BIG STORM OUT WEST KILLS TWO

Tragic End of an Old Man and Son Who Lived in a Little Shack.

[Canadian Press Despatch]

OGEMA, Sask., Aug. 16.—As the result of Thursday's storm Chas. McCabe, aged about 85, and his son Jas. McCabe, 45, were killed. The old man had been under the doctor's care for some weeks suffering from a weak heart and is supposed to have been killed by shock. The body was found on the prairie in his night clothes, 20 yards from where his shack had been. The body of his son was found lying on the prairie about 25 yards away from that of his father, the floor of the shack lying across his legs. He was wounded on the skull, apparently having been hit by a flying timber and instantly killed. The shack was entirely destroyed and the contents scattered in all directions. Relatives are living in both well and other points. The two men lived together, the son being a bachelor. Several years ago he was caught on the prairie in a blizzard and was nearly frozen to death and had to have both legs amputated at the knee.

HIS EYE PUT OUT

Olympic Champion McGrath in New York Row Last Night.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Matt McGrath, Olympic champion hammer thrower, will probably lose the sight of one eye as the result of a fight in the lobby of a Broadway theatre at midnight last night. Five men who sought to buy tickets to the roof garden of the theatre, were prevented by a special patrolman, who judged them intoxicated and attempted to eject them from the lobby. The men resisted and the patrolman summoned McGrath, who is employed as a special officer for the roof garden. In resisting the efforts of the two policemen, one of the men swung his cane and struck McGrath in the right eye.

The athlete, blinded and suffering intense pain, fell to the floor and for a few seconds was unconscious. He was rushed to a nearby police station, where a physician put twelve stitches in the champion's face and said that the pupil of the eye had been so injured that probably McGrath would not be able to see with it again.

The five men who engaged in the fight were arrested when reinforcements arrived. The man, said by the police to be the one who injured McGrath is charged with felonious assault. He described himself as John Brink, 35 years of age, a civil engineer of this city.

McGrath was to go to Albany today to participate in athletic games, and from there was going to Cincinnati for the same purpose.

Miss Eva Hopf of Woodstock after spending the past week with her parents, of Brighton Place, has left to attend the fall millinery openings at London.

PRESIDENT WILSON AWAITS LIND'S REPORT.

JOHN LIND

The first step in President Wilson's Mexican policy has now been successfully taken. In Mr. John Lind the President now has at Mexico City a personal representative without affiliation in anything that has happened since the February coup d'état.

The second step will be a report from Mr. Lind on the feasibility of the programme of peace proposals discussed before he left Washington. Until such a report is received nothing will be done.

Determination not to recognize the Huerta government is a fixed principle of the policy.

Reminiscences of Brant

By An "Old Timer" Chapter I.

(This series of articles to be published each Saturday in connection with over thirty years of active journalistic life in Brantford, will not appear in any logical sequence, but just as various incidents and events happen to suggest themselves. Some of them will be based on recollections with regard to previous days.)

No. 1. "Now begin at the very beginning," says the little tale when settling down for a promised story.

In like manner, it might be well at the commencement of this series of reminiscences with reference to Brantford and Brant County incidents and people, to begin not quite at the beginning, because that cannot be computed, and in years gone by this section of country was covered to a very great depth by glacial ice, but at any rate to the condition of affairs a little over a century ago.

Colonel Simcoe, a British officer, had been captured by our neighbors during the War of Independence, and under very trying circumstances he was shown much kindness by an American named Watson. When the struggle was over, Simcoe, in 1801, was appointed to be Governor of Canada, and he invited his benefactor to settle in the Dominion, offering him a grant of land. Watson accepted the invitation and came over bringing with him his nephew, Thomas Horner, to whom a grant was made, of the Township of Blenheim, on condition that he should erect a saw mill, and take steps to encourage settlement. To secure the equipment for said mill, he had to journey to New York, a lengthy trip in those days. In the war of 1912 he rendered valuable assistance to the British cause by securing to General Brock the support of the Iroquois of the Six Nations Indians, and seventy-five of their number were led by him to aid Brock's advance on Detroit.

Mr. Horner, as a magistrate, ruled over a district as large as the average English county, including what is now Brantford, and to all the early deeds and documents relating to that section of the county, his signature is attached.

When the settlement of the County of Brant first took place, is a matter of doubt.

It is said that some emigrants came in here as early as 1789, but as before related, the records indicate that 1793 was the date.

The Township of Brant was the first to receive the attention of the pioneers, and they must have been a bold and resolute people, for the early conditions with regard to the clearing of the land, lack of educational facilities and the absence of comforts which are now enjoyed as a matter of course, presented a very formidable prospect.

However, men and women alike went at the task they had assumed with right good will and steady purpose. They were rendered old before their time no doubt, but the outcome is the legacy of splendid farms from one end of the county to the other. It took thirty-four years to thoroughly complete the settlement of Brantford Township, and it was accomplished by slow and laborious methods, for modern day machinery was, of course, then entirely unknown.

There was a time when the area was an unbroken region, with a dense forest growth fed by creeks and rivers.

The only denizens were wandering tribes of Indians, and wild beasts. Beavers, abandoned on the creeks and in the swamps of the Townships, and "rattle snakes" were also quite common. Beavers and wolves were numerous, and children attending the few and scattered schools, often had to go with an armed escort.

The late Mr. Wooden of Burford used to relate the story of how he and his brother were attacked one evening by a number of hungry wolves. They were unarmed, but were saved by climbing a tree. All night the animals tore at the trunk, and it was nearly gnawed through when daylight came and the animals dispersed.

The bears, as usual with bears everywhere, would not attack a human being except provoked, or wounded, but they used to help themselves freely to stock and grain. The late Mr. Thomas Lloyd Jones could recall the scenes when in the tiny village of Burford, news of a bear in the neighborhood, led all to arm with whatever weapons they could seize in order to despatch Mr. Bruin.

In 1799, the first white child was born in Brantford Township—the late Mr. Stephen Landon. Among the pioneers were such well known names as Wheeler, Douglas, Dr. Allen, John Veigh, James Ronda, John Fowler, Justus Stephens, Nathaniel Landon, Abraham Daton, Capt. White, Michael Showers, the Fosters, Lymburners, Woodens and so on.

JEWELS STOLEN

Gems to the Amount of $50,000 Were Grabbed From Girl.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Jewelry worth $50,000 was stolen yesterday from Hotel Llandudno, a watering place in North Wales. The thieves escaped in an automobile. The gems were owned by a jeweler who exhibited them in a show case at the hotel. They were in charge of a girl who brought them from a bank every day in a bag. On arriving yesterday she put the bag down for a moment on the floor beside the case. A man spoke to her, and she turned to answer. A few seconds later she found another bag substituted for the one containing the jewels. When she turned again to where the man had spoken to her had been standing, there was no one in sight.

BRANTFORD BOY SCOUTS GOT ALL THE TROPHIES AT HAMILTON

Headquarters Patrol Made an Especially Fine Showing on Thursday at the Hamilton Centennial—Interesting Notes of the Events.

Once again the Brantford Headquarters Patrol proved its efficiency in Scoutcraft by carrying off the trophies in every event for which it entered at the big Hamilton Scout Rally on the 14th inst. The Patrol arrived in Hamilton at 11 a.m., and witnessed the militia parade, after which Commissioner Macfarlan and his staff were banquetted at the Hotel Royal. The Commissioners were then conveyed by auto to the King Edward school, where the parade was formed. The place of honor at the head of the parade being given to the Headquarters Patrol, whose natty appearance gained it the popular verdict of being the smartest patrol on parade. Headed by the 77th Regimental Band, the troops marched to Victoria Park where the Scoutcraft contests took place. The first competition which the patrol entered was for the best

F. Robertson and Bugler L. Colquhoun. The Tattoo Committee has written to headquarters inviting the local Scouts to participate in this event on the 21st inst. The committee has offered prizes, to be competed for by the City Patrols and numerous entries should be made. All Scout troops will take part in the parade to the grounds and will fall in on the Market Square at 2:30 p.m. sharp. Each patrol or troop will be given fifteen minutes to give any display which they desire, and more than one patrol from each troop may compete. No particular display is demanded for this competition, and the judges, who will be appointed by the Tattoo Committee, will take smartness, neatness of uniform and efficiency of display into consideration to arrive at a decision. The Headquarters Patrol will give a display of Scoutcraft although it will not take part in the competitive work. Wellington Street Church Troop is having a fine time under canvas near Port Colborne where they will remain for another week. Scoutmaster L. Perry will leave for camp to-day to join his boys. The Headquarters Patrol will parade with flags at Headquarters on Tuesday night at 7:30 sharp. The 7th Brantford Troop (Brant Avenue Church) is circulating the example of Grace Church Troop along proficiency lines and an educator is being made to bring an entire Patrol up to the King's Scout standard. Special meetings are being held to bring this about and the Scouts are working hard to attain this coveted rank. Wesley Church Troop Scouts who have been inactive recently owing to the holidays, start their regular meetings and work again on Tuesday night.

bicycle ambulance display, and using Colborne Street Church's serviceable cycle stretcher, it came an easy first. The stretcher was attached to the bicycles and the patient bandaged and conveyed around the arena in less than four minutes. The next competition was in signalling, and the display which the Headquarters Patrol gave of Morse, Semaphore, flag signaling, was pronounced perfect and awarded an easy first. The third competitive display, which, like the others, was open to all cities, consisted of first aid and ambulance work. It is sufficient description to say in regard to this display that the work of the patrol was awarded one hundred per cent, and included respiration methods, bandaging, stretcher work and the other branches of first aid. The work was judged by the St. John's Ambulance Association men, who examined the work of the competing teams carefully, the highest award in good locality. The second patrol being seventy per cent.

