthday

In the book of history many eventful pages have been turned since that epoch-making first of July when the Dominion of Canada came into existence.

Tomorrow we shall be fifty-seven years old. For it was in 1867 that the "British North America Act" passed the imperial parliament. By a proclamation issued from Windsor Castle by Queen Victoria, the new constitution came into effect on the first of July, and ever since then we have celebrated this date as "Dominion Day."

Since that first national birthday fifty-seven years ago our Dominion has broadened its areas, adding new provinces to the original four—it has developed its vast natural resources and has improved its social and economic conditions.

But it has endeavored to hold to the ideals and principles on which the firm foundations of our Dominion and our Empire are built.

"And we of the newer and waster west.

Where the great war-banners are furled,

Where commerce hurries her teeming hosts,

And the cannon are silent along our coasts,

Saxon and Gaul, Canadians claim

A share in the glory and pride and aim

Of the Empire that girdles the world."

—Walfred Campbell Scott

Nome, Alaska, June 23.—Another Wrangle Island expedition has ended in failure, temporarily at least. The American schooner Hermann, commanded by Captain Louis Lane of San Francisco, returned here disabled by a broken crank shaft, only nine days after her departure with the expedition which was to raise the American flag on Wrangle

main crank shaft