The showing made by the Brantford representatives in these Scoutcraft exhibitions caused great applause, and considering the fact that three of the members of the Headquarters Patrol are on holiday at present, the eight members who competed are to be congratulated on the excellent showing which they made. The only displays which the patrol could not enter were the ones in which at least eighteen Scouts were required to constitute a team. There was a large attendance of Scouts, representative troops being present from many places in Ontario. The shields and cup which are being awarded as trophies will be a welcome addition to the Patrol's headquarters.

The names of the Scouts who participated and helped to carry off the honors are: Assistant Scoutmaster W. Colquhoun and Instructors A. A. Beckett, L. Sutherland, P. A. Tipper, R. R. Deagle, H. Waddington

Nothing is more appropriate to girlhood than the finer machine embroidery in some dainty design. Eighteen-inch flouncing in an open eyelet pattern has been used as a basis of this frock for a sixteen-year-old maid. The skirt is lengthened with a pleating of net and pleated net frills edge the sleeves. A sash of pink silk encircles the slender waist and a big white hennip hat is charmingly trimmed with water lilies and pink ribbon.

WINGS OF A DOVE

(By Henry Van Dyke.)
At sunset when the rosy light was dying
Far down the pathway of the West
I saw a lonely dove in silence flying
To be at rest.
"Pilgrim of air," I cried, "could I but borrow
Thy wandering wings, thy freedom blest,
I'd fly away from every careful sorrow,
And find my rest."
But when the dusk a filmy veil was weaving
Back came the dove to seek her nest
Deep in the forest where her mate was grieving
There was true rest.
Peace, heart of mine! No longer sigh
To wander
Lose not thy life in fruitless quest,
There are no Happy Islands over yonder,
Come home and rest.

DOGGERS AND PIRATES IN TIE

Darkness Ends 14 Inning Tie Between Pittsburgh and Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 16.—Pittsburg's farewell appearance for the season here yesterday produced a 14-inning tie game with Brooklyn, darkness ending hostilities with the score 3 to 3. It was a battle of wits after the Pirates tied the game in the ninth, both managers ordering their pitchers to walk dangerous batters several times in the pinches. Men were left on bases in each of the five innings, Pittsburg having the bases full in the fourteenth.

The Giants Made it Three.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—New York made it three straight over St. Louis yesterday, the champions winning by a score of 6 to 1. Wingo's home run into the grand stand in the third inning saved St. Louis from a shutout. Perritt, the St. Louis pitcher, was easy in the first inning. He then pitched effectively until the eighth inning.

Saier's Timely Hit.

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Chicago batted three Boston pitchers hard yesterday, easily winning the last game here this season by 14 to 6. Lavender held Boston to five hits, but his wildness caused him to be relieved in the eighth by Cheney, although the Cubs were eight runs ahead. Saier's hits drove in four of Chicago's runs.

He Was Not Sick Yesterday.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—Philadelphia made a clean sweep of the series by winning yesterday, the score being 3 to 2 in 11 innings. Johnson, the Indian twirler, who was missing from Cincinnati's camp for two days, returned yesterday and told manager Tinker he had suffered an attack of illness while visiting friends. Johnson held Philadelphia down to three hits in eight innings.

Boston Pitchers Too Strong.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—Moseley and Hall were almost invincible yesterday afternoon, while Wellman was hit opportunely, Boston making a two-run straight from St. Louis, 2 to 1. Shotton was the only player who could hit the visitors' pitchers, getting a single off each and scoring the local's lone run when Moseley walked three successive batters.

Buffalo comment is that while Tim Jordan's fielding is all that could be asked, he has been a great disappointment as a hitter. It looks like Big City, wanted so badly a year or so ago by several major league clubs, is about ready to retire from the game.

The Newark Indians, league leaders, open their last series of the season with the Leafs at the Island Stadium on Monday. With the Leafs going at the clip of the last road trip, it should be a series worth while. Pick and Kroy will both be in the game for Toronto, and the contest will start at 3:30 p.m.

UNNECESSARY NOISE

It was Dryden who wrote "So noiseless would I live." He couldn't have done that if he had resided in Brantford and heard the screeching and the blowing, and the bell ringing prior to 7 a.m., at noon and at 6 p.m. in the evening.

There are scores of establishments in this city, employing many hands, who do not use any ear piercing devices to summon the help to work, or to signify the time of dispersal.

Timekeepers are employed in connection with all well regulated establishments, and those employed are keenly alive to the necessity of reporting on time and of the hour of departure.

In London, or New York, or any other large place, the idea of calling employes to work by the screeching of some siren, or the sounding of some bell, or other device, would rightly be regarded as not only ineffective but preposterous.

Why should any differing rule obtain with regard to Brantford, or other places?

The prosperity and successful running of industrial establishments, does not in any sense depend upon unnecessary hubbub, either here or elsewhere.

THE CASE OF SULZER

New York State presents a very peculiar spectacle.

Governor Sulzer has been impeached, and another man is seeking to discharge the duties of that office, although Sulzer claims that he is entitled to a continuance of his election privilege.

Sulzer has always posed as the champion of the plain people and has seemed to act that way, but the main charge against him has been that he has used campaign funds for purposes of private speculation.

His wife, by public confession, took all the blame for that, but the general public, whether rightly, or mistakenly, have been loth to believe her.

The New York World, always a champion of the deposed Governor, has this to say upon the subject:—"The best thing that Governor Sulzer can do is to resign and spare the State of New York further shame and humiliation."

"His case is now beyond explanation. Unless he can prove that the campaign contributions which he used in his Wall street speculations were personal loans, he is beyond defense, and if he succeeded in proving it nobody would believe it. The evidence of his devious methods is overwhelming."

"The Governor has nobody to blame but himself for his downfall. It was not Murphy who endorsed William Sulzer's name to the campaign checks for which William Sulzer made no accounting. It was not Murphy who signed Sulzer's name to a false statement of campaign contributions and expenditures. It was not Murphy who deposited personal campaign contributions with William Sulzer's brokers to carry on William Sulzer's Wall street speculations. It was not Murphy who professed to be attempting to reform Wall street after he had diverted campaign funds to margin gambling. Murphy never pretended to follow the 'street called Straight.'"

"No matter what defense Governor Sulzer may offer, his public career is ended. The World says this sorrowfully and regretfully, but the truth is the truth. Possibly William Sulzer can live down these revelations, but Gov. Sulzer cannot live them down. In any event the painful process of rehabilitation belongs to the walks of private life. The Sulzer administration is wrecked beyond salvage, and the only public service that it is still in the Governor's power to render is to resign before the inevitable machinery of impeachment is set in motion."

"He can at least save New York from the disgrace of seeing its Chief Magistrate impeached for corruption by a Tammany Assembly and removed from office by a Tammany Senate."

The whole truth of the matter is that if Sulzer had stood in with Tammany Hall, he could have done anything he liked without impeachment, but he sought to fight that organization, and any man must be beyond reproach to do that, and even if innocent, is liable to face trumped up charges of a personally fatal nature.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Tammany has apparently proved just that to Sulzer.

The residents of Prince Edward have at last decided to admit autos on that island. In other words, by allowing autos they become less autocratic.

Hamilton is on the last stretch of observing its one hundredth birthday, and most of the celebrants there feel about as old as the city.

In Hamilton nine constables to arrest one man. Those "Old Home" weeks are certainly very enervating.

A Berlin ornithologist in a magazine article declares that the French war office is training eagles to attack airships and also the pilots of the same. Of course, a gun or two on board wouldn't make any difference.

Word comes from New York of the case of a girl who is unable to sleep unless she stands up. As to that, in all ages there have been plenty of those who, although on their feet, cannot be correctly described as awake.

The Board Government, taunted by many Liberal papers as too extravagant with regard to the militia department, has just cancelled the Laurier plan of barracks near Toronto to cost $1,500,000. They propose to achieve the necessary result at much less cost.

Nat Goodwin, the actor, who has four wives already living, says that in his fifth venture he has found his soul mate. Wonder how long that feeling is going to last? It will probably be a case of sixes and sevens for him before he gets through.

A contemporary devotes an editorial to "A Cure for Baldness," but which one of that numerous brigade should give a hang about the matter? In reality original man was covered with hair, but as the race progressed he lost more and more of it until the very highest type of a civilized man is to-day the bald-headed gent.

STRENGTH OF HUMAN BONES.

More Powerful in Some Ways Than the Stanchest Oak.

Human bones are really stronger and possessed of marvellous resisting power. Indeed, the bones of the fairest, most delicate-looking woman are stronger than the strongest oak.

Of course a bone is hollow, and that is one of the chief reasons for its such extreme strength. For instance, a small bone which is no more than a square millimeter in diameter will hold in suspension without breaking some thirty-five pounds, while a stick of best oak of similar width will not hold more than twenty pounds. Indeed, the average bone of the average man is stronger by one half than that of solid oak.

The principle on which our bones are constructed, being made hollow and consequently stronger than if they were solid and heavier, is the same mechanism that has followed the world over. Constructive engineers employ tubes instead of solid cylinders.

In the case of animals thousands of years ago one reason of their bulky frame is attributed by scientists as due to the fact their bones were solid and added to their weight.—Chicago Tribune.

AVIATION TAKES NERVE.

And When That Is Lost the Aeronaut Should Fly No More.

He who flies constantly must look to one personal risk, which may vary according to the characteristics of the individual. This is the danger a man may incur by becoming a little careless while in the air. There is the possibility, in fact, that familiarity may breed not actual contempt, but a temporary relaxation of vigilance, and piloting an airplane needs such watchfulness, such minute precision, that any "staleness" on the part of the man at the wheel or lever represents a peril that is very real.

The pilot who flies a great deal should remind himself constantly that there is no room for error in the handling of aircraft.

A loss of confidence not difficult to understand is suffered by an air man sometimes after he has been the victim of a serious fall, and in similar circumstances a jockey, or, say, a racing motorist, may be robbed of nerve. When a pilot does lose judgment as the outcome of a bad mishap his wisest course is to cease to fly. With a broken nerve he is a menace to himself and to others as well.—Claude Grahame White in National Review.

For the Earache.

"I am afraid I have greatly interfered with my own practice," said a celebrated aurist, "by giving the following advice to many of my friends: At the first symptoms of earache let the patient lie on the bed with the painful ear uppermost. Fold a thick towel and tuck it around the neck; then with a teaspoon fill the ear with warm water. Continue doing this for fifteen or twenty minutes. The water will fill the ear orifice and flow over the patient. Afterward turn over on the head, let the water run out and plug the ear with warm glycerin and cotton. This may be done every hour until relief is obtained. It is an almost inviolable cure and has saved many cases of acute inflammation. The water should be quite warm, but not too hot."—Family Doctor.

DUCHESS DELIGHTS TO GO ON SHOPPING TOURS IN LONDON

Lady of Connaught Usually Takes a Friend Along With Her.

Mrs. Cornwallis-West Is Bearing Her Marital Troubles With Fortitude.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—"There was something in the air on the other side of the ocean which never let one feel dull," said the Duchess of Connaught, the other day. Since she has become convalescent she is doing things she never did before she went to Canada. She now does much of her own shopping, in the company, usually, of some intimate friend, Mrs. John Jacob Astor or Mrs. John Leslie. Shopping, the Duchess avers, is a fine cure for the "blues," from which she has suffered more or less since she has been back in England. In a great temple of frocks in Dover street the other morning the Duchess, leaning on the arm of Mrs. John Jacob Astor, walked leisurely about through avenues of beautiful gowns and opera cloaks. On this occasion, the Duchess, who had requested to be allowed to walk about unattended, by any of the business officials, was overheard holding an unusually interesting conversation with her friend. "Patricia is the dearest girl that ever lived, but she can be trying," the Duchess remarked.

Bears Troubles Bravely Mrs. George West is bearing her matrimonial troubles bravely and with a fortitude which does not surprise her friends who, however, are aware she feels deeply the humiliation and the misery of it all. "If a man wants to go, by all means let him go," is her motto.

There are more amusing stories told of Mrs. West than of any woman in society, and she enjoys recording a joke against herself more than anything else. Some years ago she was a party bidden to meet King Edward and Queen Alexandra at Wynyard Park. There is an unwritten law that the guests must be standing in the drawing room to greet the king and queen before going into dinner. To enter the room after the arrival of the king and queen would be a serious breach of etiquette. Mrs. West could not do this, and to save her soul, on the occasion in question her maid was fastening her bodice as the king and queen were on their way to the drawing room. In the twinkling of an eye she realized the position, "What was to be done?" Like all her decisions it was formed rapidly. There was a balcony outside the French windows which led to the drawing room. Why not get a ladder and get down that way? She sent for the head gardener and told him her trouble and received his prompt aid. In her evening gown and jewels she nimbly slipped down the ladder he brought and unseen by any one else reached the balcony. The rest was simple and she arrived in good time to join the procession as it left the apartment for the dining room. Afterwards she made King Edward laugh heartily over her racy account of her adventure.

Caine Likes Hampstead That picturesque and proverbially "happy" suburb of London, Hampstead, has just lost one famous literary man in the person of H. C. Wells, who has left Shelly's oldest street Church Row, and moved down to the west end, but it is about to gain another in the person of Hall Caine, Hampstead's famous "health," the beautiful wild stretch which is the favorite holiday making ground of London's "Arries" and "Arriettes," i. e., its costers, has it seems made a conquest of the Manxman, who now declares that he can write nowhere else.

Mrs. Caine and her husband have had for several years a beautiful house in Avenue Road, St. John's Wood, a street that numbers several other celebrities, Martin Harvey, the actor, for one, among its residents, but Mrs. Caine told a woman friend the other day that they were giving it up. The husband expressed surprise, knowing that the house, besides being an uncommonly fine one, possessed a lovely garden, but Mrs. Caine declared that her husband found it impossible now to write anywhere except on Hampstead Heath, adding that they were going to build a house for themselves up there, and that they already had bought a piece of land for which they had paid $50,000.

Actors Covet an Honor

There is hardly a vaudeville artist in this country who wouldn't give almost anything he possessed for the privilege of appearing before the king and queen. There is no honor in the music hall profession more eagerly sought, yet several performers seemed to regret that they had accepted Lord Derby's invitation to

THIS WOMAN HAD MUCH PAIN WHEN STANDING

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made Her a Well Woman.

Chippewa Falls, Wis.—"I have always had great confidence in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as I found it very good for organic troubles and recommend it highly. I had displacement, a ache and pains when standing on my feet for any length of time, when I began to take the medicine, but I am in fine health now. If I ever have those troubles again I will take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. ED. FERRON, 816 High St., Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin.

Providence, R. I.—"I cannot speak too highly of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it has done wonders for me and I would not be without it. I had organic displacement and bearing down pains and backache and was thoroughly run down when I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me and I am in the best of health at present. I work in a factory all day long besides doing my housework so you can see what it has done for me. appear recently in Knowsley, in Lancashire, before George and Mary. Their dissatisfaction was due principally to the ridiculously inadequate provision made for the artists. Derby, whose income flows in about three times as fast as he is able to spend it, had a special theatre built. The structure was perfect in every respect except the dressing room. Although the company formed for the amusement of the royal-pair was almost as large as that appearing at most music halls, and although only higher class and extremely sensitive artists were engaged, only two dressing rooms had been provided. Into these small quarters were put the dozen or more artists who were compelled to take their turns at the mirrors. When several of the more independent members of the company saw the rooms in which they were obliged to dress, they openly rebelled and Frank Allen, managing director of the Moss Empire, who had been commissioned to corral the performers, found it necessary to bring into operation all his powers of persuasion to prevent an absolute fiasco.

"Ever again," said two of the artists, popular comedians, whose music hall salaries are well over $1,000 a week. "When we agree to go on any job of this kind again, we will make absolutely sure what we are up against."

Football An Antidote For Revolution

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 16.—To encourage athletics throughout the Russian Empire, the Czar yesterday issued a ukase creating a ministry of sport. General Voyekoff was appointed first minister. Big Truck Goes Out On Rampage Darling Street Building Had a Corner Knocked Out of It.

Yesterday afternoon the large motor truck belonging to P. H. Secord & Sons, Limited, in charge of W. Gibson, suddenly went out on a rampage while turning the corner of Market and Darling streets. The truck had evidently been loaded too heavily behind, and when turning the corner the front wheels rose up in the air, making the machine uncontrollable. The truck went along on its hind wheels like a kangaroo, swerved a little to the left and then ran up on the sidewalk and crashed into the corner of the building used as a Massey-Harris warehouse. The whole corner of the building was knocked in, causing about $50 damage to the building. The radiator on the truck was damaged and a few other parts were broken. Fortunately no one was hurt.

Witnessed House Fire.
 Brantford people who left here on the 5.45 P. and H. radial car last night witnessed a fierce fire which was raging in a farm house near Ancaster. The residence was at the mercy of the flames which were shooting out of the doors and windows.

Mr. Miller Looked Funny.
 The Grand Valley car leaving for Paris at 8 o'clock this morning ran into a one-horse wagon, driven by a man named Miller, breaking the reach, at the same time separating the two hind wheels from the front ones. The horse became frightened and started to go on Colborne street at a merry clip. Mr. Miller was sitting on a board which was on the front part of the wagon, with his feet up in the air yelling "Whoa! Whoa!" A passerby seeing him in this predicament stopped the horse. Little damage was done.

Will Be Best Ever.
 The second annual picnic of the local Typographical Union, No. 378, will be held at Mohawk Park this afternoon; and judging from the handsome programme just issued, this promises to be one of the most successful outings ever enjoyed by the members. They have invited every body connected with the printing trade in the city, which include editors, managers, reportorial staffs, office help, pressmen, bookbinders, feeders, and even the little "devils" will be on hand. It is to be hoped that they will be blessed with fine weather all afternoon. The list of prizes include events for everybody.

Little Harm Will Result From Wires

Conference Over Hydro Matters Was Held Yesterday.

Yesterday Hydro Engineer Ireland Ald. McFarland, chairman of the fire and light committee of the City Council, and Mr. H. Judson Smith, one of the residents of Chatham street who is objecting to the placing of the poles on Chatham street in a position which will cause the wires to pass through the trees, visited the locality. The outcome of the conference was that Park Commissioner Waller will superintend the trimming of the trees. During an interview which the Courier had with Ald. McFarland this morning he said that the top of the trees would be trimmed out a sufficient distance from the wires. This would probably slightly mar the appearance of the trees looking at them from the road. The trees will also be trimmed up in order that the lamps placed on each pole may "let their light shine." In places where it is necessary the arm carrying the wires will extend from one side of the pole only. The trimming of the trees will do them good, the alderman says. "It is said that it is foolish to light a candle and put it under a bushel. Some people expect to get the best results from lighting the electric lamp and putting it under a bush."

Reminiscences of Brantford

Most of the early settlers of Brantford took part in the war of 1812, when as the English troops were engaged in European warfare, the brunt of the contest had to be sustained by the brave farmers of Canada. One of the oldest settlers, Henry Lester, fought as Quartermaster Sergeant all through the war, and distinguished himself at the battle of Lundy's Lane, and Jacob Yeigh served as a Lieutenant, and both the and his brother behaved with much gallantry. In October of 1814, a company of Brantford militia consisting of about fifty, under the command of Captain White, was stationed in the neighborhood of Mr. John Fowler's farm at Brantford, to oppose the approach of the American general, McArthur, who had about seven hundred cavalry. Mr. Ryerson—a forebear of the family so well and honorably known in Brantford—was one of the leaders of the defending force, and so also were Capts. Salmon and Bostwick.

Many skirmishes took place near Brantford village, but finally peace was restored and new settlers came in, notably Mr. Charles Perley, Captain Showers, who had been a distinguished officer during the war, Mr. Wooden, who settled at Cathcart village, and Mr. Lloyd Jones, who came from Denbigh, North Wales.

For many years the Iroquois Indians roamed all over what are now known as Brantford and Dumfries Townships. Where now, practically every acre is cultivated, the half naked and painted savage subsisted on the flesh of bear deer and other animals. In 1816 a Mr. Dickson, then chairman of the Quarter Sessions of Niagara, bought the entire property of North and South Dumfries for $24,000, or a little more than one dollar an acre. Mr. Dickson chose as his aid the son of a Pennsylvania farmer named Absalom Shade, who had shown him much kindly attention when he was a prisoner within the American lines. On his arrival, he and Dickson traversed Dumfries, then an unbroken tract of country, and following the Grand by a narrow path in the forest they finally made their camp on what is now the site of Galt. The Maus, the Caprons, the VanKortmans, the Mullins, and the McNaughts were included in the early period of this section of the county. Oakland up until 1851 formed part of the County of Oxford, and it secured its name because of a ridge of oak trees which ran right through the township. Taxes were payable in land, and the voters also took place there there—a two days' journey at the time. The Malcolm the Eddys, the Chapins, the McAllisters, the Westbrooks the Fairchilds the Thomsons, the Messers were among the early families.

Onondaga Township gets its name from the Onondaga Indians who used to reside there. White people commenced to come in about 1836-37. The first actual settlers to arrive there were David Jones and his father in 1836. Then came the Browns, the Lambs, the Uries, the Ferrises, the Patersons, the Quims, the Chapmans, the Conboys, the Dickinsons, the Burrells, the Howells, the Simpsons, the Hamiltons, Barracloughs, Birketts, Bakers, Scotts and so on.

The first white settler in Brantford township was Mr. John File, followed by a Mr. Fairchild, who settled on a creek to which his name is attached. Other pioneers included the Oles, the Whitneys and the Westbrooks. The first corner of the latter name was a son of one of the veterans of the War of the Revolution (Mr. Anthony Westbrook), descendant of an old English family, settled for two generations in New York State, but who gave up all rather than change the union jack for the stars and stripes and who abandoned prosperous property to take his chances in the then wilds of this county. (To be continued.) F. D. R.

Paris Town News Over Saturday

John McDowell Made Clean Breast of Horse-stealing Escapade.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—John McDowell, charged with the theft of a horse, buggy and harness, besides several small articles from the house of Mr. Roy Maus, appeared before Magistrate Patterson this morning. He elected to be tried summarily and pleaded guilty. The prisoner, who gave his age as 18 years, while not really mentally deficient, seemed to be unable to understand anything unless couched in the simplest form, he showed a decided lack of education and while not dull looking, his mentality seemed to be on a par with an ordinary boy of 10 years. He made a clean breast of everything, acknowledged stealing the horse at Cayuga and selling it to Maus; stealing Maus' outfit and attempting to sell it. He also told of a previous conviction for theft when he was a lad of 12, and of being in trouble for not going to school. Chief Felker and Roy Maus were the only witnesses, and in his evidence Maus placed his loss at all as the boy had worked out the money that had been advanced him in any way.

City Solicitor Henderson of Brantford, acting as Crown prosecutor in the absence of Crown Attorney Wilkes, gave it as his opinion that the boy was not a fit subject for prison life but should be sent to some school of correction, or failing that, to the prison farm. He asked that a remand be granted until the Provincial Secretary's department could be communicated with and find what would be the best course to pursue. Magistrate Paterson then remanded the prisoner until Aug. 22nd.

The Baptist parsonage was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Edith Whalley, daughter of Mrs. Jeffray of

Cardinal Gibbons Calls Eugenicis a Fad

Eugenicis is only a fad which is bound to pass out of existence, according to the views expressed by Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore. Criticising the new eugenic law of Wisconsin, he describes it as an infringement on personal liberty. It is better, he contends, to let the question of marriage remain with the individual. The State, he says, cannot legislate in such matters. Archbishop Keane, of Dubuque, Iowa, also criticised the law.

German Officer Publishes Interesting Article on Question.

Asserts Some of World's Distinguished Soldiers Were of Jewish Origin.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A great sensation has been created throughout Germany and Austria by an article of Baron von Richthofen, a well-known German officer and diplomat, which was published in the Frankfurter Zeitung under the heading, "Are the Jews a Warlike Race?" His reference to the Jews as soldiers in the United States army will undoubtedly be of interest. The writer is a man of moderate and clear judgment, maintains a sharp contradiction to most of his fellow-countrymen, that the Jews are not only fit for military service, but that they possess great military capacities and are no less warlike than the Jews of old. After a short historical account of the great military achievements of the ancient Jews, Baron von Richthofen proceeds to prove his thesis by facts from modern history.

"Some of the most distinguished soldiers whose names are recorded in the annals of France were Jews of Jewish origin—Marschals Soult, Ney, Massena, and others. Ney won for himself the name of 'le brave des braves' and Massena that of 'enfant de victoire,' titles which they well deserved. Even to-day in France the Jews yield comparatively a greater number of soldiers to the army than the Christians.

"At the time of the Dreyfus affair, the following incident took place in Paris:

"A crowd of anti-Semites were holding an open air meeting, when they noticed that a general and a colonel were approaching. To cry 'Vive France!' and lift the officers on their shoulders and carry them in triumph to the end of the street was quickly done. But all of a sudden the general was recognized by some anti-Semites as General Liberman. He and the colonel were both Jews. Instead of 'Vive France,' the cry at once went forth 'A bas les Juifs!' In Italy one of the favorite leaders of the army is General Ottomenghi, who is a Jew, and besides him the Italian army possesses many other Jews who have rendered admirable service to their fatherland.

"In Germany, in the war of 1870-1871, 5,417 Jewish combatants took part in a considerable number of wars, were decorated with the iron cross. The German Jews fulfilled their military duties with the same loyal faith and devotion as the rest. In Austria-Hungary there are comparatively double the number of Jews in the army as in Germany. In the navy also, although it is small there are many Jews.

"Sultan Abdul Hamid once said, that in time of war he could always safely rely on his Jewish subjects. When the war with Greece broke out in April, 1897, from all parts of Turkey Jews offered themselves for voluntary service, and this was repeated in the war against Russia, in 1877. At Demokos, a division composed entirely of Jews, offered resistance to a Greek and Italian division of volunteers. The latter were beaten. At the conclusion of the war the sultan decorated 42 Jews with the medal for bravery which is bestowed only in rare cases.

"In the United States during the war with Spain proof was again given of the same self-sacrifice and devotion. The first volunteer who presented himself was a Jew, and the first American who fell on the field of honor was a Jew. It should be remarked that the American generals were greatly worried by the lack of drill and discipline which characterized the thousands of volunteers. Only the small regular army was fit to enter the field. Nevertheless, a regiment of cavalry and infantry was at once formed from the Jewish volunteers, and these were men who had served in Russia and Germany and had received an excellent military training. A set of them were in affluent circumstances when their adopted fatherland required their services. Colonel (afterwards President) Roosevelt spoke in highest praise of the Jews who were in his regiment of rough riders. He mentions a Jewish sergeant who saved his life during a fight, but was unfortunately killed himself. Many hundreds of Jews were in the ranks in the Philippines, where they showed their bravery in many battles and skirmishes. "British Jews contributed no less to the ranks in the war against the Boers. They enlisted in no fewer than 25 regiments, (including the "Ghazal and the Guards").

OUR BRITISH LETTER

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The British Medical Association, at its annual meeting seriously debated the advisability of organizing as a labor union. Recently the official organ of the association was mulcted for heavy damages for calling a practitioner a quack. Inasmuch as, under a recent decision of the British courts, the funds of a labor union cannot be touched for such damages, the doctors felt that the reorganization of their association into a labor union would not be without certain advantages.

The British Medical Association in its recent strike against the provisions of the compulsory state insurance act emulated the tactics of labor unionists. But in spite of the reputed higher mentality of its members, it suffered defeat on account of a lack of solidarity, just as many of its humbler exemplars have.

Following in the footsteps of the doctors, the police are contemplating the formation of a labor union to be called the Amalgamated Society of Policemen. Petitions appear every week in the press, asking for a week in the police and suggesting the formation of a union as the first step towards their correction. The chief demand is for a maximum police salary of ten dollars a week, and one correspondent suggests that, as the police have to enforce laws that play in the labor disputes of others, they should have little difficulty in enforcing their own demands. One writer hinted that it might go badly with the public if the police struck for their rights. One of the chief worries of the police is due to the suffragettes whose activities have added greatly to their overtime, for which they get no extra pay. Recently the force has been increased in order to give longer vacations, but the men feel that their lot is still cast in hard places.

Mr. Bell was a sad reminder of how the cast-iron rules of the Indian civil service hamper the efficiency of some of its best members, for he was at the height of his powers when he was abruptly retired at the age of 55. He was in excellent health, in the midst of some of his best achievements and willing and anxious to go on with his work, when the orders came to cease his activities.

After his retirement Mr. Bell passed a nearly every winter in India or China, where his services as a consulting engineer were welcomed. He came from a family of engineers, being the grandson of James Bremner, who floated the "Great Britain," the largest steamer in the world, when she stranded in Dundrum Bay on her third trip across the Atlantic. Mr. Bell had some of the greatest bridges in India. Some of these structures are great engineering feats, for the designs have to provide for inundations and changes in the courses of the treacherous rivers they span.

Home Secretary McKenna is being execrated on account of the "Cat and Mouse" bill, but it is generally admitted that one effect of this measure has been to decrease militancy, those on the fringe of the suffrage movement having gone back to constitutional methods, leaving only the irascible to continue the battle.

Mr. McKenna is being execrated from two sides—on one by the more virulent members of the opposition press and on the other by the supporters of militancy in the House of Commons, the latter section being headed by Keir Hardie, the labor socialist member. The position of the Home Secretary has been and still is extraordinarily difficult. He has had to deal with the serious crime of widespread arson, and at the same time he has been compelled to keep his prisoners alive, in spite of their own efforts to starve. In this connection he has had to take into consideration the grave dislike which many people, both pro and anti-suffragists, have against forcible feeding.

Mrs. Pankhurst does not come under the act; she can be arrested anywhere and at any time, as she is practical on ticket of leave.

And Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Her. Straight and Simple Statement Tells of Another Grand Cure By the Old Canadian Kidney Remedy. SPRINGHAVEN, Yarmouth Co., N. S., Aug. 12.—(Special)—Simple and straight to the point is the statement of Mrs. Evelyn C. Treffy, of this place, but it tells of another grand cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills. "My fifteen-year-old son Angus," Mrs. Treffy states, "suffered from pain in his back, headache, and a pain over his eyes. He was so bad, he could not walk across the yard. My friends advised me to give him Dodd's Kidney Pills. 'They cured him.' That young Treffy's kidneys were wrong is evidenced by the cure. Dodd's Kidney Pills only cure diseased kidneys. They never fail to do that."

The reason they cure rheumatism, backache, gravel, dropsy, Bright's disease, diabetes and kindred diseases, is that these all spring from disordered kidneys. They never fail to do that."

WOMEN WEARY OF HOODWINKING SCOTLAND YARD

Suffragettes Find Sleuths of London Easy to Cheat.

Clayton Case is Typical of the Way Tricks are Turned.

LONDON, August 16.—It is so easy for the suffragettes to hoodwink Scotland Yard, that the women are weary of the sport.

The latest case is that of Ewry Clayton. The police were after Ewry, who was critically ill, and to make sure he would not escape they posted detectives to guard his house night and day. As soon as he recovered sufficient to walk abroad he was to be in Ewry. Every day members of the Suffragette association visited the Clayton cottage, bearing fruits, jelly and flowers for the sick man. The police felt secure as they saw the suffragettes come and go; they would get their man on his recovery. Finally, the visits of the women ceased. The police, wondering, drew their ranks closer and finally entered the house. Ewry was not there, but in America. The house was filled with flowers, fruits and jelly. Ewry had slipped away and taken a steamer a fortnight back, and the daily visits of the women were simply a blind.

The suffragettes took all this trouble for Mr. Clayton because he is a chemist who was sentenced to penal servitude on a charge of criminally assisting a convict to escape.

The reports, however, are not all from official sources, many being supplied by missionaries and travelers, so exact figures are impossible. The Minister concludes with the statement that a great deal must be done before the work of suppression can be considered as complete.

Intoxicated Motor Cyclist

At Haddington Richard Cumpstie, bricklayer, Dalkeith, was fined $15.00 for having at Port Seton driven a motor bicycle recklessly and while in a state of intoxication. People, it is said, had to run off the road as the bicycle was swerving from side to side.

Child Drowned in a Trough

At Granton-on-Spey a boy, two years old, of James Stewart, was accidentally drowned. The child was at play near a water trough used for horses. When missed he was searched for and was found by his mother in the trough, having fallen in head foremost.

Wireless Telegraphy at St. Kilda

Messrs John McCallum & Co., of Glasgow, have received a telegram from Mr. Blair, master of their steamer Hebrides on the return voyage from St. Kilda. He stated that the installation of the wireless telegraph is now completed and that messages from many quarters have been tapped.

Crofters' Rents Reduced

A number of the decisions of the Land Court, following the slittings in the island of Arran, have been issued. Considerable reductions of rent have been made in all the cases, and in some cases a reduction of more than 50 per cent was made. In certain cases arrears of rent have also been cancelled.

Bathers' Plight

A number of bathers at Dunbar were put in an unhappy plight through losing a quantity of their apparel. They had placed their clothes on the rocks, and while in the water the ground swell had swept them beyond the reach of recovery. One lad was much distressed, as he had a considerable amount of money in his jacket-pocket.

Registrar Hanging in a Wood

Mr. Alexander Ross, registrar and inspector of poor of the parish of Birse, Aberdeenshire, was discovered hanging lifeless from a tree in a wood at Birse. He had been somewhat anxious about the state of his wife's health. Mr. Ross was clerk to the school board and was well known in connection with public work relating to the parish of Birse.

To The Editor

OBJECTS TO POLICE METHODS Brantford, Aug. 16, 1913. Sir,-Would you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper. Being a witness to the arrest of the fellow opposite the Prince Edward on Saturday, the 9th, I think it is time something was done to stop the brutal way the police use their prisoners. The constable in this case, seemed to have lost control of his temper, so he beat the fellow on the face, then, not content with that, they pushed him in the patrol, giving him no chance to get in himself nor caring how he fell or anything else. Now I can't see where such practice is going to make the bitter feeling between the public and police any less by such ways as these. If he could not handle the man, why did he not call for help as he should have done. Hoping that this will be seen to by those who have charge of these things, I remain, Yours truly, A Lover of Fair Play.

JOHNSON MAKES IT ELEVEN STRAIGHT

Great Twirler Made a Major League Season Record Yesterday.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—President Comiskey's 55th birthday was celebrated yesterday when his team, the Chicago White Sox, defeated New York 3 to 2. Tutela vs. Tigers, at Mohawk Park. There promises to be a battle royal over at the Agricultural Park when the Dragoons and Duffie meet as there is keen rivalry between the two teams. The Cavalry have been coming strong and fast lately and will make one desperate effort to capture the infantry. The Duffs can be depended on to not be caught napping and will trot out their sharpshooters to his for this game especially. Who ever wins it will be no shant battle.

The boys from Merry Old England are out to beat the Y. M. C. A. eleven and as they have come to life lately, are bound to fight the association boys every step of the way.

Cup Tie Game.
This afternoon the Tutela and Tigers are playing off their game in the John Hill Charity Cup series at Mohawk Park grounds. The game is a very important one in as much as the defeated team will be out of the running for the Cup.

This being the case it can be taken for granted that both teams will put forth their best efforts to win. It should be a fine game to witness as the teams are reported to be evenly matched. The Tutela team have proved very hard nuts to crack, while the Tigers have acquired the habit of springing the unexpected. The Eagle place eleven will no doubt have a large following of rooters who will be there strong to cheer for their favorites.

The proceeds of the game, or in other words the total amount of the collection will be donated to the Tuberculosis Hospital fund.

As the game will no doubt be fast and interesting and the receipts will be donated to a good cause. It is hoped a large crowd will be present.

Not until this late stage of the race does Manager Ganzel of Rochester admit that it is impossible to overtake Newark.

GREAT WERE THE PLUNGERS OF THE OLDEN DAYS SOME NOTABLE CASES RECALLED

Much water has passed under London Bridge since the Marquis of Hastings, seated in a basket-carriage with deck stumped upon his pinched features and attenuated frame, saw his last race at Newmarket First October in 1868; but the memory of his splendid recklessness and of the smiling face with which he met ruin and an early death still compels our admiration as it claims our sympathy.

The ill-fated "Harry Hastings" was the last of the great plungers of the past, of the breed which produced such fine and prodigious sportsmen as Colonel Mellish, Lord Glasgow, Sir Joseph Howley and George Payne—men who were ready to stake their last acre on a horse, and could lose or win a fortune as lightly as a card game. He was a light-hearted fellow as other men would sit down to breakfast or buy their morning paper, says the London "Illustrated Sporting and Dramatic News."

The turf has never known a more regal or prodigal devotee than Harry Mellish, king of sportsmen and gambler alike, who thought nothing of staking and losing $200,000 on a single throw of dice, or of winning $500,000 at a card table one evening and losing every penny of it the next.

Of Colonel Mellish it is said that he never opened his mouth under $2,500 in the betting ring; and there were few of his wagers that did not reach four figures. When Sancho won the St. Leger of 1894 for him, the Colonel pocketed $400,000 in bets with as much indifference as he had lost $200,000 at the card table at the Prince Regent the night before. And when Sancho lost him $100,000 in match with the Duke of Cleveland's Pavilion, we are told, "he lunched at the Star with the Royal party as if he had been losing; threepenny points at whist, and at daybreak he was seen entreating Mr. Howarth—Lord Barrymore's opponent in a duel, who had striped to the buff to protect his chest from getting in the wound, to shake hands after one shot and dress himself once more."

Even when he had squandered his magnificent patrimony, he retired, without a murmur against an unkind fate, to the one small farm that alone was left to him, to spend the brief remainder of his days in rural obscurity.

The gallant Colonel was rarely underground (he was but thirty-seven when he died), when he had a worthy successor in young Viscount Kelburne (later fifth earl of Glasgow), whose reckless gambling was calculated to take the breath out of old stagers. And well it might to judge by the following story: One day Lord George Bentinck looked in at Crockford's on the eve of the Derby of 1843, and expressed his readiness to take 3 to 1 about his horse Gaper. "I'll lay it you," said his host, "if you will, but then I want it in money." "Very well," was the instant rejoinder. "I'll lay you $450,000 to $150,000."

It was dangerous, Thormanby tells us for a trainer or jockey to advise his lordship to put $500 on a horse, as he was sure to multiply the advice by ten or twenty or even one hundred. Very often he would take no advice; and with a colt at least two stone better in his stable, he characteristically enough backed Dare Devil to win him $250,000 in the St. Leger. "Whether he won or lost a matter of fortune was a matter of equal indifference to this reckless seadog, who lost $165,000 on Mameluke for the St. Leger of 1827, with the same smile as he won $85,000 on Jerry for the same event three years earlier.

When George Payne came into his heritage in 1825—a rent roll of $85,000 a year and $1,500,000 in ready money, he wasted no time in dissipating his princely fortune on the turf. Indeed, so impatient was he, that a good year before he came into his "kingdom" he lost $165,000 when Jerry won the St. Leger of 1824, declaring with a laugh to his friends who consoled with him, "It's a pleasure to lose it, by Jove!" So reckless was he we are told, that he would sometimes the turf, parted with his entire stud, "from Bay Middleton to Little Kitchener (his famous feather-weight jockey)" for the ridiculous sum of $50,000! Two years later one of the horses thus petulantly sacrificed won both the Derby and the St. Leger for his new owner.

Sir Joseph Hawley, a sportsman, who was born both lucky and rich, never did a wiser thing than when he committed the egregious folly, according to his friends, of purchasing Mendicant from John Gully for $15,000 for not only did Mendicant win the Oaks of 1845 but her son, Beadsman, by his Derby victory in 1858, enabled his owner to clear upward of $400,000 in bets, in addition to the unusually rich stakes. Not was this the extent of Sir Joseph's good fortune with Mendicant, for her grandson, Blue-Gown, repeated the performance, bringing such a harvest to the "lucky baronet," that, in his elation, he handed the entire stakes, little under $300,000 to the jockey, Wells, who had ridden him to victory.

It is perhaps little wonder that Admiral Rous, that strait-laced old sailor, should be roused to virtuous indignation by such heavy wagering, and should write strongly-worded letters to the "Times," proposing that any person winning more than $150,000 over one race should forfeit his winnings, and that any member of the Jockey Club who won more than $250,000 upon a race should be expelled from that select company. Such a reform would hit very hard men like Mr. Merry, who won $350,000 on Thormanby; Sir Joseph Hawley, who netted $400,000 on Beadsman, and Mr. Naylor, who landed more than $500,000 on Macaroni. But that Sir Joseph should join the Admiral in his virtuous campaign is not a little surprising, especially as we know that, at the very time he was writing these reforms, he was taking $200,000 to $3,000 apiece about each of his five fillies in the Derby.

John Gully, ex-bruiser, butcher and publican, has a good title to rank among these leviathan plungers of the past, seeing that he opened his turf career with wages of $50,000 that his horse Mameluke could beat ten unmade horses in the St. Leger, and $90,000 that he beat nine. By a stroke of shocking bad luck, Marzlin, the foolishly risk wrecking his arm. Yet in 1911, when Washington finished seventh, he won 11 straight games where other good pitchers were finding it hard to win two straight.

In 1912, when we had a chance, I worked Johnson in his turn to save him up for the stretch in case we were close enough to make a desperate fight for it. He came to me and told me he wanted to work every other day in case I needed him to Lord George Bentinck, whose story of baffled ambition and mysterious death is one of the tragedies of the turf, was a very Napoleon among betting men, a man whose wagers were often expressed in five and even six figures. In the Derby of 1843 he stood to win $750,000 on Gaper; and, although that grand horse did not even find a place, so cleverly had Lord George made his book that the race added $150,000 to his bank balance. When his celebrated mare, which he had bought in 1840, he was $100,000 richer in bets; and in one year alone, 1845, his net winnings after paying all expenses of his racing stud, amounting to $250,000, exceeded $500,000.

And yet in a moment of pique at not having won the Derby, that "paramount and Olympic stake," to gain which had been the object of his life, this splendid sportsman, the idol of

"JOHNSON THE PEER OF ALL" SAYS FOXY GRIFF

Walter Johnson is the master of them all. Johnson is the greatest pitcher of the era—a harder man to beat upon an average than any pitcher who ever lived. The man whom batsmen fear more to face than any other, and face with fewer results, is Johnson.

So says Grantland Rice, in an article in Collier's comparing three world-famed pitchers—Johnson, Mathewson and Walsh.

As to why Johnson is the greatest, Grantland Rice summed it up in seven lines of verse in the same publication, saying:

"How do they know what Johnson's got—
Whether his break is set?
How can they tell his outshoots fall?
Whether his incurve's big or small
How can they tell what he's got on the ball?
Nobody's seen it yet?"

Views of Clark Griffith.
Clark Griffith, himself once one of the great pitchers of the game, told Grantland Rice for the same article why Johnson is better than either Big Ed Walsh or "Matty."

"I know," says Griffith, "what 'Commy' thinks of Walsh and what McGraw thinks of Mathewson. Walsh is a wonder for work, and Mathewson is the brainiest pitcher I ever saw. But I have a good reason for believing that all around Johnson is greater than either—greater than any pitcher that ever lived. The reason is a simple one—place all three of these men upon teams of equal strength in the same league, worked to their limit, and Johnson would end the season with more victories and fewer defeats than either. He is a harder man to beat than any other man, all other conditions being equal, and this is the final test."

Johnson has yet to be sent at top speed over the full route, as Walsh and Mathewson have. This is so for the reason that up to 1912 he was working with a seventh place club, where it would have been worse than foolish to risk wrecking his arm. Yet in 1911, when Washington finished seventh, he won 11 straight games where other good pitchers were finding it hard to win two straight.

In 1912, when we had a chance, I worked Johnson in his turn to save him up for the stretch in case we were close enough to make a desperate fight for it. He came to me and told me he wanted to work every other day in case I needed him to

"DODE" BIRMINGHAM, LEADER OF THE NAPS IS SOME PERSONALITY

Cleveland's Great Showing in the American League This Shows Birmingham at His Best--He is a Great Outfielder.

By Tom Terrell. Who is this young person, Joe Birmingham, who has thrust a scare into the camp of the Athletics and who threatens occasionally to make the American League pennant race worthy of the name? What is the managerial scheme perpetrated by him which gives him success where others failed--which has marked him as the most successful manager Cleveland ever had? Joe hasn't basked in the spotlight of publicity quite as much as other men who labor under the title of major league managers. Possibly the fact isn't generally known, but Joe wasn't always as popular in Cleveland as he is now. There were times in late years when his career as a member of the Cleveland club was almost cut short. That was in his bad batting years.

recruit second sacker acted in the capacity of spectator. He scarcely moved from his tracks. No one else thought of that. Birmingham did, but he didn't mention it until the next day and then only when he and the recruit were alone. The recruit was so shocked by the knowledge that Birmingham had caught him napping that he probably never will forget the play again. On another occasion Birmingham was hitting grounders to the young infielders. The second baseman had difficulty in handling throws from the shortstop on double plays. The ball was thrown fast--too fast in fact--and either too high or too low. Again no mention was made of the fact until the following day. To the second-sacker Birmy said: "What was the matter, Mack, with you on those throws from Blank yesterday?" "I don't know," was the answer. "I just couldn't seem to handle them."

effort to land him. He chose Cornell. The carnelian and white prouted by his decision. He became one of Cornell's gridiron stars, though at the time he weighed slightly less than 100. Oddly his love for the baseball was even greater than for football. Summer baseball drew him. He left Cornell before graduating. His baseball began to command attention. Minor league clubs were after him. He went to that incubator for baseball players, Notre Dame university, in company with "Red Murray," star outfielder of the New York Giants. Stay is Brief One. His stay there was brief. In fact he did not remain through the baseball season. The St. Louis Cardinals offered contracts to him and Murray. The latter accepted. Birmingham felt the need of further education and much as the need of exercising their muscles on the diamond. Their stay at Notre Dame was filled with interesting incidents. They furnished much amusement for the student body. Their exit was hastened by their tendency to amuse. Most of the students slept in a large dormitory. It grew to be a habit for Birmingham and others to wait until the lights were dimmed and the prefect was busily engaged in saying his evening prayers and then roll a 16-ponnd shot across the floor. 'Twas some noise, Birmy was a favorite of students and faculty, but couldn't stay after Murray had departed. He was given a trial in 1906 by the A. J. and G. team of the New York State League. Major league clubs were by this time attracted by his sensational work. Birmingham's mighty whip was the most talked-of thing around the section of New York from the time that he tossed aside knickerbockers until the present he has been much in the public eye. His history has been a history of great achievement in the athletic line. He was born on August 6, 1884, at Elmira, N. Y. That means that he is just barely turned thirty-nine years old--making him the youngest manager in the major leagues. His father, a good old Irishman, fresh from the "Old Sod," lavished affection upon him. Joe was the favorite son. That affection and the glamor which surrounded the plumb-ers' trade caused the father to want out a future for Joe which dealt with building ballbats, correcting fanils in sewers, etc. Elmira feels the cold of winter keenly. There, as in other northern towns, the plumber, like the gas man, is considered to have the sure road to wealth. Over-Rules His Father. The turning point in his career came when Joe over-ruled his fond father's wishes. Joe has often declared that it was the first and the time that he ever got the better of his good old general in an argument. Joe had much help however in winning the argument. His baseball and football ability was well known to all citizens of Elmira and surrounding towns who had a leaning towards athletics. College men saw in Birmy great material for their athletic teams. The arguments of a few of them in fact, a committee was organized to take up the matter with Birmy's father, brought the decision to permit Joe to continue at school. He moved to Mercersburg Academy. The records prove that Birmingham was the greatest drop kicker and one of the best punters Mercersburg ever had. Mercersburg is watched closely by all the eastern colleges. College alumni hovered over his train. Penn- sylvania men especially made a strong now banking on overtaking the Athletics. Coming from New Orleans at the start of the season when asked to make a statement Birmingham declared: "I can't promise a pennant. That's too much especially with Connie Mack's great team as a rival. However if we are within reach of the first team when the fall breezes start to blow, I'll take my word for it we will give this American league one of the hottest finishes it ever experienced." The Naps are within reach of the Athletics. The Naps are now threatening. Whether they will succeed in brushing by the Athletics only the future can tell. Birmingham's greatest regret has been that his father did not live to see the success achieved by his son.

An Appreciation

Mr. Herbert B. Amos, M.P., of the St. Antoine Division, Montreal, who accompanied Major Leonard of the Transcontinental Commission on a tour of inspection over the National Transcontinental Railway as far west as Graham where the Lake Superior Branch of the Grand Trunk Pacific joins the main line states "That the decision to build a first-class road with a four-tenths grade against east-bound freight and six-tenths against west-bound, has been rigidly adhered to west of Cochrane, at least, and that he found a well built railroad in every respect. By the time the railroad is out of the hands of the contractors there will be few better lines in the country than the Transcontinental Railway."

Review of British Sports

It will not be surprising to hear of some members of the "patriotic party" bewailing the decadence of English sport because the Davis Cup, whose destiny was settled this week, has again gone to the Americans, and thereby for the once demonstrated their international superiority in the game of lawn tennis. But it would be much more generous to congratulate the representatives of the U.S.A. upon the accomplishment of a feat of which they were entirely worthy, and to take to heart the lesson which has been learned, that English players must cultivate a better service. As declared by one authoritative critic, the service stroke of McLoughlin is in itself a match-winner. "No player before the young American," it is declared, "has ever been able to hit so fiercely and yet be so splendidly accurate." These Americans have also shown that we do not hit hard enough overhead.

"The young American's service," writes another critic, "shot away out of reach of the Englishman's (C. P. Dixon's) racquet, scoring point after point with monotonous regularity." This is the view of Mr. H. T. Schmidt, the umpire of this memorable match between McLoughlin and Dixon: "It has been an extraordinarily close fight for the cup, but I think it is likely that if the matches were played again Britain would win." The result has been determined by the unaccountable defeat of Barrett and Dixon in the doubles on Saturday. But we have been fairly and squarely beaten on our own ground, and with every circumstance in our favour." America has now won the Davis four times against the five occasions upon which it has been approached by Britain. The Old Country is, therefore, still one to the good.

The death of Mr. Joseph Lowry during the week recalls the romantic manner in which this well-known Irish owner and breeder became a personality on the turf. It was pure chance that caused him to become a breeder, as a dispute arose at a sale he held of a thoroughbred, and the party to whom it was knocked down declined to take the mare, with the result that Mr. Lowry bought her himself. The mare, which was bought for twenty guineas, was in foal to Winkfield, and in due course got Cecil Winkfield, which was sold for 2,000 guineas. Later Mr. Lowry bred Bachelor's Buton from a mare which he picked up for forty-five guineas, and Bachelor's Double, Bachelor's Hope, and Bachelor's scandal.

Velvet Hats and Fur Boas Worn With Diaphanous Frocks at Auteuil Steeplechase

WHETHER by accident or design, it is at the Auteuil Steeplechase race meet that the prettiest models appear in Parisian summer frocks. While it is a day that has not the grand elegance of the Journé des Drags nor the world-wide popularity of le Grand Prix, from the point of view of women's clothes, it is the most interesting of the races, and has been for the last decade. Indeed, the prettiest costumes are generally saved for it.

Being, as it is, the next to the last big race of the Paris season, it generally brings out the flimsy type of dresses; they seem doubly attractive in the picturesque setting of the Auteuil passage. The cotton dresses are made up for these race meets in most unusual. In America cottons are more generally connected with the useful tub frock. In France, where cotton fabrics are less plentiful, they are made up in the same serious fashion as a nice linen or silk dress, and never get any nearer tubbing than the professional cleaners. By the time a Parisian designer has gotten through with a gauzy cotton, velvet or crepe dress it is a glorified creation that would make its homelier sister, the tub frock, hesitate to bear it company.

Lace and mousseline de soie made up with sheer net is another fabric combination this year that is masquerading as material for afternoon frocks, though it was lost nothing of the evening dress in its cut excepting the train. When you add to this a narrow line of fur around the tunic edge, or a fur stole that has been carried as a protection from the chill summer dampness of the Bois, you have the keynote of the summer afternoon fashionable robe. Vaporous, strangely decolleté, it has made fashionable France laugh and shrug amused shoulders, but scandalized others more conservative, who fear that it may prognosticate a return to the licentious dress of the Directorate. The fact remains always, however, that a well bred woman in questions of extreme style always knows where to stop in the matter of decency of dress, and always will know. Those who are to be pitied are the unfortunate ones who do not possess the sixth sense, and not only transgress the line of decency but of good taste.

Besides the diaphanous dresses of this summer, those of zapple satin, charmeuse, crepe messor and liberty have been as popular as ever, even if they have failed to oust the crepe and crepon gowns, plain or brocaded. There have been the new combinations of lace and tulle, which are perhaps the most popular of all, and still newer, tunics or overdresses of lace with wrapped skirts of satin. In this case the satin is seldom seen above the high waist line, unless by folded girdles or pointed tabs of the satin that fold over the filmy blouses.

The tight trussed figure now takes on a passé and old fashioned air, and woman looks more and more like a beautiful vase, with gently rounded hips, accentuated by soft drapery folds; slender ankles that are half covered by the scant draperies that are literally wound about the feet, with convenient slashes to allow for walking. The shoulders have resumed their natural curves under the filmy or silken drap tops, the hair is flint and the hats are small, though the ornaments on these commence to be startlingly large in some of the latest models.

The striking gowns seen at the race meets always attract attention, and it is absolutely marvellous that the charming women who wear them can carry them off with such utter lack of consciousness when they are the cynosure of all eyes. One of the most effective gowns snapped by the camera at the Auteuil Steeplechase this year and reproduced here is the dernier cri of fashion. Nothing is lacking. The skirt, made of one piece of material, is draped up in folds and gives just the desirable curved contour to the lower part of the figure. It is slashed and opened down the front under tiny satin buttons of gray charmeuse, like the gown. The corsage, almost sleeveless and as décolleté as an evening gown, is a soft unlined mass of charmeuse, tulle and lace. A tiny velvet hat posed over a simple hairdressing has the picturesque bridle string of velvet under the chin; the slippers are laced with satin ribbon. Ostensibly a race course gown, to be worn only on special occasions, it nevertheless is an exponent of all that is latest in fashionable trend, and which doubtless will be reproduced later in simpler form.

The mousseline and mousseline de soie dresses seen at this race were smartly topped off by velvet hats, and velvet sunshades bordered with tulle also helped to give the snappy note so desirable in thin fabrics.

In a group of four light dresses snapped by the camera three are accompanied by velvet hats. Of these one is faced and bordered with straw, one adorned by a white sigratte and the other with a feather fantasia. The two latter figures wear lace dresses, one a tunic top tied in with a wide sash that has a big butterfly bow at the neck, the other a three flounced skirt, the colored sash knotted at one side of the front. The dress at the right is composed of a long tunic and a lapped and draped skirt of white satin. The fourth figure wears a crepon gown of dull pale blue, with a lace top. A long sable fur scarf is carried and the tulle hat is trimmed with a ribbon bow and aigrettes.

Another gown pictured here has an embroidered tulle of mousseline and lace belted with a silver filigree girdle and graded frissons of silver; a large jewelled clasp is placed in front. There is a wired Medici lace collar about the neck. The slender draped skirt is of white supple satin. A faulle silk hat is adorned by a paradise ornament.

The three-flounced skirts have an immense amount of popularity already. A variation from those that encircle the whole skirt is seen in one here, where the flounces, made of mignon plaited tulle, are broken in front by a flat panel of tulle with lace insertions. The bolero is also of tulle and lace, with a loose rolling ruff of lace. Hat, rose and shoes are of chestnut brown—the hat of velvet, the rose and shoes of satin.

Black satin, the skirt caught by a jet ornament up its front and draped, is topped off by a white appliqué lace tunic, belted with the satin. The décolleté is outlined with a double lace frill. A white plush hat adorned with a white aigrette is worn with this costume. A rose satin gown has a plaited tulle tunic, the shaped lower edge hemmed with a narrow line of brown fur. The frankly décolleté edges of the corsage are outlined with a lovely lace Medici frill. The hat has a velvet crown and a lace brim.

Venetian lace forms a part of two other gowns seen at Auteuil. One has a tulle of it, the pattern outlined with gold braid in an ochre tint posed transparently over a black satin skirt that is draped up on the front seam. Here, too, a slash makes walking possible, while preserving the correct ultra fashionable silhouette. A simple large rose is thrust in the belt. Laced slippers are worn. A large velvet tain shape is caught up at one side with an ornament.

The other gown is of black satin, the skirt folded into the waist line and draped in the usual new lines. It is almost covered with an overskirt shape of white Venetian lace. The filmy corsage is a soft vaporous mass of Venise lace and tulle. At the triangular décolleté there is a cluster of roses.

Accessories of Fashion.
Nearly all the coiffures for the evening are worn with a jewelled slider or tiara and in diamonds, which catches the head in front and disappears into the shining waves of hair. Sometimes an aigrette or a paradise plume is added in front or at the side of the coiffure. If this is found becoming to the wearer, the beautiful old fichus of air one of the beautiful old fichus of Chantilly lace may be used for this pur-
